Israel is a helpless captive in Babylon. All other nations have forsaken them in their time of need. A picture of a soul's ruin, and the world's indifference to its condition.

I. The Ruin. They are described as being-

1. GUILTY. "Because thy sins were increased, I have done these things unto thee" (Jeremiah 30:15). Sin leads to bondage, to suffering, and disappointment.

2. BRUISED. "Thy bruise (hurt, r.v.) is incurable." Sin has crushed man's soul out of its original shape. Man has absolutely no cure for it.

3. WOUNDED. "Thy wound is grievous." Heart rebellion against God is an awful gash in a man's, or a nation's, moral being. It is very grievous in its results, as they reach into Eternity.

4. FRIENDLESS. "There is none to plead thy cause" (Jeremiah 30:13). While in the "far country" the prodigal found no one to plead his cause. No man can redeem his brother. But we thank God for 1 John 2:1.

5. HELPLESS. "Thou hast no healing medicines" (Jeremiah 30:13). Man's wisdom and ingenuity has invented many medicines, but there is no healing in them.

6. DESTITUTE. "All thy lovers have forgotten thee" (Jeremiah 30:14).. The hewn-out cisterns have proved broken and worthless. Their lovers have proved mockers.

7. MISERABLE. "Why criest thou" (Jeremiah 30:15). It is the cry of hopeless despair. "Out of the depths have I cried." The discovery of our infinite poverty and need makes such a cry irresistible.

II. The Remedy. The cure for a sinner's woes is found in God alone, in His Presence, and His Promise. "I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee" (Jeremiah 30:11). Emmanuel, our Hope (Matthew 1:21-23). In His sevenfold promise there is a perfect salvation. He promises-

1. HEALTH. "I will restore health unto thee" (Jeremiah 30:17). Restoration to Himself means health. "He is the health of my countenance" (Psalms 23:3).

2. HEALING. "I will heal thee of thy wounds." Saved, not only from sickness, but also from unsoundness. The wounds may be deep, but not too deep for His healing power.

3. FREEDOM. "I will bring again the captivity" (Jeremiah 30:18). There is, not only healing, but emancipation from the power of the enemy.

4. FRUITFULNESS. "I will multiply them, and they shall not be few" (Jeremiah 30:19). An increase of numbers as the result of a better testimony for God.

5. HONOUR. "I will also glorify them." Despised and rejected of men they may be, but accepted and honoured of God they will be. Those who suffer for Christ shall also reign with Him. On the other side of the flood they sang the Song of Moses.

6. PROTECTION. "I will punish all that oppress them" (Jeremiah 30:20). The overthrowing of the Egyptians in the Red Sea is a warning to all who follow God's people with the intent of their hurt. His redeemed are His peculiar treasure.

7. ALL-SUFFICIENCY. "I will be your God" (Jeremiah 30:22). No greater promise could God give. No fuller blessing could He offer than this. "Lo, I am with you all the days." See Hebrews 13:5-6, Revised Version. Observe God's "I wills" in this provision. THE RESTORATION Here again, as in chapter 30, God's promise to deliver consists of seven "I wills."

I. I will gather them out-Separation (Ephesians 2:3-5).

II. I will bring them in-Safety (John 10:27).

III. I will be their God-Assurance (1 John 3:1).

IV. I will give them one heart-Unity (John 17:20-21).

V. I will make a covenant with them-Satisfaction (2 Corinthians 6:17-18).

VI. I will put My fear in their hearts-Worship (Acts 9:31).

VII. I will rejoice over them-Praise (Php_3:1).

GREAT, HIDDEN THINGS

Jeremiah 33:1-9

The reference is to Jerusalem desolated by war. A picture of a ruined life through sin and unbelief.

I. The Condition of Blessing. "Call upon Me" (Jeremiah 33:3).

II. The Mighty Promises. "Great and hidden things."

1. RENEWAL of health (v, 6).

2. REVELATION of abundance of peace and truth (Jeremiah 33:6).

3. DELIVERANCE from bondage (Jeremiah 33:7).

4. RESTORATION of ruined things (Jeremiah 33:7).

5. CLEANSING from all iniquity (Jeremiah 33:8).

6. GOD-HONOURING testimony (Jeremiah 33:9). THE RECHABITES

Jeremiah 35

Jonadab, the son of Rechab, was a strong, wise man. His life and testimony was a protest, Elijah-like, against the sins of the age, Baal-worship, and intemperance. The Rechabites were a separate family living in patriarchal fashion-dwelling in tents (Jeremiah 35:6), and observing the vow of the Nazarite (Numbers 6:2-4). As they were used as a rebuke to Judah, so may we learn much from them.

I. They were the Sons of a Good Father. Jonadab was a man zealous for the cause of God (2 Kings 10:15-16). A righteous, courageous, and consistent example on the part of a parent goes a very long way in the formation of the character of the son. The good, as well as the evil, that men do live after them in their children.

II. They were Severely Tested. "Bring them into the house of the Lord...and give them wine to drink" (Jeremiah 35:2). They had come into the city for safety when the King of Babylon and his forces came into the land (Jeremiah 35:11). Now they are tempted by the prophet, in God's own house, to break their vow of abstinence. Truly, they might have been excused in the circumstances. City temptations are strong for young men in every age, especially now. How many are still tempted to take the intoxicating wine in the house of God, by God's own servants at "Communion Seasons," when the house of prayer smells like a saloon.

III. They were Faithful to their Convictions. "They said, We will drink no wine, as our father commanded us" (Jeremiah 35:6). Although their father was dead long years ago and although no one might have reproached them for taking it on such an occasion, yet they remained true to their father's wish and their own consciences. Of course, Jeremiah knew well that they would not touch it, if they had his purpose and God's message would have been thwarted. The proverb, "When in Rome do as the Romans do," is often cowardly and immoral. This lax, accommodating principle has been the ruin of multitudes.

IV. They became an Example to Others. Their faith in their father, their obedience, and devotion, to his word and will, were used by God to rebuke His people's unbelief and disobedience. "They obeyed their father's commandment;...I have spoken unto you...but ye hearkened not unto Me" (Jeremiah 35:14). They were faithful to their father's words spoken three hundred years ago, but God's professed sons had disregarded and forgotten His words. How true is it still that, in our human and temporal relationships we show far more fidelity, than in our spiritual and eternal. The Rechabites had received but one command, and they obeyed. God's people had servants and prophets sent again and again (Jeremiah 35:15), repeating His Words to them, yet they hearkened not. How slow men are to believe God.

V. They were Rewarded. "Because ye have obeyed your father, and kept all his precepts... Jonadab shall not want a man to stand before Me for ever" (Jeremiah 35:18-19). Their obedience to their parent was well pleasing unto the Lord (Colossians 3:20). As a family they lived long on the earth. This is the special blessing attached to the "Honouring of thy father and mother" (Ephesians 6:1-3; Exodus 20:12). Obedience to God's Word is rewarded with everlasting life (John 3:34-36). All who honour His Word shall stand before Him for ever.

BURNING THE BOOK

The Book of God, like the people of God, has, in every age, suffered persecution. It has been tortured and ruptured, pierced and ridiculed, burned and buried, but it has quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, stopped the mouths of lions, and turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Here we see Jehoiachin burning it, but God gave it a resurrection in a mightier form.

I. The Message Given. (1) It was from the Lord. "Take thee a roll of a book, and write therein all the words that I have spoken unto thee" (Jeremiah 36:2). Like the Gospel of Christ, it was a revelation from Heaven. (2) It was a message of solemn warning. "Against Israel, and against Judah, and against all the nations" (Jeremiah 36:2). Like the Gospel, it was of universal import. (3) It was sent in mercy. "It may be that Israel will hear...and return every man from his evil way, that I may forgive their sin" (Jeremiah 36:3). Like the Gospel, it was a manifestation of God's love for them, and His desire after their salvation.

II. The Message Heard. "So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll...and he read it in the ears of the king" (Jeremiah 36:20-21). What a privilege to hear such words of faithful warning mingled with Divine forbearance and mercy. The importance and responsibility of hearing His Word, and giving heed to it, is powerfully evidenced here. It was the most critical moment in the life of the king. Hear, and your soul shall live.

III. The Message Rejected. "He cut it with the penknife, and cast it into the fire" (Jeremiah 36:23). Any fool could do that. There are some people's tongues like penknives, they cut to pieces the Gospel of God. There is a penknife called "higher criticism" that has done its own share of destructive work, but the most common and persistent weapon used by the ungodly against the Word of God is "an evil heart of unbelief." It was not with the "roll of a book" that the king had to do, but with the God of the book. The paper, or the preacher, may be easily cut to pieces, but not so the message, the Word of God endureth for ever. There are many who would not burn the book, but who are not afraid, nor rend their garments when its words are read (Jeremiah 36:24).

IV. The Message Renewed. Another roll was taken and "all the words of the book which the king had burned in the fire" were written, "and there were added besides unto them many like words" (Jeremiah 36:32). The force of the message was augmented by resistance. God will never lower His demands because of the opposition and hatred of men (Acts 5:40-42). No man is done with God's Word when he has rejected and destroyed it. That same Word will yet judge him. A man might as well expect to improve the weather by breaking the barometer, as to relieve his soul by rejecting God's message. The unbelief of some will never make the Word of God of none effect. Remember that He who is "The Word of God" was resurrected from the dead. THE VOICE OF THE LORD

"Obey, I beseech thee, the voice of the Lord...so it shall be well with thee" (Jeremiah 38:20). The "voice" here stands for the Word of the Lord. It is- I. A Warning voice (Jeremiah 38:3-4).

II. A Humbling voice (Jeremiah 38:2).

III. A Hated voice (Jeremiah 38:4-6).

IV. A Convicting voice (secret concern, Jeremiah 38:14).

V. An Assuring voice (Jeremiah 38:20).

VI. An Infallible voice (chap. Jeremiah 39:2-7).

JEHOIACHIN'S DELIVERANCE

Jeremiah 52:31-34

"She sat and wept; with her untressed hair She wiped the feet she was so blessed to touch; And He wiped off the soiling of despair.-Coleridge. The Divine threatenings in Leviticus 26 find their terrible fulfilment in the reign of Jehoiachin. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked." Sin brings to ruin every nation and individual that yields to its dark and foulsome dominion. The king of Babylon was Jehovah's sword of vengeance in the punishment of Judah for their rebellion against Him. Jehoiachin was taken captive and thrown into a Babylonian prison, where he remained for the long period of thirty-seven years. But Babylon's new king, Evil-merodach, had mercy on him, and in grace wrought a marvellous change for him, giving us an illustration of the wonder-working grace of God.

I. Delivered. "He did lift up Jehoiachin out of prison" (Jeremiah 52:27). This was his first necessity. He could in no wise lift himself up. The grace of God which bringeth salvation has a mighty uplifting power. "He brought me up out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay" (Psalms 40:2); and from the darkness and thraldom of Satan into the Kingdom of God's dear Son. As with the king of Judah so with us; there is no uplifting into liberty without the exercise of Royal Authority.

II. Comforted. "He spake kindly to him." The law has no kind word of comfort to speak, but grace has. By grace are ye saved. All those ransomed by the power of Christ are comforted by the ministry of the Holy Spirit. The religion of man attempts to speak comfortably to men in the prison of sin; the religion of God first saves, then comforts. The blood of His victory goes before the water of His consolation. He knows how to speak a word to the weary. In all the coming ages God's people will show forth His kindness towards them through Christ Jesus (Ephesians 2:7).

III. Exalted. "He set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon." Jehoiachin had the pre-eminence among the other kings who were as captives in Babylon. The whole incident may be prophetic of Judah's future exaltation and glory, as it is suggestive of the spiritual uplifting enjoyed by those who are risen and exalted into heavenly places in Christ Jesus. Abounding sin and failure is conquered and overcome by the much more abounding grace of God. If man's fall through sin has been great, his uplifting through grace has been greater. He can make the homeless beggar of the dunghill meet to sit among the princes of Heaven. "Oh, to grace how great a debtor!"

IV. Clothed. "He changed his prison garments." The prison garments speak of guilt, defeat, shame, and bondage; but now they are gone, and garments of beauty take their place. So it is with those whom grace hath saved. The old things which spoke of failure, degradation and imprisonment, are put off, and those things have been put on which tell of glory, honour, immortality, and eternal life. A change will soon be evident when once a soul has been emancipated from the law of sin and death- the filthy rags of self-righteousness give place to the righteousness of God, which is unto all and upon all them that believe (Zechariah 3:3).

V. Honoured. "He did eat bread continually before him." He had the daily privilege of having fellowship with him who had delivered him from the house of bondage. The prisoner was now the constant companion of his Saviour. The grace of God not only saves and transforms, but brings into abiding fellowship with Himself. The kindness of David wrought the same gracious work for Mephibosheth (2 Samuel 9:7). The door of our King's banqueting-house is always open for His own specially invited guests. Eat, O friends!

VI. Supplied. "His allowance was a continual allowance given him of the king, a daily rate for every day, all the days of his life."

1. It was an ALLOWANCE. It was not a reward, or something given as wages. It was something placed at the disposal of him whom the king delighted to honour. It was the provision of grace. How much has God placed at the disposal of those who have been saved by His grace? All the unsearchable riches of Christ.

2. It was a DAILY allowance. "A daily fate for every day." Take no thought for your life. "My grace is sufficient for thee." To-morrow's allowance will come with to-morrow's need.

3. It was given him of THE KING; out of the king's fullness, and from his own gracious hand were all his wants supplied. "My God shall supply all your need" (Php_4:19).

4. It was an allowance FOR LIFE. "All the days of his life." The royal promise covered his every need. All is yours, for ye are Christ's.

Ezekiel

THE LIVING CREATURES

Ezekiel 1

It was when the prophet was "among the captives" that the "heavens were opened, and he saw visions of God" (Ezekiel 1:1). John was in the Isle of Patmos when the revelation came to him. These "visions of God" which came to Ezekiel the priest, whatever be their import to Israel, are strikingly symbolic of the Church of God as seen in Revelation 4 (read r. V.). These living creatures resemble the Church in-

I. Their Origin. They came "out of the midst of... a whirlwind...a great cloud, and a fire" (Ezekiel 1:4-5). A fire that was "infolding (taking hold of) itself." The fire, cloud, and whirlwind, are suggestive of God of Mystery and of Judgment, all of which appear in the sufferings and death of Jesus Christ. The Church is born of God in the mystery of godliness, and delivered from the judgment of sin (Acts 2:2).

II. Their Character. They are "Living creatures," literally "living ones." They are not dying ones. Not of the earth earthy, but from Heaven. They are living ones whose life is akin to God's, partakers of the Divine nature. Heirs of eternal life.

III. Their Appearance. "They had the likeness of a man" (Ezekiel 1:5). Created after the image of Him who is the Son of God, in righteousness and true holiness. The Church is in the likeness of the Man Christ Jesus. Having- 1. The face of a MAN for wisdom, and reverence in worship (Ezekiel 1:10).

2. The face of a LION for courage and strength in battle.

3. The face of an OX for patience and perseverance in service.

4. The face of an EAGLE for clear vision, and heavenly power in testimony.

Each had four wings, power to obey the Divine commission, and to keep themselves out of sight. With two they "covered their bodies" (Ezekiel 1:11).

IV. Their Movements. "They went every one straight forward" (Ezekiel 1:12). This method of action proves that they were of one mind, and dominated by one great purpose. How could it be otherwise when, "whither the Spirit was to go they went?" That the Church of God might go straight forward in one Spirit, doing His will, was partly the burden of Christ's great prayer in John 17 (Romans 8:14; John 17:22).

V. Their Influence. "Their appearance was like burning coals of fire...like lamps...the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning" (Ezekiel 1:13). He maketh His ministers a flaming fire (Psalms 104:4). The early Church was endued with "Cloven tongues like as of fire" (Acts 2:3). "Burning coals," "lamps, "and "lightning," are self-assertive, they are not to be hid. Be filled with the Spirit, and the coals of thought will burn, then the lamp of life will shine, and the lightning of conviction and revelation go forth (Ezekiel 1:14).

VI. Their Accompaniments. "And when the living creatures went the wheels went with them" (Ezekiel 1:15-21). The rings of the wheels were so high that they were dreadful...and full of eyes...and the Spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels. Symbolic of the Providence of God in relation to His redeemed people. "All things work together for good to them that love God,...called according to His purpose" (Romans 8:28. See 2 Chronicles 16:9). They were mysterious ("dreadful"), unerring ("full of eyes"), and in perfect accord with the living ones-the same Spirit was in them. What a comfort to the Church of God.

VII. Their Translation. "The living ones were lifted up from the earth" (Ezekiel 1:19. See chapter Ezekiel 10:19). When they are lifted up the wheels are also lifted up. This is a solemn thought for an ungodly and Christ-rejecting world. The Church shall be lifted from the earth (1 Thessalonians 4:17). But when the wheels of Almighty grace cease to move in the world, the flaming fire of retribution will be kindled (2 Thessalonians 1:7-10). Life from God is the guarantee of life with God.

EQUIPMENT FOR SERVICE

Ezekiel 2:3

The first great essential in service is a "vision of God" (chap. Ezekiel 1:1). A vision of His greatness, His holiness, and unfailing mercy. Saul, who became Paul, was not "disobedient to the heavenly vision." The vision comes through the revelation of His Son in the Scriptures of truth (John 1:18). Here are some characteristics, which, without fail, belong to the true servant of God-

I. They are Spirit-possessed. "The Spirit entered into me" (chap. Ezekiel 2:2). The revelation of God prepares for the entering of His Holy Spirit into the heart. Be filled with the Spirit. He is always ready to possess every consecrated life.

II. They are God-sent. "He said unto me, I send thee" (chap. Ezekiel 2:3). Those who are Spirit-taught, will be Spirit-sent. "As Thou has sent me into the world," said our Lord; "even so have I also sent them into the world" (John 17:18). The vision of Calvary preceded the Pentecostal enduement and witness-bearing.

III. They are Willing Recipients of His Word. "He said. Son of Man...eat this roll, so I opened my mouth" (chap. Ezekiel 3:1-3). His words are spirit and life (John 6:61-63), so the Spirit-taught soul receives them gladly. He receives the roll of the book, just as a little child receives its food. He opened his mouth, and the Lord filled it, "and it was in his mouth as honey for sweetness." If the Word of God was more simply and fully received, there would be more delight in it, and more power through it.

IV. They are Courageous. "Behold, I have made thy face strong," etc. (chap. Ezekiel 3:8). A "strong face," is an evidence of great force of character. Leaders of men have usually a strong facial expression. God can make your character to be strong and powerful. The fear of man is foreign to the man of God.

V. They are Obedient. "The Spirit took me up... and I wept in bitterness, in the heat of my spirit" (Ezekiel 3:14). The Word of the Lord was sweet in his mouth, but somewhat bitter in its practical operation. But although there was bitterness to his soul in following the guidance of the Spirit, he obeyed. Paul gloried in tribulation also.

VI. They are Humble. "Then I came to them of the captivity...and I sat where they sat" (Ezekiel 3:15). This was how he reached the lapsed mass. He obeyed the Spirit of God, and went and sat down among them. Those who labour for Christ, must act like Him, humbling themselves for the sake of others.

VII. They are Faithful. "I have made thee a watchman" (chap. Ezekiel 3:16-21). The watchman must "warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life." The wicked need warning, and the man who has seen "visions of God" is alone able sufficiently to give that warning. Paul was a faithful watchman, and could say, "I am pure from the blood of all men" (Acts 20:26-31). Study to show thyself approved of God, a watchman that needeth not to be ashamed (2 Timothy 2:15). THE TIME OF LOVE

All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine. In this chapter we have a revelation of the marvellous love and grace of God! Judah is here represented as a helpless, forsaken infant, perishing in the open field. The time of Divine love came when He, passing by, pitied, and saved with a great salvation. The need of a ruined Jerusalem is the need of every ruined soul.

I. A Picture of Destitution. Could any figures of speech be more expressive than this?

1. HELPLESSNESS. "I saw thee weltering in thy blood" (Ezekiel 16:6, R..v.). Jerusalem did not see herself in this sorrowful plight. God's judgment of sin is quite a different thing from man's (Romans 3:19; Romans 5:6).

2. HOPELESSNESS. "None eye pitied thee...to have compassion upon thee" (Ezekiel 16:5). No one is capable of pitying the sinner who knows not the holiness of God. Men can understand the sadness of poverty, shame and crime committed against himself or his fellow men, but not sin as against God. In this sense "No man can redeem his brother." In humanity there is absolutely no hope for man as guilty before God.

II. A Picture of Salvation. "Behold thy time, the time of love" (Ezekiel 16:8). The time of love was when "He passed by, and looked upon thee." Our time of love is now, while God in mercy and grace is passing by in the Gospel of His Son, beholding in pity and compassion our sin and misery. The proof and power of that love is seen in what He did.

1. HE SPARED. "I said unto thee, Live" (Ezekiel 16:6). He only could speak the Word of Life to this bloodstained outcast. He who "spared not" His own Son spared this sinning soul. The salvation of God is the sparing of the soul in unmerited mercy from guilt and death. Saved by grace alone.

2. HE CLEANSED. "Then I washed thee with water." Blood, the figure of pollution and sin, was washed away. Every spared one is a washed one (Galatians 1:4). The life He gives is a clean life.

3. HE COVERED. "I spread My skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness" (Ezekiel 16:8). He acts the part of a near kinsman (Rth_3:9). The skirt of His righteousness is unto all, and upon all them that believe.

4. HE CLAIMED. "And thou becamest Mine" (Ezekiel 16:8). Oh, what a change! From the "open field" of sin and shame, into the bosom of the family of God. From self-degradation and hopelessness, into the Kingdom of grace and of glory.

5. HE ANOINTED. "And I anointed thee with oil" (Ezekiel 16:9). It is God's will that all His claimed, cleansed, and coyered ones should be anointed with the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8; Acts 19:2).

6. HE CROWNED. "And I put...a beautiful crown upon thine head" (Ezekiel 16:12). He who began the good work of saving grace, carried it on to completion, so that we become "perfect through His comeliness" (Ezekiel 16:14). The crown is the emblem of dignity and power. The crowning day is coming, and now is.

7. HE USED. "Thy renown went forth among the heathen for thy beauty" (Ezekiel 16:14). "Perfect through My majesty which I had put upon thee" (r.V.). "The glory which Thou gavest Me I have given them" (John 17:22). Let your light so shine before men.

III. A Picture of Desecration (Ezekiel 16:15-20). In every age God has had occasion to make the same sorrowful complaint against His ungrateful people. Blessed with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus, yet backsliding in heart, and using their God-given prestige for selfish and worldly ends. This picture is a very sad one, and all the more so that the sin shown in it is so common. It is the desecration of their-

1. BEAUTY. "Thou didst trust in thine own beauty, and playedst the harlot because of thy renown" (Ezekiel 16:15). This is what we sometimes term "religious pride," using the influence God in grace hath given us for base, selfish purposes.

2. GARMENTS. "Thy garments thou didst take, and deckedst thy high places" (Ezekiel 16:16). The garments given her for glory and beauty (Ezekiel 16:10-11) desecrated to the adorning of a false and God-dishonouring religion. The teaching of Christ is now being used by some preachers for the building up of a new and unscriptural system.

3. TREASURES. "Thou hast also taken My gold and My silver..and madest to thyself images of men" (Ezekiel 16:17). Devoting the gifts of God to the honour and praise of men. The gold and silver of Divine truth debased, as if it were only the message of men.

4. CHILDREN. "Morover thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne unto Me, and these hast thou sacrificed... thou hast slain My children" (Ezekiel 16:20-21). What an awful charge! A backsliding Church is a murderer of its children. Those born of the Gospel of God, in the day of His power and grace, are often sacrificed and "devoured" by false teaching. All this has come about by having a "weak heart" toward the Lord God (Ezekiel 16:30). Let us take heed lest there be in any of us an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God.

SIN AND DEATH

Ezekiel 18:1-23

God charges the people with misrepresenting facts. He says, "What mean ye that ye use this proverb...saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge"

(Ezekiel 18:2). Hereditary influence may be great, but that will not absolve from personal responsibility. "Behold, all souls are mine...the soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezekiel 18:4). There is no escape from this. Some searching and encouraging lessons are taught in this chapter. Notice that-

I. All Souls Belong to God (Ezekiel 18:4). He is the Author and Bestower of life. He is the Father of spirits. Souls in the deepest sense are spirits, and should glorify God as the chief end of their existence.

II. Each Soul is Individually Responsible to God "The soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezekiel 18:4, Ezekiel 18:20). No man here is to die for his father's sin. The sinning son of the just man shall die in his sins;.(Ezekiel 18:5-13), and the righteous son of a sinning father shall not die for his sins, but live (Ezekiel 18:14-17). Every man must give an account of himself unto God. No man is condemned because of Adam's sin, but because "All have sinned."

III. Righteousness is the Condition of Life. "If a man be just...he shall surely live" (Ezekiel 18:5, Ezekiel 18:9). A just man is literally a lawful man, a law-abiding man. A man whose life is in harmony with, and guided by, the holy law, or Word of God. Through Christ, the righteousness of God is now unto all and upon all that believe. All that believe are justified from all things (Acts 13:38-39). Apart from grace there is "None righteous, no, not one."

IV. Wickedness is the Condition of Death (Ezekiel 18:20). Wickedness here is literally lawlessness, the opposite of the just who are lawful. A lawless soul is a soul living in the sphere of death. Enmity to God's Word and will is the evidence of it. Those who are a law unto themselves are the murderers of their own souls. Repent and believe.

V. Sin and Death are Inseparable. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezekiel 18:20). The wages of sin is death (Romans 6:23). "Wages" are something duly earned, and that must be justly paid. The soul that sinneth shall die, because, in sinning, the soul is choosing death rather than life. The presence of sin means death, as the absence of light means darkness.

VI. God has no Pleasure in the Death of the Lawless. "Have I any pleasure at all that the lawless should die? saith the Lord God" (Ezekiel 18:23). God's character, His Word, and His work in the Person of His Son, all emphatically declare His displeasure at the death of the sinning soul. Could any protest be louder than the cry of the Christ of God upon the awful tree, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." His will is that all men should be saved by coming into the knowledge of the truth (1 Timothy 2:4).

VII. Conversion is the Way into Life. "He should return from His ways and live" (Ezekiel 18:23). The Lord is no respecter of persons, His "way is equal" (Ezekiel 18:25). "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out. "Except ye be converted-turned to the Lord-ye cannot enter the Kingdom of life. I am come that ye might have life. Come unto Me. Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, fox why will ye die.

WARN THEM FROM ME

Ezekiel 33:7-11

The prophet is here reminded that he has been set apart as a "watchman unto the house of Israel" (Ezekiel 33:7; see chap. Ezekiel 3:17-21). If there were no danger there would be no need of the watchman. The enemy is ever seeking whom he may devour. What He said to Ezekiel He now says unto all, "Watch" (Mark 13:37). Notice the- I. Responsibilities of the Watchman. They are twofold.

1. "To HEAR the word at His mouth" (Ezekiel 33:7). The watchman must not only have eyes to see and a mouth to speak, but ears to hear the Word of God as from His own mouth. The first necessity is to hear Him, and to enter intelligently and sympathetically into His mind and purposes.

2. To "WARN them from Me." Warn them, because there is impending danger; and warn them from Him, as one who is wholly devoted to His will. The watchman's responsibility lies in making men feel their responsibility to God.

II. Responsibility of the Warned. The "wicked" here are literally the lawless. Observe their-

1. CONDITION. "O lawless man, thou shalt surely die" (Ezekiel 33:8). Sin is lawlessness, and lawlessness is death. Death is the result of alienation from God.

2. OPPORTUNITY. "Warn them from Me." Through the prophet they were distinctly "warned of God." It is sad to be deluded and deceived, but it is surely a mercy to be faithfully warned of our danger. "Except ye repent ye shall likewise perish" was not spoken in anger, but in love. The warning comes from God just as directly as the invitation of His mercy (John 3:36).

3. RESPONSIBILITY. "If he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity" (Ezekiel 33:9). The warning is "to turn. " If he turns not he shall, die in his sins, his blood shall be upon his own soul. Regeneration is the work of the Spirit of God; but conversion-turning about-at His bidding is an act of our own will. The trumpet warning of the law may be despised, and the trumpet blower may be reckoned behind the times, but turning from sin and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is the only way into the Kingdom of God, which is righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

III. Attestation and Appeal of the Wronged One. "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked (lawless); ... turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die" (Ezekiel 33:11). This is the agony of Divine love that found its fuller expression in the dying cry of His beloved Son on the atoning tree: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." "The Lord is... longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish" (2 Peter 3:9). "He that taketh warning shall deliver his soul" (Ezekiel 33:5).

HYPOCRITICAL PROFESSORS

Ezekiel 33:30-33

Hypocrisy is literally the acting of a part on a stage, assuming a character that is unreal. A "saint abroad and a devil at home" is how Bunyan puts it. Those who "steal the livery of the court of Heaven" to serve themselves on earth are hypocrites of the most ardent type. Take a look at their behaviour as here depictured. See them in-

I. Connection with God's Servant. "Talking against thee by the walls and in the doors of their houses." This manner of tale-bearing, behind the wall and in the home, is most reprehensible. This secret, God-grieving tittle-tattle against His servants is not overlooked by Him. All closet work, whether it be good or bad, is open to His eyes.

II. Connection with God's People. They say, "Come, let us hear what is the Word from the Lord... and they sit before thee as My people sit, and hear thy words." They put on the form of Godliness so long as it helps their own personal interests. They assume the habits of God's people, while they secretly sneer at the real work of God. The only time they are among God's people is when they are hearing His Word.

III. Connection with God's Message.

1. THEY HAVE PLEASURE IN HEARING IT. "They hear Thy words... and lo, Thou art unto them as a very lovely song, as one that...can play well on an instrument." Ezekiel must have been an attractive preacher, with "a pleasant voice," and playing well, as on an instrument; and his message was, even to those hypocrites, "a very lovely song." That is just exactly what the message of God to sinful man is, "A very lovely song." But woe be to those who only hear it as a song for the ear, instead of a message for the heart. How much preaching there is to-day that "tickle the palate, but do not make men feel the bitterness of sin." -Good and entertaining preaching, that is to Godless hearers like a tune well played on an instrument, or a lively song sung with a pleasant voice. But in this case, as in very many others, the preacher was not to blame.

2. THEY IN HEART REJECT IT. "They hear thy words, but they will not do them; for with their mouth they shew much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness." They love in a measure to hear God's message, but they will not receive it. "With their mouth and with their lips they honour Him, but have removed their heart far from Him" (Isaiah 29:13). Such base and deceitful conduct brings upon such the "woe" pronounced upon all religious hypocrites, who are "like unto whited sepulchres" (Matthew 23:27-28). It is awfully possible to flatter Him with the mouth, while lying to Him with the heart; but as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he before God. With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the heart man deceiveth unto everlasting condemnation.

FAITHLESS SHEPHERDS

Ezekiel 34:1-10

Here are six conditions of need mentioned as expressive of sin and soul destitution, making clear the great need of faithful shepherds.

I. Their Work.

1. To feed the HUNGRY (Ezekiel 34:3).

2. To strengthen the WEAK (Ezekiel 34:4). Weak through disease.

3. To heal the SICK (Ezekiel 34:4).

4. To bind up the BROKEN (Ezekiel 34:4).

5. To bring in the DRIVEN AWAY (Ezekiel 34:4). Backsliding.

6. To seek the LOST (Ezekiel 34:4).

II. Their Faithfulness.

1. They were SELFISH. They fed themselves and starved the flock (Ezekiel 34:3).

2. They were PROUD. They ruled with force, self-will, and not with love (Ezekiel 34:4, l.c.).

3. They were RUINOUS. The flock were scattered (Ezekiel 34:5). They became a prey to the beasts of the field (to false doctrine and lax example). "They wandered through all the mountains (false philosophies) and upon every high hill" (pride of intellect) (Ezekiel 34:6). The sheep became like distracted souls, seeking light and help in other godless religions.

4. They were DISOWNED of God (Ezekiel 34:10). Take heed to thyself. "Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock" (1 Peter 5:2-3).

WHAT GOD WILL DO FOR HIS SHEEP

Ezekiel 34:11-30.

As the unbelief of some cannot make the faith of God without effect (Romans 3:3), neither can the unfaithfulness of God's shepherds make the faithfulness of God to fail. With regard to His sheep- I. He will search and seek them (Ezekiel 34:11). They shall hear His voice (John 10:27).

II. He will deliver them (Ezekiel 34:12). The power of the enemy shall not hold them.

III. He will bring them (Ezekiel 34:13). Separate them for Himself.

IV. He will feed them (Ezekiel 34:14). Bring them into good pastures (Psa. 23).

V. He will rest them (Ezekiel 34:15). Cause them to lie down.

VI. He will bind up the broken (Ezekiel 34:16). Broken and useless members.

VII. He will strengthen the weak (Ezekiel 34:16). Weak through sickness and weariness.

VIII. He will judge their cause (Ezekiel 34:17-22). When tempted, annoyed, and persecuted.

IX. He will watch over them (Ezekiel 34:23-25; Hebrews 13:20).

X. He will bless them and make them a blessing (Ezekiel 34:26).

XI. He will abundantly satisfy them with good (Ezekiel 34:29-31). THE GREAT CHANGE

Ezekiel 36:25-32

These wonderful words refer primarily to Israel's restoration. Under the law the heart of His people had become like a stone, but through His infinite grace a new heart would be given them, so that by the constraint of love they would walk in His ways. God's method in dealing with a sinful heart is revolutionary, it is a regeneration.

I. The Disease. "A stony heart" (Ezekiel 36:26). A heart that is "stony" is- 1. COLD. It has become insensible-past feeling. All warmth of affection for God and His Word has died away.

2. HARD. Not easily impressed. Unyielding as a rock. Indifferent to all the gracious influences of light and the force of spiritual truth. Callous.

3. DEAD. Incapable of spiritual motion. No vitality toward God. Deaf to His call and dumb for His Name.

II. The Remedy. "A new heart will I give you...an heart of flesh." The only cure for a stony heart is a new heart. Polishing or carving a stone into an altered and improved form will not make it a "living stone." A heart of flesh is-

1. A NEW HEART. It is the gift of God, and takes the place of the stony heart, and so renewing the whole man. It is not only new to the man who gets it, but its manifestations are new to all who see them.

2. A SOFT HEART. Sensitive and childlike, easily impressed by the things of God. The stony nature has disappeared.

3. A WARM HEART. The love of God has found a home in it, and is shed abroad through it. It glows with compassion for the perishing, and burns with indignation against sin and iniquity.

4. A LIVING HEART. Once dead, but now alive unto God. A heart fitted to have communion with the living God. When Sir W. Raleigh was asked to adjust his head on the block he said, "It matters little how the head lies if the heart is right." Is thine heart right with God?

III. The Results. The new heart opens the way for the fullness of the new life. The new character reveals itself by-

1. POSSESSING HIS SPIRIT. "I will put My Spirit within you" (Ezekiel 36:27). His Spirit is the new motive power in the life. . This new moral machinery requires a new power (Romans 8:9).

2. WALKING IN HIS STATUTES. "I will cause you to walk in My statutes." The daily life is made to become pleasing unto the Lord. To walk in His way is to walk with God.

3. DWELLING IN HIS LAND. "Ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers," etc. (Ezekiel 36:28). The good land of His providence is the inheritance of all Who have been made "new creatures in Christ Jesus."

4. RESTING ON HIS PROMISES (Ezekiel 36:29-32). They are exceeding great and precious, so that we might delight ourselves in the Lord, because for His own Name's sake hath He done all this for us (Ezekiel 36:32). THE BONES AND THE BREATH

These bones refer to "the whole house of Israel" (Ezekiel 37:11). As a nation, they are scattered over the open valley of the whole world, separated bone from his bone, and very dry. But the time will come when the breath of God's Spirit shall come upon them, and they shall "stand upon their feet an exceeding great army" of witnesses for God and for His Christ. But surely there is a present-day application of all Scripture, divinely breathed. Observe-

I. How the Vision Came. "The hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the Spirit" (Ezekiel 37:1): We must be "in the Spirit" to see things as they really are as God sees them. This is where revival begins.

II. What the Vision Was. "A valley full of bones." A picture of utter desolation. A wrecked and ruined people. "Very many" and "very dry." Through their backsliding and indifference to God's Word they had become like bleached bones; no evidence whatever of spiritual sap or life in them; dried up through pride, worldliness, and self-dependence. .The same principles produce the same results to-day, but how few see it.

III. A Testing Question. "Son of man, can these bones live?" (Ezekiel 37:3). This question can only come home to those whose eyes have been opened to see the awful need of spiritual life. . The blind man would answer, "What bones? I don't see any bones. Things are quiet and peaceful, and the valley is lovely and attractive. " Think of the responsibility that rests with a Spirit-taught man! The opened eye is a new opening for work. If God hath given us to see the need of others, does He not mean to use us for their deliverance?

IV. A Thoughtful Answer. "I answered, O Lord God, Thou knowest." He only could know, for He alone could make them live. Science, art, and all the philosophies of men have no remedy for a soul dead in sin and dried up with iniquity. "Thou knowest." Salvation is of the Lord. It is good in a crisis like this to cast ourselves on the wisdom and power of God.

V. The Remedy. The Divine remedy is revealed when the need has been seen and painfully felt. It is twofold. He is commanded to speak to the bones on God's behalf (Ezekiel 37:4), and to speak to God on their behalf (Ezekiel 37:9). Preach the Word of the Lord (Ezekiel 37:4) and pray for the power of the Holy Ghost. The preaching is to be in the faith of His promises. "Behold I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live" (Ezekiel 37:5). It is the Spirit that quickeneth. The results were according as he had said (Ezekiel 37:10). An army of men raised from the dead stood upon their feet, ready to breathe out their God-given life in His service. "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be... alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans 6:11).

WATERS TO SWIM IN

Ezekiel 47:1-12

This mystical river is full of prophetic significance. In the time of Millennial blessing rivers of living water shall flow forth from the sanctuary of the Holy City into the desert and waste places of the earth (Zechariah 14:8), and "everything shall live whither the river cometh" (Ezekiel 47:9). But this river may also be regarded as a beautiful emblem of the fullness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ, or of the Pentecostal outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

I. The River. A free, spontaneous outburst.

1. ITS SOURCE. "Out from under the threshold of the house" (temple) (Ezekiel 47:1). Out from the holy place, the place of the "Mercy seat," the throne of God. Like the Holy Spirit, it proceeded from the Father (John 15:26).

2. ITS COURSE. "The waters came down...at the south side of the altar" (Ezekiel 47:1). Yes, the only way these life-giving waters can reach a perishing world is by way of the altar-the Cross of Christ. The Holy Spirit was not given till after Christ had suffered and was glorified (see Revelation 22:1).

3. ITS FORCE. IT GREW IN POWER AND PLENITUDE, ALTHOUGH IT HAD NO TRIBUTARY. The streams of earth can add nothing to the river of God. It became a river that could not be passed over. It had power to heal (Ezekiel 47:8), to revive (Ezekiel 47:9), and to bring forth fruit and abiding freshness (Ezekiel 47:12). Such is the power of the Holy Spirit working in those who believe in Him as the Scripture hath said (John 7:38-39). It is a symbol of the unsearchable riches of Christ and the boundless love of God.

II. A Growing Experience of the River's Depth and Power. Being obedient to the Divine Leader, he was brought in vision into a progressive experience of this fullness of blessing. Three times over we are told that "He brought me through," indicating that these were not final conditions, but the way to something deeper and better-a passing experience. Note the order-

1. ANKLE DEEP. "He brought me through; the waters were to the ankles" (Ezekiel 47:3). It was but a shallow acquaintance with the river of life, but still, he was in it. This stage represents the "Spirit of Faith," the definite act of stepping into the current of the Divine will, although that will as yet is but little known.

2. KNEE DEEP. "Again He brought me... the waters were to the knees." The only way the waters can rise upon us is by our getting deeper down. Knee deep represents the "Spirit of Prayer." When the knees are captured for God there will be delight in His fellowship. It is possible to be a believer and yet have no liberty in prayer. Although this is but the second stage of the Christian life, how many fail to attain unto it, because they refuse to be led (Ezekiel 47:2).

3. LOIN DEEP. "Again...the waters were to the loins" (Ezekiel 47:4). The loins stand for the secret of the strength of a man. The river has laid hold of his strength. This represents the "Spirit of Power." The praying Christian will soon become a witnessing Christian. His loins are now girded with the power of God. When a man is loin deep there is less of the man seen, and the depth of the river is in greater evidence. Those only ankle deep make a big show of themselves, and misrepresent the fullness of the waters.

4. SWIMMING. "Afterward...the waters were risen, waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over" (Ezekiel 47:5). The swimming Christian has got beyond his depth, and is now being borne up by the river of God. This last stage represents the "Fullness of the Spirit." Instead of wading through, he is now resting on the waters. This is an experience that cannot be passed over. There is nothing better than this in earth or in Heaven. The perfection is not in us, but in the abounding fullness of His provision for us. "Waters to swim in." "Launch out into the deep."

Daniel

THE MAN OF PURPOSE

Daniel 1

The book of Daniel has been cast into the critics' den, but, like Daniel, it shall yet escape from the mouths of the lions. Rationalists are rejecting it because of its miracles and prophetic utterances. The Lord Jesus Christ approved of it, for it formed part of the canonical Scriptures in His time. Sir Isaac Newton said that "Christianity itself may be said to be founded on the prophecies of Daniel."

After the siege of Jerusalem (Daniel 1:1), Daniel had been taken captive to Babylon, a distance of about eight hundred miles. He was probably about fourteen years of age at that time.

I. His Character. We know nothing of his parents, but judging from his character as a lad, he must have been nurtured in a God-fearing home, for the soundest principles of life had been early formed. One has said: "There is nothing rarer than personality, for there are so many causes that hinder both interior and exterior, so many hostile forces to crush, so many illusions to lead astray." Blessed is that young man who can truly say, "I know in whom I have believed," etc. A personal knowledge of God is the mightiest of all safeguards for city life.

II. His Temptations (Daniel 1:5-6). Testing times will come. These are needed for our moral and spiritual development. The king's command was to select blameless youths, skilful and wise, to take the honoured place of students at the Royal College, and to "stand in the king's palace." It was to be a three years' course, to learn the tongue of the Chaldeans. The Chaldeans were the politicians, philosophers, theologians, and teachers of the nation. What ah opportunity for a young, bright, hopeful man! But how could he eat that meat and drink that wine which had been consecrated to idols, and defile his conscience? The worldly man sees no difficulty, but rather a grand chance to attain honour and earthly glory; but it is very different with the man who is abiding in the fellowship of God.

III. His Purpose. "He purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself" (Daniel 1:8). This in our days would be called "narrow-mindedness and puritanical bigotry." In this connection see Paul's advice (Romans 14:21). That man is of little value for God who is not able to stand against popular opinion. The Talmud says: "A myrtle tree remains a myrtle even in the desert." A man of God should act as such in any circumstance. God is not influenced by man-made conditions. A lad of fifteen years was following the plough near the Carse of Gowrie, the horses stopped in the middle of the furrow. At that moment this question came to his mind: "Might I not make more of my life than I am doing?" and straightening himself up, he said, "God helping me, I will be a missionary." That lad was Dr. . James Stewart, of Lovedale. Keep a conscience void of offence.

IV. His Reward. "God made Daniel to find favour" (Daniel 1:9, R. V.). This was a great crisis in the life of Daniel. He was found faithful, and God promoted him. Henceforth he is marked as a leader of the people. Faith in God, and plain fare (Daniel 1:15), got the victory for both body and soul.

"Their countenances were fairer and fatter than all who did eat the king's meat." Godliness is profitable. Why? Because it is the highest type of character and the best possible relationship to God and men. The wisdom that profited Daniel was not found in the" schools of the learned, but in the closet of communion with the God of Heaven. Determine to know nothing among men save Jesus Christ and Him crucified, and the wisdom of God will be in you. THE MAN OF FAITH

The pleasures of the ungodly are easily spoiled. Because of a dream, the king's spirit is greatly troubled. The vision had vanished from his mind, and he demanded of his wise men that they should make it known (Daniel 2:5). A thing with them impossible (Daniel 2:10), but a new opportunity for the God of Daniel to manifest His wisdom and power.

I. Faith Exercised. It would seem as if the executioners were on their way to carry out the king's mad decree (Daniel 2:5), when Daniel "went in and desired of the king that he would give him time and he would show him the interpretation" (Daniel 2:16). How did he know that he would succeed in this? He believed that His God knew, all about it, and that by coming into closer touch with Him the wisdom of God would be given him. All things are possible to them that believe. Paul could say: "Be of good cheer for I believe God" (Acts 27:25).

II. Prayer Answered. "Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a night vision" (Daniel 2:19). Daniel invited his three companions to a night of prayer. They spread the matter before the God of Heaven, and then was the thing revealed. Prayer does not bring God down to our thoughts and actions, it brings our thoughts and actions up into His. Contact with God means being made like God.

III. Thanks Given. Daniel said, "Blessed be the Name of God for ever...He changeth the times...He giveth wisdom... He revealeth the deep and secret things" (Daniel 2:20-23). If we would pray more, we would praise more. The secrets of the Lord are with them that fear Him. Draw near to Him and He will draw near to you.

IV. Testimony Borne. "There is a God in Heaven that revealeth secrets... as for me, this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have" (Daniel 2:28-30). What a consolation this is. The door into this favour is open to all. The Holy Spirit has been given to guide into truth. He searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. THE ALMIGHTY STONE

Daniel, by living in the fellowship of God, became a man of visions, and the interpreter, of the Divine mind. The vision of the "Great Image" came to the king in a dream, perhaps that Daniel may have the opportunity of revealing the purposes of God in the ages to come. The different parts of the image represent successive kingdoms (Daniel 2:38-40). The Stone is the symbol of Christ, who shall yet dash the nations to pieces like a potter's vessel, when there shall be "no place found for them" (Daniel 2:34-35, Daniel 2:44). Seven times in Scripture is our Lord Jesus Christ called a Stone, the symbol of strength and durability. We shall note four instances that refer to Israel, the Church, the Nations, and to the World.

I. As a Stone, Israel Stumbled over Christ. He was to them "a Stone of stumbling" because He came in the form of a Servant. As a Stone He was rejected by the Jewish builders (Matthew 21:42), although He had been laid in Zion as the Foundation by Jehovah (Isaiah 28:16). Christ warned them that "Whosoever shall fall upon this Stone shall be broken" (Matthew 21:44). They fell on it, and as a nation were broken, and are yet scattered abroad, dashed to pieces like a broken vessel.

II. As a Stone, the Church was built on Christ. When Peter confessed Him as "The Christ, the Son of the Living God," Jesus said, "Upon this rock I will build My church" (Matthew 16:16-18). After Pentecost when Peter declared that the lame man had been healed through faith in the Name of Jesus, he also added, "This is the Stone which is set at nought of;you builders, which is become the head corner" (Acts 4:10-11). We still come to Him as unto a "Living Stone" (1 Peter 2:4). He is the Author of eternal life. Other foundation can no man lay. There is none other Name.

III. As a Stone, Gentile power shall be broken by Christ. "A Stone, cut out without hands, smote the image" (Daniel 2:34). In our days "hands" count for much, but this revolution shall be brought about "without hands." The image represents Gentile authority, "the kingdoms of this world." Their end shall come suddenly, like the falling of a stone from Heaven, and upon whom it shall fall it shall grind to powder (Matthew 21:44). The whole image was "broken to pieces." His coming will be like a thief in the night, unexpected by those who are asleep, it will be like "lightning" (Matthew 24:17), unmistakable. No need saying, To here, or To there, when the lightning flash comes, it is self-evident to all. Then the Babel tower of this world's Godless principles will be a heap of ruins, for like them they have brick for stone. This appearing of Christ cannot possibly refer to His first advent. Then the Roman kingdom was not divided like the ten toes. Gentile power was not destroyed at His first appearing. He then came as a Babe, not with the crushing force of a falling stone, taking vengeance on them that knew not God.

IV. As a Stone, the World will yet be filled with the Glory of Christ. His coming is not the end of the world, but the beginning of a new world. The Stone becomes a great Mountain, and fills the whole earth (Daniel 2:35). A mountain is the symbol of the Kingdom's strength and stability. When He comes in great power and glory, He who is strong to smite will also be strong to save. To understand this chapter read Psalm. 72. "He shall put down all rule and all authority and power, for He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet" (1 Corinthians 15:24-25). "Then the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our God, and of His Christ." His Name is, and for ever will be, above every name. All nations shall yet call Him blessed. THE NONCONFORMISTS

These two images in chapters 2 and 3 represent man's rule and man's worship. This "image of gold" to be set up in the plain of Dura was the visible expression of Nebuchadnezzar' s "new theology." It was to be a great affair. But true godly living is a very simple thing. A Revelation is needed. This new popular religion brings a new trial to the servants of God. There was-

I. Their Temptation. A new national idol had been set up (Daniel 3:3-5). Man's unenlightened ingenuity is always setting up some new thing as an object of worship. It is all the more delusive with its grand musical attractions (Daniel 3:7). On the king's part it was but another exhibition of despotism and religious intolerance, another form of "man's inhumanity to man." The temptation at this time to Daniel and his three fellow-believers was to-

1. SAVE THEIR SITUATION. They had been "set over the affairs of the province of Babylon" (chap. Daniel 2:49). As government officials they held a high social position, and perhaps received a good salary. Demas forsook Paul when worldly advantage was to be gained (2 Timothy 4:10). It was also a temptation to-

2. SACRIFICE THEIR CONSCIENCE. It affected their relationship with God. Of course all that the king demanded was conformity, what all sham religions are satisfied with. James Renwick, the last of the Scottish martyrs, was offered freedom if he would "but let a drop of ink fall on the paper." But, no, when it was to be the sign of the denial of Christ.

II. Their Testimony. "Our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us...We will not serve thy gods" (Daniel 3:17-18). This showed their-

1. FAITH IN THE POWER OF GOD. "If so be our God is able." Those who are serving God daily are not likely to be cast down suddenly. True hearted service gives stability of character in the time of trial.

2. SUBMISSION TO THE WILL OF GOD. "But if not...we will not" (Daniel 3:18). They would rather burn than turn. Like Job, they could say, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust" (see Acts 4:19-20). They were in Babylon, but they were not of it.

III. Their Triumph. They were cast into the furnace because of non-conformity, but "the fire had no power" (Daniel 3:26-27). The wrath of man is a poor, impotent thing in presence of the power of God. Their sufferings brought them-

1. A NEW SENSE OF FREEDOM. "Lo, I see four men loose walking in the midst of the fire" (Daniel 3:25). Liberty to walk in a furnace was a new experience for them. They could truly "glory in their affliction." They were not saved from the fiery furnace, but they were saved in it, which was a much greater deliverance. The peace of God in the heart is an indestructible principle, beyond the reach of any fiery trial. The world cannot take it away.

2. A NEW SOURCE OF FELLOWSHIP. There was a fourth in the fire, "like the Son of God." In being cast out by men, they were brought into sweeter communion with the Son of God. It was so with Paul and Silas (Acts 16). Bunyan, Rutherford, Madam Guyon, and multitudes of others who suffered for Christ.

3. A NEW OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE. "The king promoted them" (Daniel 3:30). Their sphere of usefulness was enlarged after their deeper experience of the power of God. What a testimony they had to give, as men who had passed from death into life; who were dead, but are now living in the power of a resurrection. Every severe trial borne for Christ's sake will bring a new revelation of Divine possibilities, that we may go back to live with a new force in our being. The Captain of our salvation was made perfect through suffering, and the servant is not greater than his Master. By refusing to bow to the image of gold man had set up, the image of God was more firmly set up in their own hearts.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR-RUIN AND REMEDY

Daniel 4:29-37

"All Scripture... is profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, and instruction in righteousness." In the experiences recorded in this chapter there is something that might reprove our selfishness, correct our actions, and instruct in the righteousness of God. This personal testimony of Nebuchadnezzar was given as a Royal Edict (Daniel 4:1). One may know much about the ways of God and yet be an utter stranger experimentally to His saving grace. Think of-

I. His Privileges. He had been favoured with special opportunities. In chapter 2 we see God revealing to him in that "Great Image" the character and history of Gentile rule. He heard Daniel, the man of God, interpreting that vision. He had seen the mighty power and grace of God in saving the three Hebrews from the fiery furnace. He had also publicly, confessed that there was no other god like the God of the Hebrews (chap. Daniel 3:29). More than that, he had been solemnly warned of God by this vision of the great tree hewn down (Daniel 4:14), and of his heart being changed into a "beast's heart" (Daniel 4:16). He was moreover counselled to "break off his sins by righteousness, and his iniquities by shewing mercy" (Daniel 4:27). How many there are in this day of grace who likewise have been as mercifully dealt with by visions, warnings, and encouragements. Their need, like this king's, is repentance toward God.

II. His Pride. "At the end of twelve months he walked upon the palace of Babylon...and said, Is not this great Babylon that I have built?" etc. (Daniel 4:29-30). These twelve months were days of grace, but as "all things" seemed to "continue as they were," the warning of God was neglected and forgotten. On the royal palace, about four hundred feet high, he had a full view of "Great Babylon" lying around him, four-square, with a circumference of about sixty miles. There were twenty-five streets intersecting each other-150 feet wide and about 15 miles long. The city had a hundred brazen gates, and was walled about with a massive structure three hundred feet high and eighty feet broad, so that two chariots with four horses abreast could pass easily on the top. This wall was also ornamented with two hundred and fifty towers. The river Euphrates ran slowly through the midst of the city. The great bridge built by the king, and the royal palaces on each side, with the gorgeous temple and the magnificent "hanging gardens," might all be before his eyes when he said, "Is not this great Babylon that I have built...by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?" (Daniel 4:30). When the Pharisee said, "I thank God that I am not as other men," he was also glorying in his great Babylon of self-righteousness. Cardinal Wolsey gloried in his Babylon of "worldly honour." All glorifying that is not in the Lord will come to naught.

III. His Downfall. "While the word was in the king's mouth, there fell a voice from Heaven saying, The kingdom is departed from thee," etc. (Daniel 4:31-32). Pride goeth before a fall. He who was glorying in the grandeur of his own works is now driven out from the presence of men as a raving maniac. The root cause of it was rebellion against the Word of God. Sin, like lunacy, separates and unfits for the fellowship of God.

IV. His Recovery. "At the end...I lifted up mine eyes to Heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me" (Daniel 4:34). What an awakening! To find himself living the life of a beast! The beast life is that of eating and drinking, with no knowledge of God. There are multitudes which need just such an awakening. What he wanted was understanding. To cut his hair, clip his nails, and to cast a royal robe over him was not the restoration that he needed. Outward reformation can never stand for an inward apprehension. The eyes of the understanding must be enlightened. It is not a new faculty, but a new vision of guilt and of God. The prodigal made this discovery "when he came to himself." The evidence of his sound conversion was, "Now I praise the King of Heaven" and confess that "those that walk in pride He is able to abase" (Daniel 4:37).

BELSHAZZAR'S DOOM;

or, Sinning Against Light, Daniel 5:22-31

A heathen genius once made a beautiful goblet, with a serpent coiled up at the bottom, with a pair of gleaming eyes, open mouth, and fang ready to sting, so that when the drinker emptied the cup the fearful thing suddenly appeared. Such are the pleasures of sin. At last they bite like a serpent. Such was the experience of Belshazzar at the end of his great godless feast (Daniel 5:1). Inflamed with wine, he demands that the holy vessels of the Lord be brought (Daniel 5:2), but in the same hour the hand of judgment appears (Daniel 5:5), and terror pierces his proud heart. Belshazzar is a solemn warning to those who are sinning against the light. Look at-

I. His Opportunity. "O Belshazzar...thou knewest all this" (Daniel 5:22). All what? See chapter Daniel 4:27-34. He knew all about his father's (or grandfather's) pride and downfall, how he was humbled by God to the degrading life of a beast, and how when he looked up to Heaven his understanding returned again to him. He knew all this, yet went on in his life of sin and godlessness. Many sin in ignorance, but how many to-day are sinning against the "knowledge of the truth," like the Scribes and Pharisees of old; living the darkness of sinful pleasure, rather than the light of God's salvation.

II. His Guilt. "He lifted himself up against the Lord of Heaven" (Daniel 5:23). It is easily seen how this was done. He simply ignored the light and warnings of God, and put material and sinful things in the place of the "Lord of Heaven." The gods of silver, gold, brass, and iron had more influence over him than the "God of Heaven." The present-day form of this is following certain popular opinions and ignoring the revelation of God's will as declared in His Word. Lifting "himself up" by his own thoughts and works, and denying the Lord that bought him.

III. His Failure. "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting" (Daniel 5:27). The weighing process may have occupied several years. The Lord is slow to wrath. Character is formed through a course of actions. By Him actions are weighed. Job once uttered this request, "Oh that I were weighed in an even balance." God's balances are always just. While the sinner is thoughtlessly going on in his evil course, God is silently weighing him in His unerring balance. He was found wanting. Wanting in faith, in love, and in submission to His will. Belshazzar was uninfluenced by all God's providential dealings with him. Without any heart response, he "passed on and was punished." Judas, and all like him, will ultimately find "their own place," a place of their own preparing.

IV. His Doom. "That night was Belshazzar...slain" (Daniel 5:30). In the night of his greatest glory-the night of his great delusion. While he feasted, the Medes and Persians stealthily entered the city, and an unexpected end suddenly came. Lust, unbelief, and indifference are no protection against the overwhelming power of rejected truth. Those weighed and found wanting by God are destitute of all power of resistance. The thunder cloud of God's judgment may gather slowly, but when the light-. ning flash comes it will be sudden, irresistible, and fatal. How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?

DANIEL-STEADFAST IN THE FAITH

Daniel 6

Daniel has now been probably sixty-eight years in the city of Babylon. He had lived under the reign of three kings, and was about eighty-five years old. He had had many severe trials and temptations, but he remained faithful to his God, his conscience, and his fellowmen. Notice his-

I. Integrity. "We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it concerning the law of his God" (Daniel 6:5). His enemies themselves are witnesses to the purity of his life, His character was invulnerable. As a man of prayer and of faith he was faultless, even in the details of his arduous business life. The undercurrent of his nature was as pure as the upper. This was the secret of his moral strength. The daily life is perhaps the severest test of the Christian character, but the pure in heart shall see God, and seeing Him they shall endure.

II. Steadfastness. "When Daniel knew that the writing was signed he went.. .and prayed, and gave thanks before God, as he did aforetime" (Daniel 6:10). Their plot was to get the law of the Medes (unalterable) to clash with the law of Daniel and his God. Although he knew that they had succeeded in making and setting a trap for his feet, he trusted in God and went on as aforetime. Circumstances, adverse as they were, had no effect in changing his holy purpose to be true to God, and his own conscience. General Gordon, when in the Sudan, used to lay his handkerchief at the door of his tent each morning while he prayed, and no one dared to enter till the signal was removed. Courage, brother, do not stumble in your prayer life. Be steadfast in your faith and practice.

III. Sufferings. He was doubtless persecuted through envy (Daniel 6:3). Their dastardly scheme seemed to succeed. Daniel is condemned to the lions. This was the Persians' mode of capital punishment, as the fiery furnace was that of the Babylonians. This is one strong proof of the authenticity of the book. This was a great crisis in the experience of the prophet. Must all be sacrificed to appease the wrath of these haters of godliness? Every sacrifice we make for God brings for us a fuller enjoyment of the salvation of God.

IV. Deliverance. "My God hath shut the lions mouths," etc. (Daniel 6:20-22). This was a new experience of the power of God. While his enemies are rejoicing over his supposed destruction, Daniel is rejoicing in a new salvation. God will vindicate the faith of His own true servant. He is able to do exceedingly above all that we think.

V. Faith. "Because he believed in his God" (Daniel 6:23, l.c.). God will not deny Himself. To trust Him is to put Him on His honour. The secret of victory in the Christian life lies deep down in our oneness of life and purpose with Him.

VI. Doom of Enemies. "They were cast into the den and their bones broken in pieces" (Daniel 6:24). The triumph of the wicked is short. They digged a pit for the servant of God, and they themselves fell into it, as Haman was hanged on his own gallows. As these enemies of Daniel had to do with Daniel's God, so the enemies of the Gospel of Christ have to do with the Christ of the Gospel. To reject the Word of God is to reject the God of the Word. The wrath of God must abide on the unbeliever (John 3:36). Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him. THE END OF THE MATTER

"Hitherto is the end of the matter" (Daniel 7:28). What has been here referred to is prophetic of the final condition of things in this world. This book is divided into two parts. Chapters 1-7 give the narrative portion unbroken. Chapters 7-12 give the prophetic references unbroken. Chronological order is not adhered to. Daniel, as a man of vision, was a man of action. The visions of God and His truth ought ever to have practical results.

I. The Vision. This revelation and the interpretation are a repetition of the vision of the image in chapter 2. The four parts of the image correspond perfectly with the four "beasts" seen here. As the Stone broke in pieces the image of the Gentile kingdoms, so here the "Son of Man" takes the dominion from the beasts (Daniel 7:12-14). The world-kingdoms are all as "beasts" rising up out of the great sea of humanity. The "beasts" referred to, note, are all beasts of prey-savage, oppressive, ferocious. Not like the ox or the sheep. These powers, represented as strong, unreasonable, brute forces, contain a sorrowful reflection on our boasted civilisation. They have been permitted by God to rise up into power and authority for some wise purpose. Even nations may need surgical operations as well as individuals. Part of the vision has been already fulfilled in the downfall of the Babylonian, Persian, Grecian, and Roman kingdoms. The rest will as certainly follow.

II. The Blessed End (Daniel 7:28). A new monarchy is coming. The history of the "Beast" kingdoms has been written in tears and blood. The new Kingdom will be the Kingdom of God and of His Christ. What notable events!

1. THE COMING OF THE SON OF MAN. "Behold the Son of Man came with the clouds of Heaven" (Daniel 7:13). He is the new Head of humanity. The "beasts" are from the earth. He is the Lord from Heaven. Study the parable of the "Nobleman" in Luke 19. See Matthew 24:27 as to the suddenness of His appearing.

2. THE DESTRUCTION OF THE BEASTS' POWER. "They had their dominion taken away" (Daniel 7:12). They have had a long rule, but the world hath not learned to know God, and never will through beastly government. 'Tis the Man Christ Jesus, now crowned Lord of all, whose right it is to reign. He shall reign, and the uttermost parts of the earth shall become His possession.

3. THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW KINGDOM. "And there was given Him dominion and glory, and a kingdom,... and all nations shall serve Him" (Daniel 7:14). This kingdom will be universal-"All people, nations, and languages." It will be everlasting-"An everlasting dominion which shall not pass away." Every tongue shall confess Him Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

4. THE VICTORY OF THE SAINTS. "And the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom" (Daniel 7:22). So the promise will be fulfilled: "The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom" (Daniel 7:18). Blessed "end of the matter" this! It is the saints that shall rule, not the sects. Know you not that the saints shall judge the world? (1 Corinthians 6:2). Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom. Yes, there is a good time coming for the trusting, toiling, suffering servants of God. "If children, then heirs." We must first possess the Divine nature before we can enter into the Divine inheritance. A criminal has no place or say in the state, he is always treated as an alien. Neither can a sin-loving soul have any place in the Kingdom of God, which is righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. "My hope," said a dying saint, "is in the justice of God-the justice of God to Jesus Christ." Ye are complete in Him.

Hosea

GOD'S GRACIOUS AND ETERNAL PURPOSE

Hosea 2:14-18.

Hosea is reckoned the first of the minor prophets, a contemporary of Isaiah, in the eventful days of Uzziah and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah. "The Word of the Lord came to him, " and by his vital relationship with a morally depraved and faithless wife, he symbolically revealed Israel's treacherous relationship with her longsuffering God. Here let us try and see something of the abounding grace of this God with whom we have to do.

I. His Gracious Method. "I will allure her into the wilderness" (Hosea 2:14). He does not say, "I will drive her, " but "I will allure her" into a condition where her old evil associations and habits will not have the same bewitching influence over her. Thus the first act of grace is seen in a merciful alluring. Why are we so slow to recognise and believe in this blessed work of the Holy Spirit, and to imagine that when the pleasures of material things begin to wither and die in our experience, that life has lost its value? It is always a seeming barren wilderness to the worldly-minded to be brought into a position where they having nothing left but God.

II. His Merciful Purpose. "I will speak comfortably unto her. " God knows what our deep needs are, and how best to meet them, for "as a mother comforteth, so the Lord. " Oh, the bliss that dawns upon our souls when in our bewilderment the peace of God breaks in upon our troubled hearts. His comforting words and ways bring us out of the darkness of doubt and fearfulness, into His marvellous light and restfulness. Why is it that we need so much alluring to bring us into that condition where God can give us His most precious gifts? Surely this is the blindness and the stubbornness of our natural minds. Still, "He giveth us the victory. "

III. The Wonderful Results.

1. "I will give her vineyards from thence" (Hosea 2:15). What! vineyards from the wilderness, where we could see nothing but barrenness and desolation? Yes, out of our experiences, of weariness, and seeming failure God can make, even these, fresh sources of refreshing and strength. By this we are assured that the Divine leading is never contrary to our highest good. Our Father's hand is never out of harmony with our Father's heart. His wisdom never contradicts His love. Therefore, let us confidently and joyfully trust, even when we have been disappointed and brought low. "Where He leads I will follow. " The Holy Spirit is still alluring into new and deeper experiences.

2. "I will give her the Valley of Achor (trouble or trembling) for a door of hope." In the dark and fearsome valley of trouble He can and will open a new door into fresh hopefulness and larger liberty (Joshua 7:26) to every humble believer. We dread the experience of "trouble, " it may be because it brings to us such a deep sense of our weakness and helplessness. Don't let us imagine that we are only making spiritual progress when we are climbing. Our wonder-working God can make our valley of trouble a place to lie down in (Isaiah 65:10).

3. "I will give her the Joy of Youth" (Hosea 2:15). "She shall sing as in the days of her youth," when, as a nation, she was delivered out of Egypt. She had restored to her the freshness of his happy, youthful days. The God of Israel is the God of our salvation, still ready to renew and restore. Every answered prayer gives occasion for a new song. Every fresh manifestation of His wisdom and power brings additional victory into our spiritual being. In this sense, that which is truly Christian never grows old. "Even youths may faint, and young men utterly fail, but they that wait on the Lord shall change strength." When God satisfies the craving of our spiritual nature with "good things" the youth is "renewed like the eagle's" (Psalms 103:5).

4. New Relationship. "In that day thou shalt call me, My Husband" (Hosea 2:16). Blessed day for Israel when their "Deliverer shall come out of Zion, turning away captivity," and when "all Israel shall be saved" (Romans 11:26). "My husband." This is something deeper and sweeter than the mere formal designation, "My lord." "My wife" means much more to me than "my servant." What marvellous grace is here revealed. God pledging Himself to act for His people the part of a "Husband." Think of all that is involved in such a promise. Taking the responsibility of supplying our every need, and bringing us and keeping us in closest fellowship with Himself. "Call Me Husband, and trust Me to be loving and faithful as long as you do live." How sweet is this assurance to the weary, trembling heart. "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God" (John 14:1). THE DIVINE BETROTHAL.

Hosea 2:19-23.

God did not love Israel because of her loveliness. She had been guilty of spiritual adultery; even her mother had played the harlot (Hosea 2:5). "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." Even "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Note-

I. The Manner of this Betrothal. Betrothing is always a delicate business, and should be done on just and sacred principles; and so it is with our God.

1. In Righteousness. In a manner consistent with His character and our real need. He must be just to be a trustworthy Saviour (Isaiah 45:21). This betrothal is in perfect accord with all the holiness of Heaven, and will be faultless through the ages of eternity. But it must also be-

2. In Judgment. The betrothed is presently guilty, unclean, and deep in debt. How is she to be cleansed from sin and her great debt cancelled? This is the great problem of Divine grace. The wages of her sin is death. Sin and guilt must be judged. Glory and honour be to His Holy Name. Jesus Christ God's Eternal Son, in seeking to betroth humanity to Himself, took our nature, bore our sins, shed His Blood to cleanse us, and became a propitiation for the whole world (1 John 2:2).

3. In Lovingkindness. Yes, in that love that delighted to manifest itself in kindness toward us. This expressive word was used by the Psalmist over twenty times. Is it not marvellous to find it used here in connection with an adultrous nation? Behold the triumph of redeeming love. In righteousness and in judgment, these are the banks of the channel through which the stream of His loving-kindness flow, "that He might show the exceeding riches of His grace, in His kindness towards us, through Jesus Christ. For by grace are ye saved" (Ephesians 2:7-8).

4. In Mercies. His mercies, Oh, how manifold! These are the gifts of His love to the betrothed. The apostle calls them "the riches of His grace" freely bestowed. When Rebekah decided to "go with this man," she doubtless received many mercies by the way. When the prodigal came home the mercies the father bestowed were many. The mercies of God constitute a powerful incentive to yield ourselves unto Him. Paul fully realised this, for in writing to the Romans, he says: "I beseech you by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God... your reasonable service" (Romans 12:1).

5. In Faithfulness. This proposed union is all in faithfulness on His part. "My covenant will I not break." Faithful is He that hath promised. "I am the God of Jacob, that changing and doubtful one, but "I change not." He abideth faithful. What a comforting promise this is, when weakness, failure, and defeat overtake us in our work for Him.

II. The Purpose of this Betrothal. It is in prospect of marriage-Eternal union.

1. That we might know Him. "Thou shalt know the Lord" (Hosea 2:20). Know Him sufficiently to love, serve, adore, and praise Him. This means heart knowledge, and His promise still is: "I will give them a heart to know Me" (Jeremiah 24:7). This new God-given heart is what men need to know God. "This is life eternal to know...Jesus Christ whom He hath sent" (John 17:3).

2. That we might belong to Him. "Thou shalt not be for another. So will I also be for thee" (chap. Hosea 3:3). This is a searching truth. He is wholehearted for us; we must be wholehearted for Him, or play the harlot with our affections. Christ did not purchase us with His Blood that we might belong to any other. "One is your Master, even Christ." Ye are not your own. Do we desire as sincerely and fully to be His as He desires to be wholly ours?

3. That we might confess Him. "They shall say, Thou art my God" (Hosea 2:23). What harmony could there be in a home where the wife was ashamed to say, "Thou art my husband?" There are many who drink greatly at the stream of God's mercies who never look up and say, "Thou art my God." There is a present and eternal honour for all who confess Jesus Christ before men (Luke 12:8), for Christ will confess such before the angels of God. Open thy mouth wide for Him and He shall fill it.

4. That we might be co-workers with Him. The wife is to be the husband's helpmate. The members of the body are co-workers with the head. We who have been allowed into the family of God, by His merciful and persistent grace, must surely feel our responsibility to seek the furtherance of His kingdom. The cause of God is a family business. Are you in His family? Then are you in His business? "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" THE PERIL OF SPIRITUAL IGNORANCE.

Hosea 4:6-11.

This chapter deals further with this sinful people, and God's exposure of their character and judgment against them, for "the Lord hath a controversy with them" (Hosea 4:1). Here they are charged with the lack of knowledge.

I. Ignorance of God is Common. Israel had many manifestations of God's wisdom and power in their past history. Many messages from the lips and lives of His prophets; yet in practical life they knew Him not. The same is true to-day of multitudes in this so-called "Christian age." There are many that try to justify such ignorance by saying, "God is unknowable," which is a denial of the "testimony of Jesus," who is "the image of the invisible God." "He that hath seen Me," He said, "hath seen the Father." How sayest thou then, "God is unknowable?" (John 14:7-10).

II. Ignorance of God is often Wilful. "Thou hast rejected knowledge" (Hosea 4:6). Paul, writing to the same nation, says: "Being ignorant of God's righteousness, have not submitted themselves" (Romans 10:3). Those who have "left off to take heed to the Lord" (Hosea 4:10) are surely guilty of wilful blindness, because they love the darkness rather than the light. The darkness being better suited for the working out of their selfish and evil deeds. We reject the highest wisdom and knowledge when we reject Christ, who is the wisdom of God. Now to be willingly ignorant of God in the presence of His glorious Gospel is to be a voluntary criminal. "How shall we escape if we neglect?"

III. Wilful Ignorance of God is Fatal. "My people are destroyed (cut off) for lack of knowledge" (Hosea 4:6). It is fatal to spiritual life and fruitfulness as a branch cut off from the vine. God is not mocked. Such ignorance leads to-

1. Divine Rejection. "Because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee" (Hosea 4:6). There can be no real fellowship with God where the light of His Word is despised or ignored. The darkness of the unbelieving heart cuts off the vision of the face of God in Jesus Christ. Think of it. To reject the pleadings of His sacrificial love is to be finally rejected.

2. Glory Turned into Shame. "I will change their glory into shame" (Hosea 4:7). Were they glorying in their false gods, in their growing numbers, in their material prosperity, or in their freedom from Divine restraint? They were not glorying in their God, so He would change all into a burning shame. Our God is "a jealous God." His love is so great and tender that He will not suffer any rival for our affections and devotion. Beware, for whatever takes His place in the heart's affections will certainly be changed into shame and confusion.

3. Fruitless Effort. "They shall eat and not have enough" (Hosea 4:10). No matter how much of material things they seek to cram into their greedy lives, they never have enough. Such is the experience of many a worldly man and woman. Frantic, fruitless effort to gain soul satisfaction, but they never have enough. They don't know the depth of the hunger of their own souls. Christ said: "I am the Bread of Life." Eat, O beloved, there is enough here and to spare. He satisfieth the hungry soul with good. "I am the Living Bread which came down from Heaven: if any man eat this Bread he shall live for ever." Surely this is enough. "All fulness dwells in Him." Herein is God's ocean, to fill that little cup of yours, called the heart. THE WITHDRAWAL OF GOD'S FACE.

This simply means the withdrawal of His favour. Here is-

I. A Sad and Solemn Possibility. "He hath withdrawn Himself from them" (Hosea 5:6). The face of God stands for Divine presence and approval: guidance, comfort, and help. How miserable and hopeless must that nation or that soul be when this face is withdrawn from them. "The face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (Psalms 34:16). How can we pray, "Make Thy face to shine upon us" (Psalms 31:16) if in our service we are secretly seeking self-glory or the praise of men? He will not give His countenance to that which is displeasing to His heart. But, blessed be God, we can now behold His glory in the face of Jesus Christ (2 Corinthians 4:6). That face which is ever turned to those who love Him and faithfully follow on to know. "My presence (lit. face) shall go with you" (Exodus 33:14). Beware. Grieve not the Holy Spirit, lest His face be hidden. Thou hast said, "Seek ye My face." My heart would answer "Thy face, Lord, will I seek."

II. The Reasons for His Withdrawal. There must be a cause for this.... a cause that is painful to a loving heart.

1. They had Become a Snare (v. 1). Instead of being a light and example, encouraging others to trust and serve the Lord, they had been as a snare and a net, trapping unwary feet into their ungodly ways. Do you wonder that God turns away His face and favour from those whose life and example encourages others to dishonour His Name and His message? "He that is not for Me is against Me."

2. "They would not Frame their Doings to turn unto their God" (Hosea 5:4). Or, "Their doings would not suffer them to honour their God." Is it not so with many in our own day? Their daily doings are such that they will not suffer them to take time to pray, or even to think of the merciful God they are so persistently ignoring. Christian workers, take time to look up. Don't let the multitude of your engagements hinder the act of worship, lest He hide His face from you.

3. "They had Dealt Treacherously with the Lord" (Hosea 5:7). Treachery is a violation of allegiance, a breach of faith. We are traitors to the Captain of our Salvation when we identify ourselves with the ranks of the enemy. To be unfaithful to our Lord is to miss the shining of His face. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked." Now let us note some of- III. The Results of His Withdrawn Face. On their part there was-

1. Vain Sacrifices. "They shall go with their flocks and herds,... but they shall not find Him" (Hosea 5:6). No number of sacrifices will atone for the hidden face of God as long as the heart is not right towards Him. Not any number of works, nor any amount of fleshly energy expended in His service will make up for the absence of the Holy Spirit of power. Out of fellowship with God means to us vain and fruitless testimony. They were-

2. Oppressed and Broken (v. 11). Because they had lost the vision of the face of their God, they sought help from the gods made by hands. Disobeying the Word of the Lord, they became obedient to the commandment of a worldly-wise man (see Kings __Kings__12:28). Distressed by the powers of the world, and broken like a potter's vessel. This becomes the destiny of the soul that has deliberately grieved away the saving presence of its God. Then they-

3. Seek for Another Remedy (v. 13). But they found no healing for their sickness, no balm for their wound. Lord, to whom can we go when the true fountain of our life has been dried up? All other sources are but "broken cisterns" that can hold nothing that a sinful soul needs. When faith in God has failed, then life is but a desperate and hopeless struggle. "Without Me ye can do nothing."

4. God Waits till they Seek His Face. "I will return to my place till they acknowledge their guilt and seek My face" (Hosea 5:15, margin). Although His face may be hidden because of their sin, yet in love He longs for fellowship with the prodigal nation. Confession is needed, and the search of the backslider should be not only for healing, but for the brightness of the face of the Healer. "Ye shall find Me when ye shall seek Me with all your heart." "He restoreth my soul." When the prodigal in penitence saw the face of his father, he immediately received of the riches of his grace. Those who refuse the favour of God now, as revealed in the face of Jesus, may have to say: "Hide me from the face of Him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb" (Revelation 6:16). A CALL TO REPENTANCE.

Hosea 6:1-3.

This call evidently came through the lips of the prophet. And from all that follows it appears that they repented not, but the time will come when as a nation these words will be literally fulfilled (Jeremiah 30:17). Let us think of these wonderful words in the light of New Testament teaching.

I. The Need for Repentance. They were "torn" and "smitten" (Hosea 6:1). Torn and tortured with their own wretchedness, and smitten with defeat and failure, and all this as the result of the Divine Providence, because of their unbelief. There is need for repentance on our part when we are torn with anxieties and smitten with shameful defeat in our work for the Lord. He knows how much there is in us that needs to be torn up and smitten down. Such as selfishness and pride.

II. The Manner of this Repentance. "Return unto the Lord." To return implies a backsliding condition. The repentance that does not bring us right back into the Lord is a repentance that needs to be repented of. The proof of the prodigal's repentance was in the fact that he arose and came to his father. Repentance is a "saving grace" only when it brings us to God in humility of heart, and it may be, with a trembling trust. The Divine arms are ever extended in loving welcome to the truly penitent soul. It is with Him we have to do at such a time, not with any earthly priest.

III. The Results of Such Repentance.

1. There will be "Healing and Binding." "He will heal and He will bind us up" (Hosea 6:1). Our diseased hearts and torn hopes will be healed and bound up. "He healeth all our diseases" and "bindeth up the broken in heart." They have repented deeply who live in the joy of this spiritual health and wholeness.

2. There will be Quickening. "He will revive us" (Hosea 6:2). After the "healing" and the "binding" there comes the energising powers of a new life. When the sinner has been pardoned and reconciled to God there will, or should be, a revitalizing of the soul by the Holy Spirit. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth." He can make all things in our daily lives new.

3. There will be a "Living in the Light of God." "We shall live in His light" (Hosea 6:2). The man of the world may be all alive in the light of his fellowmen, but it is a very different thing to be really alive in the light of God. Not merely living under His eye, as all are, but to have the life that is life indeed in God's reckoning. "I am come," said Jesus Christ, "that ye might have life." "He that hath the Son hath life," and may have it in abundance. This is the real life as God sees it. The world's estimate is very different; but what does it matter as long as we are living in God's sight that life that is eternal.

4. There shall be a Growing Experience. "Then shall we know if we follow on to know the Lord" (Hosea 6:3). It is the nature of every living thing to grow. The new spiritual life is not to be like a stagnant pool, but an ever deepening stream. We are to "grow in grace and in the knowledge" of Him who is the source and force of the new life. This we shall do if we faithfully follow on. "My son, if thou wilt receive My words... and hide them with thee, then thou wilt understand righteousness and judgment and equity, yea every good path" (Proverbs 2:1, Proverbs 2:9).

5. There will be Times of Refreshing. "He shall go forth as the morning... and He shall come unto us as the rain" (Hosea 6:3). What a bright, cheerful experience to have His presence breathing upon us like the dawning of the day, and to have our drooping and fainting hearts refreshed like the rain upon the mown grass. The Presence of God, by His Spirit, always brings times of refreshing We ire taught to pray: "Give us this day our daily bread." May we not also pray: "Give us this day a fresh dawning of Thy glorious presence upon the whole landscape of our lives?" THE DIVINE REVIEW.

Hosea 11:1-11.

Here Jehovah tenderly reminds His wayward people of what He had done for them. Oh, how ready we are to forget the past mercies of our God. "Son, remember." The sin of discouragement may often be the sin of forget -fulness. "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits" (Psalms 103:1-5). He reminds them of- I. What He Did for Them.

1. He Loved. "When Israel was a child, then I loved him" (Hosea 11:1). When Israel was a child then he had no wisdom or strength to glory in. But the child's ignorance and weakness did not hinder the love of God. Let us never forget that God loved us even "while we were yet sinners."

2. He Delivered. "I called My Son out of Egypt" (Hosea 11:1). Out of the land of darkness, sorrow, and bondage. He hath delivered us out of the kingdom of darkness and the slavery of ignorance, into the glorious light and liberty of the children of God. Delivered that we might be a separated people unto His Name.

3. He Taught. "I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by the arms" (Hosea 11:3). What a picture this is of Divine patience and carefulness. Like a father taking his child by the arms and teaching him to walk. God means us "to go," and although we may feel shaky in our feet, He will "perfect His strength in our weakness."

4. He Draws. "I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love" (Hosea 11:4). Not with cords of a beast, following in ignorance of its master's will. Not with the iron bonds of compulsion, dragging against the will; but with that tender and most effective of all ties-Love. "The love of Christ constraineth us." "O Love, that wilt not let me go, I yield my willing heart to Thee."

5. He Encouraged. "How shall I give thee up?" (Hosea 11:8). What comfort we may draw from language like this, as if He said: "I have done great things for thee; I have had long patience with thee. How shall I give thee up?" Let us hear these words as coming from the lips of our Redeemer: "I have ransomed thee with My own Blood, endowed thee with My own life, called thee by My own Name, given thee My own Spirit, and promised thee Eternal Life and a place in My own Home. How shall I give thee up?"

6. He Assured. "I am God, the Holy One, in the midst of thee" (Hosea 11:9). The assurance of His Presence is the fortaste of victory (Exodus 33:15). "Greater is He that is with us, and in us, than all that can be against us." "He hath said, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is My Helper, and I will not fear" (Hebrews 13:5-6). We may well have boldness in His service with such an all-sufficient and unfailing promise. For "in His presence there is fulness of joy" (Psalms 16:11). He also reminds them of- II. How they had Requited His Goodness.

1. They had Listened to Other Voices. "They called them, so they went" (Hosea 11:2). How unstable are the human affections. The worshippers of other gods called them, so they sacrificed unto Baalim. Before we pass judgment on their shameful faithlessness, let us ask: Are there no voices of the world, the flesh, our social relationships or sceptical acquaintances to which we have listened and turned aside from our ardent service of God? Satan is an adept in this alluring art. "Be ye faithful unto death."

2. They did not Recognise His Good Hand as they should. "They knew not that I healed them" (Hosea 11:3). What? Recipients of His great mercies, and blind to the Giver? Is there any sin more common than this? The world is crowded with such sinners, and the so-called Church is by no means destitute of such wilful ingrates. They receive with open heart and willing arms all the mercies God may pour into their earthly lot, but never recognise the Giver with even an upward look. God has given His Son to the death of the Cross to save them, but they have never said: "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift."

3. They had a Tendency to Backslide. "My people are bent on backsliding from Me" (Hosea 11:7). Alas, this bent is only too common among the Lord's professing people. How much we need to pray: "Uphold Thou my goings, that I slip not." The temptations of the world to turn aside always press heavily upon the Christian pilgrim. Yet in midst of all these tendencies to go out of His way, we are assured that He is faithful who hath promised. "Cleanse Thou me from secret faults." THE FINAL APPEAL.

Hosea 14.

Again we hear the pathetic voice of that inextinguishable love that "suffers long and is kind." They had fallen by their iniquity, but here is hope.

I. The Urgent Call. We may regard this call as fourfold.

1. To Return. "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God" (Hosea 14:1.) He is still thy God, even when you have lusted after other gods and caused Him to hide His face from thee. There is no remedy for Israel's sin, nor for ours, but to return to the Lord, and in humility and faith own Him as "My Lord and my God," even as Thomas did (John 20:28).

2. To Prayer. "Take with you words,... and say unto Him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously" (Hosea 14:2). The separating causes are in their "iniquity;" the uniting elements are all in the gracious-ness of our God. This kind of praying is very definite business. There are many who hope their sins may be forgiven, but who have never said a word to God about them. Here is a simple but God-given formula for such: "Take with you words and say: Take away my iniquity, and receive me graciously, for Jesus' sake."

3. To Praise. "So will we render the calves of our lips." The calves of the lips are more precious to God than the calves of the stall. The true priestly offering in this age is, "The sacrifices of praise unto God continually." That is the richest and ripest fruit of lips, "giving thanks to His Name" (Hebrews 13:15). "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and wonderful works" (Psalms 107:8, Psalms 107:15, Psalms 107:21, Psalms 107:31).

4. To Open Confession. Hosea 14:3 is very emphatic, which simply means: No mighty nation shall save us. No material instruments of battle can deliver us (horses and chariots). No works of our own hands can inspire us. But we will trust in the eternal love of our Father God, with whom such orphans find mercy. "Believe in thine heart, and confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus," and prove in your own daily experience His mightiness to save. Now note- II. The Divine Promises.

1. "I will Heal their backsliding" (Hosea 14:4). To heal a wound is something better than merely binding it up. To Israel, backsliding was a festering sore; but in answer to their pleading He will heal them. There is no disease so deeply rooted in our moral nature that our Great Physician cannot heal. He can "heal all our diseases." This disease of backsliding-a wilful desertion from the Word and Will of God-is perhaps one of the most inveterate.

2. "I will Love Them Freely" (Hosea 14:3). This is the love that is not restrained because of our unworthiness. To the pardoned and restored soul His love flows as fully and as freely as if they had never sinned. What an encouragement this is to the ministers of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. To him that cometh He says, "I will in no wise cast out."

3. "I will be as the Dew unto Israel" (Hosea 14:5). The dew falls gently, silently, and effectively in the night. The Lord will yet be to the nation of Israel as refreshing dew in the long night of their drought and affliction. Meanwhile, all who turn unto Him in the night of their sorrow and need will find His Presence as the dew, a real though invisible something gently falling upon their thirsty souls. If we had eyes to see nature as God sees it, we would doubtless behold many symbols of His wonderful works toward the children of men.

4. "From Me is thy Fruit Found" (vv. 6-8). Fruit is always the result of favourable conditions, and a manifestation of the character of the tree. Jehovah reminds them that the many rich mercies to be enjoyed would not be as a reward of merit, or a product of mere chance, but as an outcome of Divine activity in them and through them. We are reminded here of the parable of the vine (John 15). "The branch cannot bear fruit of itself. No more can ye." The vine might say to the branch: "From me is thy fruit found, for without me ye can do nothing by way of fruitfulness." If we abide in Him as a branch, and He abideth in us as the Source of our supply, then from Him shall "much fruit be found" (Galatians 5:22-24).

Joel

THE SEVERITY AND THE GOODNESS OF GOD.

Joel 2 and 3.

It has been said that Joel is the prophet of the Holy Spirit, as Isaiah is of the Messiah. Yet he gives us one of the darkest pictures ever drawn by a prophetic pen, and also one of the brightest (chap. 2:28). Here we note their utter bankruptcy. Their failure and desolation was-

I. Complete. "What the palmerworm left the locust hath eaten; what the locust left hath the cankerworm eaten; what the cankerworm left hath the caterpillar eaten. A nation is come up upon My land whose teeth are the teeth of a lion. My vine is waste; my figtree is barked; my people like a virgin girded with sackcloth. Offerings cut off from the house of the Lord. The Lord's ministers mourn. The fields wasted, land mourneth, harvest perished, all the trees of the field are withered, and joy is withered away from the sons of men" (vv. 4-12). Yet we know that "He doth not afflict willingly, but for our profit." As with this nation, so is it with our souls; we need to be stripped naked and our earthly pleasures withered before we feel our need of God.

II. This bankruptcy was Humanly Incurable. What could this nation do to arrest all those adverse forces that were warring against them? In themselves they had no power to resist such a mighty host. Lord, teach us to know our own helplessness, while we war "not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in heavenly places" (Ephesians 6:12). God has declared the bankruptcy of our sinful nature with regard to spiritual power. It is also humanly incurable. "In my flesh dwelleth no good thing."

III. This desolation reveals the Many Instruments at God's disposal. The "worm," the "locust," the "waste," the "blight," the "drought," and the "ungodly." All these He can turn into irresistible weapons of judgment. Surely we have need to "Behold the goodness and the severity of God" (Romans 11:22). He can use for our help or hindrance the most insignificant things on the earth. Great is our God, who can "make all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose" (Romans 8:28).

IV. The Divine Purpose. The reason of God's severity with them was to awaken in them a deep sense of their need of dependence upon Him. "Now, saith the Lord, turn ye to Me with all your heart. Rend your hearts and not your garments" (vv. 11, 12, 13). The called of God are called for God. It was easier for them to rend their garments as a sign of sorrow in the sight of men, than to rend their hearts as a proof of their humility before God. "A broken and contrite heart He will not despise." It may be easier for some of us to offer a gift for God's cause than to offer ourselves to Him for His service. His purpose for us is that we should present our bodies a living sacrifice, and this is but "your reasonable service," and the evidence of a "renewed mind" (Romans 12:1-2).

V. The Divine Encouragement. "Fear not, be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things. I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, and ye shall praise the Name of the Lord your God. My people shall never be ashamed" (chap. 2:21-27). What an inspiring message for trembling hearts. Though His hand is strong to smite, 'tis also strong to save. Why should we doubt in the cloudy and dark day, when we are assured that God is light and that God is love? "I am the Lord, I change not" (Malachi 3:6). Our trials and troubles are no proof that the character of our God has in any way changed. God, in Christ, is "the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." Approach with joy "the Mercy Seat," for He is waiting there to show "the kindness of God" to every penitent soul that comes, and to restore unto them the joy of His salvation. THE PROPHETIC OUTLOOK.

Joel 2:28-32.

"And it shall come to pass afterward." This "afterward" is interpreted by Peter on the Day of Pentecost, as "the last days" (Acts 2:17). This "afterward" seems to embrace this whole dispensation and the one that is to follow. We must not overlook the fact that all these words were spoken by Jehovah Himself, as the "I wills" prove. We have here then-

I. A Wonderful Promise. "I will pour out My Spirit" (v. 28). The Holy Spirit is the mysterious personal energy of God. In the past age He came again and again, and filled or clothed His chosen servants for their God-appointed work. But at Pentecost He was "poured out." As Jesus Christ poured out Himself for our redemption, so God hath poured out His Spirit for our guidance and enduement for service.

1. The Extent of this Gift. "Upon all flesh." All types of humanity-white, black, brown, red, and yellow. There is no respect of persons with God; but everywhere all who believe in Christ, and desire to honour His Holy Name, may, if they will, receive their share of this holy unction. "The promise is to you and to your children, and to as many as the Lord our God shall call" (Acts 2:39). To your "sons and your daughters, old men and young men, servants and handmaids." "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19:2); or in believing, did you receive?

2. The Results Predicted. These results must be such as cannot be gained without the operation of the Holy Spirit of Promise.

(a) "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." This may not mean the foretelling of events, but it does mean uttering words and thought by Divine inspiration, whether they are in a pulpit or a coal-pit; whether they are in the "ministry" or the factory, in the home or in the street. The true Christian life is a forthtelling of the Holy Spirit's presence.

(b) "Your old men shall dream dreams." We sometimes speak of a man as a dreamer, who is given to reverie, to deep, serious thought. But the Spirit of God, who taught Joseph and Jacob by dreams, can even while we sleep speak to the heart. The old men may not be so able now to take their part as formerly in the front of public spiritual warfare, but God has other ways that the world knows nothing of in bringing refreshing to their weary hearts. In this ministry of the Holy Spirit the "old man" is not cast off because of his age. Blessed be His Name.

(c) "Your young men shall see visions." Youth is the time of new visions, but with many these visions are as illusive as the mirage. "Your young men," or let us say, young men who have embraced the Christian faith, yielded to the call of Christ, and received the Holy Spirit. What marvellous visions of possibilities you will see in the world-wide field of labour and in the potentiality of your own redeemed character.

(d) "And upon the servants and the handmaids will I pour out My Spirit." The slaves and the kitchen maids are not to be exempt from this spiritual endowment, which means increased efficiency in every sphere of life. The Holy Spirit comes to put a new and higher value into all our activities.

II. A Solemn Warning. "I will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth... before the great and terrible day of the Lord come." The "Day of the Lord" will be very different from this present day of grace. Then shall the lawless one be revealed, whom the Lord shall destroy with the "brightness of His Coming" (2 Thessalonians 2:8). For "the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Thessalonians 1:7-8). This is the merciful Day of the Lord. Then will come "the terrible Day of the Lord" (v. 31). "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation." Sound aloud the trumpet of His Gospel call.

III. A Precious Opportunity. "And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call in the Name of the Lord shall be delivered" (v. 32). In the midst of such terrible judgments God has not forgotten to be gracious, for yet "in Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance." Meanwhile this door of opportunity stands wide open, for "whosoever will" (John 3:16). Christ, by the sacrifice of Himself, hath "put away sins" as a barrier in the way of our approach. The responsibility of the sinner is now great, because he is thus without excuse. It is ours to "call on the Name." It is His to deliver. "Salvation is of the Lord." "The grace of God that bringeth salvation to all men hath appeared" (Titus 2:11-14).

Amos

AN AWFUL CHALLENGE.

Amos 4:6-13.

It is an awful act when God Almighty challenges a crippled nation to a final combat. "Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel." This is a declaration of war. All negotiations had failed, a rupture had come. Now, after the manner of men, God challenges them to battle. It is quite apparent that in their past this would be a hopeless struggle. And to this end doubtless was it made.

I. Why was this Challenge Given? Because Jehovah had been trying to subdue them in other more merciful ways; and when the last of these failed, behold a challenge came. God gives His reasons before He utters this ultimatum.

1. "I have given you cleanness of teeth (starvation) in all your cities, yet ye Have Not Returned unto Me" (Amos 4:6).

2. "I caused it to rain in one city and not in another." Thus Making Distinctions that should have awakened anxiety, "yet have ye not returned unto Me" (Amos 4:8).

3. "I have Sent Among you the Pestilence. Your young men have I slain with the sword. Yet have ye not returned unto Me" (Amos 4:10).

4. "I have Overthrown Some of You, like Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning. Yet ye have not returned unto Me" (Amos 4:11). The purpose of all these chastenings was to bring them to Himself, but they would not. "I have called, and ye refused." Now then, "Prepare to meet thy God!" Are we hearing His voice and seeing His warning hand in His providential dealings with us? It is a miserable thing to be carrying on, it may be silently, a daily controversy with the God whose merciful purpose is that we should return unto Him. "I will arise and go to my Father."

II. This Challenge Must be Accepted. "Ye must meet God." But how? Is it to be in battle or in peace? As an enemy or as a friend? If it is a question of our own strength against the might of our God, who shall be able to stand? Though one man could be prepared by being endowed with all the best resources inherent in the human race, he could not dare with any hope of success to face and defy the "wrath of God." To meet God in our own moral strength and virtue, all preparation is utterly vain and presumptive. Yet meet Him we must, and meet Him we can, but never with hope as an antagonist. Then how can we meet Him in peace who have deliberately rebelled against His law and insulted His forbearance? Ah, herein lies the mystery and the majesty of grace through Jesus Christ, His own Beloved Son, who on our and on God's behalf gave His life a ransom for our sins, that through faith in His conquering Name we are reconciled to God, so can come with boldness before His throne, and find grace to help in our every time of need (Hebrews 4:16). Christ, for us, hath met all the just demands of God's holy law, and all the claims of His holiness. Hence our preparation to meet God in joy and peace lies in our acceptance and trust in the finished work and victorious Name of Jesus. Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift.

FAITHFUL WITNESSING.

Amos 7:7-17.

The Lord hath never left Himself without a witness (Heb. 11). The very "Heavens declare His glory." The personal testimony of Amos, as here recorded, leads us to meditate on some characteristics of true witness-bearing.

I. He Had a Message from God. "Thus He showed me... the Lord with a plumbline in His hand," who said unto him, "What seest thou? and I said, A plumbline" (Amos 7:7-9). A "plumbline" is an instrument for testing. Being in the hand of the Lord, it was the symbol of His righteousness and judgment. He had come, through His prophet, to measure the "high places" and the "sanctuaries of Israel," and to expose their delinquency. But the point is, Amos had a message; something definite to say, in the Name of the Lord; something that was not manufactured to please the people, or to show forth his own gifts, but something that burned in his own heart like a tongue of fire (Jeremiah 20:9). The early apostles, after the Resurrection, had such a vision of the power of Christ and of the blessed Gospel, associated with it, that their hearts became inflamed as with a Divine passion to speak out the "Good News." As Peter and John testified: "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard" (Acts 4:20). Truly they had a message. A message that came to them with such commanding authority that their whole "spirit, soul and body" were brought into subjection to it. Have we lost the vision? Are our ears dull of hearing or our hearts become hardened through the familiarity of words that we have so largely lost the spiritual thrill of this holy compulsion? We have the same message, the same promise of power, but, alas, where is our faith?

II. He Suffered Opposition. "Amaziah the priest of Bethel" misrepresented both Amos and his message to the king, and then hypocritically asked him to "Go, flee into the land of Judah" (Amos 7:10-13). Even modern priests of Bethels often misunderstand and misrepresent the man of God who boldly "declares the whole counsel of God." Opposition may be expected in the ministry of God's Word, when we remember the enmity of the human heart to spiritual things. "If any man will live godly, he must suffer persecution." "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trials which is to try you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings. If ye be reproached for the Name of Christ, happy are ye, for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you" (1 Peter 4:12-14). "I will glory in my affliction that the favour of Christ may rest upon me." If we are speaking God's Word, in God's Name, then leave it to God to care for His own.

III. He Gave his Personal Experience. "Then Amos said, I was no prophet, neither a prophet's son, but I was an herdman and a gatherer of wild figs" (Amos 7:11, margin), "and the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and said unto me, Go" (Amos 7:14-15). There is no reference made of his inexperience or "lack of education." One need not depend on the help of "the schools" to receive the call of God. We are not chosen because we are wise and strong, but because we are fit instruments for the exhibition of His wisdom and power. "God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and weak things to confound the mighty; and base and despised things to bring to naught things that are: that no flesh should glory in His Presence" (1 Corinthians 1:25-28). Paul's bodily presence was "weak, and his speech contemptible, but his letters were weighty and powerful" (2 Corinthians 10:10). It is of vital importance for the success of our ministry that we should be able to give a personal testimony as to what God hath done for us. Out of the heart are issues of life. Apart from this there may be plenty of "sound and fury," but the significance of it in His sight is "nothing." We are to speak what we do know, and testify what we have seen. It is little honour to Him that we should prophesy beyond the measure of our own faith. Isaiah saw the Lord seated on a Throne, before he heard Him say, "Go" (Isaiah 6:1-9). The apostles were "eyewitnesses of His Majesty" before they were sent to preach.

Jonah

JONAH THE RUNAWAY.

Jonah 1:1-3.

This is one of the most romantic of all the books of the Bible. To those who can read between the lines, it is more fascinating than the most popular novel.

I. Who was Jonah? From 2 Kings 14:25, we learn that he was the servant and prophet of the Lord-no mean title. His name means "Dove." If it was an expression of his nature, then perhaps this is one reason why he fled from great and wicked Nineveh. He was the son of Amittai, but his father's name is shrouded in obscurity. All great men don't spring from great parents. Although the world has never missed your father, that is no reason why it should not miss you when you are gone. A tinker may die without much ado, but the name of Bunyan will be held in everlasting remembrance. Don't trifle with the days of your youth. Jonah was the author of this book which bears his name. Oh, what a revelation he himself gives us of his own faults and follies. Don't condemn him too severely for being a runaway prophet, for we never would have known about it had he himself not told us. Write down your own faults as Jonah did, and see if your record is not infinitely blacker than his. Would you dare to do it? At any rate the recording angel is doing it for you. It is clear that in writing this book, Jonah does not seek his own glory. No man can be a prophet of God who does. Self-seeking is the spirit of Antichrist, and with him must be cast into the bottomless pit.

II. His Commission. The Lord said to Jonah: "Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it." This was a sudden and startling call, but all God's calls are sudden. Look at the city to which he was sent. It had been founded by Nimrod shortly after the confusion of tongues at Babel, and was therefore one thousand years old. It was the greatest city in the mightiest monarchy in the world. It was sixty miles in circumference, and contained streets and avenues twenty miles long; its walls were a hundred feet high, and so wide that three chariots could be drawn abreast on the top. Its population must have been over 600,000. But, moreover, it was great in wickedness, and that wickedness had climbed up to the very throne of God. Little did those wealthy and voluptuous Ninevites think that their secret sins were committed in the face of Jehovah. But so it was, and so it is now. The secret sins of our modern cities cry louder in the ears of God than the roar and rattle of the traffic in the streets. If we had the ears of God, nothing would strike us more, I think, than the longsuffering patience of our God. Friend, think of it, every sin unforgiven is a voice crying to Heaven for vengeance. Nothing can silence that cry but the precious Blood of Jesus. Now look at the purpose for which Jonah was sent to Nineveh. He was to "cry against" it. What a task. One little pebble in the bed of a mighty madly rushing river crying against it. But the prophet was not to be concerned about success, he was simply to obey the call, and leave the consequences in the hands of Him who called him. Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord. Every witness for God must "cry against" the wickedness of their day and generation. The present generation is cursed with dumb dogs which cannot bark. Think of the murderous drink traffic, licensed and protected by law, to make and to bury 100,000 drunkards every year, and men professing to be witnesses for God, refusing to cry against it. Think of the gambling fever that's flushing the faces of so many of our young men, and hurrying them headlong to eternal ruin. Think of the infidelity and indifference that's settling down among the people, like a deadly malaria. Oh, that all God's prophets would "cry against it." But, say you, they only mock. Well, better be mocked for your faithfulness than your cowardliness.

III. His Disobedience. Instead of going to Nineveh, Jonah fled to Tarshish, at least he tried to. He arose like a pigeon let loose in a strange place, performed the circle of indecision, then darted off in the wrong direction. Perhaps you have treated the call of God in the same way. You have heard His Word, and knew that you ought to believe it, and be saved, but you turned away from it, and fled from the Lord. Jonah was displeased, and, as it were, sent in his resignation as a prophet. It is much easier to resign than to face a stern difficulty. Any craven-hearted fool can refuse to obey. Yes, it is easy to flee from the will of God, when the heart is not in sympathy with Him and His work. It is easy to refuse hearing the Word of God on a Sunday, when the heart and mind are occupied only with worldly things. Jonah was on the "down grade" to shame and confusion when he went down to Joppa, then down into the ship. If we are seeking to shake ourselves clear of God's call to repentance and faith, we are as surely on the down grade to spiritual desolation. Think of the sin of it, "fleeing from the presence of the Lord." Why? Because the presence of the Lord is intolerable to a rebellious will. It is because of this that men will one day cry on the rocks to fall on them and hide them from His presence. Just now God is calling men to arise and flee to Christ, but instead of doing that, they are fleeing to Nineveh, seeking to drown conviction in the pleasures of the world. Jonah having fled, the next thing he had to do was to "pay the fare." So he "paid the fare and went down." Ah, but Jonah had more to pay than he expected. The fare is not all paid in advance. Young man, have you ever considered what the fare is, from the presence of the Lord to the land of godlessness? Look at that shattered frame, that bloached face, that blasted character, that man fled to strong drink, and he is now paying the fare. See that miserable miser with greed stamped on his face, and a heart as cold and callous as the gold he hoards; he fled to money, and had to pay the fare of becoming its slave. That young woman who once thought of becoming a Christian, but was hindered through the fear of man, and who has fled from the presence of Christ, is now paying the fare, in a seared conscience and a hopeless life. Truly the way of transgressors is hard. The prodigal in the far country, in rags and wretchedness, staring with hungry eyes at the swine troughs, was just paying the fare to get away from his father. What is the meaning of that weeping and wailing in eternity? It is this: The souls who have fled from the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ paying the fare. What a price. Are you prepared to pay your own fare, or will you trust the price Jesus has paid on your behalf? (1 Peter 1:18-19).

JONAH FOUND OUT.

Jonah 1:4-7.

The disobedient prophet fled with all speed to Joppa, Disobedient feet are sure to run quickly. It is always easy running down hill. But God's messengers are swifter than the feet of any runaway. He sent out the storm as His detective to apprehend His guilty servant. The seamen are dreadfully alarmed, and take to lighting the ship; the wares are cast into the sea. It is the old story. "All that a man hath will he give for his life." Many who have led godless lives take to lighting the ship when death is staring them in the face. But wares cannot appease the storm of God's wrath against sin. Let us look at-

I. The Sleeping Prophet. He had a journey of about three days, but being in such a hurry to get away from the presence of God he may have done it in less than two. Being weary with his flight, and having paid the fare, he is soon fast asleep in the ship. How sad. Weary fleeing from God. Truly the way of the transgressor is hard. If the way to Hell is paved with good intentions, it is also sprinkled with many tears. It is full of sighs and heartaches. Sleep is what runaway souls are seeking. They long for complete insensibility to their sins. How many convictions have been drowned in drink, and smothered in the haunts of sinful pleasure. Remember, insensibility is not security. A man may never be more in danger than when he is dreaming of ease. Jonah slept, while his companions on board were in desperation about their lives. I am afraid a good many professing Christians are playing the Jonah here, enjoying selfish ease, instead of seeking to help perishing souls. A sleeping Christian is not only helpless and useless, but is a positive hindrance to others. What was the cause of this great tempest that so oppressed the ship that it was "like to be broken." It was the disobedience of the servant of God. Think of the solemn responsibility resting upon us as the servants of Christ. It is possible to endanger the souls of others by our uncharitable behaviour towards God. Gospel hardened saints make Gospel hardened sinners.

II. The Arousing Call. "What meanest thou, O sleeper; arise, call upon thy God." This is the language of the skipper, heathen as he was, he believed in prayer. Our country is crammed with such heathen; men who believe in prayer when the waves of death are wildly dashing about them. Those who think prayer best becomes foul weather. An infidel who scoffed at a minister of Christ on board ship when the wind was fair, prayed: "O God, if there be a God, have mercy on me," when the storm came. Such fair-weather sailors are common. The drowsy prophet awakened to find that the God he sought to flee from is on his track, and has blocked his way. The seamen thinking the storm has come because some one of them is guilty, cast lots, that he may be found out, and the lot "fell upon Jonah."

III. Found Out. The runaway is found out. What a great awakening this must have been to him. Be sure your sins will find you out. We see here the proof of an overruling Providence. The lot fell on Jonah. God always puts the cap on the right head. When God comes to dispose of the lot that has been cast into the lap of time, every one will receive their due. "I'll take my chance," said a reckless sinner, when urged to accept Christ and be saved. What chance? The chance of escaping detection at the judgment? Remember, the lot "fell on Jonah." Let us remember that one transgressor may be a great stumbling block to others. One Christian, whose life is not in harmony with the will of God may hinder the cause of Christ. Achan's sin hindered the whole army of Israel (Joshua 7:8-18). Learn also the folly of attempting to flee from God. As a sinner, you may be permitted to flee into the wilderness of eternal ruin, but as a servant, God is sure to pull you up as it were, with bit and bridle. Judas sold our Lord, committed suicide, and went to his own place. Peter denied our Lord, but through the prayer of his Master, he wept, and was restored. In hiding from God we are tempting Him to shut us out from His presence -which is life for evermore.

IV. Disobedience Leads to Confusion. What a weakling Jonah was in presence of these heathen sailors. Instead of being a lighthouse and a tower of strength to help them, he was a source of sorrow and perplexity. It is sad to see the prophet of God confused and confounded in the presence of the ungodly. A powerless Christian is a very pitiable object. Salt without savour is a worthless thing. Samson in the power of the Spirit of God is more mighty than a host of Philistines, but as a runaway from his God, he becomes a miserable laughing-stock. A Christian ought to be a man of fearless courage and irresistible power. He would be so if he were not like Jonah, cowardly and disobedient. In the lap of Delilah, Samson was smuggled of his strength. In the lap of the pleasures and gaiety of the world the Church herself is being shorn of her power. The inconsistency of a Christian will not hide any more than Jonah's. It is impossible to be out of fellowship with God and yet have the influence and authority of an obedient servant. Our strength lies in our nearness to God. The nearer the fire we keep the more will its warmth possess us. Moses knew this when he prayed: "If Thy presence go not with us, carry us not up hence." If we have His presence, nothing shall be impossible; if we have not His presence, we have nothing worth having. Jonah fled from God. David fled to God. Whither fleest thou?

JONAH OVERBOARD.

Jonah 1:8-15.

Now that the skipper has got Jonah thoroughly awake, he is besieged with questions of the seamen. There is something very sad in a prophet of the Lord being asked: "What is thine occupation?" Like a soldier, the proof of his calling should be always manifest. Men did not need to say to Elijah, "What is thine occupation?" or to Peter or Paul? His connection with God was stamped upon his every action. If men have to ask us if we are Christians, after being in our company for a time, it is surely proof enough that we are backsliders.

I. Jonah Makes Confession. "I am an Hebrew and fear the Lord God of Heaven." If he fears Jehovah, why does he not call upon Him? Others have been calling upon their Gods, why is he silent? Perhaps the reason is here, Jonah had sinned, and had not yet confessed his sin to God. Unconfessed sin shuts the mouth of prayer. This is why many give up praying. Sin is in their conscience, they will not confess it, so they cannot pray. "He that covereth his sin shall not prosper." Prayers, once uttered at a mother's knee, are now choked by a guilty conscience. Another heart-searching question is put to Jonah: "Why hast thou done this?" To this he was speechless. We can always give good reasons for fleeing to God, but who can give a reasonable answer for fleeing from God? Are you a backslider? Have you turned aside from following Christ? Why hast thou done this? What answer can you give to this question? Alas, that the lives of so many should bare the mark of Cain, the mark of those who have gone out from the presence of the Lord, those who once professed to be Christians, but who now deny Him by their wicked works. What wilt thou say when God Himself shall put this question to thee: "Why has thou done this?" Another question is put to Jonah that must have been like a dagger to his soul. "What shall we do unto thee that the sea may be calm unto us?" These men believed in the doctrine of substitution. Why do the heathen practice it? Where did they learn it? It was the first lesson that God taught fallen man in clothing him with coats of skins. But now, in these days, this Divine truth is despised, because of the pride of intellect. We are not now to speak about "the fall of man," it is "the ascent of man." We are not now to teach that God made man in His own image, but that he sprung up from a drop of dirty water, called protoplasm. The apostasy of the last days is among us. Jonah's answer implies-

II. A Noble Surrender. "Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall it be calm unto you." He feels his guilt, and sees in the storm the hand of Divine vengeance. Every child of God can read Providence as none other can. He is willing to offer himself a sacrifice to the God of the tempest that his companions in trial might be saved. It seems that self-sacrifice is the way to true service. Are we willing to be cast out for God that we might be a blessing to others? Jonah confessed that for his sake the tempest was upon them. If we are guilty of bringing others into trouble by our lack of faithfulness to God, don't let us add sin to sin by denying it. But the sailors were, as yet, unwilling to fling the culprit overboard, they were a crew of noble-hearted men, and displayed a magnanimous reluctance.

"Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring it to the land." Yes, but their hard rowing will not suffice, where sacrifice is demanded. All the strivings of men will not avert the tempest of God's wrath against sin, there must be a sacrifice. We would rather give to God the work of our hands than the sacrifice of a broken heart. "They rowed hard to bring it to land, but they could not." It is an utter impossibility for us to succeed in the teeth of God's purpose. You, who are seeking by dint of effort to pull your soul to Heaven, will need to give up in despair. If you wish to work out your own salvation you must see that it is God who worketh in you. Finding their efforts useless, they cry unto the Lord that this man's life may not be laid to their charge

III. Divinely Thwarted. "Then they took up Jonah and cast him into the sea, and the sea ceased from her raging." It must have been with heavy hearts they heaved him overboard. As a passenger he had paid the fare from Joppa to Tarshish, and now he is thrown out of the ship. See how God can thwart our self-made plans. It is sad to bury the dead at sea, but much more sad to bury the living. The terrible plunge would scarcely be heard amidst the rush and roar of the tempest. The sacrifice was made. God accepted the offering, and immediately "the sea ceased from her raging." The key to all this is found in Christ's own words. "The Jews require a sign, there shall be no sign given, but the sign of Jonah, the prophet." Jonah then is a sign. A sign of what? Of death and resurrection. What a picture we have here of a greater than Jonah, who willingly offered Himself a sacrifice that others through Him might be saved. In the storm and the tempest we see the judgment of God, because of sin. The sin was that of disobedience, by one man's disobedience many were made sinners. The remedy was the sacrifice of a prophet. What a striking illustration of Christ, the great Prophet, who took the place of the disobedient, and allowed Himself to be cast out that the storm of judgment may be averted, and many precious souls saved. "Then the men feared the Lord and made vows." They made their vows after the storm was over. Many vow to God in the time of affliction, but deny Him when deliverance comes. The vows of the unconverted are usually vows that need to be converted. If you have been saved through Christ plunging into the sea of God's wrath on your behalf, then make your covenant vows to God, and keep them.

JONAH PRAYING IN HIS GRAVE.

Jonah 2:1-10.

God has many ways of working. The truant prophet was caught by a storm, swallowed by a fish, and landed safely on shore. What encouragement to those who may be praying for disobedient sons and daughters. You have had no letter for a long time, but trust the God of Jonah. With the rod of affliction He may hook them out of their disobedience and sin, and yet cheer your heart with unexpected tidings of gladness. But did a whale swallow Jonah? Scientific men say that the throat of a whale is too small to swallow a man, and loud mouthed infidelity has been quick to magnify the difficulty. Jonah does not say it was a whale, he says: "The Lord prepared a great fish." Where the word is used, in Matthew 12:40, it simply means "monster." In the year 1758, a man went about exhibiting a shark that had swallowed himself. The story is that he left the ship to bathe, and was swallowed by the shark. The captain shot it, the man was vomited up and rescued little the worse of his double dip. The shark was taken and presented to the man who had been swallowed by it. If a shark could swallow and vomit a sailor, what is to hinder it from doing the same with a prophet? Jonah is-

I. A Sign of Christ. The Jews require a sign. Jesus said: "There shall be no sign given but the sign of the prophet Jonah." They had had many signs. One yet remained to be given-the sign of His resurrection. Jonah is a sign of Christ-

1. In his Burial. He was cast forth; so was Christ cast out by His brethren. They led Him outside the gate and then put Him to death. Jonah was buried in the heart of the sea; Christ in the heart of the earth. Notice that the purpose for which they both were cast forth was the same- to make peace. "Cast me forth," said Jonah, "and it shall be calm for you." Christ hath made peace through the Blood of His Cross. The sin was in Jonah; the sin was on Jesus. Jonah was also a type of Jesus-

2. In his Conscious Activity in the place of death. The seamen buried Jonah in the sea, and doubtless mourned over him as one dead, but he was-

II. Alive After he was Buried. A living, conscious, active soul in the deep. We are not to suppose, as commonly believed, that the great fish devoured the man the moment he was flung overboard. He himself tells us that "the depths closed him round about, that the weeds were wrapped about his head, and that he went down to the bottom of the mountains." When Christ was buried, His friends mourned Him as dead; but while they were preparing the spices for His body, He was preaching to the spirits in prison, those-we believe-who had died in the faith of His Coming, and who waited His resurrection. When Samuel was brought back from the other world, he was disquieted, because he was in a place of happiness. If the rich man, mentioned in Luke 16, had been raised, he would not have talked about being troubled at the change, he would have been more than thankful. If we could see now the joys or sorrows of our departed dead, it would unfit us for this present life. Jonah was also a type of Jesus-

1. In his Resurrection. "The Lord spake unto the fish and it vomited Jonah out upon the dry land. He came out of the depths with the same individuality with which he was cast in. It was the same Jesus that rose from the dead, that was buried in the tomb. Neither of them saw corruption. The casting of Jonah upon the dry land is but the earnest of that time when both earth and sea shall vomit out the dead that are in them; some to the sunshine of eternal life, some to the darkness of eternal shame and contempt. Here we might see also-

III. The History of a Soul. The inner experience of Jonah has to some extent been the experience of all who have passed from death unto life, all who have been brought from the bondage of sin into the liberty of the sons of God. Will you notice seven steps in the experience of Jonah.

1. Disobedience. He deliberately refused to obey what he knew to be the will of God. Who among us has not taken that step?

2. Conviction. His soul is now encompassed with the horrors of Hell. The weeds are wrapped about the heart as well as his head. Disobedience to God is the straight way into the abyss of despair.

3. Confession. He acknowledges the hand of God in arresting him. "Thou hast cast me into the deep." A man is not in a state to be saved until he is prepared to acknowledge the justice of God in punishing transgressors. We must confess our sins if we would hope for His mercy to forgive.

4. Contrition. "When his soul fainted within him he remembered the Lord." At the remembrance of His goodness the heart is melted. Truth lodged in the mind in early years often proves effectual in later life. If men would only remember the Lord Jesus Christ, how soon would they be delivered from the bitterness of their lives.

5. Prayer. "He cried unto the Lord." Where there is true sorrow for sin it must gush out in prayer to God. A prayerless soul is like a sealed vessel. It took great faith to cry to God from the belly of a sea-monster. There is nothing like the jaws of death for opening the mouth of prayer. Many tempt God by their rebellion to plunge them into the belly of Hell, that they might learn to pray. Better pray in the sunshine than wait till you sink into the depths of despair, and death comes like Jonah's fish to swallow you up.

6. Deliverance. Jonah was vomited out upon the dry land. It was to him as it is to every one saved by the Lord-a resurrection from the dead. "A passing from death into life." Some think that nobody can know when they are saved. Did Jonah not know? He shouted: "Salvation is of the Lord." Yes, Jonah had to pay the fare to get away from the presence of the Lord, but he got a free passage back. The Lord was at all the expense of his home coming It is always so, if you run from God, you must pay your own fare; if you come to God there is nothing to pay. "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."

7. Thanksgiving. He said when he got out of the belly of death into the light of Heaven: "I will sacrifice unto Thee with the voice of thanksgiving," and so well he may. Thanksgiving becomes a reality when salvation is enjoyed. If there were more saved souls in our churches there would be less need for musical instruments. There are three states that may include us all.

(a) Those who are indifferent about salvation.

(b) Those who are praying to be saved.

(c) Those who thank God because they are saved. Which is yours? "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift" (Psalms 40:1-5).

JONAH OBEDIENT.

Jonah 3:1-10.

There are many questions one would like to ask here, but who can answer them? What did the sailors do after the storm, when their cargo had been pitched overboard? Did they return to Joppa to get it renewed? If so, the story of the storm being hushed by casting a prophet into the sea would doubtless be rapidly circulated, and perhaps reached Nineveh before Jonah did.

I. The Repeated Call. "The Word of the Lord came unto Jonah a second time." How gracious God is, to give a man a second chance of serving Him. He might have left him in his disobedience to perish. What hope there is in the Second Man, the Lord from Heaven. Is there one of us who have not had a second call? Yea, a sixth, a seventh, and a seventieth, and perhaps as yet there has been no response. God's right to take vengeance is often denied, but dare you deny His patience and longsuffering? The Law was given, that failed through our disobedience; now humanity's second chance is in His call of grace. Note the changed commission: "Go and preach unto it, the preaching that I bid thee." At the first Jonah was to "Cry against it," now he is just to speak what he is told. The call is repeated, but the commission is altered. Do you notice that the Word of the Lord came to Jonah before he was asked to preach it? Preachers must have a revelation from God. If they have seen no vision, then they have no message. Paul could say: "I have received of the Lord that which I have delivered unto you." We testify of what we have seen, else we are not witnesses. In these days a bold attempt is being made to discredit everything that savours of the miraculous. If there be no miracle, then there can be no mercy.

II. The Ready Obedience. "Jonah arose and went." What a task is before him; a journey of over 800 miles, and then to preach in the streets of the mightiest, the gayest, and the guiltiest of cities. But his forty days' journey is much easier than his three days' run to Joppa, because his heart is now right with God. It is easier doing great things for God than little things for the Devil. It was easier for Daniel to go to the lions' den than deny his God. It was easier for our faithful Scottish martyrs to go to the fires than to deny the faith. But where did Jonah learn this obedience? He learned it where most of us have had to learn it-in the depths, when the floods compassed him about, when the waves and billows passed over him, and the weeds were wrapped about his head. We would not always pity the afflicted if we understood the purpose of God. May God plunge many more into the belly of Hell, if so be that it will bring them to repentance. When God by the hand of death snatched your bright-eyed child from the home, did you understand that He was seeking to bring you into the faith that saves?

III. The Startling Proclamation. "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown." A strange message from a strange man. Jonah, footsore and weary, enters the great and mighty city, probably clad in a coat of camel's hair, girded with a leathern girdle. He may seem very small and insignificant in the presence of those haughty gentry, clothed in their gaudy robes, and those high flying chariots, rushing along on the top of the wall, but he has a dignity superior to the King of Assyria. He has a message from God that will bring the guilty and conceited Ninevites to their knees. The mightiest men in the world are those who know God's will, and are courageous as lions in declaring it. Sometimes sermons are characterised as being as destitute of grace as Jonah's. "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown." Jonah's message was one of mercy and judgment. Yet forty days-forty days' grace to be followed with judgment if these days were neglected. Grace has been reigning now these 1928 years, and will assuredly be followed with judgment in the case of those who despise the mercy offered.

IV. The Confirming Sign. From the Lord Jesus Christ Himself we learn that Jonah was a sign to the Ninevites (Luke 11:30). How could he be a sign to them if they did not know his character and history? This is indeed significant. The Ninevites not only heard the Divine message at his lips, but they saw in himself a proof of God's mighty saving power. Jonah wrought no miracle, but he himself was a miracle. He was as one raised from the dead. Three things the subtle infidelity of to-day seek to deny. Incarnation, Regeneration, Inspiration. But every regenerated soul is in itself a sign, and an evidence of the Divine and the supernatural. What we are will tell more powerfully than what we say. Signs are needed. Men and women who have themselves been saved and taught by God. Is there no such sign beside you or in your own home? To see a true Christian is to see a sign from Heaven.

V. The Grand Result. "Nineveh repented at the preaching of Jonah." If he had gone with the Gospel of the "higher critics," and hobnobbed with the gentry, he might have got on for chaplain to the king, but Nineveh would never have repented. "By their fruits ye shall know them." The preaching that does not bring sinners face to face with their sins and with God will never produce repentance. There were no sleepers under Jonah's preaching. There are scores who go to our churches for no other purpose than to see and to be seen, and to get a nap. It is interesting to observe the process of their repentance.

1. They Believed God. It is not said that they believed Jonah, but that they believed God. This ought to be the aim and end of all preaching, to lift the hearts of the people right up to the Lord Himself. What will it avail you although you believe in the kirk and in the minister, if you have no faith in God? I would rather die a heathen Hottentot than an unconverted Church member. Then they humbled themselves, "and put on sackcloth." This is always the result of believing God; faith is accompanied with the sackcloth of confession. Sackcloth is never very fashionable, sealskin is more in vogue. There is nothing like a deep conviction of sin for stripping one of their gaudy garments of pride. Oh, man, if you saw yourself in the light of God's judgment, you would as quickly as Ninevites, put on the sackcloth of a broken spirit. A haughty sinner is the imp of Hell. Never say that you believe in God if you have never been on your face before Him. Then-

2. They Cried to God. Every one was to "cry mightily to God." There is no use telling an awakened soul that God has so bound Himself with fixed laws that he cannot answer prayer. It is as natural for such to cry as the newborn babe. Only those encased in their own conceit can talk so lightly about prayer. No prayer book will suffice when the soul is alive to its true need. Such are like dead men's grave clothes. But they did more than pray, they "Turned every one from his evil ways." No prayer is in earnest as long as sin is indulged. If we are not prepared to forsake our sins, then all our prayers are a mockery (Psalms 66:18). A man once told me that he always said his prayers except when he was drunk. Poor man, he was afflicted with two devils. A drinking one and a self-righteous one. Both are alike unclean. Their prayer was sincere. The result was-

3. They Found Mercy. "God saw their works and repented, and did it not. What! Does God repent? Yes, I am thankful that He does. In His Character as holy, just, and good, He is unchangeable, and without shadow of turning; but in mercy He turns His face to every penitent seeking sinner. "Draw nigh unto Me," God says, "and I will draw nigh unto you." "Seek, and ye shall find."

JONAH DISPLEASED.

Jonah 4:1-6.

There is a great difference between mere obedience and sympathy. Every parent sees it when the one child has to be driven to obey, and when the other delights in it, because in full sympathy with the parents' plans and purposes. The elder brother in the parable (Luke 15) had been obedient, but he had no sympathy with the father in making such an ado over the returning prodigal. There are many Christians like this, they obey from sheer necessity, but they have no joy in the will and purposes of God. Such seems to have been the character of Jonah. He obeyed from a powerful sense of duty, but had not entered joyfully into all the mind of the Lord.

I. His Complaint. "It displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry," or, as it might be rendered, he was very hot, greatly perplexed and excited. He saw now what perhaps he did not expect to see-Nineveh in sackcloth and prayer. The Assyrians, being the enemies of Israel, he probably was secretly rejoicing in the prospect of their downfall. It is so easy to mix our own selfish motives with the purposes of God, and bring confusion to our own souls. It is here where thousands are making shipwreck, they set up then own opinions and think that God is bound by His honour to conform to their plans. Perhaps Jonah was thinking of his own honour as a prophet when he got so excited. He had been crying, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown." Now that God was going to spare the city, what would they think of him as a prophet? We are not much use in the Lord's service until we are willing to become fools for Christ. It is ours to obey and to trust. Opinions formed apart from the light of God's Word will sooner or later bring the blush of confusion to your face.

II. His Prayer. "He prayed unto the Lord." If Jonah's heart had been filled with anger against the Lord, how could he pray? No one can pray with anger in their heart. This is the remedy for all unholy passion-get to your knees. It is wonderful how our creeds get corrected in our prayers. Open up your heart to God, and your crooked things will be made straight. In Jonah's prayer there is a revelation. Here we get the reason why he fled from God at the first. He says: "I fled, for I knew that thou art a gracious God." This is the very reason why some of us have fled to Him. What does he mean? Perhaps this: "I knew that Thou art such a merciful God, that although I prophesied its destruction, Thou would forgive them, so my preaching would be in vain, and I would be mocked for my trouble." There was much of both good and evil in Jonah, but something more might be learned from this-

III. His Testimony. His description of God's character is simply grand. "Gracious, merciful, slow to anger, of great kindness, and ready to turn from judgment." How could he be angry at such a God? He is gracious to consider the sinner's need, and merciful to forgive their iniquities. My friend, can you say, like Jonah, "I know Him." He is slow to anger. What a mercy. This is an age of hurry and excitement and "Go." The Devil knows that his days are short, and he is driving this world-"that lieth in the wicked one"-at express speed. The Devil is always in a hurry "The wheels of God grind slow, but they grind exceeding small." God is slow to anger, but He is quick to forgive. "There is life for a look." This is the reason why some of you are spared till to-day, who have been wasting your time in selfishness and sin. "God is slow to anger." Why despise such great kindness, and weary out the patience of God? Oh, remember, that although God is slow to anger, when He does strike, it will be the blow of the Almighty.

IV. His Foolish Request. "O Lord, take my life from me, it is better for me to die than to live" Is it? How do you know? Here again is another manifestation of self. "Better for me." Oh, yes, it is the old story: "Suffer me first." This is the fly in the ointment of much of our Christian service-"Self-seeking." But there is some faith mingled with his faults. If he knew it would be better for him to die, then he had a good hope for the world to come. Would it be better for you? Paul said, "to depart and be with Christ is fax better." It takes faith to die in gladness, alone in the midst

V. His Watchfulness. "So Jonah went out of the city, and made him a booth." He might have shared the hospitality of the king, but he preferred a booth outside the city. "Moses chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Those who testify against the world aught not to live as the world. "Come out from among them lest ye perish with them." The command to Lot was, "Flee to the mountains, tarry not in all the plain." He sat under his booth till he might see what would become of the city. Do you know anything about calmly waiting to see what God will do? It is a solemn time. The doctor has given up that child, the mother has committed it to God, and is waiting in silence to see what God will do. There are times in Christian work when we know not what to do; we have to sit down like Jonah till we might see what the Lord will do. God is worth waiting on. Beloved friends, have patience with God. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength" (Isaiah 40:31).

VI. His Great Joy. "The Lord prepared a gourd, and made it come up over Jonah, so Jonah was exceeding glad." How quickly God can turn our sadness into gladness. This gourd is supposed to be the palm-christ, a plant like the running ivy, with broad leaves the shape of a man's hand. Every leaf might remind him of the hand of the Almighty. What a shelter-to be covered with Jehovah's hands-no wonder he was glad. This sheltering gourd was the gift of God-a handful on purpose for a weary, downcast pilgrim. How often has God raised a gourd for us in our day of trouble. It was given for a twofold purpose. (1) To be a shadow over his head. (2) To deliver him from his grief. Is not this what you need-shelter from danger, and deliverance from inward grief. This gourd raised by the Lord seems to be a passing shadow of the Cross. Here sinners find a refuge from the piercing rays of Divine vengeance and deliverance from their sins and sorrows. This double salvation every one of us need. Christian, in the day of your trial, sit under its shadow, and wait and see what God will do. Unsaved one, here is a resting place for you, here is deliverance from your grief. No matter how deep your need, sit here and see what God will do for you. "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." He is "mighty to save."

JONAH SILENCED.

Jonah 4:7-11.

Every visible thing is stamped with uncertainty. All our earthly comforts will, sooner or later, wither and die. The countenance of nature herself, although governed by unerring law, is continually changing. Kingdoms and nations change. What changes have taken place in our homes, and among our friends. How many old faces are gone, how many new faces have come.

"Change on all around I see,

Oh, Thou who changeth not,

Abide with me." When all earthly things shall wax old and pass away like a garment, the unchanging Saviour still remains. "Blessed are all they that trust in Him." We have here-

I. A Short Lived Pleasure. "God prepared a worm the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered." God can prepare the worm as well as the gourd. While we are enjoying our gourd of pleasure, we are apt to forget that there may be a worm at the root. How many little unseen things may be at work in the night. Receive your mercies with humble thankful hearts. Are there not many whose gourd has suddenly withered. That child which used to be the delight of your eye-God prepared the worm of disease, and it has withered away. That husband that used to cast over you his protecting hands has suddenly withered away. That mother who used to be your gourd, in delivering you from your grief, has been cut down by the worm of death. Oh, this world is strewed all over with withered gourds. Each ruin says to us, "Set not your heart on the things which are seen, for they are temporal." Every earthly thing has its worm. The worm of time is already working at the root of your present worldly pleasures. That gourd of false profession will turn out a lifeless mass on the day of God's fierce anger. God has prepared a worm that will bring to ruin every refuge of lies. What an awful discovery to awaken on the resurrection morning, to find our hopes, like Herod's body, eaten up of worms. The incorruptible Christ has paid an incorruptible price for your incorruptible soul.

"Here everlasting springs abide.

And never-withering flowers." The heart that has laid hold on Christ has received a portion that can never fade away.

II. An Overcoming Trial. "And it came to pass, when the sun did rise, that God prepared a vehement east wind, and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah that he fainted." Alas, for you, if your joys are bound up in your circumstances, instead of in your God. It is so easy and natural to be more anxious about the gift than the Giver. It does seem strange at first sight, how God dealt with Jonah. He prepared a gourd to cover him, then a worm to vex him, then a wind to smite him. We may find fault, but we cannot mend it. The Divine Teacher is not obliged to explain Himself to His stupid pupils. A great and merciful purpose is here. This piercing east wind upon Jonah's defenceless head was a sore trial. It has been said that "When the wind is in the east, 'tis neither good for man nor beast," but this does not tally with our own good Scottish proverb: "It is an ill wind that blaws naebody guid." The winds are in His fists, and are flung out, not at random, but for a definite purpose. It was by a strong east wind that the Lord divided the Red Sea. The cutting, biting, withering winds of affliction are all for some gracious purpose. I once made the remark to a farmer, that these cold winds would hinder the growth. "Yes," he said, "they hinder the growth upwards, but they help the growth downwards; they make the roots take a firmer hold." Then welcome affliction that drives the root of our being deeper into the things of the unseen world, and makes us more fit to stand in the time of tempest. Jonah fainted. Poor fellow, he was like the seed that had no depth of earth, and withered away when the scorching sun fell upon it. David said, "I had fainted, unless I had believed." If we have no faith in God we have nothing to save us from fainting in the time of trial. To you who are growing faint thinking there is no salvation for you, "Only believe." Weary workers, remember that "He giveth power to the faint."

III. A Pointed Question. God said to Jonah, "Doest thou well to be angry?" Jonah's answer was that of a man who is perfectly honest, but whose heart was likely to deceive him. "I do well to be angry, even unto death." The great lesson seemingly that God wished to teach Jonah was that "Sin worketh death," both in the nation and individual. Israel had turned away from God. Idolatry, like the worm at Jonah's gourd, was eating the life out of the nation. Righteousness exalteth a nation. Now that Nineveh was on its knees seeking mercy and righteousness, God would lift it up. The same principle reigns to-day; the Divine word is, "Them that honour Me, I will honour." God looketh on the heart. Jonah was more concerned about the gourd of his own comfort than the salvation of the heathen city. Such are certain signs of a staggering faith. Faith in God is the death-blow to all this miserable self-interest.

IV. A Silencing Argument. "Thou hast had pity on the gourd, and should not I spare Nineveh, wherein are more than six-score thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand?" What a wonder, that God should condescend to reason with a man. There is much in God's dealings with us that we can never understand, and must be received by faith. God uses two powerful arguments to silence the doubts and fears of His servant.

1. The Argument of Sovereignty. God has a right to do as He will with His own. Proud man would even question this right and show displeasure at God's dealings, because he cannot comprehend His meaning. It is awful presumption to suppose that the purposes of God are to be subordinated to the reasonings of men. Paul's argument is conclusive. Nay, Oh man, who art thou that repliest against God? Shall the thing formed say to Him that formed it: "Why hast thou made me thus?" Then there is-

2. The Argument of Pity. The Lord reminds Jonah that there are sixty thousand persons in Nineveh that cannot discern between the right hand and the left- 60,000 babies. What a place the children have in the heart of God; what a claim their utter helplessness makes upon Divine mercy. Nineveh was spared, partly through the mute intercession of these 60,000 infant priests. You cannot tell how much your home has been blessed because of these helpless children. Mothers, make room for the children; every baby is a blessing, a priest that maketh intercession for you. These arguments seem to have silenced Jonah, for we hear his voice no more. He quietly allows God to have the last word. Has God settled all your difficulties and silenced all your arguments? Don't keep up a controversy with the Almighty. Yield your will to Him, and what you cannot grasp with the intellect, believe with the heart. There is a story in ancient history of a monarch who, when some of his subjects rebelled against him, subdued them then loaded them with precious gifts. One of his nobles asked why he was so kind to his enemies. He said, "I subdued them by my power, I must now win them by my love." It is thus that Jesus Christ, the greater than Jonah, would win us to Himself. By the power of his convicting Spirit He would show us the blackness of our evil hearts, that He might bring us to repentance and confession. Then He lavishly bestows upon us the great gifts of His grace, love, peace, joy, rest, and eternal life. He blesses all he conquers. Has He conquered you?

Micah

THE COMING KINGDOM.

Micah 4:1-8.

There is a "kingdom" coming, as predicted by the prophets and foretold by our Lord and His apostles; a kingdom such as this world has never known. This kingdom will come when the King Himself appears. He who died for the world will yet assert His "right to reign" over it. When He comes to rule the nations, then that prayer He taught us in the days of His flesh, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," will be abundantly fulfilled. "His kingdom is not of this world." It can never come out of present world conditions. It will come from God, and with "God our Saviour," who shall appear in "power and great glory" (1 Thessalonians 4:14-17).

I. Jesus as King Is Coming Again. As a Prophet He has appeared; as a Priest He now appears in the presence of God for us; as King He shall yet appear, and perfect His great work by bringing the world into subjection to His will; and when His redeemed people who have suffered for Him here shall share His honour and glory (1 Corinthians 6:2; Revelation 5:10). This is something of the grace that is to be brought unto us at the Revelation of Jesus Christ (1 Peter 1:13). He is coming; yes, coming in Person as a Glorious Victor, just as He was seen to go (Acts 1:11).

II. When is this Kingdom Coming? Micah says: "In the last days it shall come to pass" (Micah 4:1). The "last days," not of the world's history, but of this present age. The day or the hour of His appearing no man can know; but the signs of the "last days" are something given us whereby we might know that the day of His appearing is drawing nigh. We are assured that in the last days perilous times will come (2 Timothy 3:1). These last times will be dangerous, hazardous, involving terrible risk: "Distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them for fear, while they are looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Then, while all such conditions are with us, "shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:25-28). Are these "signs" with us now or not? Many of these sorrows have always been with mankind, but in these "last days" they become "signs," as the world has no remedy for its own diseases. These signs are danger signals.

III. The Characteristics of His Kingdom, as revealed by this prophecy.

1. It will be Centred at Jerusalem. "The mountain of the House of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, and exalted above the hills and peoples shall flow into it" (Micah 4:1, r.v.). Where else could this heavenly kingdom find its capital but in His own City. Even there where He Himself was crucified for the world's sin. Blessed thought, where His Cross of suffering and shame was lifted up, there will be His Throne of dominion, the symbol of power and victory over all His enemies. "The House of the Lord" will then be worthy of His Holy Name, when all peoples shall flow into it, and every tongue confess that He is Lord, Jerusalem will again become a praise on the earth.

2. It will be Universal. "Many nations shall come.... He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths, and the Word of the Lord shall go forth from Jerusalem" (Micah 4:2). The heathen shall be given Him for His inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for His possession (Psalms 2:8). He who hung on a Cross will yet have a world bowing before Him. Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive this honour and glory and dominion (Isaiah 9:7).

3. It will be Peaceful. "He shall judge... and rebuke. . . they shall beat their swords into plowshares... and shall learn war no more" (Micah 4:3). What a deliverance for a world now lying in wickedness! His Name shall be Prince of Peace, and the government shall be upon His shoulders (Isaiah 9:6). In that day the "prince of this world," now working in the children of disobedience, will be utterly overthrown. Meanwhile, let us hear and rest in His own comforting words: "Let not your heart be troubled... ye believe in Me... I will come again" (John 14:1-3).

4. It will be Abundantly Prosperous. "They shall sit every man under his vine, and under his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid" (Micah 4:4). No fear of raiders, or pestilence, or drought, for the wilderness and the desert shall blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly. The parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water. There shall be joy and gladness, "and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isa. 35). No more anxious scanning of the sky, sighing for the refreshing rain; all the elements in earth, air, and sea under His control, and made subservient to the good of His people (Isa. 12).

5. It will be a Time of Great Joy. To His ancient people it will be a national resurrection, for "The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads" (Isaiah 35:10). Micah tells us: "In that day, saith the Lord, will I assemble her that halteth, and gather her that is driven out, and the afflicted; and I will make her a strong nation, and the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion... for ever" (Micah 4:6-7). What a reunion for this halting, scattered, and afflicted people. Truly their restoration will be as "life from the dead." A saved and happy nation! What a mighty influence they will have on the peoples of the earth. But what about the Church? Those who belong to Christ now? Ah, "Christ the firstfruits." Afterward, "they that are Christ's at His Coming. For He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet" (1 Corinthians 15:23-25). THE LORD'S CONTROVERSY.

Micah 6:1-8.

"Hear ye, O mountains, the Lord's controversy" (Micah 6:2) After all that He hath done for His people, why should there still be a "controversy" between them? Even God's chosen ones are often stubborn. God has had a controversy with humanity since Adam's fall. The great mission of the Lord Jesus Christ was that of reconciliation. Hear His- I. Sorrowful Questions. What pathos is in them, revealing His heart agony.

1. "O My people, What have I done unto Thee?" (Micah 6:3). Think of what I have done for thee! Think of how thou hast requited My longsuffering patience, and kindness toward thee. O My people, redeemed by the precious Blood of Christ, what have I done unto thee, that your heart is so cold toward Me, and your service so formal and fruitless?

2. "Wherein have I wearied thee? testify against Me" (Micah 6:3). Is it possible to get wearied of God? We may possibly get wearied in His service. Surely never of it. If spiritual things are becoming wearisome to your soul, would you dare to "testify against Him," that His dealings with you are not in harmony with His revealed will? It is a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also? (Isaiah 7:13).

II. Mercies Recalled. "O My people, remember" (Micah 6:5). How grievous it must be to our Heavenly Father when we grow weary of Him through forgetfulness of His benefits. Remember He says-

1. That "I Brought thee up out of Egypt" (Micah 6:4). Remember that I broke the power of your oppressors, and led you forth into joyful freedom. Brethren, let us never forget that it was the loving grace of God that delivered us from the power of sin, the bondage of the world, and the delusions of the Devil, into the blessed liberty of "sons of God."

2. That "I Redeemed Thee." The price Jehovah paid to redeem Israel out of Egypt was His terrible judgments upon her enemies. But the price He paid to redeem us from guilt and sin was the life and Blood of His own Beloved Son. "He gave Himself a ransom for us." Remember, ye are not your own, ye have been bought with a price. Therefore glorify God in your body and spirit, which are His.

3. That "I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam" (Micah 6:4-5). These three leaders are typical of a threefold blessing: Moses, the legislator; Aaron, the intercessor; Miriam, the song leader (Exodus 15:20-21). The word, the worship, and the praise. Has He not also given us His Word, like Moses; liberty of access, like Aaron; and the song of victory, like Miriam. Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory.

4. That "I turned Balaam's intended curse into a blessing" (Micah 6:5; see Numbers 23:11-12). What a wonderful proof this is of the overruling power of God on behalf of His people. Take no anxious thought for your life. He careth for you.

III. Personal Perplexities. In Micah 6:6-7, we have language that might well become an anxious sin-smitten soul, seeking the favour of God. "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord" (Micah 6:6). With what shall I come, that I might find acceptance in His eyes? This old question is ever and anon burrowing its way into Spirit-awakened minds and hearts. There is a deep conviction that something is needed. But what that something is remains a mystery to those who know not Jesus Christ as their Redeemer. "Shall I come with burnt-offerings? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?" (Micah 6:7). Abraham was willing to give his only son Isaac, but God provided Himself with an offering. "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." It is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins (Hebrews 10:4). There is absolutely nothing man can offer God that can in any way take the place He has given the Christ, who Himself bore our sins to the accursed tree. Anything we can offer, apart from Him, is but an insult to His Cross. In that Cross there is the "wherewith" we can come boldly before the Lord.

IV. The Way Revealed. "He hath showed thee, O man, what doth the Lord require of thee. To do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God" (Micah 6:8). Many proud and worldly people quote these words to justify themselves before God and men. They say, "I do justly; I love mercy and walk humbly." Yes, but no experience of truly walking with God! It is easy for us to talk of justice, mercy, and humility, while we may know nothing experimentally of the reconciling Blood of His Cross. "How can two walk together except they be agreed?" How can we be agreed with God if we are persistently ignoring the redemptive work of Jesus Christ on our behalf? We may do justly and love mercy, but to humbly walk with thy God is impossible without a new birth, a new spirit, and an entire surrender of ourselves to Him in the daily life.

REJOICE IN THE LORD.

Micah 7:7-20

"The joy of the Lord is your strength." The closing words of this prophet give us abundant cause for this joy, for his God is our God. See here-

I. His Joyful Confidence. The following utterances in view of very depressing conditions, seem to be the spontaneous expressions of a satisfied and joyful heart

1. "I will Look unto the Lord" (v. 7). The upward look to the believing soul is always a clear one, even when the outward and the inward look is dark, cloudy, and foreboding. "Look unto Me, and be ye saved."

2. "I will Wait for the God of my Salvation" (v. 7). The look may be like a flash, but we must also quietly wait for Him The waiting time may be the testing time; but if we are waiting for God's salvation it will surely come.

3. "When I Fall I shall Arise." So that the joy of the enemy over the fall shall be quickly spoiled (Micah 7:8). "Falls" are not to be expected, for "He is able to keep you from falling." When you do fall, either openly or secretly, arise before the enemy gets time to rejoice.

4. "When I Sit in Darkness, the Lord shall be a Light unto me" (v. 8). Blessed darkness, when all the light we have is in His Holy Presence. "Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me" (Psa. 23).

5. "I will Bear the Indignation. . until He Plead my Cause" (Micah 7:9). When stricken by the chastening hand of God it is good just to bear the stroke until He plead my cause, as Job did, and God did plead his cause and reward his patience.

6. "He shall Bring me to the Light, and I shall Behold His Righteousness" (Micah 7:9). The patient, trustful sufferers He shall bring into the light, and cause such to behold his righteousness in all His dealings with them, for He doeth all things well. And at last, when He brings us into the glorious light of our Redeemer's face, and behold His righteousness in all His dealings with us while pilgrims and strangers on the earth, what a revelation, what joy, what cause for praise!

II. Joyful Reasons for Such Confidence. In these verses (18-20) we have what has been recognised as an unparalleled expression of the gracious character of our God. "Who is a God like unto Thee?" Here are seven things He does for His people.

1. He Pardoneth Iniquity. What a comfort to know that His pardon can extend to our lack of rectitude, or moral principle, in our dealings with our fellow-men. Such sins may not always be apparent to others, but they are naked in his eyes.

2. He Passeth by the Transgression. He is willing to overlook our trespasses against His holy law and our presumptuous intruding into the holy domain of His Presence, as when we come before Him in our pride and self-confidence.

3. He Retaineth Not His Anger for Ever. His anger is as just and as holy as His love. But in grace He retaineth not His anger, because love has triumphed. We may well rejoice as we see the proof of this in the gift of His Son (John 3:16).

4. He Delighteth in Mercy. We do not read that He delighteth in judgment. "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that he should turn from his way," for "He delighteth in mercy." Herein lies the hope of sinful men.

5. He will have Compassion and Subdue our Iniquities. To conquer and subdue is something deeper than merely to forgive. This he does for us by the Incoming of His mighty Spirit into the citadel of the soul

6. He Casts all our Sins into the Depths of the Sea. This is, of course, figurative language. They are buried where there can be no resurrection, into the depths of His eternal forgetfulness. "Behind His back," where His holy eyes can see them no more (Isaiah 38:17).

7. He will Perform His Promises to His believing children. "He is faithful that hath promised." All these gracious features constitute a true likeness of the Father, as revealed to us in the face of Jesus Christ, who appeared as the image of the invisible God, and who said, "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." Rejoice in the Lord.

Chapter 50

Nahum

GREAT IS OUR GOD.

Nahum 1:1-8.

The prophet is here burdened with a terrible sentence. But while the judgments recorded were against old Nineveh, they are a very solemn revelation to us of the great and terrible God with whom impenitent sinners will have to do.

I. God is Jealous (Nahum 1:2). Jealousy may be defined as an uneasy state of mind, under fear that another has engaged the affections of one you love. God is jealous of any rival for our affections and trust, just because His love is so good and true. "Love not the world, nor the things of the world," that you provoke Him not to jealousy. The world and self are His rivals.

II. The Lord's Revenge is Furious (Nahum 1:2). When God is for us His power is Almighty; when against us it is equally Almighty. When He avengeth His adversaries it will be with a fury that is overwhelming. O proud man, think of the God with whom ye have to do.

III. The Lord is Slow to Anger (Nahum 1:3). He is not what we say of some people, "quiet tempered." All past history is proof of this. In the days before the Flood God gave them 120 years' notice (Genesis 6:3). This longsuffering patience of God is often misconstrued as utter indifference. While His anger comes slowly, bless His Name, His love comes quickly.

IV. The Lord is Great in Power, and will not at all acquit the wicked" (Nahum 1:3) How shall we escape if we neglect His great salvation? Here is the answer. "Not at all." What a solemn and urgent truth this is for those who deny His love and ignore His proffered mercy in the Gospel of His grace. "He that believeth not is condemned already" (John 3:18). But the final execution of this sentence awaits the day of His great power (Nahum 1:6).

V. The Lord has His Way in the whirlwind, in the storm, the clouds, the rivers, the sea, and the fire (Nahum 1:6). We cannot imagine any of the natural forces He has created rebelling against His will. They are all weapons at His disposal. He has His way in them all. We are assured that every atom in the universe is under law. The winds are in His fist, the clouds are the dust of His feet. It is man and fallen angels who are the rebels. But "who shall stand before His indignation?" (Nahum 1:6).

VI. "The Lord is Good, a Strong Hold in the Day of Trouble" (Nahum 1:7). The Lord is great in power, but also in goodness. His goodness is a strong hold for us in the day of our trouble because of sin, or weakness, or failure. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble" (Psalms 46:1). "By grace are ye saved" (Ephesians 2:8)

VII. The Lord Knoweth Them that Trust in Him (Nahum 1:7). We are known unto God, not by our wisdom, not by our many works, or popularity in the eyes of men, but by our trust in Him. The Lord knoweth such, although the world knows nothing of them. Have faith in God, and rest assured that He knoweth them that trust in Him, and will surely satisfy them with His goodness. Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him.

Habakkuk

ON THE WATCH TOWER.

Habakkuk 2.

We need not imagine the prophet climbing to some hill top to get this expected vision, but that in his own heart he would take the attitude of being on the outlook, and wait for God's message. The message given can be easily applied to the present times, as all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof (2 Timothy 3:16). This message is chiefly for reproof and instruction in righteousness. Here are- I. Words of Warning. Expressed in five solemn "woes."-

1. Woe to the Dishonest. "To him that increaseth that which is not his own" (Habakkuk 2:6). This applies to the unscrupulous master, the dishonest servant, the unsympathetic miser, and to all religious hypocrites, who claim that which is not their own.

2. Woe to the Covetous. "Him that coveteth... that he may set his nest on high" (Habakkuk 2:9). This is coveting for self-display and social aggrandisement. Although such may never gain what their vanity craves for, their sin lies in their covetous spirit. Some may even covet the gifts and power of a Christian brother; not that they might bring more honour to God, but that they themselves might get more honour from men. Beware of this woe. "Pride goeth before a fall." It is lawful and wise "to covet earnestly the best gifts" (1 Corinthians 12:31), just as a wise workman might covet the best tools, that he might be able to do better work for his master.

3. Woe to the Oppressor. "To him that buildeth with blood and established by iniquity" (Habakkuk 2:12). Thank God, the old slavery has been abolished, when verily, cruel men built fortunes on the blood of others, and established their stronghold by iniquity. Every nation, every cause that is built on this policy will certainly be smitten with the woe of the Almighty, as all past history attests. The footsteps of every industry and every individual life that is being built up by iniquity will be followed by the unerring and overwhelming woe of God. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

4. Woe to the Deceiver. "To him that giveth his neighbour drink, that they might look on their shame" (Habakkuk 2:15). This attempt to drug a neighbour, that advantage may be taken of them is a kind of deception that has many practitioners in our own day. Not only in giving men drink that they might laugh at their folly, but in giving such teaching that stupify and bring such dullness and insensibility over the mind that the precious things of God's Gospel become of no vital value And all that they might be classed as followers with us.

5. Woe to the Idolater. "Woe unto him that saith unto the wood, Awake, and to the dumb stone, Arise" (Habakkuk 2:19). We pity the poor blinded heathen, bowing down to the workmanship of their own hands, and worshipping the devices of their own hearts What better are the worshippers of fashion, of fiction, of sport, and of purely selfish interests? Whatever takes the place of God in our thoughts and lives is our dumb idol in the day of our real need.

II. Words of Encouragement. Here is a brilliant star gleaming in a cloudy sky. It is the Morning Star of Promise heralding the new day of universal blessing. "The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Habakkuk 2:14; also Isaiah 11:9). When our Lord comes again in power and great glory, when every eye shall see Him, and all shall know Him, from the least unto the greatest, then shall be fulfilled the promise given at His birth: "He shall be great To Him shall be given the throne of His father David, and He shall reign, and of His kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:30-33). Be of good cheer. As sure as the world's Redeemer has come, so surely will the world's Kingly Deliverer appear, when all power shall be given Him on the earth, and when the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our God and of His Anointed. The closing verse of this part of the prophecy gives us another peace-assuring statement. "The Lord is in His Holy Temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him." The conditions of the world when the King of kings appears will be tumult and uproar. Here is His call for silence. "Let all the earth keep silence before Him." What a solemn, holy hush, when all the earth is silent before Him. The noise of battle, the war of traffic, the strife of tongues, the clamour of scepticism: every discordant note in His ear silenced. Peace on earth, goodwill among men, and glory to God. THE SECRET OF ABIDING JOY.

Habakkuk 3:17, Habakkuk 3:18.

This old prophet with the crooked name had the secret of a happy life. And here it is for you: "Although the fig tree shall not blossom," etc, "yet I will rejoice in the Lord." The meaning is: Although the Chaldeans invade the land and burn up the vineyards and oliveyards, hinder the harvest, steal the flocks, and rob me of every earthly possession; yet I will rejoice in the Lord. Will you and I say that in the day of calamity?

I. The Christian has Joy. "I will rejoice." Christianity is not a system of melancholy. Many Christians may have long faces, but every true believer in God has a joyful heart. The joy of the Christian is not that superficial kind of mirth that finds expression only in "roars of laughter." It is more like the calm of the settled water in the deep sea, undisturbed by those elements that constantly affect the surface. "The peace of God that passeth all understanding."

II. This Joy is in the Lord. "I will rejoice in the Lord." This joy implies knowledge. You cannot rejoice in the Lord unless you know Him. If you knew Him you would love Him. If you loved Him you would rejoice in Him. We cannot rejoice in God as we ought until we have found in Him that which satisfies every desire of the heart, and fills up every longing of the new-born life. See that little dog creeping over to that sunny spot of the carpet. How it rejoices in the sunshine. The reason why so many Christians are not filled with joy is because they don't abide in the bright warmth of the Holy Spirit. Friends, the Cross of Christ is the only bright spot on earth where guilty men can share the joy and happiness of Heaven.

III. This Joy is the Joy of Salvation. Habakkuk says here, "I will joy in the God of my salvation." "How is it that you are always so happy, Annie?" asked a visitor who had called and marked the little girl's brightness. "Oh!" she said, "I am happy because I am forgiven." After the Israelites had passed through the Red Sea, they struck up the Song of Salvation (Exodus 15:1). How can they help from singing who have been saved. Jonah was in a sore plight when swallowed by the great fish, with the weeds of the deep wrapt round his head-the picture of a lost man. But he cried unto God out of the belly of this Hell. The Lord heard and saved him. Then how gladly he sang "Salvation is of the Lord." Salvation has two sides-the manward and the Godward. Your side is to repent and believe. God's side is to regenerate and restore (John 3:7-16). You cannot regenerate your own soul, but God will if you believe. You are commanded to repent and believe the Gospel. This you can do if you will, and you will perish if you don't. Let me say further that-

IV. This is the Joy of Anticipation. In Habakkuk 3:19 we read: "He will make my feet like hind's feet, to walk upon mine high places." The Christian life is not only one of happiness, but also of progress. A climbing from one high place of grace to another. It is not a grasping at gaudy bubbles that vanish with the touch, but the laying hold of spiritual certainties. For this feet like the hind's feet are needed. I understand that the peculiarity of the hind's feet is that they not only rest on the rocks, but cling to them, so that they can easily stand on high places. Such represent the feet of faith that rests on and cling to the great and precious promises of God. The Christian's prospects are mountains high. The hope of the wicked shall perish.

V. This Joy is Independent of Earthly Possessions. "Although the fig tree shall not blossom," etc., "yet will I rejoice in the Lord." Although I am stripped naked of every earthly thing, yet will I joy in the God of my salvation. You see, beloved brethren, that the joys of the believer are not in the things of this world, but independent of them. Old Job could say, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him."

John Bradford, while in Newgate prison, the night before he was burned at Smithfield, swung himself on his bedpost with great glee, saying to his brother martyr: "Fine shining we shall make to-morrow when the flame is kindled." Was he mad? No. He was rejoicing in the Lord. Do you know the Lord like that? Have you found in Him your all, your everything? A poor negro slave, who was once asked if he was never unhappy, said: "When all de world are saying, 'Dis is my house,' 'Dat is my cottonfield,' I just look up and say, 'Dare is my house, and dare is my Saviour,' and when I own de Lord me tinks I own eberyting." He rejoiced in the God of his salvation. If you are an unhappy Christian it is because you know so little of your Lord. The joys of the worldling are like the flash of a rocket that glares for a moment and is gone. The joy of the true believer is like a star in the Heavens- it abides for life; it abides for ever. "The joy of the Lord is your strength."

Zephaniah

THE BLESSINGS OF THE LORD.

Zephaniah 3:10-20.

The blessings here promised are, of course, for Israel, and will be completely fulfilled when the Lord will bring full deliverance to His waiting people at His Second Coming. But the spiritual import is for God's people in every age. Shall we look at- I. What He hath Done. In the light of our own experience as Christians.

1. He Hath Taken Away thy Judgments (Zephaniah 3:15). The judgment hanging over us like a thick cloud, because of sin. He hath taken away because of the Cross. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus" (Romans 8:1). The judgment is past, and the true light now shineth upon the forgiven soul.

2. He Hath Cast Out thine Enemy (Zephaniah 3:15). He hath dislodged that wicked spirit that still worketh in the children of disobedience. Satan's sphere of operation is now outside the citadel of the justified soul. Therefore keep thy gates closed against him, and yield not to temptation.

3. He is in the Midst of Thee (Zephaniah 3:15). The Mightier Spirit has come to take possession. He shall be with you and in you (John 14:17). Greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world. Ye are more than conquerors through Him. "God is in the midst of her, she shall not be moved." "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age."

II. What He Will Do. God is in the midst of thee.

1. He will Save (Zephaniah 3:17). The salvation of God is a past, present, and future deliverance. One great whole in His eternal purpose. Don't we need a daily salvation from sin and folly, from doubting and fearfulness, from spiritual apathy and ignorance, from self-assertiveness and fruitless testimony? He will save. There is none other Name under Heaven whereby we can be so saved.

2. He will Rejoice Over Thee with Joy (Zephaniah 3:17). Yes, those who are daily being fully saved bring gladness to the Saviour's heart. The Lord will not rejoice over a spoiled thing, or a marred vessel, or a professedly Christian life that is failing to fulfil His high and holy purpose. If your life is a sacrifice of joy unto the Lord you may rest assured that "He will rejoice over thee." "We joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:11).

3. He will Rest In His Love (Zephaniah 3:17). Oh, the sweetness of this thought, that our God can find rest in the greatness of His love for us: that love that never faileth, and is stronger than death. He will, and does, rest in that love that gave His beloved Son to the death for us all. Rest in His love as seen in the willing sacrifice offered by His Son. Rest in the triumph of that love that bringeth salvation to all men. What a resting place this is for our own hearts, now and ever. Rest in His love, not in our own.

III. What We Should Do.

1. Praise His Blessed Name. "Sing, O daughter of Zion. Shout O Israel. Be glad and rejoice with all the heart" (Zephaniah 3:14). "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men" (Psalms 107:15). In that day Israel will be "made a praise among all people of the earth" (Zephaniah 3:20). For many generations they have been a "sneer and a byword" among the nations, but their "crowning day is coming," when their King and the Church's Redeemer shall take unto Himself His right and reign over the whole earth. O Christian, be glad and rejoice with all your heart, for He hath done great things for thee. For he hath delivered in the past, He doth deliver in the present, and will yet deliver (2 Corinthians 1:10). Thanks be unto God.

2. Fear Not. "Fear thou not" (Zephaniah 3:16). There is no place for fearfulness and uncertainty in the Economy of Divine Grace. He who planned the Heavens, and the whole scheme of man's salvation, and the movements of an atom, will not fail His own trusting children. "He hath said, I will never leave thee nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my Helper, I will not fear" (Hebrews 13:5-6).

3. Be Diligent in Service. "Let not thine hands be slack" (Zephaniah 3:16). Slack hands are an evidence of slack hearts. Slackness in God's work is a prevailing weakness among His people. The "go slow" policy is largely practised in the ranks of Christian workers. Whatsoever thy hand finds to do, do it heartily as unto the Lord. Let us seek to serve our gracious Master just as if He were standing by our side looking on, and waiting to receive the finished article.

Haggai

CONSIDER YOUR WAYS.

Haggai 1:3-10.

Thus saith the Lord of hosts, "Consider your ways" (Haggai 1:5). This call comes to His thoughtless, dilatory, procrastinating people Let us hear it as coming to ourselves. Is there not a tendency with us to be slack, and backward in facing facts. Consider your ways- I. In Relation to God's Cause.

1. They said, "The time is not come to build the Lord's house" (Haggai 1:2). How ready we are at times to postpone the things we should do for the cause of Christ. We feel we should consecrate ourselves to God, but "the time is not come," or that we should make an offering to some missionary enterprise but "the time is not come." The time to help on God's work is an ever present opportunity. "Consider your ways."

2. "They dwelt in their own ceiled houses, while His house lay waste" (Haggai 1:4). They were content that their own personal interests were prosperous, while the house of the Lord was in ruins. Just as there are many professing Christians to-day satisfied with material things, while the cause of Christ languisheth for lack of faith and personal effort. "Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?" "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God." "Consider your ways"- II. In View of the Results of your Labours.

1. "Ye have sown much, and bring in little" (Haggai 1:6). We who are ministers of His Word have much need to lay this reminder to heart. There is something sadly wrong where there is much sowing and little reaping. Is it the sower or the seed that is to be blamed? Or is the cause of failure the blighting breath of God's disapproval? For it is "God who giveth the increase." Those who sow much of the seed of the Word of God, and bring in little, have need to "consider their ways," for such results are not in harmony with God's purpose.

2. Ye "Eat and have not enough" (v. 6). This is the spiritual condition of multitudes. They have a keen appetite for the things of this life-wealth, position, honour, and the praise of men. They are constantly eating, but never satisfied. They cannot say, like Esau, "I have enough." Hungry souls, but will not take the true "Bread of Life" that they may have the life which is for ever (John 6:51).

3. Ye "Clothe you, but there is none warm" (v. 6). They wrap themselves up in the flimsy garments of their own righteousness, and complain of the cold. There is nothing like the "Righteousness of God, which is unto all and upon all them that believe," for keeping the heart warm in the cold season of adverse circumstances. Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and His righteousness, and the glow of His Presence will keep you warm.

4. Ye put your "wages in a bag with holes" (v. 6). The wages you have earned by the efforts of your pride and self-seeking become of no practical value to your soul. "The wages of sin is death." Death is a bag with tremendous holes in it. Every ungodly thing will fall through it. "Consider your ways"- III. In View of the Work to be Done.

1. The Work. "Build the house, and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the Lord" (Haggai 1:8). The house of the Lord was the Temple at Jerusalem which stood for worship and testimony. The Church of God, which is the "Body of Christ," stands for worship and witnessing. It is a spiritual temple, built with spiritual stones. That building is now going on, and we are called to be fellow-workmen together with Him (2 Corinthians 6:1, margin). Our work then is to build this holy temple of the Lord in which He will take pleasure and be glorified. If we have been in any way indifferent to this Divine purpose, let us "consider our ways."

2. The Material. "Go up to the mountain and bring wood" (Haggai 1:8). The temple at Jerusalem could not be built with high and noble thoughts or eloquent speakers, they must have timber. "Go, bring wood." The great spiritual temple of which Christ is the Foundation, cannot be built with mere formal prayers, or powerless sermons, or social activities. A spiritual building needs spiritual stones, souls quickened by the Holy Spirit of God, "built upon the foundation of the apostles, fitly framed together, growing unto an holy temple of the Lord" (Ephesians 2:19-22). But where are these living stones to come from? "Go up to the mountains" and bring them. They had to go up, probably to Mount Lebanon, for the wood. We must go up to Mount Calvary if we would secure what is needful for the building of this holy temple of the Lord. To win souls for Christ we need personal cleansing, personal consecration, and a personal enduement of the sacrificial spirit of Jesus. "He that winneth souls is wise." In considering your ways, take time to consider God's ways. THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS.

Haggai 2:6-9.

All agree that the reference here is to the Coming of the Messiah. But the birth of Christ was not heralded by a universal "shaking," but rather, we are told that there was universal peace at the first Christmas. So the reference must be to His Second Appearing. Note, then-

I. The Condition of the Nations at His Second Coming. "I will shake the Heavens, the earth, the sea, and the dry land. And I will shake all nations" (Haggai 2:6-7). Convulsions in nature, and nations being shaken to pieces by internal strife. Our daily newspapers are giving us abundant evidence of this shaking process in operation. "I will overturn, overturn, overturn, until He come whose right it is" (Ezekiel 21:27). We are not warranted to look for a converted world before He comes, but for these signs (see Luke 21:25-28). And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, for your redemption draweth nigh. "Distress of nations," and "Men's hearts failing them for fear" are the warning signals of His near approach.

II. The Desire of All Nations shall Come. But do all nations, as nations, desire the coming of the Lord? There is no evidence of this. This word "desire" is of peculiar significance. According to Dr. Young, the word in the Hebrew only occurs in one other place in the Bible (1 Samuel 9:20), where the sense seems to be, "They desired the things which a wise and mighty ruler would bring." "The desirable things of all nations shall come: and I will fill this house with glory" (Haggai 2:7, r.v.). The nations, as such, do not desire the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, but mutely long for the things which Christ alone can bring.

1. As a Mediator. One to stand between the wrongs of men and the rights of God. His Presence would do more for peace than a "League of all Nations." He will be the God-appointed and final Arbiter in all the controversies of earth.

2. As a Deliverer. "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer" (Romans 11:26). All national enemies have their stronghold in the hearts of men. All that is in the world at enmity with God lies in the human heart. A Deliverer is needed. When we think of the age-long blindness of the Jewish nation, of the problem of racial hatred, of a rapidly growing heathendom, of the growing army of "seducing spirits," and the comparative impo-tency of the Church to win the world for Christ. But when He Comes, "All nations shall bow down before Him."

3. As a Physician. He alone can heal all our diseases: all the running sores in our social, industrial, commercial, and national life. His Presence will be a balm for every wound. No one shall say, "I am sick."

4. As a King. When He came as Redeemer it was in lowliness and weakness; but when He comes as King it will be in kingly fashion-with "great power and glory." Then shall He judge the poor and save the needy. Then shall His Presence be like rain upon the mown grass, and as showers that water the earth. Then in His days shall there be abundance of peace. Then shall the heathen that dwell in the wilderness bow before Him. Then shall His enemies lick the dust. Then shall all kings fall down before Him, and all nations serve Him. Then shall He redeem from deceit and violence. Then shall be given unto Him the gold of Sheba, and daily shall He be praised. Then shall His Name be continued, and all nations shall call Him blessed. Then shall the whole earth be filled with His glory. Amen and Amen (Psa. 72). "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Zechariah

THE UNFIT PREPARED.

Zechariah 3:1-5

Joshua, the high priest, may be regarded as a symbolic character, representing the degraded priesthood as a whole at that time. We may regard it as a parable of how defiled Christians may be restored, and fitted for the Lord's service.

I. The Cause of His Unfitness.

1. He had Filthy Garments (Zechariah 3:3). The garments represent the outward and visible expression of his character. When the outward life-our acts and deeds- condemn our profession, then our garments are unclean, and we become unfit for His holy service. Pure religion, and undefiled before God, is to keep himself unspotted from the world (James 1:27).

2. He was like "A Brand in the Fire" (Zechariah 3:2). Fire, like sin, usually has small beginnings. "By one man sin entered into the world." A brand is a fit subject for the fire. A man whose character has become filthy in the light of God becomes a fit subject for the blackening and consuming power of sin. Like a brand, he is helpless in the fire.

3. He had an Adversary Standing by to Resist (Zechariah 3:1). Satan, our adversary, is always "standing by," ready to resist any efforts that might be made for our deliverance from uncleanness, and salvation from our unfitness for the work of our Lord. "Your adversary the Devil" is pleased with your stained garments, and is a standing enemy to the transforming grace of God.

II. The Manner of His Deliverance. "The angel of the Lord stood by" (Zechariah 3:5). Perhaps the "Angel of the Covenant," the Son of God, to see that Satan was resisted, and that this poor, unclean, and disqualified servant might by the all-sufficient grace of God be cleansed and restored. For here grace reigns.

1. He was Forgiven. "I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee" (Zechariah 3:4). Forgiveness is our first need as sinners and our first need as backsliders. Because all sin is against God. Sin is the transgression of His law and of His love. If we lose out fellowship with God, we lose our power for Him. But we have a God who is ready to pardon (Psalms 86:5).

2. He was Cleansed. "Take away the filthy garments from him" (Zechariah 3:4). How inconsistent it would be for any one claiming to have received the forgiveness of God and yet continuing to wear garments that are filthy in the eyes of their fellow-men. "Put off the old man with his deeds" (Colossians 3:9). Filthy garments are not to be covered over, but taken away.

3. He was Clothed with Change of Raiment (Zechariah 3:4). What a change, when we get rid of our soiled and torn garments, and receive that robe of righteousness which Christ alone can bestow. That righteousness which puts us right with God and right for our priestly office in making intercession in His Name for others. Be clothed with humility.

4. He had A Fair Mitre set upon his Head (Zechariah 3:5). The mitre was the crown of his priesthood, the symbol of Divine authority. All God's cleansed and clothed ones are crowned with honour. The holy anointing oil was put upon the mitred head. "Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured" (Exodus 30:32). We should ever remember that the anointing of the Holy Spirit comes upon what God Himself hath given.

III. The Renewed Promise. After the cleansing and crowning comes the new purpose. There must now be:

1. A New Walk. "Walk in My ways " (Zechariah 3:7). Hitherto the Lord could say, "My ways are not your ways, neither are your ways My ways." Because there was no agreement they could not walk together. But now, cleansed in heart and renewed in mind, the only path to be chosen was the "New and living way," as revealed in His Word: the way of faith and willing obedience to the truth. Jesus Christ said: "I am the Way. Follow Me. He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness" (John 14:6; John 8:12).

2. New Motives. "Thou wilt keep My charge" (Zechariah 3:7). "Thou shalt be faithful unto Me in the work to which you are called." The new man in Christ Jesus has new motive springs in his soul. His chief desire is to honour his Lord, and to keep true to His charge as revealed in His Word, that God might work in him both to will and to do of His good pleasure (Ephesians 2:13). Paul's one motive was: "To me to live is Christ" (Ephesians 1:21). All who are crowned with the mitre of holiness will be able gladly to say: "Not I, but Christ." THE SUPREMACY OF THE SPIRITUAL.

Zechariah 4:1-7.

This vision of the Candlestick, or Lampstand, teaches us that there is in God's purpose a real and vital relationship between spiritual and visible things. We might look at this vision in connection with-

I. The Temple of God as a Witness. The temple was not yet built, but God saw it already as a perfected thing, as the prophet saw the Golden Candlestick-complete with its bowls, and lamps, and pipes; with its oil, and the two olive trees standing by as living, unfailing source of supply for the lamps. This is what the temple of God was to be for His people: a witness for Him. But a lampstand is not all that was needed. There must be lamps and a plentiful supply of oil if light is to shine. Without the oil (emblems of the Holy Spirit) even a golden lampstand might become a stumblingblock. So the message of this vision is: "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts" (Zechariah 4:6). How applicable this truth is to-

II. The Church of God as a Witness. The secret of the Church's power lies in the constant flow of the Holy Spirit. This Spirit, like the oil, comes from the living and abiding Sources, the Father and the Son (John 14:16-18). Let us give heed to Jehovah's warning that this building is not to be reared by mere human might or power, but by His Spirit. In these days there are many substitutes for the power of God's mighty Spirit in doing Christian work. Some trust the power of money, some education, some organisation, some legislation, and some the power of numbers. None of these are to be despised, but none of them, nor all of them together, can do the work or take the place of the Holy Spirit. None of these can convict the world of sin, or righteousness, and of judgment. None of these can quicken a dead soul into newness of life and reveal the things of Christ. None of these can clothe the message of the Gospel with power to win souls for Christ. None of these can be a "Comforter" to the troubled spirit or make intercession for us with unutterable groan-ings. None of these can breathe the breath of life over a valley of dead bones (Ezekiel 37:9). In this great God honouring work it is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing. The secret of the Church's power is the operation of the Holy Spirit. What is true of the Church as a whole is true of the individual life. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto Me" (Acts 1:8). "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19:2).

BEHOLD THE BRANCH.

Zechariah 6:9-15.

We believe that there is here-

I. A Symbolic Representation. Joshua is here again brought before us in a symbolic fashion. In chapter 3 we have seen him in filthy garments, then forgiven, cleansed, and adorned with a fair mitre, and so equipped for the holy office as high priest. Now he has golden crowns, or a composite crown, put upon his head, bestowing on him kingly honours', by which he becomes a true type of the Coming Christ, who would be both Priest and King, after the order of Melchizedek (Hebrews 5:6).

II. A Prophetic Announcement. "Behold the Man whose name is The Branch." "The Branch" is one of the most significant of Messiah's Names. A branch bears the fruit and reveals the character of the tree. Christ as Jehovah's Branch, revealed by His words and deeds the true character of His Father. Jesus said, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches," the fruit-bearing part of the vine. Just as if God should say: "I am the True Vine, and Jesus Christ is the Branch, from which My fruit is found." All the blessings that hang on this Branch for our present and future life are the outcome of the love of the Eternal Father. As a Son, Christ is a true and fruitful Branch of the Godhead. O the multitudes who have sat under the shadow of this Branch with great delight! Note what is said of the Branch as a Person-

1. "He shall grow up out of His place" (v. 12). His place was a lowly one: one of humility, sorrow, shame, rejection, and crucifixion, and burial in a borrowed grave. But He grew up. "Up from the grave He arose." He grew up, and up, till He vanished out of sight and reached the Throne of the Heavens (Luke 24:51). His cause shall yet grow up.

2. "He shall build the Temple of the Lord" (v. 13). He shall build and see the completion of that great spiritual temple, "the Church of God," which will be a witness in the ages to come to the redemptive power of His own precious Blood (Isaiah 53:11).

3. "He shall bear the Glory." The glory of the new temple shall be all on Himself. He who bore the burden of our sins, and of the Cross, shall bear the glory that was to follow (Hebrews 2:9). The government and the glory shall be upon His shoulder (Isaiah 9:6).

4. He "shall Sit and Rule upon His Throne" (v. 13). He had His Cross, and He will have His Throne. He was cast out by rulers on earth, ,but He will yet rule the nations of the earth. His Kingdom shall be the kingdoms of the world (Revelation 11:15).

5. "He shall be a Priest upon His Throne" (v. 13). What a blessed combination, King and Priest, an Enthroned Priest, a King to govern His people and subdue His enemies; a Priest crowned to bear His people's needs before the Throne of His Almighty Father. The King rules, the Priest intercedes.

6. The Counsel of Peace shall be Between Them Both. What is that which lies between the King and the Priest? Literally, it may be difficult to define, but in a spiritual sense, in connection with the character of our Great High Priest, the meaning is by no means obscure to the spiritually enlightened. Christ, our High Priest, offered Himself a Sacrifice for our sins on the Cross. Christ, our Coming King, will yet make His redeemed ones kings and priests to reign on the earth (Revelation 5:9-10). The counsel and message of peace and power comes from between, or belonging to both the Cross and the Throne.

FORMAL WORSHIP AND POWERLESS PRAYERS.

Zechariah 7:4-14.

The Temple at Jerusalem was in process of building, when the question was asked: "Shall I weep and separate myself as I have done these so many years?" (Zechariah 7:3). Here we have the Lord's answer, which is a charge against them of mere- I. Formal Worship. Formality in worship, or trusting in the form, is alas, very prevalent.

1. Hypocritical Fasting. The Lord asks: "When ye fasted and mourned, did ye at all fast unto Me?" (Zechariah 7:5). When they fasted it was not that they might get into closer fellowship with God, but, like the hypocrites in our Lord's time, that they might appear unto men to fast (Matthew 6:16-18). It is possible in many things to deny ourselves for the glory of ourselves in the eyes of others.

2. Selfishness In Eating and Drinking. "Ye eat and drink for yourselves" (Zechariah 7:6). How little do we think that in our ordinary, every-day "eating and drinking" we should do all to the glory of God (1 Corinthians 10:31); thanking Him for such mercies that help to strengthen us for His work. Even at the Lord's table we may eat and drink judgment on our own soul by not discerning the Lord's body (1 Corinthians 11:29). Our worthiness for this is not in our moral goodness, but in our spiritual discernment.

3. Neglect of the Word of the Lord. "Should ye not hear the words which the Lord hath cried?" (Zechariah 7:7). The formalist allows no special value for the Word of the Lord, but is very punctilious about outward acts and ceremonies. He or she may carry a Bible or Prayer Book to Church, but they seldom or never seriously read it, or offer up their own desires unto God (1 John 5:15). Such have need to pray the prayer of Duncan Mathieson: "Lord, stamp Eternity on my eyeballs."

II. Powerless Prayers. There are prayers that are powerless, because God will not listen to them (Zechariah 7:13), and because they come from dishonest and hardened hearts (Zechariah 7:12). Note some of the causes of failure, as recorded here-

1. There was a Lack of Mercy and Compassion. "Shew mercy and compassion every man to his brother" (Zechariah 7:9). Our attitude to our fellowmen has much to do with the helping or hindering of our prayers. "First be reconciled to thy brother, then offer thy gifts" (Matthew 5:24).

We incur God's displeasure if we from the heart forgive not every one his brother (Matthew 18:35). He that loveth God must love his brother also (1 John 4:21).

2. They Oppressed the Helpless. "Oppress not the widow, the fatherless, nor the poor" (Zechariah 7:10). To take advantage of those because of their helplessness is a blatant insult to the God who "delighteth in mercy." Surely that man's religion is in vain (James 1:27).

3. There was Evil Thinking. Imagining evil against another in your heart (Zechariah 7:10). Thoughts are naked things before God. Evil thoughts against your brother will poison your prayers. As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he before God. "The pure in heart shall see God."

4. They Refused to Hearken to the Words which the Lord hath sent (Zechariah 7:12-13). To refuse to hear the voice of His written Word is to close the door of the heart against Heaven's benediction. "If you will not hear My cry, neither will I hear your cry, saith the Lord of Hosts" (Zechariah 7:13).

5. The Final Result of Unanswered Prayers. A grieved God, scattered hopes, bondage and desolation (Zechariah 7:14). "Ye ask and receive not because ye ask amiss that ye may consume what you get upon your own lusts" (James 4:3). The remedy for all this is given us in James 4:8-10.

O JERUSALEM! JERUSALEM!

Zechariah 8:20-23.

Jesus looked on the city and wept over it, saying: "O Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets... how often would I have gathered thy children together: and ye would not. Behold your house is left unto you desolate. Ye shall not see Me henceforth till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord" (Matthew 23:37-39). In this prophecy Zechariah gives us the vision of Jerusalem restored, the Presence of the Lord, and the gathering together of her children.

I. The Centre of Attraction. The Holy City (Zechariah 8:22). Glorious things are spoken of thee, O Jerusalem, the city of the Great King. But the attraction was not the city as such, but the fact that "The Lord Himself had suddenly come to dwell among them" (Malachi 3:1). What is the chief attraction in our modern religious assemblies? Is it the gorgeous building, the fine music, or the eloquent preacher? The true aim would be: "Sirs, we would see Jesus."

II. The Gathering of the People. "Many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord in Jerusalem" (Zechariah 8:22, r.v.). What a stirring among the "dry bones" this will be. The Shiloh in Kingly Power has come, and unto Him shall the gathering of the people be (Genesis 49:10). What a holy, Christ-honouring convocation this will be. Sectarianism will have no place in that day. Paul says: "We beseech you, brethren, by the Coming of our Lord, and by our gathering together unto Him, that ye be not shaken in mind" (2 Thessalonians 2:1).

III. The Purpose of this Gathering. "Let us go speedily to pray before the Lord" (Zechariah 8:21). "They shall come to seek the Lord and to pray" (Zechariah 8:22). In those revival days shall ten men (perhaps Gentiles) take hold of a Jew, saying, "We will go with you for we have heard that God is with you" (Zechariah 8:23). They heard, they believed and obeyed. No one will be able, sneeringly, to say on that day, that this Gospel is a failure. Great cities, peoples, and nations flocking to Him, like doves to their windows. In our own days we have a glorious message for every creature from the lips of this same Lord: "Come unto Me." But with what indifference the tidings is heard. Oh, how much we need the power of the outpoured Spirit, that many may seek the Lord and pray before Him.

IV. The Blessing to Follow. "He shall speak peace unto the nations, and His dominion shall be from sea to sea, even to the ends of the earth" (chap. Zechariah 9:10). He shall speak peace to the nations, as He spoke peace to the winds and waves on the Sea of Galilee; and His peace-speak ing word shall resound to the uttermost parts of the earth. We pray now, "Thy kingdom come." Then His kingdom will have come, and His will being done on earth. Then shall they say: "How great is His goodness," and "How great is His beauty" (chap. Zechariah 9:17). They shall look upon Him whom they have despised and pierced, and mourn; but also be constrained to say, "How great is His beauty." The Christ we trust is the embodiment of the Divine fulness. May we so trust Him that the "beauty of the Lord" may be upon us. Walk worthy of your high calling, knowing that the happy day is coming when "Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty" (Isaiah 33:17). A HEART-RENDING DISCOVERY.

Zechariah 12:10-14; Zechariah 13:1.

Here are four great realities in connection with the Second Coming of the Lord.

I. A Precious Opportunity. "I will pour upon the house of David... the Spirit of Grace and of Supplications" (Zechariah 12:10). This Spirit of Grace can only come from the "God of all Grace," and when this Spirit comes He convinces of sin and the need of making supplications unto God, in view of the great revelation that is to follow. Every revival is an evidence of this. We now are living in the days of the poured out Spirit (Acts 2:16). Days of grace and of personal responsibility. "Behold, now is the accepted time." Days of preparation for the appearing of the Lord.

II. A Great Revelation. "They shall look upon Me whom they have pierced" (Zechariah 12:10). This will be a heartbreaking sight to the house of David, whose rulers, 1900 years ago, despised and rejected, saying, "We will not have this Man to reign over us," and clamoured for His crucifixion. And all these long ages they, as a nation, have been the bitter enemies of Jesus. In that day "this same Jesus" (Acts 1:11) shall appear bearing the marks of His Cross in His hands. And one shall say unto Him: "What are these wounds in Thine hands?" (chap. Zechariah 13:6). Ah, these wounds are the marks of His identity with the Man who was nailed to a Cross, of whom their fathers cried, "Let Him be crucified." Shall that be the time "when a nation shall be born in a day?" Something like this happens when a sin-smitten soul gets its first look of Jesus as their sin-bearer. He died for me. My sins were there at the nailing of Christ to the tree. The wounds in His hands, even in His glorified body (John 20:20) will remain through all Eternity, as a witness to the triumphs of His death.

III. A Real Repentance. "They shall mourn and be in bitterness, as one that mourneth for his only son. Every family shall mourn apart" (Zechariah 12:11-13). Their blindness and unbelief have been great; now they have discovered their awful guilt in murdering their own longed-for Messiah. What a hallowed time this will be in Jerusalem, when in every home there will be the voice of confession, and tears of penitence. While at the same time a deep well of new-found holy joy springing up in their hearts. Their long-looked-for Messiah has come, and brought deliverance (Romans 11:26).

Like Joseph's brethren, they sold Him, then saw Him clothed with power and glory, and then were saved by Him (Acts 5:31). True repentance needs no repentance.

IV. A Great Salvation. "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David... for sin and uncleanness" (chap. Zechariah 13:1). In that day, when "blood and water" flowed from the pierced side of the crucified Christ, a fountain was opened for a whole humanity for sin and uncleanness. "The dying thief rejoiced to see that fountain in his day," and many a living thief has rejoiced at the same vision. When the "Lord comes and sits upon the throne of His father David, and when His Word shall go forth from Jerusalem (Isaiah 2:3), then shall there be a fountain opened for the nation's sin and uncleanness. Meanwhile we rejoice in the truth that the grace of God, that bringeth salvation to all men, hath appeared, teaching us to deny ungodliness and to look for that blessed hope, the glorious appearing of the great God, our Saviour Jesus Christ (Titus 2:11-13). THE SECOND ADVENT AND SOME OF ITS ACCOMPANIMENTS.

Zechariah 14.

In this chapter the prophet sees what might be regarded as the final assurance to that prayer taught by our Lord: "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth" (Matthew 6:10).

I. The Manner of His Coming.

1. It will be Personal. "His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem" (Zechariah 14:4). Some tell us that His feet are not to be taken literally. Might they not as well say that He Himself, or the Mount of Olives, are not to be taken literally? It is "the Lord Himself" that is to descend from Heaven. It is "this same Jesus" that was seen to go up that is "in like manner" coming again (1 Thessalonians 4:16; Acts 1:11). It should be remembered that it was while He was making the descent of the Mount of Olives, riding on an ass, that the multitude of His disciples began to praise God, saying: "Blessed be the King that cometh in the Name of the Lord. Peace in Heaven and glory in the highest" (Luke 19:37-38). What a forecast this is of that day when "His feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives" as King of nations.

2. It will be as King of the Earth. "The Lord shall be King over all the earth" (Zechariah 14:9). In that day there shall be One Lord, and His Name One. There shall be no room for any other when He comes; for in His times He shall show who is the blessed and only Potentate, King of kings, and Lord of lords. To whom be honour and power everlasting. Amen (1 Timothy 6:15-16). It is worthy of note that the term Potentate occurs nowhere else in the Scriptures. In that day the kingdoms of this world will be compelled to acknowledge no ruler save Jesus only. His Name shall be above every name, and at His Name every knee shall bow (Isaiah 45:23). The nations were never in greater need of leadership than they are just now. But when He comes, who is "the Wisdom and the Power of God," this need will be fully met.

3. It will be with All the Holy Ones. "The Lord my God shall come, and all the holy ones with Thee" (Zechariah 14:5, R.V.). While Jesus was teaching on the Mount of Olives, He surely was making reference to this prophecy, when He said: "The Son of Man shall come in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him. Then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory" (Matthew 25:31). Jude also says: "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousands of His saints" (Zechariah 14:14). It is not customary for kings and princes on earth to travel alone when fulfilling a public function. They have a retinue or train of attendants; those who are in perfect accord with them and their mission. So

"the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His mighty angels" (2 Thessalonians 1:7-10), when He shall be glorified in His saints and admired in all them that believe. Glorious as His ten thousand holy and mighty attendants will be, yet He shall still be "the chiefest among ten thousand, the altogether lovely."

II. Results which Follow His Coming. There will be-

1. Perennial Blessing. "In that day living waters shall go out from Jerusalem" (Zechariah 14:8). These living waters are symbolic of something that abundantly satisfies; something ever fresh and abiding. They represent Divine energy in constant activity on behalf of His people. "Everything shall live whither this river cometh" (Ezekiel 47:9). Here is something for which civilisation can offer no substitute. Here is a river that cannot be augmented by any earthly tributary. Like the Gospel of God, man's wisdom and genius can add nothing to its value. The living authoritative Word of the Lord "shall go out from Jerusalem," as streams of blessing from the throne of His glory.

2. Universal Worship. "Every one that is left of all the nations shall worship the King, the Lord of Hosts" (Zechariah 14:16). "Who shall not fear Thee, O Lord, and glorify Thy Name; for all nations shall come and worship before Thee, for Thy judgments are made manifest" (Revelation 15:4). Satan tempted the Lord by offering Him the kingdoms of this world if He would fall down and worship him (Matthew 4:9). But now we see the kingdoms of this world worshipping Him, who submitted to death, defying the Devil and will yet cast him into the abyss (Revelation 20:10). It is our privilege now to worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness (1 Chronicles 16:29). God is a Spirit, they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. God is not to be mocked.

3. Consecration of Common Things. "In that day there shall be upon the bells of the horses, and upon every pot in Jerusalem, holiness unto the Lord." Blessed day, when "holiness unto the Lord" shall be stamped upon the bells of the horses and on the pots and pans of the kitchen, and upon our motor cars, city trams, railway trains, and steamboats. When this motto will be read on the gates of our Houses of Commons and places of industry, and on the front door of every Exchange; when every transaction between man and man shall have this holy seal set upon it. Truly these will be "days of Heaven upon earth," when men, because they love the Lord, will love one another, and do all for the honour of His Holy Name. When poor-houses, asylums, law courts, and prisons will be things of the sorrowful past. If this is to be written on bells and pots, how much more should it be inscribed on the lives of those who have been redeemed by His Blood? Holiness unto the Lord.

Malachi

A MESSAGE TO MESSENGERS.

Malachi 2:1-9.

"And now, O ye priests, this commandment is for you" (Malachi 2:1). A priest was one who ministered before God on behalf of the people. He is also called "The messenger of the Lord" (Malachi 2:7). We who are priests unto God and ambassadors for Christ, let us note- I. The Messenger's Privilege, as the messenger of God.

1. He was to lay to heart what he hears, and to give glory to His Name (Malachi 2:2). Our first business as ministers of His Word is to take the truth revealed to our own hearts, with the object of giving glory to His Name. We are to speak what we do know in our own experience for the honour of His Holy Name.

2. He was a representative of Divine truth. "They shall seek the law at his mouth" (Malachi 2:7). If we are to be worthy of the trust of anxious inquirers, we ourselves must be taught of God, and wear the real garments of the priesthood-humility and godly fear.

II. The Secret of His Power. A powerless ministry is a misrepresentation of this holy order.

1. He is assured of his message. "Ye shall know that I have sent this word unto you" (Malachi 2:4). He can say: "We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen." There was no uncertain sound in his testimony. The waverer receiveth nothing of the Lord (James 1:6-7).

2. He is enjoying the gift of life and peace. "Life and peace, I gave them to him" (Malachi 2:5). It is a joyful possession. Life in Christ and peace by the Blood of His Cross. The joy of the Lord is your strength.

3. He has "the law of truth in his mouth" (Malachi 2:6). When the love of God is in his heart, and the law of grace in his mouth, he is Divinely equipped as a herald of the Gospel of God. Life, peace, truth, are an holy trinity in Christian experience.

4. He has the Presence of God. "He walketh with Me in peace and equity" (Malachi 2:6). Herein lies the secret of all spiritual power. "Lo, I am with you." "Without Me ye can do nothing." For fruitfulness, the presence of God in the life is as needful as the presence of the sunshine on the fields.

5. He had good success. "He did turn many away from iniquity" (Malachi 2:6). By their fruits ye shall know them. He is wise that winneth souls. This is not the wisdom the world gives, but that which cometh by the presence of the Holy Spirit of God.

II. The Cause of His Failure. There was failure, even after such high, holy, and happy experiences. God has made no provision for our failure; but, alas, it comes, and always through man's own folly and waywardness. "How are the mighty fallen?"

1. He departed from the truth. "Ye have departed out of the way", (Malachi 2:8). To depart out of His way and will is to go outside the sphere of His purpose and blessing. It is easy to depart from His way when our thoughts begin to wander after selfish interests.

2. He Corrupted the Covenant (Malachi 2:8). Made the Word of none effect by false interpretation. We corrupt the Gospel when we make it conditional upon human merit, or that the grace of God makes any allowance for continuing in sin (Romans 6:1).

III. The Sad Result of His Failure. Such is the fall of a backslider who has been used of God.

1. His Blessings were Blighted. "I will curse your blessings" (Malachi 2:2). The gifts and graces divinely bestowed became blighted with God's disapproval, even the seed (Word) which he sows becomes as a rotten thing (Malachi 2:3). His life becomes barren and unfruitful, like the branch separated from the vine.

2. He Causeth others to Stumble, "Ye have caused many to stumble at the law" (Malachi 2:8). How many there are who stumble at the Gospel because of failure in professing Christians, especially if they are preachers. Iniquity in the Christian life is always a stumbling-block (Ezekiel 7:10). The only remedy for the stumbling-block is to take it out of the way.

3. He is Despised by the People. "Therefore have I also made you contemptible and base before the people" (Malachi 2:9). He preached to others, now he is a castaway. Let us give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should slip away from them (Hebrews 2:1, margin).

FULNESS OF BLESSING.

Malachi 3:7-17.

Malachi was the last of the prophets. The times in which he lived, about 400 years before Christ, were typical of any modern community (see Malachi 3:13-14).

I. The Condition of Blessing. There was-

1. The Divine Challenge. "Prove Me now herewith, if I will not open the windows of Heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it" (Malachi 3:10). What a promise this is, and what a challenge to our faith. "Prove me." "Put Me to the test, and see if I will not do this for you." Don't let the greatness of the blessing make your faith to stagger. Remember that He who hath promised is the Almighty and Unchangeable Lord (Malachi 3:6). What He hath promised He is well able to perform.

2. The Conditions Specified. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse" (Malachi 3:10). The tithe was the tenth of the increase, given for the priests who served in the house of the Lord. It was reckoned as belonging to God. They were to "render to God the things that are God's." But we as Christians are not promised fulness of blessing if we give Him a tenth of our increase, although even this will bring blessing into the soul. We are called upon to give to God that which belongs to Him. "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price" (1 Corinthians 6:20). God is not satisfied when we give Him only part of what is His own (Acts 5:2). If we are to have the "open windows of Heaven" and the "poured out blessing," we must present ourselves unto God. This is our reasonable service (Romans 12:1). "Yield yourselves unto God as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments unto God" (Romans 6:13). We can only prove Him when we have fulfilled His conditions.

II. The Evidences of Being Blessed.

1. "They Feared the Lord and Thought upon His Name" (v. 16). Reverential fear is a blessed state of mind, for it leads to a deeper thinking into the preciousness of His Holy Name, that Name which is above every name. O fear the Lord, ye saints of His.

2. "They Spake often One to Another." We are not told what they said, but if they were thinking of the wondrous Name of the Lord, they were surely speaking of Him. Herein lies the secret and joy of Christian fellowship. They had a common cause.

3. They Had the Presence of the Lord. "The Lord hearkened and heard" (Malachi 3:16). His promise was fulfilled: "Where two or three are gathered together in My Name, there am I in the midst of them" (Matthew 18:20). To the mere onlooker nothing happened. But the Lord was "listening in." We have open ears when we hear others speaking of us, and mentioning our name. So the Lord hearkens when we talk of Him. But the Lord is no idle listener. A "book of remembrance" was written, a memorandum was kept. For this thing so precious to Him shall never be forgotten. This thing may be written in that other book mentioned in Revelation 20:12. All spiritual values are associated with His Name.

4. They had the Lord's Comforting Assurance. "They shall be Mine when I make up My special treasure" (Malachi 3:17). "They thought of Me when in the midst of a perverse people, who said, It is vain to serve the Lord" (Malachi 3:14). "I will think of them in that day when I gather out all that is worth saving from a wrecked and sinking world." What an encouragement we have here for the prayer and fellowship meeting, for quiet seasons of meditation. The Lord knoweth the thoughts and intents of the heart. His special treasure is the Church, redeemed by His own Blood. "They shall be Mine."

TWO GREAT DAYS.

Malachi 4:1-3.

In these verses we think we see a brief prophetic account of two aspects of the Lord's Second Appearing. Both aspects are seen in 2 Thessalonians 1:7-10.

I. The Awful Day of Testing. "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as a furnace" (Malachi 4:1, R.V.). This will be the day of the searching power of His consuming presence, when He shall "discern between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not" (chap. Malachi 3:18). A day that when "all the proud and all that do wickedly shall be stubble." Stubble in a furnace will stand a poor chance of escape. In this day it will not be man's work only that shall be tried by fire (1 Corinthians 3:13), but the man himself. "All the proud." "Who shall stand when He appeareth, for He is like a refiner's fire" (chap. Malachi 3:2). It is Himself that is the "furnace," in the blazing holiness of His righteousness. "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord" (2 Thessalonians 1:8-9). How should this awfully solemn fact effect us in our service for Him and them? Surely if we realised it, all coldness and indifference would be melted by pity.

II. The Joyful Day of Deliverance. (The Lord's relationship to His own people.) "But unto you that fear My Name, shall the sun of righteousness arise" (Malachi 4:2). The sun also is a "furnace," but oh, how different its influence. "But unto you" He shall arise "with healing in His wings." The sun is a brilliant symbol of Christ in its mystery, majesty, and glorious might; a fit emblem of the inexhaustible resources of the Son of God, who is the "Sun of Righteousness." Then truly "The Son shall rule the day, when, like the sun-

1. Christ will be the Centre of a Great System. The sun is the centre of the solar system, bound together by the law of gravitation. When Christ, as the "Sun of Righteousness," shall arise upon the earth, "with the brightness of His Coming" (2 Thessalonians 2:8), He shall be the centre of the greatest and most glorious system this world has ever known, bound together by the law of love. He who is the Centre of all creation will subdue all things to Himself (1 Php_3:21; 1 Corinthians 15:28). Like the sun-

2. Christ will be the Light of the World. Jesus said: "I am the Light of the World," but now men "love the darkness rather than the light, because their deeds are evil;" but then, when He rules in righteousness, as King, all nations shall come to His light (Isaiah 9:2; Isaiah 60:19). All the blessings the sun brings us are emblems of the gifts which Christ will bring to the world in His Day: light and life, health and healing, warmth and fruitfulness, beauty and gladness. What a world, perpetually basking in the sunshine of Divine favour. The world for Christ.

Expository Outlines: New Testament

Matthew

THE TEMPTATION.

Matthew 4:1-11.

The word "tempt" has two different meanings, which come from two different sources: (1) To try, as God tempted Abraham; (2) to entice, as Satan tempted Christ. God's trials are all for good, Satan's always for evil. Concerning the Temptation, notice-

I. The Time. It was after the heavens had opened, and the Holy Spirit had come (chap. Matthew 3:16-17). It was after Paul had been caught up to the third heavens that the messenger of Satan was sent to buffet and try him. Note the order: (1) Owned by the Father, "This is My Son." (2) Anointed by the Spirit. (3) Tempted by the devil. Some know little of the tempting because they know little of the anointing.

II. The Place. The wilderness. Adam was tempted in the garden, surrounded by every outward comfort. Christ in the lonely desert, among the wild beasts. All Christ's battles had to be fought alone-alone in the wilderness with the devil; alone in the garden with the cup of death; alone on the Cross, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" (Matthew 27:46). Soul battles are all solemn.

III. The Tempted One. Jesus, the Son of God. This shows how truly human Jesus was. God cannot be tempted. He was tempted in "all points, like as we are" (Hebrews 4:15). But just as highly musical ears feel more keenly painful discords, so much more must He, the pure and undefiled, have felt the force of this trial. The more intense our devotion to God the more intense will we feel the approach of sin.

IV. The Nature. It could only be from without, because Satan could find nothing in Him. It was threefold:

1. To Self-Satisfaction. "Command these stones to be made bread." The answer of the hungry Christ shows that there is something more precious than bread-the Word of God. Eternal life is in it.

2. To Self-Destruction. "Cast Thyself down." The devil's elevations are all with the view of self-destruction. Pride goeth before a fall. Satan seeks to destroy in every Christian their sense of divine sonship.

3. To Self-Glorification. "Worship me." I will give you all. He suggests an easy way whereby He might possess the kingdom of this world without dying for it. An unredeemed world Christ would not fake. Beware of the devil's easy paths.

V. The Tempter. The devil. He is a person, a person of great power. Was the whole world his to give? Why did Christ call him "the prince of this world?" (John 12:31). Is he not the god of this world? Does the whole world not lie in the lap of the wicked one? The world will be Christ's when He comes again.

VI. The Fight of Faith. The means of Christ's warfare, the Word of God. "It is written." He trusted in God. As a tempted man He fell back on the divine promise. Where else can we go? What else need we do? Fight the good fight of faith.

VII. The Victory. "The devil leaveth Him, and angels came and ministered unto Him." His faith is rewarded with strength from Heaven. The Christian's position, like Christ's, is between the love of God and the hate of the devil. Greater is He that is for us.

CHARACTERISTICS OF CHRISTIANS.

Matthew 5:1-12.

He who spoke in times past by the prophets now opened His mouth. These first words of the Great Teacher, come from God, reveal the way of happiness-not through doings, but being. Happiness is found not in what we have, but in what we are. This blessedness belongs to every Christlike character.

I. The Christian's Character.

1. He is Poor in Spirit (Matthew 5:3). Not spiritually poor, because that through the poverty of Christ be is made rich. The humble spirit is indwelt by the God of grace and glory (Isaiah 57:15).

2. He Mourns (Matthew 5:4). Not for fear of missing the kingdom, but over everything that hinders his greater growth into the image of Christ; over the sins of others; over the enemies of the Cross.

3. He is Meek (Matthew 5:5). He would not be like his Master if he was not meek and lowly (Matthew 11:29). Not rendering railing for railing, but contrariwise (see Matthew 5:39). A peculiar people.

4. He Hungers and Thirsts (Matthew 5:6). Not after the pleasures of sin and worldliness, but after righteousness- righteousness unto God These cravings are the natural desires of the new man.

5. He is Merciful (Matthew 5:7). He delights to show mercy because he himself has had great mercy showed him Christ prayed for His enemies, so does he.

6. He is Pure in Heart (Matthew 5:8). His heart is right with God. Wholly yielded up to His holy will. Delighting in all that is pleasing to Him. Cleansed by the blood, and open to the light.

7. He Makes Peace (Matthew 5:9). He loves peace because he has the peace of God ruling in his heart. He seeks to make peace by beseeching men to be reconciled to God.

8. He Suffers Persecution (Matthew 5:10-11). If any man will live godly he must suffer persecution. "They persecuted Me; they will persecute you." Notice that these characteristics present us with a true portrait of the life of Jesus Christ. Are we like Him?

II. The Christian's Prospects. Each Christ-like characteristic, you observe, has its own special reward. It is always so.

1. He Shall be Comforted (Matthew 5:4). This is the hour and power of darkness. Being poor in spirit the kingdom is sure, and all the comforts of the kingdom will yet be given.

2. He Shall Inherit (Matthew 5:5). The saints have not much of the earth just now, but when He comes they shall inherit it (Revelation 20:6). There is a good time coming (Daniel 7:22).

3. He Shall be Filled (Matthew 5:6). "They shall hunger no more." We shall be satisfied when we awake in His likeness. Filled with all the fulness of God. Present hunger is the evidence of future filling. There is satisfaction for every holy longing.

4. He Shall Obtain Mercy (Matthew 5:7). The mercy of God, which covered his sin, can cover every fault and failing. Blameless.

5. He Shall See God (Matthew 5:8). Because his heart is pure he is an holy one (Hebrews 12:14). Holy eyes see holy things; a holy heart shall see a holy God. Holiness is capacity for God.

6. He Shall be Called a Child of God (Matthew 5:9). The world says, "pestilent fellows." Christ says, "Sons of God." Every one like the children of a king (Judges 8:18).

7. He Shall be Rewarded (Matthew 5:12). "Great is your reward in Heaven." Reviled on earth; rewarded in Heaven with an eternal weight of glory (2 Corinthians 4:17). Let not the fear of man rob you of your reward.

CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE.

Matthew 5:13-16.

Salt and light represent what every Christian should be- a penetrating and illuminating influence, something both to be seen and felt, a power to attract and transform. Notice the- I. Twofold Sphere.

1. The Earth. "Ye are the salt of the earth." The earth is the place of the curse, and may represent the heart of man as the seat of his affections and the source of his desires "Thy will be done in earth" (Matthew 6:10)-in the heart of man as in Heaven Purify the spring (2 Kings 2:21).

2. The World. "Ye are the light of the world." The world here may mean the sphere of man's mind and thought. Apart from the light of revelation, this is a world of spiritual darkness. "No light in them."

II. Twofold Action.

1. It Permeates Like Salt. Invisible, but effectual in its working. Must first get into touch with the corruptions of ungodliness before it can heal. It represents unconscious influence.

2. It Illuminates Like Light. This is something to be seen. The light is not something put on. It is the outcome of a flame kindled The Christian's life is the light. The life is the light of men. If there is abundance of life there will be a brightness of light. A living Christ within will make a steady light without.

III. Twofold Nature.

1. The salt must have savour. Salt is good, but savourless salt is good for nothing. The mere name and form without this is powerless. The savour is an emblem of the Holy Spirit. We may bear the name Christian and have the form of godliness, but without the Holy Ghost we are savourless salt,

"good for nothing." "Have salt in yourselves" (Mark 9:50). Salted with the fire of the Holy Spirit. It is the savour that is precious and powerful. "Be filled with the Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18).

2. The candle must have light. Here again the mere name and form are useless without the living flame. A candle must be lighted; it cannot light itself. God hath shined into our hearts, giving us the light. "Thou hast lighted my lamp, O Lord."

IV. Twofold Purpose.

1. To Salt the Earth. If Christians lose their savour, wherewith shall it be salted? If the world does not see Christ in the Christian, where will it see Him? If the ungodly don't feel the power of Christ's presence in the actions of His people, how will they feel it?

2. To Glorify the Father (Matthew 5:16). The light is to shine, not that men may praise the light, but that they may be led to trust and glorify the Father. Let your light so shine.

V. Twofold Hindrance.

1. In Losing the Savour. "If the salt lose its savour, it is thenceforth good for nothing," trodden under foot of men. Sad picture of a powerless Christian! A withered branch. Samson was savourless salt when the Spirit departed from him (Judges 16:20). Quench not the Spirit.

2. In Hiding the Light. If God hath shined in our hearts, it is to give the light (2 Corinthians 4:6). Let it shine forth in a bold, steady testimony for Christ. The fear of man is often the bushel that hides the light, or the bed of selfish ease. Remember that a covered light may be suffocated. THE TWO WAYS.

Matthew 7:13-14.

There are only two religions in the world-that which has emanated from the heart of man, and that which has come out of the heart of God. The one is only an imagination, the other is a revelation. In these verses we notice two gates, two ways, two companies, and two ends. Specially observe two ways-

I. The Way into Life. What does this life mean? "The gate" suggests the idea of a city, a place of safety, fellowship, and plenty. The life which is in Christ is a life of-(1) Safety from sin and wrath; (2) of fellowship with God; (3) of satisfaction in the fulness of God. There must be a passing from death into life.

1. It is an Open Way. It may be strait, but, thank God, it is not shut. "Behold, I have set before thee an open door" (Revelation 3:8). This way was closed up by sin, and fenced up by the law. Christ opened it through bearing our sins and becoming obedient unto death. It is a new and living way consecrated (set apart) for us. There are no back doors into the kingdom of God (John 14:6).

2. It is a Narrow Way. "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way." Perhaps the gate on the side-walk may be referred to, where even camels were sometimes dragged through after stripping them of everything. Men needs a stripping to enter here. Self-righteousness is not admitted. This gate is as narrow as the new birth. The straitness is not with God, but in man's utter unfitness. If the way be narrow it leads to a large place.

3. It is the Way of the Few. "Few there be that find it," because few there be that seek it. "Seek, and ye shall find." There are few on it, because many shun it, preferring the darkness to the light, because their deeds are evil. Some put off, others hope to stumble into it by chance. This is no chance work. "Strive to enter." "Ye shall find Me when ye shall seek Me with all your heart" (Matthew 6:33).

II. The Way of Destruction. The word "destruction" here means "loss," and is awfully significant. It is the loss of that which alone can save and satisfy. Like a watch losing its mainspring, like a plant losing the earth from its roots, a man losing all his privileges and hopes. This way is:

1. A Broad Way. It suits the carnal mind. There is plenty of room in it for all the sinner's likes and pleasures. The world, the flesh, and the devil have full scope here. It is broad enough for the staggering drunkard, for the dishonest and the unclean, for the scoffer and the proud and haughty religious formalist.

2. A Crowded Way. "Many go in thereat." It is easy going downhill. Generally man's first choice is the "broad way." The heart of man is deceitful and wicked, and naturally prefers the pleasures of sin to the fellowship of God. Some are being pushed along in the crowd without any serious thought. All are without God and without hope.

3. A Fatal Way. There is but one only possible end to this way-"Destruction." As sure as a stone sinks in the sea will the man perish who loves and follows sin. "The wages of sin is death" (Romans 6:23). "Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die?" (Ezekiel 31:11). "Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death" (Jeremiah 21:8). Choose life. THE TWO BUILDERS.

Matthew 7:24-27.

The sermon on the mount begins with the blessedness of the poor in spirit, and ends with the ruin of the proud, self-confident professor. The end of this sermon is the end of all Christian teaching. Life and death, righteousness to those who believe and obey, ruin to those who do not obey.

I. A Suggestive Comparison. He that heareth and doeth is likened to a wise man. The connection between hearing and doing is very vital. Those who have the blood-sprinkled ear must also have the blood-sprinkled foot (Leviticus 8:24). These sayings of Christ are for the doings of His people. The hearer only is a fool. He is like a man taking shelter in the plans of a building instead of in the house. The hearer only is like a cake unturned; like a man rowing with one oar. If the hearing does not affect the fingers and the feet it profits nothing.

II. A Common Need. A house. A house is one of the common necessities of man. "A wise man built his house." There is responsibility resting upon every man with regard to his own house. A house is:

1. A Place of Shelter. Man needs a hiding-place from the storm and the tempest of Jehovah's wrath against sin. The wrath of God abideth upon every unbeliever (John 3:36).

2. A Place of Rest. A resting-place is needed from the busy, bustling, bothering cares and sorrows of this present life. A man might as soon find heat in an iceberg as rest in disobedience to the sayings of the Son of God.

3. A Place of Fellowship. Man's needs will never be fully met until he is brought into fellowship with the Father and the Son.

III. An Indispensable Prerequisite. A Rock. Before a house of safety can be got the Rock must be found. "That Rock was Christ" (1 Corinthians 10:4). The Rock is within the reach of all if men would only dig deep enough (Luke 6:48). This Rock is strong enough to bear all. None doubt their foundation who build on Christ. Until He is found all building is vain and ruinous.

IV. A Threefold Trial. Rain, floods, winds beat upon the house. The rain tries the roof, the floods the foundations, the winds the whole structure. Every stone built on this Rock, that is, every deed done for Christ's sake, every act of trust in Him will be tried by the threefold enemy of the soul-the world, the flesh, and the devil. The foundation holds.

V. A Presumptuous Effort. Building on the sand. This man is wise enough to know that he needs a place of shelter, but fool enough to believe that he can have it without getting into touch with the great, eternal Rock. He has no faith in what is out of sight. His whole work is a matter of appearance. What a sad picture of all those who trust their works without having a grip of the invisible Christ (Hebrews 11:27). The life may be right and beautiful in the sight of others, yet have no connection with Christ the Rock.

VI. An Irreparable Mistake. It fell, and great was the rain of it (see Luke 6:49). It fell in the time of his greatest need. He hoped it would save him but hoping, without Christ, is vain and ruinous. The more beautiful the life and works are, without Christ the foundation, the more dangerous and fatal. The greater the house the greater the ruin. Take heed where ye build (1 Corinthians 3:11).

THREE SUGGESTIVE ATTITUDES OF JESUS.

Matthew 11:20-28.

I. Toward the Wilful Impenitent. "Woe unto thee" (Matthew 11:21),

1. Think of their Privileges. What mighty works were done among them! How many miracles had they witnessed! And Christ Himself had lived among them. What are your privileges? Have you not seen His mighty works in others? Christ only knows the awful consequences of rejection.

2. Think of their Doom. "Woe unto you." Our responsibility will be according to our privileges.

II. Toward the Purpose of God. "I thank Thee" (Matthew 11:25). He thanks the Father for two things:

1. For Hiding these Things from the Wise. Much divine wisdom is this. What would unrenewed men do with these holy things? Pearls before swine.

2. For Revealing them unto Babes. To those willing to receive, to trust, and be thankful (Matthew 18:3).

III. Toward the Heavy-laden Sinner. "Come unto Me." The sovereignty of God is no excuse for the sinner's delay.

1. The Invited. (1) Labourers-those trying to earn rest by their works, a poor-paying business. (2) Burdened ones-those staggering, helplessly and hopelessly, under the weight of sin and guilt.

2. The Promise. "I will give you rest." He gives the labourer rest by doing the work for him. "It is finished" (John 19:30). He gives the burdened ones rest by carrying their load. He bore our sins in His own body.

GREAT FAITH.

Matthew 8:5-10.

All men have not faith; some have no faith (Mark 4:40); some have little faith (Matthew 6:30). This Centurion was one who had great faith. Those who have faith are rich. Faith will buy anything from God. This man's faith was-

I. Great when you think of who he was. He was a Roman Centurion-not a Jew, familiar with the Scriptures. How would his faith grow so great if he had not believed all that he heard of the truth concerning Jesus? Great faith is often fostered in the midst of the greatest difficulties. Poor circumstances are not specially favourable for poor faith. If your faith would grow exceedingly it must be exercised abundantly.

II. Great when you think of the occasion of it. His slave was sick. He believed that Christ's compassion was deep enough and broad enough to reach the poor and the ignorant. Not like the Pharisee (Matthew 9:11). Great faith always brings the little and the disputed things to Jesus. Little faith never carries little troubles to God. It takes great faith to bring the trifling details of life to Him in prayer. Beware of the little foxes.

III. Great when you think of the need mentioned. "His servant was sick of the palsy, grievously tormented." Afflicted both in body and soul, a helpless incurable, as far as human skill and power were concerned. But his faith in Jesus surmounted all. Nothing is too hard for Him. Great faith lays hold on the greatness of Christ. The power of Christ is sufficient for all the emergencies of a believer.

IV. Great when you think of the request made. "Speak the word only." No visit asked; no means trusted. All his desire will be met with His word only. It is always so. Great faith asks for no signs, but is satisfied with the promise alone, knowing that He is faithful.

V. Great when you think of the argument used, "I am not worthy; I am a man under authority." Great faith is always humble, for it sees so much grace and goodness in Jesus that proud, boastful self is ashamed. "Speak the word only, and the demon and disease will go as quickly as my servant obey me." Great faith is the most childlike of all. "Lord, increase our faith."

VI. Great when you think of the results that followed. "As thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee" (Matthew 8:13). His simple but large-hearted faith was answered at once, and answered to the full. There was nothing left to be desired. So wonderfully gracious is our loving Lord He never sends the hungry empty away.

VII. Great when you think of the commendation given. "I have not found so great faith." Jesus knows exactly the measure of our faith. What a precious thing it is in His sight! He does love to be trusted. He is so pleased with it that He saves all who believe (Acts 13:39). "Without faith it is impossible to please Him" (Hebrews 11:6). Give Him this pleasure.

EVIL: ITS NATURE AND REMEDY.

Matthew 8:28-33.

This incident has been sneeringly called "The pig affair." But in these two demon-possessed men we have some of the most terrible and heart-humbling revelations that we have in all the Bible. Look at evil as personified in these wholly-possessed ones.

I. Evil may be Closely Connected with Man. These men were "possessed" (Matthew 8:28). Evil takes possession of the sinner, controls his actions and thoughts, and completely masters his whole life. Sin is an awful tyrant, a perfect despot; it claims and affects every power and faculty of the being.

II. Evil is Allied with Death. "They dwelt among the tombs" (Matthew 8:28). They preferred the company of the dead to that of the living. They loved darkness rather than the light. Such is the effect of an evil heart. The things that holy men dread are loved. The company of those who are dead in sin is chosen rather than the company of those who are alive unto God. They love death; separation from God.

III. Evil is the Enemy of Liberty. "No man could pass that way" (Matthew 8:28). Sin always hinders true liberty. There are many still who are afraid to pass the tomb (grave) because of evil. As long as there is unforgiven sin in the heart there will be fear. Perfect love casteth out fear.

IV. Evil Shuns the Presence of Christ. "What have we to do with Thee?" (Matthew 8:29). All living in sin, and satisfied with it, hate the holiness of God. They will have nothing to do with Christ, yet they are afraid of being tormented by Him. They can see no hope in the Holy One of God.

V. Its Influence is only Toward Destruction. When the demons entered the swine they did with them what they were trying to do with the men-drove them quickly into destruction. Evil always chooses the shortest and steepest way to ruin. It is easy running downhill.

VI. Its Power is too Great for Man. Those possessed ones had no power of resistance whatever; they could do nothing to save themselves. No more can ye. Sin, like a poison, becomes an integral part of the being; it cannot be shaken off like a viper.

VII. Its only Cure is to be Cast Out. It cannot be tamed or reformed, Christ said to the demons, "Go." The mighty, never-failing, cleansing Word of the Son of God alone can change the heart and separate the sin from the soul, as the demons were separated from the men. He speaks, and it is done.

VIII. Its Conqueror is often Unwelcomed. "They besought Him to depart out of their coasts" (Matthew 8:34). Those who don't want victory over their sins don't want the Lord Jesus. If you want sin put away, receive the Lord Jesus. If you want to die in your sins, let Him depart, and He will go. Welcome the sin-separating Saviour. THE CALL OF THE PUBLICAN.

Matthew 9:9-13.

Great multitudes followed Jesus (chap. Matthew 8:1), but He knew the worthlessness of mere popularity. This river of public favour would soon dry up. "He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Matthew 20:28). Let us see here the-

I. Call of Grace. "Jesus said unto him, Follow Me" (Matthew 9:9). If Christ had been seeking popularity among men He never would have called a hated tax-gatherer as a personal friend. He cannot but be true to Himself. Grace came by Jesus Christ. As water seeks the lowest place, so grace seeks the neediest soul. He saves, not because we are rich, or righteous, but because we are sinners. All men are at liberty to follow Him, but He calls sinners to repentance.

II. Obedience of Faith. "He arose and followed Him" (Matthew 9:9). Matthew may have known and heard much about Jesus before this. Now the call comes for instant decision for Christ. It is possible to believe much about Him, and yet in heart not to be one with Him. "He left all and followed Jesus." Following is the evidence of faith. Discipleship may often mean "a leaving all." It was so with Abraham. He believed God and went out.

III. Proof of Love. "He made Him a great feast" (Luke 5:29). "Jesus sat at meat in his house." Feasting and following Christ have a wonderful heart-opening effect. It is a blessed experience-Jesus resting with us in the home of the heart. "If any man open the door I will come in." Jonathan loved David, and stripped himself (1 Samuel 18:4). Let us lay all at His feet-this gives refreshing to His soul.

IV. Place of Hope. "Many came and sat down with Him" (Matthew 9:10). The place of hope for sinners is at the feet of Jesus. There is room and welcome for all here. There is mercy with Him. Sit down with Him in His rejection, and you will sit with Him in His resurrection glory.

V. Manifestation of Pride. "The Pharisees said, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?" (Matthew 9:11). Why did they not ask the Master Himself? The self-righteous never like to plead their own cause before God. Pride blinds the eyes from seeing the great depths of divine grace. Jesus came to seek and to save the lost. Are you a seeker or a faultfinder?

VI. Condition of Need. "The whole need not a physician, but they that are sick" (Mark 2:17). The Pharisees, like thousands still, were not sin-sick, but self-satisfied. Such have no room for Jesus. Like the Laodiceans, they have need of nothing; or, if they do want Christ, it is as a teacher, not as a Saviour. Christ's work is a great remedy which can only have effect where there is disease.

VII. Purpose of Christ. "I will have mercy, and not sacrifice" (Matthew 9:13). He will have mercy on sick sinners. He will not have the sacrifice of the self-righteous. Take the place of the guilty, then you come in for His mercy. Ye who would be saved by your works "Go and learn what this meaneth."

COME, TAKE, LEARN.

Matthew 11:28-30.

This invitation of Christ implies His deep, conscious fitness to bless all men in all ages. He knows every need of man, and He knows, as none else can, the great and holy claims of God. Put these two sayings together, "All things are delivered unto Me of My father" (Matthew 11:27). "Come unto Me" (Matthew 11:28).

I. We are Invited to Rest. What an opportunity for a sin-burdened heart! Jesus gives rest from guilt, from the fear of death, and the dread of judgment. He gives it; He does not sell it. He does not give it as a prescription, but as an actual, conscious possession. This rest is for heavy-laden ones, whether they be saints or sinners. Weary workers, disappointed and downcast because of fruitlessness, hear Him say unto thee, "Come unto Me." Everything that is a burden to us should bring us to Christ for rest and relief. Are you feeling your task heavy upon your heart and strength? Take advantage of this loving offer.

II. We are Invited to Serve. "Take My yoke upon you." There are different yokes. Yokes we put upon ourselves, and Satan's yoke. What is Christ's yoke? It is the yoke He Himself willingly took on, the yoke of His Father's will. "I delight to do Thy will, O My God" (Psalms 40:8). To take on this yoke means a life of entire submission to the work and will of God. Paul had this yoke on when he prayed men, in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God. The yoke of Christ means yoked with Christ, co-workers together with Him. We take it upon us when we come to the help of the Lord against the mighty. Every soul who has received rest from Him may find a life of restful activity in His yoke. His yoke is easy to the willing mind; His burden is light to the loving heart. The yoke of service is not thrust upon us; we are invited to take it. It will be to our eternal loss if we do not.

III. We are Invited to Learn. "Learn of Me." To learn of Christ we must get close to Him. To get close to Him we must needs be yoked with Him. The yoke of service comes before spiritual wisdom. We learn best while in the yoke. Paul had to cry out, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6) before he received his divine commission. In the school of suffering and testimony for Christ the deeper things of God are learned. The reason why many Christians make no progress in grace and heavenly-mindedness is because they are ashamed of Christ's yoke; and not keeping company with Him, they cannot be taught by Him. We enter the school of Christ when we enter the yoke of Christ. There are many branches of learning here. With Him we learn to be patient in suffering, to walk humbly, to trust implicitly, to love intensely, and to rejoice exceedingly (Ephesians 4:20-23). THE CHARACTER OF CHRIST.

Matthew 12:18-21.

In these verses we have a beautiful and correct photograph of our Divine Lord. Taught by the Spirit of God, their clear eyes saw Him distinctly, although afar off. Sirs, if ye would see Jesus, look at Him standing before you here as-

I. The Chosen One. "My Servant whom I have chosen." This choice was made before the foundation of the world (Ephesians 1:4). It was a choice constrained by infinite grace-chosen as the Lamb to be slain. Although men disallowed Him, He is still the chosen of God, and precious. Let us fall in with God's choice.

II. The Obedient One. "Behold My Servant." This is the Servant who could neither fail nor be discouraged (Isaiah 42:4). He delighted to do His Father's will. He said at the beginning of His service, "I must be about My Father's business" (Luke 11:49); and at the close, "I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do" (John 17:4). "He was obedient unto death" (Php_2:8), because His love was stronger than death.

III. The Beloved One. "My Beloved, in whom My soul is well pleased." There is strong consolation for us here; in that Christ was, as the Servant of God and in the likeness of men, well-pleasing to the soul of Jehovah. It opens wide the door whereby we may be accepted in the Beloved.

IV. The Anointed One. "I will put My Spirit upon Him." At Jordan this Scripture was fulfilled when the Spirit as a dove came upon Him. There and then He was sealed by God the Father (John 6:27), owned and fitted for the great work He had to do. This every Christian needs.

V. The Revealing One. "He shall show judgment." The truth is made known through Him, because He is the Truth. To come into contact with Christ is to come into the judgment (truth) of God, both concerning ourselves and Himself. Christ as the wisdom of God speaketh the words of God (John 3:34).

VI. The Lowly One. "He shall not strive nor cry." How could He, when He had committed Himself unto Him who was able to keep. He never sought the favour of men for His own sake. "I am meek and lowly in heart" (Matthew 11:29). When a Christian strives and cries it is an evidence of weakness and unbelief. "The servant of the the Lord must not strive" (2 Timothy 2:24).

VII. The Sympathising One. "A bruised reed shall He not break, and smoking flax shall He not quench. He will not break the bruised reed of a weak, feeble, musicless Christian life. In tenderness and patience He will bind up. He will not quench the smoking flax of a flickering, powerless, Christian testimony, but will pour in a fresh supply of the Spirit of Grace. The lack of oil (Spirit) makes a smoky testimony.

VIII. The Conquering One. "He shall send forth judgment with victory." His truth shall triumph. "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied" (Isaiah 53:11).

IX. The Trustworthy One. "In His Name shall the Gentiles trust." His Name is as a nail in a sure place; it bears all that is hung upon it. Not like the rotten pegs men make and fix for themselves (Acts 4:12). THE SOWER.

Matthew 13:1-8; Matthew 13:18-23.

The Sower is the Son of Man; the seed is the Word; the soil is the human heart. The Sower! What a beautiful name for the Preacher! He went forth to sow; not to criticise, or make a display. All who are burdened with precious seed long to scatter it. The prophets of old knew what the burden of the Lord meant. May His message so burden us that we shall go forth weeping! The four different kinds of ground represent four distinct ways in which the Word of Life is treated by those who hear it.

I. The Wayside, or Indifferent Hearer. The "wayside" is-

1. A Hard Place. The indifferent hearer may be a regular hearer, but his heart is like a public footpath, open to every passer-by, and beaten hard with the feet of selfish thoughts. The heart that is open for the pleasures of sin will be hard for the Word of God.

2. A Dangerous Place. Exposed to the "fowls of the air" and the feet of every passer-by. No matter how precious the seed, it can only fall on it; it cannot fall into it. The seed is always in danger of being lost until it is hid (Psalms 119:11). Fowls have quick eyes. The wicked one detects the precious Word lying on the thoughtless heart and "catcheth it away." The loss is never felt, because its worth has never been enjoyed.

3. A Hopeless Place. Here the living seed can find no shelter. Although it may remain for a time, it has had no entrance, and so can show no life. Indifferent hearers can profit nothing.

II. The Stony Ground, or Emotional Hearer.

Here the word is-

1. Joyfully Received (Matthew 13:20). There being no depth of earth it is easily moved. The shallow-hearted hearer is often very emotional. Their thin layer of feeling is easily wrought upon. Tears are quickly shed, and as quickly dried up. They hear the Word gladly; but, alas! their heart seems to be in their eyes.

2. Quickly Starved. There is "no root." It soon sprang up, but its life was all on the outside. No downward growth, because there was no deepness of earth. Beneath the thin covering of emotional feeling there lies the hard, unyielding rock of a stubborn will. No room for the root of the matter.

3. Completely Scorched. "It was scorched and withered away" (Matthew 13:6). There being no inward nourishment it is soon overcome by outward circumstances. Unless the heart is filled with love to God the Word will not root and grow, and stand "rooted in love." Persecution soon withers the pretentious. But what withers the rootless strengthens the rooted.

III. The Thorny Ground, or Double-Minded Hearer. Here we have-

1. Soil Abundant. Where there is plenty of depth for thorns there is depth enough for seed. In the heart of the double-minded the plough of the convicting Spirit may have been, for there is readiness to receive the Word of the kingdom, but only to give it a place with the thorn of worldly things.

2. Soil Preoccupied. "Thorny ground." That which is first is natural. The thorns and the briers usually have the first place in the heart of man. But that which is first must be taken away if that which is second and spiritual is to possess and prosper. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matthew 6:24).

3. Soil Unfruitful. The seed will not choke the thorns, but the thorns the seed. The sins that are allowed to harbour in the heart will surely manifest themselves, although they may be out of sight for a time, like the thorns covered by the passing plough. "Cares," which choke the hopeful Word, are deadly enemies, although often excused. Cast out those murderers if you would be fruitful in every good work.

IV. The Good Ground, or Honest Hearer. This is-

1. A Prepared Heart. "Good ground." Ground that has been the object of special care. A heart that has been ploughed and torn by the Spirit of God. Here the weeds and thorns have been cut up at the roots and gathered out. The heart that is truly anxious for spiritual things has no room for the "cares" and "riches" that hinder the one thing needful.

2. An Understanding Heart (Matthew 13:23). If the seed of the Word is to be fruitful it must have full liberty in the soil of the heart. It must have soil congenial to its nature. Without meditation the Word will get pot-bound (Psalms 1:2). The understanding of the Word is the germinating of the seed.

3. A Fruitful Heart. "Some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty." There are degrees of fruitfulness even in good ground. The individual seeds of special truth will be better conditioned in some hearts than others. The same truth in one man's life may bring forth an hundredfold, while in another only thirty. The measure of understanding has much to do with the measure of fruitfulness. The character of the fruit betrays the nature of the soil. The great object of the Sower is fruit. All is loss and failure that is not fruitful. Let us abide in Christ, and our lives shall not be barren (John 15:7-8). THE TARES.

Matthew 13:24-30; Matthew 13:37-43.

In the parable of the tares we have a revelation of the kingdom of Heaven in the field of the world. Christ's own interpretation of it is beautifully clear and simple. The kingdom represents the dispensation of the grace of God. It came with Christ Jesus, and continues till the end of the age.

I. The Sower, or Planter of the Kingdom, is the Son of Man (Matthew 13:37). All the affairs of this kingdom are in the hands of Jesus Christ. As precious seed it was brought forth as a burden in His bosom. It is not of this world, but from Heaven. It is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. It is the ministration that exceeds in glory (2 Corinthians 3:9).

II. The Field, or Place of the Kingdom, is the World (Matthew 13:38). The world is called "His field" (Matthew 13:24). The field is great, but He has seed enough for every corner of it. His large, compassionate heart and eye take in the whole (John 3:16). Much of the field is still in waste. May the world of our inner being be possessed by it!

III. The Seed, or Subjects, are the Children of the Kingdom (Matthew 13:38). The seed with which He sows the field has cost Him much-redeemed with His own precious blood. Every seed is a living one, and as closely connected with the Sower as children are to a parent. Each seed is sent forth into the soil of the world to grow and manifest His own hidden life and beauty. To this end it must die. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone" (John 12:24). We must die unto sin before we can live unto God.

IV. The Tares, or Hinderers, are the Children of the Wicked (Matthew 13:38). Where did the tares come from? "An enemy hath done this" (Matthew 13:28). There is everlasting enmity between the tares and good seed (Genesis 3:15). The title "children" reveals their very close connection with the devil (Ephesians 2:2). While growing together in the field there may be a seeming likeness, but their origin and character are entirely different. Regeneration is the only remedy for the tares (John 3:5).

V. The Enemy, or Usurper, is the Devil (Matthew 13:39). It was while men slept he sowed the tares. He loved the darkness rather than the light, because his deeds were evil. It is when Christians cease to watch that the devil comes, and his awful work is silently and quickly done. When the tares spring up many say, "There's your Christians." No! An enemy hath done this. Every seed sown by the Son of Man is good.

VI. The Harvest, or Separation, is the End of the World or Age (Matthew 13:39). "Let both grow together until the harvest" (Matthew 13:30). So the grace of the Master spares the tares for a time; but sparing grace is not saving grace. While abiding among the wheat their privileges are the same, but the nature of the tares unfits them for the heavenly garner. The end will come as sure as the seedtime, when all that offend shall be gathered out.

VII. The Reapers, or Servants, are the Angels (Matthew 13:39). They said, "Wilt Thou that we gather them up?" He said, "Nay! the reapers are the angels." These impartial servants will in no wise be hindered in their mission. Their first work is to put away all scandals and them which do iniquity.

1. They are Gathered. The offensive and the worthless are brought together. No comfort, no hope, because they are many.

2. They are Bound into Bundles. As straw binds straw, so both doth evil and evil-doer. No more liberty or fellowship with the wheat.

3. They are Cast into the Fire. A fearful plunge: eternal separation; awful doom! The tares are not made for the fire, but the fire for the tares. The Lord knoweth them that are His. THE MUSTARD SEED.

Matthew 13:31-32.

Where there is life there is growth. The kingdom of Heaven, as represented in the Person of the Lord Jesus, is a living thing. Notice its-

I. Outward Appearance. "The least of all seeds." The kingdom of Heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed. The Lord Jesus Christ Himself was the living grain. His kingdom was the least of all kingdoms. It began with a handful of illiterate men. He was despised and rejected of men. No beauty in Him for the carnal eye.

II. Inward Vitality. It is a seed, not a stone. There is within it a vital principle capable of wonderful manifestations. A seed needs to be planted under favourable conditions before its hidden power and fruitfulness can be seen. The living seed of the truth as it is in Jesus Christ must fall into the soil of a broken and believing heart before its life-giving power will be realised. In the life of Jesus we see the blade; in His resurrection the ear; and on the day of Pentecost the full corn in the ear. The atmosphere of worldliness is not favourable for the development of this tender plant. The power of this seed lies in the presence of the quickening Spirit.

III. Manifest Progress. "It became a tree." Its vitality is apparent to all now. The corn of wheat has fallen unto the ground and died. Much fruit has appeared. Every soul quickened from the dead is a branch. The fowls of the air lodge in the branches. But the fowls are no part of the tree; they are only lodgers. The tree is perfect without them. The tree of the kingdom has many lodgers-those who identify themselves with it only for their own convenience. Are you a branch or a lodger? THE LEAVEN.

Matthew 13:33.

Two different methods of interpretation have been applied to this parable. Much depends on how we view these seven parables, whether separately or dispensationally.

I. The General Interpretation. Looked at separately, it is said- 1. That the Meal is the World-something bad, and all alike bad, needing a new and transforming principle put into it.

2. The Leven is the Gospel, and must be hid within before it can effect any change.

3. The Woman is the Preacher, the one who hides the Gospel in the hearts of men.

4. The Result-"the whole is leavened." The world becomes permeated with the Spirit of Christ. As an exhibition of Gospel truth all this is beautiful, and may be much blessed. But as an exposition of the parable it may be very faulty.

II. The Difficulties in the Way of Accepting this View.

1. It changes the Scriptural use of meal and leaven. It makes the meal bad and the leaven good. Everywhere else meal is good and leaven is bad.

2. The meal is very favourable to leaven, whereas the world is for ever opposed to the Spirit of the Gospel of Christ.

3. The Hiding of it suggests secrecy and craft, a thought never associated with the preaching of the Word, but closely connected with the work of Satan, who sowed the tares "while men slept."

4. The Manner in which leaven works is more suggestive of sin than grace. It mixes with the meal, and gradually operates by the law of contagion. We do not see sinners converted in this way. Grace does not run in the blood. We do not see whole streets, and towns, and cities being leavened with the Spirit of Jesus.

5. The Purpose of Leavening also suggests the idea of making the meal, or bread, more palatable to man. The great purpose of the Gospel is to make men more favourable to God.

III. The Other Interpretation views the kingdom in this parable as in a state of further development in the course of time, and may represent things as they are pretty much in our own day. Those who look at it in this way see- 1. The Leaven, as a good thing that has become polluted; as the truth of God, perverted by the carnal wisdom of men.

2. The Meal, as a good thing that has been corrupted by the leaven of false teaching. As the meal is very susceptible to the leaven it may represent professing Christendom being corrupted by doctrines that are not of God. This corrupting process does work like leaven.

3. The Woman who hid the leaven in the meal, as typical of those who are acknowledged as religious teachers. It was the woman's work to hide leaven in meal. Their business is to hide, to promulgate things contrary to Christ while acting as the servants of Christ.

4. The Result. "The whole was leavened." They see here the universal corruption of Christendom as such-a Church that has become unfaithful, and so unfit for the Lord's use; a Church saying that it has need of nothing, while Jesus Christ stands without (Revelation 3:17-20). THE TREASURE.

Matthew 13:44.

Some seem to see in this parable: (1) The Field, as the Scriptures, that must be searched; (2) The Treasure, as salvation that must be found; (3) The Selling All, as the condition on which salvation is possessed. We much prefer to put it thus-

I. The Field is the World. It is expressly called so in Matthew 13:38. It is a large field, loved by God (John 3:16), and claimed by Jesus Christ (John 1:10). He is the propitiation for the sins of the whole world. He bought the field. Satan offered it to him on the cheap, but He would not have it on such conditions (Matthew 4:8-9).

II. The Treasure is the Church. The people of God are called His own "peculiar treasure" (Exodus 19:4-6). The Lord's treasure is His people. This treasure was hid in the field of the world, but promised to Christ before the world was. "All that the Father hath given me shall come to Me." Those which Thou hast given Me "out of the world" (John 17:6).

III. The Price was Himself. "He selleth all that He hath, and buyeth the field." Salvation cannot be bought by anything the sinner can sell. "The gift of God is eternal life" (Romans 6:23). Jesus did sell "all that He had" to purchase the treasure of His believing people. "He who was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich" (2 Corinthians 8:9). "Christ loved the Church, and gave Himself for it" (Ephesians 5:25). He purchased it with His own blood (Acts 20:28). The hiding of the treasure may suggest the mystical character of His body-the Church known to Him, but not yet manifested to the world. THE PEARL.

Matthew 13:45-46.

The scope of this parable is very much the same as the last; but there is this marked and beautiful difference, that while the "treasure" is His possession, the "pearl" is for personal adorning. The Church here is not only a "purchased possession," but a pearl of great price and beauty to adorn His person and reflect the glory of His character. If Christ is the pearl, then the sinner, as the merchantman, has to buy Christ by selling all that he has. It is quite clear that this is not the teaching of the Scripture. The price is paid by Jesus Christ as the Redeemer, not by man, the already bankrupt sinner (1 Peter 1:18-19).

I. The Merchantman is Christ. He is a merchantman, a man well up in the business of carrying on heavenly trade. He has a great business on hand. "Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?" (Luke 11:49)-seeking goodly pearls.

II. The Pearl is the Church. The Church is the Lamb's wife, and has been purchased with a great price. As Boaz found Ruth, and redeemed her to himself, the Bride of Christ is a priceless pearl to Him. She will be to Him as diadem of glory through all the coming ages. "Come, and I will show thee the Bride, the Lamb's wife" (Revelation 21:9-27). "A purchased possession" (Ephesians 1:14).

III. The Price was His Own Life. "He sold all that He had" (2 Corinthians 8:9). He died for us. "Ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:20). "Ye are bought with a price; be not ye the servants of men" (1 Corinthians 7:23). Christ may truly say of His Church:

"I've found the pearl of greatest price,

My heart doth sing for joy." THE NET.

Matthew 13:47-50.

The key to this parable has been laid beneath the door (Matthew 13:49). It is the last of a series of seven parables, bringing us up to the close of the period of the kingdom; to the end of the age, when the whole system will be tested and judged.

I. The Net. The net is something prepared and fitted for a special purpose-to catch fish. It is emblematic of the Gospel of the grace of God. The net itself makes no distinction of the fish, for it receives all who come. The invitation of the Gospel is universal; it is to every creature. Whosoever will may come. Like the sunshine and the rain, it comes to both bad and good.

II. The Sea. The net was cast into the sea. The sea represents the sphere in which men live and move, and corresponds with the "earth" and the "field" in the other parables. It indicates a state of changeableness, restlessness, and danger. Into this sea the net of the Gospel, prepared by the grace of God, has been cast. The purpose is to gather out a people unto His Name.

III. The Gathering. "And gathered of every kind" (Matthew 13:47). Was this the intention of the great Fisherman? Was the net made for both "good and bad?" Does it not seem that the net is put to a wrong use when used, as here, for a drag-net? When the Lord told His disciples to cast their net on the right side of the ship they did not get one bad fish. The Gospel is put to a wrong use when it gives an equal place to both good and bad. In these days quantity, not quality, is the aim of the net-spreaders. But the sifting-time is coming.

IV. The Time of Drawing. "When it was full they drew it" (Matthew 13:48). The net of God's saving grace will not always be in the sea of this world. There is a time-it may be near at hand-when it will be full. This time will be the end of this age, when the fulness of the Gentiles be come in (Romans 11:25). When the Gospel net is drawn, then present privilege and opportunity of salvation will be gone.

V. The Place of Sifting. "They drew to the shore" (Matthew 13:48). The bad and the good could sport together while in the sea, but it will be different on the shore. The wheat and the tares were allowed together until the end came. As they came near the shore the more did the bad and the good crowd together. There is a great cry for union in the present time. Let us take care it is not the crushing together caused by the net being drawn out.

VI. The Separation. "They gathered the good, and cast the bad away" (Matthew 13:48). So shall it be at the end of the age. They shall sever the wicked from among the just (Matthew 13:49). Their character determines their destiny-good or bad. The Lord knoweth them that are His. The bad may boast, while in the sea, that they are just as good as their neighbours, but they shall not escape.

VII. The Final Destiny.

1. The Good are put into vessels. These vessels were prepared for them before the net was drawn. "In My Father's house are many mansions. I go to prepare a place for you" (John 14:2).

2. The Bad were cast into the fire (Matthew 13:50). "Cast the bad away." Oh, think of it! Away from what? Away to what? "Ye must be born again" (John 3:7). THE UNEXPECTED APPEARANCE.

Matthew 14:22-27.

The hungry multitude had just been fed and sent away. His own soul now hungers for secret communion with His Father. "Man shall not live by bread alone" (Matthew 4:4). He constrains His disciples to go before Him to the other side, and when the evening is come we see Him alone on the mountain. Here is a picture of Christ's present position and of His Coming again. Jesus is now on the mount of intercession before the Father. His disciples are still being tossed with tempest on the sea of this troublous world. But one day He will appear again and deliver His Church out of all its troubles. As Peter went to meet Him on the waters, so shall we meet Him in the air (1 Thessalonians 4:17). When Jesus came back to the boat He brought Peter with Him. When He shall appear then we also shall appear with Him in glory. Then those who see Him will also confess, "Of a truth Thou art the Son of God" (Matthew 14:33). This is a very fruitful theme. Let us gather some practical lessons-

I. The Obedient will be Tried. "Jesus constrained them to go before Him unto the other side" (Matthew 14:22). Perhaps it was with reluctance that they went, but they obeyed, and while doing His will they were severely tested. The trial of your faith is precious, more precious than tried gold. Observe the nature of their trials-

1. That in which they Trusted was likely to Fail Them. "The ship was tossed with waves" (Matthew 14:24). Every object of the believer's confidence will have a tossing. Jesus Himself had it. The little ships of our own making are too slim to bear the stress of strong temptation. In following Jesus let us beware of trusting anything apart from Himself. The arm of flesh, our own understanding or past experience, if trusted, can only bring the soul into dread and danger.

2. That which might have Helped was an Actual Hindrance. "The wind was contrary" (Matthew 14:24). We, too, while seeking to do the will of our Lord may expect to meet with many a storm of opposition. The wind which wafted them across the lake now hinders their progress. The favour of men, which may have helped us at one time, may press against us at another. It is as fickle as the wind. But there is a deep need for every contrary wind in the experience of God's people. It only hindered these disciples from getting beyond the sphere of His own wonder-working power. It made them tarry till He came. Blessed detention!

3. That their most Strenuous Efforts were of Little Avail. "He saw them toiling in rowing" (Mark 6:48). Ignorant of the Master's purpose to bless them among the billows, they toiled and struggled as earnest, honest men to save themselves. But they spent their strength in vain, as every one will do who seeks deliverance by their own works (Romans 3:20).

II. The Obedient will be Helped. "Jesus saw them toiling in rowing," and made haste to their help. Comforting thought! He sees every stroke of the oar. He hears every groan of the heart, every half-choked sigh, and is an eye-witness to every bitter tear. Our fruitless efforts may prove a blessing by bringing Jesus Christ into closer touch with us. He came-

1. At an Unexpected Time. "In the fourth watch." As in nature, so may it be in our spiritual experience-the darkest hour is the hour before daybreak. He came in the hour of their greatest need-when their strength was exhausted, when all hope was gone. In perplexity cast the anchor of faith, and wait for the day.

2. In an Unexpected Way. "Walking on the sea." The great, surging billows, the source of the disciples' fear and dread, were now under His feet. He comes as the Overcomer to their help.

They found their salvation where you and I will always find it, not in toiling, but in trusting. "My ways are not yours."

3. With an Unexpected Blessing. "Be of good cheer. It is I; be not afraid." He does not at once remove the cause of their trouble (wind and waves), but He gives them rest in the midst of the storm. He may not take away the thorn, but He makes His grace sufficient (2 Cor. 12). He did not save from the fiery furnace, but He walked with them in it. This is the greatest blessing. A SUPERNATURAL WALK.

Matthew 14:28-34.

Jesus appeared to His storm-tossed disciples walking or the sea. To this purpose of His followers the wind was contrary, but the contrary wind was an opportune time for the Lord. They saw His wonders in the great deep of their distress.

I. A Bold Request. "Peter said, Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto Thee on the water" (Matthew 14:28). This was a great petition, but not too great. "If it be Thou." He is able to do exceeding abundantly above all we ask. Should our love to Christ not constrain us to walk even as He walked? What although other disciples shrink from such a prayer; let us seek the privilege of walking with Him, even where human wisdom and fleshly feelings cannot find a footing.

II. A Gracious Invitation. "He said, Come" (Matthew 14:29). The door is now open for the faith of Peter. He is invited to walk where none but the feet of faith dare go. The Christian's walk is a supernatural one, He walks by faith. This, in the eyes of the wise men of the world, is like walking on the sea. They cannot understand it. Every believer is invited by Christ to walk with Him on the deep as He walked.

III. A Successful Venture. "Peter went out of the ship, and walked on the water" (Matthew 14:29). The seemingly impossible can be accomplished through simple faith in the Word of Christ. There must be a going out if there is to be a going on. The life of faith implies the complete abandonment of every other source of confidence-out of the ship of self on to the Word of Christ. Jesus is not fully trusted until both hands are off every earthly prop.

IV. A Momentary Failure. "When he saw the wind boisterous he was afraid" (Matthew 14:30). Perhaps he expected the storm would cease when he stepped out on the invitation of the Lord Jesus. Our troubles don't all cease the moment we trust Christ. Our faith will be tried. Peter was afraid, and began to sink, because he was getting more concerned about himself than the Word of his Master. Even walking in Christ's ways will become a terror and a labour when our eyes are off Christ Himself.

V. An Earnest Prayer. "Lord, save me" (Matthew 14:30). "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." Let him who is falling not hesitate to cry out for salvation. Out on the depths of the life of faith, where no unbeliever ever stood, Jesus will make us realise that, apart from His continual help, we can do nothing but tremble and sink. Peter was wise in crying as soon as he began to sink. Many wait until they are up to the neck.

VI. A Speedy Deliverance. "Immediately Jesus caught him" (Matthew 14:31). Instant confession brought instant salvation. He leaps to the help of His needy ones (S. of S. Matthew 2:8). Peter was not sent back to the ship. There is no help for the troubled and tempted believer in the old life.

Jesus caught Peter, so he found refuge in the "arms of Jesus." These strong and willing arms are still outstretched (Psalms 138:7).

VII. A Gentle Rebuke. "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" (Matthew 14:31). The tenderness of Jesus is very manifest. He will not break the bruised reed. We might think Peter's faith was anything but little when he boldly stepped out on the swelling waves. Oh, how precious a thing faith is! If we have trusted Christ let us trust Him wholly. None perish that Him trust. Abraham staggered not, but was strong in faith.

VIII. A Blessed Result. "When they were come to the ship the wind ceased" (Matthew 14:32). Peter now walks with Jesus-saved from fear, where before he had feared and sank. His walking to Jesus was a testing time, but his walking with Him is calm and peaceful. The wind is still as boisterous as ever, but he fears no evil, for the Lord is with him. The near presence of Christ is the secret of a restful and triumphant Christian life. When Jesus came into the ship the wind ceased. Let Him into the heart; He maketh the storm a calm. THE WOMAN OF CANAAN.

Matthew 15:22-28.

Jesus had said, "Him that cometh unto Me, I will in no wise cast out" (Matthew 11:28); but difficulties have often to be faced and surmounted in the coming.

I. Her Character. With regard to her nationality, she was-

1. A Woman of Canaan. A representative of a class that were without hope, having no promise, and without God in the world (Ephesians 2:12). Such were some of us.

2. A Woman in Deep Anxiety, "Her daughter was vexed with a devil" (Matthew 15:22). Her own soul was thereby grievously vexed. Her great need and conscious helplessness drove her to Jesus. Blessed thirst that draws us to such a fountain. Our poverty, like the prodigal's, is often the means of driving us home to the house of plenty.

II. Her Request. Such soul-agony must cry out. It was-

1. A Cry for Mercy. "Have mercy on me" (Matthew 15:22). The prayer will always be short when mercy is felt to be the first need. Secure His mercy and you have lifted the sluice for the outflowing of infinite blessing. If mercy is your first plea it will not be your last.

2. A Cry to the Lord. "Have mercy on me, O Lord" (Matthew 15:22). "To whom can we go but unto Thee? Thou hast the words of eternal life." Mother Nature is deaf to the cry of the needy.

III. Her Difficulties. The first trial she met with was-

1. The Silence of Jesus. "He answered her not a word" (Matthew 15:23). Does it not seem alarmingly strange that Jesus should hold His peace at such a time? There is a needs be. We must not deal with Jesus as one would do in trying an experiment. The silence of the Saviour may lead to deeper searchings of heart. Although He gives no word we may still hope in His character. Other difficulties were-

2. The Conduct of the Disciples. "They said, Send her away" (Matthew 15:23). Between the silence of Jesus and the surliness of His followers her faith would be severely tested. The conduct of many of Christ's disciples is more likely to drive away than attract to the Master; their words and actions are sad representations of His gracious character. Are we commending Him by showing love for the perishing?

3. Her own Unworthiness. "Jesus said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matthew 15:24). She did not belong to the house of Israel; therefore as a heathen Gentile she had no claim on Him as the Son of David. She was knocking at a closed door. If as sinners we would buy from Him, we must buy without money. "Nothing in my hand I bring."

4. The Righteousness of God. "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs" (Matthew 15:26). Deep ploughing this; yes, but the shafts are in the hands of Infinite Love. The promises given only to saints will not be cast to sinners. God cannot be unrighteous, even in saving a soul. She was not a Jewish child; therefore by birth she had no hope. In Christ we meet with a just God and a Saviour.

IV. Her Argument. "Truth, Lord; yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall" (Matthew 15:27). As much as to say, "That's the truth, but as Lord Thou canst give me also what I need." This was a powerful plea, because it was-

1. The Argument of Faith. "O woman, great is thy faith" (Matthew 15:28). She laid fast hold upon His character, not as Son of David, but as the Son of God-as Lord over all, blessed for ever. It was also-

2. The Argument of a Broken Spirit. She humbly took her place among the undeserving dogs, that the grace of the Lord might reach even to her. Grace delights to flow down and fill the needy. A broken and a contrite spirit He will not despise.

V. Her Success. Hers was the triumph of faith.

1. She Gained the Needed Blessing. "Be it unto thee even as thou wilt" (Matthew 15:28). Her "Lord help me" is answered by His offer of Omnipotent fulness. Faith may be tested, but it will not be disappointed. Though He tarry, wait. She knew His Name, and trusted in Him, and He did not forsake her (Psalms 9:10).

2. She Embraced a Passing Privilege. While Jesus was passing by she "came out and cried" (Matthew 15:22). This was her only opportunity, and she made the most of it. Take heed lest you are letting yours slip. "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2). THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

Matthew 15:29-31.

Christ's public ministry began with the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Does not every real ministry begin with this? His first recorded utterance is, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me. He hath sent me to heal, to recover the sight of the blind, and to set at liberty the bruised" (Luke 4:18). This is His diploma.

I. The Position of the Healer. "He went up into a mountain and sat down" (Matthew 15:29). The actions as well as the words of Christ were prophetic. While He sat upon the mountain great multitudes came unto Him, and He healed them all. What a picture of Christ's position and power!

He has gone up into the mount of Heaven, and is sat down at the right hand of God to give gifts unto men. Whosoever will may come. None are cast out. He heals them all. He now sits as He did on that mount by the Sea of Galilee, waiting to be gracious. No question asked, no fee required, no prescription given, but instant help and healing imparted. Before God Jesus sits as the only hope and health for a perishing world. "Look unto Me and be ye saved, for I am God" (Isaiah 45:22).

II. The Character of the Healed.

1. The Lamb. Those whose legs are unequal, and whose walk is very unsteady, who have many an up and down. There are many lame Christians vainly trying to walk like those whose legs are equal. It is no use trying to conceal the limp. If there are failure and weakness bring them to Jesus. He maketh the lame to walk.

2. The Blind. Those who walk in darkness. Their outward life may be without a limp, but their minds are darkened. They have no assurance; they know not where they are going. They depend on human hands to guide them; they have not the eye-salve of the Holy Spirit. He can make the blind to see for themselves.

3. The Dumb. This is a type of those who can both see and walk, but whose lips are sealed. They know the truth, and their actions may be faultless, but their tongues are dumb for God-moral beauties, but spiritual dummies. This great Physician can also make the dumb to speak.

4. The Maimed. This is a very plentiful class, and very pitiful. They once had hands and feet and tongues for God, but sin has maimed and marred their members, so that they are now useless in the service of Christ. They once had power, but the Holy Ghost is grieved, and their testimony is maimed (see Judges 16:20). "I will heal your backsliding" (Jeremiah 3:22).

5. The Nondescript. "And many others." Among this lot there would likely be found "all sorts"-the sick, the sad, the fevered, and the broken-hearted. Christ can heal every ailment. Everything that hinders our joy in God and our testimony for Him may be confessed as a disease. Is it care, anxiety, temper, fear, despondency? He healeth all thy diseases.

III. The Place of Healing. "They cast them down at Jesus' feet" (Matthew 15:30). The place of blessing is at the feet of Him who is able to tread upon the surging waves of humanity's sorrows (Matthew 14:25). Those bleeding feet on Calvary's cross proclaim victory through His blood over every sin to all who believe. The way into this place of perfect healing is to get down, down to Jesus' feet.

IV. The Results that Followed-

1. The Healed Bore Testimony. They saw the dumb speaking, the lame walking, the blind seeing, the maimed to be whole. Every one used the gift received to the glory of the Great Healer. What a change! The power of Christ could not be hid in the lives of the healed ones.

2. The Multitude Glorified God (Matthew 15:31). Why has the multitude ceased to wonder and glorify God now? Have we not the same all-sufficient Saviour to-day waiting to make us perfectly whole, that our lives might be worthy of His Almighty grace and healing power. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven"

(Matthew 5:16). THE TRANSFIGURATION AND ITS LESSONS.

Matthew 17:1-9.

Jesus had just begun to show unto His disciples how He must suffer many things, and be killed (Matthew 16:21); but before the awful darkness gathers over the Cross He here gives them a passing glimpse of His great glory. We need such manifestations to support us in the hour of sorrow and trial. When we come to this mount we are apt to be so blinded with the "glory of the light" that we cannot see the helpful lessons we might learn. We might learn that-

I. To be Alone with the Lord is a Glorious Privilege. "Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John, and was transfigured before them" (Matthew 17:1-2). "They went apart with Him to pray" (Luke 9:28); and, while alone with Him, they beheld His glory, and were eye-witnesses of His majesty. This was a premature outburst of the hidden glory of the Man whose face was more marred than any man's. If we would know Jesus Christ in all His glorious fulness, let us be much alone with Him on the quiet mount of prayer. We hope to be alone with Him in eternity; why not seek much of His presence now?

II. The Lord is Infinitely more Glorious than Men see Him to be. "While He prayed His face did shine as the sun, and His raiment was white as the light" (Matthew 17:2). There was a double glory-that which shone out of Heaven from the Father, and that which shone out of Himself as the image of the Father. The carnal eye saw no beauty in Him, but He was glorious within all the same. The hidden glory of Christ and the hidden glory of the Christian will both in one day yet be manifested. The same "Lord the Spirit" who hath transfigured our souls will also transfigure our bodies (2 Corinthians 3:18; 1 John 3:1-2).

III. The Death of Christ is the Most Important Subject under Heaven. "Moses and Elias talked with Him" (Matthew 17:3); and Luke says, "They talked about the decease to be accomplished at Jerusalem." The death of Christ had a wonderful significance-to Heaven, earth, and hell. Think of the contrast between the subject of their talk and the appearance of the One appointed to die on a cross. What would Moses and Elias think of our present-day religious talkers who deny the atoning death of Jesus?

IV. The Glory of the Lord can be but Little Appreciated in our Present State. "The voice that must accompany the glory terrified them. They fell on their face, and were sore afraid." Moses had to be hid in a cleft of the rock to see the back parts of the divine glory; Paul, caught up into Paradise, heard and saw what was unspeakable. The High Priest never attempted to explain the "Shekinah glory." Enough for us that God graciously gives us as we are able to bear.

V. The Lord only is Sufficient to Comfort the Troubled heart. "He touched them, and said, Be not afraid... They lifted up their eyes, and saw Jesus only" (Matthew 17:8). When the living Word of God touches the sorrowful or terrified soul it is enough. Although all else should fail, and every comfortable feeling flee, "If I've Jesus, Jesus only, then my sky will have a gem." The touch and the word of Jesus are sufficient to bind up every wound.

VI. The Resurrection of the Lord is the Foundation of the Gospel. "Tell the vision to no man until the Son of Man be risen from the dead" (Matthew 17:9). The Gospel of the glory must come after the Gospel of the Cross. "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain" (1 Corinthians 15:14).

But Christ is risen; therefore tell out the vision of His glory. He is exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour.

VII. To Hear the Word of the Lord is a Divine Command. "This is My beloved Son, hear ye Him" (Matthew 17:5). We should hear Him because the Father is "well pleased" with everything He says. Hear- 1. The Voice of His Word. He is a great Teacher come from God, with God's message to sinful men.

2. The Voice of His Works. "The works that I do bear witness of Me" (John 5:36). Works of miracle and mercy. "Believe Me for the very works' sake" (John 14:11).

3. The Voice of His Blood. The blood that speaketh better things than that of Abel. Jesus' blood speaks of satisfaction to God and peace to man.

4. The Voice of His Spirit. That Spirit who maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered, and who seeks to transform us into the image of Christ. Hear ye Him, and be made like Him. THE UNFORGIVING SERVANT.

Matthew 18:23-35.

Peter had just been asking, "How often shall I forgive?" and even hinted that he was willing to go the length of seven times. But Christ's seventy times seven would teach us to exercise the love that was after His own heart- the "charity that never faileth." In this parable two great truths are brought out: (1) The need of being forgiven; (2) the need of forgiving others.

I. His Deplorable Condition. His true state was only discovered when he began to reckon with his Lord. A day of reckoning will come when every hidden thing will be revealed. See him-

1. As a Great Debtor. "He owed ten thousand talents" (Matthew 18:24), about three million pounds. Our debt to one another may be measured by one hundred pence, but our debt to God is infinite. How much owest thou my Lord? Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind, and strength. How much of His goods have we squandered?

2. As a Helpless Bankrupt. "He had not wherewith to pay" (Matthew 18:25). In the eyes of his fellowmen he is rich and honourable; in the presence of his Lord he is a wretched insolvent. He has sinned, and has come short, far short. To meet all the demands of a holy Lord God by our own selfish efforts is a miserable and hopeless task. "By the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in His sight" (Romans 3:20). Without strength.

3. As One under Condemnation. "His lord commanded him to be sold" (Matthew 18:25). All his past service only merited his condemnation. This is a sharp rebuke to the self-righteous. This is the revelation that comes to us when by the Holy Spirit the soul is brought face to face with the righteous claims of God. "By the law is the knowledge of sin" (Romans 3:20).

4. As an Earnest Petitioner. "He fell down, saying, lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all" (Matthew 18:26). He is in downright earnest, but it is a self-righteous and presumptuous prayer. He is not able to pay, yet he only pleads for patience. He makes confession of his failure, and promises to do better in the future. It, is the old trick of the carnal and unbelieving heart, which refuses to ask forgiveness. He still hopes to be justified by his works. But when will an imprisoned man be able to pay his debt? Not of works.

II. His Merciful Lord.

1. Had Compassion on Him. "His lord was moved with compassion" (Matthew 18:27). It was good for him that he met his lord in a day of grace. Poor debtor, in his reckoning he left no place for the love of his lord. "Behold, now is the accepted time" (2 Corinthians 6:2). Let us bless God that we have seen and felt His infinite compassion through the grace of His Son.

2. Pardoned Him. "He forgave him the debt" (Matthew 18:27). This was much more than he expected. This was the only remedy, and it was a gracious one. Not a word of rebuke, not a word about continued patience. Ah! He knows what we need, as poor, penniless paupers in His sight. "He forgiveth all thine iniquities" (Psalms 103:3). "Your sins and iniquities will be remembered no more" (Hebrews 10:17). "Who is a God like our God, who pardoneth iniquity, transgression, and sin?" (Micah 7:18). He is now saved by grace.

3. Delivered Him. "He loosed him" (Matthew 18:27). He not only got his debt cancelled, but he was, as a matter of course, loosed from the sentence of condemnation passed upon him. Being forgiven, he is now free from the law. Blessed change! Not under the law, but under grace. Salvation is twofold: (1) He forgiveth all their iniquities; (2) He redeemeth thy life.

III. His Selfish Behaviour. "He took his fellow-servant by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest." He had mercy shown him, but he shows no mercy. The spirit of his lord had not possession of him, and not being filled with his spirit he soon has to forfeit the fellowship and favour of his master. As those who have received mercy, let us take heed lest we frustrate the grace of God, and as a servant become a castaway. We may learn here the-

1. Manner of Brotherly Forgiveness. "Shouldst not thou have had compassion;... from your hearts forgive." If the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts we will have compassion on the erring, and be willing to forgive them from the heart. Freely ye have received, freely give.

2. Example of Brotherly Forgiveness. "Even as I had pity on thee." May the pity of the Lord Jesus Christ toward us fill up the measure of our pity for others. "As the Father loved Me, so have I loved you, so ought ye also to love one another. By this shall all know that ye are My disciples, if ye love one another" (John 13:34-35).

3. Misery of the Unforgiving. "The lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors." The unforgiving servant cannot abide in the fellowship of his Lord. One hard, unkindly thought toward a fellow-Christian worker is enough to bring the soul into the hands of the tormentors, and to rob us of the smile of the Master's face. Sin always betrays us into the hands of the tormentors. The torments of an evil conscience and a proud, covetous heart are neither few nor small. "Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you" (Ephesians 4:32). THE LABOURERS; Or, Lessons for Christian Workers.

Matthew 20:1-16.

Those who leave all for Jesus will find their all in Jesus (chap. Matthew 19:27). Peter said, "What shall we have therefore? Seeing we have left so much, how much shall we get?" This savours too much of the language of the mere hireling. To labour only for reward is a mean motive for serving Christ. To correct this grovelling spirit, and to enlighten the darkness that fosters it, this parable seems to have been given. Notice- I. Some Things about the Labourers. The-

1. Place of Labour. "His vineyard" (Matthew 20:1). This is the place where much patient labour is urgently needed, or much fruit will be lost. Those who labour among the trailing vines must be careful about their walk. The tender grapes must be gently handled. To gather fruit for Christ the gentleness of Jesus is needed. Note, further, that every labourer in the vineyard must have the Master's call.

2. Hiring of the Labourers. This was done at five different times. Look at it dispensationally, "early in the morning" (Matthew 20:1) may represent from Adam to Noah, the third hour from Noah to Moses, the sixth hour from Moses to David, the ninth hour from David to Christ, the eleventh the present, till He comes again. Or it may suggest the various stages of life from youth to old age. How few are found at the eleventh hour, but even then the full reward of eternal life is given to all who believe and obey.

3. Rewarding of the Labourers. "Call and give them their hire." Every one called to labour shall be called to their reward, "beginning at the last." The most hopeless at the eleventh hour becomes the most hopeful in the evening. Here grace reigns. Labour on. Idlers in the market-place are less responsible than idlers in the vineyard.

4. Dissatisfaction of the Labourers. "The first supposed that they should have received more." These find their counterpart in the "elder brother" mentioned in Luke 15; those hired at the eleventh hour in the prodigal son. We cannot anticipate disappointment in Heaven; but are there not many on earth who grudge the chief of sinners an equal share of the grace of God with themselves?

II. Some Things about the Master. Here observe His-

1. Justice. "Friend, I do thee no wrong" (Matthew 20:13). The selfish servant cannot understand the grace of Christ. Those who labour only for wages cannot enjoy the favour of God. If we knew Him better, we would murmur less at His doings. "I have not the gifts of So-and-so." "Friend, I do thee no wrong."

2. Faithfulness. "Didst thou not agree with me for a penny? Take that is thine" (Matthew 20:14). He gave all that He promised. The penny seems to have been their own terms; the others went on His terms, "Whatsoever is right I will give you," and had no desire to grumble. Trust His grace, and you will have good cause to praise and rejoice.

3. Sovereignty. "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with my own?" (Matthew 20:15). What unhallowed feelings arise in our hearts when we see a brother or a sister, with scarcely any experience-just an hour in the vineyard-being more honoured of the Master than we are, who have borne the burden and heat of the scorching drought. So it seemeth good in Thy sight.

4. Judgment. "Is thine eye evil, because I am good?" (Matthew 20:15). The evil eye can see but little good in the grace of Christ. "An evil eye makes a darkened body" (Matthew 6:23). It contrasts badly with the unmerited goodness of the Master. Our thoughts at the best come far short of the exceeding riches of His grace. Lord, give us the single eye to Thy glory. THE TWO BLIND MEN.

Matthew 20:30-34.

"Behold two blind men." There are many important lessons for us in this short narrative. Here we see- I. A Sorrowful Picture. "Two blind men." They were-

1. Poor. They sat by the wayside, evidently begging. They were men who had no promise to live on, no prospect to cheer them. Such were all of us, at that time having no promise, and without hope. All who are without Christ are poor indeed.

2. Blind. They had no eyes even to look on the passing Saviour. Picture of those who are destitute of spiritual vision, walking in darkness, and having no light.

3. Helpless. Although there were two of them, the one could in no wise help the other. All are alike guilty and impotent before the Lord. Help must come from above.

II. A Passing Opportunity. "Jesus passed by." In the coming near of the Son of God lies man's only chance of getting deliverance from the power of darkness. These men embraced their opportunity by putting themselves "in the way." Jesus has come near by the light of His Word. Flee not from Him by preferring the darkness (Hosea 7:13).

III. An Earnest Prayer. "They cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord." See their-

1. Boldness. "They cried out." It was nothing to them who heard their voice. They were poor men, crying out of the depths of their dire and conscious need.

2. Faith. "They cried, saying, Lord." They acknowledge Him as Messiah and Master. Dost thou believe on the Son of God? Hast thou confessed Him?

3. Petition. "Have mercy on us." They confess their helplessness and need by begging for mercy. The prayer of the self-righteous is, "I am not as other men" (Luke 18:11), or, "Have patience with me, and I will pay thee" (Matthew 18:26). "God be merciful to me." (Luke 18:23).

4. Wisdom. "When they heard, they cried." They did not wait for a more convenient season. "Faith cometh by hearing" (Romans 10:17). "Hear and your soul shall live" (Isaiah 55:3).

IV. A Rebuking Crowd. "The multitude rebuked them." Anxious and inquiring sinners are often rebuked by a multitude of false fears and feelings, but perhaps a greater obstacle lies in the multitude of inconsistent disciples-those who outwardly follow Christ, but who have no sympathy with Him in His great work of saving sinners. Do with the hindrances that arise through the failings of some professing Christians what these blind men did with the rebuking multitude, "Cry the more."

V. A Willing Saviour. "He willeth not the death of any." He-

1. Stood. The cry of need has a magical power to arrest the passing Saviour, and draw out the living waters of divine compassion. He stood. What a privilege! "Behold, I stand at the door and knock" (Revelation 3:20).

2. Called. Liberty of access is now given. Nearness invited, He seeks the fellowship of those whom He blesses. He that stands at the door and knocks still calls, "If any man hear My voice, and open the door" (Revelation 3:20). He has made room for you; make room for Him.

VI. A Gracious Offer. "What will ye that I should do unto you?" (Matthew 20:32). He invited them. Now He throws the door of infinite fulness open before them, that all their needs may be fully met. Oh, what a wonderful Saviour is Jesus! The rebuking multitude cannot hinder Him from pouring out the treasures of His love and grace upon all who come, "Come unto Me, and I will give ye-. "What will ye?

VII. A Perfect Cure. God's remedy for needy man is a wonderful compound of infinite love and precious blood. The order here is very beautiful-

1. He had Compassion. The need of the blind men touched the very depths of His heart, and His whole soul moved out in mighty, misery-melting mercy.

2. He Touched their Eyes. The presence of Jesus is always a conscious presence. To be blessed we must come within His touch. Here the dead live, and sin is blotted out. His gentle yet almighty hand is laid on the cause and source of their misery. He opened Lydia's heart.

3. They Received Sight. What a change! Old things have passed away, all things became new. Salvation is a very great and conscious blessing we know.

4. They Followed Him. He touched them. Now they keep in touch with Him. Blessed life! "Follow Me!" "Wilt thou go with this Man?" (Genesis 24:58). THE TWO SONS.

Matthew 21:28-32.

This parable begins with Christ's "What think ye?" and is eminently fitted to make us think. Some perish for want of thought, and many more for wrong thinking. The priests and elders had been asking Him, "By what authority doest Thou these things?" Christ answers their question by holding up this parable as a mirror before their eyes that they might be convinced of their sins. The way to understand the authority of Christ is to discover our real state before Him. Those who pride themselves in their own supposed goodness will always remain in ignorance of Christ's authority and saving power.

I. What the Father Commanded. "Son, go work to-day in My vineyard" (Matthew 21:28). The Father's vineyard needs workers; who should be more interested than the Son? Observe the-

1. Ground of the Father's Claim. "Son," (Matthew 21:28). Plenty of hirelings may be got for wages, but love ought to constrain a son. "The love of Christ constraineth us" (2 Corinthians 5:14). If we are the sons of God, surely our Father has the first claim upon our time and strength and substance. Our Father may hire strangers to serve Him (Isaiah 7:20), but sons are commanded.

2. Desire of the Father's Heart. "Work" (Matthew 21:28). What a grief it must be to our God to see so much work to be done and so many of His sons idle! Work is pleasing to the Father, good for the vineyard, and profitable for the Son. The idle soul shall suffer hunger (Proverbs 19:15). Our Father has a multitude of talkative sons, but the labourers are few.

3. Urgency of the Father's Request. "To-day." The time for serving the Lord is always now. Some of the younger sons say, "Wait till I get a little more experience." Some of the older sons say, "It is not worth my while beginning now;" or they are thinking about retiring from the vineyard. Go, work to-day, this present day of salvation, for "the night cometh when no man can work" (John 9:4).

"Wherefore the Holy Ghost saith, To-day" (Hebrews 3:7).

II. What the Sons Said. In the case of the first we have-

1. A Decided Refusal. "I will not" (Matthew 21:29). This language reveals the spirit of selfish indifference to the Father's desire. In plain words it is this: "I have something else of my own to look after, and have not time to work in your vineyard." What cares the selfish Christian for the perishing millions, or the grieving of the Father's heart, if their own little plans and purposes can only be attended to. This language also betrays a heart in open rebellion. "I will not." A life opposed to the Father's will and out of sympathy with the Father's purpose. The other son answered with-

2. A Ready Consent. "I go" (Matthew 21:30). He speaks with marked respect, "I go, sir." Judging from his talk he has a great reverence for his father and a great zeal for his work. His words are smoother than butter. The descendants of this oily-lipped professor have not yet ceased from among us. Yet his instant decision and prompt reply to the father's urgent command should be copied by every son. "If ye love Me, keep My commandments" (John 14:15).

III. What the Sons Did. There is often a vast difference between a man's profession and his actions. "Whither of them twain did the father's will?" It is not which of them talked the best or made the loudest profession? By their deeds are they justified or condemned. His Word is fulfilled in our doing of it, not in our talking about it.

1. The One Repented and Obeyed. Repentance always precedes the doing of the will of God. The bold, self-willed rebel is the first to yield and obey. Don't despair of the restoration of the loud-mouthed, disobedient backslider, or of the conversion of the defiant sceptic. "Afterward, he repented and went." Those who go willingly into the vineyard of God's service will find grace sufficient and a holy joy in pleasing Him.

2. The Other Promised and Failed. "He said, I go, sir, and went not." All who go not at God's bidding into the field of service for Him are disobedient and rebellious children, no matter how nicely they may talk about "the Lord's work." Talking about ministers, churches, and religion is not working for God any more than warming your hands at the fire is gathering grapes. Not every one that saith, "Lord, Lord," shall enter into the kingdom, but he that doeth the will of My Father. "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it" (John 2:5). THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN.

Matthew 21:33-41.

In this parable Christ rebukes the unfruitful profession of the rulers of His people. They had rejected the Cornerstone, as builders, and their work had come to naught. So the vail of their temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, and the kingdom of God was taken from them and given to another nation (the Gentiles, Matthew 21:43). Religious knowledge, enthusiasm, and scrupulous observances are all empty and lifeless when Jesus Christ is rejected or denied His proper place-a lamp without a light, a body without a spirit. We observe here-

I. Labour Expended. The householder himself was at all the expense of the "planting," "hedging," "digging," and "building" (Matthew 21:33). Think of what God had done for Israel as a nation. He dug them out of Egypt, planted them in a good land, and hedged them about with promises and privileges, yet it proved an empty vine. God, as the Householder, wrought all this work-there were none to help Him. Think of the labour expended by our Lord Jesus Christ, that we might bring forth fruit to the praise of His Name. Oh, what praying, suffering, groaning, sweating, dying, He gave Himself.

II. Privilege Enjoyed. "He let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country" (Matthew 21:33). These husbandmen did not purchase the vineyard; through the grace of God it was let out to them. Israel was honoured, as being the tenant of divine wisdom and knowledge, but because of unfaithfulness they have been expelled. This privilege now belongs to all who are in Christ Jesus. While the Master is in the far country these priceless blessings are let out to us by the grace of God. We have not bought them; we do not deserve them; they are the gifts of God-the tokens of His infinite love.

III. Fruit Expected. "He sent his servants, that they might receive the fruits" (Matthew 21:34). Although the Master is in the far country (Heaven) He is still mindful of His vineyard. In asking the fruits He is only asking His own. The vineyard was His. "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:19-20). The much labour of Christ for us should produce much fruit through us.

IV. Selfishness Exhibited. "The husbandmen took his servants, and beat, and killed, and stoned them" (Matthew 21:35). There is here no sign of gratitude for great privileges bestowed; no concern about the Master's interests. The grace of God has been in vain to them. It is sad to find this same selfish spirit among those who profess to be the servants of the Lord Jesus Christ. They are ready to take every earthly blessing and advantage God may give them, but they will yield Him nothing. They will even wear the Name of Christ for their own personal interests.

V. Forbearance Manifested. "He sent other servants, and last of all He sent His Son" (Matthew 21:36). What long-suffering, what patience with insult and cruelty, what willingness to forgive, what reluctance to punish! What a hideous contrast between the selfish greed of man and the lovingkindness of God! "They will reverence My Son." The appearance of His Son brought out the awful enmity of the human heart against God. Such is grace-giving His best gift to the least deserving.

VI. Rebellion Declared. "When they saw the Son they said, This is the Heir; come, let us kill Him, and let us seize on His inheritance" (Matthew 21:38). "We will not have this Man to reign to reign over us." "We have no king but Caesar" (John 19:15). So Jesus, as the Son of Sovereign Grace, is cast out, and the Father, as the Householder, is defied. We will reign as gods without Him is still the language of many a highly-favoured but God-hating sinner. Yet, O the depth of the mystery, that through the death of the Son we may indeed seize on His inheritance. Heirs of God.

VII. Destruction Assured. "He will miserably destroy those wicked men" (Matthew 21:41). Privilege may exalt to the gate of Heaven, but if neglected and abused will crush into the depths of hell. These 1880 years' wanderings of the Jews on the face of the earth, without a king and without a country, is a divine and solemn witness and warning that God will judge sin. When the Lord Himself appears to reckon with the husbandmen it will be a time of dreadful awakening to those who have been in the vineyard only for their own selfish ends. Carefully note that the Householder asked for the fruits before He came. His coming was the time of judgment for His servants. "We must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in

His body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad" (2 Corinthians 5:10). THE MARRIAGE FEAST.

Matthew 22:1-14.

The scope of this parable is very wide; it seems to embrace the whole of this present dispensation. The "certain King" is God the Father; the "Son," Jesus Christ; the "marriage," the new relationship into which the Son was about to enter; the "servants," the apostles of Christ; "those that were bidden," the Jews, who, as a nation, had received notice long before; the "other servants," perhaps those who went forth after Pentecost; the "dinner," the provision made by God in the death of His Son for hungry, perishing souls; they "made light of it, "the rejection of Christ by the Jews, His called ones; the "city burned," destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans thirty years later; "Go into the highways," the universal invitation of the Gospel; the "wedding furnished," the calling out and completion of the Church; "the King came in to see the guests," the second Coming of Christ; "Bind him, and cast him into outer darkness," the separation of the chaff from the wheat; He shall thoroughly purge His floor. The Gospel of the grace of God is here beautifully set forth. Observe the-

I. Provision. "Behold, I have prepared My dinner; all things are ready; come" (Matthew 22:4). The provision was wholly His own. "My oxen, my fatlings are killed." He spared not His own Son, but freely gave Him up to the death for us all. "Behold the Lamb of God." The provision was very great; it included "all things." All things are yours if ye are Christ's. Those who came to this feast found what sinners find on coining to Christ- 1. Rest on a Princely couch.

2. Shelter under a Princely roof.

3. Satisfaction at a Princely table.

4. Fellowship with Princely friends.

II. Invitation. "Come unto the marriage" (Matthew 22:4). This invitation is for all. Whosoever will may come; both bad and good were called. The Gospel invitation takes no notice of our character; the vilest as well as the most virtuous must accept the invitation on equal terms. None deserve it. It is the goodness of God freely offered to all. The pompous prince and the poverty-stricken beggar are both alike indebted to the mercy and grace of God for salvation. Because of this many "make light of it." To make light of the invitation is to make light of the God who gives it. That is no light matter.

III. Inspection. "The King came in to see the guests" (Matthew 22:11). All who accept the invitation expect to see the King; with joy they wait for His Coming. Those who are living in rebellion against His will, despising His grace, may well dread His appearing. He comes to see and to welcome all those who have believed His Word through His servants. Jesus Christ manifests Himself to those who yield to His call, and accept His offered mercy. Believe, and thou shalt see the glory of God.

IV. Detection. "He saw a man which had not on a wedding garment" (Matthew 22:11). Only one, but the quick eye of the King soon found him out. The man was conspicuous, not for what he had, but for what he had not. "A wedding garment." The garment was part of the King's provision, bat he refused it. It is not enough that we merely believe the invitation of the Gospel; we must lay hold of the righteousness of God, which is offered us in Christ Jesus, and upon all them that believe.

Remember that mingling among the people of God does not fit us for meeting the King. You may escape the detection of the servants, but the Searcher of hearts will find you out.

V. Interrogation. "Friend, how earnest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment?" (Matthew 22:12). He does not take him by the throat. This is the language of tenderest compassion, but he is faithful and just. It was not the King's fault, but perhaps he was priding himself in his own good-looking garments, prepared for the occasion, and all duly paid for. He belongs to the family of those "who go about to establish their own righteousness" (Romans 10:3). "Prepare to meet thy God" (Amos 4:12).

VI. Conviction. "He was speechless" (Matthew 22:12). He was self-condemned before a court from which there was no appeal. He may have been making fine speeches before the King came in, but now his mouth is stopped. There is no one to plead his cause; in his behalf all his friends are speechless. Oh, friend, boast of nothing now that you will not rejoice in when the King comes. This man does not even ask for mercy, so utterly hopeless is his case now. It is a solemn moment when all the refuges of lies are swept away by the power of His presence, "What wilt thou say when He shall punish thee?" (Jeremiah 13:21).

VII. Expulsion. "Then said the King, Bind him, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness" (Matthew 22:13). The man who despises the King's garment will never taste His feast. Think of what he was taken away from. Away from all his opportunities and companions, into the outer darkness, the darkness of hopeless despair, that is, outside the kingdom of God's dear Son. What a change! What a disappointment! Out from the presence of a feast into the place of weeping. There will be great and sudden changes when He shall appear. Put on the Lord Jesus Christ. THE LAST DAYS.

Matthew 24:37-39.

"But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be." Then, according to the teaching of Jesus Christ, Noah was a real person, the flood was a great fact, and the second Coming of Christ as the Son of Man will be an unfailing certainty. What the state and conditions of the world will be when He comes is here clearly revealed, "As the days of Noah were, so shall the Coming of the Son of Man be." Nothing could be more simple than this.

I. As there was great and growing wickedness in the days of Noah, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. The world did not go on growing better and better up till the days of Noah. No, but it grew worse and worse, till God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually (Genesis 6:5). So shall it be when the Son of Man comes. "As in the days of Sodom" (Luke 17:29-30). In the last days, "Perilous times" (2 Timothy 3:1); "Not endure sound doctrine" (2 Timothy 4:3); "Damnable heresies" (2 Peter 2:1); "Strong delusion" (2 Thessalonians 2:11); "Scoffers, walking after their own lusts" (2 Peter 3:3); "Many departing from the faith."

II. As there was faithful warning in the days of Noah, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. Noah was a preacher of righteousness (2 Peter 2:5). For a hundred and twenty years, while the Ark was a preparing, "he condemned the world" (Hebrews 11:7). Every board put in the Ark was a note of warning that judgment was coming. So shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. There never was a time in the history of the Church when the "Coming of Christ" was so generally believed and so clearly preached as now. The cry, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" (Matthew 25:6) is being heard by the waiting virgins.

III. As they were overtaken with sudden and universal surprise in the days of Noah, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. "They knew not until the flood came and took them all away" (Matthew 24:39). They were marrying and giving in marriage until Noah entered the Ark and the Lord had shut the door. They believed not the testimony of Noah. The habits and sins of society remained unchanged and unrepented. So shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. When He comes shall He find faith in the earth? He shall come suddenly. "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be" (Matthew 24:27). Who shall stand when He appeareth?

IV. As all who entered the Ark in the days of Noah were saved, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. The Lord said, "Come thou and all thy house into the Ark" (Genesis 7:1). Noah and his family obeyed the call; then "the Lord shut him in"-"kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation" (1 Peter 1:5). So shall it be when the Son of Man cometh. "Caught up... to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thessalonians 4:17). All who are now in the kingdom of God's dear Son shall be taken away before the judgment of God falls upon the disobedient and the unbelieving. "They that are Christ's at His coming" (1 Corinthians 15:23). Just as Lot was taken out of Sodom before the deluge of fire came. He that hath this hope purifieth himself.

V. As all outside the Ark were visited with judgment in the days of Noah, so shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. "The flood came and swept them all away" (Matthew 24:39). The Ark, as a means of salvation, was beyond their reach whenever the door was shut. Their day of opportunity was now gone. So shall also the Coming of the Son of Man be. Selah-pause and think. "Tribulation and anguish" (Romans 2:9); "Weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth" will be the portion of every Christ rejecter when He comes. Those who have not on the wedding garment when the King comes will be cast forth into outer darkness. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked." "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be when the Son of Man cometh."

FOOLISH VIRGINS.

Matthew 25:1-12.

From the closing verses of the preceding chapter we learn that the purpose of this parable is to teach the servants of God the necessity of being always ready for their Master's appearing, and that readiness consists not in idly staring into Heaven, but in actively doing those things that are pleasing unto Him. They are always ready who are always doing His will: "Blessed is that servant whom when his Lord cometh shall find so doing" (Matthew 24:46). The good wife may watch for her husband because she longs to see him, but if he, when he comes, finds the house untidy and the supper unprepared, would he be satisfied with her watching? These foolish virgins represent those who have the appearance of being ready, but who will be found unprepared. Notice their-

I. Blameless Character. They were "virgins," their characters were without reproach, blameless in the sight of men; they are typical of a large class of professing Christians whose outward life and conduct are unstained with iniquity. They are found in every sphere of Christian work; their motives are never for a moment questioned. They love the company of the virtuous and the wise, and even the truly wise love to have their help and fellowship; they are very courteous, congenial, and liberal-minded.

II. Noble Intention. "They went forth to meet the Bridegroom" (Matthew 25:1). The others are going, so they go too. They would like to see the Bridegroom, and to share the marriage feast. They make some little sacrifice for the hope that is in them; they never question their fitness. The counterpart of these is still to be found among us; religious people whose moral lives are beautiful, who have been good all their days, who never question their condition before God, nor imagine that they must be "born again." Their intentions are good, but they are blind to their own real need.

III. Thoughtless Neglect. "They took no oil with them" (Matthew 25:3). All their hope was in their lamps of profession. This could only last for a very brief season. They would not go without their lamps-lamps could be seen, but the invisible oil was unheeded. Type of those satisfied with an outward resemblance to the real while strangers to the Holy Spirit of promise. Oil in the vessel is suggestive of the Spirit of God in the heart, which is the true witness that we are the children of God. This will stand when all outward evidences faint and fail.

IV. Helpless Indifference. "They all slumbered and slept" (Matthew 25:5). The Bridegroom tarried, and they grew tired, and sank into a state of insensibility. The waiting time is a testing time for all. The time the Bridegroom tarried was a time of grace and opportunity for the foolish virgins; now was their time to go and buy the oil they needed, but they slept. Even a little lawful indulgence with self-satisfaction may prove ruinous. Our Lord has tarried now for more than 1900 years; what a long opportunity for lamp-trimming! When the wise sleep, it is no wonder that the foolish become unconscious of their danger. "What meanest thou, O sleeper? "

V. Anxious Request. "Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out" (Matthew 25:8). The midnight cry is an awakening cry. There will be many alarming discoveries made when Jesus comes. The midnight cry of warning is followed with the cry of alarm, "Give us of your oil." No oil, and the Bridegroom at hand. No fitness to go in, and the door of Mercy about to close. This oil cannot be borrowed; it must be bought of Him who alone can sell it (Luke 11:13). No mortal can give to another that which will fit him for the appearing of the Lord. "Buy of Me" (Revelation 3:18), saith He. "One thing thou lackest" (Mark 10:21).

VI. Earnest Endeavour. "They went to buy" (Matthew 25:10). They are indeed in dead earnest as they run to the nearest village, wiping the sweat from their faces, but their earnestness does not save them, for "while they went to buy the Bridegroom came." They were busy seeking when they should have been rejoicing. Men may use the right means at the wrong time. Those that were ready went in; those who were getting ready were shut out. Hoping to be ready is no fitness for His coming. "Behold, now is the accepted time" (2 Corinthians 6:2). "Be ye also ready" (Matthew 24:44).

VII. Fearful Disappointment. "Afterward came the other virgins, but the door was shut" (Matthew 25:11). The only answer that came to their urgent appeal, "Lord, Lord, open to us," was, "I know ye not." Notice, a personal acquaintance with Jesus Christ by the power of the Holy Ghost is the prime necessity for future fellowship with Him. The foolish virgins hoped to get in, but they were shut out. Out among the scoffing and the unclean, who never expected to be in, their virgin names did not save them. Only those who had met the Bridegroom entered with Him. "Acquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace" (Job 22:21). "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His" (Romans 8:9). THE TALENTS.

Matthew 25:14-30.

In the parable of the "virgins" we are taught the great necessity of individual readiness when Christ comes. This parable teaches the need of trading with His gifts till He comes. In both we are shown the twofold attitude of waiting and working. The man who hid his talent in the earth was also waiting, and may have been longing for his Lord's coming, but, like the foolish virgins, found himself unprepared. In gathering up the truth taught here, observe the-

I. Calling of the Servants. "He called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods" (Matthew 25:14). Those called to this more honoured service were His own servants -those who had previously given themselves to Him. They were the disciples of Jesus Christ, whom He called and delivered unto them His goods ere He took His journey into the far country of the Father's presence. His servants are not sent a warfare on their own charges. In John 17 we see what these goods were, the "words," the "joy," and the "glory." With these they were to occupy His place on the earth till He came. "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (John 20:21). The power to trade with His goods was given at Pentecost.

II. Measure of the Gifts. "To every man according to his several ability." All have not the same ability, because all have not the same faith. Great faith is great ability. If the man who got only one talent had got the ten he doubtless would have misused them all. It is the Lord Himself who divides to every man. He knows how much our faith is able to receive and use for His own glory. "Unto him that hath shall be given." Even one talent is a great gift. Every gift of God is precious. "According to your faith, so shall it be unto you."

III. Using of the Talents. All who receive the gift of God are compelled to do something with it-either to trade with it or bury it. He that received the five and he that received the two used them, and in the using they were doubled. Think of the two great talents God hath given us-His Son and His Spirit. What spiritual wealth and power are here! The more we use them in our life and testimony the more will their preciousness and blessing be multiplied in our personal experience. But one "hid his Lord's money." Was it pride or shame that made him bury it in the earth? Are there not many still who bury the gift of the Spirit in the earth of a worldly life-those who deliberately hide their spiritual gift from the eyes of men, who trade with their own natural talents, and so cover up their Lord's money.

IV. Coming of the Lord. "After a long time the Lord of these servants cometh, and reckoneth with them." The Lord will come again. Nineteen hundred years may seem a long time, but it is a time of grace and opportunity. The Lord's money is enough for His servants to trade with till He does come. When He comes it is first to reckon with His servants, not to judge the ungodly (2 Corinthians 5:10). Those who are always trading with the Master's gifts are always ready for His appearing. If we would succeed in the Master's business we must see that we trade with the Master's money. His grace is sufficient.

V. Rewarding of the Diligent. "Well done, good and faithful servant." Eternal life is the gift of God to all who believe, but rewards are only for the servants who have been "good and faithful." The promise is not to the successful, but the good and faithful servant will in God's sight always be successful. This reward was threefold- 1. Commendation. "Well done." An abundant entrance.

2. Exaltation. "I will make thee ruler." A place of distinction and honour.

3. Communion. "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." A condition of fulness of blessing. Happy fellowship.

VI. Doom of the Unprofitable. "Cast the unprofitable servant into outer darkness." He was a servant, but as such his life and work were failures, because he used not the gift bestowed upon him by his gracious Lord. This is the secret of every servant's unprofitableness to God- neglecting the gift of the Spirit. There are seven steps in the downward career of this man. Look at the privilege he enjoyed. Numbered with His servants, and the possessor of a special gift from his Lord. The steps are- 1. Wilful Neglect. He hid his Lord's money.

2. Hard Thoughts about his Lord. "I know thee an hard man."

3. Slavish Fear. "I was afraid."

4. Slothfulness.

5. Wickedness.

6. His Talent Taken from Him.

7. Cast Out. As a fruitless branch he was cut off. Like the foolish virgins, he did not enter into the joy of his Lord.

We then, as workers together with Him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

GETHSEMANE.

Matthew 26:36-46.

The supper was finished, the precious words recorded in John, chapters. 14, 15, 16, and 17, having been spoken, Christ and His disciples pass over the brook into the quiet seclusion of the garden. In a garden the first man fell through yielding to the wicked one, in a garden the Second Man conquered through yielding to the Holy One. May the calm of Gethsemane pervade our spirits, as we in thought follow our Lord's footsteps thither. This place called Gethsemane was to Him-

I. A Place of Great Heaviness. "He began to be sorrowful and very heavy" (Matthew 26:37). Mark adds, "Sore amazed." Heaviness of spirit laid hold of Him. Who can tell the weight of this burden to Him? "The Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all" (Isaiah 53:6). What a burden! To us the sense of sin is about as natural as the clothes we wear. To the sinner sin is but a trifle, to the Holy Son of God it was very heavy. "It bowed Him to the earth with grief."

II. A Place of Intense Suffering. "He began to be sorrowful" (Matthew 26:38). Then saith He, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death" Now that the blessed Lord is entering into the relationship of the sinner's substitute He begins to be sorrowful. Sin and suffering have been joined together by the righteousness of God. The sufferings of Christ were the sufferings of sorrow, heart sufferings. This sorrow was not the result of the fear of death neither was it the sorrow of regret or failure, but of pure love and sympathy. He was in deep sympathy with the holiness of God and the helplessness of man. May our eyes be opened to see, and our hearts touched to appreciate the "beautiful sadness" of the Son of God! (Isaiah 53:3-4).

III. A Place of Solemn Loneliness. "Tarry ye here and watch with Me... What, could ye not watch with Me one hour?" (Matthew 26:38). The tender heart of the Man of Sorrows yearned for fellowship in His sufferings, but they "could not." They slept even while He was in agony, sweating as it were, great drops of blood. He looked, but there was none to help Him. No; man cannot help the Lamb of God to bare away the sin of the world. "I looked for some to take pity, and for comforters, but I found none" (Psalms 69:20).

IV. A Place of Agonising Prayer. "He fell on His face and prayed, saying, O My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me" (Matthew 26:39). "He prayed the third time, saying the same words" (Matthew 26:44). "He offered up prayer and supplications with strong crying and tears, unto Him that was able to save Him from death, and was heard in that He feared" (Hebrews 5:7). What a contrast between this prayer and the one in John 17! This awful cup contained desertion and death, a most repulsive portion to the loving, holy, obedient Son of God. Around this prayer there is a halo of mystery, both deep and glorious, into which the carnal thoughts cannot enter. We bow in adoration, saying, "Behold, what love!" (1 John 3:1).

V. A Place of Entire Resignation. "Nevertheless, not as I will, but as Thou wilt" (Matthew 26:39). My will, not Thine, be done, opened the flood gate of sin, and turned man out of the Paradise of God. In the wilderness, while tempted of the devil, the will of Christ was as firm and unyielding as the mountains. We will be strong to resist evil in proportion as we are willing to resign to the will of God. In every crisis in our spiritual experience let us remember these words of our Lord. Who can tell what tremendous consequences may hang on our "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

VI. A Place of Special Succour. "There appeared an angel unto Him from Heaven, strengthening Him" (Luke 22:43). Blessed be God for this. The place of entire surrender to the will of God will always be the place of special succour from the Lord. "I will glory in my infirmity, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (2 Corinthians 12:9). The angel of His sufficiency will minister perfect strength in our weakness. Be not anxious about the angel, let His promise suffice.

VII. A Place of Heartless Betrayal. "Behold, he is at hand that doth betray Me. While He yet spake, lo, Judas came" (Matthew 26:46). Could anything be more heartrending to the Son of God than this? Kissed with traitor lips while yet the agonising sweat is on His brow. Christ had just accepted the awful cup in man's room and stead, and all the reward He receives at the hands of men is a hypocritical salutation, condemnation, and death. It is possible to play the Judas while sitting at the Lord's table. Salute Him with an holy kiss. Let our whole souls gush in love through our lips while we confess Him as our Lord before men. THE GOSPEL OF AN ANGEL.

Matthew 28:1-8.

Who can reckon up all the omnipotence of grace wrapt up in these words, "The power of His resurrection." The tragedy of the Cross is over, the sympathetic women still stand gazing on the lifeless form of their Beloved. They fear and watch lest His sacred body should be flung into Tophet, the common grave of the outcast and unclean. They see Him laid in a new tomb. Early in the morning of the first day of the week they come with precious spices to embalm His body and preserve the dead Christ. O how foolish we become when we forget His words! (John 2:19). Unless His words abide in us our devotion is apt to become zeal without knowledge. Earthquakes and angels work havoc to the plans of men; the sealed stone is rolled away before their eyes. From this angel those women received-

I. A Word of Encouragement. "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified" (Matthew 28:5). "Fear not"-

1. Because ye Seek Jesus. Those who are intent on seeking Jesus will not be satisfied in finding angels. This great and holy angel that so much frightened the keepers did not alarm or satisfy the seekers. "Sir, we would see Jesus." Jesus the Saviour, my weary, sin-smitten soul needs. "Fear not"

2. Because ye Seek Jesus which was Crucified. Those who seek Jesus apart from the crucifixion may well fear. Only those who knew the Crucified One found the Risen One. To His disciples alone did He appear after His resurrection. If we will not die with Him neither will we rise with Him. "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live" (Galatians 2:20).

II. A Startling Announcement. "He is not here, He is risen" (Matthew 28:6).

1. He is not Here. Mary said, "If ye have taken Him away tell me where ye have laid Him, and I will carry Him hence" (John 20:15). "Why seek ye the Living One among the dead?" (Luke 24:5). How many there are still on this vain search. Seeking the right thing in the wrong place. Seeking life among dead forms, dead works, and dead feelings. These are wells without waters. Graves.

2. He is Risen. Hallelujah! Yet the slow of heart to believe are blinded with the glory of the light. Mary stands weeping because she thinks they have taken away her Lord. Our own thoughts and natural opinions hinder us from receiving at once the great things of God. May we have the open face and the honest heart to believe without questioning all that the Lord hath spoken. "He is risen" (Matthew 28:6), and we are risen in Him.

III. A Tender Invitation. "Come, see the place where our Lord lay" (Syriac) (Matthew 28:6). He is Lord also of the angels. Let us take our stand in the place of death and solemnly meditate on- 1. His Great Humility. He who was in the bosom of the Father was laid in this borrowed grave-the Son of God buried.

2. His Spotless Character. Holy, harmless, undefiled. No sin in Him. Yet the iniquity of us all laid upon Him. Without spot or blemish, yet made a curse for us. Crucified and slain.

3. His Manifold Sufferings. "Behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto My sorrow" (Lamentations 1:12). "A Man of Sorrows, and acquainted with grief" (Isaiah 53:3). "He made His grave with the wicked."

4. His Mighty Power. "He is risen," not "He is raised." I have power to lay down My life, and I have power to take it again (John 10:18). His death was voluntary. He died and rose again.

5. His Glorious Victory. "Through death He hath destroyed him that had the power of death, that is, the devil" (Hebrews 2:14). "O death, where is thy sting. O grave, where is thy victory?" In laying aside His grave clothes He laid aside all that belonged to sin, death, and the grave. He rose a glorified Saviour.

6. Our own Privileges and Prospects. "He was delivered for our offences and raised again for our justification" (Romans 4:25). Through His precious blood a wide door and effectual has been opened for all. This ladder of salvation reaches from earth to Heaven.

7. The Grave from which there is no Resurrection. "The wicked shall be turned into hell" (Psalms 9:17). Here the great gulf is fixed, so that they which would pass from hence to you "cannot" (Luke 16:26).

IV. A Plain Commission. "Go quickly and tell" (Matthew 28:7). This angel from Heaven did not preach any other Gospel than that preached afterwards by the great apostle. Here it is: (1) Fear not; (2) Come and see; (3) Go quickly and tell. Christ is risen, this is the glorious Gospel. Come and see it, and know the power of it; then go and tell it out, and go quickly, for the need is great. There are so many sad and disconsolate and broken-hearted, and the time is short.

He is risen to save, be entreated. He is risen to intercede, be comforted. He is risen to judge, be warned.

SEVEN STEPS IN THE CONSECRATED LIFE.

Mark 1:9-15.

John was a man sent from God. All God-sent men honour Christ, and feel most keenly their own unworthiness in His presence. "I must decrease, He must increase." This little portion is one of those garden plots so common in Mark's Gospel, and fragrant with many a precious flower. Let us follow the footsteps of the Master. He was-

I. Decided. "In those days Jesus came and was baptised of John" (Mark 1:9). What did this step involve for Him? Was He only following as one of the crowd who flocked to the desert preacher? It was the most decisive and important step in the life of our Lord. It implied the forsaking of all the earthly ties of human relationship, the perfect surrender of Himself to the will of His Father as His Son, the public declaration of His character as a teacher come from God, and as the Lamb that taketh away the sin of the world. From Nazareth to Jordan was a solemn journey for Jesus. Have we taken this step? Have we yielded ourselves unto God that His will may be done in us? Is it the burning desire of your heart that your life should glorify the Father?

II. Accepted. "And straightway He saw the heavens opened" (Mark 1:10). He offered Himself, and was immediately accepted of the Father, through the opened heavens. As sinners, we yield ourselves to be saved; as sons, we yield ourselves to Him for service. Every unsurrendered son is robbing God of the fruit of his life. Don't say your life is not worth offering when it has been redeemed by the precious blood of God's Son. If you wish the heavens to open above you, present yourselves unto God.

III. Anointed. "The Spirit, like a dove, descended upon Him" (Mark 1:10). The holy anointing for service is sure to come when the life has been wholly devoted to God. All Christ's words and works were spoken and wrought in the power of the Spirit. This same baptism every serving Son of God needs and may have (Acts 1:8; Acts 19:2).

IV. Assured. "There came a voice from Heaven, saying, Thou art My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Mark 1:11). Like Enoch, He walked with God, and also had this testimony that He pleased God. This is another blessing that belongs to the path of the consecrated. The anointing of the Holy Ghost always brings with it the comforting voice of God, the sweetest assurance in the soul that the life is accepted and sanctified, and pleasing to Him. Without faith this is impossible.

V. Impelled. "Immediately the Spirit driveth Him into the wilderness" (Mark 1:12). This word "driveth" is very strong, it is the same word used in John 2:15, "He drove them all out of the Temple." The leading of the Spirit in the consecrated life is an inscrutable but mighty controlling impulse. It is not a fancy, but the sovereign, governmental authority of God in the soul. As the wind impels the sailship, so does the Holy Ghost drive on the life that has been launched in the ocean of God's will. Driven of the Spirit. What a driver! Who holds the reins of your life? The Holy Spirit of God, or the spirit that worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience?

VI. Tested. "He was in the wilderness tempted of Satan" (Mark 1:13). It was not till Christ was anointed with the Holy Spirit that the tempter came. This is most suggestive to us. The kingdom of Satan is not in much danger by us until we are baptised with the Spirit of Power. The real warfare against "the principalities and powers" can only begin when we are lifted into the heavenlies, where the forces of evil have their stronghold (Ephesians 6:12). "Greater is He that is in us than all that can be against us" (1 John 4:4).

VII. He Testified. "Jesus came preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God" (Mark 1:14). Luke tells us, "He returned in the power of the Spirit." He came from the conflict a victor, through the anointing of the Holy Ghost, and began to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom. Here, too, we may follow in His footsteps. If the power of the Holy Ghost has come upon us, it is that we might be witnesses unto Him. The early disciples filled Jerusalem with their doctrine. Go and preach the Gospel.

Mark

THE UNCLEAN SPIRIT.

Mark 1:21-27.

Jesus had gone into Capernaum. On the quiet Sabbath day He makes His way to the synagogue, that He might declare the will of His Father in Heaven. Every opportunity of doing good is straightway accepted by our Lord. Instant in season. May His Holy Spirit work this good work in our hearts! Guided by the Holy Spirit, Jesus is brought into contact with an unclean spirit. It is a day of grace for the poor demon-possessed man. Notice His-

I. Character. "A man with an unclean spirit," or we may read it, "A man in, or being controlled by, an unclean spirit. "A man in an unclean spirit is of course an unclean man. It is quite possible, then, for a man to be entirely possessed by an evil spirit. There is a spirit that now worketh in the hearts of the children of disobedience. The God of this world still blinds the minds of the on-believing. If the spirit is unclean the whole man is corrupt.

II. Position. "In their synagogue" on the Sabbath day. An unclean man keeping the Sabbath and reverencing the sanctuary. A religious devil. A man's outward acts do not always determine his moral character. It is possible to have the form of godliness while denying the power. Unclean spirits may go regularly to the house of God.

III. Question. "What have we to do with Thee, Thou Jesus of Nazareth?" Just so. These unclean worshippers have nothing to do with Jesus. This evil spirit cries out, "What have we to do with Thee?" The man and the unclean spirit are as one. We are one with the spirit which possesses us, whether it be the Spirit of God or an evil spirit. "His ye are to whom ye yield yourselves" (Romans 6:16).

IV. Confession. "I know Thee who Thou art, the Holy One of God." Why does he not say we know Thee? This demon speaks for himself, and betrays a knowledge Far superior to the poor devil-driven man. Observe carefully his language, "Art Thou come to destroy us; I know Thee." Jesus came not to destroy, but to save. This confession is like that of many a modern unclean spirit, it is a confession without faith. Remember Judas (Acts 3:14).

V. Request. "Let us alone." Although these words do not appear in the Revised Version, they doubtless express the deep-rooted desire of every unclean spirit. Every sin-loving sinner wishes to be let alone by the Holy One of God. They love the darkness rather than the light, because their deeds are evil. Well, if Jesus should let the unclean alone, what then? Just this, they will abide for ever under the damning power of sin and Satan, cast out with the devil and his angels. Abide Thou with us.

VI. Power. "When the unclean spirit had torn him he cried." Beware of sin, it first cries, "Let alone," then tears in pieces. It has power to pollute and to destroy. Self is one of the most dangerous of all the seducing spirits. In the work of God it often is as a fly in the ointment. The spirit of uncleanness has torn the minds, hearts, lives, and hopes of many to pieces, and would tear the very Word of God out of our hands.

VII. Overcomer. Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Hold thy peace, and come out of him." He gagged him and cast him out. The unclean need to be rebuked, even when they talk religiously, saying, "Thou art the Holy One of God." It is easy for an unclean spirit to overcome an unholy man, but the presence and power of the Holy One is sufficient to silence and to separate. If sin is to be gagged and overcome within, the Holy Spirit must be allowed and trusted to exercise His mighty authority in the soul, for with authority commandeth He the unclean spirits, and they obey Him.

PETER'S WIFE'S MOTHER.

Mark 1:29-31.

In Mark 1:21-34 we have the brief record of what must have been a very busy day for the Lord, and a very blessed day for those who were with Him. In the morning of this Sabbath day He entered into the synagogue and taught, and cast out an unclean spirit; in the afternoon He goes to Peter's house with James and John and heals Peter's wife's mother of sickness and fever; in the evening He healed many that were sick of divers disease and cast out many devils. Yet He did not seem to feel what some preachers call "Mondayish" the next day, for Mark 1:35 says, "In the morning, rising up a great while before day, He went out and departed into a solitary place and there prayed." We must be labouring in the energy of the flesh if our work unfits us for secret prayer. Let us note her-

I. Relationship. "Simon's wife's mother" (Mark 1:30). Then Simon Peter must have had a wife. If he were the first Pope, as Papists affirm, where do they get their authority for their dogma of celibacy?

II. Sad Condition. "She lay sick of a fever" (Mark 1:30). Fever and sickness always bring helplessness. "She lay." She was perfectly unfit for work. The fever of worldly excitement brings to many the sickness of spiritual inability. Our Churches are more like hospitals than camps of armed and able-bodied men. Why is so and so not as active as he used to be in the service of Christ? Oh, he is offended, or she is growing cold. Aye, "sick of a fever," and "good for nothing," like savourless salt.

III. Importunate Intercessors. "Anon they tell Him of her" (Mark 1:30). This is a blessed work, making continual intercession for the weak and needy. The Lord is not offended with our continual coming to Him. The condition of our friends and sick and fevered professors may give us many an errand to Christ. "Anon" is the secret of prevailing prayer. Tell Him. Tell Him again and again. Not that He is dull of hearing, or slow to understand our need, but He does love to see in us persistent faith. "Be not weary in well-doing, for in due season ye shall reap" (Galatians 6:9).

IV. Great Deliverance. "He took her by the hand and lifted her up, and immediately the fever left her" (Mark 1:31). It is so easy for Him to do a great thing. There was: (1) A personal contact. "He took her by the hand." How tenderly He deals with the sick ones. (2) An uplifting power. "He lifted her up." Every contact with Christ in prayer or fellowship implies an uplifting. The lifting power is His. "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me" (Php_4:13). (3) An immediate cure. "Immediately the fever left her." How could it be otherwise? The personal Christ is the remedy for all.

V. Willing Service. "She ministered unto Him" (Mark 1:31). What could be more natural than that the saved should serve. It becomes the redeemed not only to say so, but to do so. In serving Him she was only using for Him the strength He Himself had imparted to her. "Will a man rob God?" (Malachi 3:8). Yes. And he does it when he withholds from the service of Christ that which Christ claims as His own. The ministry of Peter's mother-in-law, like all true service, was willing, spontaneous, and hearty. "Him serve with mirth, His praise forth tell." "Worthy is the Lamb" (Revelation 5:12).

CONFESSION, COMPASSION, CLEANSING.

Mark 1:40-45.

Jesus had been preaching throughout all Galilee, and healing "all manner of sickness and all manner of disease" (Matthew 4:23). This poor leper doubtless heard of the great and various cures wrought by the Lord. Good tidings of great joy to him, cold water to a thirsty soul. Would he not long in his inmost heart for an opportunity of getting within reach of such a Physician? How could he refrain from accepting the chance when it did come? Oh! that thou hadst known in this, thy day. Look at-

I. The Need. "There came a leper to Him" (Mark 1:40). Oh, the significance of the terrible word "leper," and its synonymy "sinner," in the light of the presence of the Holy One! Every such leper was shut out from the place of the holy, separated from the fellowship of the pure, and compelled by their own character to keep company with the vile and the outcasts. He was-

1. A Need Deeply Felt. He knew he was a leper. He made no attempt to justify himself or conceal his true state. This is not a comfortable feeling. When a sinner is convicted of sin it is an awakening shock, a self-loathing revelation.

2. A Need No Human Help Could Meet. His cry was "unclean," his prospects were dark and hopeless, his disease was incurable. Sin as a plague in the heart cannot be touched with the plaster of outward reformation "Vain is the help of man" (Psalms 60:11).

3. A Need that Drove Him to Jesus. "There came a leper to Him." Hunger often constrains a child to come home. When the prodigal began to be in want he said, "I will arise and go to my father" (Luke 15:18). Blessed sadness that leads us, though with a rope round our necks, to the overcoming feet of Jesus. "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted" (Matthew 5:4).

II. The Manner in which he Came. He came-

1. Earnestly. "Beseeching Him" (Mark 1:40). He has a spirit within that is clamouring for emancipation. This cry now reaches his lips and falls on the ear of the Almighty Deliverer. It is easy to be in earnest when the need is keenly felt.

2. Humbly. "Kneeling down to Him" (Mark 1:40). A thorough consciousness of our guilt, uncleanness, and helplessness is enough to bend the stiffened knees and to make "kneeling down" a glad and precious privilege. This poor leper does not need to ask the Lord "to pour contempt on all his pride."

3. Believingly. "If Thou wilt Thou canst make me clean" (Mark 1:40). He was quite confident that if the Lord was willing He was abundantly able to save. "Is anything too hard for God?" (Genesis 18:14). He willeth not the death of any.

III. The Reception. Infinite holiness and power alone can deal with the pressing and awful need of guilty man, and these flow out and through the channel of compassion.

1. His Heart was Moved. "Jesus, moved with compassion." The earnest, humble, believing cry of need moved the deep waters of sympathy in the soul of the Saviour. His love moved Him from Heaven to earth, and from the manger to the accursed tree. "A high priest touched with the feeling of our infirmities" (Hebrews 4:15). "Jesus wept" (John 11:35).

2. His Hand was Moved. "He put forth His hand and touched him" (Mark 1:41). When the heart moves the hand is sure to be put forth to help. This is the first kindly touch the lonely outcast has felt since the day he became a leper. None can touch the aching heart or soothe the sorrowing soul like Him. He has touched humanity by His incarnation, that we might through faith be made partakers of His divine nature. His heart is tender. Come to Him. His hand is mighty-trust in Him. His arm is not shortened that it cannot save.

IV. The Result. "I will, be thou clean" (Mark 1:41). He was-

1. Made Free. "The leprosy departed from him." The disease, being in his very blood, he could not shake it off. No earthly surgeon's knife can separate between you and your sins, the word of the Heavenly Physician is enough. "He that believeth on the Son is not condemned" (John 3:18). "All that believe are justified from all things" (Acts 13:39).

2. Made Clean. "He was cleansed" (Mark 1:42). To be delivered from the dominion of sin is to be saved from its polluting power. The word of Christ, heard and believed, was the means of the leper's full and perfect salvation. "He spake, and it was done." "Now are ye clean through the word which I have spoken unto you." "Ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth" (1 Peter 1:22).

3. Made Clean Immediately. "As soon as He had spoken, immediately" (Mark 1:42). We are justified the moment we believe. There is no interval between the striking of a light and its shining. Growth must be gradual and progressive, but life as a quickening principle comes instantaneously in answer to the soul's look of trust (John 3:14-15). Look and live! THE SICK PARALYTIC.

Mark 2:1-12.

When Jesus was in the house it was noised abroad. The house perhaps was Peter's, where He had been before (chap. Mark 1:29). In the house or in the heart He cannot be hid. Wherever His saving and healing power are being manifested "many will be gathered together." It is not always a sign that Jesus is in the house when "many were turned away." "Hundreds turned away" is a big advertisement in these days. He will not send the hungry empty away. Here is a picture of- I. Human Helplessness. "Sick of a palsy" (Mark 2:3). He was-

1. Sick. Sickness unfits one for the enjoyment of those things which are even indispensable to life and health. Sin sickens the soul at the sweet mercies of our God; love of the world vitiates the appetite for the bread from Heaven. "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick" (Matthew 9:12).

2. Sick of a Palsy. That is, he was helplessly sick, deprived of the power of action, his energies withered, unable to do anything for himself. His sickness deprived him of all right desires, his palsy deprived him of all ability to act. Such is the true condition of all who are without Christ. "The heart is deceitful" (Jeremiah 17:9). Their works, their ways, and their thoughts are displeasing to God (Proverbs 15:8-9, Proverbs 15:26). When this is realised it is enough to give a paralytic shock to all pride and self-confidence. "When we were without strength Christ died for us" (Romans 5:6).

II. Brotherly Kindness. "He was borne of four" (Mark 2:3). These four men carrying the sick and helpless one to Jesus show us what united effort can do. One might have said, "I can do nothing for him," but the four say, "We can carry him." How many perishing souls are cruelly neglected for the lack of united effort among the Lord's people. These four nameless friends of the helpless are worth looking at.

1. See their Faith. "Jesus saw their faith" (Mark 2:5). To Him this was a lovely sight, four noble, trusting hearts. They believed that Jesus had, and was willing to give, what this poor, half-dead brother needed. They carry him like an empty pitcher to the fountain. They bring the benumbed and frozen one into the warmth of the Sun of Righteousness. They did their part believingly, and their faith was rewarded. According to your faith so shall it be. It takes four to carry a soul out of the darkness of sin into the light of salvation. (1) The love of the Father. (2) The blood of the Son. (3) The power of the Spirit. (4) The faith of the Christian. The first three are mighties, but the fourth? Ah, me, "Little faith."

2. See their Courage. "When they could not come nigh for the press they uncovered the roof" (Mark 2:4). They did not give up because there were a crowd of difficulties in the way. Wait for a more convenient season? No! Where there is a will to go to Jesus there is a way, if it should be down through the roof. Their method of taking a man to Christ caused a good deal of dust and confusion, and doubtless a good lot of unfavourable criticism, but the Lord never finds fault with the way we come, if we only come believing.

III. Divine Power. When we come to Jesus we are at once convinced that we have come into the presence of the Almighty. "The Word was God." In Mark 2:8 we see His power to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart. All things are naked before Him. But see His-

1. Power to Forgive. "Son, thy sins are forgiven thee" (Mark 2:5). This was spoken "when He saw their faith." This is the Gospel of Christ which is the power of God to every one that believeth. Is the Gospel to you an "I hope so," or "I know so." Don't expect forgiveness at the judgment when it is written, "The Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins" (Mark 2:10).

2. Power to Heal. "Arise, take up thy bed and walk" (Mark 2:9). He forgiveth all thine iniquities and healeth all thy diseases. "Bless the Lord, O my soul" (Psalms 103:1-2). He does not cleanse us from the pollution without delivering us from the power of sin. The salt of His saving grace is cast into the fountain-the spring of the life. In Christ we not only have the forgiveness of the past, but also the renewing of the Holy Ghost. Made new creatures in Christ Jesus.

IV. Conclusive Evidence. When a man has been saved by the Lord it must be seen in the changed life. He-

1. Arose. "Arise, and immediately he arose" (Mark 2:12). The bed that bore him he now joyfully carries. Jesus can easily make the troubles that bring us sorrowfully to Him to be taken up and borne gladly for Him. There is a real rising up of our true manhood when we come in our weakness to the feet of Jesus. As soon as we are quickened we are raised up (Ephesians 2:5-6).

2. Went Forth. When he went forth before them all they were amazed, and glorified God, saying, "We never saw it in this fashion" (Mark 2:12). No! this was a new fashion that did not come from the prince of earth, but from the King of Glory." "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and on earth" (Matthew 28:18). Go ye forth as one forgiven and healed after this new heavenly fashion, bearing witness to Him and praying that others may follow this fashion.

JESUS IN THE HOUSE.

Mark 2:1-12.

Jesus does not always get into the house. There are some houses where the door is shut in His face (Revelation 3:20). Sometimes He comes in uninvited (Luke 24:36), but He always accepts the invitation to come in (Luke 24:29). "If any man open the door I will come in" (Revelation 3:20). As the air rushes in to fill the empty space, so does the grace of Christ press in at every opening in our hearts. "Open thy mouth wide and I will fill it." We note some fresh lessons here, that-

1. Jesus condescends to come into the house (Mark 2:1). "Behold I stand at the door and knock." "He that inhabiteth eternity dwelleth with him that is of a contrite and humble spirit" (Isaiah 57:15). The mighty God seeketh an entrance into our hearts that we might "sup with Him." He who was laid in a manger will not pass by the poor and needy.

2. Jesus fills the house when He comes in. "There was no room" (Mark 2:2). There is no need for worldly entertainments to attract when Jesus comes in. When He comes in He brings a great company of new friends with Him. When the glory came into the temple it filled the house. He who is the fullness of the Godhead can surely fill up every desire and longing of the heart. Filled with the fullness of God.

3. When Jesus is in the house His presence cannot be hid (Mark 2:1). We cannot separate influence from the presence of Christ any more than we can have the rose without its fragrance, gold without colour, or the sun without light. If Christ dwells in our hearts the love of Christ will flow abroad. When Jesus comes in He leaves the door open for others to follow, and that His words may be heard without.

4. Those who come to Jesus may meet with difficulties (Mark 2:4). There was a crowd of hearers around the door. Hearers often stand in the way of seekers. Some are so stiff and selfish that they will not move an inch out of the old rut to allow a sinner to get to Christ. They are never out of their pew on Sunday, but they will not lift their little finger to save a soul. They will not enter themselves, nor suffer those who would.

5. Those who bring others to Jesus must not be afraid of new methods (Mark 2:4). If you can't get them in as others have come, let them down through the roof. If you can't get them out at the gate, let them down over the wall in a basket. If they don't understand the word "believe," try the word "come." If they will not come in go out to them. But what would they say? Well, let them say. Although they should call you a roof-breaking fanatic, what of that if sin-sick souls are saved. This is the new fashion.

6. Some will never come to Christ unless they are brought (Mark 2:3). If this sick man had not been carried to Jesus he certainly never would have been healed by Him. It takes four to bring a sinner to Jesus: (1) The Law of God. (2) The Spirit of God. (3) The Word of God. (4) The Servant of God.

7. When a man is really anxious to be saved he will not be ashamed to be helped. How often we have seen people blush and fidget when talked to about their need of salvation in the presence of others. It was like offering to run for a doctor to a man who believed himself in good health. The man of Ethiopia was glad of direction because his soul was in deep concern (Acts 8:31), so was the jailer (Acts 16:30).

8. When a man is healed his life will show it (Mark 2:12). No man can ever remain the same after coming into contact with Jesus Christ. The sun either softens or hardens, revives or withers. The bed on his back was evidence enough that a great change had been wrought. All whose sins are forgiven are called upon to glorify God in their body.

9. Christ is all sufficient for all who come to Him. He was all sufficient for the sick and palsied, all sufficient for the faith of those who brought him, all sufficient to read the hearts of the reasoning onlookers. "God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (2 Corinthians 9:8). "Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out" (John 6:37). Is Jesus in your house? THE CALL OF LEVI.

Mark 2:14-17.

Levi is also called Matthew in the first Gospel. Matthew means God's gift, a beautiful name for a publican hired by the Romans to act as a tax gatherer. Perhaps he coveted this despised trade because of his greed of gain. For such evident backsliding his friends may have all disowned him. They looked upon such business as we would look on a temperance advocate starting a whisky shop, or as a Christian becoming a hawker of infidel books. The poor tax-gatherer's conscience may have been often goaded. His soul may have been at times sick of the whole affair, but what could he do? His opportunity comes-

I. Where he Got the Call. "While sitting at the receipt of custom" (Mark 2:14). While busy at his work. It was a sudden call. Jesus knows where to find those who in their hearts are longing to throw off the bondage of sin. In the midst of all the activities of a questionable business the call may come, or it may be while in the field, the workshop, the office, or the mill that the still small voice of a passing Saviour is heard.

II. When the Call Came. "As He passed by" (Mark 2:14). There is something pathetic about this. Jesus came near, He spake, He passed by. What an opportunity! What a privilege! How unexpectedly it came, how quickly it passes! How short the time to decide, how momentous the consequences! It was a passing offer of salvation, it was the now of the accepted time for him. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. He may be passing and calling you just now, or has He called and you refused? Are these things hid from thine eyes? "Oh, that thou hadst known in this, thy day" (Luke 19:42).

III. The Nature of the Call. "Follow Me" (Mark 2:14). He needed Christ, and Christ needed him. Did he not see the unexpressed yearning of his soul? Was it not the call of infinite love to come and partake of His infinite fullness? Jesus knew what Matthew needed, and that He was able to meet that need. It was a call to follow, to a life of constant obedience. All His calls are to higher experiences of grace and usefulness. "Come and see."

IV. The Response Made. "He arose and followed Him" (Mark 2:14). This was an effectual call. Effectual not only because it was the Lord's call, but because his heart had been prepared and made ready for it. The seed fell into prepared soil. So "all God's biddings are enablings." God's call always means separation from everything that conscience condemns. He could not take his toll-booth with him. It is worthy of note that the voice of God in the Word is always in harmony with the work of the Spirit within. The outward call of Christ comes in answer to the inward voice of the Holy Ghost. The Spirit convicts, the Saviour invites.

V. The Change Evidenced. "Jesus sat at meat in his house" (Mark 2:15). Luke says, "Levi made Him a great feast." He had opened the door; now the Lord comes in and sups with him. Yes, communion and fellowship always follow whole-hearted obedience. Some of the publicans, his old companions, are invited to meet with Jesus. This great feast declares that already he has been cured of his covetousness, and that he is now anxious to see others blessed. These are the signs which follow the follower of Jesus.

VI. The Great Question. "The scribes and Pharisees said, How is it that He eateth with publicans and sinners?" (Mark 2:16). We feel much obliged to them for raising this question. It is a far reaching one; it touches the infinitude of the grace of God. How is it? Only the Lord Jesus Christ Himself can answer it. The questioners, of course, have no sympathy for sinners, so they judge Him by their own miserable standard. How dark and hardened are the hearts that see this only fault! He loves the sinner. "Behold what love!"

VII. The Straight Answer. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance" (Mark 2:17). Have we not a proof in this that Levi felt himself a needy sinner. Because he was sick he needed a physician. The righteous by their righteousness exclude themselves from His healing and saving power. A beautiful window in one of our English Cathedrals was made of rejected pieces of glass by an unpopular workman. Our despised and rejected Lord is building for Himself a glorious Church with such good-for-nothing stuff as publicans and sinners, even the devil's castaways. "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out" (John 6:37). THE BRIDEGROOM.

Mark 2:18-22.

Another question, "Why do the disciples fast not." There are always those who have got the goggle-eye for differences and difficulties. The Spirit of truth and power is not determined by outward forms. It is always easy to point out what the disciples of the Lord Jesus don't do, while the many good things they are doing are unheeded as if they were not. But this calls forth from the Lord a new revelation of Himself in the character of a Bridegroom.

I. The Character of Christ. "The Bridegroom is with them" (Mark 2:19). The literal meaning of bridegroom is "the bride's man." The Church is the Bride, Christ is her Man. "The children of the bridechamber" are those who have access into the Bridegroom's presence, acquainted with His will and purposes, sharers of His secrets, and one in their sympathies and desires. The connection between the Lord and His people is expressed by two of the closest human relationships, children and bride, or wife; the same thought that we have in the Song of Solomon, "Thou hast ravished my heart, my sister, my spouse" (chap. Mark 4:9). The first relationship is by birth, the second is by mutual choice and agreement. "Ye must be born again" (John 3:3). "Choose this day whom you will serve" (Joshua 24:15).

II. The Influence of His Presence. "Can the children of the bridechamber fast while the Bridegroom is tenth them?" (Mark 2:19). Can the lover be sad in the presence of her sweetheart? Lamps are not needed in daylight. Those who, like the disciples of John and of the Pharisees, are under the law seeking to be justified by their works have need to fast. The disciples of Jesus are not under the law, but under grace, and the God of all grace is with them, making His grace sufficient for them. "Lo, I am with you." "Eat, O friends, and drink abundantly, O beloved" (S. of S. Mark 5:1). As long as they have the Bridegroom with them they cannot fast.

III. The Effect of His Absence. "When the Bridegroom is taken away then shall they fast" (Mark 2:20). This they did for three days after Christ was crucified, and again while they waited in the upper room for the coming of the Holy Spirit. Yes, it is time to fast when the presence of Christ is taken away from our hearts, then we may be sure that some sin has come in between and separated our fellowship. Here is a solemn thought for the unsaved. The Bridegroom with the Bride will be taken away, their day of grace will be gone, then shall they fast, for these things will be for ever hid from their eyes. The rich man lifted up his eyes in hell, being in torment (Luke 16:23). He had entered upon the final and eternal fast.

IV. The Nature of His Work. The work of Christ, or the grace of God which has come to us through Him, is represented here by two new things.

1. It is like New Cloth. New, or raw cloth, is not at all suitable for mending an old garment. "The rent is made worse." There has been a rent. The old garment of human righteousness is in rags. "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" (Isaiah 64:6). The new cloth of grace has not been given to patch up the old garment of works. When the prodigal came home he did not get his ragged coat repaired with new cloth. "Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him" (Luke 15:22). The work of Christ can never be used as a patch, our own works and His will never fit together in making for us a robe of righteousness. The righteousness of God which is upon all them that believe is a new and perfect thing. "By grace are ye saved, that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8).

2. It is like New Wine. New wine will not abide in the old skin bottles that have already been stretched out to their utmost capacity by the process of fermentation. The law of grace is that "new wine" must be put into "new bottles," else both will be wasted. The new wine of the kingdom needs the new heart as a vessel. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God" (1 Corinthians 2:14; John 14:17). The old bottle, fallen human nature, can never adapt itself to the receiving and preserving of the things of God. The new wine can only be the ruin of the old bottle. Crucify the flesh with its lusts, receive ye the Holy Ghost. If we would be filled with the Spirit (new wine), we must be made new creatures in Christ Jesus. "New wine is put into new bottles, and both are preserved" (Matthew 9:17). Preserved unto His coming and kingdom. THE WITHERED HAND.

Mark 3:1-7.

Observe here-

I. Where the Saviour Was. He was in the synagogue, the public place of worship. What is the house of prayer if Jesus is not there? A mere recitation hall. When Jesus is present there is sure to be an interest. He loves to frequent the house of prayer. So do all that are like Him. Do you love the prayer meeting, or is it to you a dry, meaningless ceremony? If the latter, you must be a stranger to the loving Jesus. Those who have no desire to commune with Him can have no fitness to dwell with Him. Now notice- II. Whom the Saviour Met.

1. A Man with a Withered Hand. Luke says it was his right hand, the hand we stretch out to receive. This may be taken to represent the faith by which the soul takes hold of the promises of God. How many withered hands there are still to be found at prayer meetings, how little taking hold of God? Friend, is your hand withered? Perhaps you are a backslider, and can remember the time when your hand of faith was healthy and strong. But now you have only the withered and helpless form.

2. Men with Withered Hearts. Those who "watched to accuse" (Mark 3:2). This class is not yet ceased out of the house of God. Besides the sleepy indifference there is often the watchful faultfinder. Is your heart so withered that you have no love to Jesus and no sympathy with His work? To find fault with the all-wise Son of God and His infallible Word and working is surely the height of human arrogance. Remember, the eyes of the Almighty are watching you. Now hear- III. What the Saviour Said.

1. To the Man with the Withered Hand. "Arise, stand in the midst" (margin). This would not be very pleasant exercise for one that desired to conceal his need. He that covereth his sins shall not prosper. You cannot be in a fit state to be saved so long as you are ashamed to confess your need. The Lord could have cured this man sitting as easily as standing, and in his own house as readily as in the synagogue; but in all likelihood if he had remained at his own fireside he never would have been healed. If your backsliding and unbelief are to be healed you must confess them; and if you confess, He is "faithful and just to forgive" (1 John 1:9).

2. To those with the Withered Hearts, the fault-finders, He said, "Is it lawful to do good or evil, to save or to kill?" (Mark 3:4). Not to do good when you can is to do evil; not to save when you might is to kill. "They held their peace." Ah, yes! one word from His lips and the accusers are speechless. Are you among those who would rather hold a certain form of religion that kills than give it up for the reality that gives life? The letter withereth, bindeth, killeth. The Spirit reviveth, liberateth, giveth life. Is yours, then, the religion of joyous liberty, or formal, miserable bondage?

IV. What the Saviour Felt. He-

1. Was Angry. "He looked round about on them with anger." In the Old Testament much is said about "the anger of the Lord." In the New much is said about "the love of the Lord." But remember, this is one Lord. "The wrath of the Lamb" is as holy as "the blood of the Lamb." Oh! poor, self-righteous, fault-finding sinner, beware! If you do not confess your sins, and seek His mercy, and receive His forgiveness now, the awful look that renders speechless, and the awful wrath that makes eternal misery, will be yours. Despise His love, and you shall be despised. But more-

2. Was Grieved "at the blindness (margin) of their hearts." While He is justly angry at man's presumption, He is sadly grieved at man's ignorance. He was not grieved because He was watched and misunderstood and maligned. He says, "Weep not for me, but weep for yourselves and your children" (Luke 23:28), for well the Saviour knows what your end will be if you refuse Him. If you have never grieved over your own ignorance and hardness of heart, just think of the merciful Saviour's grief over you.

V. What the Saviour Did. He-

1. Restored the Withered Hand. Nothing is impossible with Him. When this man "stood forth" at the word of Jesus, he no doubt expected that Jesus would heal him. So if you make full and honest confession of sin you may confidently expect forgiveness. Adam put forth his hand and took forbidden fruit, and immediately his spiritual hand was withered. All his sons are born with a withered hand. They can receive nothing unless it be given them of God. But when the hand is restored they can lay hold on eternal life. Is your hand withered? Jesus only can restore it.

2. Withdrew Himself (Mark 3:7). There are three classes from whom Jesus withdraws Himself: the faultfinding, as we see here; the curious (John 12:21-36); and the unwilling (Luke 8:37). How sad when He who is the Light of the world turns His back upon those in blindness! Take care how you treat the gentle Lamb of God. Say unto Him, "Come," and He cometh; but say, "Go," and at last He goeth.

Here is your Solemn Choice: Restoration or withdrawal. Wilt thou be made whole, or must He depart? THE SECRET SEED.

Mark 4:26-29.

The history of the kingdom is very briefly portrayed in these few pithy words. The Church as a heavenly principle is planted, it grows, and apart from the fact that it is divine in its nature, who can explain its growth? The earth has a power to make the seed spring up that we cannot explain, invisible but mighty. The Holy Ghost is this mysterious, life-giving, invisible energy in the world. Christ has gone into His rest, but still the seed grows. The world wonders, but the believing rejoice. The withering frosts of unbelief, the sweeping storms of persecution, have not hurt the blade, neither will they injure the ear nor lessen the fruit. Secret power gave it life, mysterious influence nurtured it. Now the reaping time comes, and the separating sickle passes over the field, and the harvest is translated (caught up) into the more immediate presence of the owner ere the winter of judgment and desolation comes upon the earth. But we have here also practical lessons for the sowers of the Word. Notice then-

I. The Committal of the Seed. "Cast into the ground" (Mark 4:26). This is the first step toward a harvest. Gathering seed may be pleasant, but scattering it is profitable. There are those who are so taken up with searching the Word that they neglect to preach the Word. It is good to learn, but we must learn to do. There are others who sow, sow, sow, at least they go through the form, whether they have any seed or not. But the form without "the Word" can never bring a harvest.

Seed is either for eating or for sowing. Don't sow that which you ought to eat. Let your own soul first be fed, but don't keep that which you ought to cast forth.

II. The Attitude of Faith. "Sleep, and rise night and day" (Mark 4:27). Having sowed the seed he rests; he does not fret and worry himself about the results. But this is not the sleep of idleness. He rises night and day and pursues his needful work, but the seed is left where it should be and as it should be. How much dreaming and anxiety there is in the minds of some Christian workers about the seed sown, how little they rest in faith! He sowed the tares and went his way, no doubt confident that they would spring up. He had faith in his seed. If we sow the good seed we may be confident that it will grow, it is incorruptible. But it will grow none the better through our sleeplessness and painful staring at the field. Put in the seed, have faith in God, and go on rejoicing in the hope of a harvest.

III. The Mystery of Life. It springs and grows "he knoweth not how" (Mark 4:27). The sower believes the seed will grow, not because he understands the hidden mystery of life, but because he believes in God's wonderful arrangement in nature. All life in the earth is a mystery, but how much more the life of God in the human soul. But no sower need be discouraged because he cannot exactly explain the mystery of the second birth, the good seed sown will grow all the same. In the wonderful arrangement of the Triune God it is so. It is the Spirit that quickeneth. "Born again by the incorruptible Word of God" (1 Peter 1:25). This is the mysterious life of the kingdom of grace, and even the subjects of it "knoweth not how." But though life, as such, is a mystery, yet it is a great undeniable fact. It proves itself. Every springtime is a revival. So the new life in the soul will manifest its own existence like Aaron's rod (Num. 17).

IV. The Revelation of Earth. "The earth bringeth forth fruit of herself" (Mark 4:28). It is the nature of the earth to manifest that which it receives in a more fruitful form. Everything hid shall be revealed, that which was buried in secret shall come abroad (Mark 4:22). It is the light of Heaven that draws the hidden things to light. There is a solemn heart-searching principle here. Nothing shall be hid from the face of God. The light of the Great White Throne will bring the hidden and the secret seeds of man's sowing to light. The good and the bad must all appear, and that in their most fruitful form. They that "sow the wind shall reap the whirlwind" (Hosea 8:7). The earth may hide for a time, but yield it must. Even the dead committed to its dark, cold bosom must come forth at the brightness of His rising. Oh! what shall the harvest be? Just what the sowing has been. What man casts in, the earth casts forth, some thirty, some sixty, some a hundredfold.

V. The Degrees of Growth. "The blade, the ear, and the full corn" (Mark 4:28). The blade is the first manifestation of life. There was life before it was visible, but it was wholly earthly, until now it was judged as dead. True, the work was going on, as the Word acts in the heart. We might look on-

1. The Blade as the tongue of outward profession. It makes a show openly, and declares its intention of bearing fruit. But every blade does not blossom into the full corn in the ear. There is the worm, the fowl, and the weather, the world, the flesh, and the devil, by which many a hopeful blade is blasted.

2. The Ear may represent that preparedness and readiness to receive without which there can be no fruit. Before the soul comes into this hopeful state many a cold night and many a trying day has to be endured, but when through suffering the soul is made meet for Himself, then the fruit will be found. An open ear to Heaven will soon be abundantly satisfied.

3. The Full Corn. Here we see the soul filled with all the fullness of God. Now there is the full ear bending under the weight of precious treasure, the soul satisfied and bowing in lowliness in the breath of Heaven, in the atmosphere of the Holy Ghost. Waiting on the Lord, and showing forth His praise till He come.

VI. The Sickle of Death. "He putteth in the sickle" (Mark 4:29). The sickle does not in any way destroy the grain, but only separates it from the earth, and separation is the only way to security. The action of the sickle is but the parting stroke. How beautiful that while one hand wields the sickle there is another hand which immediately grasps the falling corn. That is the hand of Him who saves. Why should we fear death when it cuts our connection with the earth, where we were bound and exposed to the nights of chill and days of scorching, and liberates us from all that is earthly and fits us for the Father's house of shelter and repose. The ripened grain dreads not the sickle, but can say, "0 death, where is thy sting?" (1 Corinthians 15:55). Why should I dread Him who comes to break my fetters and send me home to my Father's house. But awfully solemn thought to the tares, the sickle means the fire, it is separation from all the present, without a fitness for the garner, and only fit for the place of burning.

LET US PASS OVER.

Mark 4:35-41.

The circumstances are well known. But might we not use this incident as a parable of the whole Christian life. When Christ comes into our hearts, as He came into the disciples' hearts, does He not in a spiritual sense just say to us what He said to them as He cast His eye on the other side of the sea, "Let us pass over unto the other side." So with Him we turn our eyes Heavenward, and make for the shore. We will look then at the Christian life as-

I. A Voyage. "Let us pass over" (Mark 4:35). Death is sometimes spoken of as a "passing over to the great majority." Every day we are passing over the waters of life to the other side. The sea is a fit emblem of life, or rather the varied circumstances that go to make up a human life. There go the ships, "not painted ships upon a painted ocean," but immortal souls rising and falling upon the billows of time, and disappearing one by one, as they pass beyond the horizon of mortality where earth and sky meet.

II. A Voyage fraught with Trial. "There arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship" (Mark 4:37). The believers' trials and difficulties spring from two sources. The wind of circumstances without, and the waves of doubt and fear within. As long as the waves are kept out of the boat the storm will do little damage. Into the tempest of sorrow and affliction we must often go; even the presence of Christ with us does not save us from these, but His presence assures safety in the midst of them. Following Christ always implies cross-bearing (Acts 9:16).

III. A Voyage Accompanied with Christ. "Let us pass over.... He was in the hinder part of the ship" (Mark 4:38). Lo, I am with you, He hath said, "I will never leave thee" (Hebrews 13:5). Jesus was silent, but His presence should have comforted their hearts. We may be sweetly conscious that a friend is in the room with us, although there is silence as though both are differently engaged. Christ dwells in our hearts by faith. No storm in itself can ever disturb the calm repose of the soul of Christ. His faith casts out all fear.

IV. A Voyage Signalled with Miraculous Deliverances. "He arose and rebuked the winds and the sea, and there was a great calm" (Mark 4:39). Thus their sore trouble was the occasion of the manifestation of His great power. Who would choose to escape the storm when such wondrous grace is given. In the fiery furnace the reality of His preserving power is felt and known. "No chastening for the present seems joyous, but grievous; nevertheless afterwards it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness" (Hebrews 12:11). God is able. God is with us.

V. A Voyage that Should be without Fearfulness.

Jesus said, "Why are ye so fearful? How is it that ye have no faith?" (Mark 4:40). They were fearful because their faith in Him was faulty. Fearfulness, like a rank weed, springs up out of the soil of weak faith. Why are ye fearful?

1. Christ is in the Boat of the Heart. "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Colossians 1:27). "Greater is He that is in you than He that is in the world" (1 John 4:4). Can the boat sink when the Son of God is in it? Let the oarsmen-thoughts, feelings, and affections-cheer up. None perish that trust Him. "Why are ye fearful?"

2. Christ is in the Boat of the Church. "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved" (Psalms 46:5). God shall help her. He walketh "in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks" (Revelation 2:1). "The Lord thy God is in the midst of thy camp" (Deuteronomy 23:14). She will be brought safe to the other side. Not one passenger wanting. Though now greatly tossed with tempest, and the waves of worldliness beating into the ship, He will come in His great glory and deliver from all her fears. "Why are ye fearful?"

3. Christ is in the Boat of the Scriptures. His Word is settled in Heaven, and can never be broken. All the winds and waves of criticism will never swamp this holy craft. "They testify of Me" (John 5:39). With one word He can hush the overwhelming storm and calm the rage of the invading breakers. He speaks, and it is done. "Why are ye fearful?"

4. Christ is in the Boat of Providence. We don't trust providence, but the God who ruleth over all and in all. "All things work together for good to them that love God" (Romans 8:28). By Him all things consist or are upheld. Then Christ who is with us has all in His own hand. "All power in Heaven and on earth" (Matthew 28:18), therefore fear not, little flock. Cast all your care upon Him, for He careth for you. "Why are ye fearful?" "Be not afraid, only believe" (Mark 5:36). THE CRY OF THE PERISHING.

Mark 4:36-41.

Although Christ be in the ship it is not always smooth sailing, but it is safe. Those in company with Him are as safe as Himself. We can easily see in this incident a picture of the Great Salvation. Christ's acts are parables as well as His words.

I. Those Ready to Perish. "The waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full" (Mark 4:37). The boat was waterlogged, and at the point of sinking. The cause was twofold. There was-

1. The Storm Without. Circumstances had changed, all things seem to be against them. The wind of adversity comes from different quarters. Business may fail, a member of the family may have gone astray, disease may have fastened like a viper on some beloved one, death may have visited the home, and Jesus seems to sleep, no help seems nigh. Or, perhaps it is-

2. The Waves Within that fills with dread and alarm. A ship in the sea may weather the storm, but when the sea is in the ship this is hopeless. When the elements of sin and iniquity flood the soul, then all prospect of safety is cut off. All the oars and pumps of human effort are unavailing. Cease your struggling and call upon the Lord.

II. The Great Question. "Carest Thou not that we perish" (Mark 4:38). Only when the ship began to fill did they begin to cry. It is surely time to call upon God when we find that the more we try to keep afloat the deeper we sink into the sea of iniquity and failure. There is something startlingly harsh about this cry, "Carest Thou not." Did He care not? Did He sleep the sleep of indifference? His undisturbed composure might have rebuked their fears and unbelief. If He could afford to take it easy so well might they. "Carest Thou not that we perish?" Let His humiliation, suffering, and death on the Cross be the answer. "He careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7; 2 Peter 3:9). "Call upon Me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver you."

III. The Divine Response. "He arose and rebuked the wind and the sea" (Mark 4:39). When He arises to the help of the needy it is Almighty help He gives. All the resources of Heaven and earth, of God and eternity, centre in Him (Colossians 1:17). He rose again for our justification.

Jesus Christ fully answers the cry of the perishing by-

1. His Rebuking Word. "He rebuked the wind" (Mark 4:39). It is not-blessed be His Name-the cry of the needy that He rebukes, but the cause of their distress. He rebukes the stormy power of sin that lashes its waves of sorrow and fear into the sinking soul. By His rising from the dead the tempest of God's righteous wrath has been rebuked for every believer. There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus. He hath delivered us from the wrath to come.

2. His Peace-speaking Word. "He said unto the sea, Peace, be still" (Mark 4:39). He not only removes the cause, but also heals the effect. He not only saves from wrath, but from the power of sin. He not only saves from fear, but fills the soul with the peace of God. These disciples could not get this peace apart from His Word, no more can you. It was His peace. He "hath made peace through the blood of His Cross" (Colossians 1:20). "My peace I give unto you" (John 14:27). Believe Him, and enter into His rest.

IV. The Amazing Effect. There was-

1. Instant Obedience. "The wind ceased" (Mark 4:39). They called, He spoke, and it was done. His Word was with power. Oh, the divinity that may be sleeping at our side like the great forces in nature that have just lately been awakened to the help of man! Do we really know what "God with us" means? The wind and the waves obey His will. He shall take vengeance on "them that obey not" (2 Thessalonians 1:8).

2. A Great Calm. The calm of Christ is always as great as the storm of sin. "He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still" (Psalms 107:29). The sacrifice of Christ has a mighty stilling effect upon the judgments of God, and upon the restless waves of doubt in the human soul.

"Great peace have they that love Thy law" (Psalms 119:165). This is a calm the storms of life or the billows of death cannot disturb. Our heavenly Jonah was cast forth into the sea of sin and suffering, and for us "the sea ceased from her raging" (Jonah 1:15). May His "peace be still" still be our peace.

3. A Trembling Astonishment. "They feared exceedingly, saying, What manner of man is this? or, Who then is this?" (r. v.). Their fearfulness and unbelief is rebuked by this gracious manifestation of His care and conquering power. "Who then is this?" Shall we ever know all that Jesus Christ is able to be to us and do for us? When we shall see Him as He is in the glory of His Father, then may we say with a still deeper meaning, "What manner of man is this?" (Revelation 1:13-18). THE TERRIBLE DEMONIAC.

Mark 5:1-20.

Christ had just calmed the sea and made the furious billows to sleep at His feet. At the other side He is again face to face with a perishing soul caught in a hurricane of wicked spirits. This soul, like the disciples' ship, was now full, but He who cares for the perishing has come to seek and to save. The character of an unclean spirit comes out in the acts of this man. He-

I. Dwelt Among the Tombs (Mark 5:3). What took him there? Like draws to like. An unclean spirit will always choose an unclean place. There is nothing in the man to contradict or resist this foul passion. The evil spirit within is his master. He is the helpless instrument in the hand of the devil. "By their fruits ye shall know them" (Matthew 7:20). Figs never grow on thistles.

II. Wandered Among the Mountains (Mark 5:5). The path of his daily walk was a very uneven one. The ways of transgressors arc hard. Those driven by the spirit of uncleanness will have many a stumble upon the dark mountains of remorse and despair. These are the paths of ravenous beasts, loathsome things, and treacherous pitfalls. Darkness within and darkness without, and no friendly hand or guiding star to lead. Oh, Christless soul, this is you! (Ephesians 2:12).

III. Could not be Restrained. He had been "often bound," but the chains and fetters he had "broken in pieces" (Mark 5:4). Now they have to confess that "no man could tame him." Humanly speaking his case is utterly hopeless. What a picture of a man possessed by the drink fiend or the lust of uncleanness! No temperance pledge or human restraint will ever be able to tame an ungodly man sufficiently to live the life of a Christian. The wicked, selfish, unbelieving spirits of darkness must be cast out. Moral suasion has not much effect on a demoniac. Regeneration is the only remedy (John 3:3). The chains of social propriety are but rotten straws to the unprincipled dupes of the devil.

IV. Cried and Gut Himself with Stones (Mark 5:5).

"Crying and cutting" themselves describe the feelings and actions of many who are the servants of sin. Cutting themselves at night with the sharp stones of lust and drunkenness, and crying in the morning with the pain of remorse or physical prostration. Self-inflicted misery characterises the demon possessed. They serve a hard master, one who cruelly compels, with their own consent, to work out their own destruction.

V. Was Afraid of Jesus. He cried, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the most high God?" (Mark 5:7). Those possessed by an unclean devil look upon the holy Son of God as an enemy to their lives. The light is blamed because it reveals the corruption within. "What have I to do with Thee?" Just what guilt has to do with mercy, or abject poverty with infinite sufficiency. Every one must have to do with Him. Sin takes such a grip of the spirit of man that it makes him even afraid of Him who came to save.

VI. Prayed for the Devils. "He besought Him that He would not send them away out of the country" (Mark 5:10). The unity of interests between the man and the unclean spirit is awfully real. When the ungodly justify themselves they are advocating the cause of Satan. If there is no separation of interests now there, will be no separation of punishments hereafter (Matthew 25:41). A man is justifying the devil when he seeks to be safe in his sin instead of from it, when he seeks peace without forgiveness.

VII. Sat at Jesus' Feet (Mark 5:15). What a change now! What a mercy that Jesus knows how utterly helpless a demon-possessed soul is, and that He is able and willing to deliver even when there is nothing but dread and alarm at His Name. He was-

1. Sitting. The poor devil-driven man who wandered "day and night in the mountains" has now found a resting-place at the feet of Jesus. No man could bind or tame him, but the grace of God was sufficient for him. He breathes freely now, being delivered "from the kingdom of Satan and translated into the kingdom of God's dear Son" (Colossians 1:13).

2. Clothed. Luke says that he "wore no clothes." The servants of Satan are all naked madmen in the sight of God. A new robe is put upon this returned prodigal, the righteousness of God which is unto all and upon all them that believe.

3. In His Right Mind. It is an evidence of insanity when a man prefers the tombs of the dead to the fellowship of the living. No one is in their right mind who has not the mind of Christ.

VIII. He Witnessed for Jesus. "He began to publish what great things Jesus had done for him" (Mark 5:20). He was now animated by a new spirit, the evidence of being a new creature. Witness-bearing is the natural result of the joy of salvation (Psalms 51:12-13; Isaiah 38:9-19; John 1:40-42).

JAIRUS' DAUGHTER.

Mark 5:22-24; Mark 5:35-43.

"Behold there cometh one Jairus by name." Jairus means a diffuser of light. As was his name, so was his nature. May the light of his life, as brought before us here, be diffused in our hearts. In this incident we have much food for thought. See the-

I. Blessed Result of Affliction. "He came and fell at His feet" (Mark 5:22). His daughter's dangerous illness drove him to Jesus. If we have any light in us at all we will flee to Him in the day of trouble. In a godless home there was one lying at the point of death. A neighbour said to the mother, "You should send for the minister." "Ah, me, has it come to that?" was the reply. Why should the appeal to God be always the last?

II. Readiness of Christ to Help. "And Jesus went with him" (Mark 5:24). He may have had a heavy heart in coming to Jesus, but now the burden is lightened when Jesus is with him. It is always much easier facing the difficulties when He is with us. None dare doubt or despair in His presence. "If Thy presence go not with us, carry us not up hence" (Exodus 33:15). It is one of the blessed wonders of grace that each troubled believer may have Jesus all to himself. Christ in me. "I will never leave thee." "The Lord is my Shepherd."

III. Trial of Faith. "Thy daughter is dead. Why troublest thou the Master any further?" (Mark 5:35). This would have been a fatal blow to staggering faith. Still here was a new difficulty. It was disease before, now it is death that Jesus had to face. Is Jesus sufficient still to satisfy all the desires of his heart? Those who would walk with Him will have their faith severely tested. But the trial of your faith is precious. "Why trouble the Master any further?" These words reveal the limit of their faith and expectations. It is possible to honour Him with the life-calling Him Master-while the heart's confidence is far away. How far are we prepared, through faith, to let the Master go with us into the human impossibilities that are ever before us? Or have we ceased to trouble Him about the dead that are around us?

IV. Master's Encouragement. "He said unto the ruler, Be not afraid, only believe" (Mark 5:36). This word was given "as soon as He heard the word that was spoken." He knows how to speak a word in season to him that is weary. He means to meet and satisfy the trust reposed in Himself. With Him nothing shall be impossible. "If thou wouldst believe thou shouldst see the glory of God" (John 11:40). The formal professor with his outward reverence and inward distrust has no faith in the miraculous; but to the simple, trustful heart Jesus whispers, "Be not afraid, only believe" (Mark 5:36). "Look unto Me, for I am God."

V. Rebuking Power of His Presence. "Why make ye this ado" (Mark 5:38-39). It is altogether unbecoming to make an ado when the presence of Him who is the resurrection and the life is with us. But these hypocritical mourners (hired ones) had no faith in Jesus, and so went on with their howling till His word of power fell on their ears, and turned their weeping into mocking. Christ as the Truth and the Son of Righteousness always pours His withering influence upon the hypocritical and unreal (Matthew 23:23; Mark 11:13-14).

VI. Place of the Unbelieving. "They laughed Him to scorn, but He put them all out" (Mark 5:40). Even He, who came to give His life a ransom for us, finds it needful to turn some outside ere He manifests the glory of His power. "The wicked shall be turned into hell." The good seed will only be fruitful in a good and honest heart. Man by his persistent unbelief renders himself unfit even to see the glory of His saving grace. "All liars," and the "unbelieving," "shall have their place in the lake of fire." When these sneering hypocrites were put out they no doubt would be justifying themselves, but they did not taste of the supper. The Lord could get on perfectly well without them. The foolish virgins were shut out.

VII. Awakening Call. "He took the damsel by the hand, and said, I say unto thee, arise, and straightway she arose and walked" (Mark 5:41-42). It was as easy for Him to raise the damsel out of the state of death as to put the mockers out of the house. Christ does His mightiest work as easily as He does the most simple and natural act. He can still the storm or raise the dead with the same ease that He brushed the locks of His hair off His brow with His fingers. Is not this the call that still comes through His Word to sleeping saints and dead sinners, "I say unto you, arise, for the day is far spent, and the night is at hand?" (Romans 13:11-12). THE HELPLESS WOMAN.

Mark 5:25-34.

Like nature, Jesus works without fuss or difficulty. He scatters profusely His gracious deeds of mercy without any thought of the praise of men. While on the way to raise the dead daughter of Jairus, virtue flows out of Him and revives this drooping, trusting spirit. What an inspiration this episode would be to Jairus, a handful on purpose. Notice her-

I. Disease. "She had an issue of blood twelve years" (Mark 5:25). Her very life was slowly ebbing away-the life is in the blood. In this condition she was: (1) Weak; (2) Unclean; (3) Miserable. Such are the effects of sin. The love of sin is a cancer in the soul. No mere external application can touch it, the wisdom of man has never yet found a remedy for it. She has been twelve years in the process of dying. We must die to live.

II. Effort. "She had spent all that she had" (Mark 5:26). She knew that she was diseased, and was willing to give, and did give, her all that she might secure deliverance from her misery. There is hope for a soul when it comes to this. No shamming or scheming, no pretence of being good enough, no self-justification. She was earnest enough, but she went to the wrong source. Her cure was not to be purchased, she was spending her "money for that which was not bread" (Isaiah 55:1-2).

III. Failure. "Nothing bettered, but rather grew worse" (Mark 5:26). Worse than ever, and all her means gone. She is now "without hope" as far as her own resources are concerned. Her physicians were all of no value. Neither Dr. False-peace, Dr. Good-enough, nor Dr. Do-better can touch the sore of sin. The prodigal did not earn the best robe. The thirst can only grow worse when water is sought at broken cisterns (Romans 4:5).

IV. Faith. "She said, If I may but touch His clothes, I shall be whole" (Mark 5:28). She had evidently heard of Jesus, and believed what she heard. Faith cometh by hearing. Her faith was simple, yet, O so great. She is poor, has nothing to give, she expects no medicine from Him, yet she believes that a touch of the fringe of His garment will bring instant salvation. Jesus was to her the source and centre of almighty fullness. Weak faith may touch a great Saviour. "Believe and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

V. Victory. "Straightway she felt that she was healed" (Mark 5:29). According to your faith, so shall it be unto you. She did not say, "If I touch I shall be healed," and sit still, hoping to have another chance some future day. Her faith brought her into personal contact with the Lord. The faith that does not do this is no faith.

1. Her cure was sudden. "Straightway." Immediately Christ answers the cry of trust and fills the hand of faith.

2. Her cure was complete. "Dried up." The very fountain of her trouble was dried up. His remedy goes to the root. "Convalescent" does not belong to the vocabulary of the Great Physician. Perfectly whole.

3. Her cure was consciously enjoyed. "She felt." She could not feel better till she was better. We cannot feel saved till we are saved.

VI. Confession. "She came and told Him all the truth" (Mark 5:33). The question of Jesus, "Who touched My clothes," was designed to bring her to a public acknowledgment of the blessing received. He would not have her go away with the uncomfortable feeling that she had stolen the cure, or with the unconsciousness that it was (he gift of God. This healing virtue went forth in answer to her faith and according to His will. She had believed with the heart, now she must "confess with the mouth" (Romans 10:10). We may be healed by the touch of trust, but we are strengthened in our trust by confession with the lips. "Whosoever is ashamed of Me and My Word, of him will I be ashamed" (Mark 8:38).

VII. Assurance. "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace" (Mark 5:34). She would not have had this comforting word had she not made open confession. She was saved by faith, and assured by His word. If she had gone away without this promise she might have been in constant dread of the terrible disease returning; but now she not only feels well, but she has His word for it that she has been made whole of her plague. There are many who lack the joy of salvation because they do not in their lives confess Christ before men (1 John 4:15).

HEROD; OR, THE DECEITFULNESS OF SIN.

Mark 6:14-28.

The struggle of darkness and light was never more apparent than in the case of Herod and John Baptist. Here the purity of Heaven comes into contact with the foulness of Hell. The herald of Christ and the ambassador of Satan face to face. Such a meeting is sure to be a crisis in the lives of both. But it is with Herod we wish specially now to deal. Let us try and set his terrible downgrade experiences in order See him-

I. Warned of His Sin. "John said unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife" (Mark 6:18). The heavenly searchlight is made to flash into the dark, hidden parts of his life. His besetting sin is pointed out, his unlawful life exposed (Leviticus 20:21). This was the day of his merciful visitation if he had only known it. The light of deep conviction is often like the glare of the bull's-eye lamp, it blinds to everything else. Saul kicked against the pricks, but the goad was in the hand of his Redeemer.

II. Reforming through Fear. "Herod feared John, and did many things" (Mark 6:20). He seems now on the fair way to work out his own salvation. This is the usual course with those animated only by the "pride of life." The sense of sin is frequently followed with attempts at reformation. But with Herod, as with many, the power of his darling sin remained unbroken and unchecked. One thing was needful. "Let the wicked forsake his ways" (Isaiah 55:7).

III. Enslaved by the Opinions of Others. "He laid hold on John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake" (Mark 6:17). The voice of lust gets the victory over the voice of conscience and of God. By one rash act he quenches the light of the Heaven-sent message. In pleasing Herodias he turns away from, and sets at naught, the divine warning. It may be that the fear of others is even now hindering you from acting up to the measure of light you have. What about companions, your own opinions, or worldly pleasures and associations? Are they bond-slaves or masters? For whose sake is your life fashioned?

IV. Pleased with a Passing Show. "The daughter of Herodias danced and pleased Herod" (Mark 6:22). The moral passage from hearing John gladly down to being pleased with the dance of a strumpet is very short. When the cup of salvation has been deliberately rejected with what nervous greed men grasp the poisonous cup of sinful pleasure. "As soon as Judas had received the sop he went out, and it was night" (John 13:30).

V. Surrendering His Dignity. "Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom" (Mark 6:23). Sin first interests, then excites, then captivates. Where are thousands of young men and young women to-day? They have allowed the god of pleasure to dance so long before their eyes, and their passions to be so inflamed, that all that goes to dignify their natures have been rashly sacrificed to this god. "The god of this world hath blinded their minds." Yielding to temptation leads to being "led captive by the devil at his will."

VI. Driven by Compulsion. "The king was exceeding sorry, yet for the oath's sake he would not reject her" (Mark 6:26). Herod was rather startled when she asked the "head of John the Baptist. "He had sold himself, now he is the slave of another. Sin's pleasures ripen into terrible demands. The pleasant tippling often leads to the drunkard's crave. "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:15).

VII. Remembering the Past. "When Herod heard thereof he said, It is John whom I beheaded" (Mark 6:16). The words and works of Christ revive his guilty conscience. If John had not risen from the dead a sense of his guilt and crime had. There is no grave of man's making deep enough to bury sin. Oh, unsaved one, will you be constrained to say in that day when Christ shall come again, "It is Jesus whom I crucified, therefore mighty works do show forth themselves in Him." "What wilt thou do in the solemn day?" (John 13:30). THE MYSTERIOUS FEAST.

Mark 6:35-44.

In following Jesus we may sometimes be led into what many would call "a desert place," but such places are made to blossom like the rose when His presence is with us. Our desert places shut us up to faith in Him, and afford Him an opportunity of showing forth the glory of His power. The lion's den was a desert place for Daniel, but it proved, through the grace of God, a place of marvellous blessing and triumph. In the tedious and lonesome hours of trial and bereavement the Christian has a meat to eat that the world knows nothing of. See here-

I. The Scheme of Human Reasoning. "The disciples said, Send them away, that they may buy themselves bread " (Mark 6:36). Go and help yourselves; do as well as you can. This is all the Gospel any man can preach who is yet a stranger to the infinite grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. "Send them away." He never sends the hungry empty away. Send them away! Away where? Away from the Fountain to seek water; away from the Living Bread to buy for themselves? Their reasons are: Because-

1. They Had Nothing to Eat (Mark 6:36). They had nothing of their own whereby to satisfy themselves (who has?). So they must go and seek it elsewhere, but not in Christ. Such is the Gospel of carnal wisdom, a wisdom which is foolishness with God.

2. This is a Desert Place (Mark 6:35). Yes, this world is a desert place, and apart from Christ there is no satisfaction in it. Perplexity is sure to overtake those who trust more in circumstances than in the Lord. If while following Him we have been led into the "desert place," we may be sure that even here His grace will be made sufficient for us.

3. The Time is Far Passed (Mark 6:35). According to their seasonings the longer they continued with Jesus the more hopeless did their case become. "Send them away." Although the present dispensation is far spent, although your own lifetime is far spent, and the night of old age fast settling down, you need not depart. "My God shall supply all your need" (Php_4:19).

II. The Language of Divine Compassion. "Jesus was moved with compassion" (Mark 6:34). Human need appeals to the heart of Christ, and not it vain, for He is moved. "We have not an High Priest who cannot be touched" (Hebrews 4:15). His compassion being moved. His almighty power is ready to act. But meanwhile He says-

1. "Give Ye Them to Eat." In so saying He reveals His desire toward the hungry that they might be fed, and brings out their utter helplessness that they might have faith in Him. He says, "Feed My sheep," that we might say, "Lord, evermore give us this bread."

2. "How Many Loaves Have Ye?" He asks no more than we have. If His wonder-working power is to be seen through us as His servants we must give Him what we have. "Bring them to Me." The gifts may be small, the talents may be few, but in His hands they will be made sufficient to accomplish the purposes of His grace concerning us. Even the two hundred pennyworth of man's natural wisdom and effort will be insufficient without Him.

3. "Make Them All Sit Down." The disciples would send the tired and the starving away, but Jesus says to such, "Sit down." Your strength, exhausted one, is to sit still, not to sit down in despair, but to rest in faith, looking unto Jesus.

III. The Attitudes of Almighty Grace. His actions are as weighty as His words. He-

1. Looked Up. Those who have hungry souls to feed will need often to look up. This bread must come down from Heaven (Matthew 4:4).

2. Blessed. We will have good cause for thanksgiving if we have exercised the look up of faith. The disciples could see nothing worthy of such special thanks, but He believed that having asked He had received (see Mark 11:24).

3. Gave. He that, in this sense, looketh and blesseth, will surely have something to give. He gave, He did not sell. The Lord of life does not deal out His blessings in pennyworths. The disciples were here taught that in giving it would be given them. He gives "to all liberally" (Romans 6:23).

IV. The Provision of Infinite Love (Php_4:19). It was-

1. Suitable. "They did all eat." It suited their poverty, it was free. It suited their perplexity, it was given them just where they were. There is a beautiful and exact fitness in the salvation of God. "Eat, O friends!"

2. Satisfying. "They all did eat, and were filled." "He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness" (Psalms 107:9). The world can only give stones for bread to those who seek to glorify God. Hungry soul O take the bread of God.

3. Sufficient. "They took up twelve baskets of fragments." If any one went away dissatisfied these fragments which were left testified that it was not Christ's fault. In the atonement of Jesus, the Son of God, there is ample provision for every creature under Heaven. If you are not saved it is not because there is not enough for all. The twelve baskets left will be a swift witness against the unbeliever. Why will ye die? THE IMPEDIMENTS REMOVED.

Mark 7:31-37.

In Christ there was an all-sufficiency for all times. The holy anointing was upon Him, so that He could preach the Gospel by His mighty saving acts as well as by His comforting words. Our words are plentiful, but how much Gospel has been found in our deeds?

I. The Sorrowing Subject.

1. He was Deaf. The most joyful tidings met with no response in his soul, this avenue was closed. But although he could not hear the words of love, he could see an act of grace. Like many more who are deaf to the preached Word but not blind to the acted Word.

2. He had an Impediment in his Speech. Those deaf to God's words will never be able to speak freely for Him. A dull ear makes a stammering tongue. His promise is, "When I speak with thee I will open thy mouth" (Ezekiel 3:27).

3. He was Brought to Jesus. This is better than trying to argue with him. If our friends are deaf to the call of God let us take them to the Lord in prayer. His virtue can adapt itself to the need of all (Luke 8:46).

II. The Saving Acts of Jesus.

1. He Took Him Aside. The first step into the liberty and joy of His salvation is to get alone with Jesus. Let us turn aside, like Moses, "and see this great sight" (Exodus 3:3). Enter into thy closet, and in the sanctuary of thy soul hear Him.

2. He Put His Fingers Into His Ears. It is often the din of the world that deafens the ear to the voice of God. Yes, when alone with Him His fingers are sure to find out the hidden cause of every impediment. Has it not been so in our experience? Have we not been constrained to say again and again, "This is the finger of God" (Exodus 8:19).

3. He Spit. This common act may deem unworthy of the Son of God. But there is nothing insignificant in the doings of Christ. Out of His mouth comes the healing balm (Mark 8:23). "He sent His Word, and healed them" (Psalms 107:20).

4. He Touched His Tongue. When the ear is opened the tongue is loosed. Those who have really heard what God the Lord hath spoken "cannot but speak the things which they have seen and heard" (Acts 4:20). A dumb tongue indicates a deaf ear.

5. He Looked Up to Heaven. The source of all grace and blessing is in the heart of the Father. Every good gift is "from above." All who would follow His steps in doing the works of God must be conscious of the need of "looking up."

6. He Sighed. What a spontaneous expression of the depth and reality of His sorrow and sympathy! Blessed sigh that betrays the secret, sacred, suffering soul of the Saviour. He can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities. "Set a mark on those that sigh" (Ezekiel 9:4).

7. He Said, "Be Opened." He spake, and it was done. His Word shall not return void. His Word was with power (Luke 4:32) Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved. With equal authority He, by the Holy Ghost, hath said, "Be filled with the Spirit." Be opened, be saved, be filled.

III. The Sudden Change. Straightway his ears were opened The Word of God is intended to, and always does, and always will, take immediate effect when spoken in the power of the Holy Spirit.

1. His Ears were Opened. The need was great, the will was yielded, the work was done And it was all His doing. Opened ears and honest hearts to hear and receive the Word of God form the channel through which the fullness and power of God flows.

2. His Tongue was Loosed. How could he speak of Him of whom he had not heard} A draught of the new wine from heaven was a wonderful power in loosening the tongue (Acts 2 1-13). The tongue can no man tame, but the Holy Ghost can both tame it, and tune it, and make it a weapon mighty for God.

3. He Spake Plain. A man usually speaks plain when he thoroughly knows what he is talking about, and feels the power of it in his own soul Abraham declared plainly, because he was persuaded of the promises, and had embraced them (Hebrews 11:13-14), We believe and therefore speak. If Pentecost means anything it means plain speaking, because it implies definite and powerful conviction. THE SATISFYING POWER OF JESUS.

From whence hath the lowly Jesus this fascinating influence that constrains a hungry multitude to follow Him into the wilderness, and in spite of their physical weakness to hang on the words of His mouth? In Him are the springs of life and eternal blessedness. Blessed are all they who have made this soul-ravishing discovery. Like Abraham, they will go out, although they know not whither they are going. When, like Elisha, the mantle of His prophetic influence is cast over us we cannot but follow. It was so with Moses and David, with Matthew and Saul, with all who have come within the Spirit's constraining power, the called of God, as was Aaron.

I. A Picture of Need. "The multitude have nothing to eat" (Mark 8:2). They were in the wilderness, a barren place, in circumstances that could by no means afford satisfaction. Nothing to eat. How expressive of an awakening soul, still a stranger to the covenants of promise, having no hope. In His mercy He leads us into such desolate places that we might see His saving power.

II. A Revelation of Love. "I have compassion on the multitude" (Mark 8:2). They had been with Him for three days. The Lord not only counted the days, but also measured the depths of their need. Their poverty and helplessness moves His heart, and stirs up His soul into tenderest compassion and practical sympathy. "I have compassion." Hungry soul, look up, here is a door of entrance into the fullness of God. It is said of the prodigal that "no man gave unto him" (Luke 15), but the father had compassion. This was enough.

III. A Consideration of Grace. "If I send them away fasting they will faint by the way" (Mark 8:3). Yes, if He sends us away there is nothing before us but fainting and perishing. If He cannot satisfy the longing soul with good, who can? If He sends the hungry empty away to whom can they go? But "we have not an High Priest who cannot be touched with a feeling of our infirmities" (Hebrews 4:15-16).

IV. A Question of Helplessness. "From whence can a man satisfy these with bread here in the wilderness?" (Mark 8:4). Those disciples who are really anxious to satisfy the multitude with bread will be deeply conscious of their own inability. Vain is the help of man. Instead of seeking to satisfy them with bread, how many there are who seek merely to entertain and amuse them, endeavouring to get them to forget their hunger. Miserable comforters! It is not in man to satisfy these. But one is near who is able to supply all their need, the Man Christ Jesus.

V. An Attitude of Trust. "He commanded the people to sit down" (Mark 8:6). Jesus asks, "How many loaves have ye?" They said, "Seven." He said, "Sit down." In sitting down doubtless their expectation would be awakened. Their faith could not rest on the seven loaves, but on the compassionate and almighty Saviour Himself. It does take a measure of faith to "sit down" in circumstances like these. Wouldst thou see the salvation of God? Sit down and look up. Rest at His bidding and leave it all to Him.

VI. A Manifestation of Power. "He took the loaves and gave thanks, and brake and gave to His disciples, and commanded to set them also before them" (Mark 8:6-7). They gave Him what they had, and He through their little wrought the all-satisfying work. Your faith may be little, but if it is in Him He will prove Himself sufficient for thee. How the few loaves gave place to the miraculous bread no one could tell. It was enough for them that they got what they needed. How our simple trust in Him brings the divine and miraculous life within our souls we cannot tell, but we praise God that He does satisfy us with His own life, and that we know that we are born of God.

VII. A Superabundance of Supply. "They took up of the broken meat that was left, seven baskets" (Mark 8:8). The provision made was such as would condemn any who went hungry away. In the salvation of Christ there is enough for every fainting soul. When the day of salvation has gone there will be virtue enough left in the atonement of the Lord Jesus Christ to condemn those who have condemned themselves by their not believing in the sufficiency of Christ's atoning work for them. He made provision for all. It is an awful thing to pass into eternity with a hunger gnawing at the heart that can never be satisfied. Those who have eaten and axe full bless the Lord their God (Deuteronomy 8:10).

JESUS LEADING AND HEALING.

Mark 8:22-26.

Why seek ye the living among the dead? An old author says, "We ought not to look for that in the law, which can only be found in the Gospel; nor look for that in ourselves which can only be found in Christ; nor to look for that in the creature which can only be found in the Creator; nor to look for that on earth which can only be found in Heaven." "Look unto Me, and be ye saved" (Isaiah 45:22). We observe here-

I. A Merciful Work. "They bring a blind man unto Him" (Mark 8:22). Their names are not given, but their work will never be forgotten.

1. Whom They Brought. "A blind man." A man utterly helpless to find the way for himself. A man deprived of the very capacity of discerning Him who alone could deliver. Such are the spiritually blind. "Eyes have they, but they see not" (Psalms 115:5). Minds blinded by Satan. Even when awakened to a sense of their danger and need can only grope after the door of salvation like the blind men of Sodom.

2. Where They Brought Him. "They bring him to Jesus." His Name is called Immanuel, God with us. What a privilege! Is there anything too hard for Him? Have we proved His grace and power by bringing our needy friends to Him. Oh, how much the blind ones do need our help!

3. Why They Brought Him to Jesus. Because they believed in Him. And they backed up their kindly act by an earnest prayer. They "besought Him to touch him." What an object lesson to Christian workers! Let us show our sympathy for the perishing and our faith in Christ by bringing them to Him individually and beseeching Him on their behalf.

II. A Wonderful Healer. It is most interesting to note how the Lord dealt with this poor blind one. We must remember that His actions are as eloquent of divine meaning as His words. When they brought him to Jesus, observe that they left him entirely in His hands. He does not deal with all in the same way. His manifold wisdom and grace is seen in His manifold manner of dealing with individual souls. Note the process-

1. "He Took Him by the Hand." Here was personal contact. The grip of Christ's hand must have sent a thrill of hope through the poor man's soul. Our first contact with Jesus is a memorable experience. When we felt the grip of His truth in our hearts, and knew that we had got into personal touch with the Son of God.

2. He Led Him Out of the Town. He took him away from everything that would hinder him from feeling that he was alone with his Saviour. His operating hand requires the concentration of the heart. The town, with all its excitement and attractions, still hinders multitudes from getting alone with the redeeming Lord. Are you willing to have your affections led out of the town and centred in Jesus Himself?

3. "He Spit on His Eyes." This was rather a humbling treatment, but it is always so when salvation is in prospect. The spittle of Jesus on the sightless eyeballs indicates the virtue of Christ personally applied by Him to the sin-blinded hearts of men. His spittle, given with a purpose, is of more value than the blood of others. "To you that believe He is precious" (1 Peter 2:7).

4. "He Put His Hands Upon Him." If His spittle was humbling, His hands would be comforting. Those blessed hands, so full of power and blessing, how assuring to the soul, to feel that they are on us. The Lord in mercy suits Himself to the need of each. If this anxious blind man could not see Him, He makes him feel His presence nigh.

5. He Questioned Him. "He asked him if he saw aught" (Mark 8:23). It is good to make confession, and to be honest with it, not pretending to see more than we really do. He said, "I see men as trees, walking." A man's eyes are not very clear when he only sees men as irresponsible trees. This is not the full light of His revelation, but the day is dawning, and He that hath begun the good work will perfect it.

6. He Enlarged the Blessing. "He put His hands again upon his eyes and made him look up" (Mark 8:25). A perfect cure because the perfect One. It is no honour to Him that our eyes should only be so far enlightened as to enable us to form false opinions. When He made him look up "he was restored, and saw every man clearly." It is a great revelation to see "every man clearly." To see who he is, what he is, and where he is going; to see the character and destiny of every man clearly as in the sight of God. Perfect restoration means a clear sight of human need. It is a solemn responsibility to have our eyes open to see "every man clearly."

7. He Commissioned Him. "He sent him away to his house" (Mark 8:26). Doubtless there were in his house those who needed to hear his testimony to the saving power of Jesus Christ. The man's life would henceforth be a constant witness for the Lord. Have your eyes been so opened as to change the whole manner of your life? THE DEVIL-POSSESSED SON.

Mark 9:17-29.

On the platform of this narrative we see the characteristics of Heaven, earth, and hell. (1) Compassion and power; (2) Doubt and weakness; (3) Hate and misery. But the power of the compassionate Christ can overcome the weakness of His disciples and the work of the devil. We have here-

I. Satanic Influence. The Lord Jesus Christ believed in personal wicked spirits. We think lightly of them, but He had to face them and overcome. This evil influence had-

1. An Early Beginning. "Of a child" (Mark 9:21). Being born in sin, the natural soil of the heart is at once favourable to the seeds of evil. The Psalmist says, "We go astray as soon as we be born" (Psalms 58:3), and we keep going astray like lost sheep until we are born again.

2. An Overpowering Mastery. "He teareth him, and oft-times casteth him into the fire, and into the waters" (Mark 9:18, Mark 9:22). He was simply led captive by this devil, having no power at all to resist him. His purpose was to kill and to destroy. Such is the power of sin. Has sin dominion (mastery) over you? Are you dominated by principles you know to be contrary to your conscience and your God? Are you under law or grace? (Romans 6:14).

3. A Fearful Effect. Mark's pen is graphic here. What a terrible catalogue of evils, "Teareth, foameth, gnasheth, pineth, wallowing, foaming, cast him into the fire, into the water, and rent him sore" (Mark 9:20). Just one thing awanting, the awful "for ever," to make his hell complete. Those under the power of the devil, if they escape the tearing, the gnashing, the wallowing, and fire in this life, will not escape in the next (Matthew 13:40-42; Revelation 20:15).

II. Disciples' Failure. "I spake to Thy disciples that they should cast him out, but they could not" (Mark 9:18). Great things are expected from those who belong to Christ, and justly so (Php_4:13). Peter and John said to the lame man, "Look on us" (Acts 3:4). They knew what possibilities were within their reach through faith in the risen Saviour.

They could not because of-

1. Failure in Faith. The Lord rebuked them with, "O faithless generation, all things are possible to him that believeth" (Mark 9:23). Their lack of faith brought dishonour upon the Name of their Master. "Abraham was strong in faith, giving God the glory" (Romans 4:20). Yes, strong faith glorifies God. Our unbelief is a stumbling-block in the way of others. "Have faith in God" (Mark 11:22).

2. Failure in Prayer. "This kind can come forth by nothing but by prayer and fasting" (Mark 9:29). Prayer means communion with God; communion means power for service. Those who have only fixed times for prayer may be often caught napping in weakness and inability. The spirit of prayer is better than seasons of prayer.

3. Failure in Fasting (Mark 9:29). Prayer and fasting forms the two-edged sword that gets the victory. It is questionable if we really pray as we ought, unless we esteem it better than our daily food. If preaching and feasting would cast out devils, then there would be a general exodus. This overcoming power does not belong to us merely as disciples. There are many powerless disciples. This Christ-honouring authority can only abide with those who abide in fellowship with Him by continual prayer and hearty self-denial for His sake. This is one of the things that are hidden from the worldly-wise, but revealed to the humble, trustful babes.

III. Christ's Victory. The disciples having failed him, the young man's father carried his request to Jesus Himself, saying, "If thou canst do anything, have compassion and help us." If the followers of Christ have disappointed you, try the Lord Himself. Don't be discouraged by the powerlessness of His professing people. He who wept over Jerusalem will compassionate your case Notice the order of deliverance-

1. The Invitation. "Bring him unto Me." "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28). Let there be an entire yielding up of ourselves in all our helplessness and misery into His hands. As a physician He had never failed. Is there anything tearing your heart and causing your life to pine away? Bring it to Him. Any wayward son possessed with a deaf and dumb spirit toward God and the things of eternity? "Bring him to Me," says the Redeemer of men.

2. The Word of Power. Jesus said, "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him" (Mark 9:25). He speaks and it is done. He sent His Word and healed them. The deliverance was complete, the evil spirit must enter no more into him. In obeying His invitation we shall find His Word to be with power. He can separate between you and your sins. He can give us the victory over all our enemies.

3. The Uplifting Hand. "Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up" (Mark 9:27). When the veil is cast out we are lifted up into newness of life. Made a new creation by Christ, Jesus. The Word and the hand of Christ work together for the salvation of those who flee to Him for refuge. The Word of grace, the hand of power, both moved by a heart of love. THE CHILDREN FOR CHRIST.

Mark 10:13-16.

We are not told who brought the young children to Jesus, but most likely the mothers. Blessed are those mothers who have so believed in Jesus as to bring their children to Him. In Belgium boys are taught to run up to religious teachers and ask them to sign them with the sign of the Cross. Are we anxious that the sign of the Cross should be impressed upon the lives of our offsprings. If so, let us bring them to Jesus. A mother's influence casts the longest shadow over the lives of the children. It was the patient, gentle influence of Monica which turned her gifted son Augustine from a profligate to a saint. George Washington confessed that he owed his character to the influence of his mother. A dying infidel prayed, "God of my mother, have mercy on me." Children are to be pitied whose mothers pray not. Jesus loves the children, and will readily hear a mother's cry on their behalf.

I. Children Need the Touch of Jesus. "They brought them to Him that He should touch them" (Mark 10:13). None are so innocent as not to need the touch of His atoning power. His redeeming blood alone is the ground of acceptance before God. There is "none other Name."

II. Children are Welcome to the Arms of Jesus.

"Suffer them to come unto Me" (Mark 10:14). The Wonderful, the Counsellor, the Mighty God is the children's Saviour. Weakness in the arms of Omnipotence. Parents, suffer your children to come to Jesus by your precepts and example. How awful to be a hinderer!

III. Children should be Brought to Jesus. "They brought young children to Him" (Mark 10:13). This we can do by prayer and dedication Claiming the promise, "Which is unto you and to your children" (Acts 2:39). Christian parents should not rest in the general belief that all children are saved through the grace of God in Christ, but must definitely bring them to Christ, and by faith rest assured that He does bless them.

IV. Children should not be Hindered by Disciples.

"His disciples rebuked those that brought them" (Mark 10:13). The Lord has still many bachelor disciples who hinder the little ones by their cruel indifference to their spiritual well-being. Those who stand in the way of children don't know the love of Jesus, and are in heart out of sympathy with Him in His great saving grace. Children are often hindered by long sour faces and bombastic phrases about the Gospel of Christ. Don't rebuke them by your unchristlike life. May the love of Christ constrain them through us!

V. Children are Fit Subjects for the Kingdom of God.

"Of such is the kingdom of God" (Mark 10:14). It is suggestive to note that when Jesus entered the house of Zacchaeus He said, "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10); but when He speaks about the little ones, He adds, "For the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost" (Matthew 18:11). Leaving out the word seek, as if the little ones are not yet reckoned among those who have deliberately gone astray (Matthew 18:3-5).

VI. Children are Examples to Others. "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein" (Mark 10:15). Little children receive the kingdom of God without doubt or questioning, with an honest, simple heart. "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings Thou hast perfected praise" (Matthew 21:16) VII. Children are Accepted and Blessed by Jesus.

"He took them up in His arms, put His hands upon them, and blessed them" (Mark 10:16). These words indicate a threefold blessing.

1. Safety. "He took them up in His arms."

2. Fellowship. "He put His hands upon them."

3. Sufficiency. "He blessed them." His blessing is no empty form, but the imparting of grace sufficient for their need. "The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich" (Proverbs 10:22). Who would not be a child to enter into such an inheritance? "In malice, be ye children" (1 Corinthians 14:20).

LOVED, YET LACKING.

Mark 10:17-22.

"Can gold calm passion, or make reason shine? Can we dig peace or wisdom from the mine? Wisdom to gold prefer, for 'tis much less To make our fortune than our happiness; That happiness which great ones often see, With rage and wonder in a low degree, themselves unblessed." -Edward Young. This was a critical point in this young man's life. It is always so when we come face to face with Jesus Christ. By a flood of earnest emotion he was lifted to the very feet of the Saviour. But this spring time of privilege passed without receiving the seed of the Word, which would have sprung up into eternal life and fruitfulness, so he passed into the desolate winter of a hopeless future. Young men, "Behold, now is the day of salvation."

I. The Love of Jesus. "Jesus beholding him, loved him" (Mark 10:21). There is something heart-melting about this calm, careful, pitiful "beholding him" of Jesus. This is not a superficial glance at his attitudes, but a divinely compassionate weighing of the inner motives of his heart. He beheld- 1. His Earnestness. "He came running."

2. His Humility. "He kneeled to Him."

3. His Important Request. "What shall I do?"

4. His Moral Goodness. "All these have I observed from my youth."

He beheld it all with eyes moistened with infinite love. There is much that is lovable about all this, but observe that it was not his earnestness, his humility, nor his moral goodness that He loved, it was him. The love of Jesus goes deeper down than the mere garnishings of a human life. It goes down to the individual spirit within. "Jesus beholding him, loved him." "The Lord looketh on the heart" (1 Samuel 16:7). "He loved me, and gave Himself lot me" (Galatians 2:20). Precious love!

II. The Startling Statement. "One thing thou lackest" (Mark 10:21). There were many things he did not lack. He did not lack desire, earnestness, nor wisdom to go to the right source. There was no lack in his creed; he was quite orthodox and well taught. But the Lord saw that there was one fly that spoiled the ointment of his life. A statue may be perfect in every part, but it is only a statue, because it lacks the one thing-life. His life was like a sundial without its gnomon, there was no finger of decision pointing heavenward. A compass may be otherwise perfect, but if it lacks the needle it is valueless. The great Physician put His finger on the spot. One thing lacking, the love of God which constrains to self-sacrifice. It is said that Whitefield once stayed in a house where they were so kind that he did not like to speak to them about their souls, but he wrote on a pane of his bedroom window, "One thing thou lackest," which proved the message of God to the family. May it be written on the window of your soul if you have not yet surrendered all to Christ!

III. The Testing Call. "Go and sell whatsoever thou hast" (Mark 10:21). It was-

1. Severe. "The Word of God is quick and powerful, sharper than a two-edged sword" (Hebrews 4:12). Put yourselves in his place, and think of how you would stand the test. A deep seated disease needs a severe remedy.

2. Needful. He needed to be convinced of his own self-satisfied condition. We are so insensible to the pride of our own hearts that nothing but deep cutting will touch the disease. The Lord is too faithful to heal the disease slightly, but if the wound is great, so is the plaster offered. "Thou shalt have treasure in Heaven."

IV. The Sorrowful Departure. "He was sad at that saying, and went away grieved" (Mark 10:21). Where did he go? Where would he find a grave for his grief? Would his possessions be as precious to him now as before? What a choice: treasure on earth, but not rich towards God. Convicted, but not converted. Not far from the kingdom, but he stepped back into the darkness of a selfish life, preferring the things which are seen and temporal to the things which are unseen and eternal. How different with Moses (Hebrews 11:24-26). If you turn away from the demands of Christ you turn into the paths of sin and death, yet He loves you. THE CUP AND THE BAPTISM.

Mark 10:35-40.

"When earth has nothing to bestow, And every flower is dead below, I look to Thee alone." So said James G. Percival, and such has been the expression of multitudes in every age. When the things of earth and time have failed to meet the deeper cravings of the inmost heart, the languid eye has been lifted to the Lord of life, and heavenly and eternal things besought. Perhaps some such feeling possessed the hearts of James and John when they uttered the prayer recorded here.

I. The Bold Request. "Master, we would that Thou shouldst grant unto us that we may sit, one on Thy right hand, and the other on Thy left, in Thy glory." Here there is much, perhaps, for both blame and praise. Blame, in that this prayer reveals-

1. Great Selfishness. An intense desire for preeminence in the coming glory. They certainly coveted earnestly the best gifts. But perhaps their motives were to get the chief seats, and to be exalted above their brethren But it also reveals-

2. Great Faith. They believed Him to be a King, and that He will come in great power and glory, so they ventured to offer this great petition. Let us not condemn them, but let us rather condemn ourselves, that we ask and expect so little.

II. The Gentle Rebuke. Jesus said, "Ye know not; or, Do you know what ye ask?" He did not upbraid them for their pride and selfishness, but calmly asked them if they knew what the way to such places of honour meant, as if He said, "To reach My place of honour and glory you must go My way." The conditions are still the same. "If we suffer we shall also reign with Him" (2 Timothy 2:12). Now let us look at-

III. The Searching Question. Jesus said, "Are ye able to drink the cup that I drink, or to be baptised with the baptism that I am baptised with?" (Mark 10:38, R. V.). We must tread with gentle step here, as the truth suggested is both deep and solemn. Let all criticism be laid aside, and also the shoes from off our feet. Does the cup and the baptism not indicate two definite experiences that we must have if we would rise to a prominent place in the kingdom of glory. The cup is something deliberately accepted, the baptism is something graciously imparted.

1. The Significance of the Cup. The cup that Christ drank of was the cup of His Father's will (Psalms 40:8; John 4:34); the cup of patient suffering at the hands of men (1 Peter 2:21-25; Hebrews 12:3); the cup of obedience unto death (Php_2:8). "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I drink of?"(Matthew 26:42).

2. The Significance of the Baptism. The baptism of Christ implied: (1) Humiliation. "Suffer it to be so now," He said, as He submitted to the baptism of John. We must also humble ourselves under the mighty hand of His purpose. (2) Consecration. At His baptism He made entire surrender of Himself to do the will of God in the presence of the people. Are you able to be baptised with this baptism? (3) Anointing. At His baptism the Holy Spirit came upon Him, so that He was divinely fitted as a man for all the work the Father had given Him to do. The baptism of anointing comes after the cup of obedience and submission.

IV. The Ready Reply. "They said unto Him, We are able" (Mark 10:39, r. v.). See their-

1. Faith in the Possibility of It. Yes, we are able to follow Thy steps. By Thy grace we can. We are able to drink of Thy cup and to receive Thy baptism. The cup and the baptism are the solemn symbols of a Christlike life, the badges of a candidate for nearness to Him in the glory.

2. Willingness to Possess It. They said at once, "We are able," as if they were prepared to suffer anything rather than lose distinction in eternity. Does not our very ability lie in our willingness. Can we say that "we are able?"

V. The Assuring Answer. When they said, "We are able," Jesus immediately adds, "Ye shall indeed," and they did. They received of His baptism at Pentecost, and in their sufferings and martyrdoms they did indeed drink of the cup that He drank of. (1) James was the first martyr, (2) John was the last, and who suffered a living martyrdom on the isle of Patmos. Both glorified God, and will no doubt occupy a place of honour in the kingdom of His glory. What is this cup and this baptism to you? Do you dread them or covet them? Our relation to them determines our present character as Christians, whether or not we are glorifying God in our bodies and spirits which are His, and may also determine our position in the world to come. "Are ye able?" THE BLIND BEGGAR.

Mark 10:46-52.

This poor man seems to have dwelt in Jericho, the city that was under the curse (John 6:26). Where dwellest thou? Under the curse of the broken law, or in the secret places of the Most High? The beautiful, but wretched, Jericho was visited by the Son of God. The visit was but brief. "He came to Jericho, and went out of Jericho." But it was a day of grace to one poor benighted soul. Here let us see-

I. Mercy Needed. Sin-blinded man has many needs, but his chief need is mercy. As all light comes from the sun, so the mercy he needs is the mercy of God, the mercy that acts in help and healing. He was-

1. Blind. The blind are to be pitied, because they can neither see themselves nor others. They cannot enjoy the light, and are ignorant of what the light reveals. Those whose minds axe blinded by the god of this world can neither see their own deformity and filthiness, nor the beauty and preciousness of the Saviour.

2. Poor. "He sat by the wayside begging." A man must surely be conscious of his poverty before he sets to begging. Those who think they have need of nothing are not likely to frequent the prayer meeting. Alas, for the poor rich (Revelation 3:17).

3. Hopeless. He could not expect to receive his sight except through a miracle wrought by a divine hand. In all likelihood he had expected to die in his blindness. None but Christ could deliver him, and, praise be to God, the saving Christ had come within reach, and was actually passing by. "Behold, now is the accepted time." "Call upon Him while He is near."

II. Mercy Asked. "When he heard it was Jesus he began to cry out," and when others rebuked him, "he cried the more a good deal." It is not easy to still a hungry man where bread may be had for nothing. This is deep need calling unto the deep of Divine mercy, and not in vain. He cried-

1. For the Right Thing. "Have mercy on me." If he finds mercy, he knows that he will find all else that he needs. Many, when they become conscious of their need, cry for peace, for joy, or for consolation. Mercy is the first necessity. "God be merciful to me."

2. To the Right One. "Jesus, thou Son of David." Oh! how sweet the Name of Jesus sounds in the ear of this blind believer! All his hopes are centred on Him. "There is none other Name under Heaven whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). If He fails him there is nothing left for him but despair and the blackness of darkness. "To whom can we go." "Let your requests be made known unto Him" (Psalms 60:1-3).

3. At the Right Time. Jesus was passing by (Luke 18:37). He did not wait for a more convenient season. He knew the danger of delay. Take care that you are not letting your last opportunity slip past without a cry for help.

"There is a line, by us unseen,

That crosses every path;

The hidden boundary between

God's patience and His wrath."

III. Mercy Offered. He who hears the cry of the raven will not turn a deaf ear to the cry of a needy, trusting soul.

1. He Stood. "Jesus stood still." The goal of prayer is the ear of God. This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him. He stood that he might give Himself to the help of this believing but destitute beggar. To every such soul Jesus gives Himself.

2. He Called. "Be of good comfort, He calleth thee." This was indeed the Gospel of Christ to the blind petitioner. See how quickly he obeys the call. Casting away his outer garment in his haste. Vain will be your cry if you refuse to obey His call. "Rise, He calleth thee" (Mark 10:49).

3. He Offered. "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?" When Jesus said this He was laying all the riches of His grace at this anxious pauper's feet. Oh, unfathomable mercy, let me plunge into thee, and let thy deep and tender billows bear me into the light and joy of thy saving presence! All of grace IV. Mercy Enjoyed. Jesus will not send the hungry empty away.

1. He Believed. "Go thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole." "Without faith it is impossible to please God" (Hebrews 11:6). "By grace are ye saved through faith" (Ephesians 2:8). It is the prayer of faith that saves.

2. He Received. "And immediately he received his sight." Sight was offered him, and he accepted the gift by faith. Those who believe on Him will not need to walk in darkness. The power and grace of Christ are all-sufficient for all who trust.

3. He Followed. "He followed Jesus in the way." The Lord by His grace spoiled his begging business. He has no desire nor capacity for it now that he has met the Lord and got his life renewed. His love for Christ now constrains him to follow Him in the way. His back is turned on Jericho the cursed, and his face is set toward Jerusalem the blessed. Following Jesus is the evidence of being blessed by Him. Blind men cannot follow. Are you a follower of the Lamb? THE BARREN FIG-TREE.

Mark 11:12-14; Mark 11:20-22.

"I remember, I remember,

The fir trees dark and high;

I used to think their slender spires

Were close against the sky.

It was a childish ignorance-

But now 'tis little joy

To know I'm farther off from Heaven

Than when I was a boy." -T. Hood.

It is a sorrowful discovery to make that our years of privilege and opportunity, through sin and indifference, are only carrying us farther and farther from God. It was so with the Jewish nation, represented here by the fruitless fig-tree, of which Christ had to say, "I was hungry, and ye gave me no meat." Is the Lord making this lament over your life? Or in answer to His "I thirst," are you offering Him vinegar to drink?

I. The Search. "He came if haply he might find any thing thereon" (Mark 11:13).

1. Who is the Seeker? The hungry, saving Son of God (Mark 11:12). Think of how much He had done for the tree; its very existence depended on His goodness. Think of all that had been done for Israel as a nation, and how little He had received at their hands, when "last of all God sent His Son, saying, They will reverence Him when they see Him" (Matthew 21:37). What is He receiving of your life? This same Jesus is seeking from you that which will satisfy His soul.

2. Where He Seeks. From "A fig-tree." He does not seek figs from thistles; He does not look for that which would satisfy His hunger from the thorns and briars of infidels and unbelievers. This tree had the name of a fruit-bearer, but was a deception. If we bear the Name of Christ He looks for the fruits of Christian life. In the fig-tree the fruit appears before the leaves, so that where there are the leaves of profession there ought to be the satisfying fruit. "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace" (Galatians 5:22).

II. The Discovery. "He found nothing but leaves" (Mark 11:13). There was-

1. Abundant Profession. It had the appearance of abundance of life. There was a great display of activity and attractiveness lent. "One thing thou lackest." So with our lives, we may be full of vigour., and our character morally beautiful and attractive, but if there is no recognition of the claims of Christ we are only as painted Jezebels, clouds without water, barren fig-trees, whited sepulchres. A name to live, but art dead (Revelation 3:1).

2. Perfect Destitution. "Nothing but leaves." Much for itself, but nothing for Christ. A picture of those who spend all their strength and time merely for their own selfish aggrandisement. Christ's desires are unheeded (Revelation 3:17). But note, that show and profession will not deceive Him. He looks, and takes time to look carefully, beneath the leaves. God judgeth the heart. A show of leaves, fresh and green, may hide your nakedness from the eye of man, but not from the all-searching eye of the searching Son of God. "Search me, O God, and try me" (Psalms 139:23). Adam tried the covering of leaves, but God did not acknowledge such, looking upon him still as one naked. "Nothing but leaves-the Spirit grieves." "By their fruit ye shall know them."

III. The Judgment. "The tree which thou cursedst is withered away" (Mark 11:21). "Woe unto you hypocrites, how shall ye escape the damnation of hell" (Matthew 23:33). It was cursed because it was useless. What is the value of a creed, a Church connection, a hope, or a life, if there is naught to satisfy the living, yearning soul of Jesus? Its day of grace is now passed, it was accursed at the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 16:22). When He comes it is not to make us fruitful, but to seek fruit. We note that-

1. The Curse Affected the Roots. "It was dried up from the roots" (Mark 11:20). With His withering word went forth the power that kept back the sap of the earth from the roots of the tree. He that hath not (fruit), from him shall be taken away even that which he hath (sap). When He withdraws the means of grace immediately the withering process of death and destruction begins. It was so in the days of Noah and in the days of Lot, and will be so when the Church is caught up (2. Thess. Mark 1:7-10). If the talent of privilege is not used it will be taken away. If the sap of God's Word in your heart is not allowed to become fruitful in your life it will be dried up, and your barren life will become like the cursed fig-tree, only fit for the fire.

2. The Curse Affected the Leaves. "It withered away." The sin of the fig-tree was the sin of omission. Alas, for its beautiful appearance, its plentiful leaves of profession, what can they do for it now? All withered away. Scribes and Pharisees beware! Moral and religious professors take warning! That beautiful, honest, upright, man-pleasing, but Christ-grieving life of yours will one day, when you come face to face with Jesus, wither away, dried up from the root, and nothing on earth, in Heaven, or in Hell, will prevent it (see John 15:1-8). A SPECIAL COMMISSION.

Mark 11:1-10.

"Our lives they are well worth the living.

When we lose our small selves in the whole,

And feel the strong surge of being

Throb through us, one heart and one soul.

Eternity bears up each honest endeavour.

The life lost for Him is life saved, and for ever."-Lucy Lancom. The dark shadow of the Cross was already falling heavily across the pathway of the Lord Jesus. Just four days, then the Crucifixion. Yet how calm the Lord is, how careful about every detail concerning His entry into the holy yet deceitful city! Yes, that the Scripture might be fulfilled (Zechariah 9:9). What lessons have we here-

I. The Lord's Commission. "He sent forth two of His disciples, saying, Go your way into the village" (Mark 11:2). This simple commission, like the great one mentioned in Matthew 28:18-19, is a revelation of his character. How full of meaning His words are. Does these words not reveal-

1. His Faith. "Ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat." How could He know except by faith. He reckoned on the fulfilment of the prophetic Word (John 12:14-15). Was it not the confession of His enemies that "He trusted in God?" (Matthew 27:43). True, He was God, but we are to remember that He emptied Himself, and "took upon Him the form of a servant" (Php_2:7). Oh, for such an honest, simple, expectant faith!

2. His Obedience. "Say ye that the Lord hath need of him." He must needs enter Jerusalem riding on the foal of an ass, because He knew that it was the will of His Father. It may be humbling to Him, but it was honouring to God and His Word, and perhaps His physical weakness intensifies this need. Blessed weakness that makes us more fit for the accomplishing of the Father's will.

3. His Assuring Confidence. "And straightway he will send him hither." He encouraged His disciples to act on His Word, just as He Himself was acting on the Father's Word. Believe and thou shalt see.

II. The Disciples' Acceptance of the Commission. Observe-

1. Their Obedience. "They went their way." They stepped forth on the strange errand by faith in His Word. His promise was all they had; it was all they needed. Peter walked on the water at the simple bidding of Jesus. They did not reason with one another, they obeyed from the heart. What a precious lesson on the life of faith!

2. Their Experience. "They went their way, and found even as He had said unto them" (Luke 19:32). It is not always so? When we venture out on His Word, do we not find it just as He said? Is it not so with salvation (John 3:36)? He promises salvation to those who believe on Him. Trust Him, and you will find it even as He said. Is it not so with the deeper life of consecration? Rest on His Word, and it will be fulfilled in your experience.

3. Their Testimony. When they were asked, "What do ye, loosing the colt? they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded." Their commission was from the Lord, so they must use His Name and declare His will. As ambassadors for Christ we don't seek colts (souls) for ourselves, but for Jesus. We have, like these two disciples, to make known His will, depending on His power to give the willing mind. Not seeking our own honour, but His who sent us.

III. The Result which Followed. His word was fulfilled, His will done, and-

1. His Coming was Honoured. "Many spread their garments in the way." This is a small matter when we consider how the Lord stripped Himself for us. He who was rich, for our sakes became poor. Jonathan stripped himself for David. Let us lay the garments of our glory in the dust and crown Him Lord of all.

2. His Name was Praised. They cried, "Hosannah! blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord." Hosannah means, "Save, I beseech thee." Such prayer and praise go well together. Well may He be praised, for He has come, not to be ministered unto, "but to give His life a ransom for many" (Mark 10:45). In the Name of the Lord He has come, and he will finish the work the Father hath given Him to do. "Behold the Lamb of God" (John 1:29).

3. His Kingdom is Acknowledged. "Blessed be the kingdom of our father David." "Blessed be the King that cometh" (Luke 19:38). The kingdom of God is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. The foundation was laid at Calvary. The characteristics of it are imparted to us through faith in His Name. As the King of Israel He was put to death, so just now His kingdom is not of this world. "The kingdom of God is within you" (Luke 17:21). Has this humble, royal Saviour had such an entrance into your heart and life as He had into Jerusalem, or are you among those who once cried "Hosannah!" but now art gone with the course of this world, and are by your heartless indifference crying, though inaudibly, "Away with Him, we will not have this Man to rule over us?"

WHY TEMPT YE ME?

Mark 12:13-17.

Tempted Thyself, Lord, Thou dost know

How hard 'tis in the way to go;

How foes without and foes within

Still hold us captive unto sin;

How, even with Thy full grace given,

Earth too, too oft vails Thy pure Heaven.

O break our chain, Lord, set us free,

Thou tempted once, us tempted see." The Lord had just spoken a parable that cut some of them to the quick (Mark 12:12). So they sent a few picked Pharisees to "catch Him in His words," but they themselves are caught. The Word of God is quick and powerful, even to catch word-catchers. It is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Observe here that even in scorn the truth may be spoken.

1. A truthful confession. These faultfinders unconsciously said what was true as to-

1. His character. "We know that Thou art true?" (Mark 12:14). His words were true. His heart was true. His motives were as pure as light. He is the truth. When Pilate asked, What is truth? the answer might have been given: The life and testimony of Christ. But they loved the darkness (John 3:19).

2. His courage. "Thou carest for no man, and regardest not the person of men" (Mark 12:14). He cared not for the power or threatenings of man, but He loved their souls, and cared for the poor, humble, needy. The many waters of hatred and opposition could not quench His zeal to do the will of His Father in Heaven. May such holy boldness be ours.

3. His mission. "Thou teachest the way of God in truth" (Mark 12:14). Nicodemus confessed that He was a Teacher come from God (John 3:2). He came from God to teach us the way to God. Never man spake like this Man. His way is God's way, and there is no other. "I am the Way, no man cometh to the Father but by Me." Coming any other way is coming to shame and confusion and disappointment, but not to the Father.

2. A critical question. "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" (Mark 12:14). This was perhaps the most puzzling question that they in their wisdom and hate could devise. If He answers yes, then they will charge Him as a traitor to His nation. If He says no, then they will report Him at once to the Roman tribune as a teacher of sedition. How glad some people would be to get the Lord in a dilemma, but the spirit of wisdom in Christ Jesus is able to quench all the subtle darts of the evil one. It is not ye that speak, but the spirit of your Father which is in yon. Greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world.

3. A discerning mind. "But He, knowing their hypocrisy, said unto them, Why tempt ye Me?" (Mark 12:15). The eyes of Christ are as Heaven's searchlights, before which nothing can be hid. In coming to Christ as they did, with words of flattery on their lips, they only proved their ignorance of Him whom they professed to know. Had they known that they were standing before the heart-searcher they would certainly have preferred the darkness to such piercing light. Be not deceived, God is not mocked. Let your prayers be honest before Him, or they will prove self-condemning. "The Lord looketh upon the heart" (1 Samuel 16:7).

4. A suggestive request. "Bring Me a penny that I may see it." If He, who was rich, but for our sakes became poor, had had a penny in His own possession He would not likely have asked them to bring Him a penny. A penniless Saviour, yet making many rich. This is not after the fashion of the world, but there is a world of consolation in the thought. We may be rich in faith, bringing glory to God, even when we cannot show a penny.

5. A conclusive answer. "Whose is this image and superscription?" They said, Caesar's. Jesus answered, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's" (vs.. 16, 17). The image of Caesar on the coin was evidence enough that it was connected with Caesar. Likeness proves relationship. Those who have the image of the world and the devil stamped upon their lives declare that they belong to the world and the devil, and are rendering themselves to such. Has the image of Christ been stamped upon your soul? Then render to God the things which are God's. This is your reasonable service (Romans 12:1). THE FIRST COMMANDMENT.

Mark 12:28-34.

"Thy love, Lord, is serene,

No tumult marks its flow;

Calm as that sea was seen

When forth Thy Word did go.

O that my love to Thee

Show'd Thy tranquillity." The love of God is stronger than death, and as calm and steady as the mountains that are round about Jerusalem. The Pharisees had come to catch Him in His word (Mark 12:13), then came the Sadducees to entangle Him in His teaching of the resurrection (Mark 12:18), then this lawyer comes with the disputed question as to which was the chiefest among all the commandments. We certainly are much obliged to them for their questions, for each one gives the Saviour a fresh occasion to emphasise some things which we all need to know. In this answer we are forcibly reminded that love is the fulfilling of the law.

1. The question asked. "Which is the first commandment of all?" It betrays-

1. Some curiosity. It seems to have been a disputed point among the scribes as to which of the commandments was the most important. Although it looked like asking which of the ten links of a chain, or which member of the body is of chiefest consequence, yet how graciously the Lord deals with even such.

2. Some anxiety. Beneath the mere cavil the Master seems to see in the scribe an earnest desire after truth, which brought him to the very door of the kingdom (Mark 12:34). Deal tenderly with questioners. The Holy Spirit may be at work.

2. The answer given. All the Lord's answers to questions are polished shafts from the quiver of the Almighty. In this reply we have a call to-

1. Attention. "Hear, O Israel" (Mark 12:29). The answer is not for this scribe alone, but for all professed seekers after truth. Well may we hear when He speaks, who can meet and answer the deepest longings of the human soul. "Hearken diligently unto Me, and eat ye that which is good" (Isaiah 55:2).

2. Faith in the unity of God. "The Lord our God is one Lord" (Mark 12:29). The great mystery of the Trinity is clearly revealed, but never explained (2 Corinthians 13:14). Like the mystical union of the Church, and of the individual believer with Himself, it is received by faith. All one in Christ.

3. Perfect surrender. "Thou shalt love the Lord with all thy heart, all thy soul, all thy mind, and with all thy strength" (Mark 12:3). This is a demand made upon: 1, The whole of our affections, "all thy heart." 2, The whole life, "all thy soul." 3, The whole realm of thought, "all thy mind." 4, The whole energy of our being, "all thy strength." A whole burnt-offering unto God. This, the first commandment, is fulfilled in one word: Love. That love of God in our hearts that constrains us to yield ourselves completely unto Him (1 John 5:3).

4. Brotherly kindness. "The second is like, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Mark 12:31). It is very significant that our Lord links the first and second together, making them one commandment of equal importance. The love of God, and love to God, must manifest itself in love to others (1 John 4:11-12). If a man love not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? (1 John 4:20; Ephesians 4:32).

3. The effect produced. There was-

1. Acquiescence. "The scribes said, Well, Master, Thou hast said the truth" (Mark 12:32). It is quite possible to admire the wisdom and character of Christ and yet not to enter into the power and blessedness of His life. A mere mental assent to the truth taught by the Saviour is not salvation.

2. Commendation. "When Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, He said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God" (Mark 12:34). He evidently had an intellectual apprehension of the meaning of the Lord's words. His teaching was so far understood that he had in thought come to the very threshold of the kingdom of God, theoretically near, but experimentally outside. His reason and conscience were both on the side of the truth.

3. A coming short. "Not far from the kingdom." These are encouraging, yet O how mournful the words! "Not far," but not near enough to be inside. The mind enlightened, but the heart unyielded; the conscience convicted, the reason convinced, but the will still stubborn and unsubdued. Ye will not come to Me that ye might have life. He will have a willing people in the day of His power. Not far from the cities of refuge was no guarantee of safety.

THINGS TO COME

Mark 13

"O Thou blessed Holy Ghost,

Pleading we dare Thee accost;

Hast Thou not from days of old

Of His second coming told?

Hast Thou not by word and trope,

Given Thy Church this mighty hope

How long till Thou, the Crucified,

Take the world for which Thou'st died." As Jesus went out of the temple, one of the disciples could not help, as he passed, commenting on the greatness of the stones and of the buildings. The Master answered, Seest thou these buildings, there shall not be left one stone upon another. And immediately it would seem that the thoughts of the Master went out to other great stones and to other buildings in connection with God's great purposes in the ages to come. Stones more costly and a building more wonderful, from which no stone will ever be thrown down. Ye are God's building, fitly framed together, growing into an holy temple in the Lord. While the disciples sat with Him in the mount having a private talk, they asked these two questions: When shall these things be? What shall be the sign? While the remarks about the temple originated these queries, the answers of Christ stretch far beyond the destruction of Jerusalem to the coming of the Son of Man with great power and glory (Mark 13:28). It is impossible to believe that all the signs mentioned here were given before the sack of the city by the Romans (Mark 13:10, Mark 13:24-27). The teaching of Christ in this chapter may be taken as a reply to these two questions, When shall these things be? and, What shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled? (Mark 13:4).

1. What are the signs? Christ speaks of them as one continued unbroken sign, extending from the time He spoke right down till the day of His appearing again the second time. There will be- 1. False prophets (Mark 13:5-6). Men who will seek to deceive with vain words (Ephesians 5:6). Messengers of Satan.

2. Wars and rumours of wars (Mark 13:7). These we assuredly have always with us, they are a testimony that the King of kings and Prince of Peace is not yet seated on the throne of David.

3. Hated for His sake (Mark 13:9-13). This hatred to the Lord's people, that leads to imprisonment and terrible trial, is ascribed to the work of the devil (Revelation 2:10). The Millennium is not yet.

4. Natural affection perverted (Mark 13:12). A man's enemies shall be those of his own household (Micah 7:6). Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold (Matthew 24:10-11).

5. Unparalleled affliction (Mark 13:19). This same time of awful trial is predicted in Daniel 12:1, repeated in Joel 2:2, and explained more fully in Luke 21:24-28.

6. Deceitful wonder-workers (Mark 13:22). Demon-possessed men, claiming the homage of Christ, whose coming is after the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders, captivating them that perish (1 Thessalonians 2:9-10). The presence of antichrists declare the absence of Christ.

7. Changes in the natural Heavens (Mark 13:24). There will be darkness and gloominess, clouds and thick darkness, distress and desolation (Zephaniah 1:14-15). These are the infallible signs given by Him who is the Truth.

2. When shall these things be? We would note that-

1. The exact day cannot be known (Mark 13:32). As it was in the days of Noah, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. The fact of the coming flood was revealed, but the moment the door would be shut no man could tell.

2. The certainty of His coming cannot be denied (Mark 13:30-31). He will come again, and the generation of the Jewish people shall not pass away as a distinct nationality till all these things be fulfilled. "Ye are My witnesses."

3. The Gospel is to be first preached unto all nations (Mark 13:10). It is to be preached unto all nations for a witness (Matthew 24:14). It would seem that even in the apostles' day this was accomplished (Romans 10:18; Colossians 1:6-23).

4. The abomination of desolation will be set up (Mark 13:14). This prediction is found in Daniel 9:25-27, and must be fulfilled before His appearing.

5. The fig tree must first blossom (Mark 13:28-29). The fig tree doubtless denotes the Jewish nation, who are showing remarkable activity in the so-called "Zion movement."

6. The great crisis is His personal appearing. "Then shall ye see the Son of Man" (Mark 13:26-27). This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go (Acts 1:11; 1 Thessalonians 4:16; Revelation 1:7).

3. What is to be our present attitude? Here the language of the Master is very urgent, condemning thereby the apathy, indifference, and unbelief of many with respect to His coming again. We are to be-

1. Trustful. "Take heed, behold I have foretold you all things" (Mark 13:23). Is it possible for a Christian to continue growing in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, who wilfully ignores this solemn and timely warning?

2. Watchful. This is urged three times over in verses 33-37. How many are fast asleep with regard to His coming. Watching keeps awake in sleepy times.

3. Prayerful. "Take heed, watch and pray" (Mark 13:33). The watcher will surely become an intercessor. Faith in His coming will have a wholesome effect on the life. THE MASTER AND HIS SERVANTS.

Mark 13:33-37.

" Many men seek themselves in seeking God,

And serve Him, that they may serve themselves of Him." -Venning. The subtleness of self is almost fathomless. Our Lord in closing this outline of coming events sums it up in a little parable concerning Himself, which reveals the present relationship that exists between Him and His servants in view of His coming again. Observe- 1. What He has done.

1. Taken a far journey (Mark 13:34). This journey is His going into Heaven. "If I go away I will come again." It was a far journey in that it was from weakness and shame to power and glory, from humiliation and death to glorification and resurrection life, from a God-hating earth to a God-honouring Heaven.

2. Left His house. The temple was the recognised house of God, but the people know not the day of His visitation. They cast Him out; now He could say, "Your house is left unto you desolate" (Matthew 23:38).

3. Given authority to His servants. This the Master did when He sent down the Holy Spirit from the presence of the Father upon His waiting servants in the upper room on the day of Pentecost. This power every servant must have if he would speak with authority, and not like the self-ordained scribes.

4. Given to every man his work. Every son of God should be a servant, and every servant may have his work from the Master. To every man his work. Is every man doing his Christ-appointed work? If you don't do your God-given work it will remain undone through all eternity, and may be to you an everlasting reproach. "What wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6).

5. Commanded the porter to watch. The porter is the Holy Spirit, who opens the door to Jesus as the Shepherd of the sheep, by resting upon Him when baptised in Jordan (John 10:2-3). He is watching the interests of Jesus Christ on earth, and looking and longing for His coming. "The Spirit and the Bride say, Come" (Revelation 22:16-17).

2. What He will do.

1. Come again (Mark 13:35). He has left His house, but it is only for an indefinite season. "If I go I will come again." As servants we are occupying till He come. At the Lord's Supper we show forth His death till He come.

2. Come as Lord (Mark 13:35, r. v.). Not in the lowly humiliation of His first coming, but as King of kings and Lord of lords, to reward His faithful servants, and take vengeance on them who obey not the Gospel.

3. Come suddenly. "Ye know not when the Master cometh" (Mark 13:35). The very uncertainty of the time of His coming is surely intended to keep our eyes awake and our faces heavenward (Hebrews 12:3).

3. What His servants are expected to do.

1. Watch. "Watch ye therefore." The meaning is, be wakeful. Be alive and all alive, be awake and wide awake, for the good of His cause and the honour of His Name. Watch for souls, and watch for the coming of "His Son from Heaven (1 Thessalonians 1:10).

2. Pray. "Take heed, watch and pray" (Mark 13:33). The manner of our Lord while in this world is a soul-stirring example of the purpose, power, and privilege of prayer. Looking for His coming will revive the spirit of pleading in us. Looking at persons and things around us, in the light of His coining, will surely humble us at His feet, and keep us near the blood-sprinkled throne of grace.

3. Work. "He gave to every man his work" (Mark 13:34). Watching and praying will all the more fit us for the work given us to do. Work while it is day. In connection with our individual task let us keep in mind that this is the work of God, that ye believe in Him. Let it be the work of faith, and then it will be the labour of love, and when He does come may we hear His well done, good and faithful servant.

SHE HATH DONE WHAT SHE COULD.

Mark 14:1-9.

"The iron is hot for the striking,

Do, man of God, thy part;

O weigh not disliking or liking,

Speak from a burning heart.

Work, for the harvest now whitens,

Go in, man of God, and reap,

For he who dark souls enlightens

Is gathering Christ's lost sheep."

While the chief priests and scribes were seeking to take Jesus by craft and put Him to death, there was a loving woman seeking a chance to honour Him by pouring the precious spikenard upon His head. In the house of Simon the leper she found this opportunity, and she did what she could, and did it at a time and in a manner which shows her deep insight into the character and purposes of her Lord. Perhaps this great work is the result of her sitting at His feet and learning of Him (Luke 10:39). All powerful testimony for God has its origin in secret communion.

1. The good work. "She hath wrought a good work on Me." It was-

1. A work of love. The emptying of the liquid perfume upon the head of Jesus was an expression of the affection of her heart freely poured out on Him. What is the value of our service if our hearts are not in it? The first commandment is, Thou shalt love the Lord.

2. A work of sacrifice. "Very precious." The cost of the ointment in our money might be about $9. She did not give to Christ what cost her nothing. We have never really done what we could for Him if our service has not been costly to us. Spare moments and odd coppers are the expressions of a heartless, thankless soul.

3. A work of faith. "She is come aforehand to anoint My body to the burying." How did she know that He was so near His death and burial? She had doubtless believed that the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many. May the Lord the Spirit work in us this Christ-refreshing faith. "I will show you my faith by my works."

4. A work in season. Jesus said, "Me ye have not always." She embraced the present passing opportunity. She will be eternally glad that she did so. You may honour Christ now by serving Him, but the brief day of privilege will soon be past. How sad to meet the Lord without ever having made one single sacrifice for the glory of His Name! Shall you? Shall I?

2. The different results. There was-

1. The indignation of some. Some had indignation, and said, "Why this waste?" This is the language of blind greed and self-interest. In the eyes of such everything is wasted that is given to Christ and His cause, only that which is given to themselves is put to a proper use. Small doubting souls reckon it only waste of time to wait on God, but they may be heard sometimes singing:

"Were the whole realm of nature mine,

That were a present far too small."

2. The approval of Christ. "She hath done what she could."

(1). He accepted the offering. He said, "She hath wrought a good work on Me" (Mark 14:6). Done for Him, it is acceptable to Him.

(2). He justifies the offerer. "Let her alone." It is God who justifieth; who is he that condemneth? The Lord is our defence in the time of trouble. He careth for you.

(3). He rewards the good work. "Throughout the whole world this that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her" (Mark 14:9). The fragrance of that self-sacrificing act has been felt all down the ages. Everything done for Christ in such a spirit will have an enduring influence. Palestine is called "the glory of all lands" just because of its connection with Him who glorifies all that is associated with Him. In union with Him there is salvation for the sinner, sanctification for the saved, and eternal reward for the self-sacrificing servant. THE BREAD AND THE CUP.

Mark 14:22-25.

"On the night of utmost trial,

When Gethsemane was near;

Traitor's kiss and friend's denial,

Cross of shame and piercing spear.

Thou didst give these symbols holy

Of Thy sacrifice and love;

Spread'st a table for most lowly,

Antepast of bliss above." The acts of Jesus are as significant as His words, especially those acts in the upper room, while handling the symbols of His own body and Blood the day before His crucifixion. As a dying man Ha here calls His friends together while He makes His last will and testament.

1. The bread a symbol of His body. "Jesus took bread, and said, This is My body." The symbol is beautiful, for bread is not more indispensable than the sufferings of Christ for the life and salvation of man. "Except ye eat His flesh, and drink His Blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6:53).

1. He took it. It was His own voluntary act. He took on Him the likeness of sinful flesh. He was God manifest in the flesh. In taking a visible body He was taking that which was to be "life for the world." This He did at His incarnation, a humbling but God-glorifying act.

2. He blessed it. That is, in the taking of it He sanctified it and made it holy. His body became a holy thing, fit to be offered as a sacrifice unto God. It was blessed by the Holy indwelling Spirit in a life of blameless service to God. Blessed with infinite blessing.

3. He brake it. This also was His own doing. Although with wicked hands they crucified Him, yet He could say no man taketh My life from Me, I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again, this authority I received of My Father. He gave Himself for us. Yes, the breaking of His body was by His own willing consent. This gives additional virtue to His sacrifice.

4. He gave it. In giving the broken bread to His believing disciples He thus indicated that the bestowing of the saving virtue of His broken body is in His own hands. "I give unto My sheep eternal life." There is none other Name under Heaven. This is My body which is broken for you. Substitution is here clearly taught.

2. The cup a symbol of His Blood. The life is in the Blood. In pouring out His Blood He was pouring out His soul unto death.

1. He took the cup. The cup of sorrow and suffering put into His hand by His loving and righteous Father. What it all meant when He said, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me; nevertheless not My will, but Thine be done," we cannot tell; into such profound depths we cannot go. This cup meant for Christ infinitely more than it can mean to us; He tasted death for every man.

2. He gave thanks for it. Selah! Let us pause and think. He gave thanks for the cup that was His own appointed symbol of His agony and awful death. O the depths of His grace! Thanking the Father for the privilege of suffering and dying in the sinner's stead. What love! Herein is love. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits.

3. He gave it to them. Paul tells us that it was after He had supped that He said "This do ye" (1 Corinthians 11:25). After His atoning death comes the gift of life. The giving of the cup also suggests His desire that we should enter into "the fellowship of His suffering, and be made conformable unto His death" (Php_3:10). "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of? "

4. They all drank of it. "Ye shall drink of the cup that I drink of" (Mark 10:39). And they did by becoming martyrs for His sake. If any man follow Me, let him take up his cross. He that loseth his life for My sake, and the Gospel's, shall save it. To drink of this cup is to bear about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in the body (2 Corinthians 4:10). I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live. The partakers of Christ's sufferings will be made glad when His glory shall be revealed (1 Peter 4:13). In observing the Lord's Supper we are not called upon to remember Him as a Teacher, nor as an Example, but as our Sacrifice, to show forth His death till He come. This is My body broken for you, take, eat. O ye guilty sons of men, take this great atoning work and divide it among yourselves (Luke 22:17).

BETWEEN THE CUP OF BLESSING AND THE TRAITOR'S KISS.

Mark 14:26-42.

"Most hidden and most manifest,

Thou the mystery dost invest

With Thy humaneness, O Christ!

Sweetness, tenderness unpriced,

With this grace may we be blest,

Most hidden and most manifest." The experiences of our Lord and Saviour between the giving of the cup (Mark 14:23) and the getting of the kiss (Mark 14:45) were numerous, varied, and well defined. A close examination of them reveals the awful intenseness of His life in its closing hours. We select the above portion of Scripture only as an example of how the last days of Christ's life might be studied. Within the compass of these few verses we have the Lord Jesus-

1. Singing. "They sang a hymn" (Mark 14:26). Jesus sang, although the thorn of the cross was at His breast. What if it were the twenty-third Psalm, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil."

2. Predicting. "All ye shall be offended because of Me this night" (Mark 14:27). What a sudden change. In a few hours the clear sky of communion will be thick with the dark, ominous clouds of desertion. While He was singing He knew that the Shepherd was about to be smitten and the sheep scattered. The sword was about to awake against the Man that was God's fellow (Zechariah 13:7). This sword now sleeps for us.

3. Suffering. "He began to be sore amazed and very heavy" (Mark 14:33). The iniquities of us all were beginning to meet on Him (Isaiah 53:6, margin). Was He amazed at the number of them, while He felt the awful burden very heavy! May we, like these disciples, "sit here," and see the salvation of God.

4. Sorrowing "My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death" (Mark 14:34). The bearing of our sins by the Holy Son of God was no heartless mechanical process. He could not come into contact with sin and guilt without His spotless soul becoming "exceeding sorrowful." In bearing our sins He also experienced the indescribable agony incurred by the guilt of them in His own soul. "It pleased the Lord to bruise Him, He hath put Him to grief." Be still my soul.

5. Praying. "He went forward and fell on the ground and prayed" (Mark 14:35). What a prayer! We have never been deep enough in the fires of an agonising abhorrence at sin to know what it all means. It was not possible this hour and cup could pass from Him if guilty men were to be saved by the grace of God. Still His prayers with strong crying and tears were heard (Hebrews 5:7-8).

6. Yielding. "Nevertheless not what I will, but what Thou wilt" (Mark 14:36). I came down from Heaven not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me (John 5:30). Why did He shrink from the cup? Would He have been true as a Son if He accepted without any expression of dislike that which would break up His fellowship with His Father and turn His Father's "Beloved" into a curse? Nevertheless He yielded to be made a curse for us, and became obedient unto death.

7. Exhorting. "Watch and pray" (Mark 14:37-38). Given at such a time and in such an agony of spirit, we may truly learn our need of this. O how tenderly His sorrowful soul deals with His drowsy disciples! "The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak." He knows the frailty of our frames, He can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities.

8. Confessing. "Behold, the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners" (Mark 14:41). What a confession for this Mighty One to make, who could call legions of angels from Heaven. Betrayed by a professed disciple. He knew what was in man. Had He not been already entirely abandoned to the suffering of death He never could have been betrayed. He gave His life a ransom for all.

9. Commanding. "Rise up, let us go" (Mark 14:42). But, alas, how far off did they follow Him. "Let us go." Are we ready to go to death with Him? Is crucifixion not as needful for us as for Him if we would know the fellowship of His sufferings. "I am crucified with Christ." He must be crucified that the body of sin might be put away for us. Our old man must be crucified that the body of sin might be destroyed in us (Romans 6:6). O that a sleepy, worldly Church could hear this call, "Rise up, let us go." THE STEPS IN PETER'S DOWNFALL.

Mark 14:29-72.

"Speak gently to an erring one,

E'en if a deed of shame be done;

We see the deed and instant blame,

But not how hard it is to tame

A heart of sin that has not died,

A rebel will unsanctified. "

Backsliding is a process. Eve first saw, then desired, then took, then eat before she gave to Adam. Falling away out of the company and fellowship of Christ is the result of an inward disease preying upon the vitals of our spiritual being. That disease is self-will. Let us follow Peter in his downgrade march step by step. There was-

1. Self-confidence. Peter said, "Although all shall be offended, yet will not I" (Mark 14:29). The "I" here is very self-assertive, comparing himself with the others he believes himself more trustworthy than any. Yet it was written that "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool" (Proverbs 28:26). "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (1 Corinthians 10:12).

2. Proud boasting. "If I should die with Thee, I will not deny Thee in any wise" (Mark 14:31). So said they all, but Peter spoke vehemently. Peter was as yet unbelieving and ignorant of his own weakness. Had not the Lord said unto him, "Whither I go ye cannot follow Me now?" (John 13:36). All self-boasting is a contradiction to His Word.

3. Unwatchfulness. He said unto Peter, "Simon, sleepest thou?" (Mark 14:37). Pride and self-confidence are sure to lead to unwatchfulness. It is the consciously weak ones who lean hard. Sleepy souls are easily tempted (Mark 14:38). By his sleep he became insensible to the sufferings of Christ. The next step down is-

4. Ashamedness. "Peter followed Him afar off" (Mark 14:54). Jesus is not so popular now with the multitude. Peter follows; but far enough off as not to be identified with Him. A professing Christian is indeed afar off when he is ashamed of Him and His Word. At this stage the Word of God is neglected, prayer given up, and the company of those who testify for Christ forsaken.

5. Worldliness. "Peter sat with the servants, and wanned himself at the fire" (Mark 14:54). Having fallen out of company with Christ, he now finds his company among those who know him not, and warms himself at the enemy's fire. While the prodigal was spending his all in the far country he was just seeking to warm himself with the coals of the enemy's fire. This is what the backslider is doing in seeking to find pleasure and comfort in the ways and things of the ungodly. A Christian must be cold indeed when he turns to the crackling thorns of worldly delights for heart warmth.

6. Denial. While he was warming himself he was charged with having been with Jesus. But he denied, saying, "I know not" (Mark 14:67-68). When a man has gone the length of finding warmth among the Lord's enemies we are prepared for the next sad step-denial. This is often done, if not by lip yet by wicked works. The Lord has uttered a solemn warning to such in Matthew 10:33.

7. Recklessness. "He began to curse and to swear saying, I know not this Man" (Mark 14:71). He had said, "Though all shall be offended, yet will not I," yet he becomes more easily offended than any, and now staggers into the ditch of open profanity. If a backslider be not restored before he goes the length of shameless lip denial the likelihood is that he will soon be found in the ranks of the reckless, the drunken, or some other open sin.

8. Repentance. Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, and when he thought thereon he wept (Mark 14:72). The Lord had not prayed for Judas that his faith fail not, and he went out and hanged himself. It was when the prodigal son thought of his father's house that he said, "I will arise and go to my father." It is usually by some word of Christ that the backslider is brought to think of his ways, and to weep the bitter tears of repentance.

PILATE AND JESUS.

Mark 15:1-15.

"The waves of the world's sea may surge, But the blue sky above is calm." The life and character of Jesus is like the calm blue of Heaven compared with this restless world of troubled human spirits. The calmness of Jesus in the presence of the excited and bewildered Pilate is full of deep significance. A witness to the majesty of truth. Small men are fussy. "Still waters run deep." Pilate's treatment of Jesus is an example of how multitudes to-day treat the Gospel of Christ. Note that he-

1. Had Jesus given to him. "They delivered Him to Pilate" (Mark 15:1). Now was Pilate's opportunity of justifying himself by justifying Jesus. When the Gospel is preached in the power of the spirit it is as it were a delivering up of Jesus for the acceptance or rejection of the hearer. How often has He been brought within your reach? What a solemn privilege!

2. Ascertains His character. "Pilate asked Him, Art Thou the King of the Jews? He answered, Thou sayest it" (Mark 15:2). "To this end was I born" (John 18:37). He has Christ's own testimony as to His kingly character, although He was of no reputation. Gospel hearer, you know the claims of Jesus, you too are familiar with His poverty and His dignity; yea, more, with His death and resurrection, with His power to save and keep.

3. Marvels at Him. When Jesus answered nothing to the many things charged against Him, Pilate marvelled (Mark 15:5). He whose Name is "Wonderful" must in His manner be marvellous to many. The silent submission of Jesus to such false accusations (for He knew that for envy they had delivered Him) was a revelation. Gospel hearer, have you never been led to marvel at the uniqueness of His character, the profundity of His teaching, or the richness of His grace?

4. Was inclined to favour Him (Mark 15:9-10). He found no fault in Him, and was disposed to release Him. Gospel hearer, you must surely confess that you have no fault to find with Jesus. Does not your deeper convictions tell you that He is the Truth? Have you not at times felt inclined to believe Him, and release Him by confessing Him before men? Have you not also, like Pilate's wife. "suffered many things because of Him?"

5. Submits his will to the people regarding Him. "Pilate said, What will ye that I shall do unto Him?" (Mark 15:12). His vacillating spirit would deal with Jesus according to the fickle and perverted will of the multitude. Gospel hearer, are you treating Christ according to your better convictions, or in a manner only to please the Christ-hating world? Is the will of the ungodly to be your guide as to what ye shall do with Jesus? If you judge Christ by the opinions of His enemies you will be verily guilty of the Blood of God's Son.

6. Questions the justice of their judgment concerning Him. "They cried out, Crucify Him. Pilate said, Why, what evil hath He done?" (Mark 15:13-14). Self-righteous priests and a wilfully ignorant and prejudiced people have no need of the Christ, and nothing to give Him but a cross. Gospel hearer, have you not thought that it was unjust and grossly wicked to cast out and crucify the meek and lowly Jesus? Yet by your refusing to receive Him you are deliberately casting Him out of your life, and virtually saying by your unbelief, "Away with Him, I will not have this Man to rule over me."

7. Scourged Him (Mark 15:15). The barbarous thongs, tipped with bones and lead, in the hands of a heathen, ploughed His back and made deep their furrows, making His very bones to stare out. Yet he found no fault in the Man. Gospel hearer, are you scourging the soul of Him, whom you know to be faultless, by your love of the world, your indifference to His redeeming Blood, and your unwillingness to submit yourself to Him?

8. Delivered Him up to be crucified. "Pilate, willing to content the people, delivered Jesus" (Mark 15:15). He handed Him over as one who wished to have no more to do with Him. But Pilate shall meet Him again at another tribunal. Gospel hearer, Jesus has been delivered up by God for you, and in His Word to you. Are you, like Pilate, anxious to get quit of Him, or, like Mary, anxious to have Him? Pilate, with all his great privileges in having Jesus brought near to him, profited nothing, but augmented his guilt. What have you profited by many similar opportunities? What shall ye then do with Jesus? THE ATTITUDE OF UNBELIEF.

Mark 15:26-32.

" A cross without a Christ; the heavens dumb; Oh, who may dare the mystery to plumb? Or who to such a God will longer come?"

"Throned upon the awful tree" is how John Ellerton puts it. The crucifixion was the coronation of the Son of God as our Substitute. The immeasurable soul-exalting power of it lies in the fathomless depths of the humiliation of it. This is foolishness in the eyes of men, but it is the wisdom of God. "Let Christ descend from the Cross that we may see and believe" (Mark 15:32). Like modern rationalists, they would prefer a crossless Christ. It was not the nails that held Him to the tree, but His love for the perishing and His determination to finish the work given Him to do. The-

1. Titles given Him. "Christ the King of Israel" (Mark 15:32). This they said in mockery, because they knew He claimed to be-

1. The Christ. The Messiah, the Lord's Anointed. They spoke the truth nevertheless. When Jesus said, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matthew 16:16).

2. The King of Israel. It was hard for human reason to believe that this despised and rejected One was God's appointed Ruler of His ancient people. Wise men, inspired by the message of God, come saying, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews?" Yes, this is His true title.

2. Place appointed Him was a place of-

1. Shame and suffering. "They crucify Him, and with Him two thieves." The chosen and anointed One, the One preferred by God above all others, because of His holy devotedness, is classed by religious men with the vilest of the vile. What place has He now, even amongst so-called Christian men?

2. Derision and death. "They that passed by railed on Him, and they that were crucified with Him reviled Him" (Mark 15:29-32; Psalms 22:7-8). Yet this is He who cried with a loud voice "Lazarus, come forth," and he that was dead came forth. He who of old "spake and it was done."

3. Proposal made to Him. "Descend from the Cross that we may see and believe" (Mark 15:32). They might as well say let God change His character and purposes that they might see and believe. This presumptuous God-dethroning we. "That we might see." Why, He could not descend from the Cross because-

1. He could not disobey His Father. He had already said "Not My will, but Thine be done." To die was the will of Him that sent Him.

2. The Scriptures could not be broken. The prophet Daniel had said, "The Messiah shall be cut off, but not for Himself" (chap. Mark 9:26). Isaiah also by the same Spirit declared that "He would make His grave with the wicked, and be numbered with transgressors" (chap. 53). If He came down from the Cross the Scriptures, as the pillar of truth, would be broken.

3. He could not suffer man to perish. Without shedding of His Blood there was no remission of sin and guilt for us. His love constrained Him to give His life a ransom for many.

4. He could not be untrue to Himself. The Cross is the evidence of His truthfulness, to His own inner consciousness, as the Redeemer of men, the Saviour of the world. What a revelation of the hidden man of His heart! He abideth faithful.

4. Reasons why some prefer a crossless Christ.

Because-

1. The Cross reveals their guilt. It is the manifestation of man's inert hatred to holiness and God-likeness. To have no personal dealings with the Son of God any more than with the dead in their graves is just another way of appointing Christ to the place of death.

2. It is God's only way of life. The Cross reveals the need of a Substitute, the need of an atonement by the Blood of His Cross, and the only possible way of access unto the Father (John 14:6; Hebrews 10:19-20). That we can only be saved as sinners through the Blood of His Cross is rather humbling to the pride of man's self-confident and deceitful heart. A crossless Christ can only make life to be a Christless cross.

TAUGHT IN THE SEPULCHRE.

Mark 16:1-8.

"When brighter suns and milder skies

Proclaim the opening year,

What various sounds of joy arise,

What prospects bright appear 1

Thus like the morning calm and clear,

That saw the Saviour rise;

The spring of Heaven's eternal year

Shall dawn on earth and skies."

Very early in the morning the two Marys came to the sepulchre at the rising of the sun, but the Son of God had already risen. He who was before all things rose from the dead before sunrise.

1. Whom they sought. "Ye seek Jesus," said the messenger from Heaven to them. They sought Him that they might anoint Him (Mark 16:1-6). But the living Christ is never found among the dead. Anxious sinners often seek Him where He cannot be found, among their own dead works or in their own unregenerate hearts. He is not here.

2. When they came. "Very early in the morning, the first day of the week" (Mark 16:2). Although they did not find Him where, and as they expected, yet they found Him (John 20:18). "They that seek Me early shall find Me." Seek Him early in the morning of life, early in the morning of each day, especially the first day of the week. This first day of the week was the first new Sabbath of the new creation.

3. Where they went. "And entering into the sepulchre" (Mark 16:5). It would appear that they stooped down and went right into the grave (John 20:11). In this place of death they had this great revelation of His resurrection power. Where else can we learn it as an experience but by stooping down into His grave? It is by being made "conformable unto His death" that we are made to know the "power of His resurrection" (Php_3:10). We must stoop down to be crucified with Christ if the risen One is to live in us (Colossians 3:1-3). We stoop to conquer.

4. What they received. They found precious treasure in the tomb of Jesus. It is not death to enter here, but life for evermore. Here they pass from the natural life of sense into the spiritual life of faith. By faith enter the grave of Christ as crucified for you, and ye shall be quickened by resurrection life. They received-

1. A vision of the Heavenly One. "They saw a young man sitting, clothed in a long white garment" (Mark 16:5). Here in this new tomb, where the Lord Jesus was the only one that ever lay, are they brought into fellowship with a sent one from Heaven. As the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus Christ was not yet glorified, may we not suppose that this young man came as a timely and temporary substitute to take the things of Christ and show them to these early seekers? It is still true that when we put self and self-wisdom in the place of death we shall be taught of God.

2. A word of comfort. "He said, Be not affrighted" (Mark 16:6). There is nothing to fear in the grave of your Redeemer, There is a living One there, the ever youthful Spirit of God, waiting to comfort the sorrowful seeker.

3. A proof of heavenly sympathy. "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth." It must have been a relief to them that this God-sent messenger knew the deeper yearnings of their soul, and was at one with them in their interest. The Holy Spirit is all this and much more to us. "He helpeth our infirmities and maketh intercession according to the will of God" (Romans 8:26-27)

4. The assurance of victory. "He saith unto them, He is risen." This was exceeding abundantly above all that they asked or thought. He is not stolen; He is risen. He died for our sins and rose again for our justification. This young man, sitting in the place where Jesus was laid, acts the part of a forerunner of the Holy Spirit in bringing the assurance of life to the hearts of these Saviour-loving women. Peter tells what effect this renewed hope had (1 Peter 1:3).

5. An evidence of resurrection. "He is not here; behold the place where they laid Him." The place where they laid Him was empty. The clothes were there, and perhaps lying folded (not doubled up), just as they were when He was in them. The position of the linen clothes and the napkin evidently astonished the disciples (John 20:6-8). Who could doubt the resurrection who have themselves passed from death into life, and "know Him and the power of His resurrection" (Php_3:10).

6. A great commission. "Go your way, and tell." Testimony for Christ must follow the reviving influence of His resurrection life. They received their commission from an angel from Heaven. The Holy Ghost said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them" (Acts 13:2). "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me... to the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8).

7. A precious promise. "He goeth before you into Galilee, there ye shall see Him." Blessed prospect that is ever before them that go in His Name. Ye shall see Him, and be made like Him (1 John 3:2). Having been sent "they went out quickly." They were not disobedient to the heavenly vision. Go thou and do likewise, and in the doing of His will there ye shall see Him.

RESURRECTION REVELATIONS.

Mark 16:9-14.

"The Lord is risen indeed,

We say it as a creed:

But O to feel its power

Daily through every hour." This first day of the week was full of new things for the disciples of the Lord. A new order of things was now being established. When a soul passes from the old natural life into the new resurrection life in Christ it is a new creature entering into a new kingdom, where all things are made new. It is to such the first day of the first month of the year of their eternal life. There are here what might be called some incidental revelations connected with His resurrection worthy of notice. We have a-

1. Revelation of His power. "Jesus was risen" (Mark 16:9). He had said "I have power to lay down My life, and I have power to take it again." He had now taken again that which He had freely given up for us all. The taking again proves how completely His life had been given away. Having power to take it, He has now power to bestow it in its fulness to all who believe.

2. Revelation of grace. He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven devils. She who was the greatest sinner among His followers receives first of His resurrection favours. Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound. The mighty, pitying Saviour favours the humble, thankful, trustful follower.

3. Revelation of deep sorrow. "Them that had been with Him mourned and wept" (Mark 16:10). The curtain is lifted, and we get a glimpse of how those that had been with Him felt and regarded the crucifixion, they mourned and wept. They were like a young motherless family, suddenly bereaved of their wise and loving father, their only real friend on earth. Their tears, though partly caused by unbelief, showed at least the place He had in their affections. Did not the enemies of the Cross make Paul weep? (Php_3:18).

4. Revelation of unbelief. "When they heard that He was alive and had been seen of her they believed not" (Mark 16:11). We don't wonder so much at them not believing Mary as at their failure to remember or believe the words spoken to them by the Lord (see John 16:20-22). Unbelief always brings disappointment and sorrow. Tears mingled with distrust may be but the tears of wounded pride.

5. Revelation of Divine adaptation. "After that, He appeared in another form" (Mark 16:12). The same Saviour in a different form. O the depths of His wisdom and riches. He appeared to Stephen as the glorified One, but to Saul as the persecuted One (Acts 7:55; Acts 9:5). It does not matter what our circumstances or condition may be, when He appears it is always as such a One as we need. His grace is always made suitable and sufficient.

6. Revelation of His faithfulness. "He upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart" (Mark 16:14). While they mourned and wept they did not look like those who were unbelieving and hard at heart. But the Lord looks deeper down than groans and tears, and like a wise and true Physician He lays His finger upon the diseased spot, and tells them plainly what is wrong. This is why many professing Christians are afraid to get into very close quarters with Jesus, lest these hidden things should be revealed, lest the real man of the heart should be unveiled. If we do come near to Him He will be faithful with us.

7. Revelation of the responsibility resting on His witnesses. "He upbraided them, because they believed not them which had seen Him" (Mark 16:14). The Lord expected that the testimony of those to whom He had revealed Himself would be believed. Those only can be witnesses for Him to whom He hath manifested His saving grace and resurrection power, and those who hear such witness-bearing and yet do not believe are charged with unbelief and hardness of heart. In our Lord's great priestly prayer, recorded in John 17, He prayed for them who shall believe through their word. If the Lord believes and expects that men will believe in Him through our word, how is it that we don't look for immediate results when the Word is spoken? Lord, increase our faith. THE GREAT COMMISSION.

Mark 16:15-20.

"The round world before Him lay,

For that world this one command:

' Go, and I am with you alway, '

Send it out o'er every land.

North and south, and east and west,

At His Cross shall ransom'd rest.

Mighty charter! Great commission!

Till this earth be Christ's possession." A well known authority on missions has said, "Christianity is the only religion that is missionary." This call, like a stream of light, has come down through the ages, beckoning weary souls to the harbour of rest.

1. The need. This is summed up in one word, "World." "Go into all the world." The world of-

1. Sinful self within. This is the devil's nursery, where every evil in the world is germinated, and afterwards transplanted by actual deeds. Into this world the power of Christ must come.

2. Fashion and pleasures around. That which ministers to the lust of the eye, the lust of the flesh, and the pride of life. That world of custom and habit and godless living.

3. Heathen darkness beyond. A world of perishing, yet immortal souls. A world loved by God, and for which Christ died (John 3:16). The whole world lieth in wickedness. The need is great.

2. The provision. "The Gospel." "Preach the Gospel to every creature." Just as there are different elements in air and water, so are there in the Gospel. It contains good tidings of great joy. There is in it-

1. The incarnation of the Son of God. God manifest in the flesh. His Name shall be called Emmanuel. "God with us." God with us seeking to save the lost, in the form of a servant. What news!

2. Propitiation by the Blood of God. "The Church of God, which He hath purchased with His own Blood" (Acts 20:28). "He is the propitiation for our sins" (1 John 2:2). The Blood of His Son is God's great covering for sin. This has been provided, this is offered.

3. Regeneration by the Spirit of God. This is a recreation of the human spirit after the likeness of God. Made new creatures (2 Corinthians 5:17).

4. Justification by the faith of God (Mark 11:22, margin). "Have the faith of God" is the literal meaning. It seems a strong expression. But every one who exercises faith in Jesus Christ is having the faith that God has in Him. As David showed the kindness of God to Mephibosheth (2 Samuel 9:3).

5. Sanctification by the Word of God. Thy Word was found, and I did eat it. Now are ye clean through the Word which I have spoken unto you. He has given us exceeding great and precious promises that by these we might be made partakers of the Divine nature. All the promises of God are in Christ for the support of faith and the strengthening and growth of the new life.

6. Resurrection by the power of God. He shall come in great power and glory. The dead in Christ shall rise first. The mortal shall put on immortality (1 Corinthians 15:38).

7. Glorification by the presence of God. The "Great God, our Saviour, shall appear," and we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. These seven elements belong to the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, which is His alone remedy for the manifold need of a perishing world.

3. The commission. "Go ye into all the world." Clear, simple, definite.

1. Who? "Ye." Ye who have believed, and have known the reviving power of His resurrection (1 Peter 1:3).

2. What? "Go." "As My Father sent Me, so send I you" (John 17:18). Go. Don't sit down and theorise about it. Go, and make this the chief business of your life.

3. Where? "Into all the world." The world loved by God (John 3:16); the world atoned for by the Son (1 John 2:2). If you cannot go here or there in person, go in your love and prayers and practical sympathy (Psalms 126:5-6).

4. The promise. Lo, I am with you alway. "In My Name shall they cast out devils" (Mark 16:17-18). His presence with us is the pledge of-

1. Continual fellowship. If His sanctifying, soul-soothing presence is not realised or enjoyed, it is not that His promise has failed, but that self or sin has grieved the Holy Ghost, who makes His presence a reality and a power.

2. Continual victory. Moses said, "If Thy presence go not with us, carry us not up hence." There can be no victory over the enemies of God if His presence is not with us (see Numbers 14:42-45). If devils are to be cast out it must be by the power of His Name (Mark 16:17). His Name implies all that He is.

5. The fulfilment. "They went forth and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them" (Mark 16:20).

1. They were obedient. "They went forth." They went forth like Abraham, leaning on His Word. Not waiting till they were burned out, like Lot in Sodom. In the light of this urgent commission, does it not seem to savour of unbelief to be still saying, "What wilt Thou have me to do? "

2. They were successful. "The Lord working with them, and confirming the Word with signs following." If the Lord is not working with us our labour is in vain. If the Word preached is not confirmed with signs there is no evidence of the Lord's presence. The Lord will work with us if we, like them, are wholly yielded to the doing of His will, preaching the Gospel to every creature. A FAITH CONFIRMING PROLOGUE.

Luke 1:1-4.

"Amid the Babel of men's clam'rous speech,

Lord Jesus, what a ' still small voice' is Thine,

And yet where are there words that men's hearts reach

Like those of Thee, the human and divine?

How have Thy words, Lord, quicken'd human thought?

How have they penetrated human lives?

How have they into grandest deeds been wrought,

And how on their deep lines all progress drives?" The voice of Jesus in His Gospel is a very "small voice" compared with the clamorous speech of political partyism and the strife of modern ungodly tongues, but like a spring silently making its way through the rocks it comes to the surface and refreshes many a thirsty soul. What Luke says about the things of the Gospel in this brief introduction is worthy of our closest attention. We learn that these things-

1. Were the chief topic in the days of Luke. This we infer from the fact that "Many had taken in hand to set them forth in order" (Luke 1:1). The words and deeds of Christ were in everybody's mouth. These things were not done in a corner, many were anxious to have them in a connected form, and many had attempted so to put them. But any spiritual man, such as Luke, could easily detect distorted representations of the life and character of Jesus Christ.

2. Were delivered by eye-witnesses. "They delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eye-witnesses" (Luke 1:2). John could say, "That which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes" &c. (1 John 1:1-2). "He was seen by five hundred brethren at once." Men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, and so the men of the new dispensation spake as they were moved by the living personal Christ among them. The great salvation which at first began to be spoken by the Lord was confirmed unto us by them that heard Him (Hebrews 2:3).

3. Were most surely believed in Luke's days (Luke 1:1).

If they were accepted without doubt by multitudes in the time of Christ and in the days immediately following, where is the ground for questioning them now? They did not follow cunningly devised fables in making known the Gospel of Christ (2 Peter 1:16). These things were tested in the seven times hotter furnace of the days in which they were spoken and wrought. The power and truth of them is being yet proven in the experience of them that believe and do the will of God (John 7:17).

4. Have been recorded by one who had a perfect knowledge of them (Luke 1:3). Although Luke's name does not occur among the twelve apostles, yet he was familiar with all that had been done, being intimate with the chosen twelve and a close companion of Paul the great apostle of the Gentiles. The Gospel according to Luke is confessedly the fullest record of all that Jesus began to do.

5. Are here written in order (Luke 1:3). Luke professes to give us the order in which the events of Christ's life took place. This, to the simple Bible student, is a great blessing, as the very connection between the recorded deeds of our Lord is full of deep significance. If not in their mutual relationship, yet in point of contrast.

6. Were written that we might have certainty (Luke 1:4). Luke evidently wrote that the honourable Theophilus might be confirmed in his faith. "These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God" (John 20:31). In the written Gospel we have a sure Word, wherein we do well to take heed as unto a light that shineth in a dark place. The Gospel offers both Salvation and the certainty of it. Yet how many Gospel hearers there are who have not yet known the certainty of those things wherein they have been instructed. Make your calling and election sure.

ZACHARIAS MADE DUMB THROUGH UNBELIEF.

Luke 1:5-22.

"O Father, God, to Thee I come! Rather in mercy hold me dumb Than that, unto Thee drawing near, I think of mortal men that hear. O may I reverence more and more, And in every deed adore."

Nothing fetters the hand of God from working like unbelief; nothing grieves the Spirit more readily. But although he was smitten dumb he did not flee from the presence of the holy Smiter. He did not give up his work for the Lord although this sore affliction came upon him. Zacharias would teach us not to be so engrossed with our trials even if they should be most sudden and severe as to neglect our work for Christ. After reflecting on this incident we desire to point out that-

1. Visions may come while doing our ordinary work. "While he executed the priest's office, there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord" (Luke 1:8, Luke 1:11). Moses kept the flock of Jethro when the call came through the burning bush (Exodus 3:1). Gideon was threshing wheat (Judges 6:11). Elisha was ploughing when the prophetic mantle fell upon him (1 Kings 19:19). David was in the sheepfolds (Psalms 78:70). Matthew in his toll-booth. Thy God is sufficient for thee, wait on Him and look up.

2. Our prayers may be answered very unexpectedly (Luke 1:13). When the angel said to him, "Fear not, for thy prayer is heard," it was to him staggering news, although he had been praying many long years that a son might be given them. They were both now "well stricken in years" (Luke 1:7), suggesting that he had continued this prayer long after the expectation had died away. If the Lord lays it on the heart to continue in prayer for any definite thing, is this not in itself an evidence that He desires so to bless us? Believe, and thou shalt see the glory of God. "Ye shall reap if ye faint not" (Galatians 6:9).

3. The Lord is able to do far above what we ask.

He not only would have a son born to him, but that son "would be great in the sight of the Lord, and filled with the Holy Ghost" (Luke 1:14-15). A son worthy of the God who gave him. The good old man and his humble, blameless wife were now abundantly rewarded for their many years of praying and waiting. God is not unfaithful. Wait on the Lord. Though the vision tarry, wait. You long for a revival, let not thy faith fail (Psalms 126:6).

4. The promises of God test our faith. " Zacharias said, Whereby shall I know this?" (Luke 1:18). It was a big order he received that day from the Lord (read carefully Luke 1:14-17). It was as if the fountains of the great deep of God's infinite grace had just opened up and poured their unspeakable riches at his feet. Is it not the very greatness of His grace that staggers our weak faith? If you wish to find out the measure of your faith, just try some one of His great and precious promises. "In My Name ye shall cast out devils" (Mark 16:17). Try that one.

5. Unbelief fetters the tongue of testimony. "Behold, thou shalt be dumb, because thou believest not My words" (Luke 1:20). What a God-dishonouring thing unbelief is! How many tongues among the children of God are under the condemnation of dumbness because of their unbelief? How many of us are dumb with regard to the Lord's coming, the filling of the Spirit, the consecration of the life, answered prayer, and the deeper experiences of the things of God, all because of unbelief? "Because thou believest not My words." According to Grosart he became a D. D. through unbelief-deaf and dumb.

6. Real contact with the Lord makes men to marvel.

"The people marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple" (Luke 1:21). As for Zacharias, he did not feel the time long. Who does when they are in real communion with God? A man is sure to get out of the old rut and to do unprecedented things when his ministry becomes a living and solemn reality before God. Zacharias, during the hours of public service, forgot all about the clock that day. He was late in getting through, but the people, when they did see him, were convinced that he had seen a vision (Luke 1:22). Short services are not always the best. Where a preacher's soul is filled with the vision of God, both time and men have to stand back. There is more blessing through one day with God than twenty years without Him. Have faith in God.

Luke

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Luke 1:12-17.

"Lord, what is this that Thou hast sent?

My heart, like sea-wave turbulent,

Grieves with strange sweet agony;

O born not of the earth but sky!

Of sin Thou seek'st me to convince,

And 'neath Thy probing touch I wince."

There is a singular resemblance between the work of John and the work of the Holy Spirit. Both came to convince men of sin, to bring them to repentance, and to point them to Christ as the Lamb of God who taketh away sin. The points of likeness are not few-

1. The coming of both was foretold (Luke 1:13; John 14:16). John's birth was predicted by the angel, and Christ promised to send another Comforter. Every event foretold by God is a link of connection between earth and Heaven; an evidence of the reality of unseen and eternal things.

2. At the coining of both many were made to rejoice.

It was said of John "that many shall rejoice at his birth" (Luke 1:14). The advent of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost filled many with joy. Three thousand souls gladly received the Word, and did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God (Acts 2:41-47). The fruit of the Spirit is joy.

3. Both were to be great in the sight of the Lord "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord" (Luke 1:15) John's testimony was to glorify the Lord, even though in the sight of men and in his own estimation he was but a voice crying in the wilderness. Jesus said of the Holy Spirit, "He shall glorify Me" (John 16:14). The blessed Spirit is indeed great in the sight of the Lord, although men should ignore Him and close their ears to the crying of His voice. Have you heard this voice crying in the wilderness of your desolate heart and fruitless life?

4. Both were to prepare the way for the Lord. "He shall go before Him in the spirit and power of Elias" (Luke 1:17). The Holy Spirit also prepares the way for Christ's salvation to come to us by "convincing of sin" (John 16:8). John prepared the way of the Lord by convincing men of their need of repentance; the Holy Spirit prepares the way of the Lord into our hearts by revealing to us our need of salvation.

5. Both were to turn many to the Lord. "Many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God" (Luke 1:16). This also is the mission of the Holy Ghost. "He shall testify of Me," said Jesus. "When the Spirit of grace and supplication is poured out they shall look upon Me" (Zechariah 12:10). The turning of men to the Lord is His overcoming work. It is the Spirit that quickeneth. There can be no salvation or joy in the Lord without this turning, for all like sheep have gone astray. Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die?

6. Both came to give knowledge of salvation.

"Thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to give knowledge of salvation" (Luke 1:76-77). John gave the knowledge of salvation by declaring that the Saviour was at hand. The Holy Spirit gives the knowledge by revealing Christ in the heart. He that believeth hath the witness in himself (1 John 5:10).

7. Both came to make ready a people for the Lord. This was the outstanding feature of John's mission (Luke 1:17); this is pre-eminently the great mission of the Holy Spirit, calling out a people for His Name, and preparing them for the coming of the Lord (Acts 15:14). The Church is the Lamb's wife, called and comforted, and led by the Spirit, just as Eliezer made ready Rebekah by giving her the gifts of Isaac, and led her right into the presence of him whom she had not seen yet loved (Gen. 24).

8. Both came to honour the Lord and not themselves. John kept himself, as it were, out of sight, saying, I am a voice, one to be heard but not seen. So the Spirit, we are told, shall not speak of Himself. The mission of the Spirit, like that of John, is to point out Jesus as the Lamb of God. He shall take of Mine and show it unto you (John 16:13-14). Those rilled with the Spirit will in this respect become like the Spirit, seeking only to glorify Jesus. Their language is: "He must increase; I must decrease" (John 3:30). A GREAT CHARACTER.

Luke 1:15-16.

"Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." He was a Nazarite unto God, drinking neither wine nor strong drink. Wherein did his greatness consist? He was great-

1. Before the Lord. "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord." This assures us that he must have been in a condition of-

1. Rightness with God. No one can be great in the favour of God who is not right with Him. Reconciliation is needed to acceptance.

2. Likeness to God. It is possible to be justified before Him and yet not be fully conformed to Him. He made the first man after His own likeness. The second Man is the Lord from Heaven, after whose likeness we are now to be created by the same Spirit.

3. Readiness for God. A man entirely separated for Him, with no interest to come between him and his service for God. He was in no way entangled, a free man to do His will. This is greatness.

2. In himself. "He was filled with the Holy Ghost." Not the greatness of his own will, of purpose, or goodness, but the greatness of God dwelling in him. This implies-

1. Self-abnegation. He died to himself that God might live and move in him. Not I, but Christ in me. Man's original greatness was lowered to the dust through sin, and eternally ruined. The way into greatness in the Divine eyes is not by self-reformation, but by self-abnegation. A going out of the ruined nature into the life of God. I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live.

2. Divine possession. Filled with the Holy Spirit. Yielded up to the will of God as taught by His Spirit abiding within. Be not drunk with wine, but be filled with the Spirit. All true greatness comes from Him who alone is great. Great in wisdom, holiness, and power. "Thy gentleness hath made me great" (2 Samuel 22:36).

3. Heavenly wisdom. To be filled with the Spirit is to be filled with the knowledge of His will, so that every thought and act may be in perfect harmony with the mind of God. He worketh in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure. Ye are wise in Christ.

3. Among his fellowmen. "Many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God." This greatness then lies in holiness and usefulness. It is not something given us for our own honour, ease, or aggrandisement, but whereby the power of God may come into contact with others. If you would have this greatness you must not seek it for yourself. He will not give His glory to another. Here we see-

1. Great faithfulness. His ministry gives abundant evidence of his fearlessness and devotion to the work of God. Like the apostle of the Gentiles he could say, "This one thing I do" (Php_3:13).

2. Great power. Like the greater One who was to come after him, he spoke with power. His word was sharp, and quick, and powerful, because it was a word that burned in his bones. He was in vital sympathy with his message. It was to him no task committed to memory, but the living truth, blazing in a living soul, and dropping from his glowing tongue like coals of fire.

3. Great success. "Many turned to the Lord." A Holy Ghost ministry is always a success. It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which is in you. The Spirit of your Father will never speak without telling effect. The secret of his success lay in his exalting the Lord and not himself. He must increase, and I must decrease. "Go thou and do likewise" (Luke 10:37).

JESUS AS SAVIOUR AND KING.

Luke 1:30-33.

"Great disaster of the world,

When Adam from his throne was hurled;

When the tempter seem'd to win

Through unfathomable sin.

Ah! but it was only seeming;

Lo! the Christ has come redeeming."

Jesus the Lowly Child, yet the "Mighty God," stripped of His glory, and still glorious in His weakness. Great is the mystery of godliness.

1. His saving Name. "Thou shalt call His Name Jesus." Jesus means Saviour. God in measuring the depth of man's need could only meet that need by the gift of His only Son. As a Saviour He saves from-

1. Sin (Matthew 1:21). From its defiling and condemning power, from the love of it, and from the wrath that is to come because of it (1 Thessalonians 1:10). He saves from sin by putting Himself between the sinner and his guilt (Isa. 53).

2. Self (Galatians 2:20). The I is to be crucified with Christ that the body of sin might be destroyed (Romans 6:6). Self-wisdom, self-effort, and self-righteousness are all enemies from which we need to be delivered, and from which we are saved when Jesus reigns within.

3. This present evil world (Galatians 1:4). By being crucified with Christ we are crucified to the world and the world to us (Galatians 6:14). The Cross of Christ comes between us and our sins, between us and the flesh, and between us and the world. Did not our Lord pray that we should be kept from the evil? (John 17:15). He is mighty to save.

2. His wonderful character. "He shall be great" (Luke 1:32).

1. Great in His origin. "Called the Son of the Highest." As a Child He was born, as a Son He was given (Isaiah 9:6). Being the Son of the Highest, He is higher than angels, or than any created one. Yet He who belonged to the Highest descended to the lowest for us, becoming obedient unto death.

2. Great in His love. He so loved us that He gave Himself for us. Being the Son of the Highest His love was of the highest possible order. Behold what love! Herein is love (1 John 4:10). His love was consistent with the greatness of His character, and was stronger than death.

3. Great in His power. The power of Christ was the power of faith. He believed, and therefore spake, and it was done. There is nothing impossible with Him (Luke 1:37). All power, He says, is given unto Me. He is able to save to the uttermost. As many as touched Him were made perfectly whole.

3. His glorious prospect. "Who for the joy that was set before Him endured the Cross, despising the shame."

1. He shall have a throne. "The Lord God shall give Him the throne of His father David" (Luke 1:32). He shall do it. He has not yet received this throne, for the house of Jacob (Luke 1:33) still despise and reject Him as their Messiah King. Jesus Christ is God's appointed heir to David's throne (Jeremiah 23:5; compare Psalms 132:11 with Revelation 22:16; see also Isaiah 9:6-7).

2. He shall reign over the house of Jacob (Luke 1:33). Would Mary remember this while she stood by and saw Him crucified? Is His promise to come to naught? He as King has been rejected, and His reign over them as a people delayed, but the Word of God cannot be broken. The gifts and callings of God are without repentance. That foretold by Daniel must be fulfilled (chap. Luke 7:13-14). He was born King of the Jews. God hath given Him the throne of David, and He shall reign over the house of Jacob. To spiritualise this at the sacrifice of its literal meaning is to wrest the Scriptures. Render to God the things that are God's.

3. His kingdom shall have no end (Luke 1:33). The Kingdom of God that is within us shall certainly have no end. We shall never cease to be under the rule of Him who is our exalted Redeemer. But the kingdom of this world has not yet become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ (Revelation 11:15). The time has not yet come when the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords, shall reign over all blessed for ever. These times cannot come "until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Timothy 6:14-16).

MARY'S PRAYER.

Luke 1:30-38.

"Thou stooped'st over Thy bruised child, O Lord,

And 'mid the dark didst breathe the healing word;

Thou knowest all, and with mild mightiness

Granted'st a mother's kiss in my distress." When the power of the Highest stooped to overshadow the lowly Mary, it was to her indeed a manifestation of mild mightiness. She could truly say, "Thy gentleness hath made me great" (2 Samuel 22:36).

1. The promise. "Fear not, thou hast found favour with God, and shalt bring forth a Son, and call His Name Jesus" (Luke 1:30-31). She found favour, not as one who deserved it or bought it. The grace of God, which is favour, is never found by those who seek it as wages. The gift of God is eternal life.

2. The question. "How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?" (Luke 1:34). To have Christ formed within us is to be blessed above all. But how can this be? Hear, O heavens, and give answer, O earth. How shall this be? It is not in man to reason, and in all mere human experience impossible. Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Ye must be born again. How shall this be?

3. The answer. "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee" (Luke 1:35). To Mary's question, How shall this be? God's answer is "The Holy Ghost." How is His Son to be revealed in me? (Galatians 1:16). The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee. It is not of man, not of the flesh, not of works, not by might or by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord. He who brooded over the creation of old must overshadow thee. It is the Spirit that quickeneth. Let us apply this great thought to-

1. God's way of salvation. How shall this be? Well, it must just come to you as this honour came to Mary. As the favour of God. You cannot purchase it, and you never shall deserve it. God's answer to your question as to how it is to come into your heart and life is, "The Holy Ghost" (John 3:5). Like Mary, believe God's Word and rest.

2. God's way of sanctification. This, like salvation, and the forming of the new nature within us, is all of Grace. It is the favour of God. It is God who worketh in us, both to will and to do of His good pleasure. How shall this be? The Divine answer again is the same: "The Holy Ghost shall come unto thee." The storms and trials of life may blow off many withered leaves from an outward character, but there is nothing like the rising of the new life for putting off the old. Be filled with the Spirit.

3. God's way of service. To all our questions as to how we shall be made fruitful in the work of the Lord He has but one answer: "The Holy Ghost." From Me, saith the Lord, is thy fruit found. How shall I glorify God in my body and spirit? The power of the Highest shall overshadow thee. As vessels, we are to be filled with the Spirit and the knowledge of His will. As instruments, we are to be polished, and entirely yielded to His will. As agents, we act in His Name and for His sake. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptising them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" (Matthew 28:19-20). "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:20).

4. The prayer. Mary said, "Be it unto me according to Thy word" (Luke 1:38). This is very precious. Mary could not understand how the Son of God was to be formed in her, but she believed that it was His gracious will that it should be so. And she immediately yielded herself, spirit, soul, and body, that the will of God might be done in her and through her. "Be it unto me according to Thy word." This brief, deep, self-surrendering, God-glorifying prayer breathes the secret of salvation, sanctification, and successful service. Not My will, but Thine be done. Take this as an example of how His gracious words may be received and fulfilled in us. Be ye holy, for I am holy. How shall this be? The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee. Be it unto me according to Thy word.

HOLY JOY.

Luke 1:46-55.

"Bethlehem and Calvary-

A human child that God might die;

This the stupendous mystery.

Bethlehem and Calvary-

Sweet picture of humility,

And earth and Hell's hostility."

Bethlehem and Calvary are the two poles of Divine grace and human guilt. In the one we see the evidence of God's love to man, in the other the proof of man's hatred to God. In this chapter we have three holy songs:

1. The song of Elizabeth (Luke 1:41-42).

2. The song of Mary (Luke 1:46).

3. The song of Zacharias (Luke 1:67).

It is with the song of Mary that we have now specially to do. It is pleasant to think of Mary as a singer. Did ever mortal voice sing a sweeter song than this? Her joy was holy, deep, Divine. It was-

1. Spiritual joy. "My spirit hath rejoiced" (Luke 1:47). The tidings of the grace of God, in the gift of His Son, filled her soul with joy and made her spirit sing. The Gospel of God is intended to reach the very spirit of man, to touch and revive the innermost spring of His being. The lip songs of the hypocrite and the sentimental songs of the world never penetrate to the needy spirit in man.

2. Joy in God. "My spirit hath rejoiced in God" (Luke 1:47). God revealed Himself, and He was known to Mary in the gift of His Son, and so known and believed that her spirit rejoiced in God. It cannot be said of us that we know God if in our spirits we do not rejoice in Him. We joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ (Romans 5:11). The joy that is in God is pure and blameless, and may be changeless and eternal.

3. Joy of salvation. "My spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour" (Luke 1:47). How near the heart of the virgin mother comes to her God in these words, "My Saviour." Mary needed a Saviour, and she found Him in the Son of the Highest, begotten in her by the power of the Holy Ghost. Where and how else can we find Him? My Lord and my God. Christ dwells in our hearts by faith.

4. Praiseful joy. "My soul doth magnify the Lord" (Luke 1:46). Even the joy of salvation may be a selfish joy, but the joy of adoration is God-glorifying. Hannah also knew this double joy. Joy in the salvation of the Lord, and joy in the Lord Himself (1 Samuel 2:1). O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His Name together (Psalms 34:3).

5. Grateful joy. "For He hath regarded the low estate of His handmaiden" (Luke 1:48). She is deeply conscious that she could never merit the exceptional honour conferred upon her. No more can ye. Every one who knows God and lives in the light of His presence cannot but be conscious of his or her utter unworthiness of such love and favour. It is when, like Mary, we are in the low estate that the Lord will lift us up. Humble thyself and He will honour thee (Psalms 138:6).

6. Hopeful joy. "Behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed" (Luke 1:48). She was blessed indeed, and blessed down through the generations, all because of her very close relationship to both her Lord and ours. May we not learn from this that it is our nearness to Christ that is to tell on our children and the generations yet to come? The memory of the wicked shall rot, rot like a rootless, lifeless tree, but those planted by the river shall never wither (Psalms 1:3).

7. Reasonable joy. "For He that is mighty hath done to me great things" (Luke 1:49). When we are so really conscious that the Lord hath done great things for us and in us, by the mighty operation of His Holy Spirit, the joy becomes, as it were, natural. The fruit of the Spirit is joy. The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad (Psalms 126:3). Think on these things. He that is mighty is still able to do for us great things (Ephesians 3:20).

8. Joy that constrained to testimony. In the following verses (50-55) Mary testifies to-

1. The power of God. "He scattereth the proud in the imagination of their hearts. He hath put down the mighty from their seats, He hath sent the rich empty away. The arm that is strong to save is also strong to smite down everything that exalts itself against God. Those who know the joy of the Lord know this also.

2. The grace of God. "His mercy is on them that fear Him." "He hath exalted them of low degree." "He hath filled the hungry with good things." "By grace are ye saved, that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God" (Luke 18:14). It is the hungry and thirsty that are filled (Matthew 5:6). Our testimony will be blessed if it is given as Mary gave hers.

DELIVERED TO SERVE.

Luke 1:74-75.

"Lord, keep alive my sense of wonder,

Cent'ring in the living Christ,

Oft placing me, His great throne under,

To hold with Him a gracious tryst;

The 'old, old story' every new.

And ever proving itself true."

It is a great and cruel fallacy toward God and man to believe that we are saved merely to be satisfied. Such a debased thought is not worthy of the grace of God. The man who eats only to be satisfied is a selfish glutton and a worshipper of his stomach. We eat to live, and love, and labour. The provision of God made for us in Christ is to enable us to live before God, to love our fellowmen, and labour for Christ and His cause.

1. The great deliverance. "We being delivered out of the hand of our enemies." We are here reminded that this deliverance is-

1. All of grace. "That He would grant us." It is in reality a Divine grant. It is because of His mercy that we are not consumed. When any board or society allows a grant to any one, the idea of merit and desert is often present, but with God's grants there can be no plea of merit, else grace is not grace.

2. From the enemy, SIN. Sin is one of the enemies out of whose hand we need deliverance. In giving us His Son, God has also given us a grant of freedom from sin (Romans 6:18). "Sin shall not have dominion over you, for ye are not under law, but under grace" (Romans 6:14). Claim this grant.

3. From the enemy, SELF. If sin is not to be allowed to lord it over us, the self-seeking I must be put in the place of death. As long as the carnal I lives it will be the servant of sin. By the atoning Blood the victory is won.

4. From the enemy, SATAN. The great accuser is always ready to bring some railing accusation against the Lord, against His Gospel, or against ourselves. We are not ignorant of His devices." Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand" (Ephesians 6:11).

2. The purpose of it. "He hath delivered us that we might serve Him." We are saved to serve. We have been freed from sin that we might become servants to God (Romans 6:18). It is good to be able to say "Thank God, I am saved," but it is better to be able to say "Thank God, I am the bondslave of Jesus Christ." That we might-

1. Serve Him. One is your Master, even Christ. Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do? Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth. Serve Him, God first, not the Church, not a cause, not the good principle, but the living Christ, our ever present gracious Lord, whose we are.

2. Serve Him without fear. If we love the Lord with all our heart this will be the character of our service, for there is no fear in love; perfect love casteth out fear. Having received the Spirit of adoption we are saved from slavish fear and serve in the love of a son (Romans 8:15).

3. Serve Him in holiness. As saved ones we are "called with a holy calling" (2 Timothy 1:9). Called into the holy priesthood, having been washed and clothed with holy robes that we might minister in holy things as we eat the holy meat. They must be clean who bear the vessels of the Lord. He which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy (1 Peter 1:15).

4. Serve Him in righteousness. Our new man is created after God in righteousness and true holiness (Ephesians 4:24). So the new man is expected to serve God in righteousness as well as in holiness. "In holiness" may refer to the nature of God within us; "in righteousness," to the Word of God before us. His holy nature imparted to us gives us fitness for service. His Holy Word gives us righteous principles for guidance in service.

5. Serve before Him. Sweet is the service that is rendered in the consciousness of His presence and done as standing before Him. Elijah could speak of "the Lord God of Israel before whom I stand" (1 Kings 17:1). Abraham walked before God. Serving before Him is the remedy for the fear of man, and the secret of deliverance from dishonouring God by presenting eloquent prayers to great audiences.

6. Serve Him all the days of our life. There is no discharge in this holy war. The Levite might retire after a limited number of years' service, but those delivered from sin and wrath by the agony and blood of God's beloved Son are to serve Him all the days of their life. All the days of that life which is Divine and eternal. In the days of bodily infirmity and weakness, when we can do nothing but look, may that look be the look of blessed submission and holy trust. Yes, Lord, all the days of my life and of Thy life. THE NIGHT OF THE INCARNATION.

Luke 2:1-20.

"O prodigious wonder!

To be sounded by the thunder-

Our God on earth a Child.

But as the light, not lightning,

Attracting and affright'ning,

Earth and Heaven reconciled." This is in truth what one has called "The birth supreme 'midst things ajar." The Light of the World was born in the night. Naturally and spiritually the world at His coming was wrapped in sullen, helpless darkness. The cold, chilly mists of form and ceremony are now to melt away before the warmth and brightness of His rising. Thank God that He came as "light, not lightning." Notice the-

1. Preparation. "Joseph and Mary, because they belonged to the house of David, went up to Bethlehem to be taxed" (Luke 2:1-5). God had foretold, through the mouth of His prophet Micah, that Christ the King of Israel was to be born in Bethlehem (Micah 5:2). The decree of the Roman Emperor helped on the fulfilment of God's Word. Our circumstances are in the hand of God as well as our soul.

2. Arrival. "She laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn" (Luke 2:7). No room in the inn for Him is strangely prophetic of the reception He was to have as the Saviour of men. Other persons and things first. Is it not so still? We are told that there is a place for everything. What place has Jesus Christ in politics, in business, in society (so-called), in the home, or in the heart. Like that inn in Bethlehem they are already full. No room for Jesus with regard to the affairs of daily life. Is it not still true that "the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head?" (Matthew 8:20).

3. Proclamation (Luke 2:8-12). It was divinely fitting that "Christ the Lord" should be heralded by the "angel of the Lord," and accompanied with the "glory of the Lord." We have here the gospel of the incarnation, declaring "good tidings of great joy." Good tidings of the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, emptying Himself unto poverty that He might make many rich (2 Corinthians 8:9).

4. Accompaniment. "Suddenly there was a multitude of the heavenly host praising God" (Luke 2:13-14). If there was indifference among men on earth at the coming of the Son of God there was no indifference in Heaven at His going. There is joy in Heaven still over one sinner repenting and believing in Him (Luke 15:7).

5. Inquiry. "Let us now go and see this which the Lord hath made known unto us" (Luke 2:15-16). The shepherds believed the Word, and acting on it, they found Him just as it was told them. Instead of reasoning and cavilling, would that men had the wisdom of these shepherds, and just say, "Let us go and see." Put the Word of God to the test. Believe, and thou shalt see. Seek, and ye shall find.

6. Testimony, "When they had seen they made known abroad the saying" (Luke 2:17). They believed, and therefore they spoke. Those who have proved the power of God's revealed truth in their own experience are better able to speak of it to others. They cannot help speaking it, it is such good tidings of great joy. They make known the saying because it is a faithful one and worthy of the acceptation of all (1 Timothy 1:15),

7. Rejoicing. "They returned glorifying and praising God" (Luke 2:20). We may well question whether we have ever found the Lord if we have no joy in speaking of Him, and not constrained out of a full heart to glorify and praise Him. If the Gospel is not tidings of great joy to us it is clear that we have never yet believed it. The shepherds: 1. Heard; 2. Believed; 3. Obeyed; 4. Received; 5. Testified; 6. Rejoiced; 7. Praised. "They returned praising God." Returned to their daily avocation, but with a new vision before their souls, and a new power in their lives. Finding Jesus the Saviour is a very practical discovery.

GOOD TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY.

Luke 2:8-14.

"I, too, would seek the angels to follow,

Lord of all angels, wilt Thou me hallow?

I fain would emulate their holy zeal,

I fain would their glad obedience feel,

My forehead, like theirs, Thy holiness seal." In those broad undulating fields lying around Bethlehem, where Ruth began her mission of gleaning, and where David tended the flock of his father Jesse, shepherds were still keeping watch over their flock by night. But that was a night never to be forgotten. That night a star appeared that was destined to supersede the brightness of the sun, and to fill the whole earth with the glory of the invisible God. Good tidings. Look at-

1. The Preacher. "The angel of the Lord." This is the first herald of the new dispensation. It was a great occasion, but it was not what the wisdom of men would call an eloquent sermon. It was brilliant in its simplicity, though in meaning fathomless as eternity. "Fear not, I bring you good tidings of great joy" (Luke 2:8). It was what all sermons should be-plain, pointed, practical, powerful.

2. The hearers. "Shepherds in the fields." They were both intelligent and attentive. They were more. They were hungering and thirsting for the tidings which now fell so suddenly upon their startled ears. They were anxious souls, looking and longing for His appearing. Just as the highest hill top catches the first glory beams of the rising sun, so these shepherds, standing on the heights of believing expectation, are first bathed in the glory that was coming to bless a sleeping world. They that honour Me, I will honour.

3. The Gospel. "Behold I bring you good tidings." Let us examine the characteristics of this wonderful God-spell that was in the approaching ages to hold so many spellbound amidst all the fascinations of the world and pleasures of sin. It was-

1. Mysterious. "Unto you is born Christ the Lord." Who can by searching find out this? The Lord of glory born and lying in a manger, stripped of His ineffable majesty and wrapped in swaddling clothes. This is the sign (Luke 2:12). The sign of infinite grace and compassion. Great is the mystery of godliness. God manifest in the flesh.

2. Good. "Good tidings." The voice on the mount at the giving of the law only brought fear and quaking. The law proclaimed was holy, just, and good, but that was no tidings of good to sinful men. The Gospel brings good tidings, because it declares a Saviour born. Without the birth of God's Son, no son could be born of God. He who was to bring sons to glory must be "made perfect through sufferings" (Hebrews 2:10; Isaiah 52:7).

3. Joyful. "Good tidings of great joy." Its first note is "Fear not." Fear not the depth of your sinfulness, the number of your sins, your own weakness, or the foes of the soul without, for unto you is born a Saviour. God has laid help on One that is mighty, Christ the Lord. We joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ (Romans 5:11).

4. Personal. "I bring you good tidings. For unto you is born this day." The voice of this heavenly wisdom is still crying out, "Unto you, O men, I call." The shepherds could not but believe that this blessed message from God was for all that heard it. Hear, and your soul shall live. This Gospel is unto you first (Acts 3:26).

5. Universal. "Which shall be to all people" (Luke 2:10). When our Lord lay in His swaddling clothes, or when He stood before Pilate, He was in the eyes of men a very insignificant object compared with Pilate and the pagan Emperor of Rome, but where are they now? The world for which Christ died shall yet be blessed through His Name. "All nations shall call Him blessed" (Psalms 72:11). Are you blessing Him now?

6. Confirmed. "Suddenly a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest" (Luke 2:13-14). This thing was not done in a corner. Those who believe the Gospel will have ample reasons for cleaving to it, both miraculous and otherwise, the Word will always be confirmed with signs following. The Spirit beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God (Romans 8:16; 1 Corinthians 1:22).

SIMEON-A HIDDEN ONE.

Luke 2:25-32.

"My mother's grave my Sinai was,

But light, not lightning, was the cause

That won me from my unbelief,

And staunch'd an ageing father's grief;

Softly my childhood's prayer returned,

And my old faith within me burned."

Simeon seems to have been one of the Lord's hidden ones, who, under the guidance of God, calmly and quietly served Him in waiting. But the hidden one is here brought into light. He has prayed in secret, he is now rewarded openly.

1. See his holy character.

1. He was just and devout (Luke 2:25). Just in his dealings with men, and devout in his dealings with God. Righteous and holy. These are the two sides of a Christian life, they must be equally honest and true.

2. He waited for the consolation of Israel. He waited and prayed because he believed. This dear old man of God had no faith in any other means or efforts to comfort Israel than the coming of the King. This is still Israel's hope, for "the Lord shall comfort Zion" (Isaiah 51:3). His waiting was rewarded; his hope was fulfilled. "They shall not be ashamed that wait for Me" (Isaiah 49:23). Wait on the Lord.

3. He was endued with the Spirit. "The Holy Ghost was upon him." There is always a very vital connection between waiting on the Lord and being endued with power (Acts 2:1-4). The effect of the Holy Spirit resting upon Him was twofold: 1. He was taught. It was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost that he should not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ. 2. He was led. "He came by the Spirit into the temple" (Luke 2:27). Every Spirit-possessed one has the things of Christ revealed to him or her, and will be led by the Spirit. It may simplify the matter to reverse the order here: (1) Be filled with the Spirit, then you will (2) be willing to wait on and for the Lord; and then (3) you will be able to live a just and devout life before God and men, being taught of God and led by the Spirit.

2. Hear his joyful testimony. His is indeed a striking attitude as he stands with the infant Saviour in those arms so long outstretched in prayer and patient waiting. Who can refrain from giving a glowing testimony when the arms of their faith have been filled with the personal Saviour? He blesses God as one whose life had now been fully satisfied with his gift. Crowned with his honour, and ready to depart in peace. Such is always the satisfying power of Jesus Christ when received by faith. He testifies of-

1. Christ as the Salvation of God. "Mine eyes have seen Thy salvation" (Luke 2:30). Beautiful is the title thus given to Jesus. "Thy Salvation." God's great love, mercy, and power united to redeem and bless us in the person of His Son. This was the making bare of the arm of the Lord for salvation (Isaiah 52:10). This naked arm reveals, if we might so put it, the strong and mighty saving muscle of Jehovah. "O arm of the Lord, awake, awake!" What else but the living Christ in our hearts will ever fit us for departing in peace?

2. Christ as the Light of the Gentiles (Luke 2:32). "As a revelation to the nations" (Newberry). Christ is God's revealed Light to the nations of the earth. With regard to the character of God and the way of salvation there is no other light. All else is but the light of sin-blinded reason, which is only supposition or superstition. "I am the Light of the World." Salvation is a coming out of darkness into His marvellous light. The sparks of our own making will never turn night into day (Isaiah 9:2). No more can our own work save us. The presence of Christ with us and in us is as Heaven's own searchlight turned upon the Father that we may see Him, and turned upon ourselves, upon sin, death, and eternity that we might see these, as it were, with His eyes. "Walk in the light" (1 John 1:7).

3. Christ as the Glory of Israel (Luke 2:32). This is the order revealed by the Holy Ghost to Simeon. Christ was to be first a light to the Gentiles, after that the glory of His people Israel. Was there another in Israel who believed that the Christ would first bless the Gentile nations before He would be glorified among His own ancient people? The Holy Spirit could make no mistake. The Messiah would be cut off, numbered with transgressors. But He will come again, not as a sin-offering, but as the King of Israel, with great power and glory. They shall mourn because of Him (having crucified Him), but the glory of the Lord will then have arisen upon them. Where the glorified One is there will be glory, for glory always dwells in Immanuel's land, whether in earth or in Heaven, in Time, or Eternity. Christ is our Salvation; Christ is our Light; Christ is our Glory. To Him be the praise.

CHRIST A SIGN SPOKEN AGAINST.

Luke 2:34-35.

"Voiceless, alone, and hunger-bitten,

Lo! where the scapegoat stands sun-smitten;

Or now among the sere sedge lying

Parched, and as by inches dying..

Thou, O my Saviour, for our sake,

The antitype Thyself didst make.

But, ah! on Thee a mightier load,

Thou God-forsaken Son of God." As soon as Simeon took the Lord in his arms he became a prophet, being taught of the Holy Ghost (Luke 2:25), he spake with all boldness. Each saying is full of deep and far-reaching significance. Receiving Christ is always a means of opening the eyes to behold the things which are unseen. Observe what he says about the- 1. Mission of Christ. "This Child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel" (Luke 2:34). This-

1. Was true locally. In the day of His suffering and shame His disciples forsook Him and fled, they fell from Him, but they rose again into faith and favour after His resurrection.

2. Is true universally. All who come to Him must fall before Him ere they can be raised again in newness of life. Saul fell to the earth at His appearing to him on the way to Damascus, but he was raised again, a chosen vessel to bear His Name. Zacchaeus had to come down at His call before salvation came to his house (Luke 19:1-9). We must needs be planted in the likeness of His death before we can be raised in the likeness of His resurrection (Romans 6:5).

3. Will be true dispensationally. Israel as a nation has already fallen (Romans 9:12), and the Gentiles are being presently enriched thereby, but a rising again will yet take place, for all Israel shall be saved when the Deliverer shall come out of Zion and turn away ungodliness (Romans 9:26).

2. Character of Christ. "He shall be for a sign which shall be spoken against." "A sign may be offensive in two ways, either by its bewildering uncertainty or its alarming clearness. It was the unmistakable distinctness of Christ's life and teaching that made Him a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence to many. In Him as a sign we see, as it were, the-

1. Red light of danger. Lifted up before the eyes of the doubting and the impenitent. If the green tree that stood in our place in the fires of God's judgment had to suffer so, what shall become of the dry?

2. Blue light of caution. To those who would rush past the Cross in their haste to be saved, going about to establish their own righteousness. O that men would consider. Take heed to thyself.

3. White light of safety. To the believing and the obedient. Christ the Sign declares that the way is clear to him that trusteth. Press on to the mark. If thy Master was spoken against, be thou not offended if many speak against thee (Acts 23:32).

3. Influence of Christ. "He shall be spoken against, that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed" (Luke 2:35). These are solemn words. O my soul tread softly here. To come into contact with Jesus Christ is to have the thoughts of the heart revealed. He is the Living Word, who is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. The thoughts of our hearts, with regard to Him, are being revealed every day by our words and actions. Are they for Him or against Him? As a man is in Christ's sight, so is he. Our attitude toward Him determines whether we shall stand or fall in the judgment, and determines now whether our life is pleasing in His sight. The Lord looketh upon the heart. Has the sword of suffering that pierced through the soul of Mary, as she witnessed the agony and death of her Son and Saviour, pierced through our souls, because of our deep and real sympathy with Him? And are the thoughts of many hearts being revealed through the suffering and rejected Saviour in us? May the sword of His Word pierce through our souls, and may the thoughts of His heart be revealed to us. A SORROWFUL SEARCH.

Luke 2:41-51.

" We've trod the maze of error round,

Long wand'ring in the winding glade;

And now the torch of light is found,

It only shows us where we strayed."

-GEORGE CRABBE.

It is extremely melancholy at the end of an anxious, busy life only to find light enough to show that it has been a life of error and failure and transgression against God. It is possible for the saving light of the Gospel to become at last, through wilful neglect, only the lurid glare that reveals but a ghastly future. Walk in the light while ye have the light. Seek the Lord while He may be found.

It was the first eventful day in the life of Jesus when He went to His first Passover at Jerusalem at the age of twelve. Even then, as the Great Teacher come from God, He could not be hid. Let us reflect on the seeking and the finding of Him by His reputed parents.

1. The discovery. "They went a day's journey, and when they found Him not they turned back." It is always a sad discovery to those who know and love Jesus to find that He is not with them. Like Samson, they may shake themselves, but it availeth nothing (Judges 16:20). How had this come about? We read that they-

1. Supposed Him to be in the company. Supposing Him to be with us is no evidence that He is with us. Many suppose Christ to be with them who are living Christless lives, supposing that all is right when all is wrong. Then again they-

2. Doubtless were taken up with other company. Not that they intended to go without Him, but between their suppositions and the pressure of their kinsfolk and acquaintances He was left behind. Is it not the old story, "While I was busy here and there, He was gone?" It is even possible to be busy with the Lord's work when the Lord Himself is not with us. A missionary going out to his work one morning very sad was caught at the door by his wife, who looked into his face and said, "O Willie, much work and little prayer makes a hard task." There was no visiting that morning, but a work was done in Willie's soul that proved a life-long blessing.

2. The search. One day's journey without Jesus incurred three days' sorrowful searching. But observe that they-

1. Sought Him at once. They did not attempt to go one step farther without Him. Their love forbade them. We will always make quicker progress by turning back to the place where we have parted company with Christ than by going on without His conscious presence with us. If His presence does not brighten your life, seek His face. Wait on the Lord. Turn back.

2. Sought Him sorrowing. At first they sought Him where they could not find Him, among their kinsfolk and acquaintances. Are we not all apt to run among our Christian friends, seeking the light and help that only Christ Himself can give? It is always a sorrowful search seeking the Lord. If we feel the need of His presence to satisfy our souls as much as His parents did, the terrible sense of loss will constrain us to seek Him in tears.

3. The finding. He that seeketh findeth (Jeremiah 29:13). They found Him-

1. Where? "In the temple." The temple was the "house of prayer." This fact may help to impress us with the thought that in the secret place of prayer we may surely expect to find Him whom our souls love, and whose presence with us we so much need in our journey homeward. Such blessed company makes the road short.

2. When? "After three days." We cannot resist the conviction that there is a profound truth here for every seeker after Jesus. The three days seem to remind us of the resurrection." Destroy this temple," He said, "and in three days I will raise it up again." It is not a dead Christ we seek, but the risen, living One, who sits in the midst, in the great temple above.

3. How? "Sitting in the midst of doctors about His Father's business." All who ever sought and found Christ have found Him doing His Father's business. It is the will of God both to save and sanctify. In our receiving Jesus Christ by faith, and abiding in Him, the great business of the Father with respect to our individual lives is being done. Thy will be done in us as in Heaven.

4. The following. Note also that He-

1. Went down with them. He had just said to them, Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business? Yet He went down with them. Down into the home, down into all the joys and sorrows and details of their everyday life, and this was also to Him the Father's business. Is it otherwise now? Does He not still go down with those who have sought Him sorrowing into the sphere of their daily toil, into their every circumstance, that all may be brightened and cheered with His presence?

2. Was subject to them. He adapted Himself to all their needs and requirements. He placed Himself, as it were, at their disposal, and virtually said, "What will ye that I should do unto you?" Reverently speaking, is it not so still? Has He not offered Himself to all who have sought Him? Does He not now adapt Himself as our Saviour to our every condition and requirement? Is He not still, on the ground of His own promise, subject to them that believe? He cannot deny Himself. THE CALL OF JOHN.

Luke 3:1-6.

"Pleasure-seeking only,

Though others be Lonely;

Dressing, drinking, eating,

The soul madly cheating;

Scorning the love unpriced,

So we shall not be missed." A life is poorly lived indeed that is not missed when gone. Those most anxious to obtrude themselves before their fellows seem to leave no gap behind them when they die. John the Baptist sought no place for himself, but God lifted him up as a trumpet, putting him, as it were, to His mouth, and, filling him with His own divine breath, made him the voice of God. Luke, as an historian, is very precise in giving us here, in a few words, the outward historical setting of John's life, but we tarry not to look at the framework, beautiful and wonderful as it is. We seek to point out-

I. When this Call Came. It came to John while "in the wilderness" (Luke 3:2). Into this desert or sparsely peopled part of the valley of Jordan John had evidently gone, that there alone he might learn more fully what the mind of the Lord was concerning him. To improve our time we have often to cease working and get alone with God, especially when we realise that some definite purpose of God concerning us is breaking in upon our minds and hearts. Take time to be holy. Wait on the Lord. Enter thy closet and shut to the door.

II. How this Call Came. "The Word of God came unto John" (Luke 3:2). How the Word of God came to him we are not told. He being filled with the Holy Ghost from his birth, and as his early longings and convictions ripened into settled purposes, the revelation was made to him that this was God's work within him, and God's Word to be uttered through him. How often has the Word of God come to us in this way! When old familiar truths have suddenly flashed up with a new glory and urgency, bringing a fresh message from the Lord to the soul.

III. The Effect Produced. "And he came preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins" (Luke 3:3). He was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. When the Word of God burns within the bones the most unpopular methods may be adopted, but with sterling success. His mission was not to save, but to preach baptism as the outward sign of "a repentant heart, preparing the way of the Lord for their remission of sins. Those who had submitted to his baptism were afterwards pointed to the "Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

IV. The Character of his Testimony. There was-

1. A Fulfilling of Prophecy. "As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet" (Luke 3:4). It is quite clear that John recognised and confessed that this Scripture was fulfilled in him before their eyes (John 1:23), just as his Master did with regard to Isaiah 61 (Luke 4:21). Every truly consecrated life is a fulfilling, or filling full, of the Word of God. It shall not return void or empty when our hearts and souls are in it.

2. An Abandonment of Self. "The voice of one crying out in the wilderness" (Luke 3:4). John said, "I am the voice of one crying," etc. (John 1:23). John was the Word made voice. Christ was the Word made flesh. The message that came through Isaiah over 700 years ago is now voiced through John by the power of the Holy Ghost. He who would be a herald of Christ must be content to be a voice, and that voice not his own. The polluting breath of self-assertiveness must not be in it if its tones are to be pure and heavenly. "Not I, but Christ in me." John's was not a voice singing, but a voice crying in the wilderness, as one in an agony for the will of God. Those who so sigh and cry will have the divine mark set upon them (Ezekiel 9:4).

3. A Glorification of Christ. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," etc. (Luke 3:4). John is not concerned about his own way, but is intensely interested in "the way of the Lord." John honours Christ. 1. As the pre-eminent One. The glory of Christ fills the broad horizon of his vision, and occupies both hemispheres of his soul. His way and His paths. 2. As the filling One. "Every valley shall be filled" (Luke 3:5). He fills up the valleys by exalting them (Isaiah 40:4). He feeds the hungry by lifting them up into His own fulness. No matter how deep and wide the chasm of our need may be He can fill up out of His own "unsearchable riches." 3. As the humbling One. "Every mountain and hill shall be brought low" (Luke 3:5). The lofty pride of Saul was suddenly brought low on the way to Damascus (Acts 9). He brings down that He might raise up. 4. As the upright One. "The crooked shall be made straight." Every son of God was once part of a crooked nation (Php_2:15). It takes an upright one to straighten out the crooks in others, and to the crooked this may be, and often is, a painful and shameful process. He suffered, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God. 5. As the comforting One. "The rough ways shall be made smooth" (Luke 3:2). Rough ways have caused many to faint and be discouraged. Rough ways are very common, and many even of God's children go on sad and wearily. Do we know Christ as the Smoother of our ways? "They looked unto Him, and were lightened." He is the "Breaker up" of our way, and can make the rough places smooth for us. The Israelites had light in their dwellings, while the Egyptians sat in darkness. He does make a difference. 6. As the universal One. "All flesh shall see the salvation of God" (Luke 3:6). The good tidings of the Gospel was for all people (Luke 2:10). God is not a man that He should lie, and He hath said, "As truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord" (Numbers 14:21). This curse-burdened earth is groaning on, waiting for the emancipating day, when the King Himself shall appear as the "blessed and only Potentate," and when all shall know Him, from the least unto the greatest. THE PREACHING OF JOHN.

Luke 3:7-18.

"Some angel guide my pencil while I draw

What nothing less than angel can exceed:

A man on earth devoted to the skies;

Like ships in seas, while in, above the world,

With aspect mild and elevated eye.

Behold Him seated on a mount serene,

Above the fogs of sense, and passion's storm;

He sees with other eyes than theirs. Where they Behold a Sun, he spies a Deity.

They things terrestrial worship as divine!

His hopes, immortal, blow them by as dust."-Young.

There is nothing like the glare of Heaven's light for blinding our eyes to the deceitful things of earth. The eyes of John were on the Son of Righteousness, and his tongue a flame of fire. The pure in heart shall see God, and they that see God shall not fear the face of man. The character of John's preaching has many lessons.

I. A Burning Question. "He said, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" (Luke 3:7). There is wrath to come, but who hath warned you that ye have not fled from it through repentance. How can ye flee from the wrath to come if ye are not fleeing from your sins? The way of repentance is the way into the Father's bosom (Luke 15:20). From whom has your warning come?

II. An Urgent Demand. "Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves," etc. (Luke 3:8). It is easier to say within ourselves than to show the fruits of repentance towards God in our lives. Any tree may shake with the wind, but by their fruits are they known. Bringing forth fruit unto God is the evidence that we have fled from the wrath to come. This pressing claim of the desert preacher has much need to be emphasised to-day. Faith, humility, brotherly love, and zeal for the kingdom of God are fruits worthy of repentance.

III. A Testing Crisis. "And now also the axe is laid at the root of the tree," etc. (Luke 3:9). The message of this forerunner of Christ was as an axe laid at the root of each tree, and by which each fruitless tree in due time would be hewn down. The words of John would judge them on the testing day. Every time we hear the Gospel of Christ in the power of God it is, as it were, an axe laid at the root of our life that will be used by the hand of the Judge in cutting down the fruitless impenitent. Hath Jesus not declared that "the Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him on the last day?" (John 12:48). "Take heed therefore how ye hear" (Luke 8:18).

IV. A Practical Doctrine. "The people, the publicans, and the soldiers asked him, saying, What shall we do?" (Luke 3:10-14). The man whose eyes are on the coming Christ is the most practical man on earth. Here were three classes of anxious inquirers. To the first he preached brotherly love (Luke 3:11), to the second honesty in business (Luke 3:13), to the third forbearance and contentment (Luke 3:14). John's preaching of righteousness led to repentance, but culminated, as all such preaching ever should, on pointing to the "Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29). The repentance that does not lead to the Cross is a repentance that needs to be repented of.

V. A Self-Humbling Confession. "John answered, saying, One mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose" (Luke 3:16). John was mighty in righteousness, but Jesus was mightier in grace. The might of a servant of Christ lies in the mightiness of his Master. "One mightier than I cometh." The knowledge of the nearness of the mighty coming One filled the heart of John with courage and comfort. The great Spirit and Fire-baptiser was at hand, and the herald is already lost in the brightness of His coming. Present-day preachers crying like a voice in the wilderness of this Christ-rejecting and pleasure-loving world have much need, like John, to know the sustaining power of this heart-bracing truth. "The Lord is at hand." The Almighty King will soon appear. Behold He cometh.

VI. A Soul-Inspiring Proclamation. "He shall baptise you with the Holy Ghost and with fire" (Luke 3:16). The marginal rendering of the Revised Version is "in" instead of "with." John baptised with water as an outward evidence of repentance. Jesus Christ baptises with the Holy Ghost as an inward assurance of forgiveness and acceptance (Romans 8:16). To be baptised with or in the Holy Ghost means the entering of the soul into a holy, heavenly, illuminating atmosphere, where the things of God and eternity are clearly seen. It is a passing from darkness into His marvellous light. To live in the Spirit is to live in the glowing fire of the divine presence. Here spiritual things become more real than the visible things of earth; here all believers are made to drink into one Spirit (1 Corinthians 12:13). This baptism cannot come through the works of the flesh; it is the gift of the Mighty Ascended One. "He shall baptise you." Are you so baptised?

VII. A Solemn and Timely Warning. "Whose fan is in His hand. He will gather the wheat; He will burn the chaff" (Luke 3:17). He who baptises with the Holy Ghost and fire carries the fan in His hand, He who unites and enriches with spiritual blessings also separates and judges. To come into contact with Christ is to come under the power of His fan. He carries it in His hand, and in a very real sense the purging process is going on now in the lives of those who have come into the baptism of the Holy Ghost. But the time will come when He will thoroughly purge the Church as "His floor," the sphere in which He has in grace been operating by the Holy Spirit, and where the lifeless chaff and the precious wheat meanwhile lie mingled in a confused heap. The fan is in His hand, so that He Himself must come before the final sifting can take place. He shall separate the precious from the vile (Malachi 3:3). The wheat and the tares are allowed to grow together until the harvest (Matthew 13:30). His wheat is gathered into "His garner," but the empty chaff He will not own, but appoints it to the "fire unquenchable" (Matthew 25:46). THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

Luke 4:1-13.

"We mourn, Lord, that our wav'ring will

So oft invites the tempter's skill;

We must confess that still we find

Some fleshy lusts war 'gainst the mind;

O break our chain, Lord, set us free.

Thou tempted once, us tempted see."

Jesus Christ was tempted on all points like as we are. How He met the tempter in the wilderness reveals to us some of those principles that lie at the root of every Christlike life, also teaching us something of what is meant by the "armour of God" (Ephesians 6:11). We shall look at these sayings of our Lord as a summary of the characteristics of a Christian life. It is-

I. A Life not of this World. "Man shall not live by bread alone" (Luke 4:4). "Bread alone" may stand for all that goes to satisfy the natural cravings of man. It is possible to possess all that this world can furnish, and yet be destitute of life in this deep and divine sense. That which is "born from above" must also be supplied from above. We must ever distinguish between soul and spirit. Material things will satisfy the soulish life, but not the spiritual. You hath He quickened, who were dead.

II. A Life of Faith. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God. " The words of God are spirit and life, and so become food for the inner man (John 6:63). "Thy Word hath quickened me" (Psalms 119:50). "Thy words were found, and I did eat them, and Thy Word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart" (Jeremiah 15:16). The Word of God is always sweet to the taste of faith. While we feed on the Word of God faith itself will be fed, for faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God (Romans 10:17).

III. A Life of Adoration. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God" (Luke 4:8). This was our Lord's answer to the devil when he offered Him the glory of "all the kingdoms of the world" on condition that He worshipped him. The glory of this Christ-rejecting world is only the mirage of the devil. Any one who worships him may easily have the promise of it. The glory of this world passeth away. Whoever or whatever has the worship of our hearts is by us crowned as Lord of all we are. "Thou shalt have no other god before Me."

IV. A Life of Service. "Him only shalt thou serve" (Luke 4:8). "One is your Master, even Christ" (Matthew 23:8). The will of God ought to be supreme in the life of every Christian. "Ye call Me Master and Lord, and ye say well: for so I am." He can take no other place than that of being "Head over all." In our daily work and calling are we conscious that we serve Him only? Doing all as for Him will lift the commonest drudgery into a work so holy that angels might covet. This is the cure for a grumbling spirit, and an unfailing remedy for the prevailing sin of discontent.

V. A Life of Humble Obedience. "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God" (Luke 4:12). The Lord charged His people in the wilderness with tempting Him "ten times" by not hearkening unto His voice (Numbers 14:22). Our unbelief and disobedience sorely tempt the loving kindness of our God. What could try a true mother's heart like the doubting of her love? How would a faithful husband feel if treated by his wife like an untrustworthy stranger? Let us cease to tempt the Lord our God by hearkening unto other voices and walking in the light of our own eyes. Has He not declared, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased?" "Hear ye Him." Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God with thy discontent, thy doubtings, and thy unbelief.

VI. An Overcoming Life. "The devil departed from Him" (Luke 4:13). The victory was gained by the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, "It is written." The Word of God is the sword of the Spirit, not only because He uses it, but also because He is the Maker of it. "Holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Peter 1:21). Jesus fearlessly used the written Word against the archenemy of souls. We may as confidently use it against all his modern little angels. "In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Romans 8:37). "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:57). A POWERFUL SERMON.

Luke 4:14-30.

"Nazareth, O Nazareth!

Tho' a name of evil holding,

Here was brought 'The Undefiled,'

Like a dove a serpent folding,

Here grew up 'The Holy Child.'

Nazareth! Cross-like we see

Thy stained name from all stain free."

It was said, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" But ever since these words were uttered the name has become sacred because of its association with Jesus Christ. In fact, there is a heaven-born principle here, viz., everything with which Jesus Christ identifies Himself becomes holy, no matter how small and disreputable it may be in the sight of men. Palestine is called the Holy Land just because the feet of the Holy One trod upon it. A sinner out of whom no good thing could ever come may become holy in the self-same way by coming into contact with Jesus. If Nazareth lost its stain of sin through the Name of Jesus, so may we.

"Take the Name of Jesus with you,

Child of sorrow and of woe;

It will joy and comfort give you,

Take it then where'er you go."

Anywhere and everywhere His Name is a saving Name. Let it be then as the "new cruse" of salt to sweeten every bitter spring in our lives (2 Kings 2:20-21). The picture before us is beautiful and impressive.

I. The Preacher. "Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee" (Luke 4:14). Jesus had gone out of Galilee, as others had gone, to the baptism of John, but the coming of the Holy Spirit upon Him and the assault of the devil in the wilderness had wrought a marvellous change upon His public character. "There went out a fame of Him through all the region." He was an obscure man till He was baptised with the Holy Ghost. So was Peter and the rest of the apostles. The man or woman who returns to his or her work in the power of the Spirit will not be without manifest tokens of the blessing of God.

II. The Place. "He came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up" (Luke 4:16). He began at home. "Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee" (Mark 5:19). The first example of piety is to be shown at home (1 Timothy 5:4). The home field is often the most barren. "Neither did His brethren believe in Him." Nevertheless His faithful testimony led many to say, "Whence hath this Man this wisdom and these mighty works?" (Matthew 13:54). Wisdom and mighty works characterise all those who are filled with the Spirit.

III. The Text. "And when He had opened the book (roll) He found the place," the place where the lesson was for that day (Luke 4:17). The place was Isaiah 61:1. The text He found was the prophetic counterpart of His own experience. As preachers we may be assured of this, that it is not the will of God that we should preach from texts that have not had their fulfilment in our own experience. "We speak that we do know" was the testimony of Jesus (John 3:11). He had just received the anointing of the Spirit, now He declares it to them.

IV. The Sermon. He began with the application, saying, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears" (Luke 4:21). The Scripture here referred to is a fountain of living waters (Luke 4:18). Streams of blessing from the Anointed One to the poor, the broken-hearted, the captives, the blind, and the bruised. It was a sermon suited for the needs of all. This is the Gospel of Christ, but it was also heart-searching and convincing. His reference to the Sidonian widow and the Syrian leper (Luke 4:25-27) magnified the grace of God, while it cut at the roots of their pharisaical pride. He did not plead for their favour or forbearance, but boldly declared that "No prophet is accepted in his own country." The man who has a message from God does not preach to please the people. One of the best things that could happen many Gospel hearers is that they should be tremendously offended.

V. The Results. "That there will be definite results of some kind is a moral certainty when the preacher is anointed with the Holy Spirit." They-

1. Wondered. "They wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth" (Luke 4:22). Men are still more inclined to wonder at gracious words than mere philosophical words. The tongue of the divinely learned knows how to speak a word in season to him that is weary (Isaiah 50:4). The wisdom that cometh from above is always practical. Those filled with the Holy Ghost have grace poured into their lips (Psalms 45:2). Gracious words are seldom out of season.

2. Were Filled with Wrath (Luke 4:28). Their wonder was turned into hate when the searchlight of truth was turned in upon their own hearts. These synagogue members, like many modern Gospel hearers, were quite pleased to hear beautiful words of grace as long as their own personal sins were allowed to remain hidden and untouched. Christ is the Truth as well as the Way.

3. Cast Him Out (Luke 4:29). Those who have bad eyes are inclined to blame the sun. There is not much sometimes between man's admiration and disgust. Those who sacrifice the truth of God for the sake of their own proud and selfish ends show that they are animated by the grossest form of tyranny. Oh, the riches of His grace! He whom they cast out has said, "Them that cometh unto Me, I will in no wise cast out."

4. Failed to Hinder Him. "But He passing through the midst of them went His way" (Luke 4:30). Oh, the peerless dignity of Christ the Truth! He went His way, not hindered by the wrath of man any more than the clouds of the sky could impede the progress of the sun in the heavens. Sin-blinded man may thrust the Christ of God out of his life, but His eternal purpose will still go on its way. Be not deceived, God is not mocked. A SCENE IN A SYNAGOGUE.

Luke 4:33-37.

"O ignorant poor man! what dost thou bear

Lock'd up within the casket of thy breast?

What jewels and what riches hast thou there?

What heavenly treasure in so weak a chest?

Think of her worth, and think that God did mean

This worthy mind should worthy things embrace;

Blot not her beauties with thy thoughts unclean,

Nor her dishonour with thy passion base."

-Sir John Davies.

They were not all saints who attended the synagogue; unclean devils are regular hearers. But when Jesus Christ speaks with power (Luke 4:32) the unclean spirits are sure to "cry out." There is never much real work done for God without the roaring of the adversary. The lion roars when robbed of its whelps. In examining this interesting scene we shall look at-

I. The Enemies of Jesus. There was, first,"the spirit of the unclean devil;" and, second, the man who was possessed of this spirit (Luke 4:33). This "unclean spirit" uses the will and the mouth of the man for his devilish purposes, and speaks of the man as one with himself. "Let us alone. What have we to do with Thee?" Those at enmity with the work and purposes of Jesus Christ are in league with the devil, and unless there is a divorce of will and interest the doom of the devil will be theirs. Listen to their language. They-

1. Acknowledge His True Character. "I know Thee who Thou art, the Holy One of God" (Luke 4:34). The confession of this fallen and unclean spirit might put to shame all Unitarian infidels who deny the divinity of Christ. This demon from the pit, in acknowledging Him as "Jesus of Nazareth" and the "Holy One of God," made confession both of His humanity and divinity. Christ as the Son of God was given (John 3:16), but as the Son of humanity He was born (Isaiah 9:6).

2. Question His Mission. "Art Thou come to destroy us?" (Luke 4:34). Does this unclean devil judge Jesus Christ to be like himself, "coming only to steal and to kill?" How far the purposes of God's grace are above the thoughts of the unclean and the sinful! Although He had come to destroy us, devil-polluted ones, who could have charged Him with injustice? But, thank God, "He came to seek and to save" (Luke 19:10). Ponder this demon-possessed one's question in the light of Isaiah 53 and the glory of His Cross." "Sin is of the devil."

3. Shun His Presence. "What have we to do with Thee?" (Luke 4:34). There is certainly nothing in common between the "Holy One of God" and an "unclean devil." "What communion hath light with darkness?" (2 Corinthians 6:15). Satan and all who are his servants will for ever hate the light because it reproves their deeds (John 3:21). This question, "What have we to do with Thee?" might be profitably turned into "What hast Thou to do with us?" "He loved us, and gave Himself for us!" Better have to do with Him now in mercy than delay till we have to do with Him in judgment.

4. Seek Rest in their Sins. "Let us alone" (Luke 4:34). This is still the cry of those wedded to the devil and uncleanness. All the Heaven such desire is just to be allowed to lie peaceably on the bed of their carnal pleasures, and when the Gospel of salvation comes knocking at their door they cry, "Trouble me not, for I am in bed." If Jesus had come to give men peace in their sins the godless world would have gladly received Him.

II. The Word of Jesus. The Word of God is quick and powerful. It is-

1. A Convicting Word. "Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace" (Luke 4:35). The first work of Jesus Christ is to silence the sinner. Such foul mouths must be stopped (Romans 3:19). In the presence of this heart-searching One every clamorous devil must be speechless. The Word of Christ turns self-justification into self-condemnation. To see sinfulness in the light of His holiness is enough to shut us up to the cry of the leper, "Unclean! unclean!"

2. A Converting Word. Jesus said to the unclean spirit, "Come out of him." This is the Gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto Salvation. There is no spirit too evil for the overcoming power of Jesus, no soul too unclean for His cleansing blood (1 John 1:7). No thought, however proud or polluted, that He cannot cast out. This Almighty Deliverer can make prisoners of every enemy that wars against the highest interests of the soul (2 Corinthians 10:5).

III. The Work of the Devil. "The devil threw him in the midst" (Luke 4:35). This helpless demon-possessed man got his last throw of the devil in the very presence of the Saviour. The prince of darkness will never let his subjects go without a desperate effort to render them useless by throwing them down. The hour and power of Satan is sure to be manifested when the Great Deliverer is at hand; even at the very feet of Jesus the devil will dare to throw a man down, but this proves his last throw. This bull of Bashan only threw the man at the feet of the Saviour.

IV. The Victory of Jesus. Jesus said, "Come out of him," and he came out of him, and hurt him not (Luke 4:35). If unclean spirits are not exorcised by the word of Jesus Christ, then for man Paradise is lost. Who but He can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? The unclean spirit came out, so that man's soul was rescued as a prey from the destroying power of the mighty. Ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you. When an unclean devil hears the word of Christ he must obey because he is under law. Shall we be less obedient because we are under grace? God forbid!

V. The Astonished Onlookers. "They were all amazed, saying, What a word is this" (Luke 4:36). It is possible to be amazed at the "authority and power" of Christ, and yet not be amended. Many are confounded at the manifest power of the Gospel of God who are not converted. Better is it to be a devil-driven soul at the feet of Jesus than a mere amazed self-righteous onlooker. To gape and wonder at the overcoming power of the grace of God in others who were worse than ourselves is no token of grace. There are many who devoutly talk about churches, ministers, and religious affairs who are in heart far from the Kingdom of God. "Marvel not that 1 say unto thee, Ye must be born again."

LAUNCH OUT INTO THE DEEP.

Luke 5:1-10.

"Thy love, O Christ, is boundless,

More boundless than the sky;

To deepest plummet soundless,

For Thou for me didst die.

Thy love is 'grace abounding,

With fulness like the sea;

Still, still it is forth-sounding.

Glad tidings unto me."

"That ye may know what is the breadth and depth of the love of Christ" (Ephesians 3:18). "Launch out into the deep."

Blessed light, to see the people pressing to hear the Word of God. Oh, that to-day we could witness this soul thirst for the message of life! Blessed anxiety that presses the people to Jesus. He knows how to speak a word to the weary. Grace and truth flow from His lips. Notice here-

I. Devoted Possession. "He entered into Simon's ship, and taught the people out of it" (Luke 5:3). His ship was ready for the Master's use. Oh, what an honour to be the means of helping Jesus to reach the pressing crowd! He did this through Simon's ship. How is this same Jesus to reach and teach the heathen millions? Much in the same way, through your possessions. But how few are willing to lend their all to the Lord. Simon's loan was abundantly rewarded, even inthis life, by the marvellous draught of fishes. Let us not talk boastingly nor think presumptuously about our possessions; if we are withholding them from the cause of Christ we are robbing God and our own soul, and what shall it profit? etc.

II. A Gracious Commission. "Launch out, and let down" (Luke 5:4). When Christ takes possession He also gives commission. If you have been sitting fretting over your own weakness, "Launch out into the deep" of divine strength. If you are despairing over your own unworthiness, launch out into the deep of God's infinite love (Ephesians 3:18-19), and let down the net of restful trust. If you are floundering in the shallows of your own feelings, launch out into the deep of God's faithfulness. The great fishes are in the deep, and those who launch out may hope to find them. God's footsteps are in the deep, and there His wonders are seen (Psalms 107:24). Are you a preacher? Then, like Paul, you will be all the better of being a "night and a day in the deep" before coming forth to the people. Come with a heart filled with the treasures of the deep, the deep things of God (1 Corinthians 2:10).

III. A Humbling Confession. "We have toiled all night, and taken nothing" (Luke 5:5). It is always very trying after honestly and earnestly toiling and struggling all the night to catch men to find you have taken nothing But this is not all loss, for even then we are in a better condition for giving God the glory when He gives the blessing. Are you ashamed to confess your failure in the past? Would you fain hide the fact that your labour has been fruitless? Surely not! Like Simon, confess it to Jesus, for this is necessary before the launching out on the tack of faith. Tell Him all that is in thine heart, keep nothing back. He has a remedy for your weakness and failure. He can turn your mourning into dancing (Psalms 30:11).

IV. A God-honouring Resolution. "Nevertheless at Thy word I will" (Luke 5:5). The way to victory is the pathway of faith. Simon's feelings said, "It's no use; I've toiled all night, the most likely season, and taken nothing;" but Simon's faith says, "Nevertheless." This was not a point to be reasoned, but simply believed. Christian toiler, let not the past hinder the present. Like Simon, make a fresh start on the authority of Jesus. Peter knows now where to find "launch out." He knows now how to find "At Thy word." Those who go out at His word will have good cause to praise Him. Unbeliever, your case is sad, toiling and struggling in the darkness of night, thinking by your own efforts to gain God's blessing and taking nothing. Here is the more excellent way, "At Thy word I will."

V. An Amazing Satisfaction. "They inclosed a great multitude" (Luke 5:6). This time they are more successful "out of season" than they were before "in season." The word of Christ believed made all the difference. They had the habit of fishing at night; but sometimes our old forms have to be broken through before we can see the power of Jesus manifested. If Simon had contended for the form he would have lost the haul. Ah, yes, soul-satisfying fulness through the power of Christ can only be enjoyed in the way of doing His will in His presence. Let not habits, forms, or customs, however good, stand in the way of doing what now plainly appears to be the will of your Lord. Follow Him, and He will satisfy the longing soul (Psalms 107:9).

VI. A Brotherly Co-operation. "They beckoned unto their partners, and they came and filled both ships" (Luke 5:7). Had they not invited their brothers to co-operate, how much would have been lost? Alas, how much is still being lost in Christian work for lack of union! What hinders it? Pride and selfishness. The blessing came to Simon's boat, through faith in Christ, but He did not mean it all to remain there. Others were needing as well as he, so he beckoned his brethren to come and help. Notice, it is the helpers that share the results. If pastors do not come to help in the times of blessings they need not wonder although they should not gather much of the fruit. When will churches, like these boats, come together, and gather the fruits of the promise of Christ?

VII. An Unfeigned Humiliation. "I am a sinful man, O Lord" (Luke 5:8). This is always the effect where His greatness and goodness are realised. The goodness of God leads to repentance. God forbid that success should ever lead to pride and self-sufficiency. And yet sometimes it does on the part of Christian workers. Has the goodness of God, as seen on the Cross, ever led you to cry "I am a sinful man?" If so, you need not say, like Simon, "Depart from me," when He says "Come unto Me." If you are a sinful man, Jesus is the sinful sinner's Saviour. In bidding Him depart you know not what ye do.

VIII. A Complete Consecration. "They forsook all, and followed Him" (Luke 5:11). You would have thought that they had as much here as would have satisfied them for a long while, but, no, they "forsook all." We are not to live on our experience, no matter how wonderfully gracious it may be. We must forget the things that are behind, and press on to follow and to know. We cannot feed on the souls we win for Jesus, however precious or numerous. We must learn to follow Jesus for our joy and strength; our life is in Him only. Friend, where art thou? Are you still sitting by your boat gloating over your good works and past accomplishments, loving these more than Christ; or are you sitting mending the meshes of broken resolutions after much fruitless effort? In either case, hear the Master's call, and arise and follow Jesus (Php_3:7-8). THE LEPER CLEANSED.

Luke 5:12-15.

"What though my harp and vial be

Both hung upon the willow tree?

What though my bed be now my grave,

And for my house I darkness have?

What though my healthful days are fled,

And I lie numbered with the dead?

Yet I have hope by Thy great power,

To spring-though now a withered flower."

-Herrick.

"I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth on Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." This is Heaven's jubilee note of hope for the inmates of this great, needy world. Man's withered hopes are resurrected at His touch, and the leprous breath of the unclean made sweet by His grace. He can turn the dolorous cry "Unclean" into joyful songs of praise. He is as merciful and mighty on the lonely sea (Luke 5:8) as in the crowded city (Luke 5:12). Wherever the presence of Jesus Christ is there is "the power of God." Observe his-

I. Miserable Condition. "A man full of leprosy" (Luke 5:12). His terrible disease had reached its final stage; he was now full of leprosy. Like sin, this loathsome malady may work slowly, but its course is irresistible and deadly. It poisons the blood, and so the whole physical being becomes polluted. Sin affects the heart, out of which are the issues of life In the early ages the Church of Rome regarded lepers as dead, and had "the rites" said over them. There is a law in France that such shall be disinherited. A man living in sin is a man dead to God, and disinherited of Heaven's love and peace.

II. Inspiring Revelation. "Who seeing Jesus" (Luke 5:12). Seeing Jesus will never fail to awaken hope in the darkened, sin-crushed heart. He had doubtless heard of Christ's "mighty works" without ever uttering a prayer; but now those dull, despairing eyes suddenly brighten with a new light as they gaze upon the living Person of the merciful Wonder-worker. He believed the report, and faith has been turned into sight. What a contrast is here between the Man "full of compassion" and the man "full of leprosy;" between a seeking Saviour and a seeking sinner!

III. Humble Position. "He fell on his face" (Luke 5:12). Seeing the face of God always makes us hide our own. It is the outward expression of a deep inward conviction. It was so with Isaiah (chap. 6), with Job (chap. Job 42:5-6), with Peter (Luke 5:8), and with John (Revelation 1:17). They are only lip-professing Pharisees, who stand afar off. We have never seen ourselves as in His sight if we have not been overwhelmed in the dust through shame.

IV. Earnest Petition. "Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean" (Luke 5:12). The prayer of this poor outcast was more to the point than that of Peter the disciple (see Luke 5:8). This prayer reveals-

1. A Knowledge of the Character of Christ. Out of this knowledge there springs up an intelligent faith in His power. "If Thou wilt Thou canst." "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" (Genesis 18:14). To doubt His divinity and almightiness is to knock at a locked door. He that cometh to God must believe that He is a rewarder of them who diligently seek Him (Hebrews 11:6) This petition brings out also-

2. The One Burning Desire of the Leper. "To be made clean." He frankly confesses his need, and pleads for personal cleansing. It was the work of the High Priest of old to make atonement, that the people might be clean from all their sins before the Lord (Leviticus 16:30). If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us.

V. Instant and Perfect Salvation. "He put forth His hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him" (Luke 5:13). Every miracle is linked on to the "I will" of Jesus Christ. Before the critics can eliminate the miraculous from the Bible they must turn out the "I wills" of the Son of God. These few words of our Lord are weighted with precious meaning. There was the-

1. Atoning Touch. "He touched him." The holiness of God comes into contact with man in all his defilement. But the Holy One, like the light which shineth in darkness, is not in any way defiled by the touch. He who bore our sins was no sinner. As never man spake like this Man, so never man touched like this Man. All the resources of the Godhead are in the touch of Christ.

2. Assuring Word. "I will: be thou clean." With His healing touch comes His word of assurance. We are saved by His blood, and assured by His word. His touch of love is accompanied with His word of power. He speaks, and it is done.

3. Complete Deliverance. "Immediately the leprosy departed from him." Where the leprosy went would not trouble him. The joy of salvation was now his. Our sins are said to be cast behind His back and buried in the depths of the sea. Where God's back is, or how deep the sea is, need not concern us, since they have departed from us through the almighty grace of God.

VI. Special Commission. "Go and show thyself unto the priest, and offer" (Luke 5:14). In showing himself unto the priest, and offering according as Moses commanded, he was bearing "a testimony unto them" that Jesus Christ came not to set aside the law, but to fulfil it. The work of Christ can stand the minutest inspection, not only of the law and the prophets, but also of the world and the devil. Go, show thyself, if so be that thyself hath experienced His perfect cleansing from the power of sin. Every saved soul should be a testimony unto Him.

STRANGE THINGS.

Luke 5:17-26.

"The Lord lacketh nothing; yet maketh-

Maketh power in weakness;

So that this fallen race of ours basketh-

Basketh in His meekness."

"We have seen strange things to-day," was the language of some of those who were eye-witnesses to the healing and forgiving of this poor palsied sinner. Christianity will always be a "strange thing" to a gaping, godless world. The saving, healing power of Christ will never cease to awaken amazement in the minds of men. Christ Himself is to many the most perplexing wonder of all. The mystery of the divine working in the soul of man is the mystery of the incarnation. It is as easy for Christ to create a world as to forgive a sinner. Each is equally strange. But what were some of the "strange things" that they saw that day?

I. An Unlettered Man Teaching. Those who heard Him in the synagogue said, "Whence hath this Man this wisdom?" (Matthew 13:54). While He taught in the Temple the Jews marvelled, saying, "How knoweth this Man letters, having never learned?" (John 7:15). Here we have Him teaching in the presence of "doctors of the law." Christ, who is the wisdom of God, said of Himself, "I am from above, ye are from beneath." A man may be "'lettered" and "scholarly," and yet blind to the wisdom that comes from above through the eyesalve of the Holy Ghost (Revelation 3:18). To be taught of God is the heritage of every soul that has been born from above.

II. A Sick Man let Down through a Roof (Luke 5:19). Those who really believe in Jesus will some way or other bring their burdens to His feet, as those four men brought the helpless paralytic. Whatever burdens us should lead to the breaking up of everything that stands between us and Jesus. Such roof breaking is sure to appear as needless waste to those who stand unconcerned, with no burden of grief, no pressing request on behalf of a wasted life. If we have no burden of our own, let the need of others bring us into His presence.

III. A Man Forgiving Sins. "He said unto him, Thy sins are forgiven thee" (Luke 5:20). What? A Man forgiving sins! "Who can forgive sins but God alone?" This is a strange thing. Yes, it is. Had not Jehovah said, "I, even I, am He that blotteth out thy transgressions, and will not remember thy sins?" (Isaiah 43:25). Who is this that forgiveth sins also? Let those who deny His divinity answer. The Man Christ Jesus forgiving sins is the crowning act of the matchless grace of God, and will be one of those "strange things" at which we shall marvel through all eternity.

IV. A Man Receiving Forgiveness Through Faith. "When He saw their faith He said" (Luke 5:20). The faith of the four men who carried, as well as the faith of the anxious man lying sick on the couch. To the self-righteous scribes and Pharisees a man receiving the forgiveness of all his sins through believing in Jesus was indeed a startling sight. By the works of the law shall no man be justified in the sight of God (Romans 3:28). It is of faith that it might be by grace. He saw their faith. The eyes of Jesus are always quick to discern the trust of the heart, and His hand is equally quick to help.

V. A Man who could Read their Thoughts. "Jesus perceived their thoughts" (Luke 5:22). While they were reasoning in their hearts the Lord was reading their thoughts. "All things are naked and open unto the eyes of Him with whom we have to do" (Hebrews 4:13). Thus saith the Lord, "I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them" (Ezekiel 11:5). In the workshop of men's minds there are many weapons forged secretly against the people and purposes of God, but they shall not prosper, for our Lord and Master perceives their thoughts. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked."

VI. A Man Perfectly Healed at Once. "And immediately he rose up before them, and departed to his own house glorifying God" (Luke 5:25). This was another "strange thing" seen that day. This is not after the fashion of men, but it is very God-like. His work is perfect. No man will ever be able to add a finishing touch to the saving work of Christ. The work of healing and forgiving was done suddenly and completely. It was such a blessed work wrought on him that he could rise up and go to his own house glorifying God. That man is well saved who can glorify God in his own house. Man's chief end is to glorify God, but until he is healed and forgiven through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ the chief end is lost.

VII. Scribes and Pharisees Filled with Fear. "They were all amazed, and filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to-day" (Luke 5:26). When the worldly-wise and those stuffed full of religious pride confess their amazement and fear at the sayings and doings of Jesus Christ it is in itself a "strange thing." Why should the exhibition of sovereign mercy fill religious men with fear? What has worldly-wiseman to say to this? Self-satisfied souls can never be the recipients of the saving grace of God. They that be whole need not a physician. " I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." It is possible to see these "strange things" performed on others, and to be for a time both amazed and fearful, yet never profit personally by the healing power of the Redeemer (Psalms 103:1-5). "He that believeth not shall not see life."

BLESSINGS AND WOES.

Luke 6:20-26.

"Methinks we do as fretful children do,

Leaning their faces on the window pane

To sigh the glass dim with their own breath's stain,

And shut the sky and landscape from their view;

And thus, alas! since God the maker drew

A mystic separation 'twixt those twain,

The life beyond us, and our souls in pain"-Browning

These words of our Lord, though in substance the same as those spoken by Him on the mount, were not delivered on the mount, but "on the plain" (Luke 6:17). They were spoken with "His eyes on His disciples" (Luke 6:20), as if the teaching was specially meant for them first of all, and through them by their lives and teaching to the generations that were to follow. The blessings and the woes are equal in number (four), as if every blessing had its corresponding woe. Every privilege neglected brings its woe of remorse. There is no via media between blessing and woe. All who are not in this marvellous light are in darkness.

I. Here are Four Conditions of Blessedness.

1. Poverty. "Blessed be ye poor, for yours is the kingdom of God" (Luke 6:20). Of course poverty in spirit must be meant (Matthew 5:3), for with respect to material things a man may be as poor as Lazarus and yet be as proud as the devil When a man is really sensible of his personal destitution before God he has entered into a blessed state, "for to this man, saith the Lord, will I look, that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at My Word" (Isaiah 66:2). Such poor ones in this world God hath chosen rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom (Isaiah 2:5)

2. Hunger. "Blessed are ye that hunger now, for ye shall be filled" (Luke 6:21). This is the hunger that cannot be appeased with the things of earth and time. It is not goods, but goodness, that alone can fill the hungry soul (Psalms 107:9). "He filleth the hungry with good things" (Luke 1:53). Spirit hunger is the cry of real need, the silent language of a soul in distress; a feeling never felt by those who are dead in trespasses and sin.

3. Sorrow. "Blessed are ye that weep now, for ye shall laugh" (Luke 6:21). The blessedness of being able to weep in the presence of Christ is utterly unknown to the world of frivolity and fashion. Such sorrow is not the result of disappointment through the blasting of selfish hopes or the upsetting of one's own personal interests. It is the sorrow of Christ begotten in the heart through sympathy and love. "Unto them that mourn in Zion He shall appoint beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning" (Isaiah 61:3). The sorrow of crucifixion shall be turned into the joy of resurrection (John 16:20). As the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth in Christ (2 Corinthians 1:4-7; Revelation 21:4).

4. Persecution. "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, separate you, reproach you, cast you out for the Son of Man's sake. Rejoice, for your reward is great in Heaven" (Luke 6:22).

Persecution is part of the promised heritage of the Christian (Mark 10:29-30). It is blessed, because it lifts the sufferer into closer fellowship with the Saviour (John 17:14). The early disciples rejoiced that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His Name (Acts 5:41).

II. Here are Four Conditions of Woefulness.

1. A Woe for the Rich. "Woe unto you that are rich, for ye have received your consolation" (Luke 6:24). There is no sin in having abundance of riches any more than in having abundance of health, but if not used for the glory of God, verily ye have your reward. The woe of laying up treasure for ourselves is poverty towards God (Luke 12:21). In the rush of life the pre-eminent object of many is to be rich in the sight of men, while they are utterly indifferent and insensible to their abject poverty in the sight of God. Like the inhabitants of Bashan, "God spake unto them in their prosperity; but they said, I will not hear" (Jeremiah 22:21). Here is a Heaven-sent epitaph for their tombstones: "Thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, now thou art tormented" (Luke 16:25).

2. A Woe for the Full. "Woe unto you that are full, for ye shall hunger" (Luke 6:25). A life stuffed full of worldly pleasures and possessions, but not satisfied. They are like drunken men craving for drink. The iniquity of Sodom was pride and fulness (Ezekiel 16:49). A heart filled with the love and enjoyment of earthly things has done its very best to shut out God, as every corner of the being has been already crammed with Christless interests. "Have you any room for Jesus?" The woe of graceless fulness is the gnawing of eternal hunger.

3. A Woe for the Merry. "Woe unto you that laugh now, for ye shall mourn and weep" (Luke 6:25). This now implies the time of our Christ rejection. The Lord fills the mouths of His people with laughter when He turns their captivity. When the prodigal came home they "began to be merry," but the mirth of fools is folly (Ecclesiastes 7:6). The mirth of the ungodly shall die away into everlasting mourning. Frivolous worldly minds hunt after the latest joke, and when it is found they immediately gape after the next. Their mirth is like the crackling of thorns beneath a pot, there is more noise than heat. The woe of Christless mirth is the tears of eternal shame.

4. A Woe for the Applauded. "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you" (Luke 6:26). The maxim, Vox populi, vox Dei, is another failure here. The teaching of Scripture is tremendously emphatic on this point, and so contradictory to the wisdom of this world. "The friendship of this world is enmity with God." "Whosoever will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God" (James 4:4). The world loves its own; if it loves you, then you are of the world. If ye have been chosen out of the world the world will hate you (John 15:19). It is our highest wisdom to choose, like Mary, that good part that shall not be taken from us. The woe of the applauded, worldling is everlasting contempt. BE MERCIFUL AS YOUR FATHER.

Luke 6:27-38.

"Constant Faith and holy Hope shall die,

One lost in certainty and one in joy,

Whilst thou, more happy power, fair Charity,

Triumphant sister, greatest of all the three.

Thy office and thy nature still the same,

Lasting thy lamp and unconsumed thy flame

Shall stand before the host of Heaven confessed

For ever blessing and for ever blessed."

-Matt. Prior.

True charity is the love of God shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost. Love is of God. God is love. He that loveth not knoweth not God. These words of our Lord, "Love your enemies," "Bless them that curse you," come with greater force as they do after the "blessings" and the "woes" that go before. This Great Teacher come from God rightly divides the Word of Truth. Let us look at-

I. The Precepts. These Heaven-made laws laid down here for us by Jesus Christ axe mirrors that reflect the merciful character of our Father in Heaven, and their purpose is to help us into His likeness. "Be ye therefore merciful as your Father also is merciful." These precepts touch us in a fourfold manner.

1. Concerning Loving. "Love your enemies" (Luke 6:27). Of course this does not imply that we should not love our friends, but that our love should be God-like, who, while we were yet sinners, gave His Son to save us (John 3:16). If thine enemy hunger give him bread to eat, for this thy Father did for thee in the time of thine enmity, and so heaped such coals of fire upon thy head as melted thy heart (Proverbs 25:21-22).

2. Concerning Blessing. "Bless them that curse you" (Luke 6:28). You will bless the reviler by reviling not again. This is after the divine example (1 Peter 2:23). The apostle Paul obeyed this command to the letter (1 Corinthians 4:12). "Not rendering evil for evil, but contrariwise blessing" (1 Peter 3:9), will evidence that we are possessed by the Spirit of the Father.

3. Concerning Prayer. "Pray for them that despite-fully use you." To be able to pray for our enemies in the Spirit of Christ is a notable triumph for the grace of God. Christ gained such a victory when He prayed, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). This grace abounded also in Stephen (Acts 7:60). This love springs from the mercifulness of the Father.

4. Concerning Giving. "Give to every man that asketh of thee" (Luke 6:30). This does not teach that we are to give all that every man may ask of us, but to every petitioner we are to give. This is after the mercifulness of the Father. A drunkard may ask you for a sixpence, but instead of that you give him a word of warning. If giving to the poor is not an evidence of the love of God dwelling in us, withholding is a certain proof that it does not (1 John 3:17).

II. The Examples. The mercifulness of our Father in Heaven is here contrasted with the natural kindness of ungodly men. The world loves its own. This comes before us in a threefold negative aspect. Our mercifulness is not to be like the sinner's, but like the Father's. The one is like a muddy pool, the other like a river clear as crystal.

1. Let not your love be like the love of sinners. "If ye love them that love you, what thank have ye? for sinners also love those that love them" (Luke 6:32). The love of the unregenerate heart only goes out to those who love in return. The love of God embraces even those who hate Him without a cause. "Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful."

2. Let not your works be like the works of sinners. "If ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same" (Luke 6:33). The motives of the Christian worker must be infinitely higher than those who are mere time-servers. The ungodly will show kindness to those who are kind to them. But our Father is kind even to the unthankful. "Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful."

3. Let not your grace be like the grace of sinners. "If ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners to receive as much again" (Luke 6:34). Unbelievers will show grace and lend to their sceptical brethren in the hope of receiving as much again. But our Father in Heaven gives to the evil and the unjust, "hoping for nothing again" (Matthew 5:45). " Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful." Your righteousness must exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, because it is not ye that act, but the Spirit of the Father which is in you (Matthew 10:20).

III. The Promises. If the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts, so that we can love our enemies and do good to them, hoping for nothing from them, then your Father which seeth in secret will reward you openly.

1. Your Reward shall be Great (Luke 6:35). It will be great in this life in that the divine nature will be manifestly ruling in our being. It will be great in the life which is to come, because that in the midst of a wicked and perverse generation you have glorified your Father in Heaven by letting your light shine before men.

2. Ye Shall be the Children of the Highest (Luke 6:35). The God who ruleth over all shall claim you as His own children, and as the sons of the Highest your life shall be lifted up in Him who is "far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come" (Ephesians 1:21-23). "Be ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful." THE TREE AND ITS FRUIT.

Luke 6:41-45.

"O gracious Lord, when Thou didst give

By Thy divine prerogative,

Warning that men bear fruit for Thee,

I bless Thee it was thro' a tree."-Grosart. This great Teacher come from God uses the simplest and most common illustrations in pressing upon the hearts of men the profoundest truths of revelation. In these verses He speaks of the "mote," the "beam," the "good tree and the bad tree," "thorns," the "bramble bush," "figs and grapes." All nature, like the burning bush, is ablaze with flaming thoughts of the divine. But, like Moses, we have to turn aside to see this great sight, and for this the beam had better first be taken out of our own eye. Christ here deals with the state of the eye (uncharitableness), and the condition of the heart (unfruitfulness). The corrupt heart has much to do with the marred eye. The clean in heart have always a merciful eye, for the pure in heart see God. When the beam of prejudice or envy is in our own eye then the motes of weakness and failure are easily seen in the eyes of others. Let us see that there is no beam marring our own spiritual vision while we talk of the motes which hinder the eyesight of others. The only remedy for a beam or a mote in the eye is to pull it out. It is a great mercy and a very blessed ministry to be able to take a mote out of a brother's eye, but it must needs be done very gently, for the eye is a most tender and sensitive member. It takes the tenderness of Christ to deal with mote hindrances in the doctrine and life of a brother. This is no work for hypocrites. In this parable of the good and evil tree there is brought before us- I. Two Classes of Character.

1. The Good Tree or the Good Man. A good tree is one which serves the purposes for which it was made. It is a reflection of the goodness of God, and constrains to thankfulness and praise. So with a good man, he is the image of God whose name is Good. The goodness of a tree is the gift of God through nature; the goodness of a man is the gift of God through grace. "There is none good but God." The good man is in perfect harmony with the mind and will of God. The chief end for which he was made is fully achieved through His abounding grace.

2. The Corrupt Tree or the Evil Man. A rotten or bitter tree is the likeness to which the Holy One compares the evil man. The evil does not lie so much in appearance as in character. A tree whose root is bitter or whose heart is rotten and corrupt may still have a beautiful and attractive exterior. This rottenness of heart is the result of a hidden disease. The Lord looks upon the heart. The evil man in the sight of God is he whose heart is still in the gall of bitterness. A heart not right with Him who is both Creator and Redeemer. He is one in whose heart the corrupting power of sin has unbridled sway like rottenness in the bones. He may be learned, courteous, fashionable, and even religious, but if the heart is not right he is an evil man. Jesus Christ says nothing about that large class of people who are neither good nor bad, but just "middling." In these latter days we are called upon to try, not only the professions, but the spirits whether they be of God (1 John 4:1).

II. Two Classes of Fruit.

1. The Good Fruit or Good Treasure out of the Heart. Fruit is the visible outcome of the inward character. This is a universal and unalterable law. "The good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit; neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." The acts of a good or godly man come out of his heart, and so partake of his real character; they are called "good treasure," because they are precious and go to enrich others. "Poor, yet making many rich." If the heart is not sound and filled with the goodness of God good treasure will never come out of it. The fruit of the Spirit in us-as the unpolluted sap is in the good tree- is love, joy, peace, etc. (Galatians 5:22). The wisdom that is from above is pure, full of mercy, and good fruits (James 3:17). The good man bringeth forth the good treasures of his heart just as naturally as the tree brings forth fruit. There is no conscious effort, no thought of self-display, just that sweet constraining of love that makes giving a delightful necessity. We have this treasure in this earthen vessel because God hath shined in our hearts and given us the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ (2 Corinthians 4:6-7).

2. The Corrupt Fruit or the Evil Treasure of the Heart. The evil man bringeth forth the evil treasure out of his heart just in the same way that a rotten and polluted tree brings forth bad fruit. The poisoned fountain of the carnal mind will never send forth the refreshing waters of spiritual thought. It seems strangely paradoxical to speak of the evil treasure of an evil man. He heaps up wrath against the day of wrath, while imagining that he is the heir of precious things. The character of the fruit reveals the condition of the heart of a tree. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." The evil is not only in the eyes or the lips, but deep down in the core of the being. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." "Son, give Me thine heart."

DIGGING DEEP.

Luke 6:46-49.

"Methinks it Is good to be here,

If thou wilt let us build; but for whom?

Nor Elias nor Moses appear,

But the shadows of eve that encompass the gloom,

The abode of the dead and the place of the tomb,

Shall we build to ambition? Ah, no!"-Knowles.

There are three words here that characterise a wise man in the eyes of Jesus Christ. "Whosoever cometh to Me, and heareth My sayings, and doeth them" (Luke 6:47). To come to Him as a Saviour, to hear Him as a Teacher, and to obey Him as a Master is an evidence that we have been and are being taught of God and made wise in Christ. These two builders are representatives of two great classes or conditions of men-those who live by faith on the Son of God, and those who walk in the light of the sparks of their own kindling.

I. The Wisdom of the Obedient. Our Lord says, "He is like a (wise) man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock" (Luke 6:48). He is like such a man-

1. Because He Believed in the Rock. He had no faith in the sandy earth as a foundation, and because he believed in the rock he would do nothing in the way of building until he found it. Jesus Christ is the Rock. "Apart from Me," He says, "ye can do nothing." Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

2. Because He Spared no Trouble to get at the Rock. "He digged deep." These are most suggestive words. A life that is to be pleasing to God by resisting temptation and finally triumphing over all the assaults of the world, the flesh and the devil must not begin in any superficial fashion Its foundation will be deeply laid. There is much that may lie between the seeker and the Saviour Much pride, prejudice, and false teaching. It is no loss of time for a man to examine himself and to dig deep down through everything until the strong and mighty Christ stands revealed before him. Every builder knows that even dust will hinder the stones from being cemented together Let there be "nothing between."

3. Because He Built his House upon it after He did Find the Rock. He was not satisfied with merely finding a good foundation, he sought the rock for the purpose of building thereupon How many there are who seem perfectly satisfied in that they have found Christ as the Rock of Salvation, as their Atonement for sin, but who are utterly indifferent as to what they build thereon. They rest on the foundation, but they do not build on it They are saved, but their lives do not reveal the structure of faith (1 Cor 3 12). Peter tells us how this building is to be done. Add to faith virtue, etc (2 Peter 1:5-7). We are labourers together with God. Ye are God's building.

4. Because He was not Disappointed with the Results. "The flood arose, the stream beat upon that house, and could not shake it, for it was founded upon a rock." Christianity is no failure. The life that is built on Jesus Christ will be found as stable as the Eternal Throne. "He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." He is able also to keep us from falling The Church or soul that is built upon this Rock "the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). "The foundation of God standeth sure" (2 Timothy 2:19).

II. The Foolishness of the Disobedient. "He that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth" (Luke 6:49). The foolishness of this man is seen in that-

1. He Disregarded the Rock. He no doubt believed about the rock, but he imagined that he could get on equally well without it. He is a type of those who have been spoiled through false philosophy and vain deceit (Colossians 2:6-8). "Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes" (Isaiah 5:21). The scribes and Pharisees went on with their building, although they had rejected "the Chief Corner Stone." If we wish to end with Christ we must begin with Him.

2. He Commenced Building too Soon. He began to plant the stones of hope before he had found the rock of safety. He would be saved by his works before he found rest on the Eternal Rock. What a picture of many modern religious builders! They set to the rearing of a strong and beautiful life before they have ever come into contact with the saving strength of Christ the Rock. They begin building when they should be digging, so anxious are they for something pleasing to the eyes of men.

3. He Built Without a Foundation. "He built an house upon the earth." The loose sandy earth beside the rolling river was treacherous ground. He felt the need of a house of refuge for his soul, but he did not realise his absolute need of an infallible rock for his house. We need salvation, but we need an Almighty Christ to save. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 3:11; Isaiah 28:16).

4. His Hopes were Suddenly Cut Off. "The stream did beat vehemently, and it fell, and the ruin of that house was great." "He that believeth shall not make haste." But this man made haste because he trusted not the rock, and his earnestness only hastened on his ruin. Earnestness in religious life availeth nothing where the foundation of atoning blood is awanting. He did not perish because he was lazy or indifferent to his need of a shelter. He did his very best, but it was His best without the "one thing needful." Your works may be many and beautiful, but if Jesus Christ is not at the foundation of all, "one thing thou lackest," and the lack of this "one thing" renders useless and fruitless every other thing It is too late to build another house when the flood has come (Malachi 4:1; 2 Thessalonians 1:8).

"My hope is built on nothing less

Than Jesus' blood and righteousness,

I dare not trust the sweetest frame,

But wholly lean on Jesus' Name,

On Christ the solid Rock I stand,

All other ground is sinking sand." A SOLDIER'S FAITH.

Luke 7:1-10.

"Dim as the borrow'd beams of moon and stars

To lonely, weary, wandering travellers

Is reason to the soul.

And as those nightly tapers disappear,

When day's bright lord ascends our hemisphere,

So pale grows reason at religion's sight,

So dies, and so dissolves in supernatural light."

-Dryden.

"Faith is a courier swift and sure who will carry us to the absent." All things are possible to him that believeth. In this Roman centurion we see a thoroughly practical man in ethical and spiritual warfare. His matter-of-fact manner in dealing with the Lord Jesus Christ is like a refreshing breeze from the mountains of Lebanon. Is his servant sick? He does not talk about his pity; he sends at once for the physician (Luke 7:3). Does he love the Jewish nation? Then it is not in word but in deed "he builds them a synagogue" (Luke 7:5). He does not speak of his faith, but he shows it in a way that makes the Lord Himself marvel at its simplicity and greatness (Luke 7:8-9). How beautifully simple is his holy logic! "Say the word, and my servant shall be healed, for I also am a man under authority, and I say, Go, and he goeth." Soldier-like he believes that the Great Commander has but to speak and it shall be done. Such a compliment from a Gentile army captain could not pass without special mention. He said, "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." Lord, increase our faith. This incident is full of Gospel to us. Observe- I. The Servant's Need. He was in a condition of-

1. Utter Helplessness. "He was sick" (Luke 7:2). Although a bondslave, he may have been surrounded with many mercies and favours, but he was unable to help himself. A picture of every one under the spirit-sickening power of sin. The helplessly sick have no thought of earning anything by their works. This hope has died away.

2. Great Misery. "He was grievously tormented" (Matthew 8:6). One may be helpless and yet unconscious of it, but this servant was in sore distress. When a man is deeply convicted of his guilt and utter inability to help himself he will be grievously tormented. But such timely torment is infinitely better than the fatal insensibility that will inevitably result in the eternal scourge of remorse. Fools make a mock of sin.

3. Immediate Danger. "He was ready to die" (Luke 7:2). He was just at the point of dying. His disease had brought him to the very brink of eternity, and all the wisdom and power of man were vain and impotent to deliver. The danger of perishing at any moment should add to the torments of every unsaved one.

II. The Centurion's Petition. He made intercession for his devoted servant "when he heard of Jesus," clearly implying that he had believed what he did hear. Faith cometh by hearing. The manner of those elders who came to Jesus with his request shows the character of the centurion's prayer. It was-

1. Earnest. "He sent unto Jesus, beseeching Him" (Luke 7:3). Real anxiety and heart-felt sympathy are the parents of earnestness. When Peter's wife's mother was sick they kept continually telling Jesus of her (Mark 1:30). His servant was dear unto him, so love warmed up his prayer. All coldness and formality in prayer means heartlessness on the part of the petitioner. Where there is love for those "ready to die" there will be earnest beseeching on their behalf.

2. Humble. "I am not worthy," said he, while the Lord was on the way to his house (Luke 7:6). The elders said, "He is worthy, for he loveth our nation, and hath built us a synagogue." But this good man did not believe that his good works could merit such worthiness as having the Son of God beneath his roof. Nothing we can do will make us worthy of having Christ dwelling in us. This humility of spirit, like the self-unconsciousness of a little child, is the very breath of Heaven, and is refreshing to the soul of Jesus. In the sight of God unworthiness felt is worthiness shown. When Saul was little in his own sight the Lord exalted him (1 Samuel 15:17).

3. Believing. "Say in a word, and my servant shall be healed" (Luke 7:7). Faith has always to do with the Word of God, and is satisfied with that, knowing that He is faithful who promises. His Word cannot fail. How many are serving the Lord in sorrowful bondage, looking for signs and feelings instead of acting confidently on His Word. The Lord has already spoken many words that exactly suit our case, and they are as valid for us now as they were of old. "The words that I speak unto you are spirit and life" (John 6:63). Come believing.

III. The Saviour's Response. It was-

1. Prompt. "Then Jesus went with them" (Luke 7:6). The grace and truth that comes with Jesus Christ never comes too late. The prayer made urgent through intense love will speedily find a response in the love of God. "In due time Christ died for the ungodly;" how will He not also in due time answer the cry of faith?

2. Encouraging. "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel" (Luke 7:9). These faith-honouring words were spoken to the people that followed Him. He marvels at his faith, but He does not rebuke him for expecting too much. He is marvellously pleased with great faith. Without faith it is impossible to please Him. "O ye of little faith, wherefore do ye doubt?" Why have we not the faith of God in His own Son? (Mark 11:22, margin).

3. Effectual. "His servant was healed in the selfsame hour" (Matthew 8:13). He sent His Word, and healed him (Psalms 107:20). "As thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee." This "so be it done" is the Amen of Christ to the prayer of faith. Christ Himself is God's Amen to the agonising, trustful cry of humanity (Revelation 3:14). Little faith belittles the Christ of God and narrows up the channel of blessing. Doubting hearts may call Him great, but they trust Him little; they are like the soldiers who cried, "Hail, King!" then put on Him the mock robe. THE WIDOW'S SON.

Luke 7:11-16.

"The valley of dry bones,

Insensate as the stones,

Beneath Thy quickening breath

Rose up a living host.

O midst our sin and death

Come stir, Thou Holy Ghost."

-Grosart.

It is a hope-quickening thought that the Holy Spirit, that "other Comforter," who is the gift of the risen Saviour, possesses the resurrecting power of Jesus Christ. It is the Spirit that quickeneth. The raising of a dead body demonstrates His power to raise a soul dead in sin into a new life. Who has not seen a funeral? Who has not buried a friend? We can easily lift the hat off our head as the mournful cortege passes; but Jesus Christ alone can lift the load of grief from the aching heart of the bereaved. As D. L. Moody used to say, "Jesus spoiled every funeral that He went to." The darkest night of gloom He can turn into midday brightness. We have here- I. An Afflicted Woman. Her circumstances reveal a-

1. Sorrowful Past. "She was a widow" (Luke 7:12). The scene of her husband's death-bed, the heart-rending parting, the mournful funeral, and the dread loneliness that followed; these were bygone sorrows, but perhaps merciful time had somewhat rubbed off their keen edge. It may be that we have had deep convictions of sin in the past when the pleasures of the world partly lost their savour, and by and by that spirit-wound got healed.

2. Bitter Present. "Now her dead son is being carried out." Another season of trial has come; again the thick dark pall of sorrow has been spread over her sky. Once more she is face to face with death. Learn that if the Spirit awakens a second time the past will greatly aggravate the misery of the present.

3. Hopeless Future. This was the funeral of "the only son of his mother" (Luke 7:12). The alone source of her comfort and help has been cut off. She is now without hope, having no promise, utterly cast down, but to such Jesus draws nigh. It is only when we are "without strength" that the power of God is manifested on our behalf. They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. All her future prospects, like the centurion's servant, were "ready to die." But the Resurrection and the Life are at hand.

II. An Almighty Friend. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." The nearer she comes to the grave the nearer does she come to the life-giving Saviour. The darkest hour is the hour before daybreak. The sorrow that endures for a night shall be turned into joy in the morning when Jesus comes. Jesus meets the funeral, life and death come into contact, earthly weakness, sorrow, and disappointment in this woman are met by heavenly strength, consolation, and hope in Jesus Christ. Sin's ruin and God's remedy have come together. What are the results?

1. An Expression of Sympathy. "When the Lord saw her He had compassion on her" (Luke 7:12). As soon as the Lord saw her the love of His heart flowed out to her. Although as yet she is a stranger to His sympathy He is no stranger to her sorrow. Surely the sting of human suffering is the unconsciousness of divine compassion.

2. An Unusual Word of Comfort. "He said unto her, Weep not" (Luke 7:12). Weep not? Does she think these words spoken in mockery? Does He not know that this is the "only son of a widow?" He knew Himself what He would do. We may dry our tears at His bidding, no matter how bitter they may be. But perhaps it is not your tears so much as your cares that He bids you put away, saying, "Take no thought for your life," etc. (Matthew 6:25), as He Himself knows what He will do.

3. A Timely Arrest. "He touched the bier, and they that bare him stood still" (Luke 7:14). This was the arresting touch of the mercy that saves. A little while longer and he would have been buried out of sight. Who shall arrest that soul which time, like a death-car, is carrying off to the grave of eternal doom if Jesus Christ is not met on the way?

4. A Strange Command. "Young man, I say unto thee, Arise" (Luke 7:14). Who is this that commands the dead to rise up? This is He who speaks as one having authority. As the coming of the light commands the darkness to vanish, so does the coming of His Word imply the power to overcome. Ignorance may cavil where faith is blessed. He is the mighty to save, who speaks and it is done.

5. A Wondrous Change. "He that was dead sat up, and began to speak" (Luke 7:15). An example of one begotten again by the Word of God. What a change His life-giving Word brings! He who was a minute ago cold, helpless, silent, and corrupting is now aglow with the warmth of a new life, and able to testify by speech to His resurrection power. He is now a new creature, old things have passed away, all things have become new.

6. A Happy Reunion. "He delivered him to his mother" (Luke 7:15). Oh, praise Him for His tenderness, He not only saved the son from death, but delivered him (gave him back as His own) to the comforting of the broken-hearted widow! She could truly say, "This my son was dead, and is alive again." A foretaste of Heaven's reunited fellowship and joy was hers. Death has been conquered, and loved ones meet each other again in the presence of the living Son of God.

7. A God-honouring Result. "There came a fear on all, and they glorified God" (Luke 7:16). Those who follow Jesus (Luke 7:11) will always have good cause for glorifying God, for they shall see great and mighty things done by Him. Yes, Jesus will be glorified in every word that He speaks. All His words and works shall praise Him. It will be for ever to the praise of His grace that "He saved others," but because of the might of His love for us "He could not save Himself" (Matthew 27:42). THE TWO DEBTORS.

Luke 7:41-43. This little pithy parable was spoken in Simon's house, who desired Jesus to eat with him, and Jesus did not refuse. He never does. Then Simon sat in judgment on Him in allowing this woman to touch Him.(Luke 7:39). Simon's cold heart was a stranger to the love of Christ. Like many a modern Pharisee his religion was an outward form. But Jesus had a meat to eat that Simon knew not of. The woman's love was more precious to Him than Simon's feast. It is the heart He seeks. Giving can only grieve Him when it is heartless. There are many Simons who show outward respect to religion, but who have no heart sympathy with Jesus Christ in His saving mission.

I. The Certain Creditor (Luke 7:41). The great Creditor, no doubt, represents God Himself. There is something graciously beautiful about this thought, because-

1. A creditor is one who is supposed to have a good reputation. Can God deceive? Is His character not trustworthy? He cannot lie.

2. A creditor is one who has sufficiency for others. Our sufficiency is of God. Human need can be fully met only in Him. "All my salvation and all my desire." The sinner's needs are deep and many, but the fulness of His mercy is enough. "Come unto Me."

3. A creditor is one who looks for some return for his outlay. He gives only on loan. God gives His best, and expects our best; but, alas, we have returned Him evil for good. Evil is poor payment for good; hatred is a miserable return for love. Could you reckon up the good He has given? How much owest thou my Lord?

II. The Different Debtors. "Two" (Luke 7:41). The 500 and the 50. Representing two classes of actual transgressors, the great and the little, and implying all the grades that lie between. The fifty pence debtor is the religious moralist who lacks "one thing." The five hundred pence debtor is the open profligate that lacks everything. But there is the hundred pence debtor, who has been somewhat indifferent to the goodness of God. The two hundred pence debtor who has been wholly indifferent to the gifts of God, and the three hundred pence debtor who questions His love and mocks at His people, and the four hundred pence debtor who denies God and despises His mercy, yet whose outward character is counted respectable. But all with whom the Great Creditor has been dealing in grace are His debtors. "All have sinned," "all have come short." He that offendeth in one point is guilty of all.

III. The Helpless Bankrupts. "They had nothing to pay" (Luke 7:42). The great and the little debtor were both alike in the same insolvent condition. "No difference." Just so with every sinner in God's sight. Our responsibilities to God may be different, but the hopelessness of our condition in His sight is the same. By nature all are alike, "without strength." Where there was no sprinkled blood Jehovah could make no difference (Exodus 12:13). All outside of the ark were treated alike in His judgment. They had nothing. Who but God only can create out of nothing? We can only make nothing out of nothing. Then payment is impossible. There is no other creditor from whom we can borrow. So one of two things must follow-a pardon or a prison.

IV. The Happy Deliverance. "He frankly forgave them both" (Luke 7:42). These few words reveal the heart of God as big with abounding grace. Notice-

1. What He Did. "He forgave." He did not compromise. How suited His way was to their sad circumstances! Forgiveness is God's gracious remedy for the sinner's debt. "I believe in the forgiveness, not the payment of sins" (Luther). Oh, that men would believe God's willingness and readiness to forgive!

2. Whom He Forgave. "Both." Both alike needed it. The self-righteous moralist and the respectable church-going fifty pence debtor need forgiveness just the same as the five hundred pence ne'er-do-weel. One can have no more claim than another, both are debtors.

3. How He Forgave. "Frankly." In a free, liberal, loving manner, not grudgingly, just as the father forgave the prodigal, with open arms and joyful heart. "He delighteth in mercy." He keepeth mercy for thousands. When God pardons a sinner He does it as Joseph forgave his brethren, with a heart ready to burst with deep, unutterable compassion.

4. When He Forgave. "When they had nothing to pay." It was when the prodigal had spent all that he had that he came and was accepted. When Joseph's brethren had nothing to eat, then they were enriched by him whom they had despised. The young ruler came with a great price in his hand, and he went away sorrowful. The Laodicean Church "had need of nothing" while Christ stood outside. "Blessed are the poor in spirit." "Jesus paid it all." Accept His settlement. Buy without money. "Nothing to pay."

V. The Grateful Evidence. "Love." Which of them will love Him most? "He to whom He forgave most," says Simon. "Thou hast rightly judged," says Jesus. It is right judgment, then, to expect the forgiven to manifest in some way or other their love for Him who frankly forgives all. The poor woman had been forgiven much, and she loved much, and showed it.

1. Much love Weeps (Luke 7:44). Not only tears of regret for the past, but of deepest gratitude toward God, and of tenderest sympathy toward the perishing. The world needs such tears. Christ shed them, so did Paul (Php_3:18).

2. Much love Washes. "She hath washed My feet" (Luke 7:44). Many a dusty foot and life love has washed. "He loved me, and washed me." Love covereth a multitude of sins. Christ, as our Head, is in Heaven; we, as His feet, are on earth.

3. Much love Stoops. "She wipes His feet with her hair" (Luke 7:44). She puts her glory at His feet. If He is to increase, I must decrease. The heart must bow if Jesus is to be served.

4. Much love Kisses. Her lips of affection are pressed to His feet (Luke 7:45). The feet of the body of Christ, the dusty, naked members, are often neglected. Love seeks contact with them.

5. Much love Anoints. The Father anoints His head, but the forgiven one must anoint His feet (Luke 7:46). "Do as I have done unto you."

6. Much love Follows. She followed Him into Simon's house. She heeded not the reproach of others. Love constrained her (1 John 4:19).

7. Much love Gives. "She brought her box of ointment" (Luke 7:37). This was all her treasure, and she laid it at His feet, not only her ointment, but herself.

Lovest thou Me? How much? Let the life testify.

Contrast the three characters: (1) The proud-hearted Pharisee. (2) The broken-hearted sinner. (3) The loving-hearted Saviour. THE QUESTION OF JOHN.

Luke 7:17-35.

"Though vexing thoughts may seem to last,

Let not thy soul be quite o'ercast;

Soon will He show thee all His wounds, and say,

'Long have I known thy name, know thou My face alway.' "

-Keble. The raising of the widow's son had evidently produced a profound impression; the rumour went throughout "all the region round about," and was carried also to John while lying in his dismal prison. Every resurrected soul is a mighty testimony to the saving power of Jesus Christ (Ephesians 2:1). By reason of such many have believed on Him (John 12:10-11).

I. The Question. "Art Thou He that should come, or look we for another?" (Luke 7:19). It does seem strange that such a question should come from John Baptist; from him who saw the Spirit descend like a dove upon Him, and who bore record that this is the Son of God, and who said, "Behold the Lamb of God" (John 1:32-36). Yes! But why should this almighty Deliverer allow His forerunner to pine away in a dark and loathsome dungeon? It may be as easy for us as for John to say, "He must increase, I must decrease," but when the decreasing goes on and on till we almost question our relationship to Christ it is a trial of faith. But the trial of your faith is precious.

II. The Answer. Christ's reply shows no displeasure at the question of John. Our Lord is very gracious, and knows the frailty of our frame. "Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard" (Luke 7:21-23). Those who would speak for Jesus and comfort the tempted must speak what they have seen and heard. Christ never sends any one to tell what they think. "We speak that we do know" (1 John 1:1-3). And what a story they had to tell: "The blind see, the lame walk," etc. Such a Gospel is enough to drive away all doubts and fears.

III. The Testimony. As soon as the messengers are gone Jesus bears witness to the true character and divine mission of John (Luke 7:24-30). He was no silly reed shaken with every wind of doctrine that may blow; he was no city dandy in soft raiment seeking to make a display of himself; he was more than a prophet, in that he prepared the way of the Lord Christ. Even John's martyrdom prepared the way for the Crucifixion. If John's faith had not been tested we would not have had this beautiful testimony to his noble nature. "All things work for good," etc. (Romans 8:28). To reject the testimony of His servant is to reject the testimony of God (Luke 7:30).

IV. The Application. "Whereunto shall I liken the men of this generation?" etc. (Luke 7:31-35). The children in the market place often played at funerals and marriages; at the one they mourned, and at the other they piped and danced. "This generation" had been called upon by the austere life of John to mourning and repentance, and by the gracious, winsome life of Jesus to joy and gladness; but they charged John as being possessed with a devil, and Jesus as being a "gluttonous man, a friend of publicans and sinners." The testimony of both was rejected. If the warnings of the law and the wooings of the Gospel fail to bring us to God, how shall we escape? "But the wisdom of God is always justified in the children of such wisdom" (Proverbs 8:35).

SAVED BY FAITH.

Luke 7:36-50.

"Triumphant Faith!

Hers is a conquering path to Heaven,

With feet fire-shod, because her hand is placed

Immovably in God's; her eye doth rest

Unchangeably on His."-Miss Tatham. This Pharisee desired Jesus that He would eat with him, but he did not desire this woman, branded with the name "sinner," to come into his house. Her faith in the pity and compassion of Christ must have been strong when it constrained her to follow Him into such a house and at such a time. Such sorrowful sinners are never found weeping at a Pharisee's feet. There is a holy, winsome magnetism in the love of God, as manifested in the Person of Jesus Christ; the vilest may draw nigh and find the blessing of "eternal redemption."

I. The Character of this Woman. "She was a sinner" (Luke 7:37). Evidently a great sinner, for the Lord speaks of "her sins which are many" (Luke 7:47). The Pharisee called her a sinner with emphasis (Luke 7:39). Such a sinner as should not be touched; but Christ had to designate the Pharisees themselves as hypocrites (chap. Luke 11:44). She was a sinner, so was Simon, but she had this advantage, that she knew it, while he was proudly unconscious of it. The one owed five hundred pence, the other fifty, but in their relation to God they were both alike, "having nothing to pay." "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God. There is none righteous, no, not one."

II. The Workings of Her Faith. "Even in a spark there is fire." Little faith may cling to an almighty Saviour. Faith is an operative energy of the soul that will not rest till the object desired has been grasped and enjoyed. Observe how it wrought in this woman. It constrained her to-

1. Come to Jesus (Luke 7:37). Perhaps the sneer of the self-righteous Pharisees had awakened hope in her heart. "Behold a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners" (Luke 7:34). Her faith constrained her to draw near to Him without any personal invitation. Does such an act not put to shame the many who are still refusing the call of God? (John 5:40).

2. Repent of Her Sins. "She stood at His feet behind Him weeping" (Luke 7:38). When one stands at His feet and contrasts his own life with His the bitter tears of contrition are sure to fall. Seeing ourselves in His light is always a humbling revelation. Such tears are precious jewels in the sight of God; they tell of mountains of guilt flowing down at His presence (Isaiah 64:1). What effect has your faith had in this direction?

3. Show the Tokens of Her Love. "She kissed His feet, and anointed them with the ointment" (Luke 7:38). Hers was the faith that worked by love. The kiss spoke of the affection of her heart, while the precious ointment poured out told of a willingness to consecrate her all to Him. The faith that does not work in this fashion is a dead faith (James 2:26). The lips of love must come into contact with Christ as well as the hands of faith. With the heart man believeth unto salvation.

III. The Blessed Results. She was-

1. Approved. "Seest thou this woman?" (Luke 7:44-46). These words spoken to Simon would fall on the poor, sin-smitten soul of the woman as the music of Heaven. Jesus Himself knew the joy of being "a man approved of God" (Acts 2:22). Study to show thyself approved unto God (2 Timothy 2:15). Her manner of approach had His most gracious welcome, although she had no promise to plead. But what a solace to her heart that He commended her!

2. Forgiven. "Thy sins are forgiven" (Luke 7:48). She was forgiven much, for she loved much. There was a great difference between the cold, calculating belief of Simon and the simple, loving, heartful faith of the woman. She came, and with her tears and kisses she reasoned together with her Lord, and her sins, which were as scarlet, were made white as snow (Isaiah 1:18). What encouragement for the wicked to forsake their ways is found in His abundant pardon! (Isaiah 55:7).

3. Assured. "Thy faith hath saved thee" (Luke 7:50). Faith in Christ not only saved her from the guilt of sin, but also from the tyranny of its power. She was now freed from the very love of sin. His grace saved her, His Word assured her. It was not the tears of her eyes nor the kisses of her lips that saved her, but the faith of her heart. By grace are ye saved through faith, and by the record given are we assured (1 John 5:11-13).

4. Commissioned. "Go in peace" (Luke 7:50). Go in peace with God, because justified by faith (Romans 5:1). Go in the peace of God, because now a child of God and an heir to the kingdom. Go and publish the Gospel of peace, as an ambassador for Him, who is the Prince of Peace, and who has made peace by the blood of His Cross. Go in peace back to your home and to your associates in sin as a messenger of mercy, telling them what great things He hath done for thy soul. Thy faith hath saved thee, go! THE MAN WHOSE NAME WAS "LEGION."

Luke 8:26-39.

"Love it was that first created light,

Moved in the waters, chased away the night

From the rude chaos, and bestow'd new grace

On things disposed of to their proper place."

-Edmund Waller.

Love is the mightiest moral force in Heaven, Earth, or Hell. It was love that constrained God to give up His Son (John 3:16). It was love that constrained His Son to speak such words of grace, to perform such miracles of mercy, and to give His life a ransom for many. "God is love." Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, in that through His Son He hath delivered us from the power of the devil and from this present evil world. In the salvation of this demoniac we have a grand exhibition of that divine power which worketh by love.

I. His Dreadful Condition. He was-

1. Shameless. "He ware no clothes" (Luke 8:27). Naked, and he knew it not. He was so completely possessed and occupied by evil spirits that he was utterly unconscious of his own nakedness. When Adam and Eve sinned they knew that they were naked, and sought to cover themselves. To be insensible of our nakedness before God is an evidence of satanic possession and delusion.

2. Friendless. "Neither abode he in any house, but in the tombs" (Luke 8:27). Being in league with the devil, he was cut off from all his relatives and friends; he could have no fellowship with the inhabitants of the tombs, although the abodes of the dead are always more congenial to such than the houses of the living. No man could help him. While we are the slaves of sin vain is the help of man.

3. Helpless. "He was driven of the devil" (Luke 8:29). He could in no wise help himself. He was driven like a beast by the powerful impulses wrought in him by the wicked spirits. Led captive by the devil at his will because his mind was blinded by that god of this world. Christ was driven by the Holy Spirit (Mark 1:12). Which is your master?

II. His Attitude Towards Christ. It was one of-

1. Fear. "He cried, and fell down before Him" (Luke 8:28). When a soul comes face to face with the Son of God the inner thoughts and intents of the heart are sure to be revealed. Those who live under the dominion of sin, while they may know that they cannot escape the presence of Christ, yet they dread Him, although He is the most merciful of all. They fear a separation from their sins.

2. Opposition. "He said, What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, Thou Son of God Most High?" (Luke 8:28). It is quite true that devil-possessed have nothing in common With the Holy Son of the Most High, any more than the darkness of the pit of hell has to do with the glory of Heaven. Where is the link of connection between the sin-driven sinner and the sin-hating Saviour? It is only found in the love of God in Christ. There is absolutely nothing in us but what is opposed to His holy will. "What have I to do with Thee?" I am animated by a spirit that is at enmity with Thine. You are from above, I am from beneath.

3. Entreaty. "I beseech thee torment me not" (Luke 8:28). In this prayer there is the confession of an inner conviction that the final judgment is in the hands of Jesus the Son of God, and that the last end of a sin-governed life is torment (Jude 1:6). The way to be saved from the eternal torment of sin is to be washed in the blood of the Lamb. "He hath loved us, and loosed us from our sins by His blood" (Revelation 1:5, R.V.);

III. His Perfect Deliverance. Let us note the process. There was-

1. Confession. "Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion" (Luke 8:30). Some think that a legion was a company of 6666. It was a confession at any rate that many demons had influence over him. In making such a statement he was simply declaring the truth. No good can come through seeking to hide our true state from the saving Son of the Highest. If our sins and our iniquities have carried us away like a legion of devils, let us say so in the ears of Him with whom we have to do.

2. Emancipation. "They found the man out of whom the devils were departed sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind" (Luke 8:35). The devils departed out of him. The salvation of Jesus Christ implies the deliverance of the man from the grip and tyranny of evil. It is a loosing from the dominion of sin, a translating of the soul out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son. It is a homeless, restless soul finding a refuge in the loving heart of Jesus, and rest at His conquering feet. The driving of the devil has now given place to the leading of Jesus.

3. Witness-Bearing. "He went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him" (Luke 8:39). The Lord had indeed done great things for him. He had lifted him out of a horrible pit, and put a new song in his mouth. To be the slave of sin and the devil is to be in a horrible plight. Let the redeemed declare what the Lord hath done for their souls (Psalms 66:16). The tongue of testimony will surely be loosened when the bands of iniquity are broken. "Lazarus, come forth. Loose him, and let him go." Deliverance, then liberty. THE VIRTUE OF CHRIST.

Luke 8:43-48.

"In having all things and not Thee, what have I?

Not having Thee, what have my labours got?

Let me enjoy but Thee, what further crave I?

And having Thee alone, what have I not?"

-Quarles.

The riches of the glory of Christ are like the riches of the glory of the sun. Just as every flower finds its beauty and variety of colours in the sunshine, so may each soul find in Christ that very blessing and adorning that becomes them. He met the need of the one who came for Him to heal another (Luke 8:41) as well as this woman who touched Him for herself. In the sunshine of His grace there is all-sufficiency for all. It does not matter much how we come into the fresh air of His healing presence if we are only there; the health of His countenance will revive and strengthen. Let us learn here that-

I. There is Healing Virtue in Christ. The soul-healing power can be found nowhere else. Why? All the virtue of the Eternal God is in Christ for the purpose of healing the sin sores and woes of the world. This virtue is threefold. There is: (1) The virtue of a holy, blameless, God-pleasing life. (2) The virtue of an all-atoning substitutionary death. (3) The virtue of an all-conquering resurrection. There is none other name under Heaven that has such virtue. Through sin man has lost the virtue of holiness. If this virtue is to be restored it must be wholly through another than himself. This virtue or saving health is in Christ as the fragrance is in the flower, as the light is in the sun, or as the electricity is in the cloud; and He can shed it forth just as easily.

II. This Virtue is Sufficient for the Most Desperate Case. This woman's disease had lasted for "twelve years," and she had "spent all her living; neither could be healed of any" (Luke 8:43). Her disease, like the workings of sin, was a secret life-wasting malady. But even for such there is hope in Christ, for God is in Christ. While she was spending her all she met with many a disappointment. "Nothing bettered, but rather grew worse." In the anguish of her soul, as she stood on the border of despair, her faith looked to Jesus, muttering, "If I could but touch His garment I would be made whole."

III. This Virtue goes out at the Touch of Faith. "She came and touched the border of His garment" (Luke 8:44). Sin, with all its consequences of impurity, and misery, came by coming into contact with the forbidden thing through unbelief. "Eve took of the fruit thereof, and did eat" (Genesis 3:6). To touch the dead made a man ceremonially unclean (Leviticus 5:2). The fringe of blue on the border of the garment spoke of obedience (Numbers 15:38-40). In touching the border of Christ's garment was she thinking of His obedience unto death for her sake? This thought must be uppermost if our touch is to bring the healing life of Christ into our diseased and wasted souls. Her needs were fully met by the incoming of His strength and power, so that the life she now lived was the life of Christ in her (Galatians 2:20)

IV. This Virtue is Consciously Given and Consciously Received. Christ said, "I perceive that virtue is gone out of Me" (Luke 8:46). As for the woman, "she felt in her body that she was healed" (Mark 5:29). Her thirsty soul had received a cup of cold water out of the ocean fulness of His saving grace. She did not steal the cure. The virtue was deliberately given by Jesus Christ in answer to her practical faith. She believed, and therefore she touched, and her touch was rewarded with the assurance of perfect deliverance. Is it not always so? (Matthew 15:28). The virtue of Christ, imparted at the touch of faith, vaccinates the soul against the plague of sin and the contaminations of this present evil world. The law of the "survival of the fittest" does not hold good here, for the virtue of Christ makes the most helpless and hopeless to survive. This battle is not to the strong. Christ's life is always an overcoming life (Acts 14:8-10).

V. The Thronging Multitude need not Hinder from such a Healing Touch. "Master, the multitude throng Thee and press Thee, and sayest Thou, Who touched Me?" (Luke 8:45). The throng and the press of earthly cares and duties are often made the excuse for not seeking personal contact with the Saviour of men. The "more convenient season" is tarried for, which seldom comes. "The kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." If this poor, bloodless, dying woman had waited till the throng and the press were over she would have waited till Jesus the Saviour had passed beyond her reach. Behold, now!

VI. This Virtue when Received should be Publicly Acknowledged. "Who touched Me?" The woman came and declared before all for what cause she had touched Him, and how she was healed immediately (Luke 8:47). Before them all she testified of two things: (1) For what cause she had touched Him. She had touched Him because every other physician had failed, and because she wanted to be healed at once. (2) How she was healed immediately. Blessed testimony to the infinite grace of God. Healed perfectly, and in a moment of time. Her open testimony brought to her His additional word of assurance. "Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole" (Luke 8:48). Tradition says that she declared Christ's innocence before Peter, and wiped His face while He was on the way to Golgotha. At anyrate, such faithful testimony and loving service surely become those who have been saved with so great salvation. Made partakers of the divine nature. THE TESTING PRESENCE.

Luke 9:18-27.

"Ye scorners in your wild unrest,

O would that ye would turn to Him,

Far, far above the seraphim;

And of His mercy make request;

(Christ is)-

Most hidden, 'yet most manifest." In gathering up the most salient features of this portion we observe that they all centre on the Lord Himself. We have here-

I. Christ and Private Prayer. "He was alone praying" (Luke 9:18). Many there be who don't like to be alone, because they have no delight in prayer. Jesus often sought for solitude that He might be alone with His Father whom He loved so much. If the holy and sinless Jesus found it needful and blessed to pray in secret, how much more do we need it? Those who pray in secret will have their open reward (Matthew 6:6).

II. Christ and Public Opinion. "Whom say the people that I am?" etc. (Luke 9:18-19). Common reports are not always to be trusted. "The voice of the people" is not always "the voice of God." In this case it was the voice of wilful ignorance and unbelief, for had He not been publicly declared to be "The Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29), and had not His Word and works declared Him to be the Son of God with power? It is always more easy for us to say what others think of Christ than to say honestly what we ourselves think of Him.

III. Christ and Personal Conviction. "But whom say ye that I am?" (Luke 9:20). It will not satisfy the Saviour to tell Him what our fathers, and mothers, and teachers said about Him. This question is one that we have all to answer individually for ourselves. "What think ye of Christ?" Peter's answer, "Thou art the Christ (anointed, of God," reveals more than natural wisdom (Matthew 16:16-17). "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and believe in thine heart, thou shalt be saved" (Romans 10:9).

IV. Christ and Substitution. "The Son of Man must suffer," etc. (Luke 9:22). As the Captain of our Salvation Christ was made perfect through suffering. He was "rejected by the elders and chief scribes," showing that the carnal mind, even though religious, is enmity against God. With wicked hands they put Him to death, but by the authority of the Father He laid down His life and took it again (John 10:18). It was according to the Scriptures that He died for our sins, and rose again for our justification.

V. Christ and Discipleship. "If any will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily" (Luke 9:23). Our sinful self ever plays the part of the elders and chief priests in rejecting Christ. Self must be denied if we would follow the steps of Him who "pleased not Himself." The Cross of Christ will ever be a shameful thing in the eyes of the world, but God forbid that we should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which we are crucified unto the world. This cross of discipleship is not thrust upon us, we are to take it up daily. It is absolutely necessary to a life of fellowship with Him (2 Timothy 2:11-12).

VI. Christ and Service. "Whosoever shall lose His life for My sake shall save it" (Luke 9:24). This losing our life by saving it, and saving our life by losing it, is very paradoxical to all who are strangers to the Power of Christ's Cross. The life that is spent in the service of Christ is a saved life; the life that is spent for self is a lost life. We may have a saved soul by trusting the Cross of Christ, and yet have a lost life through not living for Christ (1 Corinthians 3:15) All the riches of this world will bring us nothing worth calling an advantage unless we ourselves are saved (Luke 9:25).

VII. Christ and His Coming Glory. "Whosoever is ashamed of Me and My words," etc. (Luke 9:26-27). Christ and His Word stand or fall together. We cannot trifle with His words without trifling with Him. He who emptied Himself that He might become obedient unto death for us shall yet come in His own glory to reward all who have been faithful to Him in the days of His rejection (2 Corinthians 5:10). Are we able to say with Paul, the bond-servant of Christ, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ?"

FEATURES OF THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

Luke 9:27-36.

"Courage! though the skies are clouded,

Blackest clouds will pass away;

Courage! though the future's shrouded,

All is clear to Him as day;

And 'His purpose' shall endure,

Ever faithful, ever sure."-Grosart.

What did Jesus Christ mean when He said, "There are some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God?" (Luke 9:27). This question is not easily answered. Some think that the kingdom of God came, in judgment, at the destruction of Jerusalem, although we fail to see the kingdom then or there. Others, that this prediction was fulfilled at Pentecost by the coming of the Holy Spirit, when that kingdom, which is not of this world, was set up in the hearts of those who believed in Jesus. Perhaps so; but how did Jesus speak of some seeing it instead of knowing it experimentally? Looking carefully at what happened eight days after on the Mount, when some of them that stood by were with Him, do we not see visible characteristics of that invisible kingdom of God which is now within us? There was-

I. A Changed Countenance. "As He prayed, the fashion of His countenance was altered" (Luke 9:29). If we take the countenance as the outward expression of the inward condition of the soul, then we cannot be in the kingdom of God without having an altered countenance. Those in the kingdom of God have passed out of darkness into His marvellous light. The outward effect of this inward change must be "as the shining light." "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of Heaven" (Matthew 18:3).

II. Glistering Raiment. "His raiment was white and glistering" (Luke 9:29). White (bright, margin) raiment is emblematical of the righteousness of the saints (Revelation 19:8). This is a whiteness that no fuller on earth can produce (Mark 9:3). All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags. In the eyes of God the Father the raiment of Christ's righteousness was always white and glistering (Matthew 3:17), but now the glory of His hidden life is made manifest, and they were "eye-witnesses of His majesty" (2 Peter 1:16). The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. Such will be Christ's appearance when He shall come the second time without sin unto salvation (Hebrews 9:28).

III. Heavenly Fellowship. "There talked with Him two men, Moses and Elias" (Luke 9:30). Communion with the unseen (Father and Son) is a marked characteristic of the kingdom of God. Those in the kingdom are in perfect harmony with the law and the prophets, as represented by Moses and Elias, and will be fellow-partakers of the resurrection and the translation which they both represent. Spiritually we have already been resurrected from the dead (Colossians 2:13), and translated into the kingdom of God's dear Son (Colossians 1:13), and made to sit together in heavenly places (Ephesians 2:6). At the coming of Christ in that glory which was revealed on the Mount there will be with Him those who, like Moses, have been raised from the dead (1 Thessalonians 4:14), and also those who, after the manner of Elijah, have been caught up to meet the Lord in the air (1 Thessalonians 4:15-17). The kingdom of God is the kingdom of His saving glory.

IV. A Particular Interest in the Death of Christ. "They spake of His decease" (Luke 9:31). Another special feature of the kingdom of God is that the death of Christ is the centre of profound and unfailing interest. All those in the kingdom should ever realise that they are there by virtue of His Cross and Blood. Let us learn from the talk of the glorified on this Mount that the atoning death of the Lamb of God should be uppermost in our hearts and minds in the midst of our greatest privileges and blessings. The Cross is the key to the glory; it is the foundation of the kingdom of grace.

V. A Glorious Overshadowing. "There came a cloud and overshadowed them" (Luke 9:34). This cloud, called "the excellent glory" (2 Peter 1:7), was the visible symbol of the all-enveloping presence of God, in which the children of the kingdom live, and move, and have their being. Abiding in Him is another distinguishing feature of those who are in the kingdom of God (1 John 2:28). As they entered into the cloud, by the cloud overshadowing them, so may we by faith enter into "His marvellous light" by the overshadowing of the Holy Ghost. The surrounding, all-enveloping glory of His presence may be ours now through that other advocate who dwells in us, and of whom Jesus said, "He shall glorify Me" (Romans 8:28).

VI. A Christ-Honouring Voice. "There came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is My beloved Son: hear Him" (Luke 9:35). That clear, "still small voice" that acknowledges Jesus as the eternal Son of God is another well-defined characteristic of the kingdom. This voice from Heaven still speaks in the hearts of all those who have through grace come under the blessed rule of the Lord as King. It was first heard when Jesus took the place of a sinner, and yielded Himself to the perfect fulfillment of the will of God (Matthew 3:17). Jesus sought the honour that comes from God Only, and He got it. Are we seeking only the honour that comes from one another? (John 5:44).

VII. A Joyful Experience. "Peter said, Master, it is good for us to be here" (Luke 9:33). When Peter said "Let us make three tabernacles" he was speaking foolishly and in ignorance, for the glorified cannot abide in temples made with hands; but when he said "It is good for us to be here" he was uttering the deep and happy feelings of his soul. It is good for us to be in such company as this, to hear such a voice, and to be surrounded with such a glory. Blessed are such, for theirs is the kingdom of God. "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God."

GRACE AND GRUDGE.

Luke 9:51-56.

"I would not angered be but grieved

When I do find myself deceived;

I would be kind to ignorance,

Rememb'ring Thy long sufferance;

I would Thy gentleness approach.

On Thy Name never bring reproach." A straw may indicate which way the wind blows or in what direction the river runs; a trifling event may have a tremendous significance. One had been casting out devils in the Name of Jesus, and some of His disciples forbade him (Luke 9:49-50) "because he followeth not with us." Observe the grace of the Master in allowing a stranger so to use His Name and the grudge of the disciples in forbidding him. The marked contrast between the spirit of the Master and that of His followers will become more apparent as we consider further the-

I. Saviour's Devotion. "He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem (Luke 9:51). Now that it has become the fixed purpose of His heart no power on earth or hell can hinder. "The time was come that. He should be received up." He will go to Jerusalem that He might suffer and die in obedience to the Father's will, and that He might overcome him that had the power of death, that is the devil (Hebrews 2:14). Blessed be His Name, His heart was in His great self-sacrificing work. He went on steadfastly, like a warrior to the battle, confident of victory. He knew that the time was at hand when He would be received up (Luke 9:51).

II. Samaritan's Bigotry. "They did not receive Him, because His face was as though He would go to Jerusalem" (Luke 9:53). The Samaritans had their temple on Mount Gerizim, but because He was making for the city of His Father's House they would honour Him not. This Christ-rejecting bigotry manifests itself in many ways. There are still those who will not receive Christ.

1. Because He does not Honour their Works. They have, like these Samaritans, built a temple of their own, fashioned after their own thoughts and opinions, and unless the Lord Jesus Christ compliments them in some way for their good works they will receive Him not (Romans 10:2-3; Luke 18:9).

2. Because He will not go with Them in their Ways. They had made up their minds to do their worship at Gerizim, and unless Jesus Christ would condescend to meet with them there they would have nothing to do with Him. The self-righteous devise their own plans, determine their own ways, and if Christ does no acknowledge such they simply receive Him not, and go on with their Christless work and worship.

3. Because He seems to Favour Those whom They Despise. "His face was as though He would go to Jerusalem." The Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans. They were like some High Churchmen who will have nothing to do with the Christ that blesses Dissenters. In setting His face toward Jerusalem He was setting His face to the Cross which still makes Him an offence to many.

III. Disciples' Intolerance. "When His disciples saw this they said, Lord, wilt Thou that we command fire to come down from Heaven and consume them?" (Luke 9:54). Perhaps James and John remembered that it was hereabout where Elias had wrought such a miracle of judgment (2 Kings 1:10). The sudden outburst of this ungracious and odious spirit reveals at least three things: Their-

1. Faith. They believed that the Heavens would answer their call, and that fire would come down at their bidding. Such faith is not to be lightly esteemed. Men of like passions with ourselves have wrought by faith such mighty works (James 5:17).

2. Zeal. Their indignation was hot at the insulting attitude of these Samaritans toward their Master. They could not stand by, as perhaps some of us can, and see the Lord being despised and rejected without any moving of the soul, either with divine pity or selfish rage.

3. Ignorance. They knew not what manner of spirit they were of, neither did they know the manner of their Master's spirit, nor the great deep purpose of His mission. "I am not come to judge the world, but to save the world" (John 12:47). The devotion of which ignorance is the mother is both blind and merciless.

IV. Master's Rebuke. "He turned and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of" (Luke 9:55). Zeal without knowledge is bigotry. It was this manner of spirit that kindled the fires of Smithfield and soaked the Scottish heather with the blood of Covenanters. It is this "mariner of spirit" that still reveals itself in such prayers as this: "Lord bless me, and ray wife, my son John and his wife; bless us four, and no more, Amen." It is this same manner of spirit that does not, and cannot, rejoice and praise God for the good work done by others. In this connection study James 3:16, James 3:17.

V. Gracious Explanation. "The Son of Man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them" (Luke 9:56). While in the days of His humiliation He made Himself of no reputation, being reviled He reviled not again. He remained true to His divine character and mission, to love, to suffer, and to die (John 3:17). Behold now, not the judgment time, but the accepted time; hence the long suffering patience of God. If any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of His, "As He is so are we in this world." Our mission, then, like His, is not to destroy men's lives, but to save them.

SENT ONES.

Luke 10:1-20.

"Man hath his daily work of body or mind

Appointed, which declares his dignity,

And the regard of Heaven on all his ways,

While other animals inactive range,

And of their doings God takes no account."

-Milton.

These seventy were appointed by the Lord, and sent forth, two and two, and surely it was a great comfort for them to know that they were going "before His face," and into the very places "whither He Himself would come" (Luke 10:1). May not every sent one now rest in this same assurance, that wherever they go, at His will and in His Name, there shall He manifest His presence. But there is to be no selfish monopolising of this work on the part of the sent ones, for it was to them the Lord said, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He may send forth labourers" (Luke 10:2). In this spirit of prayer, begotten by real love for the Lord and His work, we do become "co-workers together with Him." There are precious lessons here for all who seek to do the will of God.

I. A Great Commission. "Go your ways; behold, I send you forth" (Luke 10:3). They went as-

1. Lambs. "Behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves" (Luke 10:3). They were not sent as rams to fight their way by the power of their heads, but as lambs, entirely under the protection of the ever-watchful Shepherd, and as such they represent heart life more than head life. The influence of love is always more powerful than that of reason. The wolves represent those who live the grossly selfish life-men of the world.

2. Forerunners. "They went whither He Himself would come" (Luke 10:1). As such they were to "salute no man by the way." Their coming into any city or place was a testimony that the King Himself was coming. Have we, as sent ones (chap. Luke 20:17-18), been animated by a like faith in the promise and power of Christ? Do we expect Him to follow up our word and work in His Name with His own convincing presence?

3. Heralds. Saying, "The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you" (Luke 10:9). From that time Jesus began to preach and to say, "Repent, for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand" (Matthew 4:19). The kingdom itself was brought near by the very presence of the heralds of it. If the kingdom of God is within you (Luke 17:21; Romans 14:17), then when you come into contact with those who know not God, nor His Christ, does not the kingdom come near to them in you?

4. Ambassadors. Jesus said of them, "He that heareth you heareth Me, and he that despiseth you despiseth Me" (Luke 10:16). "Now then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God" (2 Corinthians 5:20).

II. A Joyful Testimony. "They returned with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through Thy Name" (Luke 10:17). Those who go at His bidding and in His Name will always have a joyful testimony to bear. They will be more than conquerors. "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places" (Ephesians 6:12). Our foe is not in the form of "flesh and blood" (human), but in the character of wicked spirits which rule the kingdom of darkness-invisible demons-that possess the hearts of men, and that can only be cast out through the power of the Name of Jesus (Ephesians 2:2). The works of the devil are still being destroyed in those to whom the Son of God is being manifested (1 John 3:8). Thus, the lifting up of the Son of God is still the power to bring the devils of doubt and uncleanness into subjection (John 12:13).

III. A Suggestive Comment. "Jesus said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from Heaven" (Luke 10:18). What a strange and startling statement, coming as a reply to their exultant account of "devils being subject to them." It appears that Satan shot down from the heavenlies with lightning speed when he saw that his angel demons were being routed and overcome by those seventy messengers of the Son of God. The more we triumph in the Name of Jesus, the more intensely will we be tried and opposed by the powers of darkness. The wrestling mentioned in Ephesians 6:12 implies a real and desperate struggle in very close quarters-wrestlers grip each other.

IV. An Assuring Promise. "Behold, I give you power to tread on... all the power of the enemy" (Luke 10:19). Although Satan hath come down like lightning in all his power to oppose the mission of Christ through you, I give you power to tread all his power beneath your feet. The sphere of Satan's work is now on the earth. Let us treat all "criticisms" and "teachings" that are opposed to the mind and purposes of Jesus Christ as the "doctrines of devils" (1 Timothy 4:1). Take courage from His promise, "I give unto you power" (Acts 1:8). The time has come when the God of peace can bruise Satan under your feet (Romans 16:20). One of the signs of faith in His Name is the casting out of devils (Mark 16:17).

V. A Source of Joy. "Rejoice not that the spirits are subject unto you, but rather rejoice because your names are written in Heaven" (Luke 10:20). To have our names written there is a guarantee of deliverance (Daniel 12:1). Overcoming devils is, in the mind of Christ, a comparatively small matter, but to have our names written in the Lamb's Book of Life (Revelation 21:27), and to belong to the General Assembly and Church of the Firstborn, which are written in Heaven, is something to rejoice over, as it is a privilege that will be fruitful of joy and honour through all eternity, for a man may cast out devils and yet himself be a castaway (Matthew 7:22-23). THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

Luke 10:30-37.

"He is bound to me, For human love makes aliens near of kin."

-Ingelow.

This lawyer, being "willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?" (Luke 10:29). The world has never seen anyone better fitted to answer such a question than Jesus. "He knew what was in man." There are but few who are not willing to justify themselves in their neglect of that mercy (Luke 10:37) which constitutes true neighbourliness. This is a parable, beloved, for the Samaritan's sake. A beautiful reflection of the mercy of God in Christ Jesus, unexpectedly coming into contact with a destitute and alien heart. Observe here- I. A Threefold Misery. He was-

1. Stripped of his raiment (Luke 10:30). This certain man in going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, a distance of about eighteen miles, fell among thieves and was stripped. Ever since the fall of Adam this world has been a den of thieves. Every man's business, more or less, is just to get out of others all he possibly can. Only those taught of God can look, not at their own, but at the good of others. All who fall into the clutches of sin and iniquity are sure to be stripped of their raiment of righteousness and of their "garment of praise." The devil is still seeking whom he may devour.

2. Wounded (Luke 10:30). He in all likelihood received His wounds in His desperate attempts to withstand the robbers. Our own strength and wits are a poor defence against the sudden onslaughts of evil. The morally wounded and disabled in the battles of life are found lying everywhere along the highways of human concourse. Their name is legion who have sunk into the ditch of a city slum through being stripped of their reputation and having their hopes and prospects wounded to the death (Isaiah 1:6).

3. Half Dead (Luke 10:30). In this wretched condition he could do nothing but wait and pray. Waiting for the compassion of some loving heart and the kindly touch of some neighbourly hand. To be half-hearted about anything is to be half-dead to the matter. With regard to the things eternal, how many are half-dead and quite unconscious of it. Backsliders in heart (Revelation 3:16). But let us not in our pride condemn this poor outcast, for if we had gone the same way we might have been in the same plight. If we had gone the way of those who are born and reared in the city slum, or in dark heathendom, what better would we be than they are?

II. A Threefold Attitude. In the Priest, the Levite, and the Samaritan we see three different attitudes toward the helpless and unfortunate. That of-

1. Perfect Indifference. "The priest passed by on the other side" (Luke 10:31). This priest was doubtless on his way home from the Temple service. In the discharge of his ceremonial duties he is very punctilious, and would pass by nothing, but a needy, dying brother by the wayside is unworthy of his notice. "Weighed in the balance and found wanting." No hope can on the Law be built.

2. Interested Curiosity. "The Levite came and looked, and passed by on the other side" (Luke 10:32). This man is a type of those who are not a little inquisitive, but who are not even a little compassionate. They want to know, but they don't want to help. This Levite could tell a story about this poor man when he went home, and justify his heartless conduct by saying that the place was too dangerous for him to tarry and lift the fallen. He also by his act is "weighed in the balance and found wanting" (1 John 3:17).

3. Practical Sympathy. "The Samaritan came where he was, and had compassion on him," etc. (Luke 10:33-35). Although the Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans, this Samaritan in mercy would have dealings with the half-dead Jew. This is the point in the parable. A despised one, compassionates, shows mercy, and saves one who was living at enmity with him, thus manifesting that love of God in Christ Jesus which stoops to show mercy with a self-sacrifice that slays the enmity (Ephesians 2:16). The Good Samaritan bears the features of the despised Nazarene, who comes to seek and save the lost.

(1). "He came where he was." Christ comes to us right where we are. In our stripped and wounded condition we could do nothing for ourselves (Romans 5:6).

(2). "He had compassion on him" (Luke 10:33). His heart was moved toward him. The Salvation of Christ was heart work. "He loved us, and gave Himself for us."

(3). "He bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine."

Although we are full of wounds and bruises (Isa. 1), Christ can bind up and heal (Luke 4:18). This He does by the oil of His Spirit and the wine of His Word.

(4). "He set him on his own beast." Those whom the Lord lifts up are also set in His own place. "Now are we the Sons of God."

(5). "He brought him to an inn." The saved of the Lord also find shelter and new friendships.

(6). "He took care of him." In the Salvation of Christ there is not only a great deliverance, but also a special providence (Romans 8:28). He careth for you.

(7). He left a promise concerning him (Luke 10:35). Our Great Shepherd has also left enough for our need during His absence in "the exceeding great and precious promises." "And inasmuch as ye did it unto these, ye did it unto Me." "When I come again I will repay thee." The Great Lesson.

Christ has suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow His steps. "Go thou and do likewise" (Luke 10:37).

"MARTHA, MARTHA."

Luke 10:38-42.

"Nor can the vain toil cease, Till in the shadowy maze of life we meet One who can guide our aching, wayward feet, To find Himself our Way, our Life, our Peace; In Him the long unrest is soothed and stilled; Our hearts are filled."-F. R. Havergal. The heart that is only half-conquered by Christ's peace will be easily tossed about when assaulted with the "cares of this world." Martha comes before us here as one cumbered and troubled about her work. A weary, burdened servant, just at the point of breaking down. What to her was duty has become drudgery. There is wholesome food for thought here for every servant of Christ. Martha-

I. Received Jesus. "Martha received Him into her house." Being perhaps the oldest in the home the right of receiving guests into the house would be hers. Her receiving Him was the proof of her faith in Him. It is vain and presumptuous for us to talk about our faith in Christ if we have not actually received Him into the house of the heart (see John 1:12).

II. Sat at His Feet. "She had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet and heard His words." This word also surely proves that Martha had sat and listened to His words as well as Mary. The faith that received Christ will certainly desire to know His will. This is the second step in the Christian life-learning. "Come unto Me, and I will give you rest. Learn of Me, and ye shall find rest" (Matthew 11:28-29).

III. Was an Active Worker. She busied herself with "much serving." She was none of those spongy Christians who can do nothing but drink in. There are many whose sole conception of the Christian life is to hear. Martha was not only a hearer, but a doer. She had listened to His words, and she would minister to Him. Her service, too, was no ordinary service. She had planned to do much. The honest, earnest design of her generous heart was to accomplish much for the honour of Jesus.

IV. Became Worried over her Work. "Martha was cumbered about much serving." Tersteegen has said: "We are not always to be seeking, we must sometimes have found Him. The seeker works actively; the finder enjoys quietly." Whenever work for the Lord brings upon us the worry of "carefulness and trouble," we may be assured that we have somehow got out of Christ's yoke, for He says, "My yoke is easy, and My burden is light. Take My yoke upon you, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

V. Began to Complain. "Lord, dost Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her therefore that she help me." The worried and cumbered worker will soon be found in the ranks of the grumblers. Martha's big task of "much serving" was self-imposed, and she, like all those in similar circumstances, soon got burdened and wearied. God-given work will never be cumbersome when done in His strength. But let it be noted to Martha's credit that she made her complaint, not to her sister, but to her Lord. Those cumbered and grumbling workers who are continually pouring their grievances into the ears of their fellow-servants ought to be shamed out of their cowardliness by the straightforward heroism of Martha. Dare to be honest, and say as she did, "Lord, dost Thou not care?" Have the question of worry settled with your Master. Find out in His presence whether your harassing anxiety about His service is pleasing to Him, or whether there is not some one that He might bid come and help you, or whether you are not "careful and troubled" about things which the Lord has no interest in.

VI. Was Rebuked by the Lord. "Jesus said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful." It is no honour to the Prince of Peace that His servants' hearts should be filled with restless solicitude about His business. "My peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John 14:27). "I would have you without carefulness" (1 Corinthians 7:32). "Take no thought (anxious concern) for your life." Your Father knoweth (Matthew 6:25; see also Matthew 6:8). If the Lord had bidden Mary go and help Martha

He would have partly justified her in her complaint, but, no, He said in substance, "You take too much upon you. The one thing you need is not a helping hand, but a restful heart."

Mary had chosen that good part, and He will not take it from her. There are many Matthews as well as Marthas, whose countenances bear the traces of a worried and troubled heart, even while they are seeking to serve Jesus. "Cumbered about much serving." Cast all your care upon Him, for He careth for you. Rest in the Lord.

PRAYER: ITS PRIVILEGE AND POWER.

Luke 11:1-13.

"Lord, teach us to pray" (Luke 11:1).

"The prayers I make will then be sweet indeed,

If Thou the spirit give by which I pray;

My unassisted heart is barren clay,

That of its native self can nothing feed."-M. Angelo.

It would appear that while the Lord was praying in a "certain place" His disciples heard Him, and were deeply moved, as never man prayed like this Man. What calmness of spirit, what assurance of faith, what holy familiarity with the unseen Father of Spirits, what an overawing reality and power there was in these simple utterances of their Master! No wonder that when He ceased they came with tear-filled eyes, saying, "Lord, teach us to pray." The power of prayer lies more in what we are than in what we say. They pray well who have "holiness unto the Lord" written across their lives. Prayer, wrote a deaf and dumb girl, is "the wish of the heart." If the heart is right with God, then the desires of the heart will be granted (1 John 5:14-15). Desires are plentiful in human hearts, but how few are confidently breathed into the ear of God. Notice here-

I. Need of Prayer. "Lord, teach us to pray" (Luke 11:1). All men pray in the way of wishing, or earnestly desiring, but not to the living God. "Before I was converted," said one, "I said my prayers to nobody, now I pray to God." We have never learned to pray if we have not learned to speak personally to a personal God, and to know that He hears us. Intercourse with God is a crying need of the soul of man. We need more than human sympathy. We need a greater than human help. Divine power and compassion are the counterparts of human weakness and need. "Lord, teach us to pray."

II. Teacher of Prayer. "Lord, teach us." Surely this "Teacher come from God" is well able to instruct us in the way to God. His whole life was lived in the atmosphere of prayer. He constantly breathed the breath of Heaven. In His every act we hear the voice of His pleading on our behalf. His incarnation, His holy life, His agony in the garden, His atoning death, and His rising again from the dead were all mighty voices of supplication unto God. He who spent whole nights in prayer had too much to do to be in a hurry or to neglect secret communion with His Father. "Lord, teach us." He teaches us to pray by giving us a deep insight into the poverty of our own natures that we may hunger after righteousness (Romans 8:26). He teaches us to pray by revealing to us, through His Spirit, of His own unsearchable riches that we may covet earnestly the best gifts (Hebrews 4:16).

III. Spirit of Prayer. In answer to their requests the great Prayer Teacher said, "When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in Heaven," etc. In putting this prayer into their mouths our Lord was not only teaching the order in which our prayers should be formed, but, we think, the very spirit and condition of heart necessary to true prayer. Looked at in its subjective aspect this prayer implies a condition of-

1. Sonship. "Our Father." Before we can say "Our Father" in any real sense we must have received the Spirit of adoption (Romans 8:15). We must be made sons through receiving His Son ere we can honestly say Father (John 1:12).

2. Sanctification. "Hallowed be Thy Name." His Name stands for all that He is in His holiness, righteousness, love, and almightiness. How can an unsanctified soul hallow, set apart as holy, the great Name, of God in the daily life? What communion hath light with darkness? If His Name is to be hallowed in us we ourselves must be hallowed to His Name.

3. Subjection. "Thy kingdom come." How can we utter this petition if we are not willing that our own hearts and thoughts should be subject to His rule? So, to be able to pray, there must be entire submission to the will of God (Romans 14:17).

4. Consecration. "Thy will be done." To pray "Thy will be done" there must needs be a willingness to do His will.

5. Brotherly Love. "And forgive us as we forgive every one," etc. Our prayers may often be hindered for lack of tender-heartedness toward those who may be indebted to us (Ephesians 4:32). Does this reveal the spirit in which we pray?

IV. Manner of Prayer. "Because of his importunity he will give him as many as he needeth" (Luke 11:5-8). The word importunity here stands for "shamelessness," and this is the only time it is used in the New Testament and employed by our Lord in connection with prayer; it is exceedingly expressive. It means that in offering our requests to God for things needful we should take no denial; turn not aside through any seeming providential rebuff, being utterly shameless in our persistent, confident waiting (Exodus 17:11).

V. Simplicity of Prayer. "Ask, and it shall be given you," etc. (Luke 11:9-12). The child in its own way begins to ask as soon as it is born, and the mother has no difficulty in interpreting its cry. As long as we maintain the childlike spirit prayer will be a simple, delightful, and soul-strengthening exercise. The more we get conformed to the image of Christ the nearer do we come to the very presence of God. And the nearer we approach to Him in our real soul likeness to Him the more simple and childlike will our prayers be. "Ask, and ye shall receive."

VI. Efficacy of Prayer. "If ye, . . . how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" (Luke 11:13). The Father will give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him, and in giving the Spirit He is putting within the reach of each child of His every spiritual blessing (Ephesians 3:14-19). Many of us have yet to learn what our gracious Father is willing to do for us, and through us, by His gift of the Holy Ghost. As workers together with Him we beseech you that ye receive not this grace of God in vain. "If ye ask anything in My Name I will do it" (John 14:12-14). THE STRONG AND THE STRONGER.

Luke 11:16-22.

"If we were not weak, Should we be less in deed than in desire."-Shelley.

How strange that they should seek "a sign from Heaven" (Luke 11:16) when they see devils being cast out. But men will yet try to ignore the divine character of Christ while there are infallible proofs of it before their eyes in the changed lives and hearts of men. They are like owls sitting in the dark, and crying, "Where is the sun?" Every evil overcome is a proof of the existence of a holier power. Evil cannot expel evil. This principle leads to God. "There is none good but God." If sin has been conquered and hated, and the heart changed and filled with love to God, then this is not of man. This is the finger of God. In these verses we have two great princes representing two great kingdoms. To one or other all belong, and peace and safety can only be enjoyed by the subjects of the greatest, as the one is most bitterly antagonistic to the other. Here we see the warriors described, the battle fought, the victory won, and the spoil divided. Consider then-

I. The Great Enemy. "Satan," the chief of the devils (Luke 11:15), and his chief end is to deceive and destroy. His deadly campaign commenced in Eden, and goes on still (Genesis 3:1). Notice-

1. His Character. "A strong man" (Luke 11:21). The strength of the devil is in his cunning and deceit. In the garden we have a revelation of the wisdom of this serpent. He is strong because he knows exactly where human weakness lies. He enters the citadel of man's soul as a pledged friend when he comes as an angel of light; how few can discern him in his real malignant form. He is strong to overcome the righteous scruples of the young, and also to deceive the Godward longings of the old. Too late, too late, he whispers, or, you are too great a sinner. But although he is strong he is but a strong man; his is limited strength, not almighty. Yet his "wiles" are innumerable and his darts are fiery.

2. His Condition. "Armed" (Luke 11:21). His is the armour of darkness; he loves the darkness rather than the light. "While men slept he sowed tares, and went his way" (Matthew 13:25). He is the prince of darkness, and those who are in darkness are under his power (Ephesians 2:2). His armour is just the opposite of God's. 1. His girdle is the girdle of falsehood-a liar from the beginning, and so his children go speaking lies from the womb. 2. His breastplate is that of wickedness, for wickedness is in his heart. 3. His feet are shod with the preparation of the gospel of enmity. 4. His shield is the shield of doubt. 5. On his head is the helmet of damnation. 6. His sword is the imaginations of the evil heart, and with this he slays the word of truth that darkness and death might reign (compare Ephesians 6:11-18).

3. His Occupation. "Keepeth his palace" (Luke 11:21). His palace is the dungeon of the unrenewed heart, where every window is glazed with perverting glass, so that things can never be seen as they really are. Here the occupant is a prisoner of darkness and ignorance. He may boast of what he knows of the world of light, truth, and liberty outside, but he knows nothing as he ought to know. Did he but know the truth he could abide no longer in bondage. This his vigilant keeper knows right well, so he keepeth his palace that his goods may have peace. This is the "peace, peace, when there is no peace." The more anxious the soul is to escape the more closely is he kept. If fair promises will not do, the iron fetters of despair will be applied. Notice some of the ways in which he keepeth his palace. "I can read my Bible at home." "You can tell me nothing new." "I go regularly to Church." "I do as well as I can." "You make too much ado," etc.

4. His Possession. "Goods" (Luke 11:21). He who occupies the palace of the heart also possesses the powers and faculties of the whole being. These powers and faculties are valuable "goods," their intrinsic worth, who can calculate? The precious blood of Christ speaks volumes as to the value of these "goods." These "goods," generally speaking, may represent all who are under Satan's keeping.

Let us look at the character of an individual article, the qualities of a single soul. There is- (1). Reason, the Governor. (2). Understanding, the Receiver. (3). Memory, the Recorder. (4). Conscience, the Discerner. (5). Will, the Decider. (6). Affection, the Distributer.

All these are prisoners to Satan under his power, used for his dark, devilish purposes. "His goods," not even your own free will! Ah, "strange liberty."

II. The Great Deliverer. "Christ."

1. His Character. "Stronger than he" (Luke 11:22). Not merely a stronger man, but one whose strength is almighty. "If I speak of strength, lo, He is strong." The strength of hills is His. "I will send you a Deliverer and a strong One." "Help has been laid upon One that is mighty." How mighty is the sun to overcome darkness; how strong are the hills to bear the crushing tempest. So man's deliverer must be strong both to bear and to overcome. His arm is strong; it upholds the universe and guides the helm of providence. His Word is strong, none can gainsay it, none can hinder it from working. His work is strong, His foundation stands sure. Neither time nor eternity, nor the powers thereof can ever displace one single stone of His building. Hallelujah! One has come to seek and to save, with whom nothing is impossible. No enemy too strong for His power, no difficulty too monstrous for His strength. "The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace" (Exod. 14).

2. His Encounter. "He shall come upon him" (Luke 11:22). The Prince of Life and the prince of darkness must come into close combat according to Genesis 3:15. David must go out to Goliath, come upon him, strip him, and overcome in behalf of Israel, for he fought not for himself, but them, and love constrained him, although, like Christ, his brethren despised and rejected him. Yet he had the King's favour, and in overcoming the enemy he secured for himself a bride (1 Samuel 17:25). Beautiful picture of our Deliverer who came forth from the Father, like David, to conquer the great enemy and purchase the Church as His bride. He "came upon the wiles of the devil" in the wilderness, upon his enmity and hate in the Pharisees, upon his works in the demon-possessed, upon himself on the Cross. Then was the hour and power of darkness; dreadful conflict!

3. His Victory. "Overcome him, and taketh from him all his armour" (Luke 11:22). Goliath is slain with his own sword. "Through death Christ destroyed him that had the power of death." His helmet was broken and his head bruised; his whole armour of darkness wherein he trusted has been destroyed, and the "true light now shineth." None need now be under his power as He came to set the prisoners free. But, alas, men love darkness rather than the light, and the bondage of Satan rather than the liberty of Christ, saying, "I love my master, and I will not go free." And so become a slave for ever. Jesus Christ is the rightful owner of the soul. "Thou hast ascended on high, Thou hast led captivity captive: Thou hast received gifts in the man" (Psalms 68:18, marg.).

"The number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands; saying... worthy is the Lamb that was slain" (Revelation 5:11-12).

4. His Grace. He divideth His spoils as the fruit of His warfare. He possesses pardon, peace, power, and paradise. These He willingly divides with the mighty many (Isa. 53). All who believe shall share in His victory. All is yours, for ye are Christ's (1 Corinthians 3:22). This great battle was substitutionary. Man had been spoiled of his goods by the devil, but Christ overcomes and recaptures the possession, as Abraham overcame the kings and brought back all the goods, and also his brother Lot (Genesis 14:16). Thou shalt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee. None can pluck them out of His hand. Will you share Christ's victory or the devil's overthrow? If the Son make you free, ye shall be free indeed (John 8:36). The spoils of Calvary's Cross hath made many rich.

SINGLENESS OF EYE AND FULNESS OF LIGHT.

Luke 11:33-36.

"Earth's crammed with Heaven,

And every common bush afire with God;

But only he who sees takes off his shoes,

The rest sit round it and pluck blackberries,

And daub their natural faces unaware,

More and more from the first similitude!"

-Browning.

"Light is sweet, and it is a pleasant thing for the eyes to behold the sun." So is it also with the light of truth that beams from the Son of Righteousness. It is in His light that we see light clearly. Blessed are such eyes that see. Our Lord Jesus Christ, who is here teaching us the blessedness of the single eye, bad in Himself in a pre-eminent degree the single eye; so His whole body was full of light. His light was not put in a "secret place" nor "under a bushel" (Luke 11:33), but was "lifted up" on the lampstand of the Cross that all in the house of this world may see it. "There was the true Light which lighteth every man coming into the world" (John 1:9, R.V.). Ye are the light of the world; let your light so shine. In examining this portion we would note- I. The Medium. "The light (lamp) of the body is the eye" (Luke 11:34, R.V.). The eye is-

1. Passive. It does not, and cannot, create the light, neither can it form or transform any object. It is simply a receiver and a reflector of outward objects to the inner consciousness of man, a channel through which visible things are revealed to the invisible spirit.

2. Very Sensitive. A little thing mars the vision of the eye. It is very easily offended. So with a tender conscience. They are blessed indeed who are as careful about their conscience as they are about the apple of the eye (Acts 24:16). Oh, that our spirits were as sensitive to the things of the Spirit of God!

II. The Means. "Light." The light was made for the eye, and the eye for the light. The successive waves of light that lash with infinite tenderness upon the eye prove the divine adaptation of the one to the other. But light is not more suitable to the eye than Christ is to the soul of man. There is a deep meaning in the words of Goethe, "Were thine eye not sunny, how could it ever see the sun?" So were thy soul not God-like, how could it ever enjoy God? No one would be foolish enough to say "I have an eye of my own, I don't need the light." The eye is utterly useless without the light, so the spirit of man is utterly helpless and powerless to discern the things of God apart from the revelation of the Spirit of God (1 Corinthians 2:14). The true Light now shineth. Oh, that the eyes of the understanding might be opened (Luke 24:31-32).

III. The Manner. Christ is the Light of the World, but there are two ways of looking at or dealing with this Light. These are represented by the "single eye" and the "evil eye," the pure and the impure, the honest and the deceitful, the new heart and the old.

1. The Single Eye and its effects. The single eye is one that has been anointed with the heavenly eyesalve (Revelation 3:18). The blood-washed spirit that looks through this eye has been reconciled to God, and seeks to know the truth as it is in Jesus. There is now no mixed motives in the life, no mingling of self-interest with the kingdom of God. The whole forces of the soul are now concentrated in "this one thing I do, forgetting the things that are behind, I press on toward the mark." Such an eye fills the whole body with light, because the Spirit of God takes the things which are Christ's, and reveals them to those who have the pure eye for the glory of His Name. If our motives are single, one with Christ's, then we shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of His life within us. To be filled with the Holy Spirit of Truth is to be filled with light. The spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him: "The eyes of your understanding being enlightened" (Ephesians 1:17-18).

2. The Evil Eye and its effects. The evil eye is the coloured lens of an unclean heart. The eye of prejudice can only see objects in a contorted fashion. The unrenewed heart of man can no more appreciate the light of revelation than the blinking owl of the night can enjoy the sunshine. The "evil eye" is like the eye of the hawk, always staring downward when flying upward. Remember Lot's wife. "If thine eye be evil, thy whole body is full of darkness." The darkness within is an evidence of an evil and doubting heart. We look to Christ with an evil eye if we look to Him only that self may be honoured and gratified; as Keble put it:

"We flee far in holy ground

If duly purged our mental view."

IV. The Message. "Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness" (Luke 11:35). If the light that is in us is not a revelation from God it is but the flickering "spark of our own kindling," a light that is certain to deceive. The light that was in the Church of Laodicea was darkness, for although they said that they had need of nothing, yet was Christ, the Light, outside (Revelation 3:17-20). There is no darkness so great as the darkness that is mistaken for light (Matthew 6:23; Proverbs 16:25). Woe unto them that put darkness for light (Isaiah 5:20). "When the pilot is drowned, the light quenched, and the captain taken prisoner, what hope is left for the crew?" While ye have the light, believe in the Light (John 1:9). THE HYPOCRITE.

Luke 11:37-44.

"A lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies!

A lie which is all a lie may be met and fought outright,

But a lie which is part of a truth is a harder matter to fight!"

-Tennyson.

This mongrel lie which is part of a truth finds its incarnation in the hypocrite. The one is as difficult to deal with as the other. The names scribe and Pharisee as used by our Lord here are synonymous of hypocrite. Their characteristics as detailed before us in these verses are the outstanding features of the hypocrite.

I. He is more concerned about the traditions of men than the truth of God. "The Pharisee marvelled that He had not first Washed before dinner" (Luke 11:38). The Pharisee of Christ's day not only held the traditions of the elders about hand-washing, but in their superstitious zeal bathed their bodies before meat (Mark 7:4, R.V.). Jesus Christ in the heavenly truthful dignity of His character simply ignores it, so that the hypocritical marvel at His liberty. The sons of God are not to be in bondage to the opinions of men. Whom the Son of God makes free are free indeed. Although Christ Himself, the embodiment of truth and holiness, stood before this Pharisee, yet would he despise Him because He did not conform to his petty theory of hand-washing. The popular tradition about the way of salvation is, "Do as well as you can," to the denial of the truth of God's saving grace. There are other traditions concerning the Lord's coming and Church worship that are equally subvertive of the truth as it is in Jesus.

II. He is more careful about outward than inward purity. "They make clean the outside of the cup, but the inward is full of ravening and wickedness" (Luke 11:39). The only good side of a hypocrite is the outside, for they do "make clean the outside." They live as in the eyes of their fellow-creatures, seeking not the honour that comes from God only. They are men pleasers. They will make their hands clean, although their hearts should be full of wickedness. They look upon the things which are seen. They profess to know God, but in works they deny Him (Titus 1:16). They practically deny that "out of the heart proceed evil thoughts," etc., and that these are the things which defile a man (Matthew 15:19-20). He is utterly indifferent about the righteousness of God if he can only get his own established (Romans 10:3), and when he prays it is with himself (Luke 18:11). He flatters men with his outward manners, while the inward manner of the heart is an abomination to God (James 4:8).

III. He stickles for trifles, and neglects the things which are indispensable. "Ye tithe all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God" (Luke 11:42). God demanded that the fruit of the land should be tithed (Leviticus 27:30), but they would tithe even the fragrant plant, and pass over justice and the love of God as if these were unworthy of notice. Such would not rob a child of a pin, but they would unblushingly rob God of their whole life. "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice" (1 Samuel 15:22). By their fruits ye shall know them; they stand up stoutly for orders and forms of worship, while they pass over the promises of God and the power of the Holy Ghost. They will argue vehemently for the rules of the Church, and pass over the law of the spirit of life which is in Christ Jesus. He is very particular in adapting certain tunes to certain psalms, but it concerns him nothing as to whether he himself is reconciled to God and adapted to the kingdom of Heaven. He could not pass the plate at the Church door without putting something into it, but he can pass through a whole service without giving to God one grateful feeling for the gift of His Son. They pass over the Love of God.

IV. He seeks self-glorification through his religious profession. "Woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues," etc. (Luke 11:43). The hypocrite is religious, but only so far as it will help to honour himself and minister to his vanity. He has no thought of adorning the doctrine of God our Saviour, but he seeks to be adorned by the doctrine. If he holds office in the Church it is that it may add to his dignity. He would appropriate all the privileges purchased by the agony and death of the Son of God for the exaltation of his own deceitful self. He is seldom out of his place in the house of prayer, but his god is himself. It is not the synagogue or church that he loves so much as those "uppermost seats" that help to lift him up. He will be very zealous in religion if he can thereby gain the flattery of others. He is one who sits in the place of God, and who robs Him of His honour and glory. A hypocrite, it has been said, is "like a glow-worm, it seems to have both light and heat, but when you touch it it has neither."

V. His real character is loathsome, although it appears not in the sight of men. "Woe unto you, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them" (Luke 11:44). Those who walked over or passed by those whited sepulchres little thought of the foulness and rottenness that were inside. "Within, full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness" (Matthew 23:27). A sow that is washed is only a washed sow. A hypocrite may manage by his white-washing to give no offence to his fellow-man, but God looketh upon the heart (1 Samuel 16:7). Be not deceived, God is not mocked; the hidden man of the heart is naked and bare before the eyes of the Lord, and that is the man that must give his account unto God (Psalms 7:9). The hypocrite lives for that which is "highly esteemed among men," but this is "an abomination in the sight of God" (Luke 16:15). Your woe, O hypocrite, is coming, for hath not the Lord Jesus Christ said, "I am He which searcheth the hearts?" (Revelation 2:23). What wilt thou do on that solemn day? A GREAT FAILURE.

Luke 12:13-21.

"Give us Thy grace to rise above

The glare of this world's smelting fires;

Let God's great love put out the love

Of gold, and gain, and low desires.

Still sweetly rings the Gospel strain

Of golden store that knows no rust;

The love of Christ is more than gain,

And heavenly crowns than yellow dust."

-Alexander.

This parable of the rich and prosperous fool was given to rebuke the covetousness of the man who said to the Master, "Speak to my brother that he divide the inheritance with me." But the Lord could see that under the mask of justice there gleamed the greedy eye. Who made Me a judge or divider over you? Take heed and beware of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth. This socialistic brother, who wanted the inheritance divided, misunderstood the mission of Christ, who came to save us from our sins. But the time is coming when He will be made both Judge and Divider over all the earth, for He shall judge His people and divide to every man according to his works. In turning our attention to the "certain man" referred to in the parables we would note his-

I. Prosperous Condition. "The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully" (Luke 12:16). He was on the highway to worldly honour and applause. "For men will praise thee when thou dost well thyself" (Psalms 49:18). He was evidently a land proprietor, the ground seemingly belonged to himself. He could pull down his barns at will, without consulting any one. The day of prosperity is perhaps a greater test to a man's character than the day of adversity. The Rev. Mr. Jay once had this request handed to him: "The prayers of this congregation are asked for a man who is prospering in trade." He needed them.

II. Present Dilemma. "He thought within himself, saying, What shall I do?" (Luke 12:17). Ah! this thought within himself was not hid from Him who is a discerner of the hearts of men. He had probably just gone for his night's rest, after having surveyed those fields so heavily laden with a plentiful harvest. The vision of lavish abundance is before his eyes, the tide of good fortune is coming in like a flood. "What shall I do?" He is quite unconscious of the tremendous importance of this crisis. What he does now will fix and determine his eternal character. Let us also take heed.

III. Settled Purpose. "He said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns and build greater" (Luke 12:18). The die is cast. He is weighed in the balance and found wanting. There is no recognition of God in all his plans, no acknowledgment of His goodness. God is not in all his thoughts. He has made the greatest miscalculation that any scheming mortal can make in allowing the Giver of all no place in his reckoning. We may deliberately vote God out of our lives by our "This will I do," but every "I will" of self has to do with the "Thou wilt" of God (Acts 9:6).

IV. Self-Congratulation. "And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods; . . . take thine ease," etc. (Luke 12:19). This rich pauper's life was entirely absorbed in his own selfish ease and gratification. A self-centred life is for ever a lost life. "Much goods." O, soul, be these thy gods? They will certainly be deaf and dumb to thy cry in a famishing eternity (Luke 16:19-25). The writer once received a one-pound note with these words written on the back of it, "This is the best friend I ever had." So that poor unknown soul had to part with his best friend. Not so with those who have the living unchanging Christ as their Friend.

V. Terrible Awakening. "But God said unto him, Fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee" (Luke 12:20). This sudden handwriting of God on the wall of his self-satisfied soul was a fearful interruption to his godless plans. This night "they require thy soul" (R.V., margin). They! Who? They by whose spirit he had been ruled (Ephesians 2:2), and to whom he had yielded himself a willing servant (Romans 6:16). God does not require such world-sodden souls in the kingdom of Heaven. "Lo, this is the man that made not God his strength; but trusted in the abundance of his riches" (Psalms 52:7). Covetousness is a kind of lunacy that makes men fools in the sight of God. Blessed are they who are fools for Christ. Then notice lastly-

VI. The Lord's Application. "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God" (Luke 12:21). To make it our life's business to live only for self-interest is pure unadulterated madness. Not to be rich toward God when He hath brought within our reach the "unsearchable riches of Christ" (Ephesians 3:8); riches of His grace and glory is to play the fool. Sell not your soul's birthright to heavenly and eternal treasure for the "much goods" of this world, which, if you set your heart on them, will only be to you as Esau's mess of pottage. There is a poverty that maketh rich (2 Corinthians 6:10). "Covet earnestly the best gifts" (1 Corinthians 12:31).

LESSONS FROM A BANKRUPT.

Luke 12:22-34.

"Heart-buried in the rubbish of the world-

The world, that gulph of souls, immortal souls."

-Young.

Our Lord never lost an opportunity of letting the light of truth shine into dark sin-beclouded souls. He had just spoken the parable of "a certain rich man" to expose the sin and folly of covetousness. Then, in these verses quoted above, He presses home upon the hearts of "His disciples" the needlessness of harassing anxiety about worldly and material things. The "rich man" who suddenly died a spiritual pauper should teach us to lay up treasures in Heaven. The Great Teacher come from God bases his application on a sevenfold argument-

I. The Value of Life. We should not be troubled with anxious thoughts about our life, for "the life is more than meat" (Luke 12:22-23). We do not live to eat, but eat to live, and life is the gift of God. This thought is specially precious to the children of God by faith. They have been made partakers of the divine nature, a new creation, through the incoming of this new and eternal life. This life is surely more than the meat that supplies it with fresh energy. Your life, as the followers and servants of Christ, is of more value to Him than the food and raiment needed to sustain that life. Therefore take no thought for your life. He who gives the greater will not fail in the less. "Cast all your care upon Him" (1 Peter 5:7).

II. The Manner of the Ravens. "Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, . . . and God feedeth them; . . . ye are better than fowls" (Luke 12:24). The second reason Christ gives us why we should rest ourselves in God, concerning the things of this present life, is, "God feedeth the ravens, and ye are better than they." They were not redeemed by the Blood of His Son, nor called with an holy calling. The ravens, with neither "storehouse nor barn," were happily unconscious of their poverty; the rich man who would "pull down his barns and build greater" (Luke 12:18) was equally unconscious of his spiritual bankruptcy. The raven's ignorance is its bliss; the rich man's ignorance was his curse. Christ's next argument is drawn from-

III. The Growth of the Lilies. "Consider the lilies how they grow. ... If God so clothe the grass, . . . how much more you?" (Luke 12:27-28). If God clothes and adorns the grass that may go to the oven to-morrow with the lilies, how much more carefully will He clothe you who are going into the Father's house above? The lily-glory of the grass was greater than Solomon's; the righteousness which is unto all, and upon all who believe is the righteousness of God. Therefore, with regard to supply and adorning, the disciples of Christ must rest in the Lord. This rest does not mean idleness (1 Timothy 5:8). Neither can it mean failure (Php_4:19).

IV. The Knowledge of the Father. "Your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things" (Luke 12:30). Oh, the sweetness of these words to the care-burdened heart! "Your Father knoweth." Coming as they do from the lips of Him who is the eternal Son, they are unspeakably precious, for He does know the deep, real love and faithfulness of the Father's heart toward those who are His blood-bought children. Your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. Then why harass your hearts with anxious thoughts about them, as if your Father neither knew nor cared about your need? If you can say, "The Lord is my Shepherd," you may confidently add, "I shall not want." Be content, for He hath said, "I will never leave thee" (Hebrews 13:5).

V. The Promise of Christ. "Seek ye the Kingdom of God, and all these things will be added unto you" (Luke 12:31). Those who seek first the Kingdom of God as the object of the soul's life will have all those things which "the nations of the world seek after" added as a matter of course and of necessity. It is a small matter to give the clothing when we have parted with the child. Those things which the restless worldling seek after are to be added to the servants of God as things that are as needful for the life as the sunshine of Heaven or the air we breathe. Solomon asked that he might have understanding, for the Kingdom of God's sake, and there was added both riches and honour (1 Kings 3:11-13). Godliness has the promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come (1 Timothy 4:8).

VI. The Littleness of the Flock. "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom" (Luke 12:32). The more weak and helpless the child is the more love and care will the mother lavish upon it. Our felt and confessed weakness is the secret of our spiritual strength (2 Corinthians 12:10). It is not to those wise in their own eyes, but "unto babes," to whom the Father reveals His great and precious secrets, and for this Jesus was thankful (Matthew 11:25-26). It is the poor of this world that are most frequently the rich in faith (James 2:5). The flock may be very little, as the word means, but the pleasure of the Father-Shepherd towards them is very good. Therefore, take no anxious thought about your life.

VII. The Character of the Heart. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also" (Luke 12:34). It is not so much what the treasure is as where it is that determines the nature of it. The human heart has always a something that is dearly coveted as treasure. So the affections of the heart and that real or imaginary treasure will always be wedded together. Seeing, then, that the things needful for this present life are freely promised us, we are thereby relieved from any anxious thought about them, that we might be entirely free to set our whole hearts' affections on things above (John 8:36). "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it" (John 2:5).

HE IS COMING.

Luke 12:35-48.

"Thou art coming, O my Saviour!

Thou art coming, O my King!

In Thy beauty all resplendent,

In Thy glory all transcendent,

Well may we rejoice and sing.

Coming in the opening east,

Herald brightness slowly swells;

Coming! O my glorious Priest,

Hear we not Thy golden bells."-Havergal. In this portion there are several lessons which are of tremendous importance in these latter days in which we live. We learn that-

I. The Lord is Coming. "He will return from the wedding" (Luke 12:36). This is not the coming of death-at death we go to Him-but the coming of the "Lord Himself," who said, "I will come again" (John 14:3). Were the disciples not told by the heavenly messenger that "this same Jesus shall in like manner come again?" (Acts 1:11).

II. He will Come like a Thief (Luke 12:39). He will come suddenly, like lightning (Matthew 24:27), and like a thief, unexpectedly to the many. A thief would never think of telling the day and the hour when he was coming to break through and steal. The day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night. This terrible Christ-dishonouring night is fast settling down upon us. "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief" (1 Thessalonians 5:2-6).

III. We should be Looking for Him. "Blessed are those whom the Lord, when He cometh, shall find watching" (Luke 12:37). We are not to look for death, but for the "glorious appearing of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ, who gave Himself for us" (Titus 2:13). It is said to the credit of the Thessalonian converts that they "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for His Son from Heaven." Do we not always watch and long for the return of loved ones when they go away from us for a season? If Christ is precious to us we cannot but look and long for His personal appearing.

IV. We should be Ready to Meet Him. "Be ye therefore ready" (Luke 12:40). This readiness consists in having our "loins girded and our lamps burning" (Luke 12:35). The "girding" and the "burning" speaks of teaching and testimony, the twofold need of these latter days, when many are turning away from the faith and giving heed to fables and the traditions of men which make the Word of God of none effect (Mark 7:13). The loins of the mind are to be "girt about with Truth," the speculations of critics will never do this. The lamp of life is to be trimmed and brightly burning through the oil of the Holy Spirit.

V. The Faithful shall be Rewarded when He Comes (Luke 12:41-44). All the servants of Christ are "stewards of the mysteries of God" (1 Corinthians 4:1), and as such are expected to give to the household of faith "their portion of meat in due season." We, as servants, "must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, that every one may receive according to that he hath done" (2 Corinthians 5:10). His "Well done," will never be spoken to those who have lived only for themselves. A selfish life is a cowardly God-dishonouring existence. Such verily have their reward.

VI. The Unfaithful shall Suffer Loss at His Coming.

He will be cut asunder, separated from the faithful ones, and appointed the portion of the unbelieving (Luke 12:46). The portion of the unfaithful is shameful disappointment (1 John 2:28). Looking for the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ has a powerful effect upon the daily life. It was the man who said, "My lord delayeth his coming," that began to smite his fellow-servants (Luke 12:45).

Children in school will be on their good behaviour when they know that the master is just at the door, coming in. It is possible to be saved and yet to suffer the loss of every reward by having our works burned up in the fire of His testing judgment (1 Corinthians 3:12-15). But there will be degrees of punishment, because there are degrees of privilege. To whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required (Luke 12:47-48). Whether the stripes be many or few, the Judge of all the earth shall do right. Let us praise His Name, "that with His stripes we are healed" (Isaiah 53:5).
THE BARREN FIG-TREE.

Luke 13:6-9.

"Praise, O Lord, for grace bestowed,

If fair graces in me have showed;

Praise for growth as of leaf or flower

By Thy Spirit's quickening power;

But fruit, 'much fruit,' O Lord, I ask

As 'neath Thy sweet shining I bask;

Enrich me as I urge my suit,

With nothing less than plenteous fruit." The Jews as a nation were more highly favoured than any other. Taken out of barren Egypt and planted by the hand of God in fertile Canaan, with all the care and protection that divine wisdom and power could bestow, much fruit was naturally expected. But the heart of Him who planted was grieved and disappointed. For three years God in Christ sought fruit and found none. Yet the compassionate Saviour interceded, crying, "Father, forgive them" (Luke 23:34). And though spared for a season to get the "digging" of His teaching and proofs of His resurrection, yet remaining in unbelief they were cut off (Romans 11:20). Cumberers will not always be permitted in His vineyard. This parable contains solemn and searching lessons for every Christian.

I. The Tree Mentioned. Observe its-

1. Hopeful Character. "A fig-tree" (Luke 13:6). It is the right kind of a tree for a garden. It was a fruit tree. It belonged without doubt to a valuable class of trees. None could dispute its good connection. This fig-tree represents one who has been born from above, who has received a new nature, and who is a new creature, one who belongs to the family of God. He is perfectly assured of his honourable connection. Once he had another name and a more disreputable character, but now he is classed as a Christian.

2. Great Privilege. "Planted in the vineyard" (Luke 13:6). This fig-tree did not grow by the wayside. It was more highly favoured. It was chosen by the Lord of the vineyard and carefully planted in the most favourable place, under the immediate eye and hand of the skilful dresser, and within the enclosure of the separating walls. In short, it was chosen, planted, supplied, and protected. Such is the privilege of every chosen one. "I have chosen you, and ordained you, that you should bring forth fruit" (John 15:16). Ye are the Lord's planting, and in the place of blessing has He put you "by the rivers of water" (Psalms 1:3).

3. Barren Condition. "Fruitless" (Luke 13:7). Fruit sought and none found. Is it possible? A fruit tree in a vineyard and yet no fruit? Quite possible, and, alas, far too common. Then who is to blame? Neither the dresser nor the ground, but the tree, which refuses or neglects to rise up to its great privilege. It was planted there not for an ornament, not merely to be fed, but to bear fruit, failing this all is failure. It might boast of its life, leaves, and opportunities, but there is nothing to satisfy the Lord. Many are fruitless Christians just for the same reason. Failing to prove their nature by their fruits they fail to rise to their high calling. The Lord seeks fruit, and has a right to expect it from every fruit-tree in His vineyard. Your presence in the vineyard proves His claim.

II. The Master's Complaint. "Behold these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig-tree" (Luke 13:7). From His own language we have suggested three thoughts. His-

1. Long suffering Grace. "These three years." (Luke 13:7). "He is long suffering to usward, not willing that any should perish" (2 Peter 3:9). The three years suggest something like a threefold failure. Yet hitherto no judgment was passed. It stands by grace alone. How his heart must have been grieved at seeing such great grace bestowed in vain, or worse, only used for self-aggrandisement. How is it with you? What about all your privileges? Has the Master found fruit in your life? He, no doubt, has been seeking fruit. How long is it since you was converted, or planted in the vineyard? Have you only been a receiver, drinking up the sap and the sunshine of His gifts, while he, the Master, receives nothing? Oh, ungrateful heart!

2. Wearied Patience. "Cut it down" (Luke 13:9). "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick" (Isaiah 7:13). The trees in the vineyard are judged by their works, those outside by their nature. By our works are we justified or condemned. Fruit-bearing constitutes the only title we have to our continuance in the vineyard (Isaiah 15:2). "My Spirit will not always strive with men." Privileges abused will be privileges lost. He that hid his lord's money lost it, and suffered besides. Shall we sin that grace may abound? God forbid! for the grace of God teacheth us to deny ungodliness and to live soberly and righteously in this present world. Mere lip profession will not save us from becoming a castaway as a servant (1 Corinthians 9:27).

3. Solemn Question. "Why cumbereth it the ground?" Every fruitless tree is a cumberer. Why should it be a hindrance? Who can reply against this? Who can defend the fruitless? Every unfruitful professor is a burden and a hindrance. Their roots, or motives, get intertwined with those of the fruit-bearing, and drink up that which should have gone to the fruit-making. And how often we spread forth our barren branches over others, hindering the bright sunshine, and so affect their fruit-bearing. The inconsistencies of professing Christians have been the destruction of much fruit; they act as a biting frost upon the tender bud.

III. The Dresser's Intercession. He-

1. Pleads for More Grace. "This year also" (Luke 13:8). How interesting that he who had been at all the labour and watchfulness, without receiving any credit or honour through it, should yet advocate its cause and plead in its name. Here Jesus is seen, and His voice is heard. He maketh continual intercession for us. "I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world" (John 17:15). That some Christians are still in the place of fruit-bearing, but in a barren condition, living only for self, how much is this owing to the priestly work of Jesus? "This year also." This may be your last.

2. Promises More Work. "I shall dig about it, and dung it" (Luke 13:8). This speaks of grace more abundantly. If fruit is found at all it must be the result of grace alone. Other trees are not to be impoverished for the sake of this, hence the extra digging, etc. The unfruitful Christian has often been perplexed and amazed at the unusual digging about the roots of his being, which looked very much like a removal at the time. Such times of affliction and trial are solemn warnings. They seem to whisper, "More fruit," or less privilege. The shaking of the roots indicate the presence of the Gardener. After the digging comes the additional supply.

3. Agrees that the Results should be Final. "After that" (Luke 13:9). Oh, how very solemn is this "after that!" This is known only to themselves, the owner and the dresser. The last effort grace may expend in order to fruitbearing may be a season of affliction, a searching sermon, or some providential incident. In the case of many this may have already taken place. The present may be the brief season of His waiting. Waiting on God, and God waiting on us, are widely different thoughts. The fruit of a fig-tree is figs, the fruit of a Christian is Christ.

MADE STRAIGHT.

Luke 13:10-16.

"I would not champ the hard cold bit As thou-of what the world thinks fit, But take God's freedom, using it."

-E. B. Browning.

Coleridge's definition of freedom is, "The unfettered use of all the powers which God for use hath given." Before all the powers that God hath given us can be used for Him the fetters of sin and the power of Satan must be broken. The woman before us here, "whom Satan had bound," and whom Christ set at liberty, is a perfect example of how a sin-bound soul may enter into the freedom of God. She was-

I. Crooked. "Bowed together" (Luke 13:11). She had been bound by Satan for eighteen years (Luke 13:16). Completely deformed by the power of the Devil. It is always Satan's business, wherever he can, to bow down the souls of men to the earth. Sin never fails to make a crook in the will and thoughts of those under its dominion. Their name is legion, who are so bound together by the love of the world that they cannot lift their faces to Heaven. Crooked through the constant use of the muck-rake.

II. Helpless. "She could in no wise lift up herself" (Luke 13:11). It was utterly impossible for her to break the cords that bound her face to the earth. She had been so long bowed down that her deformity had become fixed, like a crooked tree of eighteen years old. She was perfectly conscious of her outward disfigurement, and had often tried to straighten herself up, but "she could not." How like this is to those who are morally "bowed together" through drink, lust, or temper, and who again and again have attempted to lift themselves up, but they cannot, back they go to their natural deformity.

III. Anxious. She was in the synagogue on the Sabbath day, when Jesus was there (Luke 13:10-11). Perhaps it was because He was there that she was there; at anyrate she was putting herself in the way of getting blessing. It does not matter where we take our sin-crooked souls, there is no deliverance for them so long as we avoid the presence of the Son of God and refuse to hear His Word. If Bartimeus had bolted over the fence when he heard that Jesus was passing by, instead of praying, he would have certainly remained in his blindness.

IV. Invited. "Jesus called her to Him" (Luke 13:12). He saw many in the synagogue, but He called her, for He came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. The Spirit of the Lord was upon Him to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound (Isaiah 61:1). True to His mission, He searches out this helpless one "whom Satan had bound, lo, these eighteen years." Jesus Christ alone hath the keys of all the prison houses of Satan (Revelation 1:18). When He opens no man can shut.

V. Touched. "He laid His hands on her" (Luke 13:13). Jesus Christ comes into personal contact with every soul whom He saves. He cannot delegate this great work to another. He is ready to lay His healing and fetter-breaking hand upon all who accept His invitation, as this poor woman did. The woman mentioned in Luke 8:44 came without any special invitation, and touched His garment, and was instantly delivered. The results are the same, whether He condescends to touch us, or suffers us to touch Him, it is all of grace on His part. His hands are the hands of infinite love and power, they are never exercised in vain.

VI. Delivered. Notice the terms used, "Loosed from thine infirmity,... made straight,... loosed from this bond" (Luke 13:12). It was to her a full salvation. It consisted of a deliverance from her own weakness, a freedom from the binding power of Satan, and a being made straight for future life and work. She was now a monument of His gracious wonder-working power. Such is His salvation. A loosing of the soul from the bondage of Satan and moral infirmity, and a making of the heart straight for an upright life and loving service. Therefore the song of the saved is, "Unto Him who loved us, and... loosed us from our sin by His own blood" (Revelation 1:5, R.V.).

VII. Thankful. "Immediately she glorified God" (Luke 13:13). A new song was put into her mouth as soon as her feet had been taken out of the horrible pit of her eighteen years' bondage through Satan (Psalms 40:2-3). The snare was broken by the power of Him who came "to heal all that were oppressed by the Devil" (Acts 10:38), and now her soul had escaped like a bird, and was singing her song of praise high up in the wide, pure Heaven of God's redeeming love. THE GREAT SUPPER.

Luke 14:16-24.

"My need, and all ray need, Thou wilt supply;

I take Thee at Thy Word, and ask not why."

-Grosart.

The supper time is this present dispensation. The supper refers to the blessings and privileges provided for men in the sacrifice of God's Son. The many bidden (Luke 14:16) are the Jews who received the first invitation, and who had been advised a long time beforehand. The excuses are the silly objections brought by them against Jesus and His claims. The poor and maimed are the publicans and sinners among both Jew and Gentile who accepted the invitation. Those compelled to come in from the highways and hedges are the strangers afar off who had no hope. Those who shall never taste of this supper are the unbelieving Jewish nation, who have been "cut off" (Acts 13:46; Romans 11:20). Such may be the dispensational teaching of the parable, but let us look at some practical thoughts. A- I. Threefold Reason for Coming.

1. "Come, for all things are now ready." "All things." Every spiritual and temporal blessing for time and eternity is now ready in Christ Jesus. We often see a notice about some new book being in the press or now ready. Here is an advertisement that all things pertaining to a sinner's salvation is "now ready." Do you need a substitute? Then behold the Lamb of God. Do you need forgiveness? Then this is ready (Acts 13:38). Do you need peace? Then "Peace is made," etc. Do you need power? Then "Power is offered" (Acts 1:8).

2. "Come, for all classes are invited." Surely these four classes include all sorts. First, the poor-those who feed on stale scraps, and who have never known what it is to have a thoroughly satisfying feast. Those who go from door to door of the world's pleasure-haunts, begging for something to satisfy and getting nothing. Second, the maimed-those who have been deprived of some of their limbs, and have become hopelessly mutilated. Morally, this class represents those whose conscience has been seared, and whose will-power may have been cut off. What a helpless object! Yet come, for all things are ready. Third, the halt-those who have all their limbs, but in a crooked and deformed condition, whose manner of walk is neither straight nor steady. They do their best to appear all right, but they cannot possibly conceal their deformity. Fourth, the blind-those who can walk pretty straight, but are in the blackness of darkness all the time. Their outward life may be all right in the eyes of men, but they know not where they are going and are unconscious of their danger. You may explain the truth to them, but their answer is, "I cannot see it."

3. "Come, for yet there is room." The house is being rapidly filled, but yet there is room. How much room still remains none can tell. We know not the hour when the Master may rise up and shut to the door. Yet there is room -room in the Father's love, in the Saviour's atoning death, in the ministry of the Spirit, and in the offer of the Gospel.

II. Threefold Excuse for not Coming. To put them briefly, they may stand thus-

1. "I have something else to see." "I have bought a piece of ground, and must needs go and see it" (Luke 14:18). Why is it that men must needs go and see after their earthly possessions, and have no time to look at the provision God hath made for their eternal safety and inheritance? There are certainly many interesting things in the world to be seen, but what can be compared to the saving glory of the Cross of Christ?

2. "I have something else to do." "I must go to prove them" (Luke 14:19). He was more anxious to prove the oxen than to prove the riches of the kingly offer. Some people seem to think that the time to obey the call of God will be when they have nothing else to do. There are those who will persist in going on proving their own worldly interests until they finally prove themselves to be fools. While they are "busy here and there" their chance for eternal life is gone.

3. "I have something else to enjoy." "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come" (Luke 14:20). All new relationships, whether they be business or matrimonial, are sure to have a powerful influence in one way or another. There may be no sin in marrying a wife, in buying a house, in forming a new companionship, or looking forward to some coming event; but if the affections of the heart are so centred on these that the Gospel of God's grace must take a secondary place, then the life becomes a positive insult to the Son of God. God will not be mocked, He has emphatically declared that those who treat lightly His gracious invitation "Shall not taste of My supper." They who prefer to make their own suppers in time will in the end feel the pinch of that poverty which is eternal. No man has ever yet been able to form a God-satisfying excuse for not accepting His Son as their Saviour. It is you God invites, not your excuses; these can never stand for you. THE LOST SHEEP.

Luke 15:1-7.

"Blame not thy thought, that it cannot reach,

That which the Infinite must teach;

Bless thy God, that the Word came nigh,

To guide thee home to thy native sky."-MacDonald. The murmuring of self-righteous scribes and Pharisees drew from our Lord those three pet parables that have brought healing under their wings to many a sin-laden soul. They said sneeringly, "This man receiveth sinners," and with merciless feet they sought to trample on the grace of Christ. But all the more did this "plant of renown" send forth its heavenly fragrance. The obvious meaning of this parable is to reveal Christ's personal interest in the salvation of sinners. It brings before us-

I. A Painful Discovery. "One is lost" (Luke 15:4). Whether this one represents a world, a nation, or an individual, the underlying thought is that the Shepherd's restfulness of heart has been disturbed by the discovery that He has lost one. The lost one immediately draws out the sympathy and longing desires of His soul. When this discovery on Christ's part was first made it may be difficult to say (Ephesians 1:4), but it has been made.

II. An Altered Purpose. "He leaves the ninety and nine, and goes after that which was lost" (Luke 15:4). He counted ninety and nine, but He did not count the lost one. To be out of His count is to be lost. The ninety and nine left in the wilderness may represent the Jewish nation, who are in the wilderness still, being without a Shepherd and without a home-a separated people, having neither king nor country, and priding themselves in their righteousness. But the Shepherd of Israel goes forth in humiliation, agony, and death to seek and save that which was lost. He does not seek the lost sheep merely because of its value, but because of His love. Fallen angels might have been of more value than fallen man, but God so loved the world.

III. A Patient Search. "He goes after the lost until He finds" (Luke 15:4). There is no turning back with Him until His purposes are fully accomplished. "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied." Christ's determination is to find the lost ones, and every lost one He will yet find, if not in His saving mercy certainly in His righteous judgment. Has He not said, "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me" (John 12:32). If sinful men are not drawn to Him by the grace of His Cross they will be drawn by the power of His throne. Every human soul the atoning Son of God must find, either as Saviour or as Judge. Don't you hear the gentle footfall of His blessed presence in His Word even now?

IV. A Joyful Finding. "When He hath found it He laveth it on His shoulders rejoicing" (Luke 15:5). To find the lost, while He is a seeking Saviour, brings gladness to His gracious heart. Oh, the infinite tenderness of this self-sacrificing Shepherd! there is no word of reproach or of blame uttered. What a wonderful moment this is when the weary sin-worn sinner finds himself alone with the gentle Shepherd, and feels His tender yet mighty hands raising him up into the great bosom of love! At this blessed crisis the sheep is everything to the Shepherd and the Shepherd is everything to the sheep. Each rejoicing in each, and having nothing else besides. What a picture of the great salvation! Until the lost ones meet the Saviour they are living solitary, selfish, hopeless lives.

V. A Restful Journey. "He layeth it on His shoulders" (Luke 15:5). The weary, aimless wanderer has now found a resting-place on the shoulders of Him who came to seek and to save. The Lord neither drives nor drags those whom He saves, but undertakes to carry them every step of the way to the home beyond. The way of salvation for this lost one was very simple-just "abiding." The sheep did absolutely nothing but rest on Him who was able and willing to save. His shoulders is the place of strength and safety; the government of the universe rests upon them, then surely they are strong and broad enough for thy weary soul.

VI. A Happy Home. "When He cometh home, He calleth His friends,... saying, Rejoice with me" (Luke 15:6). As surely as the Shepherd goes home, so surely will He take His trustful sheep with Him. "Where I am, there shall ye be also" (John 14:3). While in the wilderness, seeking to save the lost, the Son of Man was away from home. But He comes back rejoicing, bringing. His sheaves with Him. The "friends and the neighbours" may represent the redeemed; and the angels in glory, who must be everlastingly interested in all that glorifies the Lord Jesus Christ as the Saviour of men. Are we sharing Heaven's joy just now by rejoicing with Him over sinners repenting? THE LOST SILVER.

Luke 15:8-10.

"I would be missed when gone;

I would not-my life done-

Have no eyes wet for me,

No hearts touched tenderly

No good of me confessed;

Dead-and yet not missed."

There is no exaggeration or false colouring in the word-picture of this heavenly artist. Every touch bears the impress of what is absolutely true. The pictures of ordinary mortals look best in the shade, but Christ's always improve in loveliness as the light increases. This little gem of a parable has been lightly esteemed, because its true meaning and value have not been generally understood. In the first parable we have the Love of the Son in seeking the lost; in the third the love of the Father in seeking the lost; in this second we surely have the love of the Spirit in seeking the lost. The woman is a fit emblem of the Holy Spirit in search of a lost but precious thing that might be put to some honourable use. The small silver coin referred to here was a drachma, about the value of a shilling. As representing a human soul, we would point out that it was-

I. Precious. To a poor woman, whose fortune consisted of ten shillings, it was a great privation to lose one. It was a loss that was keenly felt. It also bore the image of the king, and so was good current coin. Such are souls redeemed by Christ in the estimation of the Holy Spirit. They are precious to Him, and fit for circulation in the interests of the Kingdom of God.

II. Lost. It had slipped out of her hand, so that now she had no control over it. It is a sad, sad thing for any one who has known what it is to be in the hand of the Spirit to slip out of touch with Him through pride or unbelief. To be out of His hand is to be lost to Him. The fall may have been in a moment, but the grief created was intense. "Grieve not the Holy Spirit, whereby ye are sealed until the day of redemption" (Ephesians 4:30).

III. Lost in the House. It was not like the sheep, lost far away from home. It was in the house, but as utterly useless as if it had been in the depths of the sea. It is possible to be in the house of God's salvation, in the place of safety and privilege, and yet to be lost to the management of the Holy Ghost. It is one thing to be justified by faith before God; it is quite another to be ready for service in the hand of God. We may be in the home of the Spirit for salvation, and yet not be in the hand of the Spirit for service.

IV. Lost to Usefulness. As long as this silver coin was not in the hand and at the disposal of this woman it was lost to all the good it might do. If you throw a sovereign into the sea it would not be only so much gold that would be lost, but all the good that gold might do is lost. So is it with our lives after we have been brought into the household of God. If we are not in the hands of the Holy Spirit, that He might use us by spending us for the glory of God, then our lives are lost. Christ seeks to save, but the Holy Spirit seeks to find that He might use. No one is able to get so much out of our lives as He. Be assured He will spend you to the best advantage, whether it be at home or abroad.

V. Lost in the Dust and Darkness. In seeking to find she had to "light a candle and sweep the house." The candle of God's Word and the besom of providence are needed before He can get a hold of His lost treasure. The dust of sin and the darkness of unbelief always hinder the Spirit of God from rejoicing over us as a means in His hands for bringing glory to the Lord Jesus Christ. Though the sweeping process may be attended with much that is painfully unpleasant, as the dust of our unconfessed sin gets stirred up and the covering of our guilty darkness is being taken away, there must be a disturbance in the house if the Lord the Spirit is to get possession of His lost treasure.

VI. The Cause of Great Joy in the Finding. "Rejoice with me, for I have found the piece which I had lost" (Luke 15:9). As Jesus, the Shepherd, rejoices over the saving of the sinner, so the Holy Spirit, like this woman, rejoices over the recovery of a precious soul that had been lost to communion and service. It is worthy of notice that the woman does not say, "My piece which was lost." The very omission of the my (see Luke 15:6, Luke 15:24) is strong evidence that the work of the Holy Spirit is here indicated. Believers are the property of Christ, but are to be used by the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8). THE LOST SON.

Luke 15:11-24.

"Alas! how have I served the Devil,

Still lusting after all things evil;

For, O my God, I saw the light,

Yet plunged into the foulest night." In studying the three parables (so-called) in this chapter we should not overlook the fact that they were spoken by our Lord as one parable (Luke 15:3) to show how God, as Father, Son, and Holy Ghost "receives sinners" and companies with them. The Son, like the shepherd, seeks the lost that He might save them; the Spirit, like the woman, seeks the lost that He might use them; God, like the father, seeks the lost that He might have fellowship with them. This is the threefold aspect of this great and perfect salvation. This parable of the prodigal has been called "the prince of parables." It has been the door of hope to many a weary wanderer. Let us consider his-

I. Selfish Demand. "Give me the portion of goods" (Luke 15:12). Like many in our own day, he wanted to have all the goods and blessings that the father could give him, that they might minister to his own personal gratification, utterly regardless of the father's wisdom or feelings. It is dishonouring to God that we should seek to manage our own lives with His gifts.

II. Wayward Journey. "Into a far country" (Luke 15:13). The "far country" represents that condition or sphere of living where God the Father is unknown. A son must have got into an awful sad and sinful state of soul when he feels that he must leave a rich and gracious father in search of pleasure. The self-will is a rebel against God.

III. Reckless Living. "And there wasted his substance" (Luke 15:13). The sweet fellowship of the father was exchanged for the "riotous living" of the ungodly, and the result was, as it ever is with a backslider from God, a wasting of His precious gifts. We cannot keep the substance of God's forgiveness-peace and joy-when we wilfully forsake Him for the pleasures of sin. All will be wasted; the enjoyment of them will speedily die away.

IV. Miserable Plight. "When he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine" (Luke 15:14). A "mighty famine" is sure to overtake all who have wandered away from God. Hunger of soul will certainly come upon those who spend their gifts for that which is not bread. He found out by bitter experience that "the rebellious dwell in a dry land."

V. Despairing Effort. "He went and joined himself to a citizen" (Luke 15:15). He had willingly given away his substance, now he is compelled to give himself. Such is the course of sin. If we waste our gifts and privileges we ourselves will finally become bond-slaves. Lot took the same foolish and fruitless step when he became a ruler in Sodom.

VI. Friendless Condition. "No man gave unto him" (Luke 15:16). He had sold himself for naught. Wretched and self-ruined, he longs for even the satisfaction enjoyed by the beast, envying the swine. "No man gave him." No man ever will give a sin-wasted sinner what he needs. You might as well expect heat from an iceberg.

VII. Noble Resolve. "I will arise and go to my father" (Luke 15:18). This is the language of one whose pride had driven him to acts of madness, but is now "come to himself." He remembers the "father's house" and the provision there, and the fire of hope springs up from the smouldering embers of his wasted life.

"While the lamp holds on to burn.

The greatest sinner may return."

He not only said "I will arise," but he did it. Herein was the evidence of his sanity.

VIII. Gracious Reception. "He fell on his neck and kissed him" (Luke 15:20). The father's love at once cast out the prodigal's fears. He began to confess, but his coming home was to the father the best confession. What value is there in confession if there is no turning away from sin? (Isaiah 55:7). No one gave him in the far country, but now all that the father hath is at his disposal. By taking his portion he had forfeited all right to further blessing, but he is saved by grace, and the father is happy. "By grace are ye saved through faith" (Ephesians 2:8). His grace is sufficient for all who come.

LOST SYMPATHY.

Luke 15:25-32.

"I ask Thee for a thoughtful love,

Through constant watching wise,

To meet the glad with joyful smiles,

And wipe the weeping eyes;

And a heart at leisure from itself,

To soothe and sympathise."-A. L. Waring. In its wider scope we think this part of the parable (the elder brother) is brought in to illustrate the attitude of the Jewish nation towards that manifested grace of God which hath brought salvation to all men. The Gentile prodigal is being saved by grace, while the self-righteous Jew is angry and will not go in. Yet all the while, whether he will or not, this religious elder is the prodigal's brother- both alike in need of the Father's forgiveness. There are some things about this elder brother, so often neglected, that are worthy of special attention. He stands before us here as one-

I. Who was Willing to Work. "Now his elder son was in the field" (Luke 15:25). Whatever else he was, he was not lazy, he had a mind to work. While others were feasting and dancing he was busy looking after the flocks or the crops. He is a type of those who like to be doing, and whose hands are constantly filled with some kind of good and useful work. So active are they that they would much rather be in the field of service than in the closet of prayer.

II. Faithful to Duty. He could say, "Neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment" (Luke 15:29), and he was quick to say it. As regularly as the clock, does he go the round of his daily task. His motto is, "I must do my duty." This type of Christian is as straight as an arrow, as regular as the post, and equally as formal. He speaks and acts from a sense of duty and prides himself on doing the right thing, although it may be done with a heart as cold as an icicle. The other brother was the sinner, but this one is the Pharisee (Luke 18:11). It is not duty but love that constrains the true servant of Christ.

III. Who had never Received a Mirth-making Gift from the Father. "Thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends" (Luke 15:29). The reason why he had never received even a kid was doubtless because that in his self-complacency he had never asked it nor even felt the need of it. He was working away without ever seeking any definite token of the father's grace and love, serving without receiving his mirth-making gift. What about those who week by week go the round of religious performances, but have never at any time received the soul-gladdening gift of God (John 1:12). It was not the father's fault that his son's service had been so joyless. "Ask and ye shall receive" (John 16:24). It is honouring to the Lord Jesus Christ when others are constrained to say, like the Queen of Sheba, "Happy are these thy servants" (1 Kings 10:8).

IV. Grievously Offended. "He was angry, and would not go in" (Luke 15:26). His pride was wounded to think that one whose life had been a public scandal should now receive more honour than himself who had never done anything very bad. He would not go in with this way of doing things, so he gets entirely out of sympathy-

1. With his Father. The father's heart was brimful of joy at the finding of the lost one, but it brought no gleam of gladness into the selfish soul of the elder brother. The conversion of sinners brings no mirth into the heart of those who are out of fellowship with God.

2. He got out of Sympathy with his Brother. If he had had any love for his wandering brother he would have rejoiced over his home-coming. To get out of sympathy with God is to get out of sympathy with sinners. How can a man say that he loves God if he love not his brother also?

3. He got out of Sympathy with the Servants. The servants were evidently sharing the joys of the feast, for this one that he questioned had to be called (Luke 15:26). The true servant of God must and will rejoice in all that brings gladness to His heart and glory to His Name. To be out of sympathy with the Lord's happy servants, and to refuse to go in and share their joys in the saving work of God is a sign of haughtiness of heart and grievous backsliding.

V. Graciously Intreated. "Therefore came his father out and intreated him" (Luke 15:28). The love and longsuffering patience of the father in his willingness to receive the prodigal has always been recognised and confessed, but his love in plying with melting intreaty this prodigal in heart has not been generally acknowledged. It is often more easy to pity the profligate sinner than the self-righteous one. The pleading of the father with the offended son was that he might enter into real hearty sympathy with him in his desire after and joy in the salvation of the lost. Are we, as His servants, in full sympathy with the Lord in His desire to seek and to save?

VI. Greatly Encouraged. Could the father have given him any greater inducement to cast aside all coldness and indifference to his highest interests than this, "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine" (Luke 15:31). The return of prodigals unto God is not going to lessen your inheritance in Him any more than the opening of a blind man's eyes can hinder your enjoyment of the sunshine. Christian workers, are you offended because the grace of God lavishes such blessings upon the really unworthy? Are you out of sympathy with soul-saving work? Out of sympathy with God? Be intreated, come in, all the fullness of God is awaiting you.

LESSONS FROM A LOST SOUL.

Luke 16:19-31.

"Sin, not till it is left, will duly sinful seem;

A man must waken first, ere he can tell his dream."

-Trench.

This "rich man" had to waken up in eternity before he could tell the dream of a wasted life. "No man can serve two masters" (Matthew 6:24), especially when the masters differ in character as much as "God and Mammon." Mammon stands for the "love of riches" and the "pleasures of sin." Both God and Mammon demand the mastery of our beings. If the love of God does not master us the love of the world will. If we hold to the one, we must of necessity despise the other. The covetous, in the pride of their heart, are always ready to "justify themselves in the sight of men," forgetful that they may esteem things very highly which are an abomination in the sight of God (Luke 16:14-15). The words which follow about "a certain rich man" and "a certain beggar" are heavy laden with solemn and weighty meaning. The Lord does not call this a parable. His meaning is clear and unmistakable. Then what are the lessons we may learn from this portion?

I. That a man may have a beautiful appearance in the sight of men, and yet be utterly corrupt in the sight of God (Luke 16:19). The "purple and fine linen"of man's righteousness will never beautify in the eyes of God. There are those who think that they have need of nothing, and know not that they are wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked (Revelation 3:17).

II. That a man may be poor and loathsome in the eyes of his neighbour, and yet be rich and beautiful in the sight of God (Luke 16:20-21). The poor beggar may have been an object of disgust to many, but the Lord looketh not upon the outward appearance. It is no uncommon thing for the character of a poor afflicted child of God to stink in the nostrils of the covetous and wealthy man of the world. But the soul of Lazarus was a precious jewel to God, although the casket was in a broken condition.

III. That a man may have but the burial of a dog, and yet be attended by the angels of God (Luke 16:22). No poorhouse inmate ever got a more unceremonial funeral than Lazarus.

"They rattle his bones over the stones,

He is only a pauper whom nobody owns!"

Yes, God owns him, and white-robed angels bear his emancipated spirit to the Father's bosom.

IV. That a man may have a pompous funeral, and at the same time be a miserable soul (Luke 16:22-23). There would be more real mourners at some funerals if only they could see within the veil. Men eulogise the past of the world's departed great ones, but what about their present? The wail of the "Dead March in Saul" is mockery compared with the wail of a lost soul in eternity.

V. That a man may have abundance of this world's goods, and yet, in the world to come, be utterly destitute of the commonest mercy (Luke 16:24). This worshipper of Mammon on earth has found out in eternity that a "smiling providence" is no evidence that the soul is right with God. This everlasting thirst for a drop of water is an awful experience to a man who never knew what want meant, and who only lived for the gratification of his own desires.

VI. That if a man neglect his opportunities in this life, in the life to come he will have good cause to remember his folly (Luke 16:25). "Son, remember thy lifetime." The remembrance of a wasted lifetime, in the midst of many "good things," will be, in the world to come, the undying worm of remorse.

VII. That though saints and sinners may meet together now, the time is coming when they must be eternally separated (Luke 16:26). Earthly relationships will avail us nothing when the "great gulf is fixed." Everything depends on our relationship to God and His Christ. All the prayers and penance of the Papacy or of purgatory will never bridge this gulf, for it is fixed (Matthew 13:30).

VIII. That the prayers of the lost can avail nothing, neither for themselves nor others (Luke 16:24, Luke 16:27-28). Those who set no value on prayers in this life will have no value set on them in the life which is to come. It is not enough to be in earnest when the day of grace is past. "Behold, now is the accepted time."

IX. That those who will not hear and believe the Word of God shall perish without remedy (Luke 16:29-31). Signs and wonders would profit us nothing if we will not hear Him whom God hath sent to bless us (Luke 9:35). The Israelites saw His wonders, and murmured against Him. Many saw the miracles of Christ, and yet hated Him; even Lazarus "rose from the dead," and they sought to kill Him (John 12:10-11). "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

TEN LEPERS CLEANSED.

Luke 17:11-19.

"Sin is established subtly in the heart

As a disease, like a magician foul,

Ruleth the better thoughts against their will.

Only the rays of God can cure the heart,

Purge it of evil, there's no other way,

Except to turn with the whole heart to God."

-Allingham.

Wherever Jesus went He always found occasion for the exercise of His infinite compassion and power; and what is better, He was constantly on the look out for the distressed and the despairing, supremely conscious that in Himself He was all-sufficient to meet the need of all. In Jesus Christ all the fullness of the Godhead tabernacled among men, and when He laid down His life for us on the atoning Cross, it was the paying down of His unsearchable riches as the redemption price of our souls. His miracle of healing in this nameless village while on the way to Jerusalem (Luke 17:11-12) has for us heart-search ing thoughts. Let us see the-

I. Pitiful Sight. "There met Him ten men that were lepers" (Luke 17:12). Ten men bound together by a common misery, and utterly unable to save themselves. Although there were ten of them, that did not lessen the sufferings and dangers of each. Although we may have many companions in sin, that does not in any way detract from the guilt of each. In Scripture leprosy is the outstanding type of sin.

1. Like sin, it brings uncleanness. The true cry of the leper, with his shame-covered lip, was to be "Unclean, unclean" (Leviticus 13:45). We are only taught, like the leper, to speak the truth when we are asked to make confession of our sins.

2. Like sin, it leads to separation. "They stood afar off" (Luke 17:12). The place appointed for them by the law of God was "without the camp" (Leviticus 13:46). "Far off" is the position of all those who have not been made nigh by the blood of Christ (Ephesians 2:13). Their very character alienates them from the life and fellowship of God.

3. Like sin, it is humanly incurable. Man has no remedy for leprosy; he can only attempt to alleviate their sufferings while the dreadful plague runs its death-working course.

II. Earnest Prayer. "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us" (Luke 17:13). This may have been a hoarse cry through throats diseased with leprosy, but there was music in it to the ear of Jesus, for it came from the heart, and was for the one thing needful. "Mercy"-that mercy which in Jesus Christ was wedded to Omnipotence, and that had its abode in the tenderest and purest of men.

III. Simple Remedy. "Go, show yourselves unto the priests" (Luke 17:14). This seems a strange command, but the meaning is clearly this: "The priests have condemned you as lepers; then, if you believe that I can heal you, and am healing you, go and show yourselves, that they may see that you are healed" (Leviticus 14:2-4). "And as they went they were cleansed." Two things were absolutely needed:

1. Faith in the Word of Christ (Luke 17:19).

2. Obedience to the will of Christ.

If they had waited till they felt better before they went, they never would have gone. It is while we believe and obey that we enter into life.

IV. Grateful Recipient. "And one, when he saw that he was healed, turned back and glorified God" (Luke 17:15). Personal healing is something we can only see by experience, and a something for which we should be instantly and profoundly thankful. It was a moral impossibility for this man to glorify God while in the terrible bondage of leprosy. It is only when we are made free from sin that we can give glory to God. The healing mercy of Christ not only made this Samaritan very thankful, it also made him humble. "He fell on his face at His feet." Humility and thankfulness are characteristic of those saved by the grace of God.

V. Searching Inquiry. "Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine?" (Luke 17:17-19). He who counted the stars will not fail to number those who have been cleansed by His Word. He knows them every one. "Where are the nine?" Surely our Lord expects that those who have been saved by Him should glorify God by making a public acknowledgment of His cleansing power. It is quite possible for us, like those nine, to be very anxious to get salvation merely for our own comfort and happiness, and to be utterly indifferent about honouring the Saviour with our new life. Such secret believers-we cannot call them disciples-are ungrateful cowards. This despised "stranger" who turned back to give God the glory got something that the thankless nine did not get. He got the Lord's assurance that the work wrought in him was perfect (Luke 17:19). The belief of the heart should always be accompanied with the confession of the mouth (Romans 10:9). Where are the nine? Are you one of them?

CHRIST'S SECOND ADVENT.

Luke 17:20-37.

"Surely the time is short, Endless the task and art,

To brighten for the ethereal court, A soil'd earth-drudging heart.

But He, the great Proclaimer of that hour,

Is pledged to thee in love, as to thy foes in power."

-Keble. The Lord Jesus Christ did in no way rebuke those Pharisees who demanded of Him "when the Kingdom of God should come" (Luke 17:20). It has been clearly revealed that the Messiah would redeem His people, and establish the throne of David. So powerfully did this truth lay hold on the people that at one time they were about to take Jesus by force and make Him King (John 6:15). But Jesus did not commit Himself to them, knowing what was in man. Even after His resurrection the disciples asked Him, "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" (Acts 1:6). But even then it was not fit for them to know when. We are here taught something of the-

I. Nature of the Kingdom. "The Kingdom of God is among you" (Luke 17:20-21, margin). They asked when it should come. The Kingdom, as the Rule of God, was already among them in the Person of His Son. There can be no kingdom without a king (see Matthew 12:28). But as to its outward visible glory, it was still hidden, because He was not yet glorified as Prince and Saviour.

1. It will come suddenly. "As the lightning" (Luke 17:24). The lightning does not "come with observation," that is, men do not see the lightning before it becomes a present reality. "So shall also the Son of Man be in His day."

2. It will be unmistakable when it does come. When we pray, "Thy Kingdom come, "we pray for the coming of the King. When He comes there will be no need for saying, "Lo, here," or "Lo, there," for the shining of His influence will be like lightning from one part under Heaven unto the other, that is, from one hemisphere to the other (Luke 17:21, Luke 17:24).

II. State of the World at His Coming. "As it was In the days of Noah, so shall it be" (Luke 17:26-30). Most certainly the world was not converted in the days of Noah. Neither will it be converted at the coming of the Lord (Luke 18:8). The days of Noah were characteristic of backsliding and unbelief (Genesis 6:1-7). They ate, and drank, and married, and rejected the testimony of Noah until the flood came. God had said, "My Spirit shall not strive with man for ever" (R.V.), indicating that in the days of Noah the voice and pleadings of His Spirit were resisted. "So shall it be in the days of the Son of Man." "In the last days perilous times will come, for men shall be lovers of themselves, . . . heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God" (2 Timothy 3:1-4), And our rationalistic lower critics are doing what they can to complete this dark picture, striving against the Spirit of God (see 2 Timothy 4:3-4), and "turning the truth into fables." From such turn away. Whatever teaching does not exalt the Lord Jesus Christ and honour the Holy Ghost is not of God.

III. Results of His Coming. The results will be very many, but there are two definite effects brought before us here.

1. Separation. When Noah, who had been condemning the world by his righteous works (Hebrews 11:7), was taken into the Ark and shut up then the flood came. When Lot was taken out of Sodom, then the fire and brimstone fell from Heaven. "One shall be taken, and the other left" (Luke 17:34-36). So shall it be when the Son of Man cometh. There shall be a taking away of those who are the Lord's. "Caught up to meet the Lord in the air" (1 Thessalonians 4:16-17).

2. Judgment. The taking away of the righteous prepares the way for the judgments of God upon the unbelieving. The Lord declared that He could "do nothing" till Lot was brought out of Sodom. When the "salt of the earth" has been removed, then there is no hindrance to the process of death and corruption. When the Church of God has been taken out of this Christ-rejecting world, then the Lord shall take "vengeance on them that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Thessalonians 1:7-10). Wheresoever the lifeless and corrupt body is, thither will the eagles of God's judgments be gathered together (Luke 17:37).

SUCCESSFUL PRAYER.

Luke 18:1-14.

"Pray, though the gift you ask for

May never comfort your fears,

May never repay your pleading,

Yet pray, and with hopeful tears!

An answer-not that you long for,

But diviner-will come some day;

Your eyes are too dim to see it.

Yet trust, and wait, and pray."-A. Procter.

There is as much difference between the mere form of prayer and the spirit of prayer as there is between a dead body and a living one. The one is but the breathless skeleton of the other.

I. Prayer is a Great Privilege. How black the heavens would be if there were no opening to the cry of human need; how hopeless our lives, in the day of distress, if we had no access to the ear of God. Even this sin-blotched world may become to us the audience chamber of the King of kings; thy closet may be gilded with the glory of God. Let your requests be made known unto Him.

II. Prayer is a Necessity. "Men ought always to pray, and not to faint" (Luke 18:1). It is "impossible to believe in God and not feel the need of prayer." It is the Christian's "vital breath." It is absolutely needed to spiritual life and health. We ought always to pray, because we are always dependent upon Him in whom we live and move. If we had more delight in prayer we would have less inclination to grumble; if we loved the presence of the Lord more we would quarrel with our neighbours less.

III. Prayer must be Urgent. "Because this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her" (Luke 18:3-5). Her "continual coming," which prevailed over the indifference of this "unjust judge," is used by our gracious Lord as an argument for persistent prayer. If your desire is for things needful, or for the glory of God, do not be afraid to "trouble the Master" about them. His silence for a time may be but the testing of your faith. If you can possibly be satisfied without this definite answer to your prayer, the likelihood is that no answer will be given. Be importunate, and you will certainly get all you need (chap. Luke 11:8).

IV. Prayer must be Void of Self-confidence. The parable of the two men that went up into the temple to pray was spoken to those that "trusted in themselves" (Luke 18:9-12). Prayer is a solemn mockery on the lips of the self-righteous. It was quite true that he was not "as other men," for he was neither a saint in the sight of God nor a sinner in his own. The man who would be justified by his works has whereof he might glory, but not before God. The fact is, the spirit of pride and self-sufficiency is at enmity with the spirit of prayer. This Pharisee said his prayers, but he did not pray. The spirit of prayer is the most humble spirit on the face of the earth; compared with other earthly spirits, it is as a lily among thorns.

V. Prayer must be Honest. The publican smote upon his breast saying, "God be merciful to me a sinner" (Luke 18:13). Out of the heart are the issues of life. The Pharisee compares himself with others, and justifies himself; the publican compares himself with God, and makes confession of his sin. No prayer can be perfectly honest before God which does not express the true conscious condition of the heart. The Lord has an open ear for our cry, but he has also an open eye for our heart. Those are God-pleasing prayers that smite our own breasts; but there are others that smite the breast of God.

VI. Prayer will be Answered. "I tell you that He will" (Luke 18:8). "I tell you that he went down justified" (Luke 18:14). True prayer will never be sent empty away. The prayer of the poor, friendless, but importunate widow, and the prayer of the honest, sin-conscious publican were prevailing prayers, while that of the self-righteous Pharisee only insulted God and ministered to his own pride and self-deception. Our own righteousness will neither save ourselves nor our prayers any more than counterfeit jewels would save a drowning man. The way to get up in the estimation of God is to get down in our own. "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted" (Luke 18:14), and he that is so exalted shall ask what he will, and it shall be given him. THE PHARISEE AND PUBLICAN AT WORSHIP.

Luke 18:9-14.

"Even as Elias mounting to the sky,

Did cast his mantle to the earth behind,

So when the heart presents the prayer on high,

Exclude the world from traffic with the mind."

-Southwell. This parable was spoken as a rebuke to all those who "trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others." In the preceding parable He taught that "men ought always to pray, and not to faint," but here He shows clearly that while all men ought to pray, everything depends on the spirit and motives which constrain us to pray if we are to have the answer of God to our petitions. These two men represent two classes of worshippers.

I. A Self-satisfied Professor. Here are some of the general characteristics of such-

1. He Believes in being Religious. This Pharisee goes up to the temple to pray. Like his modern descendants, he goes regularly to his place of worship, and keeps up a kind of bowing acquaintanceship with all the ordinances of God's house. He has a great respect for religion, and thinks that everybody should say prayers. As for himself, he can always pray like an unfallen angel, for he is not like "other men."

2. He Has Great Faith in Himself. "He trusts in himself" (Luke 18:9). If ever there was a righteous man on the earth, he is that man. His brown penny is worth anybody's shilling. He glories in what he is, "not as other men," in what he does. "I fast twice a week." In what he gives, "I give tithes." His every sentence begins with a capital "I." He trusts in himself, not in God. He attends the Church because he likes to patronise things that are honourable. He believes that as long as he is able to trust in himself there will be no cause for His faith getting shaken. He has made himself what he is, so he worships a god of his own making.

3. He has no Sense of Personal Need before God. "He trusts in himself that he is righteous" (Luke 18:9). He is rich in religious works, and increased with the goods of personal qualifications, and has need of nothing (Revelation 3:17-18). He belongs to that famous generation "that are pure in their own eyes" (Proverbs 30:12). The Cross of Christ makes no appeal to him. He is quite independent of any such provision. He would not bemean himself by classing himself with sinners. His eyes are so very innocent that they cannot see anything very bad in anything that he has ever done.

4. He has no Love for Others. "Despised others" (Luke 18:9). This is quite consistent with his hypocritical profession. Others have so many faults and imperfections that his self-righteous soul cannot esteem them. There is no true religious uprightness but in his own pride-puffed bosom. Others may, through weakness, fall, and be caught in a whirlpool of disaster, or may be slowly drifting toward the precipice of eternal rain, but what is that to him. Such drift-souls are unworthy of his notice. His creed is, Let every man care for himself.

II. A Self-abased Confessor.

1. He Believes in Prayer. He may have gone up with the Pharisee, but not like him. The one went up to perform a work, the other to enjoy a privilege. Custom constrained the one, while a deep-felt need moved the other.

2. He is Sensible of God's Holiness. "He stands afar off" (Luke 18:13). He realises that there is a great moral distance between God's character and his own. "Afar off" describes our true position as sinners before God (Ephesians 2:13). But while the prodigal was yet "a great way off" the father ran and met him. He came not merely to pray, but to have a personal dealing with a personal God. "He that cometh to God must believe that He is."

3. He is Conscious of his own Sinfulness. "He smote upon his breast" (Luke 18:13). He is convinced that the source of his guilt lies deeper down than mere words or acts, that his heart was "deceitful, and desperately wicked." He stands before God a self-condemned man, so overwhelmed with shame that he could not "lift up so much as his eyes unto Heaven." He takes his true place as one "condemned already" (John 3:18).

4. He Pleads the Atoning Sacrifice. We infer from the word used, "God be merciful"-be propitiated for me the sinner-that this sin-smitten one had his eyes on the sacrifice smoking on the altar when he uttered this prayer (Luke 18:13, R.V., margin). When a man is thoroughly convinced of his guilt before God he has no difficulty about the doctrine of substitution. He feels that this is his only hope, and thanks God for the Cross of Christ.

III. An Infallible Judge. This "I tell you" of Jesus is the final pronouncement of God upon the attitudes of these two classes as before Him (Luke 18:14).

1. The Self-exalted shall be Abased. No man can lift himself up into the favour of God by his own works. "God resisteth the proud" (James 4:6). As long as a man covers his own sin he shall never prosper in the sight of the heart-searching God (Proverbs 28:13).

2. The Self-abased shall be Exalted. "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He shall lift you up" (James 4:10). The story of Haman and Mordecai is a perfect illustration of this truth. In Luke, chapter sixteen, we see a proud rich man abased to hell, while the humble beggar is exalted to Heaven. This word is settled in Heaven, that if you save your life you will lose it, and if you lose it for Christ you will save it.

ONE THING LACKING.

Luke 18:15-30.

"Lord, by Thy grace I have made my choice,

In Thy Salvation Irejoice,

Iempty was, I'm empty still,

Thy full Salvation doth me fill,

Transient are all things that move,

But Thine is everlasting love."-Grosart.

Jesus is equal to the need of all, from the ruler of the Synagogue down to the infant in the mother's arms (Luke 18:15). Blessed are those mothers who seek for their children the touch of the life-giving Christ, and who will not be discouraged in this good work by the forbidding or mocking looks of ignorant and cold-hearted disciples. The Kingdom of God must be received in the simple, unquestioning spirit of "a little child" (Luke 18:17). This fact is clearly brought out in the following story of the young ruler. In this short suggestive narrative we note-

I. An Important Question. "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" (Luke 18:18). There is no question more becoming a thoughtful young man than this. It is beautiful to see a man, while basking in the sunshine of worldly prosperity (Luke 18:23), anxiously inquiring into the eternal sureties of the unseen. Why should the glory of earthly riches blind the eyes to the greater glory of the heavenly? This ruler came to the right person with this most momentous of all questions when he came to Jesus. He only has the words of eternal life. It was also a very personal question. "What shall I do." Salvation is a matter between Jesus Christ alone and our own individual souls.

II. A Searching Inquiry. "Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou Me good?" (Luke 18:19). Our Lord would have him understand that He deals not only with the language of the lip, but with the deeper motives of the heart. "There is none good but God" (Luke 18:19). Do you believe that I am God? When we come to Jesus about the matter of "eternal life" we must come with full purpose of heart, believing that He is divine, and that He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Believest thou this?

III. An Honest Confession. "All these have I kept from my youth up" (Luke 18:21). Doubtless this anxious ruler was perfectly sincere in saying this. He knew nothing against himself. There is a peace of conscience that is not the "peace of God." There is a justness of character in the sight of the law that does not justify in the sight of God, for the just shall live by faith (Galatians 3:10-11). "Without faith it is impossible to please Him" (Hebrews 11:6). The Pharisee who "went up to pray" had many good works, but he was destitute of faith in the atoning sacrifice (Luke 18:11-14).

IV. A Testing Command. "Yet lackest thou one thing; sell all that thou hast,... and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven" (Luke 18:22). Those who would have the "eternal life" that is in Christ must be prepared to let everything else go at His bidding. "Treasure in Heaven" is the coveted portion of all those whose heart is right with God. They look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are unseen and eternal. We may possess many good things, and yet lack the one thing needful. One crack in the lantern will leave the pilgrim in darkness; one faulty link will make the chain worthless; one leak in the ship will sink it. If we offend in one point we are guilty of all. The one needful thing is a whole-hearted, unstaggering faith in the Lord Himself.

V. A Sorrowful Result. "When he heard this he was very sorrowful,... and Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful" (Luke 18:23-24). To part with his all, even for the all of Christ was to him a sorrowful bargain, proving that he had more faith in his riches than in the Son of God. No man can serve two masters. Christ gave him the Word of life, but the deceitfulness of riches choked it (Matthew 13:22). "He that trusteth in his riches shall fall" (Proverbs 11:28). One thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen that good part.

VI. A Forcible Application. "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God" (Luke 18:24-30). It is easier for a camel to get unburdened and to crawl through the narrow side gate into the city, and that was no light task. No camel, of itself, could untie the obstructive bundles from its back. No more can the rich free themselves from the burden and love of their riches, but "the things which are impossible with men are possible with God" (Luke 18:27). To sacrifice self-interest for the interests of Christ is to "receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting."

BARTIMEUS.

Luke 18:31-43.

"I longed for light, but all the light I found was second-hand-Reflected thought that had been tossed about for ages past."

-W. Smith.

God, who made the heavens and the earth, through His Son, and who by Him divided the light from the darkness of old, is both able and willing now, through Christ, to open the blinded eyes and minds of men, and to illumine them with the glorious light of Heaven. "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men" (John 1:3-4). About this blind man, observe his-

I. Wretched Condition. He was "blind" and "begging" (Luke 18:35). His eyes were darkened, and his circumstances impoverished; he was utterly destitute. No fellow-mortals could restore to him the joy of saving light. What a picture of us all by nature, with our sin-blinded eyes and impoverished hearts! Satan hath blinded the minds of them that believe not.

II. Anxious Inquiry. "Hearing the multitude pass by he asked what it meant" (Luke 18:36). Although he had lost his eyesight, he had his hearing and his tongue left, and he used them both. If we only put to a proper use the faculties we have, we would find ourselves, perhaps, richer than we imagined. All men have not faith in God, but all men have faith in some one or some thing. There are multitudes still following Christ, and who are willing and ready to lay down their lives for His sake. Have you ever seriously "asked what it means?"

III. Urgent Petition. "He cried, Jesus, Thou Son of David, have mercy on me" (Luke 18:39). And when those in front of him sought to block his way, "he cried so much the more." The more he was rebuked the louder he cried. This is the holy logic of a man conscious of his need, and of a God-sent remedy within his reach. "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by." If the voice of his need doth not reach the ear of His mercy now it may never. To Bartimeus this was his "accepted time," and he took full advantage of it. They are un-Christlike followers of Christ who would seek to drown the voice of the prayer of the needy.

IV. Blessed Privilege. "Jesus asked him, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee?" (Luke 18:40-41). His importunity has prevailed. The Lord Himself invites him to his presence, and with these words, "What wilt thou?" He lays, as it were, all His divine treasures of wealth and power at the feet of this poor blind supplicant. He is now within the reach of all that his heart could wish. This is what every poor, destitute soul finds when they find the favour of the Lord Jesus Christ. "Seek, and ye shall find."

V. Definite Request. "Lord, that I may receive my sight" (Luke 18:41). When we are as conscious of our sinfulness as this man was of his blindness we shall not fail to plead for the one thing needful. He was poor, but he did not plead for wealth; there is something which Christ can give us that is infinitely more precious than silver or gold, and that is eyes to see the Lord Himself as our own personal Saviour and Friend. This is what the blind man saw when his eyes were opened.

VI. Instant Cure. "Immediately he received his sight" (Luke 18:42-43). The Son of God has but to speak and it is done. His word of power is always spoken in answer to faith. Jesus said, "Thy faith hath saved thee." Instant faith brings instant blessing. In receiving his sight, he received it, of course, from the Lord as the gift of His love and the evidence of His almighty power. "Believe, and thou shalt see." Worldly wisdom will never make the blind to see. Jesus is mighty to save.

VII. Practical Gratitude. "He followed Jesus, glorifying God" (Luke 18:43). He did not go back to his miserable "begging." Having received his sight, he lost his right and title as a professional pauper, and become a willing disciple of his Saviour. How are others to believe that we have been healed by Christ if our lives are not glorifying God by following Him in the way? Those who have been delivered from the enemy of sin and blindness are to serve Him without fear, in holiness all the days of their life (Luke 1:74-75). Has your faith saved you?

ZACCHAEUS.

Luke 19:1-10.

"Thou hast made us for Thyself, and our hearts are disquieted until they can find rest in Thee."-St. Augustine.

There is a striking contrast between the case of Bartimeus and that of Zacchaeus. While they were both near Jericho, yet they were found at the extreme ends of the city; the one was sitting on the lowly wayside, the other was perched on a tree; the one was poor, the other was rich; the one sought Jesus for mercy, the other sought to see Jesus; the one had to get up to be saved, the other had to get down. Jesus Christ is able to save to the uttermost heights of society, as well as to the uttermost depths of it. Let us look at his-

I. Social Position. "He was chief among the publicans, and he was rich" (Luke 19:2). He was, perhaps, a contractor, with many tax-gatherers under him, and so had ample opportunity of enriching himself. These Jewish toll-keepers were severely hated by their brethren, because that through this business the Roman government, under whose galling yoke they groaned, being burdened, was strengthened and upheld.

II. Earnest Desire. "He sought to see Jesus, who He was" (Luke 19:3). He not only wished to see Him, he evidently desired to know Him. He was undoubtedly moved by deeper feelings than mere curiosity. The Son of God never gratifies the professional sight-seer. Had there been no longing in his heart for a personal acquaintance with the Christ, the Lord would in all likelihood have passed him by. He who looketh upon the heart hath said, "Thou shalt find Me when thou shalt seek Me with all thine heart" (Deuteronomy 4:29).

III. Twofold Difficulty. "He could not for the press, because he was of little stature" (Luke 19:3). A great crowd and a pair of short legs are really formidable obstacles in the way of seeing. The hindrance was both personal and circumstantial-in himself and in others. Who ever sought the Lord without being confronted with these two classes of difficulties? Our own shortcomings and the callous indifference of others to our spiritual interests are sure to test the sincerity of our desires after Christ.

IV. Fixed Determination. "He ran before, and climbed up into a tree to see Him" (Luke 19:4). The chief of the tax-gathering clan running and climbing a tree like a schoolboy! Who would have thought of it? Ah, when there is real anxiety to know Jesus Christ and the power of His salvation there will be no concern about the "fear of man"-no feeling of shame in such a desperate search. Those who are ashamed to show any excitement over Christ and His cause are utterly unworthy of Him.

V. Unexpected Call. "Jesus looked up and saw him, and said, Make haste and come down, for to-day I must abide at thy house" (Luke 19:5). Zacchaeus sought to see Jesus and to know Him, unaware of the fact that to see Jesus as He ought to be seen implies being seen and known by Him. "Make haste," the Lord is always ready to meet the need of an anxious soul. "To-day I must abide." Why this must? Does not the real heart anxiety of a sinner after Christ always lay a gracious necessity upon Him who came to seek and save that which was lost? (Luke 19:10).

VI. Ready Obedience. "He made haste and came down, and received Him joyfully" (Luke 19:6). His prompt response to the Master's call and his joyful reception of Him surely prove that the publican was both eager and honest in his new search. False professors have always an excuse to make when the personal call of Christ is pressed upon them (Luke 14:18). A hungry man does not need much pressing to eat when suitable and savoury food is set before him. Those who are really anxious to be saved are never very far from the Kingdom.

VII. Instant Salvation. The whole crowd murmured when they saw that He had gone in as the guest of a publican. Perhaps it was to hush their murmurings and justify himself and also the Lord in coming into his house that Zacchaeus "stood up and said, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor," etc. (Luke 19:7-8). But Jesus did not come into his house because "he gave to the poor," etc., but because he was an anxious sinner seeking fellowship with Himself-a lost one needing a Saviour. We are saved, not by our good works, but by the grace of God (Ephesians 2:8). The day that salvation came to his house was the day that Jesus Christ the Son of Man came. "He that hath the Son hath life." "There is none other Name given, whereby we can be saved." Salvation is certain to "as many as receive Him" (John 1:12). THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS.

Luke 19:11-27.

Luke has hung up the keys of this parable outside the door for us. He gives us two reasons why it was given-"because He was nigh Jerusalem, and because they thought that the Kingdom of God should immediately appear." So the parable has reference to the inhabitants of Jerusalem (Jews), and the coming of the King. We shall have a little word about-

I. The King. He is called here "a certain nobleman" (Luke 19:12). This nobleman is the Lord Jesus Christ, and surely He is a Noble-man. He is of high birth, for He was born from above (Luke 1:35). As the Son of Man He is indeed the noblest of men. Was it not David Livingstone who called him "a perfect gentleman?" All his words and works have the nobility of God about them.

II. The Journey. "He went into a far country to receive for Himself a kingdom" (Luke 19:12). Jesus went into the far country when He ascended to the Father, and, as the Son of Man, He is now receiving "for Himself" a kingdom (Daniel 7:13-14). All who now believe in the Lord Jesus Christ are being received by Him, and are being made unto Him a kingdom (Revelation 1:6, R.V.).

III. The Servants (Luke 19:13). These ten servants had delivered to them one pound each, and their commission was plain-"Occupy till I come." They were to occupy His place, and trade with His gift, till He would come again. This part of the parable found its perfect fulfilment in Pentecost, when His servants, gathered together in the upper room, had delivered to them the gift of the Holy Ghost by the Master Himself. This gift was not divided among them, for "it sat upon each of them" (Acts 2:3-4), Each one received his or her pound, with which they were to do business for Him till He came. It is impossible for us to occupy in Christ's Name unless we trade with Christ's gift, living and acting in the power of the Holy Spirit.

IV. The Citizens. "They hated Him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us" (Luke 19:14). They are called "His citizens" because that Jesus Christ was the rightful heir to the throne of David, established in Jerusalem. These citizens are typical of all those who hate Him without a cause, and who, through unbelief and pride of heart, will not submit to His rule, but cry, "Away with Him!"

V. The Return. "When He was returned...He commanded the servants to be called unto Him" (Luke 19:15). The first thing our Lord will do, when He comes again, will be to call His servants together to give an account of how they have used or neglected His gift of the Holy Spirit. This is the judgment-seat before which all we, as His servants, must appear (2 Corinthians 5:10). Through grace we are accepted in Him, but we must labour in the power of the Spirit if we would be "accepted of Him."

VI. The Reward of the Faithful. Salvation is by faith, but the rewards of the coming King will be acccording to our works. There are three classes of servants represented here (Luke 19:16-24). They all had the same gift; the same possibilities were within the reach of each. The first had great faith in his pound, and gained with it other ten. The second had little faith, and gained but five. The third had no faith in it, and gained only the reproach of his Master. The application is plain and heart-searching. Every believer in Christ has the gift of the Holy Ghost brought within his reach, and in the strength and power of this divine money he is to do business for God in the place and Name of his Lord. He does not send us a warfare on our own charges. In this "pound" there was all-sufficient, whereby each receiver may accomplish all the will and work of their absent Master. Those who trade with their own gifts instead of this gift of God will certainly-like this man (Luke 19:23)-be found fruitless at the coming of Christ. If we are working for Christ in our own strength and wisdom we are hiding our Lord's money, and can never be rewarded with His "Well done" (Matthew 25:21).

VII. The Doom of the Unbelieving. Those who "would not that He should reign over them" were to be slain before Him (Luke 19:27). All hatred and unbelief will be judged when He appears. Those who in their hearts and lives have said, "Not this Man," shall one day hear these awful words from the most merciful of lips, "Depart from Me, ye cursed." "For He must reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet" (1 Corinthians 15:25).

CHRIST WEEPING OVER JERUSALEM.

Luke 19:28-48.

"The Son of God was seen Most glorious: in Him all His Father shone Substantially expressed, and in His face Divine compassion visibly appeared."-Milton. In every single ray of white light we are told there are all the colours of the rainbow. In this portion we have a sevenfold revelation of the character of the Lord Jesus Christ.

I. His Wisdom. If the eyes of our Lord had not more light in them than that of ordinary mortals, how could He assure the disciples that they would find a young colt tied at a certain place named (Luke 19:30)? Through faith He spake as one endued with Omniscience. Distance is as nothing in the eyes of God.

II. His Power. All the apology they were to offer on taking away the man's ass was, "The Lord hath need of him " (Luke 19:31-34). With this simple declaration there went forth such an influence from the presence of the absent Christ that no resistance could be offered. He will have a willing people in the day of His power. All who go forth, like these disciples, in His Name, to do His will, cannot fail to have the authority of their Master with them (Matthew 28:18-19).

III. His Humility. "They set Jesus thereon." The King of Glory sitting upon a borrowed ass, and with "their garments upon the colt" (Luke 19:35-36). There was nothing too humiliating for the Son of God, if only the Scriptures might be fulfilled (Zechariah 9:9). He that so humbleth himself will surely be exalted (Php_2:8-9). The pride of man is for ever opposed to the revealed will of God.

IV. His Royal Dignity. "Blessed be the King that cometh in the Name of Jehovah" (Hebrews 5:38). Jesus was a King, although His face was more marred than any man's! He was bedless and penniless; yet His every word and act was stamped with the sovereign majesty of Heaven (Luke 19:37). The glory of His kingly character manifested itself on the holy mount when it burst with overwhelming power through the concealing veil of His flesh, revealing "peace in Heaven, and glory in the highest."

V. His Compassion. "When He beheld the city He wept over it" (Luke 19:41). If we had the eyes and the compassion of Jesus Christ we would be constrained many a time to weep over what others are rejoicing in. Christ as the Son of God and the Redeemer of men can only look upon places and persons in their relationship to Himself. The temple stones may be large and beautiful, but what of that if there be no welcome for Him in His "Father's house" (Luke 19:45). To Him the heart of the city was the heart of the citizen; if this was false and cruel, all else was desolation. "He wept over it." "Greater love hath no man than this." What about that city within our own hearts? What does the sympathetic Saviour see there?

VI. His Faithfulness. It must have been with a very heavy heart that our Lord uttered these solemn words recorded in Luke 19:42-46, for He willeth not the death of any, but rather that they would come to Him and live. But even His tearful compassion does not hinder Him from speaking out these awful words of warning and of doom It is a fearful thing to fall, as an unbeliever, into the hands of the living God. Neither the city, the nation, nor the individual can finally prosper who reject the claims and resist the pleadings of the Lord Jesus Christ. "While ye have the light, believe in the light," for this same Jesus who wept and died shall yet judge the quick and the dead.

VII. His Influence. The chief priests... sought to destroy Him, for all the people were attentive to hear Him" (Luke 19:47-48). To some He was a savour of death, to others of life. The sun which melts the wax will harden the clay. Everything depends on the attitude of our heart to Christ as to whether His influence will melt us unto salvation or harden us for judgment. The preaching of the Cross is either foolishness to us or it is the wisdom of God (1 Corinthians 1:23-24).

PARABLE OF THE HUSBANDMEN.

Luke 20:9-19.

"Dare I trust my heart and voice against the voice of the whole? Yet should the roar of the crowd ever drown the true voice of the soul?"-W. Smith.

It is not only Scotch-like, but it may at times be Christlike, to answer one question by asking another. The chief priests and scribes asked, "Who gave Thee this authority?" Jesus answered by asking, "The baptism of John, was it from Heaven or of men?" They "could not tell," or rather, they would not say, lest they should commit themselves. Neither would He tell them. It is so still. Those who refuse to accept the testimony of His servants shall not know the secret of Christ's authority and power. There must be faith in His Word if we would have revelations of Himself. This parable, like that of the "pounds," has a decided dispensational character.

I. The Vineyard. "A certain man planted a vineyard" (Luke 20:9). This nameless man is intended to represent Jehovah, the Eternal One; the vineyard is the whole house of Israel, whom He hath redeemed for Himself (Jeremiah 2:21); the planting refers to their settlement in the land of promise, where they were carefully nurtured and guarded by the presence of God.

II. The Faithless Husbandmen. These were the proud rulers of the people, who "entreated shamefully" those sent by God to assert His claims upon them as His professing people. They persecuted and slew those servants of God who testified against them (Nehemiah 9:26). Did not the Spirit-filled Stephen fling the same charge in their teeth when he said, "Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted?" These wicked husbandmen, like many in our own day, were willing to take all they could get from God that would enrich themselves, but refused to give Him anything in return.

III. The Divine Dilemma. "What shall I do?" (Luke 20:13). His thankless people have transgressed and rebelled; His warnings and entreaties, through His servants, have been neglected and despised. "What shall I do?" Something new must be done if the Lord of the vineyard is to maintain His rights to the fruits thereof. Shall it be vengeance or mercy? Shall it be instant judgment or a further manifestation of His infinite grace? Shall it be the sacrifice of man for his sins, or a sacrifice from God for the sins of man? "Deliver from going down to the pit, for I have found a ransom."

IV. The Gracious Purpose. "I will send My beloved Son" (Luke 20:13). It may be that when they see Him they will turn away their faces from shame, and confess their sins (Luke 20:13). Instead of opening the flood-gates of wrath against those offenders, He opens the treasures of His heart, and sends forth His only Son. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us" (1 John 4:10).

V. The Fond Expectation. "It may be they will reverence Him when they see Him" (Luke 20:13). What did they see when they saw Him? They saw the invisible yet frequently insulted God, manifest in mortal flesh, as a loving, sin-forgiving Saviour, the wisdom and the power of God. Surely when they behold such an exhibition of His condescension and forbearance they will feel rebuked for their pride and arrogance. It would seem as if the Lord of the vineyard hoped to kill their enmity with His kindness. The mission of the Son of the Highest was to save us from our sins, and to reconcile us to God. "He that honoureth the Son honoureth the Father." To refuse Him reverence is to dishonour the Father who sent Him.

VI. The Deliberate Refusal. "They cast Him out of the vineyard and killed Him" (Luke 20:14-15). They would not have this Man to reign over them. Although they knew him to be "the Heir," yet, in the pride of their hearts, they refused to submit to Him. What better are we than they, in" acknowledging Christ to be the Son of God, if we have not yielded ourselves unto Him? Is our guilt not greater in that we are casting Him out of our hearts and homes; out of our businesses and pleasures daily. To cast Him out of our lives is to cast our lives into eternal bankruptcy and ruin (Luke 20:18).

VII. The Terrible Results. The husbandmen shall be destroyed, and the vineyard given to others (Luke 20:16). Neglected opportunities will bring corresponding judgments. The Word of God was first spoken to the Jews as His people, but they put it far from them, and now the vineyard is given to the Gentiles (Acts 13:46). The blessed privileges offered us now will soon have gone to others. Are we laying hold of them for our eternal profit, or shall they pass, leaving us in the deeper condemnation through our pride and unbelief? "When they heard it they said, "God forbid." But all such "God forbids" from the lips of self-righteous rebels will never in any degree avert the just judgments of an insulted God.

CHRIST AND THE SCEPTICS.

Luke 20:20-40.

"I have a life in Christ to live,

I have a death in Christ to die-

And must I wait till science give

All doubts a full reply?

Nay, rather while the sea of doubt

Is raging wildly round about.

Questioning of life and death and sin,

Let me but creep within

Thy fold, O Christ, and at Thy feet,

Take but the lowest seat."-Sharp. The man is a fool who would suffer himself to be lifted up or cast down according to the length of his own shadow; but not more so than those who would set themselves, in the pride of their heart, against Christ, who is the wisdom of God. The chief priests and the scribes sought to lay hands on Him because He had spoken a parable against them. The light will always be against those who love the darkness (Luke 20:19). We have here two different attempts to ensnare the Lord through His words; but in vain is the snare spread before Him. There is what we might call- I. The Tribute Trap. Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or no? It was-

1. Cunningly Set. All the craft of hypocrisy and wickedness was employed to catch Him in His words. Other men were easily caught in this fashion. These deceivers "feign themselves just men" that they might more easily accomplish their diabolical business. Notice their buttery words: "Master, we know... that Thou teachest the way of God truly" (Luke 20:21). The truth was in their lips, but hypocrisy was in their hearts. As no honey was to be put in the meat-offering, so no flattery could move Him who is the Truth and the Life. They expected a "Yes" or "No" to their pressing question. If he said "Yes," then they would rouse the people against Him. If He said "No," then they would speedily report Him to the Roman officials. It was-

2. Quickly Detected. But He perceived their craftiness, and said, "Why tempt ye Me?" There is no mask thick enough to hide our motives from His all-searching eye. It is a fearful thing to fall as hypocrites into the hands of the Living God. "Show Me a penny," said the penniless Saviour, and as He turned it on His fingers He made that "image and superscription" to bring their wisdom to naught, and to humble their haughty pride. Learn how mighty little things become in His hands. Only a penny, but used of Christ It becomes a witness for Him that all the wisdom of men cannot gainsay. We sometimes say "a penny for your thought," but let us give earnest heed to the thought connected with this penny. "Give to man the things that are man's," and "to God the things that are God's!" If ye are Christ's, then ye are not your own. Ye are bought with a price, therefore give to God the things that are His. Then came- II. The Resurrection Trap (Luke 20:27-40). It was-

1. Set by the Sadducees. This sect denies that there could be any resurrection, because to them it was contrary to reason. These Sadducees are the forefathers of our modern rationalists, who would limit the workings of God to the understanding of sin-blinded mortals. In referring to this woman who had been married seven times, they were presenting their cause in the strongest possible Sight, but their light was only the blackness of darkness of ignorance.

2. Broken by Christ. The truth of God will always escape (like a bird) out of the snare of the fowler. In the world to come the children of God are equal to angels- they don't need marriage to increase their happiness and bliss; they never enter into one another's possessions there, because they "die no more." And as touching the certainty of the resurrection, it is as sure as that the Lord is the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. They are living now, for Jehovah is not the God of the dead, but of the living? He who is our life beyond the grave can easily lift our bodies from the tomb and turn the corruptible into incorruption, and this mortal into immortality. "Thanks be unto God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Have faith in God.

CHRIST'S LAST PASSOVER.

Luke 22:1-23.

"With all His sufferings full in view,

And woes to us unknown,

Forth to the task His Spirit flew,

'Twas love that urged Him on."

-Cowper.

Lammenais says: "All that Christ asked of mankind, wherewith to save them, was a Cross whereon to die." He got it without a grudge. The word "passover" is derived from a verb meaning "to pass by," or "to spare." It was instituted in Egypt in the most solemn and suggestive circumstances (Exod. 12). Not a bone of the paschal lamb was to be broken. See how literally this was fulfilled in "Christ our passover" (John 19:33). This last passover was the final fulfilment of the first. Associated with it here we see-

I. Unreasonable Hate (Luke 22:1-2). In seeking how they might "kill Him," these chief priests and scribes manifested the diabolical enmity of their own hearts against the true character of Jehovah, whom they professed to worship. Little did they think that they were planning how to kill God's "passover Lamb." They hated Him without a cause.

II. Cruel Betrayal (Luke 22:3-6). Satan always finds a suitable instrument for his wicked work in a hypocritical professor. Satan entered Judas because the door of his heart stood open wide to every evil suggestion. The Devil's bait for him was money, because he knew that he loved it, and that at heart he was a thief.

III. Special Provision (Luke 22:7-13). The guest-chamber was appointed by Christ, "a large upper room furnished," to be noted for ever afterwards as a place connected with His death, resurrection, and with Pentecost. The place was there furnished for them, where Christ, God's paschal Lamb, was "made ready" as a sacrifice for the sin of the world.

IV. Sacred Fellowship (Luke 22:14-18). There is intense longing in this desire of Christ to eat the passover with them before He would suffer. The awful shadow of the Cross, falling over His Spirit, seems but to intensify His love for His own. His love was stronger than death; many waters could not quench it. It was a hallowed time when He took the cup, saying, "Divide it among yourselves." The cup of salvation, and also of the "fellowship of His sufferings." Have we taken it?

V. Merciful Substitution (Luke 22:19-20). The language is infinitely tender and unmistakable, "My body given for you," "My blood shed for you." If God is to pass over us in judgment, it must be because the blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin. "When I see the blood, I will pass over you" (Exodus 12:13). The atonement of Christ is the only covering for sin that can enable God righteously to "pass by," justifying the believer in Jesus.

VI. Infallible Prophecy (Luke 22:21-23). "The Son of Man goeth as it was determined" (Luke 22:22). While with wicked hands they slew Him, yet His going was according to the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God (Acts 2:23). In the purpose of God, Christ was the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world" (Revelation 13:8). The unbelief and wickedness of men shall never make void the eternal counsel of Jehovah. "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

GETHSEMANE.

Luke 22:39-54.

"So, as thou wert the seed and not the flower,

Having no form or comeliness in chief,

Sharing thy thought with thy acquaintance grief,

Thou wert despised, rejected in Thine hour

Of loneliness and God triumphant power."-MacDonald.

There is a deep, soul-moving pathos in these words: "He went, as He was wont, to the Mount of Olives." This was Christ's prayer-closet, and this was His last, and for ever memorable visit. The saving interests of a dying world, and the eternal honour of His Holy Name are now to be cast into the crucible. The issues of this night's awful work will affect Heaven, earth, and hell, and stretch out to the uttermost ages of eternity. In a garden the first Adam fell through sin; in a garden the second Adam triumphed through suffering. Gethsemane was to Christ a place of-

I. Solemn Loneliness. "He was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast" (Luke 22:41). Far enough to be beyond their reach of help. He trod the wine-press of atoning suffering alone. On the great day of atonement the High Priest alone had to do the work (Leviticus 16:29-30). "Jesus paid it all." "Nothing in my hand I bring."

II. Prayerful Resignation (Luke 22:42). This woeful cup was enough to crush into nothing an ordinary mortal. Christ knew its terrible contents, for He well knew the holiness of God and the heinousness of sin. The only way this cup could pass from us was through the "nevertheless, not My will," of Jesus Christ.

III. Heavenly Succour. "There appeared an angel strengthening Him" (Luke 22:43). This angel was highly honoured in having a hand in such needful and glorious work. Doubtless he would be remembered for it after the Ascension. Will we not feel like thanking Him when we go to Heaven for strengthening the Redeemer in His way to make atonement for our sins?

IV. Awful Suffering. The agonising prayer and the "drops of blood" tell of a tender, sensitive heart, crushed and bruised in the mortar of love by the weight of hated sin-not His own (2 Corinthians 5:21). But this prayer, with strong crying and tears, was heard (Hebrews 5:7). If sin imputed to Him brought such agony of soul, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

V. Cruel Betrayal (Luke 22:47-48). The kiss of Judas was to the "Man of Sorrows" as the bite of a serpent. This was the first salutation Christ received from man after taking the cup of the curse on his behalf. "Man's inhumanity to man" is as nothing compared with his inhumanity to God. We but give Jesus the Judas kiss when we give Him the lips of profession and deny him a heart of love.

VI. Merciful Miracle (Luke 22:50-51). Even Christ's own unparalleled sufferings did not check His sympathy for the misfortunes of an enemy. "He touched his ear," undoing the revenge of Peter's sword. What self-forgetting love was His! The power that healed the ear could have hurled the whole band of mockers into perdition.

VII. Satanic Power. "This is your hour, and the power of darkness" (Luke 22:52-53). All who oppose Jesus Christ are acting as the agents of the Devil. The triumph of the wicked is short (Job 20:5). Creatures that live in the dark are usually fierce and furious. Walk in the light (John 3:19-21).

PETER'S DENIAL.

Luke 22:54-62.

"Sirs, the significance of this your doubt

Lies in the reason of it; ye do grudge

That those, your lands, should have another Lord.

Ye are not loyal, therefore ye would fain

Your King should bide afar."-Inglelow.

"To be forewarned is to be forearmed." But Peter did not seem to profit anything from the Lord's forewarning that "Satan desired to have him that he might sift him as wheat." It was more than Job got. Christ uses a fan to blow away the chaff, and cleanse the wheat; the Devil uses a sieve to save the chaff and cast out the wheat. Next to the power of Christ dying for us is the power of His praying for us. "I have prayed for thee" (Luke 22:32; John 17:15). Let us note the steps in Peter's downfall.

I. Self Confidence. He said, "Lord, I am ready to go with Thee into prison and to death" (Luke 22:33). Peter thought he was ready now, but the testing time had not yet come; he should have believed the Lord's Word, that his prayer for Him was greatly needed. Peter had not yet learned that "without Him he could do nothing" but faint and fail. "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool" (Proverbs 28:26).

II. The Fear of Man. "Peter followed afar off" (Luke 22:54). Now was Peter's time to "go with Him into prison," but his feet were caught in that snare that is always made by the "fear of man." Acts speak louder than words. Let us beware of imitating Peter's cowardly conduct by refusing to identify ourselves with Christ's cause when others are ruthlessly treating His Word and His work. "Following afar off" is nothing but a half-hearted denial.

III. Companying with the Scornful. "Peter sat down with them" (Luke 22:55). Through the influence of John, Peter was allowed into the open court, but he joined the scoffers and warmed himself at the enemies' fire (John 18:15-18). John doubtless followed Christ into the judgment hall. Following afar off will surely lead to mingling with the ungodly, and joining with them in their unholy mirth. After the prodigal went into the far country he was soon found joining himself to a citizen (Luke 15:15).

IV. Denial. "He denied Him, saying, I know Him not" (Luke 22:56-60), and that three times over, as the Lord had said. The fruit of self-confidence is Christ-denial. Christ is always being condemned when pride sits in the throne of our heart. Let us take care that we don't throw stones at Peter for doing in one day what we ourselves may be doing every day we live-refusing to confess Christ our Lord. Then came his-

V. Repentance. "He went out and wept bitterly" (Luke 22:62). The Lord Jesus Christ, while being led from the judgment hall across the open court to the guard-room, cast such a searching, pitiful, heart-melting look on Peter that wakened his sin-drugged memory, and filled his eyes with the bitter tears of sorrow and penitence. One look of Christ is enough to make the deep sea of the past to yield up its dead. "Peter remembered." An awakened memory will be a blessing or curse, according to our relationship to the Lord Jesus Christ. "If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive" (1 John 1:9).

PILATE AND CHRIST.

Luke 23:1-25.

"Why should I quit my place and go and ask

If other men are working at their task?

And turn away from Thee, O Thou most Holy Light,

To look if other orbs their orbits keep aright

Around their proper sun,

Deserting Thee, and being undone?"-Clough.

Christ was accused of "perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar." A double charge, which was a double-dyed lie (Matthew 22:21). They are for ever found liars who would seek a cause for condemning the Christ. Let us note-

I. Pilate's Privilege. "They led Him unto Pilate" (Luke 23:1). No man can ever be the same after being brought face to face with the saving Son of God. It is a high and merciful honour to have Jesus brought before us, but what will be the issues of our case?

II. Pilate's Question. "Art Thou the King of the Jews?" (Luke 23:3). To this straight question Jesus gives a plain and emphatic answer that Pilate might, if he cared, feel the great responsibility of his present position. "To this end have I been born, and for this cause came I into the world," said the princely "Man of Sorrows" (John 18:36). "What think ye of Christ?" Are we in any doubt as to His kingly character?

III. Pilate's Confession. "I find no fault in this Man" (Luke 23:4). The challenge which Christ threw out in the early part of His ministry still stands unanswered in its holy defiance, "Which of you convinceth Me of sin?" (John 8:46). No guile will ever be found in His mouth. There is no rock like our Rock, even enemies, like Pilate, themselves being witnesses. Infidels in every age have been compelled to make the same confession. Christ could not be an acceptable sacrifice for our sins if there had been any blemish in Him.

IV. Pilate's Evasion. "He sent Him to Herod" (Luke 23:5-12). He would have been glad if Herod could relieve him from giving a final decision on Jesus Christ; but no man was able to save him from this; so the Lord was brought back to him gorgeously robed in mockery! No more can we evade this great question: "What shall I do with Jesus?" He still stands before us as the "despised and rejected," waiting the decision of our hearts. No one can make this decision for us.

V. Pilate's Proposal. "I will chastise Him and release Him" (Luke 23:12-17). What a cowardly suggestion! He will chastise Him, as if He were guilty, to please the people, and release Him to accommodate his own conscience. Surely such conduct betrays "the contradiction of sinners!" Pilate was willing to substitute Jesus for Barabbas, but they would not have this; neither will they have it yet, for the world "loves its own." "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon" (Luke 16:13).

VI. Pilate's Decision. "He gave sentence that it should be as they required: and delivered Jesus to their will" (Luke 23:23-25). They willed His death, although "God willeth not the death of any. " It were better for Pilate and for us that we had never been born than give such a sentence as this. Has not God, through the offer of His Gospel, delivered up Jesus to your will? What is your sentence? Is it that you will reject Him or receive Him? (John 1:12).

CALVARY.

Luke 23:24-48.

"From pain to pain, from woe to woe,

With loving hearts and footsteps slow,

To Calvary with Christ we go...

Was ever grief like His? Was ever sin like ours?"

-Faber.

Who would not rather be Simon the Cyrenian, who was compelled to bear the Cross of Jesus, than the purple-robed Pilate, who, through fear, was compelled to deliver Jesus up to the will of the people? (Luke 23:24-26). But apart from Pilate's dastardly weakness, God has delivered up His Son to the will of the people. And every time we hear the Gospel of Christ we are in our hearts honouring Him or dishonouring Him (John 1:12). The deep and solemn thoughts of this portion may be easily focused at "the place which is called Calvary" (Luke 23:33). It was a-

I. Place of Guilt. "There were two malefactors with Him" (Luke 23:32). Christ was crucified between the thieves, as if He were the greater criminal. The passer-by counted the malefactors as one, two, three. Truly He was "numbered with the transgressors." Yes; He bare the sins of many.

II. Place of Compassion. Jesus said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). What a prayer from a thorn-crowned sufferer! What a revelation of the love and mercy of God, welling up through the breaking heart of Christ, His Son, from the proud, guilty sons of men! He loved His enemies, and blessed them that cursed Him (Acts 7:59).

III. Place of Derision. "The rulers derided Him,.... the soldiers mocked Him" (Luke 23:35-37). The fact that he did "save others" did not in any way lessen their enmity or modify their wrath, but rather intensified their diabolical rage. He could not "save Himself" because He came for the very purpose of giving Himself a ransom for many.

IV. Place of Testimony. "In Greek, Latin, and Hebrew" (Luke 23:38) these words were written over Him, This is the King of the Jews. Although written and read in mockery and disdain, these words were absolutely true; although attributed to the irony of Pilate, they were in very truth the testimony of the Spirit of God. They had crucified their King, their Messiah, the Son of the Highest. Calvary reveals the natural enmity of the human heart against the image of God.

V. Place of Salvation. "To-day shalt thou be with Me in paradise" (Luke 23:40-43). This penitent thief was the first to enter paradise through the blood of the Lamb. The sum of Christ's redemption work is found in these two little words, "with Me." This dying malefactor was reconciled to God through the death of His Son. Those who are with Him now in Spirit and in life will be with Him hereafter in transforming power (1 John 3:2).

VI. Place of Miracle. "The sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst" (Luke 23:44-45). The rending of the veil and the obscuring of the sun were outstanding symbols of the goodness and the severity of God as embodied in the Cross of Christ. The darkness declares His severity against sin, the torn veil indicates a God-made way, through the sufferings of Christ, into His own presence (Hebrews 10:20).

VII. Place of Death. "He gave up the ghost" (Luke 23:46). He became obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross. A death that has brought life and immortality to light; that has made peace with God, and that still makes sinful men "smite their breasts" in the beholding of it (Luke 23:48); a death that puts our sins away, and is the death of death.

"Calvary! O Calvary! All Thy agony for me!"

RESURRECTION WONDERS.

Luke 24:1-27.

"What is left for us, save in growth of soul to rise....

From the gift, looking to the Giver,

And from the cistern to the river,

And from the finite to the Infinity,

And from man's dust to God's Divinity."-Browning. The soldiers made His grave with the graves of the wicked who were crucified with Him, but He was "with the rich in His death," that the Scripture might be fulfilled (Isaiah 53:9), for Joseph, a rich counsellor, begged the body, and buried it in his own new tomb. Christ offered Himself a sacrifice unto God, so His body was precious to Him, and like the ashes of the burnt-offering of old, must be "carried forth into a clean place" (Leviticus 6:11). It is said that there are seven wonders in the world, but we have seven wonders in this chapter. A-

I. Wonderful Stone. "They found the stone rolled away" (Luke 24:2). This stone, which was sealed with Pilate's seal, and had Roman soldiers set apart to watch it, yet it is rolled away (Matthew 27:27-66). The great block-stones rolled in the way of Christ and His cause by the enemies of God are easily removed when the hands of the "Angel of the Lord" are laid upon them (Matthew 28:2). Who shall be able to stand when He appeareth?

II. Wonderful Grave. "They found not the body of the Lord Jesus" (Luke 24:3). Here Jesus was buried; now the tomb is empty. There lies the linen that wrapped Him, in the same place and in the same form as when the body was within it; but He is gone. It was quite clear from the position of the clothes that no one had stolen Him away. "O grave, where is thy victory?"

III. Wonderful Vision. "Behold two men stood by them in shining garments" (Luke 24:4). In following Jesus into the tomb, they were privileged to see the glorified ones. Every place, even the dark and lonesome grave, is hallowed and illumined when Jesus has been there. The glory of the resurrection life is first seen in the grave of Jesus. To be buried with Christ is to be raised with Him in newness of life (Romans 6:4).

IV. Wonderful Message. "He is not here; He is risen" (Luke 24:5-8). "He is not here"-all the powers of earth and hell have failed to keep Him. "He is risen"- all the authority of Heaven has been given Him. These angels remembered the words that Jesus had spoken, while the disciples had forgotten them (Luke 24:6). It is easy to forget what we do not believe.

V. Wonderful Incredulity. "They believed them not" (Luke 24:10-11). The Lord Jesus Himself had told them that He would be raised again on the third day (Matthew 17:23). Now the two women declare to them that the grave was empty, yet they "believed not." The truth about the resurrection of Christ is soul-resurrecting truth; men are always slow to believe it.

VI. Wonderful Conversation. "They talked together" (Luke 24:13-17). As they "communed, Jesus Himself drew near," for the Lord delights to hearken and hear when they that fear the Lord speak one to another (Malachi 3:16). No scientists were ever more interested in any discovery than these two men were in the report that "Jesus is risen." How could it be otherwise, when, so to speak, the whole of their capital for time and eternity was sunk in this business.

VII. Wonderful Stranger. "Art Thou only a Stranger?" (Luke 24:15-27). "Only a Stranger!" How suggestive these words must have been to Him who had been "wounded in the house of His friends," but how comforting to hear Himself spoken of as "a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people." Yet this "Stranger" rebuked them for their foolishness in not believing "all that the prophets had spoken;" and beginning at Moses-where the "higher critics" make shipwreck-He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. He who was the Truth could never sanction a falsehood. He delights to reveal Himself to the seeking ones. "Seek, and ye shall find." THE ASCENDED LORD

Luke 24:50-53; Acts 1:4-11

"He led them out as far as to Bethany." From Bethany He started on His journey to the Cross of shame; from there also He starts on His journey to the Crown of glory. Here the disciples witnessed their Lord slowly rising up before their eyes. While His body was gradually ascending into the Heavens, He "lifted His hands and blessed them," and as He blessed He slowly vanished into the cloud that carried Him into Heaven. Do we wonder that after He was gone they still stood "gazing up into Heaven?" They had scarcely awakened to the fact of His resurrection when they beheld another wonder equally momentous and glorious. "Truly, this was the Son of God." If our worldly hopes are crucified with Christ, we shall have new and brighter hopes in His resurrection and translation to the Father's throne. Associated with the Ascension, we have brought before us some of the "things which accompany salvation" (Hebrews 6:9). Let us give earnest heed to them.

I. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. "Ye shall be baptised with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 1:5-8). Jesus died for our sins, and rose again for our justification, and ascended for our enduement with the power of the Holy Ghost. The power of the Holy Spirit upon His disciples was the witness that Christ, the Crucified One, was now in the presence of the Father (John 16:7). These early and true-hearted followers did not believe, as the great majority of modern Christians do, that the fruit of Christ's death was the sum of salvation; they waited, and received the fruit of His Ascension-the baptism of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:4). "Did ye receive the Holy Ghost when ye believed?" (Acts 19:2, R.V.).

II. Witnessing for Christ. "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me," etc. (Acts 1:8). So faithful were these Spirit-filled disciples that in a short time they had "filled Jerusalem with the doctrine" (Acts 5:28). The power of the Spirit was with them, so we read that "with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (chap. Luke 4:33). We are unauthorised witnesses for Christ unless we have been "endued with power from on high." Our teaching and preaching will be but "sounding brass" unless we are "filled with the Holy Ghost"-just a sounding trumpet; no divine articulating voice. That we may be true witnesses for Him, let us receive the "promise of the Father" as well as the promise of the Son.

III. The Hope of His Coming Again. "This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go" (Luke 24:11). To say, as some do, that the coming of the Holy Spirit was the coming of "this same Jesus" is not only a denial of the personality of the Spirit, and an insult to common sense, but also a wilful perversion of the Word of God. It looks, says the author of "The Coming Kingdom of God," as if some men so hated the thought of a returning personal Christ that they are prepared to believe any absurdity rather than accept it.. "The Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout" (1 Thessalonians 4:16). This is the hope of the Church of God, which is being presently called out (ekklesia) as a witness to His Name. This is the Bride for which Christ has promised to come and "receive unto Himself" (John 14). As soon as the Lord was out of sight the disciples were taught to believe in and to look for His coming again. This is the hope that cheers in service and purifies the life (1 John 3:3).

John

CHRIST, THE LIFE AND LIGHT OF MEN.

John 1:1-5.

"He who from the Father forth was sent,

Came the true Light, light to our hearts to bring,

The Word of God-the telling of His thoughts;

The Light of God-the making visible;

The far-transcending glory brought

In human form with man to dwell."-Macdonald. The Gospel of John has been well called "the Gospel of Eternity," for it is the Gospel of God, John was a specially prepared vessel for this very honourable ministry. He had been from his youth a beloved apostle. "His head had rested on the Lord's breast, he had stood beside the Cross, had witnessed the Ascension, had cherished till her death the Mother of the Lord, had seen the Jewish dispensation closed and the Holy City overthrown, and to him the beatific visions of the Apocalypse had been granted." The great purpose of this Gospel is very fittingly expressed in chapter John 20:31. "These have been written that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye may have life in His Name." All the keywords of his Gospel are found in this verse. The opening words of this chapter are among the most profound ever penned by the hand of man. They reveal a three-fold relationship of the Lord Jesus Christ in His-

I. Relationship to God. He is called the Word, the "Logos." Christ Himself is the uttered speech and thought of God. He is the visible expression of the invisible God. "For the life which was with the Father was manifested unto us" (1 John 1:2). This Word was in the beginning. "The Lord possessed Me in the beginning of His ways...I was daily His delight" (Proverbs 8:22-30). The Word was with God. Yea, more, the Word was God. Man's finite mind cannot grasp the mystery of the Trinity, but the devout believer can bow and adore. That He who was in the form of God, and thought it not robbery to be equal with God, should make Himself of no reputation, taking upon Him the form of a servant, and dying on a Cross for the sin of the world, is a mystery of grace that can only be fathomed by the mystery of the Trinity.

II. Relationship to Creation. "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:3). Paul taught the same doctrine, "God... created all things by Jesus Christ" (Ephesians 3:9) It pleased God to bring the old creation into being through the instrumentality of His Son; it has also pleased Him that the new creation should be "in Christ Jesus." By Him He made the worlds (Hebrews 1:2), and by Him He seeks also to redeem this world lost in sin. He by whom God made all things has also made peace by the Blood of His Cross. The Lord Jesus Christ as the Word of God holds the same position towards the new creation as He did to the old. "Without Him was not any thing made." Without Him God did nothing, so without Him we can do nothing. All things were created by Him and for Him, and by Him all things consist or hold together. He is the centre and support of all, as well as the Maker. "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power; for Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11). If all things were created for His pleasure, surely He shall see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied.

III. Relationship to Men. "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men." Why is the Life spoken of as the light of men, and not of creation? He has made the Light of the material universe, but He is the Light of men. Man is something distinct from and superior to other created things. He is a personality that needs the Divine Personality to meet his every want. "In Him was life." The source of life was in Him, and God, in giving us His Son hath given to us eternal life (1 John 5:11). The life manifested in Christ Jesus is the true light which should lighten every man coming into the world. I am come that they might have life. Christ as the Word of God is that living bread which came down from Heaven, that a man may eat and not die. Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God. Then observe- 1. What this light is-"The life was the light."

2. Where this light shines-"The light shineth in darkness." Christ as the Light did not shine on the darkness of the world, but in the darkness. He was made flesh, and dwelt among us. His own words are, "I am come a light into the world" (John 12:46). The purpose of the light is to overcome the darkness. The centre of this darkness is the human heart. The God who commanded light to shine out of darkness is He who hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of God (2 Corinthians 4:6).

3. The effect of its shining-"The darkness comprehended it not." Two words are used in the Revised Version-one in the text and the other in the margin- which if taken separately bring out the twofold result of this shining of the true light.

(1) The darkness apprehended it not. The darkness of wilful unbelief remained unconscious of the dawning of this new day-"they knew not the time of their visitation" (Luke 19:42-44).

(2) The darkness overcame it not (R.V., margin). Thank God, that in the case of many the darkness of sin and fear was not able to overcome or resist the bright shining of His truth. No matter how dense the darkness is, it cannot in any way overcome the purity or purpose of the light. The light shines on, but men may condemn themselves by loving the darkness rather than the light (John 3:19).

HOW TO BECOME CHILDREN.

John 1:6-13.

"Thou would'st like wretched man be made

In everything but sin,

That we like Thee might become,

As we unlike have been."-Stennet.

"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John: the same came for a witness." The "True Light" was heralded by a special messenger from Heaven. "Sent from God... for a witness." That is a perfect life which fulfils the purpose of God, although it may be both solitary and brief. It is not necessary that a man should live long, but if his life is not to be a failure it is necessary that he should live to the glory of God. As soon as we become "children of God" by being born anew from above, we enter into that relationship with Him that makes it possible for us to become like John, "a man sent from God... for a witness." Then, how can we become children of God? The answer here is short and simple, "As many as receive Him, to them gives He the right to become children of God" (John 1:12, R.V.). No man has the right to be called a child of God who has not received Him. "God hath made of one blood all nations," but the blood of nations is not the same as the Blood of Christ. Great emphasis is here put upon the Him whom we are to receive. The act of receiving avails only because it brings us into contact with the One.

I. Who Made the World (John 1:10). The world was made by Him. He who made the world can easily remake a human soul. His creative power was manifested, while in the world, by His miraculous works, such as feeding the thousands with a few loaves, and stilling the tempest and the raging waves.

II. Who was in the World (John 1:10). Him who made the world, and who humbled Himself to be born into the world in the likeness of sinful flesh, that He might get into personal touch with man's sins and sorrows. In the world but not of it, among sinners but entirely separated from them, in the world as the visible representative of the invisible God.

III. Who is the True Light (John 1:9). This is the only light that can possibly "lighten every man coming into the world," because this true light is the life of men. Him who is eternally perfect, with all the perfections of eternity. He is the "true Light," the "true Vine," the "true Bread." He is "the Truth." To receive Him is to receive the light of life.

IV. Who was Rejected by His Own. "The world knew Him not, and His own received Him not" (John 1:10-11). They knew Him as the Son of Joseph, but as the Son of God they refused to acknowledge Him Although they lived and moved and had their being in Him, yet they knew Him not. They received with eager ness His daily bounties, but Him they received not. No one could convince Him of sin. No one could find a fault in Him. Yet His own received Him not. The fact that He was first rejected, then accepted by His own kinsfolk is another proof of the divinity of His character. He did the works that none other man could do, and so attested His claims. As many as receive Him must be prepared to suffer reproach with Him.

V. Who has Authority to Make us Children of God. "As many as received Him, to them gave He the right to become children of God" (John 1:12, R.V.). This prerogative is His alone. No church privilege or laying on of hands can give any one the right to become a son of God. The Spirit of adoption is the gift of God (Romans 8:15). There is no other way whereby we can become the children of God but through "faith in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:26). Christ came as the sent one of God, to redeem us, that we might receive the adoption of sons (Galatians 4:4-5). He has the right to adopt because He had the power to redeem. As many as receive Him receive redemption from sin and guilt.

VI. Who has Power to Regenerate the Soul. "Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:13). To become a son of God implies regeneration by the Spirit of God. It is not a natural birth-"not of blood." It cannot be produced by any amount of fleshly energy-"nor of the will of the flesh." Neither can it come by the force of intellectual effort-"nor of the will of man." It is of God, and is God's immediate answer to our faith in His Son Jesus Christ. As many as receive Him are born of God. How shall I put thee among the children? "Receive Him." THE WORD MADE FLESH.

John 1:14-18.

"Who did leave His Father's throne

To assume thy flesh and bone-

Had He life or had He none?

If He had not lived for thee

Thou hadst died most wretchedly,

And two deaths had been thy fee."-Herbert.

"The life of man," says Westcott, "is the knowledge of God. But this knowledge lives and moves. It is not a dead thing, embalmed once for all in phrases." The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us. This is holy ground. Let us approach as Moses did the burning bush. Here we see a-

I. Mysterious Incarnation. "The Word was made flesh." He who was "with God," and who "was God," has suddenly appeared in the likeness of sinful flesh. How would Elijah have felt if that "still small voice" that spoke so clearly to his heart had mysteriously appeared in the form of flesh and bone? Christ as the Word could not be seen, and the flesh as such could not be heard, but the "Word made flesh" could be both seen and heard. The flesh without the living Word has no message or virtue in it for the sins and sores of this needy world. The union of the Word and the flesh is as much a mystery as the unity of the Trinity. Great is the mystery of godliness: God manifest in the flesh. It was all of grace that Christ took on Him the seed of Abraham instead of the nature of angels. The mystery of the Incarnation is the mystery of grace.

II. Profound Humiliation. "And dwelt among us." It was not a hurried greeting, like an angel's visit. It was the voluntary adoption of Himself into the family of humanity. God, who dwelt in the miraculous "pillar of cloud," and tabernacled with Israel in the wilderness, has now humbled Himself to take the common form of sinful men, and dwell among them. What a stoop, the image of God taking the likeness of sinful flesh.

III. Divine Manifestation. "No man hath seen God at any time: the only begotten Son, ... He hath declared Him" (John 1:18). He who was "in the bosom of the Father" was well fitted to make such an declaration. In the life of Jesus Christ the character of the "King eternal, immortal, and invisible, . . . whom no man hath seen or can see," hath been graciously manifested. As "no one knoweth the Son save the Father, so neither doth any one know the Father save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal Him" (Matthew 11:27). It takes God the Father to fully apprehend the greatness of the character of God the Son. It takes God the Son to give a perfect declaration of God the Father, and it takes God the Holy Ghost to make man capable of receiving and enjoying such a manifestation. What a revelation is this? "I have manifested Thy Name unto the men which Thou gavest Me out of the world" (John 17:6).

IV. Provided Salvation. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us... full of Grace and Truth" (John 1:14). "Grace and Truth came by Jesus Christ" (John 1:17). The grace of Jesus Christ is the winsomeness and kindness of God, and He is "full" of it. The grace of God which bringeth salvation to all men, hath appeared in the person of His Son. But this grace has not come at the sacrifice of truth, for it is "grace and truth" that here meet together. It is in Him that righteousness and peace kiss each other, like two pure minded lovers (Psalms 85:10). Although salvation comes to us as a ministry of grace, it is at the same time "the ministration of righteousness," through Christ Jesus (2 Corinthians 3:9). In Him God is just in justifying the unjust who believe in Jesus Christ His Son. We should ever remember that it is the grace of the infinite and eternal God that has come to us by Jesus Christ.

V. Blessed Testimony. "We beheld His glory, . . . and of His fullness we all received" (John 1:14-16, R.V.) A wonderful vision-"His glory." A wonderful possession -"Of His fullness." They saw His glory on the mount of transformation. But this outward manifestation was only the visible expression of the inward glory of His grace, in coming forth to suffer at Jerusalem for the sin of the world. It is a great sight to behold the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, the glory of the only begotten of the Father. Those whose eyes are opened thus to see His glory have hearts prepared to receive of His fullness. His fullness is the fullness of Divine riches, which axe unsearchable. It was after that Joseph's brethren beheld his glory that they were privileged to receive of His fullness. It was after the disciples had seen the glory of His resurrection that they received of the fullness of the Pentecostal gift. It is when we have seen the glory of His grace that we seek after the fullness of His salvation. The glory of Christ is the glory of grace. Who can fathom it? Who has ever yet seen the horizon of its glory? This is a glory that can yet be seen. This is a fullness of which we may yet receive. Have you seen His glory? Are you being satisfied with His fullness?

JOHN'S TESTIMONY OF CHRIST.

John 1:29-34.

"Who follows in His train?

Who best can drink His cup of woe

Triumphant over pain;

Who patient bears His cross below,

He follows in His train."-Heber.

"Coming events cast their shadows before them." The coming of the solitary and suffering Christ was foreshadowed by the appearing of the solitary and suffering Baptist. John's confession of himself prepared the way for his testimony of his Lord: "I am not the Christ;" "I am not Elias." "I am the voice of Him who is the Word of God," crying, "Make straight the way of the Lord" (John 1:19-23). It is needful that we should know ourselves if we would bear a true testimony for Christ. He who said, "I can do all things through Christ, which strengthened me," also said, "In me, that is, in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing." In these verses John tells us seven things about the Lord Jesus Christ, unto which we may well give heed. Observe that-

I. He is the Lamb of God (John 1:29). God's chosen Lamb to bear away the sin of the world, to which all the sacrifices of the old dispensation pointed. It was then "a lamb for an house," it is now a Lamb for a world (1 John 2:2). The Lamb of God was God's manifestation of his own meekness and submissiveness to the awful necessity of Divine suffering for the atonement of sin. This is the Lamb who, in the purpose of God, was "slain from the foundation of the world" (Revelation 13:8). If it was needful that "your lamb shall be without blemish," it is certainly so of His. The Blood of Christ shed upon the Cross is a token to the whole world of God's willingness to "pass over," in forgiving grace, all who believe in Him (Exod. 12; 1 John 4:10).

II. He was Before Me (John 1:30). Yes, a long time before John, for He is "before all things." Although John was conscious that he was the forerunner of Christ, he was conscious also of the deeper truth that Christ was before him, as a father is before his son. John's ministry was of God's appointment, but only because of the greater ministry of His Son. It is easy for us to believe that Christ was before us, but how easy it also is for us to forget that we are called to be His servants, by virtue of this fact.

III. He is Preferred Before Me (John 1:30). "A man which is become before me (R.V.). In all things He must have the pre-eminence. The Lamb of God must ever stand in the front of all our purposes, as He does in the forefront of all God's plans and purposes. When a servant of Christ becomes more anxious to get himself than his Master into the place of eminence before the people, he has begun to play the traitor. God prefers His Son above all His servants, therefore let not the servant insult Him by preferring himself.

IV. He would be Made Manifest to Israel (John 1:31). The Paschal lamb was laid up on the tenth day of the month, and manifested on the fourteenth (Exod. 12). There were three stages in the manifestation of the Lamb of God: (1) His Baptism; (2) His Transfiguration; (3) His Crucifixion. In the first we have the proof of His Divine mission; in the second we have a revelation of His blameless character as a Lamb; in the third we have the accomplishment of His substitutionary work as a sinoffering.

V. He is the Anointed One. "I saw the Spirit descending from Heaven like a dove, and it abode upon Him" (John 1:32). The dove-like Spirit came from an "opened Heaven," and was accompanied with the assuring voice: "Thou art My beloved Son" (Matt. 3; Luke 3). Him did God the Father seal unto that day of redemption, accomplished on Calvary's Cross. With the Holy Spirit there came the Divine attesting voice. Whenever the holy anointing comes, the voice of God must be distinctly heard. With Pentecost came the tongues of fire. Every baptism of the Holy Spirit will be followed with the testimony of God. "Ye shall be witnesses unto me when the power of the Holy Ghost is come upon you" (Acts 1:8).

VI. He is the Baptiser with the Holy Ghost. "Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending... the same is He which baptiseth with the Holy Ghost" (John 1:33). John bears emphatic witness to the two great aspects of Christ's work: (1) He shall take away sin; (2) He shall baptise with the Holy Ghost. The one is the correlative of the other. We have the same ground for expecting Christ to baptise us with the Holy Ghost as that He should take away our sins. Surely these are two distinct experiences, and ought to be definitely enjoyed by each believer in Jesus. Pentecost is the counterpart of Calvary.

VII. He is the Son of God. "I have seen and have borne witness that this is the Son of God" (John 1:34, R.V.). As the Lamb, He put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself; as the Son, He is almighty to save. John was a man sent from God, that He might bear witness that He is the Son of God, so that Israel, as a nation, may recognise Him as the promised Messiah. It was as "the Son of God" that Satan tempted Him in the wilderness. Because He is the Son of God, with power, He is well able to fulfil every promise He has made. "If ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins" (John 8:24). THE FIRST DISCIPLES.

John 1:35-42. The perfect way is hard to flesh,

It is not hard to love:

If thou wert sick for want of God,

How swiftly wouldst thou move.

Be docile to thine unseen Guide;

Love Him as He loves thee;

Faith and obedience are enough,

And thou a saint shalt be."-Faber.

"It is safer to obey than to govern," although our own foolish hearts would rather lead than follow. There is something like a halo of glory about these two men, who first ventured to "follow Jesus." It is easy to follow Jesus in a crowd, but in almost every company or family there is need for some one with courage enough to take the initiative, and step out for Christ, and as an example to others. These early disciples became followers of Jesus in much the same way in which disciples are made now. How was that? There was-

I. A Simple Testimony. "John stood and, looking upon Jesus as He walked, he said, Behold the Lamb of God" (John 1:35-36). The preacher was "John." His attitude was, "looking upon Jesus." His subject was "The Lamb of God." His manner was earnest-he "stood," concentrating his whole soul upon the message. He was also practical-"Behold." See him now. It was a short message, but it was a word spoken in season, full of power, and was immediately fruitful.

II. An Act of Faith. "The two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus" (John 1:37). Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God. They heard and they followed. They had been following John, but now, on the testimony of John himself, they leave the servant of Christ and follow his Master. John's desire should be the desire of every herald of the Lord Jesus Christ. "He must increase, I must decrease" (John 3:30). He preached not himself, but Christ the Lamb of God, and so they believed. Their faith was evidenced by their following. It may have cost them much to turn their backs upon their late beloved master, but the sacrifice is readily made for the fellowship of Him who can put away sin. There was no time to delay. The choice had to be made at once, for Jesus "walked," and would soon be out of sight.

III. A Heart-Searching Question. "Jesus turned and said unto them, What seek ye?" (John 1:38). Jesus will test the motives of those who follow Him before He commits Himself to them. What seek ye? Do you expect worldly honour and preference by following Me? Is it some earthly gift from Me, or is it Me ye seek? I am the way, the Truth, and the Life. In following me are you seeking the Way to God, the Truth of God, and the Life of God? What seek ye? Let this question search our own hearts. As professed disciples of Christ, what are the secret motives that animate our Christian life? Are we more anxious to be honoured by Christ than to honour Him? "If any man would follow Me, let him deny himself " (Matthew 16:24).

IV. An Anxious Inquiry. "They said unto Him, Master, where dwellest Thou?" (John 1:38). Perhaps they feel that the Master's question is difficult to answer in full, and if they knew where He abode they might go and have a lengthened interview with Him, so that they could calmly unburden their whole hearts unto Him. This answer reveals the deep sincerity of their souls. They wish to know Him as the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Where dwellest thou? He dwells (spiritually) in the bosom of the Father (John 1:18). and those who would abide with Him will also dwell in God.

V. A Gracious Invitation. "He saith unto them, Come and see." They gladly accepted His invitation, and "came and saw where He dwelt, and abode with Him" (John 1:39). This was a blessed and memorable experience, and so John mentions the very hour of the day-"the tenth hour." "Come and see." What grace and privilege those sweet words convey to their anxious souls. It is the opening of a wide and effectual door into fullness of blessing. How sad for them if they had failed to enter in. Is not this same privilege ours, in a deeper sense? "Come unto Me, all ye who labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28). Believe, and thou shalt see.

VI. A Willing Service. "Andrew findeth his own brother Simon, . . . and he brought him to Jesus" (John 1:40-42). That quiet time of close fellowship with Jesus results in immediate fruit-bearing. "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength." Company ing with Christ leads to clearness of views and boldness of action. He could say, "We have found the Messias." They had sought and found, so their testimony is clear and persuasive. Their work for Him began after they had been with Him. "This is My beloved Son, hear Him" (Matthew 17:5.), then serve Him. Quiet Andrew did a great work when he brought the boisterous Peter to Jesus. Can we be truly following Christ if our lives are not constraining others to follow Him? Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit: so shall ye be My disciples" (John 15:8).

NATHANAEL'S CONVERSION.

John 1:43-51.

"My Master, they have wronged Thee and Thy love!

They only told me I should find the path

A via Dolorosa all the way!

Narrow indeed it is....Oh, why

Should they misrepresent Thy words, and make

'Narrow' synonymous with 'very hard?'

For Thou divinest wisdom, Thou hast said

Thy ways are ways of pleasantness, and all

Thy paths are peace."-F. R. Havergal.

There was a great difference between the manner of the conversion of Nathanael and that of Saul, but the inward change was much the same. See how it came about, for he

I. Heard. "Philip saith unto him, We have found Him of whom Moses and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth" (John 1:45). He heard the joyful tidings from one who had himself been found of the Christ, and satisfied with Him. Philip's Gospel was not an it, but a Him-Him in whom the hope of Israel lay; Him who answers all the predictions of Moses and the prophets, and meets all the needs of a human soul and a perishing world. He heard- but how shall men hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent. All who have found Him are surely able to witness for Him.

II. Questioned. "Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?" (John 1:46). Although Jesus was born in Bethlehem, He was brought up in Nazareth, that He might be called a Nazarene (Matthew 2:23) Nazareth was an insignificant and, perhaps, an infamous town. How could the greatest of all prophets come from such an unlikely place? Like Nicodemus, he was disposed to ask, "How can these things be?" Philip was not inclined to dispute the matter with his thoughtful inquirer, but simply answered, "Come and see." It is wonderful how difficulties melt away when the troubled one gets face to face with the Son of God. The misty clouds of doubt cannot stand when He appeareth, for His words are soul-healing and enlightening beams. It is truly heavenly logic to meet the "How's" of an inquirer after Christ with the "Comes" of the Gospel. How can a man know that Christ is able and willing to save? Come and see.

III. Proved. Nathanael came to Jesus, and when Jesus saw him coming He said of Him, "Behold an Israelite indeed;" and Nathanael said unto Him, "Whence knowest Thou me?" (John 1:47-48). Jesus at once manifested Himself to this honest seeker as the gracious and merciful heart-searcher. "Before Philip called thee, I saw thee." Nathanael has found that "good thing" which did not come out of Nazareth, but out of Heaven. He came and saw for Himself the wisdom and power of God manifested in Jesus the Christ. This guileless seeker very quickly became a joyful finder. It is when the seed falls into an honest heart that it brings forth fruit.

IV. Believed. "Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou?" (John 1:50). The inference is clear that he did believe. What else could he do? The evidence of His Messiahship had been overwhelmingly convicting, as the demonstration made had been entirely with himself. Christ's Divinity was proven by His operating upon His own heart and conscience-not by any outward display of miracle. Moral miracles are the monuments which still attest His Divine power and Godhead. The best way to prove the Divinity and saving power of Jesus Christ is to submit yourself to Him, then you will get a witness within that cannot be silenced.

V. Confessed. "He answered and said, Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God, Thou art the King of Israel" (John 1:49). He believed with his heart, now he makes confession with his mouth. The confession was fearless and full. As the "Son of God" He was mighty to save; as the "King of Israel" entire submission was His due. If we acknowledge Him as Saviour we should also submit to Him as King, for He is both Saviour and Lord. The confession Thomas made was: "My Lord and my God!" Many in those days, as now, believed on Him, who were afraid to confess Him (John 12:42-43). Remember that it is those who confess Him before men that He will confess before His Father in Heaven (Matthew 10:32).

VI. Was Encouraged. "Thou shalt see greater things than these,... ye shall see Heaven open," etc. (John 1:50-51). There is always an "open Heaven" and a blessed "hereafter" for those who so confess Him. It is a glorious and soul-satisfying vision to see an "open Heaven and the messengers of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man." This is the ladder which Jacob saw. There is no other way of communication between a sin-cursed earth and an "open Heaven" but by Him. "I am the Way, no one can come unto the Father but by Me." He is the Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus. Only "angels of God" can do business in this way; the unclean shall not walk therein. Only those whose delight it is to fulfil the purposes of His will can ascend and descend upon this holy way. Have we seen this vision, and are we being encouraged and strengthened in our daily life by it? THE FIRST SIGN.

John 2:1-11.

"In holy books we read how God hath spoken

To holy men in many different ways;

But hath the present world no sign or token?

Is God quite silent in these latter days?

The Word were but a blank, a hollow sound,

If He that spake it were not speaking still,

If all the light and all the shade around

Were aught but issues of the Almighty will."-Coleridge.

"This beginning of His signs did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested His glory" (John 2:11, R.V.). Perhaps this was one of the "greater things" which Jesus promised that Nathanael should see (chap. John 1:50). The "glory" of Jesus, the carpenter, had not yet been seen. There may be some significance in the fact that the first manifestation of "His glory" was on the "third day" of His appearing unto Israel, as the "third day" was to be the day of His greatest sign of all-the resurrection. We shall note the-

I. Occasion of this Sign. "A marriage in Cana." Marriage is, or at least ought to be, a united effort to perfect mutual happiness. But this marriage party did not seek this great blessing without the presence of the Lord, so "Jesus was called and His disciples;" and Jesus went, for He does desire to give His blessing to every lawful attempt after holiness and happiness. Every occasion is holy when Jesus Christ is there, and every holy season is a happy one. Jesus being there, there soon arose that need which He alone could meet: "there was no wine." Something awanting; yes, something for Jesus to do. Wherever He is there must needs be something done that will "manifest His glory." No efforts of men after true happiness can be successful without His gift of infinite grace. His wine is needed to fully satisfy the heart of man. "Thou hast kept the good wine until now." Those who drink of His "wine" are fully conscious that it is the very best that can be got on earth (Isaiah 55:1-2). Christless pleasures are lifeless, and soon wither.

II. Meaning of this Sign. It was the manifestation of the-

1. Glory of His All-sufficient Grace. The first word uttered by Jesus on this great occasion was significant: "Fill." Oh! how characteristic this is of the liberality of His gracious heart. "Fill the water pots." He who is "full of grace" (chap. John 1:14) delights to give fullness of blessing. Less than 130 gallons might have sufficed, but this was to be a manifestation of His grace, so He gives "exceeding abundantly" above all their expectations. Every water jar was filled. He gives as much as we have room for. Open the mouth of thy expectation wide, and He will fill it.

2. Glory of His Transforming Power. "The water was made wine." The first miracle of Moses, by whom the law was given, was to turn water into blood; the first miracle of Him, by whom grace and truth came, was to turn water into wine. The blood speaks of judgment, the wine of fullness of joy. The commonest mercy in life can, by Him, be changed into the richest of blessings. Not only common mercies, but common men, like Peter and John, can He transform by His wonder-working power into vessels made meet for the Master's use. Every soul converted to God has been as definitely and as successfully operated upon by the Lord Jesus Christ as when He turned the water into wine. The performing of this sign was the evidencing of His ability to make all things new. Believe ye that I am able to do this? Present yourselves unto God, that ye may be "transformed by the renewing of your mind" (Romans 12:1-2).

3. Glory of His Superlative Character. "Thou hast kept the good wine until now" (John 2:10). The last state is better than the first. The converted life is better than the purest of unconverted lives, as wine is richer than water. Christ could do nothing else but give "the best," as His words and works are true manifestations of His real character. Christ alone is the Maker of that wine which brings gladness without sorrow. All other wines manufactured by others to cheer the heart of man are but deceptive imitations. Christ gives the best, the best joy, the best peace, the best hope, the best promises, the best friendship, the best reward. Godliness is profitable for the life that now is, as well as that which is to come. If your life has not been changed by the power of Jesus Christ, the best is yet in store for you. O taste and see that the Lord is good. Good as His wine is now, there is yet something better kept for us, when we shall gather at the "marriage of the Lamb" (Revelation 19:7). Thou hast kept the best until now.

CLEANSING THE TEMPLE.

John 2:13-19.

"Are we not holy? Do not start!

It is God's sacred will

To call us temples set apart

His Holy Ghost may fill."-A. Procter.

There is a striking contrast between the scene at the marriage in Cana of Galilee (John 2:1) and that at the passover in the temple of Jerusalem. At the one Christ was an invited guest, at the other He was an unwelcomed stranger, although the temple was His "Father's house." In the one He wrought a miracle of grace, in the other a miracle of judgment. To honour Him is to be blessed, to dishonour Him is to be condemned. The temple is a figure both of the Lord's body and of ours (John 2:21 and 1 Corinthians 6:19). In the light of this we shall examine this miracle of cleansing.

I. The True Character of the Temple. The Lord calls it "My Father's house" (John 2:16). It was identified with the Name of God, and was to be a witness for Him. In it God revealed Himself, and man communed and worshipped. It was the earthly house of the heavenly and eternal King. But now, "know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you." Ye are the temple of the living God, as God hath said, "I will dwell in them" (2 Corinthians 6:16). After the temple at Jerusalem was "left desolate" by the rejection of Christ, the Holy Ghost came down at Pentecost and took possession of one hundred and twenty temples, so that they became witnesses for the Lord Jesus Christ (Acts 1:8).

II. How the Temple was Defiled. It was defiled by those who professed to be the friends of the temple, who used their religion as a cloak, that they might secure worldly gain for themselves. They had a zeal for the House of God, because this brought them personal profit, but they had no zeal for God Himself, or the honour of His Name. It is possible to have a zeal for the House of God (the Church) and yet be defiling the temple of the Holy Ghost all the time. If any man defile this temple, him (as a witness) shall God destroy. There is a religious zeal that is unholy and polluting in the sight of God; it is a zeal kindled on the vain altar of self-love, and fed with the fuel of selfish and worldly ambitions. That Christian life is utterly defiled that is governed by such sordid and debasing motives. To be more concerned about the body, or the forms and ordinances of the Church, than the purpose of the Holy Ghost in the body or Church, is to introduce a kind of traffic into the holy courts that pollutes and brings dishonour upon the House and Name of God. All worldly-mindedness and self-seeking brings moral defilement into that body which is the temple of the Holy Ghost.

III. How Christ is Treated in a Defiled Temple. "The zeal of thine House hath eaten Me up." They were so zealous about the things of the House that the Lord of the House Himself was to them as One who had been devoured and put out of sight. He had not place in all their appointments, no say in anything they did. He was treated as if He had absolutely no claim neither on them nor on the affairs of the House. This is the place the Almighty Redeemer gets in the lives of those who, for gain and honour among men, have allowed the love of the world to eat up their Christlikeness, or those who are so zealous for the things of religion that they have neither time nor desire for real fellowship with Christ Himself. They have a form of godliness, but they deny Him who is the power. O ye zealots for the externals of the Church, what are you doing with Christ?

IV. How the Temple was Cleansed. It was cleansed by the incoming of the Master Himself. It would have been a very long while before these sellers and moneychangers moved in this direction. His presence means purity. The intruders, with their defiling traffic, were "driven out." There is no other remedy for those Christ-dishonouring thoughts and motives, which have been ruling Him out of His own House, and setting up a business in His Name for the honour and glory of self. Who of these wretched usurpers shall be able to stand when He appeareth for He is like a refiner's fire, He shall sit upon the throne of the heart as a refiner and purifier of silver (Malachi 3:1-3). The scourge may be needed, but in the hands of this merciful Purifier it is a scourge of "small cords." It must be a great grief to His heart to see a soul redeemed by His own Blood, that it might become a temple of God, turned into a mere "house of merchandise." Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body and your spirit which are His. Give Christ His rightful place in the temple of the heart, and those selfish and defiling motives, which are like so many unholy traffickers, will quickly be driven out of the life.

V. The Sign of His Authority as a Cleanser. After this "Vanity Fair" had been cleared out of the temple courts, the Jews asked Him, "What sign shewest Thou unto us, seeing that Thou doest these things" (John 2:18). The fact that He was able to drive them all out by the power of His own word and will-for it was not by mere physical force-might have been proof enough of His Divine authority, but He answered, "Destroy this temple (body), and in three days I will raise it up, not build it up (John 2:19-22). His power to rise from the dead is then the evidence of His power to cleanse the temple for the glory of the Father. Is He able now to purge the heart and cleanse the life from every polluting thing? His resurrection is the answer, the sign. This evil generation, or this dispensation of evil, shall have no other sign given to it, but the sign of Jonas the prophet (Matthew 12:39-40). THE NEW BIRTH.

John 3:1-9.

"Open thy bosom, set thy meshes wide,

And let in manhood-let in happiness

Amid the boundless theatre of thought-

From nothing up to God-which makes a man.

-Young. From nothing but darkness and death, up to the light and life of God, is the experience of all who have been born from above. In seeking to understand this most searching truth, as brought before us in these verses, we would endeavour to point out that it is-

I. Taught by the Wisest of Men. The signs which Jesus wrought proved Him to be "a teacher come from God." Right through all His public life we see Him as "a man approved of God, by miracles and wonders." "Never man spake like this man," was the testimony even of His enemies. It was He who is the Wisdom of God that said, "Ye must be born again!" There is no escape from this. Christ said it, and Christ means it.

II. A Necessity to the Kingdom of God. "Except a man be born anew, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (R.V.), "cannot enter into" (John 3:5). By nature we are born spiritually blind, and so cannot see into that sphere where God alone is King; and Satan has so blinded the mind that it is morally impossible for such to enter into it. Any birth or life that is after the will of the flesh is unfit for the Kingdom of God (John 1:13). Everything that sinful man touches is defiled, and nothing that defileth shall enter into this heavenly kingdom. This new kingdom in Christ Jesus can only be peopled by a new creation after His own likeness (2 Corinthians 5:17). The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, it does not consist of mere carnal pleasures, which any unrenewed man can enjoy, but it is righteousness of heart, peace with God, and joy in the Holy Ghost, which no unregenerated one can possibly enjoy. He must be born from above before he can enter into the possessions of those things which are above. The pure in heart shall see God.

III. A Mystery to the Natural Man. How can a man be born when he is old?" Nicodemus, being still a mere natural man, was not able to receive this great spiritual truth; it was foolishness unto him, because he had not that faculty by which he could discern spiritual things (1 Corinthians 2:14). But he was not condemned for the lack of an understanding of it. It is those who love the darkness rather than the light that bring themselves into the condemnation (John 3:19). Nicodemus loved the light of truth, and was an earnest seeker after it. It is the darkness of unbelief that does not comprehend the true light that now shineth (John 1:5). Although a man cannot reason out the mysteries of the new birth, that does not make it any the less needful. He is not asked to explain it, but he is asked to acknowledge his personal need of it. If it were possible for a man to be born again after the flesh fifty times over, that would in no way alter the case; he still needs to be born from above if he is to enter into the kingdom of God.

IV. The Work of the Holy Spirit. "The wind bloweth where it listeth... so is every one that is born of the Spirit" (John 3:8). It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing in the work of regeneration (John 6:63). "That which is born of the flesh is flesh." Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? That which is born of the Spirit is spirit, or is spiritual. By no law of evolution or effort of man can that which is flesh bring forth that which is spirit. Only that which is begotten by the Holy Spirit of God is fit to enter into the Kingdom of God. The second birth, like the second Adam, is from Heaven (1 Corinthians 15:47), and is conceived in the heart by the Holy Ghost. The works of the flesh are in fearful contrast with the fruit of the Spirit (Galatians 5:16-25). He that soweth to the flesh can only reap corruption. The Spirit is sovereign, and, like the wind, moves where He willeth; thou nearest the voice thereof but canst not tell, etc. (R.V.). There is much about the Spirit's manner of working that we cannot tell, but to hear His voice, and to obey His will, is to pass from death into life; for to be spiritually-minded is life and peace (Romans 8:6). The sword of the Spirit is the Word of God, the incorruptible seed which liveth and abideth for ever, and by which we are born again, as soon as that Word is received by faith. Of His own will begat He us with that Word of Truth which brings new life and hope to the believing heart by creating a vital and eternal union with the Son of God. THE WAY INTO LIFE.

John 3:14-21.

"Art builds on sand: the works of pride

And human passion change and fall;

But that which shares the life of God,

With Him surviveth all."-Whittier.

"How can these things be?" said Nicodemus, in answer to Christ's most searching statements regarding the "new birth." The verses indicated above may be taken as our Lord's full and perfect explanation of how a man can be "born again" even when he is old. As such they are of vital significance to every man. They contain the-

I. Revelation of a Great Need. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up" (John 3:14). There was great need for Moses lifting up the serpent in the wilderness, because it was God's remedy for a serpent-poisoned people. So must the Son of Man be lifted up for a sin-poisoned world. The lifting up of the serpent was to attract the eye of the perishing, that they might look and live. There was none other Name under Heaven given among men whereby they could be saved (Acts 4:12).

II. Revelation of Great Love. "God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son" (John 3:16). If ye love them that love you, what thanks have ye, do not even the Gentiles the same? This is not like the love of God, for, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us (Ephesians 2:4). The depth and intensity of God's love can only be measured by the unworthiness of the objects, and the greatness of the Gift. He might have so loved the world as to speak through His Son, but He so loved as to give His Son, and in giving Him-as the "only-begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth"-He gave to the world a perfect remedy for all its sins and sorrows (Romans 8:32). Herein is love, love in the perfection of its nature, and in the greatest possible manifestation of its power.

III. Revelation of Great Suffering. Intense suffering is surely implied in the fact of God giving up His Son unto the death for us all, and in that the Son yielded Himself to be lifted up upon the Cross for the sins of the world (John 8:28). The way of life for fallen man is through the soul agony both of the Father and of the Son. Sin is such a fearful thing that even God Himself cannot deal with it but at the expense of terrible personal suffering. When Nicodemus, puzzled with the doctrine of the "new birth," asked the Lord Jesus Christ, "How can these things be?" his question reached further and deeper than he could possibly conceive of. How can a sinner be transformed into a saint? Through the sufferings of God, through the giving up of His Son, and the shedding of His Blood (Acts 20:28).

IV. Revelation of a Great Purpose. "That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish." "That the world through Him might be saved" (John 3:16-17). This purpose of salvation is first individual, then world-wide, when the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ. The "lifting up" of the Son of Man was the unlocking of the door of hope for a guilty world; it was the breaking forth of the sin-cleansing stream from the opened fountain of almighty grace (Zechariah 13:1). The saving purpose of God is the crowning purpose of the Bible, it towers high above all others, and casts its hallowing shadow over them all. Only "through Him" can salvation come.

V. Revelation of a Great Privilege. Salvation, through being made a new creature, is the greatest possible blessing that the God of infinite love can bestow upon sinful men, and yet He offers it upon the easiest possible terms- "Whosoever believeth in Him." This great salvation is threefold:

1. Deliverance from present condemnation (John 3:18).

2. Deliverance from future destruction (John 3:16).

3. Assurance of present and eternal life (John 3:15-16). Note that it is "he that believeth on Him" that is not condemned. There is no justification before God through believing in our works or our ways, nor in the Church or the Creed. It is our God-given privilege to trust Him whom He hath sent. Behold, now is the accepted time.

VI. The Revelation of a Great Responsibility. "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light" (John 3:19-21). The Son of God has come as the Light and Life of men. Those who love the darkness of spiritual death, rather than the light of spiritual life, will not come to the light, lest their foolish and sinful deeds should be reproved; but he that loves and desires the truth will come to the light as Nicodemus did, even if he should come in the darkness, that his life and deeds may be adjusted with God. He had an honest heart. It is the attitude of the heart toward Christ, as the Light of life, that leads to justification or condemnation. To love the darkness of an unregenerate state, is to prove ourselves unfit for the Kingdom of God. To love the light, as revealed in Christ, is to be more anxious to be right with God than with the opinions of men, or with the thoughts of our own deceitful hearts (Psalms 139:23-24). The true Light now shineth! Are we hating it, or coming to it? This hating, and this coming, is a continual process.

JOHN'S LAST TESTIMONY.

John 3:25-36.

"My son forsake thyself, and thou shalt find Me!

Lord, how often shall I resign myself, and Wherein shall I forsake myself? Always, yea.

Every hour: as well in small things as in great."

-Thos. a Kempis.

John's disciples were evidently grieved at the growing popularity of Jesus (John 3:26). They were, like some modern disciples, more the followers of a man than witnesses for God. Sectarianism, which is just another form of selfishness, always blinds the eyes to the greatness of Christ's mission, and to the real relationship of His servants to Himself. But the Spirit-taught man of the desert knew better than be offended. "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John 3:30). These last words of the Baptist, spoken in justification of the growing power of Jesus Christ, are full of deep significance. They teach us-that

I. All Christian Success comes from God. "A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven" (John 3:27). John is, of course, referring here to the preeminence given to Christ as the Son of Man. "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." The secret of all success in Christian, that is, in spiritual work, lies in the favour of God. Every good gift and perfect boon is from above (James 1:17, R.V.). The lifting-up that is not of God, is doomed to a terrible disappointment.

II. The True Friends of Christ Rejoice in His Exaltation. "The friends of the bridegroom rejoice greatly... this my joy therefore is fulfilled" (John 3:29-30). He that hath the bride (the Church) is the bridegroom (Christ). She is chosen through His grace and redeemed by His blood. John, as the friend of the bridegroom, finds his joy fulfilled in that which honours Him, and brings gladness to his heart. This indeed is true friendship. Did not our Lord say of His disciples, "I have called you friends?" (John 15:15). Have we John's mark of friendship? Do we rejoice because of His voice? Is the cup of our joy filled full because Christ is being honoured, even when we ourselves are being more and more dishonoured in the eyes of men? If our hearts are right with Him, there will be fullness of joy at the increase of Christ and the decrease of self.

III. He that Cometh from Above is Above All (John 3:31). This is emphatically true of Jesus Christ. The source of His existence and the character of His life is from above, and is above all. But this is also true of every one that is born from above-born of God. They are in character and destiny "above all" that is of the world, the flesh, and the Devil. Their affections are set on things above, and they live above the doubts, the darkness, and the uncertainties of the world, and the Christ-dishonouring ways of ungodly men. We must come from above before we can attack successfully all the forces of evil that are from beneath (Ephesians 6:12-13).

IV. To Receive Christ's Testimony is to Honour God. "He that receiveth His testimony hath set to His seal that God is true" (John 3:33-34). "He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God." Not to believe Him and the record given of Him is to make God a liar (1 John 5:10). What was the testimony of Jesus Christ? He declared that "He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many" (Mark 10:45). He came as a servant to reveal the words and will of God, and as a Redeemer to give Himself a sacrifice for sin. To receive His testimony by believing it, and acting on the authority of it, is to set the seal of the whole life upon the truth of God. We have never accepted the word of His salvation until we have really set the sea! of bur personal trust upon it. Let God be true.

V. The Father hath Honoured the Son in Everything. "The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into His hand" (John 3:35). To think of the Saviour of sinners being so loved and honoured by the eternal God and Father is enough to fill every believing heart with unutterable praise and everlasting adoration. "The Father hath shewed Him all things that Himself doeth, and hath committed all judgment unto the Son" (John 5:20-22). "Jesus knew that the Father had given all things into His hands" (John 13:3). "Thou hast given Him power over all flesh" (John 17:2). "Thou hast put all things under His feet...He left nothing that is not put under Him" (Hebrews 2:8). "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth" (Matthew 28:18). "Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end" (Isaiah 9:7). "In Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily" (Colossians 2:9).

VI. To Believe on the Son is to have Everlasting Life (John 3:36). This mighty, God-honoured, all-embracing Name is the only name "given among men whereby we must be saved." There cannot be another such a One that has "power over all flesh to give eternal life" (John 17:2). Eternal life is the gift of Him who has "power over all." Did He not say, "If ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins?" (John 8:24). That He gives eternal life and peace to all who believe in Him is to us the proof of His eternal power and Godhead.

VII. To Disbelieve the Son is to Abide under the Wrath of God. "He that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." At the Cross of Christ the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness (Romans 1:18). Those who know the Gospel, but have not submitted to the Son, are guilty of holding the truth in unrighteousness. God can by no means clear those who are guilty of rejecting the atoning Blood of His Lamb. Outside this Ark of Refuge is to be still beneath the dark cloud of judgment. Jesus only can deliver from the wrath to come (1 Timothy 1:10). Hear ye Him. THE LIVING WATER.

John 4:7-14.

These words of Jesus Christ about the "Living Water, spoken as they were to the sinful Samaritan, are deeper and more lasting than the well of Jacob. This well is unfathomable! This Water is everlasting!

I. The Nature of It. Our Lord calls it "Living Water" (John 4:10). It is living in the sense that it is life-giving. That which Christ gives is not something to keep us alive, but something to make us alive. This water of "grace and truth," which came by Jesus Christ (John 4:1-17), is the water which saves and satisfies (Ephesians 2:8). It is not given merely to refresh, but to regenerate. The elements of eternal light and life are in it.

II. The Source of It. "Thou wouldest have asked of Him, and He would have given thee." He Himself is the disposer of this living water. Unto Him has been "given power over all flesh, that He should give eternal life" (John 17:2). "This is the pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb" (Revelation 22:1). The original source of this grace and truth is the gracious heart of the eternal God, and has been manifested to us in the life and sufferings of the Lamb.

III. The Efficacy of It.

1. It Quenches Thirst. "Whosoever shall drink of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst" (John 4:14). They never thirst for the muddy waters of sin who have drank, and keep drinking, of the water that Christ gives. They shall never thirst for any other drink, neither in this life not in the life which is to come. "They shall not thirst for ever" (Newberry).

2. It Becomes a Spring Within. "The water that I shall give him shall become in him a spring of water" (John 4:14, Newberry). The idea here is that, when any one drinks this water, or, in other words, receives this grace and truth offered in Christ, there is opened up within that one a fountain of new life and blessedness-a secondary source, within the heart, of perennial joy and satisfaction. Every saved soul is a citadel of God, and although constantly besieged by the sins and sorrows of earth, they have an unfailing source of supply within. This fountain flows on for ever, springing up into the ocean of eternal life and praise, in the presence of God and the Lamb.

IV. The Conditions of It. "If thou knewest the gift of God, thou wouldest have asked of Him" (John 4:10). The conditions are knowing and asking. As soon as we know what the Christ has to give us, this knowledge should surely lead to asking and receiving. How will sinners ask of Him the greatest of all gifts, if they do not know that the gift of God is eternal life? They were blessed who knew the joyful sound of the jubilee trumpet, because they believed and received their liberty through it. If thou knewest the gift of God thou wouldest not frequent those streams which have their source in this sin-poisoned world, and which can never reach down to the thirst of a human spirit. This is eternal life to know Him. Ask and ye shall receive.

V. The Freeness of It. "Whosoever drinketh of this water" (John 4:14). "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Revelation 22:17). Christ Himself, as the Fountain of Living Water; is the Gift of God to a world perishing with a thirst that is unquenchable apart from Him. Whosoever, is the choice word of the infinite grace of God. It was among the first and the last words" used in connection with the redemption that is in Christ Jesus (John 3:15-16; Revelation 22:17). Does your soul thirst for these waters as the hart panteth after the water brooks? Then here is your hope: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye" (Isaiah 55:1). It was on the last and greatest day of the feast that Jesus stood and cried, "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink. " THE WOMAN OF SAMARIA.

John 4:1-30.

"A love that gives and takes-that seeth faults,

Not with flaw-seeking eyes like needle-points,

But loving, kindly, ever looks them down

With the overcoming faith of meek forgiveness."-Lowell.

"He must needs go through Samaria." There was a must needs for every word Christ spoke, and for every act that He did. Those Jews, which had "no dealings with the Samaritans," usually avoided going through Samaria when journeying from Judea to Galilee; but Christ's love for sinners constrained Him to go that way. He lived not to please Himself, but to seek and to save the lost. In this He has left us an example that we should follow His steps. Meanwhile let us centre our thoughts on the woman. See her as-

I. A Flagrant Sinner. It is quite clear from John 4:18 that this woman lived in a condition of shameless immorality. She seems to have been the chief among this class of sinners. But Jesus knew when and where to find her. It is no mere chance-work to come into contact with the Son of God. He knoweth the way that we take.

II. An Awakened Questioner. "How is it that Thou... askest of me?" etc. (John 4:9). As soon as she comes into His presence her curiosity is aroused. Whoever could come into touch with Christ without being moved in one way or another. Yet some dare to pronounce Him nothing more than human. This Samaritan knew that He was a Jew, although the Jews, in their hate, declared that He was a Samaritan (John 8:48). It is interesting to note that it was the un-Jewish largeheartedness of Christ that first awakened her interest in Him. This is His chief characteristic as the Saviour of sinners.

III. A Carnal Reasoner. Jesus answered the woman's inquiry with a revelation of Himself, as the Giver of "living water." He sought to make her conscious of her need of the "Gift of God" (John 4:10). Her answer shows that she was in total darkness as to spiritual things. "Sir," she said, "Thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep" (John 4:11). As if this life-giving water was to come out of Jacob's well. But she was not more blind than Nicodemus was when he said, "How can a man be born when he is old?" Through sin, the descent of man from God is so great that, without a miracle of grace he cannot receive the things of the Spirit of God (1 Corinthians 2:14). Carnal reason has never yet understood the Word of God.

IV. A Bewildered Trifler. "Sir, give me this water that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw" (John 4:15), She has now got a faint glimmering that He is not speaking of the water in the well of Jacob; but she has the idea that the water He gives isbut a substitute for that which was in Sychar's Well. So her quick, flippant answer is: Oh, that would be very convenient; just give it me that I may be saved the pain of thirst, and the trouble of carrying it from the well. Her curiosity seems now turned into a sort of half-puzzled spirit of ridicule. As yet she is unfit to receive the Kingdom of God by faith. The deep things of God are never revealed to a frivolous soul. The plough of conviction must be driven deeper down. The seed of the Word must have an honest heart.

V. A Religious Inquirer. The Lord met her flippant reply with these stinging words: "Go, call your husband" (John 4:16-20). This led up to the confession: "Sir, I perceive that Thou art a prophet." All lightness and frivolousness seems now to vanish, and in downright earnestness she asks Him to settle for her that vexed question as to "where men ought to worship." The mental and moral process through which this woman passed is in beautiful harmony with the teaching of all the New Testament, and with present-day Christian experience. The question now with this anxious soul is: Where should I worship? How am I to be put right with God? What must I do to be saved?

VI. An Earnest Listener. Now that the conversation had so wonderfully turned upon the most vital point for a sin-smitten seeking soul, with what eagerness would she drink in the message of light and life from her Saviour's lips. What a message this is (John 4:21-24). "Woman, believe Me... worship the Father in spirit and in truth...God is a Spirit." This was a new revelation to her, and was the death-blow to all her prejudice, self-righteousness, and sectarianism. It was also the opening of a new door of hope for her, in bringing salvation within her reach there and then. "I know that Messias cometh," she said. "When He is come, He will tell us all things." Jesus saith unto her, "I that speak unto thee am He." What a transforming revelation this was 1

VII. A Fearless Testifier. She went and said to the men of the city, "Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?" (John 4:28-30). Yes, this is the Christ, who tells us plainly what we are, and what we need, and who offers to supply that need without money or price (John 4:10). She was not ashamed to own Him, as the revealer of her sins, and the Anointed One of God; and her earnest, faithful testimony was blessed to the salvation of many (John 4:39). She had no commission, but the expulsive power of a new revelation became in her irresistible. We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen. The love of Christ constraineth us.

FAITH: ITS NATURE AND REWARD.

John 4:46-54.

"He, bounteous of thy faith, for not misspent

Is confidence unto the Father lent;

Thy need is sown and rooted for His rain...

Trust on! One day, beyond all thought of praise,

A sunny joy will crown thee with its rays:

Nor other than thy need, thy recompense."-MacDonald.

Some of God's brightest blessings come to us clothed in the dark weeds of mourning. If this nobleman's heart had not been moved through the sickness of his son, he never would have known the healing power of Jesus Christ through faith. Blessed is that sorrow which constrains us to go believingly to the Son of God.

I. An Earnest Request. "When he heard that Jesus was come... he went and besought Him that He would come down and heal his son" (John 4:47). He heard, he went, he besought. This is the workings of an honest heart. His request that Christ would "come down" shows faith in the power of His presence, but perhaps a lack of faith in His promise. The Lord would teach the nobleman and us that His Word is as good as Himself. "The words that I speak unto you are spirit and life." They have the same character as Himself.

II. A Gentle Rebuke. "Jesus said unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe" (John 4:48). "The Jews require a sign" (1 Corinthians 1:22). In this reply, Christ was saying to the nobleman, as it were, Are you not prepared to believe Me just now without seeing signs and wonders wrought by Me? You are prepared to believe that I am the Messiah if I come down and heal your son, who is at the point of death. "Ye will not believe except ye see." There is a faith that is more noble than this. "Believe and thou shalt see." What better are they of our own day, who will not believe except they feel. A lame faith is always on the look out for the crutches of "signs and wonders."

III. A Definite Promise. When the nobleman had said, in effect: Signs or no signs, in Thy mercy, "come down ere my child die," then the Lord offered to his faith the word of healing, "Go thy way, thy son liveth" (John 4:49-50). In giving him His Word He was giving him the "bread of life" both for himself and his son. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God."

IV. A Believing Act. "The man believed the Word... and went his way" (John 4:50). Now that he is prepared to believe Christ, without seeing signs, he is satisfied with His Word of promise, and so went his way, asking for nothing else. He had the blessedness of the man who had not seen, and yet had believed (John 20:29). This is the faith that crowns the Christ with glory and honour. The faith that saves is a faith that acts confidently. To have faith in Christ for anything promised, that is yet unseen, is to have the evidence that that thing is in reality for you (Hebrews 11:1). "He that believeth on the Son hath." We walk by faith, not by sight. What vital importance our Lord always associates with His words. They are "spirit and life." A man is either blessed or doomed, according to his attitude toward them. To believe His testimony is to set to our seal that God is true (John 3:33 . To disbelieve this record is to make God a liar (1 John 5:10)

V. A Confirming Evidence. "As he was going down, his servants met him, saying. Thy son liveth... when?... yesterday at the seventh hour. So the father knew that it was at the self same hour in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth" (John 4:51-53). Is such faith not always confirmed by the providence of God? Had Joshua not to confess, at the end of his eventful life, that "not one thing had failed of all that the Lord had promised?" (Joshua 23:14). Believe and thou shalt see, for in the "self same hour" in which the almighty Redeemer says that expected thing shall be done, it will be done. Those who go in faith, and at His bidding, as this nobleman did, will surely find that He is faithful who hath promised. The assurance of salvation must as certainly follow the act of faith. THE IMPOTENT MAN.

John 5:1-15.

"The Blessed One- He read the tear-stained book of poor men's souls."

-Kingsley. This pool called Bethesda, "House of Mercy," seems to have been the Jerusalem hospital. The fourth verse is left out of the text in the Revised Version. The water was evidently subject to intermittent bubbling, and perhaps possessed many healing virtues. But it is not with those who went into the pool that we have to do, but with the man who did not get in, and yet was healed. Observe his-

I. Sorrowful Condition. "He had an infirmity thirty and eight years" (John 5:5). This infirmity was probably the result of his sin (John 5:14). Like sin itself, it was an old-standing disease. As far as his own ability, or any mere human power was concerned, he was past hope. This house of mercy was bis last shift. The mercy of God is the sinners' only hope.

II. Humble Position. This "certain man was there." "Where? There-among the "blind, halt, withered, waiting." He was not ashamed to take his place among the helpless and the needy. If he had refused to take this self-humbling step he never would have been healed. Pride and shame keep many a one away from the saving touch of Christ. To many God is still saying, "How long will ye refuse to humble yourselves?" It was when the wretched publican took his place as a sinner that he was justified (Luke 18:13).

III. Fruitless Effort. "While I am coming, another steppeth down before me" (John 5:7). He had taken his place among the "impotent folk." Now he is doing the best he can; but his best only ends in failure and disappointment. There are a great many "others," seen and unseen, within and without, that are ready to step down before a soul seeking salvation. This the broken law of God is sure to do. Salvation is not of works, lest any man should boast. His repeated failure makes him more prepared for the saving grace of Jesus Christ.

IV. Merciful Deliverer. "When Jesus saw him lie, and knew... He saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?" (John 5:6). He knoweth the path of those whose spirits have become overwhelmed (Psalms 142:3). This poor man was waiting for a more convenient season, but that was not what he needed. He needed one to save him where he was, and as he was, and that Christ offered to do. Wilt thou be made whole, where you are, just now? When he answered, "Sir, I have no man," etc., it was clear that he did not know to whom he was speaking, for those who are saved by Christ need no other man. Wilt thou that I should make thee whole?

V. Personal Call. "Rise, take up thy bed and walk" (John 5:8). This call must surely have come to him with startling suddenness. He had not walked for "thirty and eight years." But there is always that inexplicable something about the Person and Word of the Lord Jesus Christ that awakens the confident expectation of the diseased and the downcast. It was utterly useless for any other man to say, "Rise and walk." It would only be solemn mockery, but coming from His lips the words were "spirit and life."

VI. Sudden Change. "And immediately the man was made whole" (John 5:9). He believed the word of the Lord, acted on the authority of it, and found in his happy experience that he had received the blessing for which he so much longed. He got it, not by working, striving,' or struggling, but by simply believing. The change wrought in him was both sudden and complete: "immediately... made whole." The cure itself was a mystery, but the fact of it was a certainty-perfect and God-like.

VII. Fearless Testimony. "The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus which had made him whole" (John 5:15). Having met the Lord in the temple (John 5:14), he now confesses Him before men, and before such men as were bitterly opposed to Him. "With the heart man believeth, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation" (Romans 10:10). By grace are we saved through faith, but faith is manifested before men by works (James 2:18). Some refuse to confess Christ because they love the praise of men more than the praise of God (John 12:42-43). To deny Him before men is to be denied by Him before the Father in Heaven (Matthew 10:32-33).

I AND MY FATHER.

John 5:17-43. The Gospel of John is the "Holy of Holies" in the tabernacle of the New Testament. John could no more invent the things taught in this book than he could make a ladder that would reach unto Heaven. John's Gospel is the Gospel of "the Father and the Son," or the Son's relationship to the Father. With the exception of Matthew 11:27, this great theme is almost never touched by the other evangelists. This is "holy ground." Let us approach it, as it were, with humble and unshod feet. From Christ's own lips we learn that-

I. He was Loved by the Father. "The Father loveth the Son, and sheweth Him all things that Himself doeth" (John 5:20). One of the proofs of this love is that He "sheweth Him all things that Himself doeth." The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into His hand (John 3:35). It is the manner of our gracious God to manifest His love by giving (John 3:16).

II. He was Sent by the Father. "The Father Himself hath sent Me" (John 5:37). Christ, as the Son, "proceeded forth, and came from God," but not of Himself, as independent of the Father's desire and purpose (chap. John 8:42). "When the fullness of the time came, God sent forth His Son" (Galatians 4:4, R. V.). What a comfort this thought must have been to Him "in sorrow's lone hour." All Christ's servants are so sent (John 17:18).

III. He Game in His Father's Name. "I am come in My Father's Name" (John 5:43). He came as the Father's representative among men, and because of this "they received Him not." Men whose lives are opposed to God are always ready to receive those who come in their own name (Acts 5:36-37). To come in His Father's Name implied that He also came in His Father's nature (chap. John 14:10).

IV. He Seeks to do the Will of His Father. "I can of myself do nothing...I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent Me" (John 5:30). His own will was so entirely submitted to the will of His Father that He could, or would, do nothing in the strength of it. His whole delight was to do the will of God, because His law was within His heart (Psalms 40:7-8). His meat, the strength of His life, was to do the will of Him that sent Him (chap. John 4:34). With Him it was, "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt," at any cost (Matthew 26:39).

V. He Followeth His Father's Example. "My Father worketh even until now, and I work. The Son can do... what He seeth the Father doing" (John 5:17-19, R.V.). The Father knows no Sabbath in seeking the salvation of the lost, neither does the Son (John 5:16). The eyes of the Son, as a servant, were continually towards the Father, as His Master. The Father was Christ's example, even as Christ is ours.

VI. He Possesses the Father's Prerogative of Life. "As the Father hath life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have life in Himself" (John 5:26). The Father, who hath the life in Himself that is entirely independent of all circumstances, hath bequeathed the like inheritance to the Son, so the Son could say, "As I live by the Father, so he that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me" (chap. John 6:57). Christ, our Life.

VII. He Quickeneth whom the Father Will. "As the Father raiseth up the dead... even so the Son quickeneth whom He will" (John 5:21). Christ is "the resurrection and the life." All that the Father hath given Him, through faith in His Name, are made alive from the dead. Neither the Father nor the Son will be disappointed with the final results of the great redemption.

VIII. He Judgeth in the Father's Stead. "The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son" (John 5:22). He hath given Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man (John 5:27) Because Christ condescended to take upon Him "the likeness of man," God hath appointed Him the Judge of all mankind (Acts 10:42). Either in grace or in judgment every knee shall bow in the Name of Jesus (Php_2:10). All the affairs of the kingdom of grace have been delegated to Him who gave Himself a ransom for all (1 Timothy 2:6; Acts 17:30).

IX. He Claims Equality with the Father. "All may honour the Son, even as they honour the Father (John 5:23, R.V.). He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father. He that hateth Me, hateth My Father also (John 15:23). I and My Father are one. "Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father (1 John 2:23). The life, the character, and work of Jesus Christ were so vitally connected with the life, the character, and work of the Father that, in the estimation of both, they were one. Kiss the Son, and you will find your soul's refuge in the bosom of the Father.

CHRIST AND THE HUNGRY MULTITUDE.

John 6:1-14.

"Wouldst thou go forth to bless? Be sure of thine own ground!

Fix well thy centre first, then draw thy circles round."-Trench. A life centred in God as the basis of operation must be a success, for no enemy will ever be able to break through and cut off this connection. Christ's attitude toward the multitude, as before us here, furnishes us with the principles of all true missionary enterprise. Thousands had followed Him to the other side of the lake, because "they saw the miracles which He did." But Christ's anxiety was to satisfy their need, not to entertain them with wonder-working. He knew that they were hungry, just as He still knows that there are multitudes whose chief necessity is for the Bread of Life. Observe how this is done: He

I. Desires that they should be Fed. "Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?" (John 6:5). His will is that they should be satisfied, and He so wills because He has compassion on the multitude (Matthew 14:14). The infinite tenderness of His heart towards the needy constrains Him to seek their good. He willeth not the death of any. The deepest yearning of His soul is that the hungry crowd should have the Bread of Life offered them, and that "these may eat."

II. Knows where the supply is to come from. "He Himself knew what He would do" (John 6:6). No one is needed to advise Him who is the "Wisdom of God." He knew what He would do, not what He would try to do. He never makes a demand without being prepared to supply all that is requisite for the carrying out of His will. The Lord's purposes are not mere experiments, they are accomplished facts in His mind. He knew what He would do when He set His face like a flint to go up to Jerusalem. He also knew what He would do when He said, "All power is given unto Me, . . . go ye therefore." His servants may be often tried and proven, but, looking to Him, there can be no defeat.

III. Seeks the Thoughtful Interest of His Followers. "Whence shall we buy bread" (John 6:5). He knew Himself what He would do, but He desires that the minds and hearts of His disciples should be exercised about this great and needful business of feeding the hungry multitude. In using this form of the pronoun, we, He was declaring a community of interests between Him and His followers. The true missionary spirit has its source and the secret of its abiding freshness in the constant realisation of this great fact. Is Christ not saying to His Church to-day, "Whence shall we find bread, money, men, that the hungry millions in heathendom may eat and live?" What is the answer? "Lord, Thou knowest." Pray ye the Lord of the harvest.

IV. Makes use of Little Gifts. "There is a lad here with five barley loaves and two small fishes; but what are they among so many?" (John 6:9). "Jesus took the loaves" (John 6:11). They were not too small for Him. He who created the Heavens and the earth knows the true worth of a little thing, when put into His hand. God hath chosen weak things... and things which are despised... that no flesh should glory in His presence (1 Corinthians 1:27-29). "Follow Me," He says, "and I will make you fishers of men." These little things have their value increased immensely by being at His disposal; so is it with every life committed to Him.

V. Himself is all-sufficient for this Emergency. "He gave thanks and distributed... to them... as much as they would" (John 6:11). The source of supply was in Himself, not in what was merely given to Him. It is because of His infinite power and fullness that He is able to use weak things in the manifestation of His riches and glory. He puts the treasure in an earthen vessel that the excellency of the power may be seen to be of God. "Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass" (Psalms 37:5).

VI. Feeds the Hungry through His own Disciples. "He distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down" (John 6:11). Of themselves they could do nothing to meet the necessity of the eager crowd, but, through Him, they could do all that was needed. Our sufficiency is of the Lord. We, like the disciples of old, are greatly privileged in having this heavenly bread committed to us, but, like them, we would be verily guilty if we stored it up, instead of delivering it to the starving multitude for whom it is intended. Freely ye have received, freely give: and give it to those in the back row of heathenism as freely as ye give to those in the front row of the homeland. The manna that was "laid up" instead of used, bred worms and stank. Those given to self-seeking will surely be visited with the worms of pride, discontent, and envy; their Christian character will have an unsavoury breath about it. Give, and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down, and running over.

VII. Provides Enough for All. "As much as they would" (John 6:11). "They gathered and filled twelve baskets (or wallets) with the fragments" (John 6:13). There was abundance in the provision of Christ for every one of them. If any lacked or went away without being perfectly satisfied, the blame was their own. Christ Himself, who is "the Bread of Life," is all-sufficient to satisfy the hunger of all who come to Him (John 6:35). In Himself there is bread enough and to spare for the unfed millions who are still spending their money for that which is not bread (see 1 John 2:2). This standing order of the Lord Jesus Christ, "Give ye them to eat," is being but very partially and timidly obeyed. There is no danger of His resources failing, therefore, as His disciples, let us show our faith in Him by the diligent use of those "goods" which He hath committed unto us for the furtherance of His kingdom and the glory of His Name (Matthew 25:14).

JESUS IN THE SHIP; Or, INSTANT SALVATION.

John 6:16-21.

"Immanuel! God with us in His meekness;

Immanuel? God with us in His might

To bind our wounds, to gift with strength our weakness,

To bring us, redeemed, to the home of light."-Morgan. When Jesus had given the multitude this sign, that He was the "Bread of Life," by feeding them, He had to withdraw to the "mountain Himself alone," as He perceived that their intention was to take Him by force and make Him a king. His crowning day had not yet come. He well knew that they would yet take Him by force and crown Him with the thorns of derision. The disciples waited till even, but as Jesus did not come, and as it was getting late, they entered their boat and made for the other side. The whole scene is full of suggestive meaning. We note-

I. A Conscious Need. Their condition was most painful. "It was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them, and the sea arose by reason of a great wind" (John 6:17-18). A threefold sorrow was theirs: darkness, danger, desertion. Neither the darkness nor the tempest need trouble us if only that wonderful all-comforting Presence is with us. Their sorrowful state resembles that of many now: in darkness, in danger, and Christless, but, worst of all, quite unconscious of their sad condition.

II. A Great Discovery. "They see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship" (John 6:19). This is the greatest discovery the sinful, sorrowful soul of man can make. Jesus, the merciful, in the midst of the darkness: Jesus, the mighty, treading the threatening waves of death beneath His feet; Jesus, the divine, "drawing nigh" unto the distressed. The Christ will surely find His way to those who feel their helplessness, and who long for Him. He knows where the troubled seeking heart is, and how best to reveal Himself to such. He comes to seek and to save the lost.

III. A Comforting Message. "It is I, be not afraid" (John 6:20). It is the prerogative of the Lord Jesus Christ to save from fear. No other creature under Heaven could utter these words without incurring ridicule. This is the language of a conqueror. It is I, be not afraid of the darkness, for I am the Light; be not afraid of death, for I am the Life; be not afraid of your sins, for I am thy Salvation; be not afraid of hell, or of judgment, for I am He who was dead and is alive again for evermore, and have the keys of death and hades. "It is I, be not afraid;" cast all your care upon Me, for I am thy Creator, thy Redeemer and Friend. Into these few words you may read the "Gospel of the grace of God."

IV. A Willing Reception. "Then they willingly received Him into the ship" (John 6:21). They gladly accepted His offer of Himself. What an opportunity this was at such a time! We cannot imagine them refusing the salvation that was offered them in Himself. Yet this is what multitudes are doing every day. It was Him they received, they could not receive His Word and reject Him. Christ and His Word will stand or fall together. They took Him into their ship in distress, and, blessed be His Name, He was quite ready to go. O heart, distressed with doubt and fear, take the Saviour in!

V. An Immediate Result. "Immediately the ship was at the land whither they went" (John 6:21). This language clearly indicates that a miracle of grace was wrought. They were instantaneously saved from their dangerous position, and had the desire of their hearts fully met, by suddenly arriving at their longed-for haven. The receiving of Christ into the heart is always accompanied with deliverance and rest. There is nothing too hard for Him. The saving of His people is the great purpose of His mission. When the disciples got to about the middle of the lake they seemed to be dead beat, but what they could not do Jesus immediately did when He got an entrance into their ship. Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us. Instant salvation is the gift of Him who alone can save to the uttermost. THE IMPERISHABLE MEAT.

John 6:26-29.

"Knowledge is a barren tree, and bare bereft of God."-Morris.

"Though I have all knowledge, and have not love, I am nothing."-Paul.

Many had been following the Lord, but He who looketh upon the heart rebuked them for their mean and selfish motives in doing so. "Ye seek Me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled." To look upon Christ as merely a loaf-providing Saviour was to dishonour Him, and deceive their own souls. Christ did not come to feed men, but to save men. It is not always necessary that a man should live, but it is necessary that he should be saved. He gave them loaves, but He is the Bread of Life. The words of our Lord here are very searching. They reveal a-

I. Disappointing Work. "Labour not for the meat which perisheth." This does not mean that a man should not work for his daily bread, for "he that will not work should not eat." The meat that is worth working for should fulfil the true characteristics and purposes of food, it should meet and satisfy the cravings of hunger. Therefore, do not spend the whole energy of your being labouring for a perishable meat that will never satisfy an imperishable soul. "Wherefore spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which satisfieth not?" (Isaiah 55:2). Give up the disappointing business of attempting to satisfy your soul with earthly goods (Luke 12:19).

II. A Satisfying Work. "Labour... for that meat which abideth unto eternal life" (R.V.). You cannot too earnestly seek this meat, for it is-

1. Suitable. Suitable to your eternal spirit, because the elements of eternity are in it. Christ Himself is that meat: seek Him. "I am the Living Bread: if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live for ever" (John 6:51). The teaching and the work of Jesus Christ are sufficient to meet the whole need of man for time and eternity. Bread is not more suitable to the hungry, or water to the thirsty, than Christ is to the real deep needs of men.

2. Seasonable. This imperishable meat never grows stale. Time can work no change on this. It is the incorruptible provision of the incorruptible God for the incorruptible soul of man. It is as fresh to-day as when it was baken on Calvary, and taken out of the oven of the grave on the resurrection morning. It is seasonable in the early morning of life, at midday, and in the twilight of old age. It is in season every day of the week and every month of the year. In church or in market, in palace or in cot, in prosperity or adversity this heaven-sent food is always fit for use.

3. Satisfying. It is "that meat which endureth." "He that cometh to Me shall never hunger" (John 6:35). Those who eat of this Bread will not seek satisfaction from any other source. Those who are walking in the sunshine have little regard for candles. The pilgrim, who has a fountain of water springing up within his own soul, will not be strongly tempted to stoop at the muddy pools by the dusty highway. This bread is guaranteed to satisfy every eater, for "Him hath God the Father scaled" (John 6:27). God will never put His "hall-mark" upon a counterfeit. That life must be absolutely pure before it can receive His stamp. "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." There is none like Christ to satisfy.

III. How this Work is to be Done. The question is asked, "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" The answer is plain and striking: "This is the work of God, that ye believe on Him whom He hath sent" (John 6:29). Then, to labour for this meat is the labour of faith, for this meat is the gift of God (John 6:27). Faith must work its way to the Person of Christ. Men's faces are usually turned to the world in their search for the bread of satisfaction, but with what fruitless labour? The work of God is not merely that ye believe, but that ye believe "on Him whom He hath sent." The object of your faith must be Him, as the Sent One of God: sent to seek and save the lost. "This is His commandment, that ye should believe on the Name of His Son, Jesus Christ" (1 John 3:23). The work and will of God has not yet been done in you, unless you have "believed on Him." THE TRUE BREAD.

John 6:30-40.

"Unlike philosophy, the Gospel has an ideal life to offer, and not to a few only, but to all."-Jowett. The Jews, in the blindness of their hearts, still clamoured for a sign from Christ, that He was that "meat which endureth unto everlasting life," after He had already fed them with miraculous bread. None are so ill to convince as those who have made up their minds that they will not be convinced. Moses, they said, "gave our fathers bread from Heaven to eat: what dost Thou work?" It is one of the glories of the Gospel that such questionings often lead to fuller revelations of the mysteries of Christ's character. It was so here. Jesus now shows Himself as that Bread from Heaven, of which the manna was a type. Observe the-

I. Source of this Bread. "My Father giveth you the true Bread from Heaven" (John 6:32). It was not Moses who gave you that bread from Heaven, but My Father who now sends Me as His provision for your sinful souls. "I am from above," He said. Every aspect of Christ's character, every act and word all prove that He was from Heaven. This world could not possibly produce such a unique Personality. His parents, His surroundings, or, in fact, anything outside of Himself was utterly powerless to manufacture such Bread as this. "I came down from Heaven" (John 6:38).

II. Form of this Bread. "I am." Christ does not give this Bread, but He is the Bread. "I am the Bread of Life" (John 6:35). "This is the Bread which the Lord hath given you to eat," was said of the manna (Exodus 16:15), and is absolutely true of Him who is the gift of God. Surely the form in which this bread is served to a perishing world is very attractive. What could be more inviting to a weary, hungry soul? He is altogether lovely, and to the hungry heart He is always and everywhere precious. "My flesh is meat indeed" (see Hebrews 10:19-20).

III. Nature of this Bread. It is called (1) the true Bread (John 6:32). The true Bread is that which fully meets and perfectly satisfies all the needs of man. The vain philosophies of worldly wisdom can never do this. None but Christ can satisfy. None other Name has the virtues in it needed for the healing of the sores and sorrows of a sin-smitten soul. He is the true Bread because He satisfies every part of the deep and complex character of man. (2) The Bread of God (John 6:33). Not only does Jesus Christ meet all the hunger of man's heart after God, but He meets all the hunger of God's heart after man. "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Let us adore Him who can both satisfy the heart of God and man (Proverbs 8:22-30). He is also called (3) The Bread of Life (John 6:35). He is the living and the life-giving Bread, so, to come into personal contact with Him by faith is to receive the life eternal.

IV. Purpose of this Bread. To give "life unto the world." The world of unspiritual humanity has many things attractive and useful without Christ, but it has not life. The world needs the Light and Life of Christ before it can become pleasing unto God. The world is hungry at heart for the true Light and the true Bread of satisfaction, but, in unbelief, it will not look beyond itself for these infinite blessings. Whatever men may think or say, God deals with this world as a blind and dead thing, and so in mercy sent His Son as its Light and Life.

V. Way this Bread is to be Taken. Two simple words are here used to express this act of appropriation. "He that cometh to Me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst." To come to Christ, or to believe on Him, is that definite exercise of soul toward Him which makes Jesus Christ and all that He is our own (John 6:35). Then after the soul has received Him by faith it must go on day by day appropriating Him as its daily food. Living by faith in the Son of God. They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength. Eat, O friends and let your soul delight itself in fatness. Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, ye have no life in you. THE PROHIBITED AND THE INVITED.

John 7:32-39.

"God, being so great, great gifts most willingly imparts;

But we continue poor that have such narrow hearts."-Trench. At this great temple feast Jesus twice cried. The first was the cry of rebuke (John 7:28), the second was the cry of pity and compassion (John 7:37). To them, as to many now, Jesus Christ was a great mystery. They knew Him, yet they knew Him not. They could not reconcile the "carpenter's son" with the Son of God. But, nevertheless, Jesus fearlessly declares His unique relationship to the Father, and the purpose of His coming into the world (John 7:29). It was to those "officers" sent by the Pharisees and chief priests to take Him, that this hard, searching statement was made, which we might call-

I. The Prohibition. "Ye shall seek Me, and shall not find Me, and where I am ye cannot come" (John 7:34). He did not say here, "Where I go, ye cannot come," but "Where I am ye cannot come." This could not refer to His bodily presence, for they were now standing together within the precincts of the temple, but to His moral and spiritual attitude toward the Father. Two questions arise here: (1) Where was Jesus that they could not come; and (2) How could they not come where He was.

1. Where they could not come. "Where I am ye cannot come." Then where was He? He was living in the presence of God. He was filled with the love of God. He was rejoicing in the will of God. He was guided by the Spirit of God. He was kept by the power of God. In Spirit this was where He was, and this is where they could not come.

2. Why they could not come. Because of their ignorance. They knew not the Father (John 7:28). Because of their pride. They were self-satisfied. Because of their unbelief. They believed not Him as the true witness from God. So that, in their present condition of mind and heart it was morally impossible for them to come where He was. The lesson for us is very obvious, for the principle at work here is eternal and unchangeable. We cannot come to where Christ is, without possessing the Christ-like nature. Into His holiness, peace, and power, we cannot come, unless we forsake our own thoughts and ways, and yield ourselves entirely in obedience to His Word and will. "Where I am ye cannot come," unless ye come the way that I came, by being "born of God" and baptised of the Holy Spirit.

II. The Invitation. "If any man thirst let him come unto Me" (John 7:37). In your pride and unbelief "ye cannot come," but if you are thirsting for a deeper, truer, holier life, then here is your great opportunity. "Come unto Me and drink." To drink of His truth and Spirit is to come where He is. The self-satisfied cannot come, the thirsty may.

1. The Invited. It is the thirsty who are invited to drink. The invitation is to Himself: "Come unto Me." It is not, "Come to the temple, or to the Church, or to any particular form of worship." Apart from Him, every other source is polluted, every other cistern broken. It is not the gifts of Christ thirsty souls need, so much as Christ Himself. To drink of Him is to receive of His fullness, which alone can quench and satisfy the thirst of a soul after righteousness and God. A thirst for the living God is capacity for Him. Jesus Christ is the only One who ever could honestly challenge the thirsty souls of men to prove Him as all-sufficient to meet their every need.

2. The Promise. "He who believes in Me, from within him, as the Scriptures has said, rivers of living water shall flow" (John 7:37, Weymouth's translation). When we have come into this place of fullness of blessing, then we have come to "where He is." When we believe on Him, as He believed on His Father, then from within us, as from within Him, there will flow rivers of living water, because the Holy Spirit will have free access into the inner life, and full control of the whole being. As good food received into a healthy stomach will manifest itself in vigorous, useful action by sending fresh rivers of life through the entire system, so will it be when the Spirit of Truth is received by an obedient heart. The fountains of the old life will be dried up, and another fountain opened within, which has its source in the Living God, and whose streams are for the healing and salvation of others. "Ye shall not find Me" (John 7:34), said Christ to His fault-finders, for fault-finders shall never find Him in all the true riches of His glorious character. But "he that believeth on Him" shall enter into the blessed fullness of that wondrous life. Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely (Revelation 22:17).

LAW AND GRACE.

John 8:1-11.

"Love seeketh not itself to please,

Nor for itself bath any care;

But for another gives its ease,

And builds a Heaven in hell's despair."-Blake. The law commands us that such should be stoned; but what sayest Thou?" Such was the problem thrust upon Jesus Christ by those Scribes and Pharisees who sought to tempt Him. The law of Moses was certainly more severe than the law of the Romans. Knowing, as they did, the gentleness and graciousness of our Lord, they perhaps thought to compel Him to condemn Himself by opposing the "command of Moses." This incident is intensely critical and instructive, as it brings the claims of the law and the workings of the grace of God face to face in concrete form. We have here then-

I. A Sinner under the Law. That she was a sinner, there was no denying of it, "taken in the very act." That the law condemned her to be stoned to death was another terrible fact that could not be denied (Leviticus 20:10). As far as the law was concerned she was without hope. Where there is guilt the law can do nothing else but condemn. The wages of sin is death. Her accusers were also clamouring for her death. But what about the adulterer? According to the law the adulterer and the adulteress were both to be put to death. Why were they so anxious to get Jesus to condemn her, while her companion in sin, or perhaps the seducer himself, had escaped? Man's guilty prejudice and wilful ignorance totally unfits him, not only from keeping God's law, but from administering bare justice to a fellow-creature with right motives. The accusers of a guilty sinner under the law are a terrible lot- the world, the flesh, and the devil.

II. A Sinner under Grace. The law and truth came by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. The law commands that she should be stoned; "but what sayest Thou?" Note the contrast-the law and Thou. The law is "holy, just, and good," and the law says "condemn;" but what sayest Thou? Canst Thou say "live" when the law says "die?" Christ's manner of treating this question throbs with vital interest to us, as it, in a measure, reveals His own character, in His attitude to the law, to the accusers and to the poor, guilty sinner. There was-

1. Mystery. In answer to this question, "What sayest Thou?" "He stooped down and wrote with His finger on the ground" (John 8:6). He at first said nothing, but He did something. What He wrote no one can tell, but there must be some significance in the fact that at that moment He did stoop down and write. It was a unique position Christ was in. As He came to seek and save the lost, this question, although put so flippantly, would stir His holy soul to its deepest depths. "What sayest Thou?" He could not answer this question fully by saying; He could only do it by dying. His stooping down to write on the ground may be significant of His deep consciousness that spoken words alone could not suffice to convey His answer. He must stoop down to the grave, bearing the sinner's sins, before the guilty could be freely justified in the sight of God. He came... to give His life.

2. Revelation. "So when they continued asking Him, He said, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her" (John 8:7). They saw the ugly mote of uncleanness in the woman's eye, but not the beam of hypocrisy in their own. They were looking only at the woman's sin, but Jesus lifted Himself up and looked at theirs. Their secret sins of unbelief and deceit are as vile in His sight as the woman's sin. Thus the great New Testament principle is introduced here. Jesus came to deal with sin, not this or that sin, but sin as seen by the heart searching eye of God. There are transgressors in thought as well as in deed. Christ came not to set aside the law, but to fulfil it. He Himself, who was "without sin," was put to death by "wicked hands." The words of the Lord Jesus here reveal something of the sinfulness of not having love, even for a sinner caught in sin. With that grace which has come to us in Christ Jesus, there has come also that truth which is in God.

3. Conviction. "And they which heard, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one" (John 8:9). Instead of judging the woman, they find that, in His presence they themselves are being judged. "He taketh the wise in their own craftiness." "Judge not that ye be not judged." They knew that Christ was full of grace, but they overlooked the fact that this grace was yoked with heart-searching truth. He could not cover up the sin of hypocrisy. They "went out" because they had not the courage or manliness enough to face their own sins, even in the presence of the Saviour.

4. Confidence. "Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst" (John 8:9). The convicted accusers fled, but the penitent woman stood her ground. They could not condemn the woman when their own conscience began to condemn themselves. If this woman's heart had not been reached by the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, she, too, would have taken this opportunity of going out after all her accusers had fled, but she willingly lingers in His presence. The love of Christ does not compel, but it constrains.

5. Confession. "Jesus said unto her, Hath no man condemned thee?" She said, "No man, Lord" (John 8:10-11). There was something more in this reply than mere courtesy: "No man, Sir." There was surely adoration: "Lord!" Had she not seen and heard enough to convince her that He was the searcher of hearts, and the Saviour of sinners. "No man, Lord." Where is the man that dare condemn in the Presence of our sin-forgiving Lord. Thank God, the Sinless One, is more approachable than self-righteous sinners.

6. Salvation. "Neither do I condemn thee. Go thy way; from henceforth sin no more" (John 8:11, R.V.). Christ came not to condemn, but to save (John 3:17). She was saved from the condemnation of the law, from the accusations of men, and from the power of sin. She could do nothing to save herself but trust in Him who could save her to the uttermost. Who is He that condemneth? It is Christ that died. "Sin no more." A holy life is to be the evidence of sin forgiven.

CHRIST'S TESTIMONY CONCERNING HIMSELF.

John 8:12-30.

"God hath now sent His living Oracle

Into the world to teach Mis final will."-Milton. The questionings of those sceptical Pharisees constrained our Lord to say many things about Himself which otherwise might have been left unspoken. The Gospel of John would not have been so rich in Christology had these seemingly involuntary gleams of His personal glory not been given. Those unbelieving Jews meant it to damage His character, but God meant it for the fuller revelation of His glorious nature. In these verses the Lord Jesus Christ tells us seven things about Himself that are each full of infinite meaning.

I. He was Not of this World. "I am from above; I am not of this world" (John 8:23). The wisdom, the character, and the motives of Christ could not be the product of "this world." The world by wisdom knew not God. The parentage and all the environments of Christ's upbringing can in no wise explain Him. The only reasonable explanation of His profoundly unique character and mission is that given by Himself: "I am from above;" ye are from beneath. The distance between Christ and ordinary men is that which exists between Heaven and earth, between this world and the presence of God's glory. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

II. He is the Light of the World. "I am the Light of the world, he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12). There is a very close affinity between life and light. The plant that struggles for existence in a dark place will turn to the faintest ray of light for life. So the soul that seeks its life in the light of Jesus Christ will not abide in darkness, but will possess the light of life. The affinity between light and life is not more close and vital than that between faith and salvation. To receive the light of His truth is to enter into the power of His life. The light that the world needs is not in science, or art, or philosophy, but in Christ. "I am the Light of the world." Alas, that men should love the darkness of human reasonings better than the light of divine life! (John 3:19). Christ is the Light of the world, all other lights are but the unsteady sparks of man's kindling that cannot lead to God.

III. The Father was with Him. "I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent Me" (John 8:16). The indomitable courage of the Man, Christ Jesus, may be partly accounted for by this fact-the conscious presence of the Father. "I am not alone." The only time He was alone was that brief, but awful, season when He cried on the Cross, "Why hast Thou forsaken Me?" This is the joyful testimony of the Son to the honour of the Father. "Not alone." The Man of Sorrows had a meat to eat that others knew not of. So may we if we follow in His steps. "Lo, I am with you alway" (Matthew 28:20).

IV. He Spoke the Things which He had Learned from the Father. "I speak to the world those things which I have heard of Him" (John 8:26). "As My Father hath taught Me, I speak these things" (John 8:28). Christ came, not to do His own will, but the will of Him that sent Him. This is the Prophet whom God promised to raise up, and to put His words in His mouth (Deuteronomy 18:18). As the Servant of Jehovah, He was faithful unto death. For just before He went to the Cross He said, "All things that I have heard of My Father I have made known unto you" (John 15:15). To reject the testimony of the Son, is to reject the Word of God the Father. To believe the Son is to believe the Father also. "I and My Father are One."

V. He Always Pleased the Father. "I do always those things that please Him" (John 8:29). The Father Himself testifies to the truth of this. "This is My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." This is one reason why our wayward souls can find repose in Jesus Christ. He who lived and died for us was always pleasing unto God. In Him was no sin, and we who believe are in Him, and accepted in God's Beloved. It is infinitely pleasing to us that our Substitute was infinitely pleasing to God. Thanks be unto Him for this heart-cheering testimony.

VI. To Know Him is to Know the Father. "If ye had known Me, ye should have known My Father also" (John 8:19). The voice and compassion of the invisible God found audible and visible expression in the teaching and sufferings of Jesus Christ His Son (John 1:18). No one can know the Lord Jesus Christ who does not see in Him the image of the Eternal Father. He was sent by Him, that through His suffering for us He might "bring us to God." He brings us into the knowledge of God, into the love and favour of God, and into the very likeness of God.

VII. To Disbelieve Him is to Die in Sin. "If ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins" (John 8:24). This is a heart-searching ray of light from the Son of Righteousness. We dare not trifle with this clear unequivocal testimony of the Son of God. As He came to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself, there is no escape from it, but by faith in Him. "He that believeth not the Son shall not see life" (John 3:3). "If ye believe not that I am He." The emphasis here is not so much on what He says, as what He is. He is the sent One of the Father, speaking His words and doing His works, and, as such, He is the "Light of the world." To believe Him not is to live in darkness and to die in sin. By those words of the Father, spoken by Christ, shall the Christ rejecter be judged at last (John 12:48). See that ye refuse not Him that speaketh from Heaven, for the Lord Jesus Christ has uttered God's last word in this great theme of eternal salvation (Hebrews 12:25).

CHRIST'S HEART-SEARCHING "IFS."

John 8:31-54.

"Life is only bright when it proceedeth

Towards a truer, deeper life above.

Human love is sweetest when it leadeth

To a more Divine and perfect love."-A. Proctor. The word "so" in John 3:16 is a little one, but who has ever yet been able to sound the depth of its meaning? It is like some of our Lord's "ifs" in this chapter, which are brimfulof eternal significance. These are as hinges on which the life of the soul may swing in or out of fellowship with God. Let us examine them. There is-

I. The "If" of Discipleship. "If ye continue in My Word, then are ye My disciples indeed" (John 8:31). True discipleship is the result of abiding in the truth, as revealed to us in Jesus Christ. Persecution is sure to arise because of this word, and many do get offended, and forsake it in theory or in practice (Matthew 13:20-21). To continue not in His Word is to become false-witnesses, and so to forfeit our fellowship with Him, for the soul of Jesus Christ can have no pleasure in the man that draws back from the clear light of His Word (Hebrews 10:38). Peter was a disciple indeed when he boldly preached the Christ whom he once denied.

II. The "If" of Freedom. "If the Son therefore make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). The freedom which the Son of God gives is a freedom that can come from "none other Name under Heaven." It is freedom from the curse of the law (Galatians 3:10); from the guilt of sin (Romans 8:33); from the power of sin (Romans 6:14); from the fear of death (Hebrews 2:15); and the fear of man (Acts 4:18-20). It is the freedom of sons who have liberty of access into the Father's presence. It is possible to use a freedom that does not belong to us, but whom the Son makes free are free indeed.

III. The "If" of Service. "If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham" (John 8:39). "They which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham" (Galatians 3:7). The spiritual children of Abraham show their faith by their works, as he did. Abraham believed God, and his faith was evidenced by his works when he "went out not knowing whither he went," and when he offered up his son Isaac. Those who are the true children of the "Father of the faithful" will do works worthy of their Father. Works of faith are the infallible proofs of a true spiritual descent.

IV. The "If" of Sonship. "If God were your Father ye would love Me" (John 8:42). There is no way to the Father but by the Son (John 14:6). To know the Father, as He is revealed to us in the Son, surely implies that we will sincerely love the Son for so bringing us into such a gracious knowledge of the Father. To call God Father, and ignore the Son is to insult both Father and Son. The evidence of our sonship with God is love to His Son. If God is our Father in a true, practical sense, we will not only supremely love the Lord Jesus Christ, but we will also love every child of God, for "Every one that loveth Him that begat, loveth Him also that is begotten of Him" (1 John 5:1).

V. The "If" of Responsibility. "If I say the truth, why do ye not believe Me" (John 8:46). He did speak the truth, and live it, for no one was able to "convince Him of sin." He spoke the truth about Himself, about His Father, and about the needs and responsibilities of the people (John 8:12-24). They could not deny the truthfulness of His character, or the mercifulness of His mission, yet they did not believe in Him, they did not commit themselves to Him. "Why do ye not believe Me?" Who shall ever be able to justify themselves in their unbelief? Oh, the infinite madness of refusing to believe Him who is the living embodiment of the Eternal Truth! The "why" will have an awfully solemn ring about it, when the unbeliever meets Him at the judgment throne.

VI. The "If" of Assurance. "If a man keep My Word he shall never see death" (John 8:51, R.V.). Eternal life and salvation is in that Word. To keep it is to keep in the antipodes of darkness and death. Death can have no power over that man whose life is hid with Christ in God. To keep His Word is to keep the message Christ brings, and to appropriate its offers to our own personal needs; it is to wrap ourselves in it as a garment, and to abide in it, and so keeping it, are kept by the power of God through faith. The promise is, "He shall never see death." He shall not only "never die" (John 11:26), but never see death. Death is always a painful if not agonising sight. Of course, it does not mean the death of the body that we often see, but that awful death, the eternal penalty of sin and guilt (Romans 6:23), for which we are thankful that we shall never see. If it is such a blessing not to see it, what a horror it must be to be in it. FROM DARKNESS TO LIGHT.

John 9.

"The Light everlasting

Unto the blind is not, but is born of the eye that has vision."

-Longfellow.

It is worthy of note that it was immediately after Jesus was about to be stoned out of His Father's house that He manifested His power as the "Light of the World," by giving a man sight who had been born blind (chap. John 8:59). The leading features of this chapter can be easily gathered up as we consider the story of this blind man. There was-

I. Blindness. "A man blind from his birth" (John 9:1). But this blindness has all the mystery of the origin of sin hanging about it. It was not because he or his parents had sinned in any particularly grievous form that he was born blind, as some of the Jews seemed to teach (Luke 13:2) but "that the works of God should be manifest in him." This man was born blind that the Son of God might have the opportunity of showing forth His divine power and mercy, and also that the wickedness of their own hearts might be revealed. Was not sin originally permitted to enter the world for the same reason-that the wonderful works of God's love and grace should be manifest in the incarnation and crucifixion of His Son? In the same way Lazarus was permitted to die, that the glory of God might be seen in raising him from the dead (John 11:4). It is not so much with the mystery of sin and blindness that we have to do as with the fact.

II. Deliverance. The method of this man's salvation was about as strange and mysterious as was the cause and origin of the disease. His eyes were anointed with clay made by a spittle, and then he was told to "Go, wash in the pool of Siloam" (vv. John 6:7). There was no virtue in the dust, nor in the spittle, nor in the clay formed, nor in the pool, nor in the washing to unseal the eyes of a man born blind, and to beget in him the gift of vision. All these were in themselves "weak things," but the eye-opening power lay in his obedience to the Word of Him who spoke as the "Light of the World." "He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing." The man was not responsible for being born blind, but he was responsible for accepting or rejecting the message of grace and salvation that had come to him by Jesus Christ. If he had despised the means, he would not have been obedient to the Word, and so would have remained in his darkness. The preaching of the Gospel may be like the dust, and the spittle, and the clay to some, but it is not with the preaching, as such, that men have to do, but with Christ's Word of command, that always accompanies such weak things: "Go, wash!" It is when we believe and obey Him, putting His Word to the test by an actual definite committal, that we "come seeing." There is now no excuse for spiritual blindness. "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (chap. John 8:12).

III. Confession. When the neighbours asked him, "How were thine eyes opened?" (for they were thoroughly convinced that they were opened) his answer was simple and honest: "A man called Jesus made clay, anointed mine eyes, and said, Go wash; and I went, I washed, I received" (John 9:8-12). The blind man took no credit to himself in the matter, and is not ashamed to tell out all he knows about it, and that was not much. Like a new-born soul into the Kingdom of God's dear Son, he is so filled with joyous wonder that he is a mystery to himself. How these eyes must have sparkled with delight as he uttered these most significant words: "I went, and I washed, and I received sight." He could only tell of the means used; he could not explain how the miracle was wrought. That part belongs to Him who is the Light of the World. The change produced by the brightness of those once blind eyes was so great that they hardly knew him (John 9:9).

IV. Assurance. "One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see" (John 9:25). He could not, as yet, explain the character of Him who opened his eyes; he knew not whether he was a man who had sinned like others or not (John 9:25); neither could he defend himself by argument against those philosophical, unbelieving Pharisees; but one thing he certainly did know, that a man called Jesus had opened his eyes. There are always those that are so perverse in their minds as to suppose that it must have been some other Jesus, and not Jesus Christ, who performed the wonder. There is no gainsaying the fact when a man's inner eyes have been opened, and when the old things of darkness are passed away, and all things are become new. This is the evidence that a man is in the light of Christ, and that he is a new creature (2 Corinthians 2:17). In this new power of vision he has the witness in himself. There is a joyful ring about this "I know." It is the confidence bom of a blessed experience.

V. Testimony. Although he knew little about the Man who opened his eyes, his faith in Him was very great. When asked what he thought about Him, he at once answered, "He is a prophet" (John 9:17). The man that could work such a miracle on a poor man, without seeking any personal honour or recompense, must have been sent by God. Again, after he had told them how he had been healed, in the warmth of his enthusiasm he added, "Will ye also be His disciples?" (John 9:27). Meanwhile there was to him but one Man in all the world, and that was the Man who opened his eyes. He was determined to know nothing among them but Jesus who opened his eyes. His creed was: "If this man were not of God, He could not have done this great thing" (John 9:33). It is a sure sign that Jesus Christ has become a blessed Master to that one who is most anxious that others should also become His disciples. The Name of Jesus has little power in our lives if it does not inspire us, fearlessly, to plead with others to trust and follow Him.

VI. Persecution. "They reviled him" (John 9:28). "They cast him out" (John 9:34). They could not bear his testimony, so they reproached and mocked him. They could not bear his company, so they cast him out of the synagogue. He speedily gained the marks of a "blessed man" in being "hated" and "separated." For our Lord Himself hath said, "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you... and separate you from their company... for the Son of Man's sake" (Luke 6:22). It is easier for the enemies of the truth to revile than to refute. In casting out the humble believer in Jesus, they cast away their own credit as honest men. Any one of them would have been as devoted to Jesus as he was if they had been born blind, and in the same way received sight. But it seems almost impossible for an ungodly man to think himself into the Christian position and experience for a moment, so that he might modify his judgment. As long as the veil of unbelief is over the heart, evidences are of little value.

VII. Satisfaction. After they had cast out the man, Jesus found him and talked with him, and revealed Himself to him, so that the man was constrained to acknowledge Him as Lord, and to "worship Him" (John 9:35-38). His being cast out brought him into closer contact with the Son of God, his Saviour. It was much better for Him to be outside with Christ than inside without Him. The Lord never fails to compensate, in some way or other, those who suffer for His sake (Isaiah 66:5). We infer that he was perfectly satisfied from the fact that he worshipped Him. He felt that the Lord had done so much for him that he could only fall down and adore Him for His mighty and matchless grace. This is something more than mere thanksgiving, something deeper than prayer; it is the most God-honouring act of which any creature in Heaven or in earth is capable. We cannot live without offering our desires unto God in prayer; but why are we so seldom overwhelmed with such a sense of His greatness and goodness that we can do nothing but bow and adore? Our service in Heaven will be that of adoration; why not practise it more now?

VIII. Judgment. "Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see, and that they which see might be made blind" (John 9:39-41). Christ came not to condemn the world by an act of judgment, but, by His coming as the "Light of the World," could not avoid passing the sentence of death upon darkness and sin. Those words spoken by the Lord contain His own application of the spiritual meaning of the miracle, for all His miracles are typical of spiritual things. There are none so blind as those who don't wish to see. These Pharisees said, "We see," yet they saw not Jesus Christ as the "Light of the World," although He opened this blind man's eyes. They said, "We know that this man is a sinner" (John 9:24), although that Man said, "Which of you convinceth Me of sin" (chap. John 8:46). Therefore, they were condemning themselves by preferring the darkness of ignorance and death to the light of knowledge and life. Those who are blind and know it (spiritually) shall soon have "no sin," for they will speedily turn to Him who has come to save sinners. But those who say, "We see," and abide in the light of those sparks of their own kindling, will find out their blindness when cast into the outer darkness of eternal doom. "Your sin remaineth" as long as you walk in your fancied light (John 9:41). The opening of the blind man's eyes is a witness to Christ's power to impart that spiritual vision that saves from sin, and a warning to those who trust to the light of their own eyes, which lead into the ditch of everlasting darkness (1 Corinthians 3:18).

John 10:1-10

"Now, the training strange and lowly,

Unexplained and tedious now:

Afterward-the service holy

And the Master's "Enter thou."

-F. R. Havergal

These "Verily, verily's" of our Lord, which might be rendered, "In most solemn truth," never seem to be used at the beginning of a discourse, but always to illustrate, or emphasise some preceding statement; so that the last part of chapter 9 is closely connected with the opening verses of chapter 10. Those hirelings, who cast the man out because he said that Christ opened his eyes, are here contrasted with the true shepherd, who cares for the sheep. The allegory of this chapter, like the parable in the fifteenth of Luke, is given to us in three different sections. We have (1) the sheepfold and the (under) shepherd (John 10:1-10); (2) the Good Shepherd giving His life for the sheep (John 10:11-18); (3) the safety of the sheep (John 10:25-30).

I. The Sheepfold. This was an enclosure, into which the sheep were put for safety during the night (John 10:1). This may have reference to the old theocracy, that position of privilege, which belonged to the Jews as God's chosen and protected people, and into which no man could honourably enter, but by the door of birth-the seed of Abraham; or it may represent that new provision of security which Christ Himself was about to establish for His sheep, through the giving of His life for them. It is a sheepfold, there is no mention of goats here.

II. The Entrance. There is an entrance, but only one. "I am the Door of the sheep" (John 10:7). It is through Him who died for them that they enter into the safety and quiet of this spiritual and heavenly fold. "He that entereth in by the door is a shepherd of the sheep." The sheep and the true shepherds all enter in by the same door. There is none other Name whereby we can be saved (Acts 4:12). He is no shepherd of the sheep who has not, first of all, appropriated Christ for himself, as the Way, the Truth, and the Life. If he enters not by this door into the sheepfold ministry, "the same is a thief and a robber," and those sheep which have entered by the door will not follow him. Christ is the only open door into the salvation of God, and, praise Him, it is open for all "I am the Door: by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved" (John 10:9).

III. The Porter. "He that entereth by the door... to him the porter openeth" (John 10:3). It is a marvel to us how commentators should ignore or belittle the porter, lest they should press the allegory too far. In point of fact, the porter is second in importance to Him who is the Door, and undoubtedly represents the ministry of the Holy Spirit. Who abode with the sheep, and was their only comforter during the weary hours of night? The porter. Who could take the Door (Christ) and open it and close it at His will? The porter. Who alone had the power to admit a shepherd into the fold? The porter (Acts 13:2). All who would enter in by the door shall have the porter's help and encouragement. It is the Spirit who takes the things of Christ and shows them to the seeking soul.

IV. The Shepherd. "He that entereth in by the door is a shepherd of the sheep" (John 10:2, R.v., margin). The reference here is to the under shepherd, who has the liberty of the porter (Spirit) to go in and out, and to lead, and feed the sheep. The hirelings in chapter John 9:34, cast out the true sheep of Christ's flock. They know not the voice of strangers. It is important to note the nature of the shepherd's work and influence as stated here. It is-

1. PERSONAL. "He calleth his own sheep by name." There is no mistaking the purpose of a true shepherd when he comes into the sheepfold. He has not thought of thrashing or amusing the sheep, his chief object is to call them out into a larger place of blessing. To this end he deals with them definitely and personally. All the faithful under-shepherds of Christ's flock rightly divide the Word: they call the sheep by their proper names, and seek their individual good.

2. PROGRESSIVE. "He leadeth them out." It is not enough that the sheep are safe and at rest in the fold, they have to be lead out into fresh healthy pastures. The fields at the disposal of the shepherds are as broad, far reaching, and as rich as the whole Revelation of God. But those who have not examined those rich pasture lands will not be likely to lead the sheep into them.

3. EXEMPLARY. "He goeth before them." The true shepherd leads by example, as well as by precept. He does not say, "Go," but "Come." He goeth before them in doctrine and in practice (Titus 2:7). Not as lords over God's heritage, but as examples of the flock (1 Peter 5:3). Paul wrote to Timothy: "Be thou an example of the believers in Word, in conversation, in chanty, in spirit, in faith, in purity." To the Corinthians he said: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." The shepherd leads into green pastures, and by the still waters, not into the howling wilderness of that "higher criticism," which offers only doubt and perplexity to a hungry soul.

4. PROTECTIVE. "A stranger will they not follow..for they know not the voice of strangers" (John 10:5). The true sheep know the voice of a true shepherd, and will not be led away by the call of a stranger, who has climbed up by some other way. Some religious teachers have the form of godliness, but deny the power thereof (Holy Spirit); from such turn away. The sheep that have a faithful shepherd are too well taught to become the followers of any hireling, or thief, who may don the shepherd's attire.

V. The Intruders. "He that entereth not by the door, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber." It does not matter much what that "other way" is, so long as it is another way, it is an ignoring and a denial of Him who is the Door-and of Him who is the Porter-a denial of Christ, and of the Holy Spirit. Those who will not enter by the door of grace into this Kingdom will have some climbing to do, and in the end rewarded only as thieves and robbers. The "other way" that some prefer is the way of legalism, or learning, human works, or human wisdom. They will climb away for years to get into the fold, rather than submit to enter by the door. But all such climbers are, in their hearts, at enmity with the Shepherd and the sheep, and seek only their own base and selfish ends. "The same is a thief." There is no other way for a sheep, or a shepherd, for salvation or service, but by the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Door. "I am the Door: by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved." THE GOOD SHEPHERD

The Lord Jesus Christ is the good or perfect Shepherd. All that ever came before Him-in His stead-or that shall yet so come, are thieves and robbers. There is only one Good Shepherd who can lay down His life for the sheep and take it again (John 10:18). There is perhaps no image of Christ that has so powerfully appealed to the imaginations of men in all ages as the "Good Shepherd." Let not the familiarity of the term rob us of the great sweetness and depth of precious teaching that it reveals.

1. "He Giveth His Life for the Sheep" (John 10:11). This is the outstanding characteristic of the Good Shepherd. He is not only ready to sacrifice His life in defence of the sheep, but has a command from the Father to lay down His life for the sheep (John 10:18), that the sheep might have life through Him in abundance (John 10:10). The scope of the teaching cannot be limited to the mere metaphor. The metaphor is used to help us to grasp the fullness of the truth. That Christ taught redemption here is surely beyond doubt, when He said, "Therefore doth My Father love Me, because I lay down My life that I might take it again" (John 10:17; Hebrews 13:20). The Father loved the Son because He willingly obeyed this command to lay down His life for the salvation of all who would enter in at this door into the sheepfold (1 Peter 2:25).

II. His Sheep Hear His Voice. "They shall hear My voice" (John 10:16). Every soul who would follow Christ must individually hear His voice. That voice may be heard through the written Word, or in the preaching of the Gospel, but it will be recognised as His voice and His call to a new and separate life. Christ's first message was to the Jewish flock, but He had other sheep-multitudes of them-which were not of that flock, but which belonged to every kindred and tongue, and people, and nation, "them also," He said, "I must bring," for the death that He was about to die was to be "the propitiation, not only for our sins (Jews), but also for the whole world" (1 John 2:2). This present dispensation is the time of the bringing in of the "other sheep" which He has, as the gift of the Father, and they are hearing His voice, through the preaching of the Word, and following Him. To Him is the gathering of the people to be

III. He Knows His Sheep. "I know My sheep" (John 10:14). As to the extent or limit of this knowledge, it is impossible, except by sheer presumption, to define. He knows their name, their nature, and their need. The Lord does not judge as man judgeth, by outward appearance; He judgeth the heart. He discerns the hidden spirits of men, whether they are merely carnal or Christ-like. All His sheep have a love for, and a disposition like the Shepherd Himself. "If any man love God, the same is known of Him" (1 Corinthians 8:3). The Good Shepherd does not judge His sheep by their cry, for many will say on that day, "Lord, Lord," to whom He will say, "I never knew you."

IV. His Sheep Know Him. "And am known of Mine" (John 10:14). This knowledge is akin to that which exists between the Father and the Son (John 10:15). This affinity is the deepest and most sacred of all relationships. We may know Him as we know the sun that shines in the Heavens, and yet know but little of Him. The sheep know the Shepherd because He has manifested Himself to them, so we "know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding that we may know Him that is true" (1 John 5:20). "I know whom I have believed" (2 Timothy 1:12). This is eternal life, to know Him and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent.

V. His Sheep are Owned by Him. "He who is an hireling, whose own the sheep are not" (John 10:12), is here contrasted with Him who laid down His life for the sheep, as an evidence that they are His own. The flock of God hath been purchased by His own blood (Acts 20:28). Jesus was speaking as the Good Shepherd when He said to Peter, "Feed My lambs...Feed My sheep" (John 21). "Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price."

VI. He Cares for His Sheep. "The hireling fleeth because he careth not for the sheep," but the true Shepherd is very careful over His sheep (John 10:13). The wolf-like Satan finds his greatest enemy in the Shepherd of our souls. It is the privilege of the sheep to be without carefulness, for "He careth for you," therefore cast all your care upon Him (1 Peter 1:7). The Shepherd is most careful about the safety and supply of the sheep-about their defence and their food. His wisdom and His power are being continually exercised on their behalf. "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the close of the age."

VII. His Sheep shall all be Gathered into one Flock. "There shall be one flock and one Shepherd" (John 10:16). Meanwhile, His sheep are in every clime and country, speaking almost every language under Heaven, and divided by many sectarian folds, but all have heard His voice, and know Him, and are known by Him, having by one Spirit been baptised into one body. But when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, those who are still living on the earth shall be caught up with those who have gone to sleep, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore, comfort one another with these words (1 Thessalonians 4:16-18). In the evergreen pastures of the Heavenly Kingdom He shall lead His flock, and they shall follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth. "The Lord is my Shepherd...and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord for ever" (Psalms 23:1 and Psalms 23:6).
THE SAFETY OF THE SHEEP

John 10:22-30

It was winter, and Jesus was walking in the porch of the temple called "Solomon's," when the Jews, who were bewildered about the character and doings of Jesus, came about Him, saying, "How long do you mean to keep us in suspense? If Thou be the Christ tell us plainly" (John 10:24). He had been telling them all along by His words and works, but they believed not (John 10:25). Never man spoke more plain than He, but to those who are wilfully or judicially blind, such evidence is of little value. "Ye believe not," said Jesus, "because ye are not of My sheep" (John 10:26). By their persistent unbelief they proved themselves unfit to enter the sheepfold of His chosen ones. "They could not enter in because of their unbelief" (Hebrews 3:19). This question of the Jews gives Him an opportunity of explaining more fully the relationship and privilege of His sheep.

I. Their Relationship. They are His by-

1. SOVEREIGN GRACE. "My sheep hear My voice, and I know them" (John 10:27). "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way." The Lord might have passed us by in our waywardness and misery, but in love and in mercy He spoke. If He did not speak, the sheep would never hear His voice, and never follow Him. "My voice!" There is no other voice like His. To hear it is to turn and live, or die in sin. "By grace are ye saved through faith."

2. DELIBERATE CHOICE. "They follow Me." They hear Him, believe Him, and follow Him. They choose to obey His voice, rather than the voices of the world, or the whisperings of their own heart. To follow Christ is to renounce self and forsake all that would hinder the soul from abiding in His presence and obeying His Word.

II. Their Security. They are perfectly safe, because-

1. THEY HAVE ETERNAL LIFE. "I give unto them eternal life" (John 10:28). The verb is in the present, and might be read, "I am giving them the life of the ages." This life is the gift of Him who laid down His life for the sheep-a gift that is continuous, running on into the endless ages of futurity. Who but the Eternal One could make such a promise and bestow such a blessing? "The gift of God is eternal life" (Romans 6:23).

2. THEY ARE THE GIFT OF THE FATHER. "My Father... gave them Me" (John 10:29). The sheep of Christ are the "elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father" (1 Peter 1:2). "All that the Father hath given Me shall come to Me" (John 6:37). They are secure because they are possessed with a life suited for the ages of eternity, and because they are the chosen ones of the Father "before the foundation of the world, that they should be holy and without blame before Him in love..to the praise of the glory of His grace" (Ephesians 1:3-6). It was for such Christ prayed when He said, "Holy Father, keep through Thine own Name those whom Thou hast given Me."

3. THEY ARE IN CHRIST'S HAND. "Neither shall any pluck them out of My hand." Of them which Thou hast given Me have I lost none (John 18:9). His hand stands here for the almightiness of His power-a power as gentle as a mother's touch, as strong as the eternal God. No foe is able to wrest us from His hand. The sheep are saved by the gift of Divine life, and by the grip of Divine power. They are made partakers of a new nature and the subject of a new environment. They are in His heart of grace and in His hand of safety.

4. THEY ARE IN THE FATHER'S HAND. "None is able to pluck them out of My Father's hand" (John 10:29). "My Father is greater than all...I and My Father are one." The sheep are in the all-embracing power of the Son, as the Son is in the all-embracing power of the Father. "The glory which Thou gavest Me I have given them, that they may be one, even as We are" (John 17:22). The security of the Son is virtually the security of the sheep. As He is in the hand of the Father, so are we in the hand of the Son. Accepted and kept in the Beloved, the oneness of the Son with the Father is a powerful guarantee (John 10:30).

5. THEY HAVE HIS PROMISE. "They shall never perish." The negative here is doubly strong, and might be rendered, "They shall never, never perish" (John 10:28). The infallible Word of the eternal Son stands like an adamantine wall between the helpless sheep of His fold and perdition. The breaking of that Word would be the breaking down of His own character. One "jot or tittle" of His Word cannot possibly fail. Thus we have strong consolations who have fled to Him as the Refuge and Shepherd of our souls.

LAZARUS

John 11

The Hebrew form of the name Lazarus is Eliezer-God my Helper. Surely a fitting name for one who was so mightily helped by God. The history of Lazarus is, in a spiritual sense, the history of all who have passed from death unto life. Note the various stages in his remarkable experience. There was-

I. Sickness. "A certain man was sick" (John 11:1). "He whom Thou lovest is sick" (John 11:3). Loved by the Lord, yet smitten with sickness. Through some cause or other, soul-sickness is almost invariably the prelude to enlarged and deeper spiritual blessing. When Jesus heard of it, He said, "This sickness...is for the glory of God" (John 11:4). Yes, blessed be His Name, for that sickness which brings us down to the place of death, that the Son of Man might be glorified in doing a marvellous work in us and for us. The Holy Spirit must convince of sin before He quickens into newness of life.

II. Death. "Jesus said unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead" (John 11:14). This sickness was not unto eternal death, but unto that death which in a very singular way made Lazarus a fit subject for the resurrecting power of the Son of God. Real sin-sickness is only unto the death of self-love and self-will, that the power of Christ might be manifested. Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. When the Spirit convinces of sin, of righteousness and of judgment, it is the passing of the sentence of death upon the sinner. All hope of salvation from any other source had to be abandoned. "Sin revived, and I died" (Romans 7:9).

III. Life. "He that was dead came forth" (John 11:44). The life-giving power of Jesus Christ could only be manifested in the case of a dead man. If Lazarus had only been in a swoon, or in a sleep, there would have been no glory to God in his awakening. Christ Jesus came into this world to save sinners. It would bring no glory to Him to give life or salvation to those who did not need it. Before the Apostle Paul could say, "Now I live," he had to say, "I am crucified." Resurrection life can only come where there has been death. We must die to self if we would live unto God. To share with Christ His resurrection power, we must needs go to the Cross and the grave with Him. If we refuse to die, we refuse to enter into the new and fruitful life. "Except a corn of wheat die, it abideth alone" (John 12:24).

IV. Liberty. "Jesus said, Loose him and let him go" (John 11:44). It ill becomes one who has been raised from the dead by the power of God, to be in bondage to any man, or the customs and habits of men, especially those manners and customs that belong to the dead. As in nature, so in grace, where there is a fullness of life there will be the bursting open and a breaking forth from the old dead forms and habits. All that we can do for our dead is to bind them and bury them, but how different when, with a loud voice, the Son of God speaks to them. The man that has been liberated from death and the grave, must not be hindered by any fashion of grave clothes. Whom the Son of God makes free are free indeed. The relatives of those saved by Christ may do much to bind or loose their lives for His service. The Lord's command to the friends of Lazarus was, "Loose him and let him go" (John 11:44). What a crime in His sight if they had refused to obey. See that ye refuse not.

V. Communion. "Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with Him" (chap. John 12:2) What a blessed privilege to company with Him who has given us to know in our own experience that He is the "Resurrection and the Life." To those who have passed from death unto life there is no fellowship to be compared with His. As like draws to like, so must the resurrected spirit draw to Him who is the Resurrection. Every time we sit down prayerfully to study His Word, we are sitting at the table with Him, listening to His voice, and receiving food for our souls. Are you one of those who sit at this table with Him?

VI. Testimony. "By reason of him, many of the Jews went away and believed on Jesus" (chap. John 12:11) The power of his testimony lay, not so much in what he was able to say, as in what he was. The fact that he had been raised from death and corruption by the word of Jesus Christ, was in itself a most convincing witness to His Divinity and Messiahship. The greater the work of grace wrought in us by God's mighty power, the greater will be the force of our testimony for Him. The influence of Christ's risen life in us should be the leading of others to "believe on Jesus."

VII. Suffering. Because of the converting power of this new life in Lazarus "the chief priests consulted that they might put him to death" (chap. John 12:10). His old life brought no persecution, but now he has the happiness of those who are reproached for the Name of Christ (1 Peter 4:14). It is beyond the power of the enemy to kill or destroy the resurrection life. Your life is hid with Christ in God. "If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God on this behalf" (1 Peter 4:16).

JESUS

John 11.

The Gospel of John is like the rending of the veil, it opens up the way for us into the Holiest of all. Much of the personal glory of the Son of God will be unseen by us, if we fail to discern what His sayings and doings reveal concerning Himself. In this chapter we have several bright glimpses of this inner glory, glimpses such as we have everywhere throughout the Gospels.

I. His Divinity. When Jesus heard of the sickness of Lazarus, He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby" (John 11:4). This prophetic language is full of meaningless mystery if Jesus Christ was nothing more than the "best of men. " Although He emptied Himself as the Divine One, that He might live and die for us. He was still Himself, the eternal Son, in the bosom of the Father. He knew that this sickness had come that He, as the Son of God, might be glorified thereby.

II. His Love. "Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus" (John 11:5). While Jesus Christ was Divine, He was also perfectly and purely human. He loved all with that love of God which is the love of pity and compassion, for even those who are His bitterest enemies, but the Marthas, the Marys, and the Lazaruses are the special objects of His affection and delight. He can only delight with His whole heart in those whose hearts are opened with delight toward Him. It is not possible for such love as His to rejoice in iniquity.

III. His Faith. "Are there not twelve hours in the day?" etc. (John 11:7-9). These very suggestive words were spoken to His disciples, in answer to their alarm at His proposal to cross over from Peraea, where the Jews of late had sought to stone Him. There were to be twelve hours in His working day, and but eleven had passed. He must work the works of Him that sent Him while it is day (John 9:4). He did believe that His life was "immortal till His work was done, " and so He would walk in the day that He might stumble not. Faith in God never leads to laziness or fatalism. He that believeth shall not make the haste of flurried excitement, but they shall make steady progress, despite all the oppositions of the forces of Hell. "Are there not twelve hours in the day?"

IV. His Joy. "I am glad" (John 11:15). The conjunction here is most remarkable. "Lazarus is dead, and I am glad; glad for your sakes to the intent that ye might believe. " He was glad that He was not there to save Lazarus from dying, that He might have the opportunity of raising him from the dead, that they might see His glory and believe in Him. Mark the secret of Christ's gladness-glad to have the chance of manifesting His power that others may believe in Him, so that they might be blessed by Him. This was the joy that was set before Him when He endured the Cross. The nature of Christ's gladness is totally different from that which is sought for by the sinful sons of men.

V. His Indignation. "When Jesus saw her wailing, and the Jews also wailing, He was moved with indignation in the Spirit" (John 11:33, R.. v., margin). Why all this wailing now that He had said, "Thy brother shall rise again, " and that "I am the Resurrection and the Life?" In the face of His words and in His presence, this wailing was surely to Him the wailing of unbelief. He groaned in Spirit with a holy anger because of their slowness of heart to believe all that He had said unto them.

VI. His Compassion. "Jesus wept" (John 11:35). Those tears were as "drops of grief" from the loving heart of our Great High Priest, who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities (Hebrews 4:15). What a contrast between the hypocritical tears of those would-be mourners and the tears of the pure-hearted Son of God. The voice of these tears seems to have spoken louder than His words, for, "Then said the Jews, Behold how He loved Him. " If these teardrops were pearls of love, what shall we say of those blood-drops wept in the Garden of Gethsemane? "Greater love hath no man than this. " There is a way through Christ's tears, as well as through His words, to the heart of God the Father.

VII. His Power. "He cried with a loud voice, Lazarus come forth, and he that was dead came forth" (John 11:43-44). This was the cry of Him who is "the Resurrection and the Life. " "Resurrection, " one has said, "is not an impersonal fate, but a personal effect. " It is not the natural result of any known law, but the supernatural outcome of a Divine personal act. In Christ was life, and the life was the light of men. He speaks and it is done. As when Christ, who was the Life, appeared at the grave of Lazarus, Lazarus also appeared with Him, through the power of His Word; so "when Christ, who is our Life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with Him in glory" (Colossians 3:4). While on earth our Lord had to do with death in three different stages: the child on the death-bed, the young man on the bier, and the man in the grave. It was only in this last stage that He spoke with a loud voice. The raising of Lazarus was a manifestation of that power that shall one day with the voice of a trumpet awaken the dead, and as the vile body of Lazarus was changed (John 11:30), so shall it be in the resurrection (Php_3:20-21). This corruptible must put on incorruption. He that heareth His Word now, and believeth on Him... is passed from death unto life (John 5:24)
A SUPPER SCENE

John 12:1-8

According to Matthew and Mark, this supper which "they" made for Jesus, was in the house of Simon, who had been a leper, and may have been a united effort, with the two families, to do honour to Jesus and His disciples because of the raising of Lazarus from the dead, and, perhaps, the healing of Simon. It took place six days before the passover, which meant six days before His death and burial. It must have been a hallowed time. Let us think of-

I. Mary, the Sacrificer. While others rejoice to sit at the table with Jesus, and learn of Him, Mary, who had before sat at His feet, feels impelled by the love of her heart to embrace this opportunity of proving her faith and affection by personal sacrifice. To her, at that time, it was more blessed to give than to receive. There surely must be seasons in our lives when we shall find it more blessed to sacrifice than to seek, to give than to take, to praise than to pray. See the nature of it. "Mary took a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly. " Judas reckoned its value at "three hundred pence"-more correctly, shillings As money goes now, it would mean probably about £60. The costlier the better for Mary's deep purpose of love. Hypocritical worshippers are content to give the Lord the lame and the blind, the odd coppers and the spare moments. They never cross the threshold of the sanctuary of self-sacrificing service.

See the manner in which it was given. She "anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped His feet with her hair. " It is possible to give even a costly gift in such a way as to sting the soul of the receiver. The Lord loveth a cheerful giver. Mary not only offered Him her precious treasure, but her personal glory was also laid at His feet and surrendered to His service. The ointment was all the more precious to the Saviour because the soul of the offerer was in it. See the influence of it. "The house was filled with the odour of the ointment. " Such a self-sacrificing act could not pass without being felt by all who saw it. Such costly offerings, made for such a sacred purpose, are sure to betray themselves (Proverbs 27:16). A consecrated life has always a sweet odour to Christ and His faithful disciples.

II. Judas, the Criticiser. The only one who did not appreciate the holy deed of Mary was Judas. The "odour of the ointment" poured upon the Son of God had no sweet savour to him, "because he was a thief, " and would rather have had the "three hundred shillings" in his bag for his own advantage. His hypocritical plea was, that it might have been sold and the money given to the poor. "Not that he cared for the poor. " Surely the Saviour of sinners was more interested in the poor than he was. He who was rich, for our sakes became poor. "To what purpose is this waste?" (Matthew 26:8). Judas, the son of perdition, could not see that the breaking of this alabaster box, and the pouring out of the fragrant treasure upon the Person of Christ was the consecrating of both to the greatest possible service. It is noteworthy that the word "waste" used by Judas is literally the same word used by our Lord in referring to him as the "son of perdition. " Where the spirit of self-seeking is there is blindness to the honour and glory of the Lord Jesus Christ. Mary's vision of Jesus was such that it constrained her to surrender all. Judas could not see beyond the black shadow of his own sinful self-interest.

III. Jesus, the Justifier. "Then Jesus said, Let her alone; against the day of My burying hath she kept this. " He understood the full significance of this singularly solemn service, and always puts the highest value upon such gifts. The costly offering was in no sense wasted on Him. To His soul, in view of His death and burial, it had a sweet savour. "Let her alone. " The Son of God who sacrificed Himself for sinners will never put any hindrance in the way of a believing, grateful heart showing its devotion to Him to the fullest extent. He knows that such love and sacrifice will have its corresponding reward (Mark 14:9). "Let her alone. " Well He knew that there are so few who care to go this length in honouring Him. She broke through all the forms of etiquette, and gave to Christ exceeding abundantly above all that they would have asked or thought of. Such a spontaneous outburst of self-sacrificing affection was to Jesus the principal part of the feast. Love feasts on love. Here He had a meat to eat that others knew not of. "The poor, " he said, "always ye have with you, but Me ye have not always. " But those who reckon it waste to pour out wealth for the cause of Jesus Christ will not be likely to break their treasure boxes in behalf of the poor. The best friends of the poor have always been those who are the most devoted friends of Jesus Christ. The love of Christ constraineth us.

DEATH, LIFE, AND SERVICE

John 12:20-26

Probably these Greeks who desired to see Jesus came from the same city as Philip and Andrew, and may have been personally known to them. Philip and Andrew did what they could to bring about an interview, but seemingly failed. The closing words in John 12:36 are very significant in this connection. "These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide Himself from them. " But while He hid Himself from them, the things which He spake were in themselves a new and fuller revelation of the Christ which He wished them to see. He who would "see Jesus" as God desires Him to be seen, must see Him as "a corn of wheat falling into the ground and dying, and bringing forth much fruit. "

I. Death. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone. " A corn of wheat in the process of dying is here alluded to. As applied to His own preparation for the Cross, the reference is full of solemn suggestion. As a corn of wheat must fall into the ground before it will die, so He had to condescend to come into the place of death before He could reap the fruits of resurrection life. When Christ came into this world He came into the place of death. His coming was the falling of the corn of wheat into the ground, but except it die, it abideth alone. A seed that had lain in the hand of a mummy for 3000 years, remained alone, but when, by another hand, it fell into the ground and did die, then it brought forth fruit. The process of dying is the process of yielding up everything to those forces that are opposed to stationary barrenness. Just as the buried seed slowly surrenders its all, so is its new capacity created for fruitfulness. The life of Jesus Christ, which ended in the shameful death of the Cross, was like the life of the corn-seed in the ground- there was no reserve, no keeping back, the treasures of His marvellous nature were wholly surrendered. "He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life. " He died for us What was true of the Christ as "a corn of wheat" is also true of the Christian, except he die-to the old self-life-he abideth alone. It is by being "alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus is made manifest in our mortal flesh" (2 Corinthians 4:11).

II. Life. "But if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. " The life that is yielded up by the dying seed conditions and prepares the way for another and more fruitful life. Christ died, and therefore did not abide alone. The life that He yielded up has been abundantly fruitful in an ever-increasing harvest of resurrected souls. The possibilities of Jesus Christ as seed-corn dropped, as it were, from the hand of the Heavenly Father into the soil of humanity, are the possibilities of God. He shall see His seed, because His soul was made an offering for sin. Christ died, but like a corn of wheat, He was born anew-begotten again in resurrection fruitfulness. In this new life, in Him and in us who have died unto sin, there is the abiding power of eternity. Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, but "that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die" (1 Corinthians 15:36). If the seed refuses to die, the quickening power refuses to act. The Holy Spirit, the Quickener, can only work this newness of life where there is death. This new Divine life, begotten out of the death of the self-life, is the life that glorifies God in bearing much fruit. He that soweth to the flesh shall out of the flesh, as out of poisoned soil, reap corruption.

III. Service. "If any man serve Me, let Him follow Me. " To follow Him is the highest and holiest of all service. To follow Him is to go on continually denying self. We cannot be following Him in His life of perpetual self-denial unless we are prepared daily to lose our own life. He that loveth his (own) life shall lose it, and he that maketh his own life of no account shall keep it unto life eternal (John 12:25). Christ loved not His own life, but yielded it, day by day, unto the will of the Father, and so served Him by following Him. Our service must be of the same nature, as we have, through grace, been brought into the same privilege. Now are we the sons of God. In essence, then, this service is self-denial for the sake of Jesus Christ. But think of the blessedness of it. "If any man serve Me, him will My Father honour. " The Father honoured the Son for such a service; He will also honour all who so follow His footsteps. They will be honoured with His presence, His peace, and His power, and "where I am, there shall also My servant be. " "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself" (Matthew 16:24). To go after a self-denying Christ is impossible without the denial of self. We must deny our own thoughts, will, power, interests- everything that would hinder His will, power, and interests from being accomplished in us and by us. THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

Our Lord's ministry on earth was first prophetic, then priestly. John's reference to the lament of the prophet Isaiah, in John 12:38-41, may be regarded as the close of Christ's work as a Prophet, and here the beginning of His work as a Priest.

I. His Relationship to the World. "I am come a Light into the world." In Him was no darkness at all. The purity and power of ineffable light was in Him, to meet the needs and solve the problems of a guilty and benighted world. "I am come. " There is no other light powerful enough to scatter the darkness of a world. He comes, not as a citizen to share our sorrows, or as a patron to protect our rights, but as a Light to reveal. This was the world's first great need.

II. The Nature of this Light. It was the light of the great Heavenly Father's will revealed in the Son. "I have not spoken of Myself," He says, "but the Father which sent Me, He gave Me a command what to say, and in what words to speak" (John 12:49). The body of Jesus Christ was as a lantern, the light that was in Him was the Light of God, the manifestation was through His words and works. These words and works reveal infinite love and mercy, hand in hand with infinite power and holiness. The shining was perfect, for He could say, "He that seeth Me, seeth Him that sent Me" (John 12:45).

III. The Purpose of the Light. "I am come not to judge the world, but to save the world" (John 12:47). The purpose of every lighthouse is salvation. Light is a great saviour from death and destruction. There were those who were opposed to gas light, when first introduced in 1807, but it was declared that the new light had done more for the reduction of crime than all the laws of Parliament since the days of Alfred. The light of Christ is sin's greatest enemy. To see a Father's love in the life and death of His beloved Son is to see our own need and God's only remedy. He has not come as a light to shine out judgment, and condemnation, but that the world through Him might be saved (John 3:17).

IV. How this Light is Received. "Whosoever believeth in Me shall not abide in darkness" (John 12:46). This heavenly and saving Light shines into the hearts of those who with the heart believe in Him. This faith cometh by hearing. "If any man hear My words," etc. Hear His words, believe them, yield to them, and the light of life will possess the soul. While ye have this light, believe in it, obey it, follow it, trust it. It is as real and as free as the light of the sun. Having believed in Him as the Light of your life, confess Him, and be not hindered by the fear of man, or the desire for their praise (see John 12:42-43; Hebrews 11:27). To believe in Christ is to believe also in Him who sent Him (John 12:44). We honour the Father when by faith we receive the salvation, which is Christ Jesus (John 6:40).

V. The Consequences of Rejecting the Light. If those who believe in Him "shall not abide in darkness," then those who believe not are abiding in darkness. Light has come into the world, yet men love darkness rather than the light, because their deeds are evil. To abide in darkness is to abide in death. To reject this light is rebellion against the will of God. They shall lie down in sorrow who prefer the sparks of their own kindling to the light of eternal truth. But although men reject those illuminating words, or message of God in Christ, and cling to the delusions of darkness, they are not done with this light, they must face it again in its more fierce and withering form, for He says, "The word (message) that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48). The light that has been rejected, lest it should consume their sin, will become a consuming fire for sinners. As every flower reflects the colour that it rejects, so every Christ-rejecter will be manifested in that day (John 3:19-21).

CHRIST'S LAST TOKEN OF LOVE

The passover and the supper, linked together here, is most significant. The passover commemorated deliverance from Egyptian darkness and bondage; the supper supplied the emblems of redemption from the darkness and dominion of sin. What Pharaoh was to the Israelites, Judas was to Jesus Christ, and the consequences were much alike the sudden destruction of the enemy, and the triumph of the Lord and His people. It was here, at the supper, that Christ gave to His disciples the farewell token of His self-humiliating love to them. Let us try and think afresh of-

I. What He Did. "He rose from the supper, and laid aside His garments, and took a towel, and girded Himself...and began to wash His disciples' feet and to wipe them." To wash the feet of guests, at a feast, was the work of a slave. "He made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant" (Php_2:7). This was the attitude of the Lord Jesus from the beginning. "He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (serve) and to give His life" (Matthew 20:28). The Lord would have our feet (walk), as well as our hearts, clean.

II. When He Did It. "When He knew that His hour was come that He should depart...unto the Father (John 13:1)....that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He was come from God, and was going to God" (John 13:3). This lowly act of personal humiliation and service was performed, as it were, in view of the awful death of the Cross and the glory that was to follow. The near prospect of the agony of Gethsemane, the desertion of His washed disciples, and the eternal glory of the Father, did not prevent Him from humbling Himself to attend to their present need. How easy it is for us to get so taken up with our own sufferings or successes as to become self-centred and proud, or unsympathetic. He pleased not Himself, but lived and died for us.

III. How He Did It. He did it lovingly. "Having loved His own..He loved them unto the end" (John 13:1). Love beamed in His eyes, love throbbed in His words, love dropped at His fingers. His touch was as gentle as a mother's. He did it voluntarily. Neither law nor custom required that He should wash their feet. He did it of His own free will and choice. It was an expression of the reality and depth of His inventive grace and love. He did it perfectly. We may be well assured that when He washed their feet they would be well washed. All His words are perfect. "The blood of Christ cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7).

IV. Why He Did It. "I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you" (John 13:15). Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus (Php_2:3-5). Feet-washing is a very delicate business, and must be done in the Spirit of Jesus, for it is not pleasant to flesh and blood to have our faults pointed out. There is a way of doing it that may be more offensive than profitable. To rebuke a brother or sister in an unkind manner is like washing their feet in frozen water, and let us also take heed that the water is not boiling hot with temper. Let us not forget that it is more difficult for some Christians to keep their feet (walk) clean, as in their daily calling they have more dirty paths to tread, because they are more frequently in contact with the soiling influences of the world. Humbling and painful as the work may be, Christ's example teaches us that the work at times has to be done. There will always be those who, like Peter, are ready to say, "Thou shalt never wash my feet," but a little kindly explanation may turn it into a gladsome experience. But woe unto those who refuse to accept the blessing offered through Christ's humiliation. They have no part with Him (John 13:8; John 3:5).

SELF-EXCOMMUNICATED

John 13:21-30

Our Lord had just been washing the feet of His disciples; giving them a final example of His humiliation and self-forgetting service. After this, John tells us that "He was troubled in spirit."

I. The Cause of Christ's Trouble. "One of you shall betray Me" (John 13:21). The cause of His perturbed spirit was not the fact that within a few hours He would be crucified, but that "one of you," His chosen companions and friends, would betray Him. Well He knew that they were "not all clean" (John 13:11). His tender compassionate heart was troubled, not on account of Himself, but because of the fearful ingratitude and guilt of that "one" who had already "lifted up his heel against Him" (John 13:18). Think of all that Judas had seen and heard of Jesus, and of the place he occupied, and the confidence that was reposed in him (allowing him to carry the bag), and think also of falling from such an height of privilege into a hopeless perdition. He hath no pleasure in the death of the wicked. "He was troubled in spirit."

II. The Token of Christ's Love. "When He had dipped the sop, He gave it to Judas" (John 13:26). In giving the morsel first to Judas, Christ was not only showing to John who should betray Him, but He was also proving to the traitor that although He knew all that was in his evil heart to do, He loved him to the end. Had He not also washed his feet? washed off the very dust contracted by that secret visit to those murderous priests. If Judas, or any others, will sin their soul to doom, they will never find any occasion in Him, whose love is stronger than death. Did the Lord Jesus hope that this humiliating act of washing the feet of Judas would soften his hard and deceitful heart? If so, how terribly suggestive are the words which follow: "And after the sop, Satan entered into him." The tokens of a Saviour's love had no effect in closing the door of his heart against the entrance of the Devil. Satan is always ready to take full advantage of every opportunity. Those who reject the grace of God, in Christ Jesus, become the willing dupes of the Devil.

III. The Departure from Christ's Presence. "He then having received the sop, went immediately out, and it was night" (John 13:30). He went out. Christ did not cast him out. He preferred to go out into the night, rather than abide in the light. He loved the darkness rather than the light, because his deeds were evil. He went out; his choice was finally made. Think of what he went out from, and what he went out to.

1. He went out from the best company on earth, into the company of God-hating, Christ-rejecting murderers.

2. He went out from the rule and service of the Son of God, into the rule and slavery of Satan.

3. He went out from the place of light and hope, into the night of darkness and despair.

4. He went out from the offer of eternal blessedness, into the place of eternal doom.

He apparently did not go out as one in a rage; he went out quite orderly, as one who had something of more importance to do; something of more importance to get. But in turning away from the love of Christ, at this particular moment, he was rejecting his last chance of salvation. Having refused Christ's place, there is nothing for him now but "his own place" (Acts 1:25)-perdition. Judas may have imagined that his betrayal of the Master, for thirty pieces of silver, would not seriously affect Him, as He was well able to save Himself from the hands of His enemies; but every betrayer is guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. The blood of every Christ-rejecter will be on his own head. "Ye will not come to Me that ye might have life" (John 5:40). AN INFALLIBLE CURE FOR HEART TROUBLE

There were several reasons why the hearts of His disciples became troubled or affrighted at this time. Judas had left the company; the Lord had been speaking of going away, and had just been warning Peter that before the cock would crow he would deny Him thrice. Our hearts also may often get troubled when we look at the signs of the times, or when we look within at our own sins and failures. Heart trouble is a common malady, but the word and work of Jesus Christ is a perfect remedy. He came to bind up the broken heart. When Jesus said, "Let not your heart be affrighted," He at the same time poured the oil of comfort upon the troubled waters. In this prescription for a troubled heart, given by the Great Physician, there are seven comforting elements.

I. The Power of Christ. "Ye believe in God, believe also in Me." God, Me. To "believe in Me" is to believe in God. "I and My Father are One." What a comfort to a sinful, sorrowful soul to know that He who suffered and died for sinners has all the authority and power of Almighty God. "All power," He says, "is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth" (Matthew 28:18). Trembling soul, affrighted at your own guilt and at coming death and judgment, let not your heart be troubled, believe in Him.

II. The Many Mansions. "In My Father's house are many mansions" (John 14:2). The "many mansions" is another way of saying there is plenty of room. The reception room of the Father's house is large enough for all, and there are multitudes of private apartments for the individual comfort of the redeemed. You may be in straights here and now; there may be no room for you in the world's inns; although, like the Master Himself, you may not have where to lay your head-let not your heart be troubled, in our Father's house are many mansions.

III. The Prepared Place. "I go to prepare a place for you." He went to the Cross and the grave to prepare salvation for us. He went out of the grave, rising from the dead that He might prepare eternal life for us. He ascended into Heaven that He might prepare a home for us. The prepared place will correspond with the preparedness of the soul here, by the work of the Holy Spirit. The measure of our enjoyment of the Kingdom of Heaven will be according to the measure of our spiritual capacity. Hence the importance of growing in grace now, and in the knowledge of God. The place prepared for the Apostle Paul would not be quite the same as that prepared for the penitent thief. Let not your heart be troubled, the place prepared for you will be in every way exactly suitable to you.

IV. The Coming Again. "I will come again." When He says, "I will come again," He surely does not mean death. He who is the Life can never be compared to death. Neither did He mean the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit had not yet been given. He did not die "for our sins." He meant what He said, for "the Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout," therefore comfort one another with these words (1 Thessalonians 4:16-18). Let not your heart be troubled about the loved ones who have fallen asleep in Jesus, for in that day "them will He bring with Him," and we shall be "caught up together" (1 Thessalonians 4:17). Neither let your heart be affrighted at the things that are coming to pass on the earth, for "He shall reign till He hath put all enemies under His feet" (1 Corinthians 15:25).

V. The Great Reception. "I will come again and receive you unto Myself; that where I am there ye may be also." To be received by Him is to have the honour of the Father and of the Kingdom conferred upon us. His prayer on our behalf will then have its perfect fulfilment, "Father, I will that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am: that they may behold My glory" (John 17:24). "If any man serve Me...where I am, there shall also My servant be." Let not your heart be troubled although the world despise and reject you, there is a glorious reception awaiting you at the Coming of the Lord,

VI. The Eternal Home. "Where I am, there ye may be also." Meanwhile the mists of earth partly blinds our eyes to the glories of that place where He is. God hath exalted Him far above all principalities and powers, and given Him a Name that is above every name. He is seated at the right hand of God, crowned with glory and honour; and where He is, there His beloved bride shall be, to behold His glory, and to glory in beholding it. The place of honour purchased by the Lord Jesus Christ, as the Redeemer, is to be shared by the redeemed. Let not your heart be troubled although your circumstances here may be mingled plentifully with trials and sorrows, all tears will be wiped away when at home with Him where He is.

VII. The Blessed Assurance. "Whither I go ye know, and the way ye know" (John 14:4). Blessed be His Name, we know where He is gone, and also the way into His presence. He is gone to prepare a place for us, and He Himself is the Way (John 14:6). The way to where He is is the way of faith in Him. Faith in Him always leads to Him. "The way ye know." There is a way that seemeth right unto men, but the end is death, instead of life and glory. Let not your heart be troubled, the way may at times be rough and thorny, and narrow, and may seem long, but five minutes at home with Jesus will abundantly compensate for all the inconveniences of our pilgrim life. The way ye know, and it should be enough for us that it is the way.

CHRIST AND THE FATHER

John 14:6-21

When Philip said to Jesus, "Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us," he was giving expression to the deepest, the most secret, and mysterious longing of the human soul. The curious, critical eye can never look upon the face of God; it is the pure in heart that see Him. Philip, like multitudes in every age, was perfectly sincere in his desire, but slow to believe that Jesus Himself was the visible expression of the invisible God. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John 14:9). In this chapter our Lord dwells much upon this fact, perhaps in answer to Philip's request. Christ's relationship to the Father can only be understood, in any measure, by thinking deeply into Christ's own statements concerning it. The hypothesis of the Rationalist is of no value in the face of His own plain declarations. From His teaching we learn that-

I. He Dwelt in the Father. "Believest thou not that I am in the Father" (John 14:10). The home of His soul was the bosom of God. As a Son He abode in the love of His Father, delighting in His will. He dwelt in the Father that He might be ever with Him for the glory of His Name among men (See 1 John 4:12-16).

II. His Father Dwelt in Him. "Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father in Me" (John 14:11). The Father, in all the riches of His glorious character, abode in the Son for the edification and salvation of man. He pleased not Himself; yea, more, He emptied Himself, that the Father might be gloried in Him. Being in the Father, He dwelt in eternal love; the Father being in Him, the love of God was thus manifested.

III. He is the Revelation of the Father. He said to Philip, "If ye had known Me ye should have known My Father also; from henceforth ye know Him and have seen Him. He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John 14:7-9). He is the image of the invisible God (Colossians 1:15). This is the cause of that halo of glory that surrounds the character of Jesus Christ, making it unapproachably unique among the sons of men. The revelation of Jesus Christ on earth was the apocalypse (unveiling) of the Father. To know Christ in His true inward character is to know the Father.

IV. His Words were the Words of the Father. "The word which ye hear is not Mine but the Father's which sent Me" (John 14:24). This doctrine, in one form or another, is emphatically declared about ten times in this Gospel. It is that deep far-reaching truth, which the critics of Christ and His teaching so often forget or deliberately ignore. "My doctrine" He says "is not Mine, but His that sent Me" (chap. John 7:16). "I speak to the world those things which I have heard of Him" (chap. John 8:26-28). To reject His words is to reject the message of the Eternal God and Father to men, and to perish in Sin and ignorance.

V. His Works were the Works of the Father. "That the world may know..as the Father gave Me commandment, even so I do" (John 14:31). The Father's commandments were the secret motives of His life. Just when He was about to finish His career of obedience unto death, He said: "I have kept My Father's commandments" (John 15:10). He had power to lay down His life and to take it again, because He had received "this commandment of His Father." His wonderful works, as well as His wonderful words, were manifestations of the Father's grace and power in operation through the Son. "Believe Me that I am in the Father, and the Father in Me; or else believe Me for the very work's sake" (John 14:11).

VI. His Desire was that the Father should be Glorified in Him. "Whatsoever ye ask in My Name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son" (John 14:13). That the Father may be glorified He pleased not Himself, but spoke the words and did the works of His Father; and now promises to answer prayer in His Name, that the Father, who is represented by the Son, might be glorified in the Son. It is surely this Divine fact that explains the value and power of His Name in prayer (John 16:24).

VII. He is the Way to the Father. "I am the Way... no man cometh unto the Father but by Me" (John 14:6). To miss Christ as the Way, the Truth and the Life, is to miss the Father, for the Father is in Him and He is in the Father. "This is the true God and eternal life." He is the Way to the Father, because He is the Truth about the Father, and the very Life of the Father. Christ as The Way, must be received by faith, as well as Christ the Truth and the Life. To come to Him as the Way, is to forsake our own way and to trust in Him as the Truth and the Life and so come into fellowship with the Father in Him and through Him (Ephesians 2:18).

VII. To Love Him is to be Loved of the Father. "He that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him" (John 14:21). To love the Lord Jesus Christ is to love the Father and to be loved in a very special manner by Him. The effect of this mutual love is a further and fuller manifestation of Christ Himself as the image of the Father to the heart of the loving one. What a comfort to know that because we love the Son of God we are being loved by God, and that that great love of His can find no higher reward to give His lovers than a fuller, deeper experience of His Son, Jesus Christ. Oh, the depths of the riches that are in Him. How keenly the apostle must have felt this truth when he said: "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be accursed at His coming" (1 Corinthians 16:22).

LOVE'S REWARD

The words of the Lord Jesus Christ are as fathomless as His unsearchable nature. "God is Love," Christ is the perfect manifestation of that love. "He that loveth Me," He says, "shall be loved of My Father, and I will love him and will manifest Myself to him." In these words we have the promise and condition of the greatest spiritual inheritance that God in Christ can bestow upon a human soul.

I. The Promise. "I will manifest Myself to him." The revelation of Himself is the redeemed soul's greatest solace. The purpose of the Holy Spirit in us is to take the things of Christ and show them to us. The quickened spirit of man must seek and yearn for God. "My soul thirsteth for God," said the Psalmist. What Christ has done meets all the needs of a sinner; what Christ is meets all the needs of a servant. Philip may have been ignorant, but he was surely honest when he said: "Shew us the Father and it sufficeth us" (John 14:8). Let me see and know the true God and then I shall be satisfied. He had not yet understood that to see Jesus Christ was to see the Father (John 14:9). This is the true God and eternal life. To meet this deep spiritual need in Philip, Christ manifested Himself to him. What a revelation this must have been to Philip. See how our Lord answered the somewhat similar question of Judas (not Iscariot): "How wilt Thou manifest Thyself unto us and not unto the world?" (John 14:22). The Lord's answer to this most important question is pregnant with vital teaching. He will manifest Himself in the Spirit of the Father to the man that loves Him by "coming unto him and making His-or Their-abode with him" (John 14:23). This manifestation is not outward, or external; it is the coming of the Divine life and character in fresh and fuller power into the inner man. The indwelling presence of God is the most central, the most solemn and influential reality with which the Christian has to do. The craving of a pure heart is to see God. In times of sorrow, loneliness, weariness, fruitlessness, and failure, our real need is expressed in one word: "Himself." We cannot possibly make too much of this fact and privilege of grace, that Christ eagerly desires to manifest Himself as the Healer of all diseases, the Source of all fruitfulness, and the Victor in every fight. Whenever and wherever He manifests Himself, results worthy of Himself will be accomplished. When He showed Himself after His passion it was "by many infallible proofs." Although the two men on the way to Emmaus knew Him not when He appeared, yet did He make their "hearts burn within them while He talked to them." When He manifested Himself to Mary, there followed confession and commission (John 20:16-17). When He manifested Himself to His unbelieving disciples, He first rebuked them (Mark 16:14), then when He had showed them His hands and His feet they were glad, and He breathed on them, saying, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost" (John 20:20-22). The result of His appearing to doubting Thomas was confession and worship (John 20:26-28). His appearing to the disciples by the sea shore turned their failure into great success (John 21). Three times did the Lord manifest Himself to the Apostle Paul for the purpose of encouraging him in His service (Acts 23:11; Acts 18:9-10; Acts 27:23-24). To the suffering and dying Stephen He revealed Himself as the glorified One (Acts 7:55). In the light of all this let us seek to grasp the significance and preciousness of this promise: "He that loveth Me..I will love him, and will manifest Myself to him." The manifestation of Himself to us is His infinitely gracious way of meeting and satisfying our every need. But how will He manifest Himself unto us and not unto the world? This brings us to the second point, namely -

II. The Condition. "He that loveth Me." This promise of Christ is for ever true, and this simple condition is for ever availing. Christ will manifest Himself to those who love Him. It is possible to be wise and scholarly, faithful and enthusiastic, and yet destitute of that deep joy and satisfaction which comes through the manifestation of Himself to the loving heart. Thank God, this greatest of all blessings is not promised to the learned, or the laborious, but to the loving. "Lovest thou Me?" was our Lord's pressing question after manifesting Himself to His disciples by the sea of Galilee. The heart must become very sensitive that would receive and retain the image of the Son of God as revealed by the Holy Spirit. It is love, not knowledge, that creates capacity for Christ. Intense loving is more pleasing to Him than deep thinking. He who loves the Lord with all his heart will live in the continual vision of His comforting presence and matchless glory. The condition is love; but the proof of love is the "keeping of His words"-or teaching. "He that hath My words and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me...If a man love Me, he will keep My words..He that loveth Me not keepeth not My words" (John 14:23-24). John, in his first epistle, restates this truth very plainly: "Whoso keepeth His word (teaching), in him surely is the love of God perfected" (John 2:5). The soul in which that love is perfected will be honoured with the apocalypse (unveiling) of Jesus Christ. It was to John, the most loving of His disciples, that the book of "The Revelation of Jesus Christ" was given (Revelation 1:1). The love of God can only be perfected in that heart where love answers to love. It is impossible to keep His words and to grow under His teaching, as He desires we should, unless there is in us a growing love and devotion to Christ's person and work. In these days of intellectual and moral activity, let us be diligent to keep our hearts right with God, otherwise there will be no manifestation of Himself as the sum of all power, and blessing, and success.

OBEDIENCE

John 14:23-24

"If a man love Me, he will keep My words: and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make our abode with him. He that loveth Me not keepeth not My sayings: and the Word which ye hear is not Mine, but the Father's which sent Me." Obedience is the necessary consequence of love.

FRUIT-BEARING

John 15:1-8

Israel, as a vine, was brought out of Egypt and planted in Canaan, after the heathen had been cast out like weeds (Psalms 80:8). This vine, though noble, and of a right seed, soon degenerated into a strange plant to God (Jeremiah 2:21). But Jesus Christ is the true Vine, brought down from Heaven and planted in the earth. He was the faithful and true witness. There was nothing in Him to create a feeling of "strangeness" or disappointment in the heart of God. He was true to God, true to His own nature, true to His environment, and to the sons of men. But the principle thought here is that, as a Vine, He is true to those who are associated with Him as branches, so that they might bring forth fruit. Note the-

I. Source of Fruit. "The vine," The branch cannot bear fruit of itself (John 15:4). "Apart from Me, ye can do nothing" (John 15:5, R.V.). Impoverished branches in this vine is no evidence of an impoverished vine, for God giveth not the Spirit with limitations to Him (John 3:34). All the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, of grace and power, are in Him, even the "fullness of the Godhead." "From Me is thy fruit found" (Hosea 14:8).

II. Removal of the Fruitless. "Every branch in Me that beareth not fruit He taketh away" (John 15:2). "If any man abide not in Me, he is cast forth as a branch and is withered" (John 15:6). This may refer to those who are in Him religiously, but not spiritually: those who have been from their birth brought up in the form of godliness, but who have never known the power and sweetness of His fellowship. There is an outward resemblance to the vine branch, but no production of the vine fruit, so the husbandman deals with it as having no connection with the vine. Such a branch "cast forth" can do nothing else but wither. Apart from Christ, there is no saving or preserving power in man. It is only those whose roots are in the river of God whose leaves shall not wither (Psalms 1:3). These withered branches are gathered, not by the angel reapers, but by men, who cast them into the fire of testing, and they are burned. A religious, Christless life will never be of much use to men, far less to God. Like savourless salt, they are good for nothing.

III. Pruning of the Fruitful. "Every branch that beareth fruit, He cleanseth it, that it may bear more fruit" (John 15:2-3). There are growths about the Christian life, as there are about the vine, which do not tend to fruitfulness, shoots that show signs of a vigour which is only fit for the pruning knife. The riches of the grace of God is seen here in seeking to make the fruitful more fruitful. Those fit for His service He desires to make more fit. The process may be painful, to have our new-born desires and fresh efforts nipped off and thrown away as hindrances; but His will be done. The heart life is to be kept pure by faith (Acts 15:9). The pruning knife is the Word of God which is sharp and powerful....discerning the thoughts and intents of the heart. "Now are ye clean through the Word."

IV. Nature of the Fruit. "Bear much fruit, so shall ye be My disciples" (John 15:8). That branch is a true disciple of the vine that bears much of the fruit of the vine. We are the true disciples of Christ when His character manifests itself in our lives. What the sap of the vine is to the branch, the Spirit of Christ is to the Christian. The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, etc., because the Spirit Himself is all this, and when He has free access into our hearts, and full control of them, His own personal characteristics will appear as fruit in our lives.

V. Condition of Fruitfulness. "He that abideth in Me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit" (John 15:5). The human side is, "He in me;" the Divine, "I in Him." "The branch cannot bear fruit of itself.... no more can ye except ye abide in Me" (John 15:4). "In me," that is, in my flesh dwelleth no good thing, but in Him all fullness dwells. His grace will be perfected in us, as we by faith abide in Him. Constant contact with Him implies the attitude of continual receptiveness, "I in Him." To abide in Him is to abide in His Word, His will, and His work, then God works in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure.

VI. Results of Fruitfulness. "Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be My disciples" (John 15:8). The results are twofold: the Father is glorified, and our true discipleship is proven. It is to the honour of the husbandman that the tree brings forth fruit abundantly. It is also to the credit of the tree that it so proves its good character by its works. Where there is wholehearted discipleship there will be fruitfulness and a life glorifying to the Father. Fruit is the natural outcome of a faithful following of Christ, as well as an evidence of it. The life lived in Christ, and for Him, is the only God-glorifying life. "Much fruit" means much love, much joy, much peace, etc.

BRANCHES, DISCIPLES, FRIENDS

John 15

These are not empty titles, the Lord Himself is the Author of each of them, but they are each conditioned with something else. The first with abiding, the second with fruit-bearing, the third with obedience. These three names are suggestive of three different experiences.

I. As Branches, we Receive. "I am the Vine, ye are the branches" (John 15:5). This process and privilege of receiving of the fullness that is in Christ cannot begin until we as branches have been broken off the old fruitless Adam-stock, and grafted into Him who is the second Adam, the True Vine. The precious sap of this Vine (Spirit) will never minister to the pride of the old selfish sinful life. But having been planted into Christ, we now live by faith that is in Him. The branch cannot live apart from the vine, no more can ye. To live apart from Christ is to be dead while we live. "Because I live ye shall live also" (John 14:19), if ye abide in Me. The life of the branch, then, is a life of continual appropriation. The call of the vine to the branch is to take, take, take. "Let him that is a thirst, take." "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink." This receiving of the sap by the branch was to manifest itself in fruitfulness To be filled with the Spirit is to be filled with the fruit of the Spirit, as it is possible to grow apples of different quality on the same stock, so, by the same Spirit there may be different manifestation, according to the character of the branch. While our union with Christ is the death of our sinful life, it is not the death of our individuality. In every Christian life the whole fruit of the Spirit should be found (Galatians 5:22-23), but, as a rule, in the lives of Christians, some one or two aspects of this fruit are often found prominent, this may be partly due to the nature of the recipient. Still, "the wind bloweth where it listeth."

II. As Disciples, we Follow. "So shall ye be My disciples" (John 15:8). In continuing the metaphor of the vine and branches here, the idea is, that the branch truly follows the vine, when it abides in it, and when by the power imparted to it, it faithfully carries out the purpose for which the vine had been given. So, by an adherence to the mind and will of our Lord, and by the bringing forth of much of the fruit of the Spirit, we are declaring ourselves to be walking in His footsteps. "If ye continue in My Word, then are you My disciples indeed" (John 8:31). This discipleship implies a readiness to sit at His feet, like Mary, and to learn of Him who is the Great Teacher come from God. It implies also a willingness to believe every word He says. How can His words abide in us if they are not received by faith (John 15:7). How can we follow His example if we do not live and walk by faith in the Word of God as He did. Another mark of discipleship is love one to another (John 13:35).

III. As Friends, we Commune. "Ye are My friends... I have called you friends (not patients), for all things that I have heard of My Father I have made known unto you" (John 15:14-15). A friend comes closer to the heart than a servant, "A servant knoweth not what his Lord doeth." It is a very sacred and humbling privilege to walk among men as the friends of Jesus Christ. As His friends, living in communion with Him, we become-

1. Sharers of His SECRETS. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him" (Psalms 25:14). It was of him who was "the friend of God" that God said, "Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?" The deep heart purposes of the Son of God are revealed to those who live in fellowship with Him. In the light of His presence they see light clearly. They walk among the gloomy shadows of a sinful world, with the secrets of life, peace, and eternal glory in their souls.

2. Sharers of His SYMPATHIES. As a devoted wife becomes a partaker of her husband's likes and dislikes, so does the friend of Jesus, through close contact with Him, becomes imbued with His thoughts and feelings. They love all that He loves and hate all that He hates. They are in real heart sympathy with Him in His desire to honour the Father, and at the same time to love, and seek to save, the sinful sons of men.

3. Sharers of His SUFFERINGS. "The world hated Me... because ye are not of the world...therefore the world hateth you" (John 15:18-19). Christ suffered because of His unlikeness to the world. His true friends will fare little better. Christ suffered in His daily life because of His sympathy with God His Father, and His separation from the sins and false conception of His age. The more we become like Him the more shall we feel the power of those forces in the world which were opposed to Him.

4. Sharers of His CONSOLATIONS. "For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ" (2 Corinthians 1:5). To be made a partaker of His sufferings, is to become an heir of His consolations. Such consolations are neither few not small, good measure, pressed down and running over. What the Father was to the Son, the Holy Spirit, the Comforter is to us an ever present, all sufficient compensation for all the sorrows and sufferings incurred through our sympathy with Christ, and service for Him. If we suffer, we shall also reign with Him, that is consolation indeed.

"I AND YOU"

John 15:12-26

In this chapter alone Christ uses the first personal pronoun with studied emphasis eleven times. In each case the chief importance of the words spoken lie in the character of Him who speaks. In these impressive I's of His there is the thought of-

I. Grace. "I have loved you" (John 15:12). You who sometime were afar off, but are now made nigh: you who were once in ignorance of Me, and walked according to the course of this world. I have loved you with a love that can only be compared with that love wherewith the Father hath loved Me (John 15:9). "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich."

II. Separation. "I chose you out of the world" (John 15:19, R.V.). "The whole world lieth in wickedness" (John 5:19). To be chosen of Christ is to be called out of the world into His fellowship and Kingdom. In this fellowship ye shall be partakers of His sufferings, for the world that hated Him will hate you. The Cain-spirit that seeks to slay those more righteous than themselves is ever with us (1 John 3:12). We are chosen out of the world like Noah, that we might be saved from it, and become witnesses against it. By faith, like Abraham, we must go out.

III. Friendship. "I have called you friends" (John 15:15). To be called friends by Him who is God's best Friend is an honour indeed. It was a blessed day for Mordecai when he was declared the friend of the king (Esther 6:11). Servants have kitchen privileges, but friends have parlour opportunities. Anywhere in the Lord's house is an honour and a blessing, but covet earnestly the best gifts. He will call you friend if ye abide in Him.

IV. Teaching. "All things....I have made known unto you" (John 15:15). He is the great Teacher come from God. As He sought to instil into the minds of His disciples the things that He heard of His Father, so by the Holy Spirit does He still make known the will of the Father, for all things are now delivered unto Him, and the Spirit takes the things which are His and shows them unto us.

V. Responsibility. "I have chosen you..that ye should bring forth fruit" (John 15:16). Having called His disciples friends, and having instructed them in the things concerning Himself, He expects them to be something else than mere patients in a doctor's hands. The love that has grown into friendship must go on ripening into fruitful service. A fruitless branch never serves the purpose of the vine. A barren Christian profession is a misrepresentation of Christ. "Chosen and ordained to bring forth fruit" (John 15:16). If the fruit of the Spirit is not manifest in our lives, we are falsifying both our calling and our ordination.

VI. Brotherly Love. "I command you that ye love one another" (John 15:17). Love is the bond that is to hold His people one to another amidst the hatred and opposition of this world. It is His command, His new commandment which is the sum of the whole law. Have this salt of love in yourselves, and there shall be peace one with another (Mark 9:50). Not to love one another is an act of rebellion against the rule of Christ.

VII. Promise. "I will send you..the Spirit of truth" (John 15:26). The word Comforter in this verse may be translated "Helper." This promised "Helper" is the "Spirit of truth." This "Spirit of truth the devil-deluded world cannot receive, because it seeth Him not, but He shall be in you" (John 14:17). In promising the Spirit, Christ promised every needful thing for life and service. He is the Spirit of truth, of grace, of burning, and of power. What a Helper He is! How fruitless our testimony without Him! "I will send Him unto you." "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." THE GREAT HELPER

The Lord Jesus Christ is mighty to save a sinner; the Holy Spirit is mighty to help a saint. The word "Comforter" has been variously translated. The terms "Advocate," "Paraclete," "Helper," have been used. In Romans 8:26, we read that "The Spirit helpeth our infirmities"- literally taketh hold with me. The same word is used in Luke 10:40, but nowhere else in the New Testament. "Bid her therefore that she help me." The Holy Spirit has come, as one who is willing and mighty to "take hold with me," that I might be helped in doing the will and work of God.

I. The Condition of His Coming. "If I go not away, the Helper will not come unto you, but if I go, I will send Him (not it) unto you" (John 16:7). Christ had to go, taking humanity into the character and presence of God, before the Spirit could come, bringing divinity into the character and presence of man (Acts 2:33). The bodily absence of the Redeemer was to ensure the spiritual presence of the Helper. The Spirit could not be given till Jesus was glorified (John 7:39). The coming of the Helper was the proof that Christ's atoning work was perfected, and that the Father, Son, and Spirit, were all most desirous that men should be helped into possession of the present and eternal fruits of the saving work of Jesus Christ.

II. His Mission in the World. "I will send Him unto you; and He, when He is come, He will convict the world in respect of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment" (John 16:8, R.V.). While the Spirit's attitude to the Church is that of an Helper, His attitude to the world is that of a Convicter. There are three things the world needs to be convicted of: Sin, righteousness, and judgment.

1. "Of SIN, because they believe not on Me" (John 16:9). The great sin of the world, in the eyes of the Holy Spirit, is unbelief-believing not the Son of God. His mission is to glorify Christ (John 16:14), and the first thing He does is to convict of the sin of rejecting His Word and sacrifice.

2. "Of RIGHTEOUSNESS, because I go to my Father." Christ could not go to His Father until He had gone to the Cross and the grave as an atonement for sin. To go to His Father, He must rise again from the dead. His resurrection and ascension secures for us that righteousness which His death for our sins had prepared. He died for our offences. He rose again for our justification (Romans 4:25). On the Cross He was made sin for us; now at the Father's right hand He is made of God unto us righteousness (1 Corinthians 1:30). This is the righteousness that the world needs, and that the Holy Spirit seeks to convict it of. Our own righteousnesses are as filthy rags in His sight.

3. "Of JUDGMENT, because the prince of this world hath been judged" (John 16:11, r.v). As surely as the prince of this world (Devil) has already been judged, and brought under condemnation by Christ's death and resurrection, so has every unbeliever. "He that believeth not hath been judged already" (John 3:18, R.V.). This is the judgment, that the light is come into the world, and men love the darkness rather than the light. The Spirit has come to convict concerning judgment. All down through these ages the Holy Spirit has been, as it were, prosecuting the world, bringing it to judgment, because of its criminal attitude toward the Son of God. How is this work done? Does the Spirit use any medium, through which He convicts the men of the world? The last clause of Luke 10:7 should surely not be separated in thought from Luke 10:8. "If I depart, I will send Him unto you, and when He is come-unto you-He will convict the world." It was when the Spirit had come with power unto Peter, that the three thousand were "pricked in their heart," on the day of Pentecost. A powerless Christian, or a powerless Church will never be successful in convicting the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. This needed work cannot be done in any other way, but by the Holy Ghost, the Almighty Helper.

III. His Mission to the Church. To the redeemed of God the Holy Spirit has come-

1. AS A GUIDE INTO ALL TRUTH. "Howbeit when He, the Spirit of truth, is come, He will guide you into all the truth" (John 16:13, R.V.). He is the Spirit of truth, because He has come out from Him who is "The Truth," in His person and doctrine. He guides into the truth, because the Spirit searcheth into the deep things of God (2 Corinthians 2:10). O soul, thirsting for the truth as it is in Jesus, receive the guidance of this heavenly Helper; ask Him, and depend upon Him to do it. This holy anointing teacheth you all things and is truth (1 John 2:27).

2. AS A REVEALER OF THE THINGS OF CHRIST. "He shall glorify Me; for He shall take of Mine, and shall declare it unto you" (John 16:14-15). He helps us all He can, by taking the things that are Christ's-by right of His sufferings and death -things purchased for His people by His own blood; and to declare them, or make them known unto us, that He might glorify the Son, by filling up and making fruitful the lives of His redeemed ones (John 15:8). Blessed Helper, help me to enter into this most precious inheritance. "All things are yours, for ye are Christ's."

3. AS AN EXAMPLE OF SELF-ABANDONED SERVICE. "He shall not speak from Himself; but whatsoever things He shall hear, these shall He speak; and He shall declare unto you the things that are to come" (John 16:13, R.V.). His ministry was one of entire self-abnegation. As Christ sought, through self-emptying, to glorify the Father, so the Holy Spirit likewise sought to glorify the Son: we also, through self-renunciation, must honour the Holy Spirit. The Son of God spake not from Himself (John 14:10, R.v.). Neither did the Holy Spirit, neither should we. Self-will, and self-wisdom, and every other form of self-assertiveness, is a usurping of the Holy Spirit. If we would have the help of the Spirit in our ministry for Christ, we shall not speak from our own authority, but whatsoever things we shall hear-from Him-these shall we speak, and shall declare the things that are to come. A LITTLE WHILE

In these verses, the words, "A little while," are repeated seven times over, as if they were of special significance. From the fact that our Lord, in explaining the meaning of them, used the parabolic form, we may infer that different applications may be made of them (John 16:25). "A little while, and ye shall not see Me...and ye shall be sorrowful... but I shall see you again, and your heart shall rejoice... and in that day ye shall ask Me no question." These precious words may easily have a threefold meaning. As the

I. Historical. "A little while, and ye shall not see Me." It was but "a little while"-a few hours-and Christ was buried out of their sight, though in a borrowed grave, yet sealed with the royal signet. The interval between His death and resurrection was, indeed, to them a time of "sorrow" and "lamenting," but to the world a time of rejoicing (Luke 24:17). The world's feasts go on more merrily in the absence of the Saviour from sin, but the Christian can find a feast nowhere where He is not. "A little while, and I shall see you again, and your heart shall rejoice." Their hearts did rejoice when, after three days, they saw Him again in resurrection power and glory. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord" (John 20:20). "They worshipped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy." "In that day" they did ask Him no question. The fact of His appearing to them as the Risen One was itself the answer to all their doubts and questionings. He who had power to rise from the dead, had power to perform His every promise. In a dark and cloudy day, the relative value of other lights may be disputed, but when the sun breaks out in all his glorious majesty, there is no questioning his all-sufficiency to meet the need.

II. Personal. "A little while..ye shall be sorrowful...but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice... in that day ye shall ask no question." The sorrowful "little while" of His called-out ones is now, while their Lord is absent, and the world is rejoicing. "In the world ye shall have tribulation" (John 16:33), but His "I will see you again" is the hope of his suffering saints. Through the gathering gloom we look for the breaking of the day, when we shall see Him face to face. Just now we may see as but through a glass darkly; there are many things that we cannot possibly understand, mysterious movements of the providence of God, and of the Holy Spirit, that at times sorely perplex our eager spirits, many things we should like explained. Yes, but "in that day ye shall ask Me no question." One look into the glorified face of our redeeming Lord will hush at once every restless feeling and every anxious thought. So satisfied shall we be when we see Him, that we shall not be able to ask Him any question. So perfect will be our acquiescence to His will in everything.

"Not a surge of worry, not a shade of care,

Not a blast of hurry moves the spirit there."

III. Dispensational. These words of our Lord may also be prophetic of that time when He will come again, taking to Himself His right to rule and reign over this world for which He died. The Church of God is now passing through its "little while" of sorrow, this is its time to "weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice." In the latter days perilous times will come. But the Church's hope lies in His promise, "I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." She, like a woman in travail, hath sorrow now, but when the Man is born into the world, she shall remember no more her anguish for joy (John 16:21). God's people just now are sadly divided and full of questionings, but on that day when He shall appear in the glory of His power, as King of kings and Lord of lords, "ye shall ask no questions." All human questionings are for ever set at rest in the presence of the glorified Son of God. Angels ask Him no questions, but it is our great privilege now to "Ask that we may receive" (John 16:23).

CHRIST'S GIFTS TO HIS OWN

John 17

In approaching this chapter we feel as if we were passing through the veil into the holiest of all. This prayer of our Great High Priest, just before He offered Himself upon the altar of the Cross as the sacrifice for the sin of the world, is in itself a great unveiling of holy things. Here every petition is a revelation, every declaration a discovery. From these-Christ's own words-we shall note first of all some of the blessings He has conferred upon His own. Observe the-

I. Life of God. "Thou hast given Him authority over all flesh, that..to them He should give eternal life" (John 17:2, r.v.). This eternal life consists in knowing God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent (John 17:3). To know Him is to be made a partaker of His nature, to be adopted into His family as "sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty." When Christ condescended to take upon Him the likeness of sinful flesh, God gave Him authority over all flesh, that He might give this life to all who believe.

II. Name of God. "I have manifested Thy Name unto the men whom Thou gavest Me out of the world" (John 17:6). The life and work of Jesus Christ was "the Lord proclaiming the Name of the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth." In manifesting the Name of God, He was manifesting His nature. He could truly say, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." But only those given Him "out of the world" could receive this gracious revelation. "The world by wisdom knew not God."

III. Words of God. "I have given them the words which Thou gavest Me" (John 17:8). This thought is frequently expressed in this Gospel (chaps. John 12:49; John 14:10). Those who have been made alive unto God must feed upon the words of the Living God. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Christ Himself is the truth, because the words He spake were the very words and doctrines taught Him by the Eternal Father. "I and My Father are One." One in nature and in purpose, One in will, in deed, and in truth. "The words that I speak unto you are spirit and life." As He lived by faith in those words given Him, so shall we. "Believe, and thou shalt see."

IV. Service of God. "I am glorified in them" (John 17:10). As the Father was glorified in the Son (John 17:4), so the Son is to be glorified in His own. The words of God have been given us as they were given to Jesus Christ His Son, for a very definite and gracious purpose, that God might be glorified in faithful and successful service (John 17:4). The privilege of working for Him is a precious gift. Alas, that so many should neglect to stir up this gift. How is Christ to be glorified in us unless there is wholehearted surrender to His will and work, as He was to the will and work which the Father gave Him to do? Was not this what the apostle meant when he said, "Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death?" (Php_1:20).

V. Glory of God. "And the glory which Thou hast given Me I have given unto them" (John 17:22, r.v.). What glory was this that Christ received from God the Father, and passed on to His disciples? Did not this glory consist in God's nature and Name, His words and work, which were given to the Son, and which in grace He has imparted to His followers? As He is, so are we. There is, besides, the glory that is yet to be revealed when we shall be with Him where He is (John 17:24). As God gave Him the glory of Sonship and heirship, so hath He given this glory to us who believe (John 1:12). The purpose of this manifold gift is, "that they all may be one," even as Christ and the Father are One (John 17:22). What would be the results if this glory was really witnessed by the world?

VI. Love of God. "I made known unto them Thy Name, and will make it known that the love wherewith Thou lovedst Me may be in them" (John 17:26). Christ hath made known, and will go on making known the Name (character) of God, that His nature which is love may be continually nurtured in us. This He does by the gift of the Holy Ghost, who sheds this love abroad in our hearts (Romans 5:5). It is surely a heart-searching thought that our Lord should close His great unveiling priestly prayer with this testimony, that the purpose for which He had faithfully declared the Name of God was that the love which God had for His Son might be in us. Has this grace of the Lord Jesus Christ been in vain to us? Are we rejoicing in the depth, the fullness, and the eternity of this love? Is this love being revealed to others through us, as it has been revealed through Christ to us?

CHRIST'S PETITIONS FOR HIS OWN

John 17

This is one of the chapters of which Baxter in his "Saint's Rest" says, "It is of more value than all the other books in the world." But the veil that is over the heart needs to be taken away, before the hidden glory can be seen. This is not a prayer for the world. "I pray not for the world." His cry for the perishing world came out of His agonised heart while hanging on the Cross (Luke 23:34). Here He pleads for those that had been given Him out of the world. He prayed that they might be-

I. Kept by the Father. "Holy Father, keep them in Thine own Name which Thou hast given Me" (John 17:11). To be kept in His own Name is to be kept in His own character and likeness; is to be continually acknowledged and claimed as His own sons and daughters. They are to be kept in that Name which Christ had manifested to them (John 17:6). "The Name of the Lord is a strong tower, the righteous runneth into it and are safe" (Proverbs 18:10).

II. Happy in Themselves. "Now I come to Thee... that they may have My joy fulfilled in themselves" (John 17:13). He who was the "Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief," was no stranger to that joy which is in the Holy Ghost (Romans 14:17). If His joy had been in Himself alone, how could He impart it to others? But being in the Holy Spirit, this He could and did give. The Lord's people are not asked to put on a smiling face without possessing a smiling heart. This holy personal joy is the joy of true fellowship with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ, in the communion of the Holy Ghost (1 John 1:3-4).

III. Protected from the Devil. "I pray..that Thou shouldest keep them from the evil one" (John 17:15, R.v.). Christ knew, from personal experience, the subtle dangers that lay in being tempted of the Devil, so He prays here that we might be kept from yielding to his illuding devices. "When ye pray, say, Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one" (Matthew 6:13, r.v.). "He that is begotten of God keepeth Him, and the evil one toucheth him not" (1 John 5:18, r.v.). While we by faith keep hold of Him who has destroyed the works of the Devil, God will keep us by His mighty power from the evil one.

IV. Holy unto God. "Sanctify them in Thy truth... for their sakes I sanctify Myself, that they also might be truly sanctified" (John 17:17, John 17:19, margin). As He consecrated, or set Himself apart for us, He prays that we may be consecrated (set apart) for Him, He says, "As the Father sent Me into the world, even so have I sent them into the world" (John 17:18). He delivered the same message to His disciples after His resurrection (John 20:21). Ye are not your own, ye are, in the purpose of His grace, separated unto Himself, "therefore glorify God in your body and your spirit, which are His."

V. Useful unto Others. "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe in Me through their word" (John 17:20). Then Christ expected that others would believe on His Name through them; that the "other sheep" which were not of this little fold, were to hear His voice "through their word," and be brought into the one flock under the one Shepherd (John 10:16). Let your light so shine-that light which He hath shined into your hearts-that others, seeing the good works of God in you, may glorify your Father which is in Heaven. He hath blessed us, that we might be made a blessing. Let us see that the Holy One is not limited in His saving grace by our unbelief (Psalms 78:41).

VI. United One to Another. He prayed also, "That they all may be one" (John 17:21). There is here a double union. His request to the Father is that as brethren, they might be one in themselves, and as sons, they might be "one in us..as Thou Father art in Me, and I in Thee." How blessed Christian fellowship would be, if it resembled the fellowship that exists between the Father and the Son. That they may be one as we are, is the longing of Christ's heart (Galatians 3:28). The anticipated outcome of this is, "That the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me." The world still needs to know that love of God which sent His Son to save it (John 3:16).

VII. Glorified with Christ. "Father, I will that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am, that they may behold My glory" (John 17:24). When He shall appear, we shall be like Him. Here we are more familiar with the sufferings of Christ than with the glory which is now His with the Father; but our afflictions, which are light compared with His, are working out for us as His afflictions wrought out for Him, "an exceeding and eternal weight of glory" (2 Corinthians 4:17). If we suffer with Him, we shall also be glorified together with Him. Our eyes have often been dimmed with tears while beholding His sufferings, but all tears shall be wiped away and every heart questioning hushed when we behold His glory. We cannot say of the prayers of Christ, as with the prayers of David, that "they are ended," for they are still being fulfilled. May we, through our sanctified lives, help to give Him these desires of His heart. THE CHRISTIAN'S RELATIONSHIP TO THE WORLD

I. They are Taken Out of the World. "The men which Thou gavest Me out of the world " (John 17:6). The world, as such, is a ruined mass, lying in the lap of the evil one; being coddled by the illusions and guided by the false principles of the god of this world; but the followers of Jesus Christ have in spirit been lifted up out of the whole thing, as out of an horrible pit and miry clay, and have been established in the Kingdom of our God, and of His Christ, which is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. "Ye are not of the world, even as I am not of the world."

II. They are Distinguished from the World. "I pray for them: I pray not for the world" (John 17:9). As soon as we become separated in spirit from the world, we come under a new set of laws in the Kingdom of grace. We are dealt with as children of God, not as the mere offspring of His creative power. Christ loves His own with a love which is peculiar to His own. While He has the love of pity for the world, He has the love of pleasure for His own. Because they are in heart for Him, He in heart and power is for them; so all things work together for good to them that love Him.

III. They are In the World. "But these are in the world" (John 17:11). As to their spirit and purpose, they are out of the world, but as to their bodily presence and influence, they are still in the world. In the world, but not of it, even as Christ was (John 17:16). In the world, not as a branch in the vine, but as a light in the darkness; not as a member in the body, but as a physician in the hospital. In the world, not as a "man of the world," but as a "man of God"; not as its slave, but as its victor.

IV. They are Hated by the World. "The world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world" (John 17:14). There was no hatred until He had given them the Word of God. "I have given them Thy Word, and the world hath hated them." This God-given Word, when received, so revolutionised their minds and hearts that the world did not know them, and so contrary did they become to the world's ways and maxims that they hated them. The worldly wise and the worldly prudent cannot receive those precious things which God is prepared to reveal unto babes (Matthew 11:25). The hatred of the world is a trifling matter to those whose hearts are filled with the love of God.

V. They are Kept from the god of this World. "I pray..that Thou shouldest keep them from the evil one" (John 17:15, R.V.). He does not pray that we should be taken out of this world, but kept from the evil one who rules in it. We need not weary to get out of this world so long as we can be made a perpetual miracle and monument of His keeping power in it. We are surely at perfect liberty to claim, for the honour of Christ's own Name, the daily fulfilment of this prayer in our own lives. Our beloved gourds may wither, but His promise cannot.

VI. They are Sent Into the World. "As Thou hast sent Me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world" (John 17:18). Every Spirit-anointed one is sent to preach good tidings (Luke 4:18). As Christ was sent into the world to seek and save that which was lost, so also are we. As He was an ambassador for God, so also are we for Jesus Christ (2 Corinthians 5:20). As He was not sent on His own charges, so neither are we. As He was in the world, not on His own account but as a Sent One, so are we. Those sent by Him will be equipped by Him for the work, as He was equipped by the Father which sent Him. "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (John 20:21).

VII. They are Indwelt for the Salvation of the World. "I in them, and Thou in Me....that the world may know" (John 17:23). As the Father was in the Son, so the Son desires to be in us, that the world may know the love of God. Christ fulfilled, in a perfect manner, all required of Him, but what miserable counterfeits many of us are. The Son has given Himself as freely to us as the Father gave Himself to the Son, that His great love might triumph in us and through us. As God so loved the world that He gave His Son, so doth the Son so love the world that He gives His Spirit-filled followers, and for the self-same purpose. "Christ liveth in me," says Paul (Galatians 2:20), and all the world knows to what a God-honouring result. The one thing needful that this world needs to know is the Love of God; not only God's love to the world, but His love to His Son, and to them that love Him. "That Thou hast loved them as Thou hast loved Me." May this love be shed abroad in our hearts, and out through our hearts into this cold Christ-neglecting world around us.

REVELATIONS IN THE GARDEN

John 18:1-11

Every circumstance in which Jesus Christ was placed, somehow or other, became the occasion of a further revelation of His wondrous character. Wherever He was, He, in His unique Personality, could not be hid. In these few verses we see some rays of His heavenly glory breaking through the dark cloud of His earthly weakness. Here is a revelation of-

I. His Habit of Prayer. "Judas..knew the place; for Jesus oft-times resorted thither with His disciples" (John 18:2). Although Christ possessed the spirit of prayer, He believed also in the place of prayer. When one gets familiar with their surroundings, the mind is more free for intercourse with the unseen and eternal. In the matter of frequent praying, as well as in suffering, the sinless Son of God has left us an example.

II. His Knowledge of the Future. "Jesus therefore, knowing all the things that were coming upon Him, went forth" (John 18:4, R.v.). He knew that "all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man shall be accomplished," for the Scriptures must be fulfilled (Luke 18:31). Our knowledge of the future must be derived from the same source. If we had the faith that Jesus Christ had in those words uttered by men full of the Holy Ghost, then would we be among those wise men which discern the signs of the times.

III. His Confession Concerning Himself. "I am He" (John 18:5). They declared that they were seeking Jesus of Nazareth. He confessed that He was that Nazarene. Reproach had been associated with that Name, and He willingly accepts it and bears it. It was as if they said, "Where is that despised and rejected One?" He answered, "I am He." This solemn "I am He" of the Son of God may be looked upon as His answer to all who seek Him, whether through love and mercy, or hate and derision. It is with Him all have to do.

IV. His Power Over His Enemies. "As soon as He had said unto them, I am He, they went backward, and fell to the ground" (John 18:6). It was good for them that they had the ground to fall on. The same power that drove them back might have as easily driven them into Hell. This manifestation of His power was His last convincing proof that, apart from His own will, they had no power at all against Him. "No man taketh it from Me, but I lay it down of Myself" (John 10:18).

V. His Love for His Own. "If, therefore, ye seek Me, let these go their way" (John 18:8). These words are full of solemn significance, as they reveal Christ's attitude toward the powers of darkness and the sheep of His pasture. He was no hireling to flee when the wolf cometh. What He here said to His enemies He could say with a deeper meaning to that "death and the curse" which was coming upon Him. "If, therefore, ye seek Me, let these go their way." As our Substitute and Surety, His chief desire was the salvation of His people. Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

VI. His Submission to His Father's Will. "The cup which My Father hath given Me, shall I not drink it?" (John 18:11). He knew the Father's love too well to refuse even that awful cup of suffering that was just now being put into His hands. He was so perfectly at one with the Father's purposes that His meat was to do His will and to finish His work. As the weapons of His warfare were not carnal, neither are ours, yet they are mighty, through obedience to God, to the pulling down of strongholds. By His surrender and obedience unto death, He triumphed in resurrection power. He hath left us an example that we should follow His steps.

CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS AT THE HANDS OF MEN

John 18

He suffered by being-

I. Betrayed by the Hypocritical. "Judas also, which betrayed Him, stood with them" (John 18:5). He who companied with Christ, and shared the fellowship of His disciples, now takes his stand among the enemies of his Lord, and lends his influence towards His downfall. "Woe unto you hypocrites."

II. Defended by the Passionate. "Simon Peter having a sword, drew it and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear" (John 18:10). The Lord had as little need for Peter's passion as for his sword. The wrath of man works not for the praise of God. There is a zeal for Christ and His cause that must be more painful than pleasing unto Him.

III. Smitten by the Unreasonable. "Jesus answered, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why smitest thou Me?" (John 18:23). It is easier for pride and prejudice to sneer and to smite than to face the truth. Self-seeking men are ever ready to justify themselves if it should be at the cost of smiting the character of the Saviour. But the clouds that would hide the face of the sun cannot hinder its progress.

IV. Denied by the Cowardly. When Simon Peter was charged with being "One of His disciples, he denied it, and said, I am not" (John 18:25). The Lord and His cause still suffers much through the cowardliness of His professed followers. There are other ways than Peter's in denying Christ. He did it with his tongue; we may do it with our feet, or by our general conduct. When the act or behaviour is more in keeping with the enemies of Christ than with His Word and teaching it is practically a denial of Him.

V. Shunned by the Self-righteous. "Then led they Jesus...unto the hall of judgment...and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be denied, but that they might eat the passover" (John 18:28). Any thing or place was clean enough for Jesus, but they must preserve their (supposed) ceremonial holiness. "They strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel." This is what one has called "putid hypocrisy." These, like all other self-righteous bigots, would seek the blessing without the Blesser; they would have the passover without Him who is the Passover (1 Corinthians 5:7). They are like men crying for light and closing their eyes to the sun.

VI. Questioned by the Ambitious. Pilate asked three questions of Jesus, and profited nothing by them: (1) "Art Thou the King of the Jews?" (John 18:33); (2) "What is truth?" (John 18:38); (3) "Whence art Thou?" (chap. John 19:9). By such questions the Christ was "oppressed and afflicted," so He "opened not His mouth." Men animated by selfish and impure motives still oppress Him, whose Divinity is clear as the sun, by their questionings regarding His character and teaching. He that doeth His will shall know of the teaching whether it be of God (John 7:17).

VII. Mocked by the Frivilous. "The soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on His head....and said, Hail, King of the Jews" (chap. John 19:2). These men of war set Him who is the Prince of Peace at naught (Luke 23:11). To them the kingdom of Caesar is everything, the Kingdom of God nothing, material things important, but spiritual things ridiculed and laughed at. Truly they know not what they do, who trifle with the Person of the Lord Jesus Christ (Revelation 1:17-18).

"I have seen the face of Jesus,

Tell me not of aught beside;

I have heard the voice of Jesus,

All my soul is satisfied."

MARY MAGDALENE

John 20:1-18

John was that disciple whom Jesus loved, but Mary Magdalene was surely that disciple who pre-eminently loved Jesus. She loved much because she had been forgiven much (Luke 8:2). Behold her-

I. Anxiety. She came "early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre" (John 20:1). The darkness without was nothing to her who had had the lamp of heavenly love burning in her heart. Was it only to see the sepulchre she came? Was there not a tremulous restlessness about her feelings that some unusual thing was about to happen?

II. Disappointment. "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid Him" (John 20:2). It never was more blessedly true than in this case, that our disappointment is God's appointment. In search for a dead Lord, she finds but an empty grave. He is "away" not that she might lose Him but that she might-to her heart's satisfaction-find Him.

III. Sorrow. "Mary stood at the sepulchre weeping" (John 20:11-13). Peter and John, at her report, ran together to the sepulchre and looked in and returned again to their own home, but Mary stood, as one bound to that tomb by the cords of faith and love. So intense were her desires, and so blinded were her eyes by sorrow, that "the angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain," never seemed to awaken a suspicion in her mind that the Lord was risen. Yes, it is possible to be so overwhelmed with our imaginary loss that we fail to grasp God's greatest blessing.

IV. Mistake. "She supposing Him to be the gardener," etc. (John 20:15). Even in resurrection power our Lord had still the likeness of sinful flesh. Why did she not know Him? The likelihood is that she was so perfectly absorbed in thought that she was blind to all outward objects-"Swallowed up with overmuch grief." The love of her heart was all right, but the theory of her head was all wrong. It will save us much sorrow and disappointment to have a correct creed as well as a devoted life. He was risen, as He said, but they believed Him not.

V. Discovery. "Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself and saith unto Him, Rabboni" (Master) (John 20:16). She needed to have her eyes turned away from herself and from the grave, to see Him who is the Resurrection and the Life. The word of Jesus caught her ear and sunk into her heart. He called her by her name and claimed her as His own (Isaiah 43:1). His sheep hear His voice. No one who ever seeks the Lord Jesus Christ ever finds a dead or powerless Saviour. The deepest cry of a living soul is for a living God (Psalms 42:2).

VI. Boldness. "Touch Me not" (John 20:17). She evidently fell down and was about to embrace His feet, when Jesus stood back saying, "Touch Me not, for I am not yet ascended to My Father." Another little disappointment to her ardent heart and another lesson to her that she must learn to walk by faith and not by sight. No mortal hand was allowed to touch Him, who died as the sinner's Substitute, until He had presented Himself to His Father for acceptance as our Redeemer and High Priest. Afterwards every doubting Thomas was invited to thrust his hand into His side that he might feel the mark left by the spear wound.

VII. Obedience. "Jesus said unto her, Go to My brethren and say unto them...Mary came and told the disciples" (John 20:17-18). She tarried in the garden until she was endued with the power of a great commission. What a message was Mary's, the Gospel of Sonship; "My Father, and your Father," in the power of the Resurrection. Her love is rewarded by being made the first herald of His resurrection power. "He that loveth Me..I will manifest Myself unto him." The vision of the glorified Christ makes a willing servant (Acts 9:6).

DOUBTING THOMAS

That evening of the first day of the first resurrection week was an ever memorable one. The hearts of the disciples were full of fear and wonder at the things which had happened (John 20:18). They had met with closed and bolted doors, for fear of their enemies, to reconsider the whole situation. But He who died to save them set all their doubtings and their fears at rest, by suddenly appearing among them, speaking peace and breathing into them a foretaste of Pentecostal power and blessing. All Christ's acts here are full of significance. (1) He spoke the word of "Peace" to them; (2) He revealed Himself as the Crucified One (John 20:20); (3) He Commissioned them (John 20:21); (4) He Endued them (John 20:22); (5) He promised them success in His business (John 20:23). Now what about Thomas? If Peter was rash with his tongue, Thomas was slow in his mind (chap. John 14:5). Observe his-

I. Lost Opportunity. "But Thomas.. was not with them when Jesus came" (John 20:24). Why he was absent is not stated, but it is at least suggestive that he was absent. He must have known of the meeting, but being incredulous regarding the resurrection of Christ, he probably had given up all hope, feeling utterly perplexed and ashamed. In refusing to assemble with His brethren he only strengthened his unbelief and lost the faith-confirming fellowship of the Lord. Those out of fellowship with the body of believers need not expect to enjoy the fellowship of Christ.

II. Emphatic Denial. When the disciples said unto him, "We have seen the Lord," he said, "Except I see.... I will not believe" (John 20:25). He was faithless (John 20:27). His heart was hardened against the truth of "the resurrection." His "I will not" reveals the desperate antagonism that was in his nature. He would walk by sight, not by faith. It is little short of madness to set one's self against the united testimony of the disciples of Jesus Christ. The imperious "I will not believe" of the haughty and prejudiced mind can never make the faith of God of none effect. "Believe, and thou shalt see."

III. Humbling Rebuke. Thomas gained nothing but sadness and separation from his independent attitude. He did not, however, miss the next meeting of the disciples, "after eight days," for "Thomas was with them." Again Jesus appeared and saith to Thomas, "Reach hither thy finger..and be not faithless, but believing" (John 20:27). He had now, according to the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, an opportunity of "handling the Word of Life," but as soon as He comes within touch, the hand of unbelief is paralysed. What the disciples could not do in a week's reasoning, Jesus Christ did in a moment by His Word. Unbelief is the most shameful of all things when Christ Himself is seen. How Thomas must afterward have repented over his treatment of the testimony of his believing friends. Are we not losing much blessing just now for the same reason, refusing to believe those who have experienced a fullness of blessing to which we, in our unbelief, are utter strangers? May He so reveal Himself to us that every doubt will be ashamed before Him.

IV. Confession of Faith. "Thomas answered and said unto Him, My Lord and my God." He hath seen, and he hath believed, but the blessedness of the man who hath not seen and yet hath believed could never be his (John 20:29). However, he hath believed, and that with all his heart. His words were few, but profound, and came from the uttermost depths of His soul. There was in them a confession- 1. Of His DEITY. "My God."

2. Of His AUTHORITY over him. "My Lord."

3. Of his PERSONAL SURRENDER to Him. "My Lord and My God."

HOW JESUS SHOWED HIMSELF

John 21:1-14

After His resurrection no one could see Jesus through mere curiosity or by accident. Neither Mary nor the two men who walked with Him on the way to Emmaus knew Him till He revealed Himself to them. None but disciples ever saw Him in His resurrection body. The vision now is a spiritual one; only those who believe shall see the glory of God in the Person of the risen Christ. "On this wise shewed He Himself" on that memorable morning.

I. The Time. It was-

1. AFTER A NIGHT OF FAILURE. "That night they caught nothing" (John 21:3). In those days of quiet testing. Peter got somewhat restless and said, "I go a-fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee." They followed Peter, and they caught nothing. Disappointment and defeat may prepare us for a new manifestation of the grace and power of Jesus Christ. To labour without His presence and blessing is like putting our treasure in a bag with holes. Failure in business may be a good preparation for spiritual success.

2. AT THE BREAKING OF THE DAY. "When the day was now breaking, Jesus stood on the shore" (John 21:4, r.v.). Sorrow may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning when He appears He was there, but they knew Him not There is always the breaking of a new day when Christ shows Himself afresh to the weary soul. Every vision of Him is a new and fuller dawning of the heavenly day.

II. The Manner. Our Lord followed the example of no man. He had His own unique way of showing both Himself and His doctrine. He began to reveal Himself by-

1. LEADING THEM TO CONFESSION. "Children, have ye aught to eat? They answered Him, No!" (John 21:5, R.V.). This was an honest confession of failure. They had taken nothing, so they made no attempt to make it look like something. They had nothing, neither for themselves nor for others, and they said so; and by so doing put themselves in a position to be blessed by the Lord. Beware of misrepresentation and exaggeration. Christ is interested in our reports.

2. TESTING THEIR FAITH. "Cast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find" (John 21:6). They had toiled all night to no purpose, and now that the day was breaking they had given up all hope. But the authoritative voice of that stranger on the shore, so full of promise, was heard, and immediately obeyed. There is always a ring of certainty about the Word of the Lord Jesus. To hear it is to have our hearts tested by it.

3. TURNING FAILURE INTO SUCCESS. "They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes" (John 21:6). They obeyed, and their faith was abundantly rewarded. By this sign which followed, John was constrained to say, "It is the Lord." This is the Lord's doing; John feels that it is so like Him. Yes, it is just Christ-like to turn our total defeat into unprecedented success, through the giving of His Word and the believing of it. It is in "this wise" that sinners are converted, and fruitless Christians made wise to win souls.

4. PROVIDING FOR THEIR WANTS. "As soon as they came to land they saw a fire of coals, a fish, and a loaf" (John 21:9, R.V., margin). Even in His resurrection body the Lord was not unmindful of the bodies of His cold and hungry disciples. This is another revelation of His love and care for His own. It was not, perhaps, a sumptuous feast, but it was according to His manner as the Shepherd of His flock. "The Lord is My Shepherd, I shall not want." "My God shall supply all your need" (Php_4:19). The Son of God is always before us in His providential arrangements.

5. HAVING FELLOWSHIP WITH THEM. "Jesus said unto them, Come and break your fast..Jesus then cometh and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise" (John 21:12-13). Now, "none of the disciples durst ask Him, Who art Thou?" None but the Lord Himself could act in this manner, showing such grace and power. Christ has a way of giving, whereby He Himself is made known (Luke 24:30-31). He gave Himself for us. The law demands, but the grace of God that has come to us in Christ Jesus delights to give. It is an ever memorable experience to have our long spiritual fast broken by the blessings provided for us, and offered to us by Him who died for us and rose again. Eat, O friends! Come and dine. "Behold, all things are now ready" (Matthew 22:4).

LOVEST THOU ME?

John 21:15.

"Lovest thou Me?" Let this tender but heart-searching question of our Lord come home to our own hearts. It is not enough for Him that we love His words and works if Himself be not the chief object of our affections. If "Tis what I love determines how I love," then love for Christ, the "altogether lovely," should determine the manner and intensity of our love for others.

I. Love Desired. "Lovest thou Me?" Three times with varying emphasis did Christ put this question to Peter (John 21:15-17). Zeal for truth without a personal devotion to the Son of God, as the embodiment of Divine love, is not true piety, but an exhibition of "mildewed theology." In uttering these words to Peter, the. Son of Man was but seeking that fruit which could alone satisfy His own gracious heart. In degree, our love cannot be equal to His, but it ought in kind to resemble it.

II. Love Acknowledged. Where there is love to Christ, He is always quick to recognise and confess it. The woman in Simon's house who had washed, wiped, kissed, and anointed His feet because "She loved much," was not only noticed and commended, but used by the Lord as a powerful rebuke to the frozen-hearted Pharisee (Luke 7:44-47). It is only love alone that can understand love, and make an adequate response. Perfect love casteth out fear.

III. Love Manifested. Love must reveal itself, it cannot be hid. If God loved the world, that love is seen in the gift of His Son. If Christ loved the Church, then He gave Himself for it. If we love God, then we shall love our brother also. Love to Christ will show itself-

1. By SEEKING Him. It was Mary's love for Him that constrained her so passionately to seek Him (John 20:15). The love of Christ constraineth us. Whom seek ye?

2. By CONFESSING Him. Peter said, "Yea, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee" (John 21:15). With the waning of our first love comes a waning of our desire for testimony. If we love Him with all our heart, then we shall confess Him with all our strength and might.

3. By SERVING Him. After Peter's threefold confession of love for Him, came the Lord's threefold injunction to serve Him. "Feed." Feeding His sheep and His lambs- not thrashing or amusing them-is the evidence of love for the Lord Jesus Christ. "Love, which is the essence of God, is not for levity, but for the total good of man," is how Emerson puts it. Jacob's seven years' service for Rachel seemed but a few days, because of the love he had for her. Love lightens labour.

4. By SACRIFICING for Him. The love that cannot sacrifice is shallow and hypocritical. The sinner in Simon's house, because of her "much love," sacrificed her "hair" and her "precious ointment" to Him (Luke 7:38; see also John 12:3). The apostle who could say, "He loved me and gave Himself for me," did also say, "I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die for the Name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 21:13). "Love can be bought with nothing but with itself." Just as the highest act of God's love was the sacrifice of His Son, the express image of Himself, so the highest act of human love is the sacrifice of self for the glory of God.

"IF I WILL"

John 21:15-22

After they had dined, the Lord showed Himself in another way to Peter, when He searched the secrets of his heart with that threefold question, "Lovest thou Me?" This was Peter's final examination for the Gospel ministry. It had to do with the heart more than the head. It was a test of love. There can be no truly educated ministry without a wholehearted devotion to the Person of Jesus Christ. It was because of Peter's confession of love he received his commission to serve, "Feed My lambs." After the Lord had signified to Peter by what painful death he should glorify God, Peter made no protest, accepting it at once as the good will of God, but he became anxious to know how John was to end his earthly journey, "What shall this man do?" Jesus said, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou Me." This reply of Christ to Peter's question of curiosity is a further revelation of His unique methods and matchless character. "If I will." This is an I that stretches from the deepest depths to the highest heights; its arms reach out to all time past and to the eternity to come. These words of Christ are a revelation to us of His-

I. Views of Life. His eye was always on the great essentials of true existence. He allowed no place for mere personal curiosity. "What is that to thee? Follow thou Me." Here is the true centre around which our lives should move, and from which they must receive their guiding and inspiring principles. We must be more anxious to follow Christ than to contrast our experience with the experience of others, either in their life or in their death.

II. Methods of Working. "If I will that he tarry... what is that to thee?" His dealings with His disciples is not in any stiff mechanical fashion, not after the rigid law of uniformity. The wealth of Christ's wisdom and power cannot permit of this. Each individual disciple will have His special consideration and providence. He calleth His own sheep by name, which means nature, and will deal with them for their highest good and His highest glory.

III. Divine Power. "If I will." What a will this is! What a refuge for the weary trembling soul! His will is not a burden for us to carry, but a pillow on which to rest. Think of the dignity, authority, almightiness, that lie in these words, like strength in a giant's limb. He has but to will and it shall be done, for His will is done in Heaven and among the inhabitants of the earth. If He wills to bless thee and keep thee, then thou shall be blessed and kept. How safe and right our life is when yielded to His will!

IV. Abiding Presence. "Follow thou Me." By His Word and Spirit, lo, He is with us alway, even to the end of the age. He has left us an example that we should follow His steps. "Follow thou Me." Is this possible now that He is risen in newness of life, and seated in heavenly glory? Yes. It is His will. Whatever is His will for us is possible to us. Think of the privilege of following Him whom angels delight to honour, and of the tremendous possibilities associated with such a life.

V. Second Advent. "Till I come" (John 21:22). This is at least the third time in this Gospel that our Lord definitely refers to His coming again (chaps. John 14:3; John 16:22). Throughout the New Testament there are something like 603 references to this subject. He has come as a suffering Saviour. He shall come as a glorious King. The hope of the Church is the Cross of Christ, the hope of the world lies in the throne of Christ When He comes again it will not be in grace, but to assert His right and reign. "Then the kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of our God and of His Christ." Blessed hope! This heavy-laden world, staggering on through the ages with its ever-gathering burden of sin and woe into ever-deepening darkness, shall, at the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, be saved and filled with His glory (Hebrews 10:37).

Acts

THE INFANT CHURCH

Acts 1

The infant Church was mighty in its infancy. The present-day snare of precedency was unknown in those early days of simple, childlike trust, when everything seemed to be sprinkled with a dewy resurrection freshness. May this newness of life be ours. To this end let us look at some of those features which characterised the members of the infant Church, and let us ask ourselves whether we as His sheep have the same marks upon us?

1. They were in fellowship with their Risen Lord. "To whom He showed Himself . . . and assembled together with them" (Acts 1:3 and Acts 1:4). The resurrection of Christ was an unquestionable fact to them. He had now become their very life. "Christ our life." They had each personally experienced the power of His presence-a presence which not one of the unbelieving ever knew. Do we know what that means?

2. They received the promise of the Holy Ghost. "Ye shall be baptised with the Holy Ghost not many days hence" (Acts 1:5). This great "promise of the Father" (Acts 1:4) is made to every heaven-born child of God, and should be as definitely accepted as the promise of eternal life. This promise was not given that they might be more fully justified before God, but that God might be more fully justified in them before the world (Ezekiel 38:16). See Acts 19:2.

3. They were obedient to His Word. "Then returned they unto Jerusalem, . . . and went up into an upper room" (Acts 1:12-13). The Lord had told them to wait for the fulfilment of the promise, so they had come to wait. They did not gather together to discuss the manner, the time, or extent of the promised outpouring, but to wait. They had made up their minds simply to do their Master's bidding, and leave the rest with Him. "Go thou and do likewise."

4. They were united in Spirit. "These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication" (Acts 1:14). Why should they pray when they had His sure word of promise? Was not the very certainty of the promise a powerful incentive to wait and to pray? A Pentecostal day will come at any time when there is the same unity of spirit and persistent, believing prayer (Matthew 18:19-20).

5. They honoured the Scriptures. "Peter stood up and said, Men and brethren, this scripture must needs be fulfilled," etc. (Acts 1:15-20). Peter and the one hundred and nineteen that were with him had no difficulty at all as to David being the author of Psalm 69, and that he spoke prophetically under the guidance of the Holy Ghost (2 Timothy 3:16). He who handles the Word of God so as to foster discredit has grieved the Holy Spirit, and done the work of the devil.

6. They brought their difficulties to the Lord in prayer. "Thou, Lord, knowest the hearts of all: show whether of these two Thou hast chosen" (21-24). Two had been named to fill the one office. They were quite willing to sink their own individual preferences, and accept him whom the Lord should commend. As it was then, so is it now. Only the called of God will succeed. If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God. The infant Church was mightier than the aged Church of the present day. Why? Well, Why? The clamant need of the church is:- 1. A new revelation of the Risen Christ.

2. A fuller experience of the power of His Resurrection.

3. An unwavering faith in His Word.

4. A fresh baptism of the Holy Ghost.

5. The spirit of unity amongst believers.

6. Believing prayer. THE ASCENDED LORD

Luke 24:50-53; Acts 1:4-11

"He led them out as far as to Bethany." From Bethany He started on His journey to the Cross of shame; from there also He starts on His journey to the Crown of glory. Here the disciples witnessed their Lord slowly rising up before their eyes. While His body was gradually ascending into the Heavens, He "lifted His hands and blessed them," and as He blessed He slowly vanished into the cloud that carried Him into Heaven. Do we wonder that after He was gone they still stood "gazing up into Heaven?" They had scarcely awakened to the fact of His resurrection when they beheld another wonder equally momentous and glorious. "Truly, this was the Son of God." If our worldly hopes are crucified with Christ, we shall have new and brighter hopes in His resurrection and translation to the Father's throne. Associated with the Ascension, we have brought before us some of the "things which accompany salvation" (Hebrews 6:9). Let us give earnest heed to them.

I. The Baptism of the Holy Ghost. "Ye shall be baptised with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 1:5-8). Jesus died for our sins, and rose again for our justification, and ascended for our enduement with the power of the Holy Ghost. The power of the Holy Spirit upon His disciples was the witness that Christ, the Crucified One, was now in the presence of the Father (John 16:7). These early and true-hearted followers did not believe, as the great majority of modern Christians do, that the fruit of Christ's death was the sum of salvation; they waited, and received the fruit of His Ascension-the baptism of the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:4). "Did ye receive the Holy Ghost when ye believed?" (Acts 19:2, R.V.).

II. Witnessing for Christ. "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me," etc. (Acts 1:8). So faithful were these Spirit-filled disciples that in a short time they had "filled Jerusalem with the doctrine" (Acts 5:28). The power of the Spirit was with them, so we read that "with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (chap. Luke 4:33). We are unauthorised witnesses for Christ unless we have been "endued with power from on high." Our teaching and preaching will be but "sounding brass" unless we are "filled with the Holy Ghost"-just a sounding trumpet; no divine articulating voice. That we may be true witnesses for Him, let us receive the "promise of the Father" as well as the promise of the Son.

III. The Hope of His Coming Again. "This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go" (Luke 24:11). To say, as some do, that the coming of the Holy Spirit was the coming of "this same Jesus" is not only a denial of the personality of the Spirit, and an insult to common sense, but also a wilful perversion of the Word of God. It looks, says the author of "The Coming Kingdom of God," as if some men so hated the thought of a returning personal Christ that they are prepared to believe any absurdity rather than accept it.. "The Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout" (1 Thessalonians 4:16). This is the hope of the Church of God, which is being presently called out (ekklesia) as a witness to His Name. This is the Bride for which Christ has promised to come and "receive unto Himself" (John 14). As soon as the Lord was out of sight the disciples were taught to believe in and to look for His coming again. This is the hope that cheers in service and purifies the life (1 John 3:3). THE EMPOWERED CHURCH

A praying Church will always be a powerful Church. The true and real influence of a Church does not consist in the number or social position of its members, not in the stateliness of the building, nor in the largeness of its contributions, but in the presence and power of the Holy Ghost. Where the ministry of the Spirit is absent, the Church is but a breathless body. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth." Observe-

1. Where they were. "They were all with one accord in one place" (Acts 2:1). They were in "one place" just because they were all of "one accord." This is a condition of heart that is absolutely necessary to the receiving of the power of the Holy Spirit. To be filled with the Spirit we must be emptied of all self-seeking and uncharitableness. When brethren dwell together in unity, then the Lord will command His blessing.

2. When the Blessing came. "When the day of Pentecost was fully come." According to the type, that was fifty days after (Christ as) the sheaf of firstfruits was presented as a wave offering (Leviticus 23:15-16). God's workings are always in harmony with the "fulness of time" (Galatians 4:4). He does nothing prematurely; there is an eternal fitness in the divine seasons. There is an earthly as well as a heavenly counterpart in all the arrangements of Him whose work is perfect. The Holy Ghost is still ready to come upon all those who are ready to receive Him. They that wait upon the Lord shall exchange strength.

3. How the Blessing came. "Suddenly, as a mighty, rushing wind, and as cloven tongues of fire" (Acts 2:2-3). It did not come through a process of growth or development; it was not evolved out of their own inner consciousness; it was the direct gift of the Father in answer to their believing prayer, and in fulfilment of His own gracious promise. It came as "mighty wind" and as "tongues of fire," symbolic of a personality that cannot be limited or controlled by the mere will of man (John 3:8).

4. To whom the Blessing came. "It sat upon each of them, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:3-4). God is no respecter of persons; every waiting, believing heart was filled with the Spirit. They each received the like gift, although the manifestation of the power in their individual lives was different; yet it was the same Spirit. The lesson undoubtedly for us is that every believing disciple of Christ may and should be "filled with the Holy Ghost." More than that, each one in that upper room baptised of the Holy Spirit was perfectly conscious of the fact. In this respect between the first century and the twentieth there is no difference (Luke 11:13). The same God is rich unto all that call upon Him.

5. The Effects Produced. These were twofold: (1) Upon themselves. "They were filled, and spake with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance." They were possessed and controlled by the mighty power of God. As earthen vessels they were charged with heavenly treasure a precious gift that is for ever hidden from the worldly-wise and revealed only unto babes (Matthew 11:25). (2) Upon others. "Many were amazed and marvelled;. . . others mocked" (Acts 2:7-13). The coming of the Holy Spirit is always certain to be a telling innovation. There is no hiding of His power. It is such an unearthly movement that ungodly philosophers are all amazed and in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this? (2 Corinthians 10:4). This was in truth a "wealthy" church, it was rich in spiritual power and fruitfulness. THE WITNESSING CHURCH

"This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses" (Acts 2:32). A quickened Church, or a quickened soul, will be certain to give Jesus the pre-eminence. Had not Christ said that "When He, the Spirit of Truth, is come, He shall glorify Me?" (John 16:13-14). The Church or the individual that is not glorifying Jesus Christ as the crucified and risen Son of God cannot be filled with the Spirit. We are assured of this, that the Holy Ghost will not give His glory to another than Jesus Christ, in whose name He has come, and whose work He seeks to continue on earth. So when "Peter, filled with the Spirit, stood up with the eleven and lifted up his voice" it was to preach "Jesus and the Resurrection." Spirit-filled men have no other theme. We shall note, briefly, the outstanding features of Peter's Pentecostal testimony, and here he speaks as the mouthpiece of the whole Church. He testified-

1. To the Transformation of his Brethren. "These men are not drunken, as ye suppose" (Acts 2:15). There was undoubtedly a very marked change in their behaviour. They were intoxicated sure enough, but not with the world's wine, as they supposed, for they were filled with the new wine of the Kingdom of God. But the natural man cannot understand the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him (1 Corinthians 2:14).

2. To the Fulfilment of Prophecy (Acts 2:16-21). At the marriage at Cana, the best wine-the gift of Christ-was kept to the last. So in "these last days" the best wine has been given in the coming of the Holy Ghost. Between this promise made to Joel and the fulfilment there lay twenty-four generations; but His faithfulness faileth not. The Spirit has been given, but "all flesh" have not yet been touched with the flame of this life-quickening fire. But surely this also will come to pass. Let us join the Lord's remembrancers, and pray for it. The testimony of a living Church must be to God's faithfulness to His Word.

3. To the Divine Approval of Jesus of Nazareth.- "A man approved of God" (Acts 2:22). The works that Jesus did were the works that no other man could do (John 15:24). His "miracles, wonders, and signs" were incontestable evidence of His holiness and superhuman power, of His actual oneness with the invisible and almighty Father (John 14:10-11). This Man approved of God still waits His approval of men.

4. To the Guilt of Rejecting Christ. "Him. . . ye have taken, and by wicked (lawless) hands have crucified and slain" (Acts 2:23). Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, knows no fear, and sees no contradiction between "the determinate counsel of God" and the terrible lawlessness of those who crucified His Son (Luke 22:22). After Pentecost, the first act of the Holy Spirit upon the ungodly was to convince of murder. What is sin? Sin is lawlessness, rebellion, usurpation.

5. To the Power of His Resurrection. "It was not possible that He should be holden of death" (Acts 2:24). He who claimed to be "the Resurrection and the Life" proved His claim by rising from the dead (John 10,17). As it was not possible for the powers of death and hell to hold Him, neither is it possible for them to hold those who by faith are in Him (John 5:24-25; 2 Corinthians 4:14). A witness to the power of His resurrection must have a resurrection experience (1 Peter 1:3).

6. To the Inspiration of David. David spoke concerning Christ, for he "foresaw the Lord always before his face" (Acts 2:25, and Psalms 16:8.) As the One who, according to the promise of God, "He would raise up to sit on His throne" (Acts 2:30). To deny the prophetic character of the Psalms of David is to reject the testimony of the Holy Ghost by whom Peter now was speaking (Luke 24:44). Those moved by the Holy Ghost are "holy men" and are never moved to declare things which are inconsistent.

7. To the Certainty of Christ's Exaltation. The coming of the Holy Spirit was not only the fulfilment of a promise, but also the guarantee that He who had been crucified was now "by the right hand of God exalted" (Acts 2:33-36), and made "both Lord and Christ." Although all authority has been given Him, He still waits with outstretched arms to give "gifts unto men" (John 1:12). When Christ's death, resurrection, and exaltation are firmly believed and emphatically preached signs and wonders will be done in His name. THE POWER OF THE GOSPEL

Peter's sermon was in the power of the Holy Ghost, so there were "signs following." There was-

1. Deep Conviction. "When they heard they were pricked in their heart" (Acts 2:37). "They felt the nails wherewith they had crucified Christ sticking fast in their own hearts as so many sharp daggers." When the Spirit of Grace is poured out, sinners are sure to see Him whom they have pierced (Zechariah 12:10). He came to convince of sin (John 16:8). How shall they hear without a preacher, and how shall they preach with convicting power unless they are sent?

2. Open Confession. "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" This burning question (Acts 9:6; Acts 16:30), wrung from Spirit-pierced hearts, declares this fact, that salvation must come from God. "What shall I do?" A convicted sinner never knows of himself what to do. It is not in man. But when frank and full confession is made the guiding light will speedily dawn (1 John 1:9).

3. Plain Directions. "Repent and be baptised every one of you,. . . and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, for the promise is unto you" (Acts 2:38-40). Peter's word was not, "Reform, and be more civilised," but "Repent, and be baptised." To repent was to change their minds completely regarding Jesus Christ, whom they rejected; and to be baptised implied the renouncing of the old life, and an open confession of Christ as their Lord. In doing this they would receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, that they might be endued with power to overcome the world and be witnesses unto Him who died and rose again. Have you received the Holy Ghost since you believed, "for the promise is unto you?" (Acts 2:39).

4. Joyful Reception. "They gladly received His Word" (Acts 2:41). The offer of "the remission of sins" through repentance was like cold water to a thirsty soul; they gladly received it. No condemned criminal ever received a free parden more willingly than they accepted the offer of mercy. This is the Gospel that God is commanding all men everywhere to repent and believe.

Three thousand brought in, "but yet there is room."

5. Steady Progression. "They continued steadfastly in doctrine, fellowship, breaking of bread, and in prayers" (Acts 2:42). They were God-made converts, and so the true signs of an inward transformation are clearly evident. These were-love for the Word, love for one another, love for their absent Lord, and love for private and public prayer. Being grafted into the living Christ, they became possessed with His Spirit, and grew in grace and in the knowledge of their Lord and Saviour.

6. Hearty Co-operation. "They were together and had all things common" (Acts 2:44-45). This, perhaps, not of necessity, but because of their warm affection for one another, and practical mutual interest. This spirit is very beautiful, and reveals the wonderful influence the love of God has when shed abroad in our hearts. Jesus Christ had given His all for them; now they were prepared to give their all for Him and for one another (Ephesians 5:2). What hinders the continuance of this spirit of brotherhood? Lack of faith in God, worldliness, and selfishness.

7. Great Jubilation. "Gladness of heart; praising God" (Acts 2:46-47). Repentance is the narrow gate that leads into the happy home of a heavenly Father's heart. The hearts that were pierced with conviction now praise God for salvation. Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning (Acts 10:43). This Gospel in the power of the Spirit is still the power of God- To pierce with conviction the heart of sin. To compel men to confess their need. To bring the joy of forgiveness to a believing heart. To keep in fellowship those who obey. To turn self-denial into a great delight. To fill the heart with praise to God. To make the life a testimony for God. A WORK OF POWER

"Is Christianity a failure?" We might as well ask is the sunshine a failure? The Christianised paganism that is being substituted for Pentecostal life and power is a failure because it offers hungry souls stones for bread-it never touches the unutterable need of the human heart. It was very different with Peter and John, filled, as they were, with the Spirit of prayer and of power. In this chapter we have:-

1. A Picture of Need. "A certain man lame. . laid daily at the gate" (Acts 3:2-3). He was both poor and helpless. But he was willing to be laid in the way of getting help-" at the gate called Beautiful." He was not too proud to beg or to lay his deformity in the path of prayer. If he had been ashamed to confess his need he probably never would have experienced the healing power of the name of Jesus.

2. A Work of Faith (Acts 3:4-6). Peter and John said, "Look on us!" and the lame man, having such a door of hope opened, gave heed unto them "expecting something." Men filled with the Holy Spirit are sure to awaken expectancy in the minds of others. They had neither "silver nor gold," but they had something infinitely better; they had faith in the saving name of the risen Christ. Calvary and Pentecost are God's remedy for lame and helpless humanity.

3. A Miracle of Grace. "Immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength" (Acts 3:7-9). Having been healed through the power of the name of Jesus (Acts 3:16). He gives an unmistakable testimony to it by "leaping, walking, and praising God." Then did the lame man leap as a hart (Isaiah 35:6). When a poor, lame, hopeless soul comes into contact with Him who is the Resurrection and the Life, there will be a joyful transformation; the place of the beggar is forsaken for the place of the worshipper (Acts 3:8).

4. An Awakening of Wonder. "All the people ran,. . . greatly wondering." Peter said, "Why look ye so earnestly on us?" (Acts 3:11-12). The amazed and bewildered people could only see the instruments that were in the hands of the invisible wonder-working Saviour. Peter and John were the channels of a "power and holiness" not their own, but Christ's. All power is given unto Him, and Pentecost means the imparting of that power to His disciples, for the glory of His name.

5. A Charge of Guilt (Acts 3:3-16). Peter, quick to take advantage of this sudden awakening of interest, charged them with the "denial of the Holy One," and "killing the Prince of Life," then declared that "faith in the name of Him whom they had killed had made "this man strong." Thereby proving that God had raised Him from the dead. Every redeemed and healed soul is a witness to the fact of Christ's resurrection (2. Tim. Acts 1:10).

6. An Offer of Mercy (Acts 3:17-21). We think we see the tear in Peter's eye when he said: "Now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it... Repent and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out." Their sins were very great, but the blood of Jesus Christ, whom they had crucified, was able to cleanse them all away. By thus repenting the times of refreshing from His presence would come unto them.

7. A Word of Warning. "Every soul that shall not hear that prophet shall be destroyed" (Acts 3:22-23). To despise the messenger of the Lord is to despise Hun that sent Him (Luke 10:16). He that heareth these sayings of Mine and doeth them shall be likened to a wise man. Hear, and your soul shall live. THE CHALLENGE AND THE DEFENCE

In preaching "Jesus and the Resurrection," Peter and John were thrusting the sword of truth right into the hearts of the king's enemies. If Jesus who was crucified has risen again then they are the vilest sinners on the face of the earth, for by consent they had killed the Holy Son of God. If Christ is not risen, then all preaching and faith are alike vain (1 Corinthians 15:14).

1. The Challenge. "By what power, or in what name, have ye done this?" (Acts 4:5-7, R.v.). The power was self-evident in the healed man; the name was a mystery. Was it Satanic or Divine? The challengers were numerous and influential. "Rulers, elders, scribes, the high priest, and as many as were of his kindred." How could they rejoice in the healing of this lame-born beggar, when their own personal dignity was in danger of being lowered in the eyes of the people?

2. The Defence. Peter being "filled with the Holy Ghost" was ready to give a faithful and courageous reply (Acts 4:8-12). His searching words were to ring out to "all the people of Israel" that it was through the power of "the name of Jesus of Nazareth, whom they had crucified," that this man was made whole, and that he was a standing witness to the resurrection of Jesus, and to their own guilt. The stone which they had cast aside as unfit for use had been lifted up by God and made both the foundation and the chief corner of a new and better structure. On this foundation only spiritual living stones could be built, and by this "Head of the corner" both Jews and Gentiles were to be made one. "All one in Christ Jesus." Other foundation can no man lay; "for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

3. The Results. (a) They marvelled at the boldness of Peter and John (Acts 4:13). But they had to confess that, although they were "unlearned and ignorant men," they had stamped on their characters the features of Jesus. God had chosen the foolish things to confound the wise (1 Corinthians 1:27). The treasures of God's grace are still hid from the wise and prudent, and revealed to humble, trustful babes (Matt.11, 25). (b) They were silenced when they beheld the man that was healed standing with them (Acts 4:14). Transformed lives by the power of the Risen Christ are the best apologetics for Christianity. In the cause of Jesus Christ, words are mere empty prattle, without the power of the Holy Ghost (1 Corinthians 4:19). (c) They were moved by a guilty fear (Acts 4:15-18). They could not deny that "a notable miracle had been done," but they were anxious that it should "spread no further!" What amazing perversity! By their speaking in the name of Jesus great good had been done, but they would "command them not to speak any more in the name of Jesus." They could speak as long as they liked in their own name-as long as no souls were saved -but they were not to preach Christ and Him crucified in the power of the Spirit, for that would work such revolutions as would upset their peaceful theories, and spoil the regular quiet and decorum of their manner of worship. The descendants of these unbelieving formalists are still among us; who would rather have the order and quiet of a graveyard that the stir of a revival by the Spirit of God. (d) They let them go (Acts 4:19-23). Peter and John would not lower the banner one single inch, for they "could not but speak the things which they had seen and heard." Being "let go" they found their own company-those who were possessed by the same Spirit-members of the same heavenly family. To which company do you belong? THE APPEAL TO GOD

Acts 4:23-31

"Being let go they went to their own company." It is an old saying that "fowl of like feather flock together." Just as when the needle is set free from every hindrance, it will gravitate to the pole, so those hearts kindled with the same spiritual flame will be powerfully attracted one to another. This love for those who love the Lord is an evidence of heavenly kinship, and a mark of our separation from the world. As soon as Peter and John had "reported," they all fled together in prayer to their city of Refuge, which was the God of their Risen Lord. Prayer is the secret of all strength and consolation, while as servants we suffer for His name. Let us notice some things about this appeal:-

1. It was Believing. "Lord, Thou art God." They did not pray into unresponsive space, they talked into the very ear of God. "He that cometh to God must believe that He is." Their God was the God "which made heaven, earth, sea, and all that in them is." The God of creation, not of evolution.

2. It was United. "They lifted up their voice to God with one accord" (Acts 4:24). They had already proved the value of united prayer. They would trust to see the power of it again. They seemed never to forget the words of their now Glorified Master. "If two of you shall agree," etc. (Matthew 18:19). United believing prayer is one of the mightiest weapons God has put within the reach of His people. Every Church, no matter how small, has this sword of overcoming power hanging at its girdle. O that it were unsheathed. Alas, that it hath slept so long in the scabbard of unbelief.

3. It was Scriptural (Acts 4:25-28). These holy men of God, possessed by the same Spirit which taught the prophets of old, are neither afraid nor ashamed to make mention of David as the author of Psalm 2, and to interpret his words as the infallible testimony of the Holy Ghost. It will give power to our petitions if the Word of God dwells in us richly. The Polychrome Bible is the gallows on which Higher Criticism will yet be hanged.

4. It was Definite. "Now, Lord grant that with all boldness they may speak Thy Word" (Acts 4:29). How could they speak the Word of God with boldness, if they did not know assuredly what was the Word of God? They prayed for, and expected, an immediate answer. "Now," they spread out their needs as Hezekiah did the letter, and with the same sudden, overwhelming manifestations (Acts 14:3). There is a great difference between saying prayers and making a direct personal appeal to God for a present declaration of His saving power.

5. It was Christ-Honouring. "That signs and wonders may be done by the name of Thy Holy Child Jesus" (Acts 4:30). They were far more concerned about the honour of Christ than the honour of the Church. This is always characteristic of Spirit-filled lives. If the Name of Jesus does not get the prominence, signs and wonders will not be done by the "stretching forth of His hand." Our self-sufficiency will always paralyse the wonder-working hand of the Holy Spirit.

6. It was Answered. "And when they prayed the place was shaken; they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and spake the Word of God with boldness" (Acts 4:31). To be filled with the Spirit is God's answer to all our needs as His servants and witnesses. There is a great difference between speaking the Word of God and giving the opinions of men about it. The one is the wheat, the other is the chaff (Jeremiah 23:28). The order here is Suggestions, Praying, Shaking, Filling, Testifying.

TESTING TIMES

Acts 4:32-37; Acts 5:1-16.

The power of a Church will be according to the measure by which that Church is filled with the Holy Ghost. When a Church is of "one heart and of one soul," it is an evidence that there is no controversy among them; then they look every man "not on his own things" (Acts 4:32-37). The proof that we love God is that we "love our brother also." The story of Ananias and Sapphira is an unquenchable beacon of warning to all who would live godly; it is like some terrible hand with five dreadful fingers. Here they are-

1. Human Deceitfulness. Ananias and Sapphira had beautiful names, but they had crooked and deformed natures. Like the other disciples, they sold their possession, but, unlike the others, they "kept back part of the price." They put on the sheep's skin, but they were still goats at the heart. They went a long way in the Christian life in laying a part at the apostles' feet, but they went the wrong way in pretending that they were giving all. Like Achan, they hoped to enrich themselves by deceiving the Lord. The heart must be "deceitful above all things," for it would deceive the very God of Heaven.

2. Satanic Influence. "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie against the Holy Ghost?" (Acts 4:23). This "Liar from the beginning" still seeks to deceive by filling the heart with thoughts that are opposed to the Spirit of God. Beware of his "fiery darts"-those burning desires to honour self more than God. With regard to the service of Christ, first thoughts are usually best. Their first thought was to give all, their second was to keep back part of the price. Whatever would hinder us from seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness is of the world, the flesh, or the devil.

3. Unexpected Detection. It must have been an awful awakening to Ananias when he had laid the money at the apostles' feet, expecting their benediction to hear instead those soul-piercing words, "Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie against the Holy Ghost?" The sins of the heart cannot be hidden from God any more than the blood of a murdered Abel. Men filled with the Holy Ghost, like Peter, are quick to detect the lying spirit of the devil in a false professor. Try the spirits, whether they are of God (1 John 4:1). Remember Lot's wife, and also the man without the wedding garment (Matthew 22:12).

4. Divine Judgment. "Ananias, hearing these words, fell down, and gave up the ghost" (Acts 4:25). There was but little time, between the flash of conviction and the stroke of vengeance. He may not even had time to say, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." He that hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be cut off. He that covereth his sin shall not prosper. He may go a long way round about, but some time, and that suddenly, the great searchlight from the Throne of God will break in upon him, bringing irretrievable self-condemnation and death. Let false professors beware, for no human disguise will ever hide a heart-lie from Him who is the Truth.

5. Fatal Disappointment. It is extremely sorrowful to think of his wife coming in about "three hours after, not knowing what was done," expecting, perhaps, to find her husband exalted to a place of honour, and with the same lie on her lips and in her heart, to be met with the same sudden and overwhelming retribution. God is no respecter of persons; the same sin meets with the same condemnation. Sapphira may have been a beautiful woman, as her name indicates, but outward comeliness is no shelter for inward deceit. This startling vindication of the holiness of God had a very salutary effect in putting a wholesome fear into the hearts of many (Acts 4:13), and magnifying the power of God in the life and testimony of the apostles (John 14:12).

APOSTOLIC BOLDNESS

Acts 5:17-42

One of the most pronounced effects of Pentecost was the bringing of the disciples into a closer and more vital relationship with Jesus as their risen Lord. By this fiery baptism were they all made "one body," and, planted together in the likeness of His death, were also made in the likeness of His resurrection (Romans 6:5-6). So that they now knew Him in the power of His resurrection and the fellowship of His sufferings. No one can enter into the heaven-born fellowship of His sufferings who has not entered into the soul-sanctifying power of Pentecost. The disciples were not able, nor were they asked, to take their God-given stand for Him, who was the Truth and the Crucified, until they were all filled with the Holy Ghost. Neither can we without the same equipment.

1. They suffered for Him. They were put "in the common prison" (Acts 5:18). They well knew that it was their love and their likeness to Jesus Christ that brought this persecution upon them; it was "for His name." If any man would live godly he must suffer. The words of their Master were now being fulfilled in them (Luke 21:12). The rulers were filled with indignation and fear for the doctrine of the apostles had filled Jerusalem, and, if true; it proved them to be the murderers of the Son of God (Acts 5:28). Those who preach a doctrine like this, that drives guilt and condemnation home to the hearts of self-righteous men, will also know what it is to suffer.

2. They were encouraged by Him. "The angel of the Lord brought them forth and said, "Go, stand and speak all the words of this life" (Acts 5:19-20). Those who are faithful to God, their Saviour, have miracles of mercy wrought for them that others can never understand. This new deliverance and fresh commission must have been a mighty buttress to their faith. They were to go and speak to the people all the words of this life. This life, which was divine and eternal, and was offered to all who repent of sins and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ (1 John 5:11). Those who would speak all the words of "this life" will always have plenty to speak about, and these are the words that the people need.

3. They were devoted to Him. "Behold the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people" (Acts 5:21-25). They were not disobedient to the heavenly vision. These Spirit-taught men knew nothing worth living for apart from doing the will of God. The desire to please Jesus Christ was the overmastering passion of their souls. One is your Master, even Christ, and if we are true to Him, we shall speak out, and live out, all His revealed will. To substitute our own thoughts for the "Words of this Life" is to deny the Lord, and to become false witnesses.

4. They were fearless for Him. "We ought to obey God rather than man," etc. (Acts 5:29-32). Although they had just escaped from prison they were not afraid to look the enemies of Christ in the face and say, "God Hath raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. The Spirit of God had come to "convince the world of sin" through the lips and lives of those in whose heart He dwells. The sin-convicting power of the Holy Ghost is hindered and thwarted by the downright poltroonery of many of Christ's ambassadors. The fear of man bringeth a snare, not only to the soul of the preacher, but also to the Gospel which he preaches.

5. They were joyful in Him. "They rejoiced that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name" (Acts 5:41-42). They did not lift up their hands in pious horror at the thought of doing anything to bring shame upon their own name if Jesus was to be honoured thereby. Only those filled with the Spirit can take pleasure in reproaches for Christ's sake (2 Corinthians 12:10). We are not ashamed of our Scottish martyrs who suffered as Christians, but we may well be ashamed of those who are ashamed to suffer for His name's sake (1 Peter 4:13-16).

SERVING AND SHINING

Acts 6:1-15

The portion before us here may be divided into two sections:-

I. A NEW TRIAL. The number of the saved had grown rapidly, and so the work of administering help to the needy ones was becoming increasingly difficult.

1. The Complaint (Acts 6:1). The Greek-speaking Jews "murmured because their widows were neglected." This neglect could not be wilful. It is pleasing to note how careful these early brethren were about the interests of their sorrowing, suffering sisters.

2. The Remedy. "Look ye out men full of the Holy Ghost," etc. (Acts 6:2-4). There are two important lessons for us here, the first is, that to minister "the Word of God" is a more urgent business than doling charities to the poor; and the second, that even for the simple work of distributing gifts among the needy the filling of the Holy Spirit was needed. The Lord would not have the poor of His people relieved in the manner in which a man may relieve the hunger of his dog; but in the tenderness and compassion of the Spirit of Grace, that the receiver may be doubly blessed thereby. It is not of God that the poor among His flock should be constantly reminded of their pauperism. All those who have seen that God-inspired work among the orphans at Bridge-of-Weir must feel thankful to God for the absence of the very smell of the "charity-workhouse" system.

3. The Results. "They chose Stephen, a man full of the Holy Ghost. . . and the Word of God increased" (Acts 6:5-7). These seven men, whom they had "looked out," were not chosen because of their social position or scholarship, but because they were "filled with the Spirit;" this is the indispensable equipment for acceptable service in the eyes of the glorified Christ. The Word of God is sure to increase in power and fruitfulness through the ministry of such men. If the "Word of God" is not increasing in its hold upon the hearts and lives of its hearers it is because it is preached in the spirit of doubt and fear, instead of in the power of the Holy Ghost.

II. A NEW TESTIMONY.-Stephen's face became a witness to Stephen's faith.

1. See Him Serving. Being "full of faith and power, he did great wonders" (Acts 6:8). The secret of Stephen's wonder-working influence is an open one, and within the reach of every servant of Christ. He had two mighty hands-"faith and power"-and with these it became easy for him to do great things. This strength is not something we may put off or on, like a garment, it belongs to the constitution of our spiritual manhood (Acts 1:8).

2. See Him Suffering. Stephen was never more like his Master than when they sought false witness against him (Matthew 26:59). Truly they hated him without a cause. In this fiery trial he was filled with a wisdom and spirit that "they were not able to resist," thus experiencing the fulfilment of the Lord's promise (Luke 21:15). Men filled with the Holy Spirit are sure to stir up the enmity of the carnal mind. But greater is He that is in you, than he that is in the world (1 John 4).

3. See Him Shining. All those who sat in judgment on him "looking steadfastly, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel." The glory of his transfigured soul-by the indwelling Spirit of God-shone through his eyes as the windows of that body of his which was the temple of the Holy Ghost. This was a new witness to the sanhedrim, of the resurrection and glorification of Jesus of Nazareth, whom they crucified, and in whom Stephen trusted. It is the Spiritual Life within us that is the light that shines through us. "The life is the light of men." Let your light so shine. But our light will be darkness, unless, like Stephen, we are filled with the Spirit of Life (2 Corinthians 3:18). Covet earnestly the best gift.

APOSTOLIC CHARACTER

Stephen's defence is a masterpiece of spiritual policy and power. He did not begin his address by saying, "Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart." No; but with these very courteous words-" Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken." He that winneth souls is wise. We might observe here:-

1. His Knowledge of Scripture.-This Spirit-filled man had a clear and comprehensive grasp of the doing and purposes of God in Old Testament history. The knowledge of the will of God will always be a mighty weapon in the hand of anyone full of the Holy Ghost. The Spirit of God will have but little to work on, unless our hearts are filled with the words of God. This is the secret of successful prayer (John 15:7). It is the honest heart which hears the Word and keeps it, that brings forth fruit (Luke 8:15).

2. His Faithfulness. "Ye stiffnecked... ye do always resist the Holy Ghost" (Acts 7:51-53). A man filled with the Spirit cannot but be courageous, for the Kingdom of God; the truth burns like a fire in his bones, while sin, and the things of eternity, stand out before his anointed eyes in the clear light of Him who sits at the right hand of the Father in heaven. They are in an awful condition who resist the Holy Ghost by the stiffness of their wills and the hardness of their hearts. They may be "cut to the heart" (Acts 7:54) by a faithful testimony, but unless they are "pricked in the heart" (Acts 7:11-37) they will "gnash with their teeth," and die in their sins.

3. His Vision. While "they gnashed on him with their teeth," he saw the "glory of God." Our heavenly Father has always rich compensation for His suffering children. Seeing "Jesus standing on the right hand of God" is a wonderful balm for the wounds made by the teeth of the enemy. This revelation to Stephen is the vision that is ever before the mind of those who, like him, are enabled by the power of the Holy Ghost, through faith, to look up "steadfastly into heaven." It is the work of the Spirit to reveal the things of Christ to the believing heart (John 16:14). To have the vision of the soul filled with the glory of the exalted Redeemer is to have the life consciously "hid with Christ in God."

4. His Martyrdom. "They stoned Stephen, calling upon God and saying. . . Lord, lay not this sin to their charge" (Acts 7:57-60). This first martyr for Christ was a witness to that overcoming grace of God in the heart which constrains to pray for them "which despitefully use you." If the death of Stephen was but the means in the hand of God of sending the goads of conviction into the soul of that "young man whose name was Saul" (Acts 9:5), then it was a death that has helped to open up a channel of life and blessing to the world. The Kingdom of Jesus Christ never suffers defeat through the killing of His followers. The bloodstained prayers of those saints who suffer martyrdom for His name's sake, God in grace will mightily avenge, "The blood of the martyr is the seed of the Church."

5. His Mercifulness. "He kneeled down and cried, Lord lay not this sin to their charge." The love of a merely natural heart never constrained any one so earnestly to seek the highest good of those who were committing the greatest personal wrong. This last cry of the dying martyr is a convincing proof of the transforming power of the love of Christ in the heart. This merciful spirit manifested in Stephen's last breath toward those sin-blinded murders is the spirit Jesus Christ has sent into the world to seek and save it. "This sin" which they were committing was an awful one. They were destroying the temple of the Holy Ghost. If Stephen had not been filled with the Holy Ghost he would not have been stoned. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me." THE CITY'S AND THE CHURCH'S NEED

We may learn from this portion:-

1. That Persecution is not an Unmixed Evil (Acts 8:1-5). If the Church at Jerusalem had been allowed to remain in the very comfortable position into which they had settled down (chap. Acts 4:32) it would have been a long time before "the regions beyond" would have had the Gospel of Christ preached unto them. The wind of persecution "scattered abroad" the good seed of the Kingdom, which sprang up into fresh harvests of souls for the glory of God. What is true in the history of the Church is true also in the individual experience, so that we may glory in tribulations (Romans 5:3; Matthew 5:11-12).

2. That the Great Need of a City is Christ. "Philip went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them.... and there was great joy in that city" (Acts 8:5-11). No field of labour could possibly look more unpromising than Samaria did at that moment. Simon the sorcerer, an agent of the devil, had got the people by the ears, for "they all gave heed unto him, from the least unto the greatest," and were completely bewitched by him. They were so carried away with "lying wonders" that they had no wits left for sober judgment. What better are the multitudes in our cities and towns to-day, who are bewitched by the deceitfulness of riches, the excitement of gambling, the love of pleasure, the allurements of Satan, and the deceitfulness of a heart at enmity with God. Slum souls, grovelling in the mire of iniquity, loving the darkness rather than the light. Philip, being full of the Holy Ghost, preached Christ unto them. Holy Ghost men have no other remedy but God's to offer sin-blinded souls being driven into perdition. He did not preach science and philosophy, history, morality, or the "learned results of criticism." He preached Christ, as the sin-bearing Redeemer, and unclean spirits were cast out and useless, crippled lives were healed and restored, "and there was great joy in the city." The joy of souls emancipated from the deluding powers of darkness.

3. That all Believers Should Receive the Gift of the Holy Ghost (Acts 8:14-17). Samaria had "received the Word of God"-the message of life declared to them by Philip, through Christ-but as yet the Holy Ghost "had fallen upon none of them." They had been converted, but they had not yet been anointed. To Peter and John the receiving of the Holy Ghost was as definite a blessing as the receiving of the forgiveness of sins. In apostolic days the gift of the Holy Ghost accompanied the remission of sins. Paul's first question to the Ephesian converts was, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19:1). He was anxious that they not only should be disciples, but that they should be powerful witnesses for Christ. The receiving of the Holy Ghost is as absolutely necessary for service as the receiving of Christ is for salvation.

4. That the Power of God cannot be Purchased with Gifts. Simon said, "Give me this power," and offered to purchase the gift of God with money (Acts 8:18-25). The power of the Holy Ghost cannot be given as a reward for anything that man can do or give; it is the "Gift of God." Is it not possible for us to be offering this prayer of Simon's in another form? We would not, perhaps, say, "Give me this power," for I am rich, but in our hearts we may have been saying, "Give me this power," for I am clever, or for I am earnest. God does not barter with man about the Holy Spirit. Let your prayer be, "Give me this power," for I am weak; and believe that ye receive, and ye shall have (Isaiah 40:29-31; Luke 11:13).

SOUL-WINNING

Acts 8:26-40

There are several examples set before us here, to which we shall do well to take heed. There is an example of-

1. Anxiety of Soul (Acts 8:27-28). It was no trifling curiosity that brought this Ethiopian nobleman, this chancellor of the exchequer, up to Jerusalem to worship. He was, doubtless, an earnest seeker after the soul-satisfying truth of God, and as an honest, anxious inquirer, he had, meanwhile, laid everything else aside that he might seek this one thing needful. He came to Jerusalem that he might hear; he searched the Scriptures that he might see. Those who seek with all their heart will speedily find (Jeremiah 29:13).

2. Obedience to God. When Philip received the call to "Arise and go.... he arose and went" (Acts 8:26-27). His desire was to do the will of God, whether that was in the quiet of "the desert," or in the excitement of a mighty spiritual revival. He went out, like Abraham, by faith, not knowing whither he went. This was God's way of meeting those Spirit-begotten longings that were in the heart of that anxious Ethiopian pilgrim. In some way or other the earnest prayers of the needy will be answered, while they use the means within their reach. God could have blessed the eunuch without Philip's aid, but it hath pleased the Lord to make those who are filled with the Spirit co-workers together with Him.

3. Enthusiasm for Souls. At the bidding of the Spirit "Philip ran thither to him" (Acts 8:29-30). Only those whose hearts have been enlarged by the Spirit of God will run in the way of His commandments. Men filled with the Holy Ghost will always be at home in dealing with an anxious soul. Real enthusiasm in the work of God is a rare accomplishment in these cold, intellectual, critical days. Those who would be wise to win souls must be willing to "run and join themselves to their chariots;" to get alongside of them, not as unfallen angels, but as fellow-pilgrims to eternity, seeking, by the help of the Holy Spirit, to lead them to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ.

4. Faithfulness to the Bible. The anxious Ethiopian was reading the prophet Isaiah at chapter fifty-three; Philip, filled and guided by the Holy Ghost, began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus" (Acts 8:32-35). We have teachers among us now who are evidently filled and guided by another spirit, for they would gravely rebuke the modern Philips for such a misuse of the Bible. But "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine." And "they are they which testify of Me," said the Son of God. Philip preached unto him Jesus. Who else can meet the need of a sin-smitten soul? What other preaching could be of any avail?

5. Readiness to Confess. "Faith cometh by hearing." The eunuch heard the Gospel from the lips of Philip, and believed and was saved. Now, he was ready and willing to be cut off from his own religious beliefs and habits, and to confess Christ in baptism. To him it was an outward sign of his inward fitness to join the family of the redeemed in the House of God on earth, and be numbered with the joint-heirs of Christ. Faith should always be accompanied with confession (Romans 10:9-10).

6. Happiness in Christ. "He went on his way rejoicing" (Acts 8:39). Being justified by faith, he had peace with God, now he goes on his way rejoicing in hope (Romans 5:1-2). The darkness is passed, the true light now shines in his heart. What a change Jesus brings into the life when He is received and trusted. The great majority of business men go on their way plotting and scheming, instead of rejoicing, because they are strangers to the blessedness of the man whose sins are forgiven (Psalms 32:1-11).

SAUL'S CONVERSION

Acts 9:1-19

The claims of all other religions can be met by mere outward conformity, but Christianity demands the regeneration of the inner man. Even unconverted men like Saul, as touching the law, may live blameless lives in the sight of men, but the converted man is one whose whole heart has been turned to God. The process is here exemplified in the experience of Saul. We see him-

1. As a Rebel. "Saul yet breathing out threatenings," etc. (Acts 9:1). Yet, after all the evidences he had had of the resurrection of Jesus Christ in the life and testimony of Stephen, witnessing the triumphant death of a Christian is seldom enough to slay the enmity of the human heart against the revealed will of God.

2. As a Prisoner (Acts 9:2-4). He was apprehended by a "light from heaven." The searchlight of God was turned upon this religious burglar on the way to Damascus to rob the Church of its living treasure. There is nothing the evil-worker dreads more than the light (John 3:20). From this moment Saul could speak of himself as the "prisoner of Jesus Christ" (Phil. 1). Like many another sinner, he was apprehended "suddenly." The light of truth flashed into the heart by the power of the Holy Spirit is still God's way of subduing rebels to Himself. The pressure of the light was so overwhelming that he fell to the earth. This light, like the Word of God, was quick and powerful, sharper than any two-edged sword (Hebrews 4:12). The weapons of our warfare are not carnal.

3. As an Inquirer. "Who art Thou, Lord?" Along with the arresting light there came a "voice, saying, Why persecutest thou Me." When the truth comes in the power of the Holy Ghost there is always a voice with it, making the sinner feel that it is with Him, not it, that he has to do. This question reveals the terrible blindness of Saul's heart and mind-he knew Him not. How could he possibly know Him and live at enmity with Him. It was very different with Stephen (vv. Acts 6:15). But light from the Lord is sure to lead to an honest inquiry after Him.

4. As a Convert. "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6). "Trembling" at the discovery of his past sin and guilt, "and astonished" at the greatness of the Lord's mercy and grace, he asks this question, as a true penitent, ready and willing to yield himself to do His will. This is conversion. Not the talking about religious duty, but the entire surrender of the whole being to the person and service of the Lord Jesus Christ. Saul repented at once, as soon as he discovered the error of his ways (Matthew 18:3). As a disciple he was easily led (Acts 9:8).

5. As a Worshipper. "Behold he prayeth" (Acts 9:11). Saul had frequently said his prayers, but now he prayed. Now his renewed heart yearned for fellowship with the risen Lord, who had revealed Himself to him. A young convert once said-"Before I was converted I prayed to myself, but now I pray to God." Those who don't know Jesus Christ as their own personal Saviour can only draw nigh unto Him with the lips; they worship they know not what.

6. As a Witness (Acts 9:15-19). Before this he was a vessel fitted for destruction, but now "he is a chosen vessel"-having been cleansed and transformed by the grace of God-"to bear My Name," as precious treasure "before the Gentiles." As a vessel, tie was made strong, for he was to "suffer great things" for His Name's sake. He was often cast down, but not destroyed. As a vessel, he was made meet for the Master's use, being "filled with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 9:17). We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God and not of us. Saul's conversion and equipment for Christ's service has been given for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Timothy 1:16). Be ye filled with the Spirit.

SAUL'S TESTIMONY

Acts 9:20-31

Paul, in writing to the Galatians, refers to his conversion in very striking language. He says-"It pleased God, who called me by His grace, to reveal His Son in me, that I might preach Him." The words here put in italics give us the whole Gospel in brief. Saul was not disobedient to the heavenly vision.

1. A Courageous Stand. "Straightway he preached Christ as the Son of God" (Acts 9:20). It was impossible for Saul to be a Unitarian, or for any one who, like him, has been transformed in heart by the power of the resurrected Christ. He who was an enemy to Jesus, now becomes one of His most successful recruiting sergeants. He was not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ (Romans 1:16).

2. A Suggestive Question. "Is not this he that destroyed them?" etc. (Acts 9:21-22). Yes; this is he, yet it is not he, for Saul the persecutor has died, and Saul the preacher has been quickened from the dead. The lion has been converted into a lamb, and a religious icicle has suddenly become a flame of holy fire. Henry Martyn said-"If I could see a Hindoo convert, I would see the dead raised." Who can explain the process of resurrection? So is every one that is born of the Spirit (John 3:8).

3. A Vigilant Enemy. "They watched the gates day and night to kill him" (Acts 9:23-25). The more "Saul increased in strength" the more bitter did the enemies of Christ become. All those who would grow in grace may be prepared for a growing opposition in some quarters. The subjects of the "Kingdom of God" will surely be despised by the subjects of the "Kingdom of Satan." But the servant of Christ need fear no evil, there will always be a "basket" or a hole in the wall for them in time of need. It is said that "man is immortal till his work is done."

4. A Confession of Discipleship. "He assayed to join himself to the disciples" (Acts 9:26). When Saul offered himself as a member to that Church of Jerusalem which he had so lately persecuted, "they were afraid of him"-perhaps thinking this was another of his dodges to catch them-"and believed not that he was a disciple." But as he had been brought into the fellowship of Jesus Christ, he longed for the fellowship of the saints. It is a certain sign of discipleship when we love the people of God, and seek the company of the redeemed.

5. A Brotherly Act. "Barnabas took him and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord" (Acts 9:27-28). This "son of consolation" did a most gracious work in smoothing the way for this new convert. There are disciples still who seem slow to believe the testimony of those who have been suddenly transformed by the grace of God. It will ever be a blessed and Christ-like ministry to help those who are misunderstood.

6. A Confirming Testimony. "He spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 9:29-30). The fact of Saul being changed was very soon apparent. He was now doing the same work for which Stephen was stoned, and in the same fearless and powerful manner, because he was animated by the same heaven-born motives. (Gal. 1 ,15-16).

7. A Grand Result. This result was five-fold. (a) They had peace (Acts 9:31, R.v.). How sweet this calm was after the fiery tempest of persecution. How sweet peace is after the inward battle of sin and unbelief. (b) They were edified. Built up in the holy faith, strengthened by the study of the Scriptures. (c) They walked in the fear of the Lord. Their daily life was lived in the presence of Him who said-"Lo, I am with you alway." (d) They had the comfort of the Holy Ghost. The promised

Comforter had come (John 14:16), they had received Him, and were now experiencing the blessedness of His indwelling. (e) They were multiplied. Success is absolutely certain to any Church bearing these characteristics. Peace, wisdom, comfort are still being eagerly sought after by the restless "men of the world." O, that they could see these blood-bought gifts exhibited in the lives of Church members to-day. THE VICTORY OF FAITH

For a time the name of Saul drops out of the record, and the halo of divine glory is seen on Peter. To him was given the keys of the kingdom, and he used them well in opening doors for others. He came down to see the saints. "How sweet to mingle with such kindred spirits here"-and the poor paralysed Aeneas was able to bless God for his visit. "He had kept his bed for eight years" (Acts 9:33). Like a man sick and paralysed by sin, he was utterly helpless and hopeless, apart from the saving power of God. "Peter said unto him, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole." This bold declaration recalls Peter's unstaggering faith in his risen Lord, and, according to his faith, so was it done unto him. Peter knew that it was glorifying to the name of Jesus that he should venture much in Him. HIS VICTORY AT JOPPA.-

1. Why he Went. The disciples sent unto him two men desiring that "he would not delay but come" (Acts 9:36-38). They had been suddenly plunged into sorrow through the death of their beloved Dorcas What a mercy that Peter, the man of Pentecost, was only a few miles off. The more we are filled with the Holy Spirit, the more shall we be able to minister the consolation of Christ to the needy.

2. What he Saw. With tearful eyes the widows showed him "the coats and garments which Dorcas made." While the great battles of Roman Emperors have been forgotten, the gracious deeds of Dorcas are being held in everlasting remembrance. Every "Dorcas Society" is a monument to her immortal memory. Whatsoever we do for the glory of God shall be as gold and silver and precious stones; all the testing fires of time and coming judgment shall never be able to efface their beauty, or dim the memory of them in the mind of God (1 Corinthians 3:11-14).

3. What he Did. The several acts of Peter here in raising Dorcas from the dead may be suggestive to us as to how we may be successful in restoring souls to the new life which is in Christ, (a) "He put them all forth" (Acts 9:40). This was a work that God only could do, so he gets alone with God. Everything that would in any way distract our faith in Him must be put out. (6) "He kneeled down and prayed." Special definite prayer is needed. Peter's whole soul was centred on this one thing. When Elijah prayed for rain we may be sure that at that time he prayed for nothing else. When a beggar cries for everything he usually gets nothing, (c) He called on her by name. "Tabitha, arise!" It is not enough that we speak to God, we must speak to the people, and speak to them personally, and as if we expected them to hear and believe at once, Peter did not say, "Tabitha, I hope you may see your way to get up soon," but, "Arise!" In the name of the Risen Christ, arise from the dead. (4) He gave her his hand and lifted her up. This is a beautiful touch of real sympathy and tenderness. If we would lift up new-born souls, we must not only speak the truth, but speak it in love. As soon as she "saw Peter," she felt the uplifting power of his compassionate hand. (e) "He called the saints and presented her alive." He would have them all rejoice in this victory through the grace of God. The result was that "many believed in the Lord." Such results are sure to follow where there is definite, prayerful dealing with God for the deliverance of souls from the power of death.

DIVINE PREPARATION

Acts 10:1-23

Caesarea was the headquarters of the Roman Governor. Cornelius was captain of the one hundred Italians who formed the bodyguard. The Jewish and the Gentile streams meet and mingle in Peter and Cornelius. The time had come for the overflowing of the river of grace that had so long been limited to the narrow channel of Israel. "It was the bursting of the chrysalis, in which the life has been preserved indeed, but confined." Let us look at- I. CORNELIUS THE PETITIONER.-

1. His Character. "Devout, feared God, gave alms, and prayed alway" (Acts 10:2). This is a very brief biography of a great man, who dared to be holy in the most unlikely circumstances. Do we wonder that his influence was such that all his house feared God? A man may be a brave soldier, and yet be a religious coward.

2. His Vision (Acts 10:3-6). He who prays much will see much. God is ever ready to unlock the treasures of His grace to the humble seeking heart. The vision came about the ninth hour-the hour of prayer (chapter Acts 3:1). It brought him a message of personal assurance (Acts 10:4), and also a plain word of direction (Acts 10:5). When God answers our prayers there is no doubt about it, everything is so perfectly clear and God-like.

3. His Obedience. As soon as the heavenly messenger was departed, he sent to Joppa, about thirty miles off, for Peter (Acts 10:7-8). The willing and trustful heart will never seek a more convenient season than now. It is such joy to the man of prayer to know the will of God that it becomes his delight to do it.

II. PETER THE PREACHER.-

1. His Call to Caesarea. "Send to Joppa and call for Peter" (Acts 10:5). God could easily have made the angel His messenger to bring to Cornelius all the light and comfort he needed, but He chooses redeemed ones to be co-workers together with Him in the preaching of the Gospel.

2. His Love of Prayer (Acts 10:9-10). Time never hangs heavily upon those who delight in secret fellowship with the Lord. While the dinner was being cooked, Peter was pleading, perhaps, that his way might be made plain as to where he should next go to preach Christ.

3. His Strange Preparation (Acts 10:11-23). The vision of the "great sheet" or "vessel" let down from heaven was certainly intended as a revelation to Peter of the gracious purpose of God to gather all sorts into His kingdom, through faith in Christ Jesus. When the hungry apostle saw this strange lot, and was asked to receive them, he refused to have anything to do with them. He would have no fellowship with the "common and unclean." But these, "all manner of four-footed beasts, wild beasts, creeping things, and fowls of the air," represented all manner of sinners, wild sinners, creeping, grovelling, earth-worm sinners, and intellectual, high-flying sinners, but no longer "common or unclean," for God hath cleansed them by the blood of Christ, through faith in His name. They were all one in the "vessel," even as we are "all one in Christ Jesus," both Jew and Gentile. The little "creeping thing" was equally safe with the strong beast or the fowl of the air, all tied up together in the bundle of life. They were taken from the earth, but their abode was in the heavenlies; they were sent back to the earth as a testimony to the cleansing power of God. Wild beasts and creeping things, such were some of you, but ye are washed. The effect of this vision on Peter was that he was now ready and willing to preach the Gospel to every creature (Acts 10:42-43). THE APOSTOLIC GOSPEL

It was a very warm reception Peter got from Cornelius. No medical professor ever had a more hearty welcome from any pain-stricken patient. He received him as one shut up in a besieged city would receive the General of the relief force. Blessed are the feet of them that bring good tidings. "He fell down at his feet" (Acts 10:23-26). Then Peter went in and "talked with him." As they each rehearsed their individual experience, it became abundantly clear to both that God had been guiding them, and that they were both brought together to witness a very definite manifestation of His grace and power (Acts 10:27-33). Peter's vision prepared him to go wherever God should send him. The vision of Cornelius prepared him to receive all that God should give him (Acts 10:33). In this we have a very decided example of how God may prepare a people and a preacher when times of reviving are about to come from His presence. The spring of blessing began on both sides in secret prayer, where every heaven-born revival has its human origin. Peter never preached to a more interested audience than this, and although the meeting was small, the results were mighty and far-reaching, because he preached unto them, Jesus.

1. Jesus, the Anointed One. "God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 10:38). This anointing took place at Jordan when the Spirit of God, like a dove, lighted on Him (Matthew 3:16). "Him hath God the Father sealed," who was His eternal Son, and into whose hands the salvation of sinners and the glory of the Father have been committed.

2. Jesus, the Compassionate One. "Who went about doing good." Having been "anointed to preach the Gospel to the poor" (Luke 4:18), His pitiful eyes were ever on the look-out for humble, needy souls, that He might bless them with His good. O, the depth of that good that was in Him.

3. Jesus, the Mighty One. "Healing all that were oppressed of the devil." He preached deliverance to the captives, for He had come that He might destroy the works of the devil (1 John, 3, 8). The devil oppresses with the burden of darkness, of doubts, and of hopeless despair, affecting the mind, the heart, and future prospects. He not only delivers from the thraldom of the devil, but heals the wounds sin and Satan had made. He was mighty, for the Almighty One was with Him (Acts 10:38; John 14:10).

4. Jesus, the Suffering One. "Whom they slew and hanged on a tree" (Acts 10:39). What condescension and gracious self-emptying is this? He who delivered others from the oppressive death-grip of the devil submits to be oppressed to death at the hands of men. They slew that loving, tender heart of His with their pride and unbelief before they hanged that weak, exhausted body on the tree. He suffered for us, the Just for the unjust.

5. Jesus, the Risen One. "Him God raised up the third day." "God loosed Him from the pangs of death, because it was not possible that He should be holden of it" (Acts 2:24). The love of God for His Son and for those for whom He died, made it impossible that death should keep Him. Being raised from the dead. He is "declared to be the Son of God with power"-with power to save and keep all who believe on His name.

6. Jesus, the Exalted One. "Ordained of God to be the Judge of quick and dead" (Acts 10:42). All judgment hath been committed unto the Son, because He is the Son of Man (John 5:22-27). In 2 Corinthians 5:10 we have the judgment of the quick-those alive unto God. In Revelation 20:11-15 we see Him judging the dead-those who have died in their sins.

7. Jesus, the Universal Saving One. "Whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins" (Acts 10:43). "Through His name" the door of Mercy and Access has been thrown wide open, and through this open door the voice of divine entreaty is now being heard in the Gospel. When this door is shut no man will be able to enter in (Luke 13:24-25). The effects of Peter's sermon were most manifest. He preached Jesus, and "signs and wonders" followed (Acts 10:44-48).

PETER'S TESTIMONY

Acts 11:1-18

Every new move of the Spirit of God is likely to stir up doubtful questionings in the hearts of some conservative Christians. The Church has not yet learned to hail with joy any Spirit-directed innovation that brings glory to God in the salvation of sinners. They contended with Peter for having fellowship with Gentiles, although they knew that they had "received the Word of God" (Acts 11:1-3). We ought always to be liberal-minded as the Holy Ghost is, otherwise we are narrow-minded. Where did we learn that the Gospel was only to be preached on a certain day in the week in a stated place at a fixed hour? Is not the Church of God an army on a campaign against the enemies of Christ and of righteousness? Would any nation permit its army to fight only one day in the week, and allow its foes to do their deadly soul-destroying work all the other six days? Peter had carried the holy war into the enemies' country, and had gained a glorious victory, but was now gravely charged with imprudence by those who had preferred to stay at home. Peter's defence is beautiful for its humility and simplicity. If it was analysed we might find in it-

1. A Spirit of Prayer. "I was in the city of Joppa praying" (Acts 11:5). Those who are possessed by the spirit of prayer will always find a time and place for the purpose of prayer Yes, "in the city," as well as out of it. If the fire of divine love has been kindled in the heart, flaming tongues of holy desires will leap God-ward.

2. A Heavenly Vision. This "vessel, let down from heaven by four corners" (Acts 11:5), was to Peter, as we have seen, a revelation of the purposes of God in relation to the Gentiles. The secrets of heaven are still revealed to those who wait upon God in secret prayer. Such exchange their own weakness for the uplifting strength of His manifested will (Isaiah 40:31).

3. A Definite Commission. "The Spirit bade me go." Men of faith and prayer hear voices and see visions that other mortals are quite incapable of understanding (2 Corinthians 12:4). Under the guiding Spirit of God things will also be done that will look foolish and absurd in the eyes of the worldly wise. We cannot be filled with the Spirit to excess.

4. A Special Preparation. "He showed us how he had seen an angel in his house" (Acts 11:13-14). Cornelius was also prepared like Peter for fuller blessings through prayer. The soil of the centurion's heart was made ready for the seed of the Word. "He shall tell thee words, wonder-working words, words whereby ye shall be saved." Words, in the power of the Holy Ghost, are spirit and life.

5. A Divine Manifestation. "As I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them" (Acts 11:15-16). The Spirit who bade him go sealed Peter's testimony for Jesus by His coming down in mighty power upon the hearers, baptising them into the mystical body of Christ, and so making of twain; one new man.

6. A Silencing Question. "What was I, that I could withstand God?" (Acts 11:17-18). Well done, Peter! That was a dexterous stroke with the sword of defence. What could he do, being caught in the rush of that heavenly wind that "bloweth where it listeth." He could no more withstand the pressure of the Spirit of God than Saul of Tarsus could withstand the "light from heaven." "When they heard these things they held their peace and glorified God." They saw the hand of God in it, and they had grace enough to praise Him for it, although they themselves had no hand in it. Is this the grace wherein we stand? THE REVIVAL IN ANTIOCH

Antioch was the eastern capital of the empire. There was a great exhibition on in this metropolis, not of human art and industry, but of the mighty saving grace of God. Such an unprecedented show, that it was well worth the while of Barnabas going all the way from Jerusalem to see it. Those who would travel back in the line of history to the purity and power of primitive Christianity must take care that they don't lose their way in that "valley of the shadow of death," called "The Dark Ages." The pure light of the Gospel shines most brightly at the dawning of this new day:- I. THE REVIVAL AT ANTIOCH.-

1. The Origin of it. "The persecution that arose about Stephen" drove those nameless disciples "as far as Antioch." In this case the wrath of man was made to praise the Lord (Psalms 76:10). They thought evil against the Church, but the Lord meant it for good (Genesis 1:20). The things which happened unto them fell out rather unto the furtherance of the Gospel (Php_1:12).

2. The Means of it. There was first the "preaching of the Word" (Acts 11:19), "preaching the Lord Jesus" (Acts 11:20). There was, second, "the hand of the Lord with them." The Word of the Gospel of Christ is the weapon in the hand of the Holy Spirit (1 Thessalonians 1:5). We preach Jesus, and the hand of the Lord works wonders. Thus we are labourers with God (1 Corinthians 3:9).

3. The Results of it. "A great number believed and turned unto the Lord." The turning of the heart to the Lord is the evidence of having believed. The great end of all preaching should be to turn men unto the Lord. John Owen said long ago, that "Ministers are seldom honoured with success unless they are continually aiming at the conversion of sinners." This is a true witness.

II. THE VISIT OF BARNABAS.-Observe-

1. What He Was. "He was a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith" (Acts 11:24). He was an all-round good man (Acts 9:27), baptised with the Holy Ghost and full of faith in the Gospel, which he preached, expecting direct results. These are the elements which constitute the gift of the evangelist.

2. What He Saw. "He saw the Grace of God" (Acts 11:23). A Roman philosopher could only see in this movement "a vile superstition," where the Spirit-anointed eyes of Barnabas saw "the grace of God." A man's inward character determines what he shall see. The Athenians saw, with great pride, their many gods; but Paul saw "the city wholly given to idolatry." There are things which can only be "spiritually discerned," and the "Grace of God" is one of them. When you go into a city, what seest thou?

3. What he Felt. "He was glad." His heart was filled with joy at seeing the work of God prosper, although he had no hand in it. A man's character is unmistakably revealed by what saddens or gladdens him. As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.

4. What he Did. "He exhorted them all... to cleave unto the Lord." To cleave unto Him as the branch does to the vine (John 15:4). As a helpless child would do to its mother; and as a faithful follower and friend, "with full purpose of heart." Be ye steadfast and immovable (1 Corinthians 15:58). He also sought for Saul to help him in the work (Acts 11:25-26). It is a great matter to be able to set others to work for God. It was here and at this time, that disciples were first called Christians. What a sweet, suggestive title. They were called after the name of Christ because they had believed on Him, and turned to Him, and were now, with full purpose of heart, living for Him. Would that all who are called Christians in our days had these marks of the sheep of Christ. How sad to have a name to live, and yet be dead.

PERSECUTION AND DELIVERANCE

Acts 12:1-17

The infant Church was not rocked in the cradle of ease, or nursed in the lap of luxury. It had early to face the fiery baptism of persecution. Herod thought that he had done a fine stroke of business when he discovered that the killing of James with the sword had "pleased the Jews" as well as himself. So he proceeded to gain further honour by apprehending Peter also. But He that ruleth in the heavens said, "So far, but no farther." Herod had already got to the end of his tether. Look at Peter-

1. His Perilous Condition. Peter was kept in prison, guarded by sixteen soldiers (Acts 12:4-5). The sentence of death seemed hanging over him; in himself he was utterly helpless and hopeless. Such is the condition of all those who are under the power of the god of this world (John 3:18).

2. His Faithful Remembrancers. "Prayer was made without ceasing unto God for him" (Acts 12:5). Thank God, all the forces of earth and hell cannot close the door of prayer-this highway to heaven-this secret bloodstained path into the very audience chamber of the King of kings. We may not be able to speak to our friends personally, who are suffering affliction for the cause of Christ, or who may be led captive by the devil at his will, but we can speak to God on their behalf. The prayer of faith will save. Many have been pulled out of the fires of sin, as Peter was pulled out of prison, by "effectual, fervent prayer."

3. His Peaceful Submission. "That same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers" (Acts 12:6). That same night that Herod was to bring him forth to condemnation and death Peter's mind was so calmly resting in the good will of God, that he went to sleep as sweetly as a babe in its crib, rocked by a loving mother's hand. It is well known that Argyle, the martyr, had to be awakened out of his sleep that morning he was executed. Easy lies the head that wears a crown of holy innocency. Even on the cold, damp pavement of a dungeon the Grace of God can make us to lie down as in green pastures.

4. His Supernatural Deliverance. "The angel of the Lord came," etc. (Acts 12:7). Soldiers are poor clumsy things in the presence of an angel, yet not more clumsy than the ways of men are, compared with the ways of God. His salvation is perfect. There was the Divine Presence. "The angel of the Lord" in personal touch with the needy one. There was the Light shining in the prison. Into the place of darkness the light of heaven came (2 Corinthians 4:6). There was the smiting of the prisoner, the awakening touch of the Messenger of God. "When He, the Spirit of Truth, is come, He will convince." There was the call, "Arise up quickly!" God hath commanded all men everywhere to repent, and believe the Gospel. There was the offer of liberty. "His chains fell from his hands." The Gospel of Christ offers liberty to the captives" (Luke 4:18).

5. His Instant Obedience. "And so he did." Peter was wise enough neither to argue nor object. He was profoundly conscious that Salvation is of the Lord, and that his privilege was to trust and obey. Salvation had come to his prison-house; he gladly accepted it as God's message to his soul. Be ye not disobedient to the heavenly vision.

6. His Perfect Assurance. "Now I know of a surety that the Lord hath delivered me" (Acts 12:10-11). No conqueror ever had a more triumphant march than Peter had from the State prison to the street. Those soldiers in charge of his life remained blind and dumb as he passed them by, and the ponderous gate swung open at his approach. How could he be anything else than sure that he was saved, after such an experience of the mighty power of God (Daniel 6:22). Do you know of a surety that the Lord hath delivered you?

7. His Joyful Testimony. "He declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison" (Acts 12:12-17). It was a wonderful story that Peter had to tell; the story of God's salvation is always so. While Peter continued knocking at their door, it was God's answer to their prayers seeking admission, but they would hardly believe it. Those who have been delivered by the Lord should not be ashamed to confess Him by telling how great things He hath done for their souls. THE CALL OF BARNABAS AND SAUL

After a missionary in China had been showing them the folly of idols, and had preached Jesus to them, one old man said-"Stop and tell us, for we cannot find the door." How sad to think of the multitudes who are groping in the dark for the door of eternal life and cannot find it. How shall they hear without a preacher, and how shall they preach except they be sent. The Holy Ghost is very desirous to thrust out labourers; pray ye Him. The young Church at Antioch had grown in number and power. Among the notable converts was Manaen, who had been a companion of that Herod who ordered the death of John the Baptist, and who mocked the Lord Jesus Christ, "setting Him at naught." But by the grace of God he was plucked as a brand out of the fire. As the members of this Church "served and fasted," the Holy Spirit met their real need by pressing home to their hearts this message of definite direction, "Separate Me Barnabas and Saul." Perhaps they had been waiting on the Lord for special guidance, as to how they might further the cause of Christ when this unmistakable call came-

1. It was a Divine Call. "The Holy Ghost said," etc. (Acts 13:2). They were as surely "called of God" as was Aaron. As all fitness for this service must come from Him, so also must the call. The Holy Ghost will never choose a man possessed by the spirit of the world as an ambassador of the Kingdom of Christ.

2. It was a Personal Call. "Barnabas and Saul." There was no room for questioning as to whom the Lord meant, neither was there any occasion for envy or jealousy. The Holy Spirit divideth to every man severally as He will (1 Corinthians 12:11). Not everyone that saith Lord, Lord, is fit for the service of God. "No man taketh this honour unto Himself but he that is called of God" (Hebrews 5:4).

3. It was a Call to Separation. "Separate Me," etc. Barnabas and Saul were to be separated unto the Holy Ghost, that He might breathe the will of God through them, as He had done with the holy men of God in old time (2 Peter 1:21). To be used of the Holy Spirit we must be separated from the world, and entirely yielded unto Him, as vessels meet for His use. But we are not to suppose that those who remained in Antioch were not separated unto God. We can live the separated life anywhere by living for His glory.

4. It was a Call to Work. "For the work whereunto I have called them." Only those who are new creatures in Christ Jesus can have a hand in the work of this "new creation." We are not called to ease and idleness, but to be "workers together with Him," who hath called us into this holy calling. Have we entered into this work whereunto God, the Spirit, hath called us? Or are we idlers in His vineyard?

5. It was a Call which met the Approval of the Brethren. "They sent them away" (Acts 13:3), but not without "fasting and prayer." It would be a great blessing to the Church and the world to-day if the Church was anything like so willing to recognise, and send forth, those who have been called of the Holy Ghost to do the work of an evangelist. By their fruit ye shall know them. These holy men were "solemnly ordained," not with dinners and toasts! but with "fastings and prayer." There were no "hip, hip, hurrahs!" but there was a solemn doing of the will of God. Many modern ordinations are a scandal to the cause of Jesus Christ.

6. It was a Call, Followed by Mighty Deeds. How can we believe that we are called and empowered by God if "signs and wonders" worthy of God are not being done through us in His name? (Acts 13:5-12). Two wonders were wrought here by Barnabas and Saul (a) The overcoming of the sorcerer. This "child of the devil" and "enemy of all righteousness" was smitten with temporary blindness. The works of the devil were destroyed. (b) The conversion of the deputy (Acts 13:12). The salvation of the governor of the island, and the silencing of Elymas, the enemy of God, were surely works worthy of the Holy Ghost, unto whom Barnabas and Saul had been separated. THE GOODNESS OF GOD

Paul and Barnabas had penetrated to the far away Antioch in Pisidia, and on the Sabbath day they quietly took a seat among the worshippers in the synagogue. Being asked, as strangers, if they had a word for the people, "Paul stood up" and delivered such a "word" as they had never heard before. This first recorded address of the great Apostle to the Gentiles may be entitled, "The Goodness of God." Paul may have taken the pattern of it from that great address of Stephen's, which must have been to him most memorable. He deals with- I. THE GOODNESS OF GOD REVEALED IN HIS DEALINGS WITH ISRAEL.-

(1) They were Chosen (Acts 13:17). God had been pleased, through grace, to make them His people, chosen, not for good in them, but as the monuments of His mercy (Deuteronomy 7:6).

(2) They were Delivered (Acts 13:17). When they were strangers in the land of Egypt, "with an high arm He brought them out." He saved them from the house of bondage.

(3) They were Preserved (Acts 13:18). For forty years His longsuffering patience bore with their murmurings and unbelief. Yet, as a people, they were kept from perishing (Psalms 95:9-10; 2 Peter 3:9).

(4) They had a place Prepared for Them (Acts 13:19). Seven sinful Canaanitish nations were cast down and destroyed, that they might have a possession. The forces of iniquity have all to be overcome ere the children of God can enter into their inheritance.

(5) He Supplied Their Need. He gave them judges, a prophet, and a King. Then He raised up David, a man after His own heart (Acts 13:20-22). David was a type of Jesus Christ, as a man raised up by God, to do His will among the people. Paul, true to his mission, at once links on the Christ to the seed of David, and shows next- II. THE GOODNESS OF GOD REVEALED IN HIS SON JESUS CHRIST.-

(1) He was Given According to Promise (Acts 13:23). He was the rod out of the stem of Jesse, and the branch out of his roots (Isaiah 11:1). Prepared in eternity, and raised up in the fulness of time as a Saviour.

(2) He was Heralded by John (Acts 13:24-25) as the Baptiser with the Holy Ghost and fire, whose shoes he was not worthy to loose.

(3) He was Condemned by the Rulers (Acts 13:26-29). Paul makes it clear that Christ was slain by those who found "no cause of death in Him," thus bringing out the awful enmity of the natural heart against the Holiness of God.

(4) He was raised from the Dead (Acts 13:30). This was a startling dogma for the apostle's hearers. Dogmatic was he? Yes; as dogmatic as the Son of God. He spake as one having authority (1 John 1:1). If a man cannot speak dogmatically on these great verities of the Gospel, then let him hold his peace, for he has no message from God to the people; and there is plenty of sickly namby-pambyism in the world already.

(5) He was Preached by Eye-witnesses of His Resurrection (Acts 13:31-37). We have not followed cunningly-devised fables. The resurrection of Christ is quite in harmony with His unique life and testimony. Christ's death and resurrection are the two pillars of the bridge of Grace.

(6) He is now able to Save all who Believe (Acts 13:38-39). "All that believe are justified. This is another blessed dogma (Romans 3:28). No. The law of Moses could never do this. It is through His blood the forgiveness of sins come (Ephesians 1:7).

III. THE WARNING AGAINST DESPISING THIS GOODNESS.-"Beware, therefore," etc. (Acts 13:40-41.) Despisers are sure to perish. God is still working this work of salvation in our days, in the hearts and lives of all who believe. Yet there are many who still "despise, and wonder, and perish" in their unbelief, although a man-saved and transformed by the power of this Gospel-declare it unto them. Behold, therefore, the "goodness of God" as exhibited in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ as the Saviour of Men, and let thy heart be bowed and broken by repentance. These words of Paul were to many as good news from a far country, so they wanted to hear them again the next Sabbath. No other story can bear to be repeated so often as this.

RESULTS OF PAUL'S PREACHING

Acts 13:42-52

Somehow or other, wherever these first preachers of the Gospel went, they succeeded in creating a stir. If they "turned the world upside down" it was because the world was wrong side up. Men who have been made, as it were, into new bottles, and filled with the new wine of the kingdom of God-the Holy Spirit- cannot possibly act as ordinary mundane mortals. They are intoxicated by a new possession that excites to a holy enthusiasm for the eternal honour of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is impossible for a man full of the Holy Ghost to be cold and formal; the Word of God burns in his bones as an unquenchable fire; he cannot but speak the things which he has seen and heard. The effects of Peter's sermon were emphatic and varied-

1. There was a Desire to Hear. "The Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (Acts 13:4). The Gospel had been so preached that morning that a real thirst had been created in the hearts of many to hear it again. There were many anxious inquiries at the close of Peter's address (Acts 13:43). "After meetings" are no new thing.

2. There was a general Awakening. "The next Sabbath day there came almost the whole city together to hear the Word of God" (Acts 13:44). It must have been an intensely interested audience that Paul and Barnabas addressed that day. We should see the multitudes oftener crowding together "to hear the Word of God" if they were sure that the Word of God was going to be preached. Much of the present-day preaching does not seem to stir up any interest whatever in the Word of God. Multitudes of sermon hearers are in total darkness as to what the Bible teaches.

3. There was Bitter Opposition. "The Jews were filled with envy, and spoke against Paul," etc (Acts 13:45). There was no fear of Paul ever bringing himself under that woe that comes upon those of whom "all men speak well of." The proud, envious Jews, like the Prodigal's "elder brother," could not rejoice in that Grace of God which saves sinners and transforms them into sons. Those who would preach "the Word of God" must be prepared for the "contradiction and blasphemy" of self-righteous, religious sinners, who are entirely out of sympathy with God in the salvation of the lost. But their opposition only stirred up the apostles to greater boldness, and to bring a more direct charge against them (Acts 13:46). How sad to think of those who, in the pride of their heart, judge themselves unfit to receive everlasting life as the gift of God's grace through Jesus Christ, His Son.

4. There was Joy among the Gentiles. "They were glad and glorified the Word of the Lord" (Acts 13:48). See Romans 15:9-12. These "other sheep" which were not of this Jewish fold were heartily glad to get into those life-giving pastures of His Word. The hungry Gentiles are fed, while the self-satisfied Jews are sent empty away. To the poor the Gospel is preached with God-honouring results. "Ye will not come to Me that ye might have life."

5. There was Apparent Defeat. "They expelled them out of their coasts" (Acts 13:50). It is melancholy to think of "devout and honourable women" lending their influence to such an unholy and dishonourable cause. They may cast out the servants of God, but they cannot cast out the seed of the Word that has been sown in the hearts of the people. No; the purpose of God in the lives of His chosen and consecrated servants can never suffer defeat. All things work together for good to them that love God (Romans 8:28).

6. There was Grace Triumphant. "The disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 13:52). When the preachers were expelled from them God gave them a greater blessing in filling them with the Holy Ghost, and so sealed them unto the day of the final redemption (Ephesians 1:13). These young disciples were rejoicing over a new found treasure, which they knew would enrich them during all the ages that were yet to come, while these persecutors had yet to reckon with that dust which the apostles shook off their feet against them.

MISSIONARY EXPERIENCE

Acts 14:1-20

In Iconium, Paul and Barnabus "so spake that a great multitude believed...boldly in the Lord," so that He "granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands" (Acts 14:1-3). Signs and wonders are not likely to be granted where the Word of God is so preached that a great multitude are sent to sleep. Preaching "boldly in the Lord"-not in the strength of our carnal wisdom and fleshly energy-will certainly be accompanied with the witness-bearing power of the wonder-working presence of God (Hebrews 2:4; Mark 16:20). Wherever God grants signs and wonders to be done, you may look for persecutions (Acts 14:4-6). The rulers of darkness will always oppose a violent disturbance of their kingdom.

I. AN EXAMPLE OF FAITH.-This man, who had been "a cripple from his mother's womb," was a picture of helplessness (Acts 14:8-9). He had never walked, and in all likelihood never hoped to walk. Such liberty and joy were not seemingly for him. Have we ever thanked God for the use of our feet. But this same man "heard Paul speak," and that faith which "cometh by hearing" sprung up as a new-born faculty in the sorrowful soul of the cripple. He hears, and he believes, that the Risen Saviour is able to heal him. See, there is a new light in his eye, it is the light of that new hope that is born of the Spirit of God, through the preached Word. He has "faith to be healed," and the Spirit-taught apostle is quick to perceive it, and calls him to "Stand upright on thy feet!" (Acts 14:10). And he "leaped and walked." He leaped before he walked, not only for joy, but perhaps also because he had never yet learned to walk. This great change was none the less real because it came suddenly.

II. AN EXAMPLE OF FOLLY.-When these idolatrous Lycaonians saw the well-known cripple leaping and walking, they foolishly supposed that their gods had come down in the likeness of Paul and Barnabas The gods of idolaters are deaf and dumb and dead. How could they heal a poor cripple, and where could they "come down" from? (Acts 14:11-13). But from their blind enthusiasm, let us solemnly learn how possible it is for us to be very earnest over religious notions that are only imaginary and delusive. How thankful we should be for the written Word of God, which is as a light shining in darkness, whereunto we do well to take heed. Any amount of "oxen and garlands" will never make a wrong thing right. They called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius; but these heathen Galatians are not the last of those who have attempted to adapt the things of God to their own idolatrous practices (Jude 1:4).

III. AN EXAMPLE OF FAITHFULNESS.-It is possible that Paul and Barnabas may not have understood the people when they spake "in the speech of Lycaonia," but as soon as their purpose of sacrifice was known they were quick to make a vehement protest against all forms of man-worship. They "rent their clothes" as an outward sign of inward horror-of hearts rent with agony at the thought. So jealous were they of the honour of God, that nothing pained them so deeply as that they, as the servants of Christ, should have the place in their thoughts and minds that their Lord and Master alone should have. The longing of their hearts and the object of their lives was to "turn them from these vanities unto the Living God" (Acts 14:14-18). They were "men of like passions with themselves," but what a difference the grace of God had made. Elijah was a man of like passions as we are, but how few of us can pray as he did (James 5:17). How differently Herod acted when the people worshipped him. "He gave not God the glory," and immediately the angel of the Lord smote him (Acts 12:22-23). Seek the honour that comes from God only (Daniel 4:37).

IV. AN EXAMPLE OF FICKLENESS.-In a few days after they "stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead" (Acts 14:19). There is not much between the world's honours and its frowns, between its "garlands" and its stones. To-day they cry, "Hosanna!" to-morrow, "Crucify!" What a Friend we have in Jesus, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever.

HELPING THE SAINTS

Acts 14:19-28

"Once was I stoned" is the name of one of the medals Paul received for his faithfulness to Jesus Christ (2 Corinthians 11:25). There is not much between the praises and the anathemas of an ungodly crowd (Acts 14:18-19). Woe be to them who seek their happiness in the favour of men, instead of the favour of God. It was perhaps while Paul lay outside the city of Lystra, as one dead, that he had that "unspeakable" experience of being "caught up into paradise," so that whether "in the body or out of the body he could not tell" (2 Corinthians 12:3-4). If so, see how the Lord can compensate His suffering servants that they might be able to "glory in tribulations also." After preaching the Gospel in Derbe and making many disciples (Acts 14:21, R.V.), they began their great return journey, which was crowded with holy deeds and crowned with abundant results.

1. They Confirmed the Souls of the Disciples (Acts 14:22). This is a very needful work, if young believers are to be saved from backsliding. To confirm a soul in the faith is to strengthen that soul against the temptation and assaults of the world, the flesh, and the devil. Deal tenderly with young converts, show them the whole armour of God, and tell them how to put it on. Give them line upon line, and perhaps a little of your own experience, if you have any.

2. They Exhorted to Continue in the Faith. The Christian fight is a fight of faith. Faith, fighting against feelings, failings, and appearances. As ye have therefore received the Lord Jesus-by faith-so walk ye in Him. Continue trusting in the promise of God against everything that seems opposed, and so make God true, if it should make every man a liar. This is the victory that overcomes the world, even our faith. There is a great need for faith, for it is "through much tribulation that we enter into the kingdom of God" (Acts 14:22). In the world ye shall have tribulation, but faith clings to Him who hath said, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

3. They Ordained Elders in every Church (Acts 14:23). It was needful, in the absence of the apostles, that suitable and trustworthy men should be elected as rulers and teachers. They would likely be appointed by the vote of the people. All men are not fit to rule and to "labour in word and doctrine." Since the beginning there have been those who, through divine grace, and a more entire consecration of themselves to God, have become better qualified for spiritual service than others. Covet earnestly the best gifts.

4. They Commended them to the Lord. After being called they were handed over to the Lord as His own private property that He might use them as it may seem good in His sight. Do you think this would be a hardship? It is glorious liberty. Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price.

5. They Preached the Word (Acts 14:25). Oh, what a Word was this that filled and fired their souls with an unquenchable desire to labour and suffer for the salvation of men and the glory of the name of Jesus Christ. From the day of Paul's conversion to the day of his translation you never find him "off duty." He was as much a witness for Jesus out of the pulpit as in it. "To me to live is Christ."

6. They Rehearsed all that God had done WITH THEM (Acts 14:27). It was a wonderful story of grace they had to tell. The Lord had done not only great things for them, but great things with them. There be many who are ever ready to tell us what God has done for them, but we long most of all to hear what God has been able to do with them. If you are saved, God hath wrought a great work for you. If you are consecrated, God will do a great work with you. THE DISPUTE ABOUT WORKS

Acts 15:1-35

I. THE CAUSE OF THE DISPUTE (Acts 15:1-2). - It arose about as to whether the Gentile converts should be circumcised "after the manner of Moses" or not. Those brethren that came down from Jerusalem were so strong in their arguments for it as to make it "necessary to salvation." These nameless men, which disturbed the peace of the Church with this controversy, are the forerunners of a class still extant, who are not famous for spirituality of mind or success in the Lord's work, but who are for ever ready to put those right who are being greatly owned and blessed of God. The most unspiritual are usually the greatest sticklers about forms. Paul and Barnabas, who had seen so much of the grace of God, hotly opposed this attempt to bring them back into bondage. So keenly did Paul feel it that in writing to the Galatians shortly after, he says: "If ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing" (Acts 15:2).

II. THE CONFERENCE AT JERUSALEM.-It was agreed to submit the case to the General Assembly at Jerusalem (Acts 15:2-21). So the evangelists hastened thither. After they had given their report, "declaring all things that God had done with them," the burning question was at once introduced by certain converted Pharisees, who had enough of their old nature still in them as to make it hard for them to believe that Gentiles could be saved "without the works of the law." After "much disputing," Peter rose up and addressed the Assembly as one clothed in the authority of God. He spoke of what his eyes had seen of the power of the Gospel among the Gentiles, how God had "given them the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us," putting no difference between them, "purifying their hearts by faith." There was great stillness in the court when Barnabas and

Paul again addressed the audience (Acts 15:12) on the special subject before them, taking care to show that the wonderful works wrought among the Gentiles were the works of God. The river of His grace is always too broad for the narrow channel of man's pride or prejudice. The next to speak is James-a man deeply taught in the Scriptures. He shows from the Word that it was the purpose of God to take out of the Gentiles "a people for His name," and takes the further liberty of submitting to the Church the divine programme of the present dispensation. A people "for His name" are now being taken out, through the preaching of the Gospel of Christ. This is James's first point. The second is the return of the Lord: "After this I will return." Third, the restoration of Israel: "Build the tabernacle of David." Fourth, the Millennium: "That the residue of men might seek after the Lord" (Acts 15:14-17). In closing his magnificent address, he makes this wise proposal: That the Gentile converts should not be troubled about forms that were not vital to their life and usefulness, but that they should be asked to abstain from those heathenish practices that were so common around them (Acts 15:20)

III. THE RESULTS.-James' motion was carried unanimously. Letters of congratulation and sympathy were sent by special messengers to all those affected by this controversy. It was a cause of great joy to them when they heard that "it seemed good to the Holy Ghost to lay no unnecessary burden upon them" (Acts 15:28). The goodness of the Holy Ghost in this respect is not always acknowledged by those who rule in some ecclesiastical courts. The true object of Church government is not to advocate or elaborate men's opinions, but to find out the mind of the Holy Spirit of God, and to do it. Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. THE CRY OF THE HELPLESS

Paul and Silas had been "forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the Word in Asia," and when they assayed to go into Bithynia, the "Spirit suffered them not." These are facts full of deep significance to every servant of the Lord Jesus Christ. They reveal how completely the Holy Spirit has control over their lives. It is the mission of this Great Teacher come from God to guide us into all truth, and to carry on the work of God through the lives of those who are wholly yielded up to Him. Our subject may be divided into three parts-

1. The New Call. "Come over into Macedonia, and help us" (Acts 16:9). It now became plain to Paul why the Holy Spirit had been closing other doors in his face. Macedonia needed the help that Paul and Silas, apostles of the Cross of Christ, were able to give. What help could they have given if they had not been possessors of the grace of God and the knowledge of His saving power, through the death and resurrection of His beloved Son. The best help anyone can get is to be lifted out of a life of sin and hopelessness into a life of holiness and victory. How the vision came to Paul we need not stop to inquire, it was simply the Lord's way of revealing His will to His servant (Romans 10:14-15). May we not hear this cry for help, in a muffled fashion, rising in one torm or another from every grade of social life to-day?

2. The Immediate Response. They at once obeyed, "assuredly gathering that the Lord had called them to preach the Gospel unto them" (Acts 16:10). Paul and the Gospel were so vitally joined together that an open door to him meant an open door for the Gospel of Christ. When Paul said, "To me to live is Christ," he was stating not an article in his creed, but the all-absorbing principle of his heaven-born existence. Let us beware of being disobedient to any heavenly vision that may be beckoning us into new spheres of service, or into higher and fuller experiences of the deep things of the Spirit of God. It is only those who, like Paul and Silas, have had their lives enriched with the grace and power of Jesus Christ that can render the help that is needed to those who sit in darkness and the shadow of death and despair.

3. The Blessed Results (Acts 16:13-15). They were not long in finding out the place of prayer. It may have been a spot by the river-side, set apart as a public oratory, because of its natural adaptations. In this roofless "house of prayer" Paul and Silas sat and spake the wonderful words of life to the women which resorted thither. The interest centres in a "certain woman named Lydia, whose heart the Lord opened." She had been a worshipper of God, but now the door of her heart was opened to receive the message of the Gospel, sent to her by the Lord, through His servants. Take note that the "Word of Salvation" sent from God to man is not so much for the head as for the heart. With the heart man believeth unto righteousness. The open heart will always be "attentive unto the things" spoken by the servant of God, and God is sure to open hearts for the reception of the message that He hath sent. Another evidence of the open heart is a willingness to confess Christ and a love for the fellowship of the people of God (Acts 16:15). We can never work out our own salvation until God hath worked it in us. Some hearts are opened as with the gentle kiss of light (2 Corinthians 4:6), others have been broken open as with a rod of iron. To open the heart to the Lord is to give Him the control of all the springs of the life. Son, give Me thine heart. THE JAILOR'S CONVERSION

These incidents remind us of a picture gallery, where you have different scenes grouped together, and that, perhaps, strike you most by way of contrast Shall we look at each separately?

1. A Picture of Demoniac Possession. "A damsel possessed with a spirit of divination" (Acts 16:16). How sad to think of this nice-looking young woman, wholly given over to the control of a deceitful, wicked spirit. She was the property of several sin-hardened wretches, who probably sold her half-mad ravings as the oracles of God. What she cried after the apostles on their way to the prayer meeting was quite true (Acts 16:17), but then the words had such a hollow, fiendish ring about them that "grieved" Paul; so, by faith in the name of Jesus Christ, he "commanded the evil spirit to come out of her."

2. A Picture of Selfishness and Cruelty (Acts 16:19-24). "When her masters saw that the hope of their gains was gone," because the poor girl was now delivered from the soul-maddening power of the devil, instead of being thankful to God for such an emancipation, and because her salvation touched their pockets, they sought the ruin of the servants of God. "The love of money is the root of all evil." The spirit that possessed her masters was no better than the spirit which possessed the deluded damsel; for greed of gain they would traffic in the souls of their fellow-creatures.

3. A Picture of Heaven-Born Happiness. "Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises unto God" (Acts 16:24). Although lying in the deepest, darkest hole of that miserable prison, with bleeding backs and aching limbs, the joy of the Lord so filled their hearts that they were able also to "glory in tribulation." What but the grace of God could make anyone sing in such circumstances. "The prisoners heard them." Might not this have been one of the reasons why God permitted His servants to be cast into prison. These fellow-prisoners also share in the victory which God wrought, for "everyone's bonds were loosed."

4. A Picture of Divine Intervention. "Suddenly there was a great earthquake," etc. Paul and Silas resisted the devil in the damsel, but no doubt they prayed for those who had despitefully used them and persecuted them (Matthew 5:44). Having calmly and joyfully trusted in God, the mighty, wonder-working hand of God is now stretched out for their deliverance. Truly, when they prayed "the place was shaken." This was a fulfilment of Psalms 10:15.

5. A Picture of Sudden Conversion (Acts 16:27-31). It was a very dark moment in the experience of the jailor when he drew out his sword intending to commit suicide; but it was immediately followed by the brightest experience he ever had. "He called for a light" that might guide his feet into the inner prison of the suffering saints, but when he cried, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" he was calling for another light that might guide his feet into the paths of righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. Then they told him words whereby he and all his house should be saved (Acts 16:31). Just as he had been saved from self-destruction through the word of the apostle- "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here"-so can he be saved from the power of sin and the wrath of God by "believing on the Lord Jesus Christ" (John 3:16).

6. A Picture of Joyful Fellowship (Acts 16:32-34). What a change. A few hours before this the jailor was fastening their feet in the terrible stocks. Now he is bathing their wounds, taking them into his house, and spreading the best he has before them, eating with them, "and rejoicing, believing in God with all his house." He had been suddenly awakened out of his sleep, but now he was at one with the servants of God, and with them enjoying an early hallelujah breakfast- such a scene as would do credit to a modern Salvation Army "glory feast."

SPECIAL MISSIONS

Acts 17:1-14

It was a long journey from Philippi to Thessalonica (about 100 miles) for two men who had just lately been beaten with "many stripes." But as the sufferings of Christ abounded in them, so also did the consolation of Christ (2 Corinthians 1:3-6). About one year after this Paul reminds the Thessalonians that their entrance unto them was after they "had suffered and were shamefully entreated at Philippi" (1 Thess. 2). It was often at great personal sacrifice that these early apostles preached the Word.

I. EXPERIENCES AT THESSALONICA.-

1. Where they went. There was a synagogue of the Jews there, "and Paul, as his manner was, went in." There seems to have been no synagogue at Philippi, the only recognised place of worship being the place by "a river side, where prayer was wont to be made" (chap. Acts 16:13). The manner of this evangelist, wherever he went, was to seek out the "house of prayer," because there was there liberty given for prayer and exhortation.

2. What they did. "Paul reasoned with them out of the Scriptures." He proved to them, from Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms that Messiah must suffer death and be raised again from the dead, and that Jesus of Nazareth, whom he preached, was that same Anointed One. "This Jesus whom I preach." This preacher was never ill off for a text. He was so in love with Jesus, as his Redeemer and Lord, that he could glory in no one else. No one can preach the Gospel of Christ as it ought to be preached, unless it is the all-absorbing passion of their soul.

3. How they succeeded. "Some believed, and some were moved with envy" (Acts 17:5-9). The Gospel, in the power of the Holy Ghost, is either a savour of life or death, of justification or condemnation, according as it is received or rejected. In either case a change of attitude toward God will take place. If the enmity is not slain thereby, it is likely to be embittered. "The baser sort" are always ready to oppose the Kingship of Jesus.

II. THEIR EXPERIENCES AT BEREA.-In obedience to the Word of their Lord, "If they persecute you in one city, flee to another," they set off by night for Berea, a distance of sixty miles. They found the people here-

1. Open-hearted. "They received the Word with all readiness of mind" (Acts 17:11). Their minds were not sealed with prejudice; they were quite prepared to give this new doctrine a careful and favourable consideration. The minds of many Gospel hearers are like a well-trodden footpath in a field; the seed may fall on it, but it never gets a chance of entering into it. There is no readiness to receive the Word.

2. Noble-hearted. "They searched the Scriptures daily whether these things were so." A willingness to bring all teaching to the test of the "Scriptures of truth" is an evidence of nobility of mind (Acts 17:11). What could be more noble than a soul eager to know and obey the mind of God? There is something fatally wrong with our thoughts and opinions if they cannot stand the test of God's revealed will as found in His Word. If we are building on a sandy foundation, surely the sooner we find out our folly and danger the better.

3. Honest-hearted. "Therefore many of them believed" (Acts 17:12). Having been convinced of the truth of Paul's teaching, after searching the Word for themselves, they were honest enough to believe it. When a good and honest heart hears the Word, it keeps it and brings forth fruit with patience (Luke 8:15). Be honest with God. If any man will do His will, he shall know whether the teaching is of God (John 7:17).

PAUL AT ATHENS

Acts 17:15-34

The reason why Paul came to Athens is stated in the previous verses. It may simplify the lessons here just to put them in this modern form-

1. The Preacher. Paul. A man learned in all the wisdom of the philosophers. A man who had been soundly converted by God to a special revelation of Jesus Christ. A man with a definite commission from the Risen One. A man who had already suffered much in the service of Christ. A man with a soul ablaze with love for his fellowmen, who knows no fear, and who is prepared to face all the wisdom of the Greeks, in the name of his Lord and Master. A preacher who has always a message, and who is never ashamed to tell it out.

2. The Preparation. "While he waited, his spirit was stirred in him" (Acts 17:16). The city was stocked with thirty thousand gods, many of them magnificent works of art. But Paul was no mere sight-seer. He looked upon things in the light of the revelation of God in Christ and of eternity. While others could only see Grecian handiwork in Athenian "devotions," this man of God saw "the city wholly given to idolatry." The man whose eyes God hath opened will look upon "the things which are unseen." In many of our towns or cities there are signs of "religious devotions" that are not of God enough to stir the spirit of any preacher who has the heaven-lit eyes of the apostle.

3. The Pulpit. "Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' Hill" (Acts 17:22). That was after he had been in the synagogue and the market place preaching unto them "Jesus and the Resurrection." As the lonely evangelist stood in the midst of that open-air court, while the Athenian dignitaries rested on these rock-hewn seats, he was occupying the leading pulpit of the city. It was a bold stand that he took, but he believed that the Lord who stood by him, was worthy of the highest place in this philosophical centre. Paul counted this a great privilege for his Master's sake.

4. The Audience. "Ye men of Athens" (Acts 17:22). No preacher ever addressed a more critical congregation; they made it their life's business to inquire into every new thing (Acts 17:21). In the Epicureans, he had a company of high-minded Rationalists, whose god was their belly; the Stoics extolled virtue, but denied human responsibility and future judgment. In them Paul was face to face with the wisdom of Socrates and Plato, but in him they were face to face with the "wisdom of God." The world by wisdom knows not God.

5. The Sermon. It was not read, it was poured out of a burning heart. The subject was "Him." Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship Him declare I unto you. This preacher always found a short cut to Christ because he gloried in Him (Galatians 6:14). The Heads of this wonderful sermon are very clear. He preached (a) The Existence and Creative Power of God. "God that made the world," etc. This was a blow at the Epicurean theory of evolution or "chance." (b) The Spiritual Character of God (Acts 17:25). He is not worshipped "with men's hands." Out of the heart are the issues of life. (c) The Universal Brotherhood of Man. "Made of one blood all nations." (d) The overruling Providence of God. He hath determined the times before appointed (Acts 17:26). (e) Man's Need of God, "They should seek the Lord." (f) The Universality of the presence of God. "He be not far from every one of us" (Acts 17:27; Isaiah 55:6). (g) That God Himself is the source of all Life. "In Him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:28). How much more fully is this truth realised by those whose "life is hid with Christ in God?" Then came the Application-(a) Something we ought not to do. "We ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold," etc. (b) Something we ought to do. We should repent, for "God hath commanded all men everywhere to repent" (Acts 17:30); and "because He hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world by Jesus Christ" (Acts 17:31; Romans 2:16).

6. The Results. (a) Some mocked (Acts 17:32). The doctrine of the resurrection and final judgment cut at the roots of their selfish lives and false philosophy. What made Felix tremble, made them mock. Any fool can do that. (b) Some hesitated. "We will hear thee again," they said. They wavered, and lost their opportunity, for they never heard him again (Acts 17:33). (c) Some believed. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth.

PAUL AT CORINTH

Acts 18:1-17

Athens was perhaps the hardest field in which the apostle had ever attempted to sow the good seed of the kingdom. The wisdom of this world is one of the strongest forts of the kingdom of Satan. Paul writes no epistle to the Athenians. When he visited Corinth, the capital of Achaia, he must have found it a busy and populous centre of commerce. Let us look at him here-

I. AS A TENTMAKER.-"Because he was of the same craft he abode with them and wrought" (Acts 18:3). It was a principle with Paul that if any man "would not work, neither should he eat." Rather than burden anyone with the responsibility of his board and lodgings, he would labour night and day (2 Thessalonians 3:8). Paul was courageous enough to preach the Gospel to the Athenian professors at the Mars' Hill University; he was also humble enough to act as a journeyman tentmaker in the workshop of Aquila. Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord.

II. AS A REASONER.-"He reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath" (Acts 18:4). Paul did not reason with them merely to bring them over to his way of thinking, or to prove his own superior scholarship; he reasoned with them "out of the Scriptures" (chap. Acts 17:2), that he might bring them over to the mind of God concerning His Son Jesus Christ. If the will of God, as revealed in the Scriptures of truth, has not become the governing and impelling factor in our lives, then is our preaching vain, and men will remain in their sins. Many preachers nowadays, instead of reasoning out of the Scriptures, go out of the Scriptures to reason. Instead of giving the people bread, they offer them luminous dust.

III. AS A WITNESS.-"He testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ." He not only could reason with them over an open Bible, but he could also give his own personal testimony to the Messiahship and saving power of Jesus, who was called Christ. Had he not seen Him, and heard Him, and been transformed by His wondrous grace? (Acts 9). Mere finger-post preachers may be correct, but they are always cold, and stiff, and lifeless. God never sent anyone to preach Christ who had not first Christ revealed in them (Galatians 1:16). "We speak that we do not know."

IV. AS A PROTESTANT.-" When they opposed.....he said, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean" (Acts 18:6). He protested against the unreasonable opposition and wilful blindness of these Jews by turning his ministry specially to the Gentiles. That very dust that he shook off his raiment will remain as a witness against them. It is a very solemn thing to grieve the Spirit of God, so that the message of the Gospel, which is the message of Life, is turned into a sentence of death (Ezekiel 3:18-19).

V. AS A SOUL-WINNER.-"Many of the Corinthians hearing, believed" (Acts 18:7-8). His turning away from the Jews was the salvation of these Gentiles. If you don't come into the marriage feast of the Gospel, another will, for every seat will be occupied when the King comes. But the apostle's testimony among the opposing Jews was not in vain; it never was. Among the converts he had "Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue." My Word shall not return void.

VI. AS ONE BELOVED BY GOD.-"Then spake the Lord to Paul," etc. (Acts 18:9-10). If there was any lingering doubt or fear in Paul's mind as to the wisdom of turning away with the Gospel from his own kinsmen, this message from the Lord would give him perfect rest. There was in it (1) a word of cheer, "Be not afraid;" (2) a word of counsel, "Speak and hold not thy peace;" (3) a word of assurance, "I am with thee;" (4) a word of promise, "No man shall hurt thee;" (5) a word of hope, "I have much people in this city." They are always blessed who are heaven's favourites.

VII. AS ONE DESPISED BY MEN.-"The Jews made insurrection with one accord against Paul" (Acts 18:12-17). Woe unto you when all men speak well of you. The more intently anyone seeks the glory of God in the salvation of souls, the more bitter will those self-righteous religious formalists become. They beat Sosthenes in the presence of a careless governor (Gallio), but as to Paul, it happened unto him just as the Lord had said. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee." Be thou faithful.

PAUL AT EPHESUS

Acts 19:1-20

Paul did a great service in bringing Priscilla and Aquila to Ephesus. Next to winning souls, there is no greater work than putting others in the way of doing better service for God. Jealousy is a cruel monster that would hinder us from rejoicing in the success of others. It was surely the guiding hand of God that brought Apollos into contact with these two deeply taught disciples (chap. Acts 18:26). If they were not eloquent them selves, they were able, by the grace of God, to sharpen the sword of the mighty Apollos. He knew only John's baptism, and evidently was a stranger to the mighty baptism of the Holy Spirit. He was a fervent, eloquent, diligent believer in the Lord, but he lacked what many preachers still lack, a definite baptism of the Holy Ghost. Apollos was not too proud to sit at the feet and learn of those who were less scholarly, but more deeply spiritual than himself. Humility is a characteristic of all who are prepared to be used in the work of God.

Paul, having again visited Jerusalem, returned to Ephesus. His heart must have been cheered in finding there "certain disciples" (Acts 19:1). His first question was a searching one-"Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" He did not wish these young believers to be, like Apollos, strangers to this gift of the Ascended Christ. The apostle knew that without this they were in great danger of backsliding, or of living fruitless and powerless lives. It was well that he did, for they had not even heard of the Spirit of Pentecost, having only known the "baptism of John." But as soon as they heard of this second blessing they at once yielded themselves, that they might receive it.

"Then the Holy Ghost came on them, and they spake with tongues." No one ever yet received the baptism of the Holy Spirit without signs following. It is impossible for anyone to be filled with the Spirit and yet no supernatural Works following. How will ever the world be convinced that God is in us if no God-like wonders are being wrought? The Church of God will never be anything else, in the eyes of an ungodly world, but an impotent thing, beating the thin air until experimentally this great truth is grasped. God will not give His glory to another on earth save the Holy Spirit. This is a question of urgent and tremendous importance for every believer in Jesus Christ. "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" Pentecost must follow Calvary in the experience of every one that would honour God by a life of service. And we say it in all tenderness, the will of God is not being done in the lives of those who are not filled with the Spirit. For two years Paul spake of the "things concerning the kingdom of God" (Acts 19:10). Some believed not, but all that dwelt in Asia heard the Word of the Lord Jesus. Whether men received the message of God or not, Paul sounded out the "Word of Life." He did not seem to trouble himself much about results. He knew the Word would not return void to Him who sent it. His great business as a preacher was to make men hear. The miracle of the "handkerchief" seemed to excite the jealousy and emulation of the vagabond Jews; they, too, would work miracles for their own glory in the name of "Jesus, whom Paul preached" (Acts 19:13), but the demon-possessed "overcame them and prevailed against them." The victory of the man with the evil spirit over those would-be exorcists was proof enough that they were not sent by God, and that they were not possessed by the Holy Ghost. No one can be a match for the devil in his own strength. The powers of darkness will always prevail against those who are not in themselves right with God. "Jesus I know, and Paul I know, but who are ye?" said the demon. It is a startling fact that devils know no enemies but those filled with the Spirit and in living touch with God. It is by "He that is in you," who is "greater than he that is in the world," that we overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil.

WORLDLY WISDOM

Acts 19:21-41

"No small stir" was created in Ephesus through the faithful testimony of Paul. When the Word of God is preached in the power of the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, it is as a two-edged sword piercing and dividing asunder the things that affect both soul and spirit. It is the flash-light of the Eternal Throne of God cast upon the iniquitous thoughts and acts of men, and is always sure to produce a consternation when it suddenly falls upon those who love the darkness rather than the light.

Demetrius became almost demented when he saw that his idolatrous "craft was in danger." It mattered nothing to him how many souls were being blessed of God, in being redeemed out of heathen darkness, so long as his purse was not affected. This silversmith, like many others, could be very religious so long as it brought him a good income. He showed real "worldly wisdom" in gathering together "the workmen of like occupation" to protest against the teaching of Paul. It would be good for us if we were half so earnest in contending for the truth as those men were for their heathenish superstitions. In connecting "this our craft" with the "great goddess Diana," Demetrius did a magnificent stroke of business. His craft and his god were to stand or fall together. Is there not a more urgent lesson here for every Christian worker? Is our work for Christ so vitally connected with Him that His honour waxes or wanes according as we succeed or fail in His service? As through the work of Demetrius and his associates' images of their god were made and circulated among the people for the glory of Diana, so, through the work of Paul and his companions in labour, images of his God were being created and circulated for His glory and honour in those souls that had been transformed by the Holy Spirit. Here the powers of the kingdom of Satan and the forces of the kingdom of Christ meet in terrible conflict. Do we wonder that "the whole city was filled with confusion?" These enemies of God were blinded by the smoke of their own guns. In their desperation they caught two of Paul's companions and made a rush for the public oratory (theatre), that their triumph might be all the more conspicuous. Paul, the fearless, would at once have faced those lions in their own den, but his trustworthy friends advised him not to "adventure himself" (Acts 19:31). The scene in the theatre was like the troubled sea casting up mire and dirt. "Some cried one thing, and some another." Confusion reigned; for the greater part of the mob knew not for what reason they had come together. But like all other narrow-minded, sin-blinded bigots, they could say one thing, and for the space of two hours they kept saying it: "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" What is the use of us crying up the greatness of our God if we ourselves act like a lot of silly imbeciles. It is easy to preach on the faithfulness of God while we show by our acts that we are living in unbelief. The town clerk seemed to be a man worthy of his honourable position; faithful, clear-headed, and reasonable. He knows how to manage the tumultous crowd by first speaking a word of praise for the world-renowned city and its goddess (Acts 19:35). Then, in substance, he declares, seeing that the God which ye worship is the greatest that ever came from heaven, and that the things which ye believe are infallible, and "cannot be spoken against," ye ought to show the reality of your faith by being calm, and not doing anything rashly. How very applicable all this is to those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. Is He not great? Did He not come down from heaven? Has He not spoken things which cannot be overthrown? Ought we not then to be "quiet, and do nothing rashly?" He that believeth shall not make haste. When we know that greater is He that is for us than all that can be against us, surely we can well afford to be quiet and do nothing rashly. They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength. A MIDNIGHT MEETING

One prominent characteristic of the great apostle of the Gentiles was his intense carefulness over young believers, that they might be established in the faith (Acts 20:3). He counted no personal sacrifice too great so that they might be made strong in the Lord, to live and witness for Him. It is not enough that we are saved; we are saved to serve. We fail in our ministry if we do not lead young converts into the secret joy and power of His service. It is a great matter to lead a soul into the saving knowledge of Christ, but it is an equally important matter to lead a soul into active work for God. A soul yielded to Christ is a soul saved, but a life given to Him is a life saved. We are not rewarded at last for being saved, but for works done in His name and for His glory. It might help us to grasp the teaching of this portion more easily if we look at-

1. The Speaker. "Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow" (Acts 20:7). His stay at Troas was short, only "seven days," but it was a memorable time. Who could ever forget a sermon by Paul? When the soul of a preacher is aflame with heaven-born fire, the bread of life is sure to be served in season. It is possible even to preach the truth in such a way as to sicken even a hungry soul. The Gospel of the Love of God must be served hot if men are to receive it gladly. We feel perfectly sure that Paul would give no countenance to read sermons.

2. The Time. "The first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread." The "first day of the week," which is our Sabbath, is a day for which we should continually thank God. It is the memorial of Christ's resurrection, and the "breaking of bread" was the memorial of His death. Paul seems to have waited the whole week to get this opportunity of ministering the Word to them. Were there no Sabbaths, how few, even in our own Christian country, would ever think of going to hear the Word of God. Let us pray that the sanctity of it may be long preserved.

3. The Place. "The upper chamber, where there were many lights" (Acts 20:8). Ever since Pentecost, the disciples seem to have a special liking for the "upper room" (chap. Acts 1:13). Being an all-night meeting, they had need of lights, but perhaps the "many lights" suggests the willingness of all the disciples to provide abundance for the occasion. The natural consequence would be the heating of the atmosphere to an excessive degree, which may partly account for the window being open, and the sleepy young man falling over.

4. The Speech. "Paul continued his speech until midnight" (Acts 20:7), and after taking some refreshment, he "talked a long while, even till break of day" (Acts 20:11). The people who clamour for short sermons are not likely to be found at a midnight meeting. From the attitude of some modern church-goers, you would think that they look upon listening to the preaching of the Word of God as a kind of penance that should be made as short as possible. They are perfectly satisfied with the smallest crumb of the heavenly bread for their souls, then they go home and have a dinner with five courses. It is quite true that there are some sermons long at five minutes, while others are short at fifty. Everything depends on the man and the message

5. The Interruption. "Eutychus sunk down with sleep and fell from the third loft" (Acts 20:9). This young man suffered severely for his "first sleep in the kirk;" he nearly lost his life. Are there not multitudes in our own days who are running the risk of losing their souls through the same drowsy habit, and with only about the tenth part of the provocation that befell Eutychus? Immediately Paul ran to the help of the unfortunate man, and by "embracing him" restored him again to consciousness, to the great comfort of the disciples. Are there not-in another sense-many fallen ones lying within our reach who might be restored to a new and better life if only they were embraced by the arms of Christian love and faith? We shall never be successful in "lifting the fallen" unless we can take them into the affections of our hearts. A PERSONAL TESTIMONY

Paul's company sailed into Assos, he arranged to meet them there, preferring himself to walk the distance, which was only a few miles; perhaps that he might have a quiet time of meditation by the way, or that he might have some further opportunity of preaching the Gospel. A true Christian can enjoy the presence of God in the highway, just as much as anywhere else. It is said of a certain man of God that he used to walk along the road with his hat off, so conscious was he of the nearness of the presence of the Lord. Paul faithfully kept his appointment, as every honourable man should, (Acts 20:14). There are some who always study to be late. If they cannot be notable in one way they will in another. It is he that is faithful in the least that will be honoured in the much. To save time they passed by Ephesus and halted at Miletus, from whence Paul sent for the Ephesian elders, that he might leave with them his last parting message. His words to them were in the form of a personal testimony. It was no egotism that moved the apostle to give them this perfect photograph of his own spiritual character as a servant of Christ. We feel profoundly thankful to him for it, as it gives us a true picture of what every servant of the Lord Jesus Christ should be. Let us carefully look at it.

1. He was Humble. "Serving the Lord with all humility" (Acts 20:19). There is no room for pride, or selfish boasting where the Spirit of the "meek and lowly in heart" rules. The Lord can never be served in any other way but in "all humility of mind." Brokenness of spirit is an essential condition even of fellowship with Him, and there can be no real service for Him out of the communion of the Holy Ghost. His humility is further seen in his working with his hands for the support of himself and those who were with him (Acts 20:34). He was not ashamed to call himself "the least of the apostles" and to declare that it was "by the grace of God I am what I am."

2. He was Compassionate. He served the Lord "with many tears and temptations" (Acts 20:19.) "He ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears" (Acts 20:31). Paul's ministry was not a cold, formal, glass-eyed business. His words were moist with the heart-dew of divine love and tenderness. Many preachers use the words "I tell you," but how few can add, "even weeping. " (Php_3:18). We might as well throw stones at the people, as heartless words of wisdom. The truth must be spoken in love. The man who cannot weep over the enemies of the Cross of Christ fails to make full proof of his ministry. We can weep over our own sorrows and losses, and if the interests of Jesus Christ were as real to us we would also weep over His. Servant of God, is your heart right?

3. He was Faithful. "I kept back nothing that was profitable, " etc (Acts 20:20-21). He taught from house to house, both Jews and Greeks, preaching repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ, and shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God (Acts 20:27). Paul had no theories of man to defend, he had a revelation of God to declare. It is a most lamentable fact that one of the most prominent doctrines of this great apostle-repentance toward God-has almost died out of the modern sermon. To seek popularity, and the praise of men, instead of to declare the whole counsel of God, is to become a traitor to Christ, and a stumbling-block to the souls of men. Only the faithful shall be rewarded (Luke 19:17).

4. He was Submissive. "I go bound in spirit unto Jerusalem... but none of these things move me" (Acts 20:22-24). Although Paul had the witness of the Holy Ghost that "in every city bonds and afflictions waited for him, " there was no offence in his heart at this painful providence. In nothing that the finger of God touched was he offended. He believed that all things work together for good to them that love God (Romans 8:28) "Bonds and afflictions" are not in themselves evidences that we have erred, and so need them as chastisements; they are often conditions necessary to the discipline of the soul, for further and deeper experience of the things of God. Our Lord's sufferings were in no sense corrective, but served, in one way, as a background for the manifestation of His glorious character.

5. He was Devoted. "Neither count I my life dear unto myself, that I might finish the ministry... of the Gospel of the grace of God" (Acts 20:24). To publish the Gospel of the grace of God was a thing more dear to Paul than bis own life. It was his meat and drink to do the will of his Redeemer and Lord. He could say, "To me to live is Christ." The Gospel is never preached as it ought to be, unless by those who are more desirous to glorify God than themselves. He who seeketh "great things for himself" is morally unfit for the service of Christ. If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself.

6. He was Courageous. "I have not shunned to declare unto you the whole counsel of God" (Acts 20:27). No "fear of Man" could fetter the tongue of this faithful witness. A full-orbed Gospel had been revealed to him, and at any personal cost he was determined that not one ray of it should be hindered from shining through him. The perfect love with which the heart of Paul was filled cast out all fear. He loved the Lord Jesus Christ and the souls of men too intensely to keep back anything that was profitable (Acts 20:20). It is a base and false charity that shuns to declare the whole counsel of God.

FAITH AND FAILURE

Acts 21:1-36

"St. Paul was a great trader of Christ both by land and sea." So said John Trapp, and it is a most suggestive saying. No merchant could more urgently push his wares than Paul pushed the things of the Kingdom of God. Wherever he went, whatever he did, it was always as an ambassador for Christ. To him religion was no cloak, to be thrown off or on as occasion demanded. It was the bone and sinew and vital breath of his being. As Saul, he was crucified with Christ; as Paul, he had no existence but in Him and for Him. "To me to live is Christ." Note here some further things about him-

1. His Sorrowful Prospect. While on his way to Jerusalem, he was warned at least twice of dangers, and of certain imprisonment, if he should go there at that time (Acts 21:4-11). He knew before this-by the Holy Ghost-that bonds and afflictions awaited him in every city (Acts 21:20-23). In his unconverted days, he "profited much in the Jew's religion" (Galatians 1:14) in that he was honoured and praised of men; but all was sacrificed for Him, who had called him by His grace, and who had promised to show him what great things he must suffer for His sake. He was called into the fellowship of Christ's sufferings.

2. His Fearless Faith. Paul's reply to their united entreaty was short and decisive. "I am ready" (Acts 21:13). Ready, not only to be bound, but to die for the name of the Lord Jesus. The secret of peace and victory in the face of all trial and persecution is to connect the Name of the Lord Jesus with it. He who can say confidently, "Who shall separate me from the love of Christ?" will also be able to add "We are more than conquerors through Him." "I am ready." What a ring of unstaggering confidence there is in this. How much has been lost politically, commercially, morally, and spiritually for the want of being ready when the crisis came. It was "they that were ready" who went in when the Bridegroom came; they who were getting ready were shut out.

3. His Powerful Testimony. "He declared what things God had wrought among the Gentiles" (Acts 21:17-20). Having arrived at Jerusalem, and having been warmly welcomed by the brethren, Paul gave them another chapter out of his life's book, thrilling with the wonders of the grace of God. Those who by faith attempt much for God, will have experiences that will glorify God (Acts 21:20). If we would see the wonder-working power of God, we must needs "launch out into the deep"-into the deep of God's fathomless grace, and the unsearchable riches of His Son. Believe and thou shalt see.

4. His Compromising Meekness (Acts 21:21-26). Seeing that there were so many in Jerusalem who believed that Paul's teaching led the converts to "forsake Moses," the elders persuaded him to show his devotion to the law of Moses by shaving his head, and joining himself with those four men who were about to present themselves as observers of the law of the Nazarite (Numbers 6:13-18). This was intended to shut the mouths of those who madly cavilled against the apostle's preaching, and showed the great humility of Paul, when he submitted to it for their sakes. He was willing to be made all things.... that he might save some.

5. His Conspicuous Failure (Acts 21:27-31). The very means he used to disarm the enemy became the cause of offence. He had shaved his head through the fear of man; now he is caught in the snare. We cannot but think that, in his willingness to please the brethren, and perhaps to justify himself in the eyes of men, he for the time being failed to "stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ had made him free." But in any case trouble was sure to come upon him in Jerusalem, for the Holy Ghost had already witnessed to this, and the beloved Paul seemed in no way disappointed with the terrible consequences.

6. His Rescue by the Soldiers (Acts 21:32-36). This was a sad scene. The worshippers of the temple of God going about to kill him, whose body was the temple of the Holy Ghost. Religious formalists are always at war with the Spirit of God, for where the Spirit is there is liberty. The chains of the Roman soldiers were more merciful than the tongues of these hypocrites. But a man of God is immortal till his work is done.

PAUL'S DEFENCE. A GOSPEL.

Acts 22:1-21

Paul's life is an exhibition of what the grace of God can do. Even in the most trying and unexpected circumstances, he could possess his soul in patience. See his beautiful courtesy, "May I speak unto thee?" (Acts 21:37) and note his wonderful wisdom and courage when he asked, as a "Jew of Tarsus and a citizen of no mean city," he might be allowed to speak to the people What a blending of giant strength with childlike simplicity. Having received permission to speak from the stairs of the castle, he addresses the religious rabble, not as bloodthirsty enemies, but as "Men, brethren, and fathers." His defence takes the form of a personal testimony. He is not so anxious to justify himself before the people as to show them what great things God had done for him. He refers to himself here-

1. As a Learned Jew (Acts 22:3). He was no ignorant bigot, no prejudiced Gentile, but a Jew born in the famous free city of Tarsus, and educated at the feet of the great Gamaliel: a Hebrew of the Hebrews. Paul's natural gifts and high-class training made him one of those men that were not to be easily deceived.

2. As a Zealous Persecutor. "I persecuted this way unto the death" (Acts 22:4). This way refers to the way of Christians, the way he now walked. In carrying out the unenlightened conviction of his heart, he thought he ought to oppose the things connected with the name of Jesus (Acts 8:3). The "I thought" of the unregenerate man is always contrary to the mind of God. There is a religious enthusiasm that has not been kindled by the holy fire from heaven, but by the fire of hell.

3. As a Conquered Foe. "I fell unto the ground" (Acts 22:6-7). A sudden burst of soul-convicting light from the presence of the glorified Saviour, overwhelmed the haughty Saul; smiting him to the earth. What other power could have arrested such a sinner and subdued such a determinate will? When God speaks it is with convincing power. What can speak more effectively than light? By the light of His Word He still brings rebel souls to the dust. Is not My Word a hammer and a fire, saith the Lord. With this hammer God, the Spirit, can break the rocky heart to pieces.

4. As a Humble Inquirer. "And I answered, Who art Thou, Lord? . . . What shall I do, Lord?" (Acts 22:8-10). Those questions reveal a radical change in the mind and heart of Saul, but between the first and the second there comes the revelation of Jesus Himself to his soul. When anyone is ready to obey the light and the voice of God's Word they will not be left long in ignorance of the saving power of Jesus. But, Who art Thou? should be followed with, What shall I do? for we are saved to serve (Luke 1:74).

5. As a Comforted Believer. "Brother Saul, receive thy sight" (Acts 22:11-13). At first he "could not see, for the glory of that light" had blinded his eyes to every earthly object. The light of the glory of God is always an eye-blinding light to the glory of this world. "Brother Saul." How soothing this salutation would be, coming from the lips of the saintly Ananias; and as an evidence that the Lord, whom he had met, desired to bless him, he received his sight, a new sight for the new world into which he had now entered. With him old things had passed away, and all things had now become new.

6. As an Instructed Disciple. "God hath chosen thee, that thou shouldst know His will. . . and be His witness unto all men" (Acts 22:14-16) He was called to be a witness to the resurrection of Christ, as one born out of due season. The Gospel which he preached was not received of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ (Galatians 1:12). Through Ananias he learned more fully the purpose of God in calling him. Have we learned all that God, by His grace, means us to be and to do?

7. As a Divinely Commissioned Apostle (Acts 22:17-21) It was while praying in the temple that the vision of God came, saying, "Make haste..... out of Jerusalem..... Depart, for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles." Is it not usually while praying that the vision of God's will is made known? (Acts 9:11, Acts 9:30) Ask and ye shall receive. As a "chosen vessel," Paul was not sent on his own charges, but was filled with the wealth and power of the name of Jesus (Acts 9:15). He was divinely called, divinely commissioned, and divinely equipped. So is it with all the true servants of the Lord Jesus Christ. A DAY OF TRIAL AND A NIGHT OF CHEER

After spending a night in the rocky fortress of Antonia, Paul was brought down to answer for himself before the chief priests and all their council. The leading points in this portion will perhaps be more easily grasped if we put them thus-

1. An Honest Confession. "I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day" (Acts 23:1). To have a conscience "void of offence toward God" was the constant ambition of the apostle (chap. Acts 24:16). There are some whose consciences are seared as with a red-hot iron, through their many refusals to obey the Word and will of God. A good "conscience" is one in perfect harmony with the mind of God, and is the guarantee of a blissful life.

2. A Holy Indignation "God shall smite thee, thou whited wall," etc. (Acts 23:2-4). This may seem harsh, but the pure righteous soul of the prisoner was so grieved that the man exalted to administer justice should, through personal hate, order him to be smitten "contrary to the law." The high priest's business was to condemn the wicked, and not to smite the righteous (Deuteronomy 21:5). We are told that in the beginning of the Jewish wars this same priest was actually smitten to death by a captain of the Jews.

3. A Skilful Attitude. "But when Paul perceived," etc. (Acts 23:6). Paul was a man whose eyes the Lord had opened, and so was quick to take in a situation. He was wise as a serpent, but not so poisonous, because he had also the harmlessness of the dove. In declaring himself a Pharisee, and a believer in the resurrection, he was stating that which was absolutely true, for none could be more jealous for the truth of God that he.

4. A Divided Jury. "There arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees" (Acts 23:7-10) Before this they both cried, "Away with this fellow from the earth," but now the Pharisees attempt to justify Paul by saying, "Perhaps an angel hath revealed it to him." This was also a side-thrust at the Sadducees, who denied the existence of angels and spirits. We have here an old exhibition of a modern sin, that of putting partyism, personal passions, and interests before the truth of God and the general cause of righteousness.

5. A Divine Encouragement. "The night following the Lord stood by him and said, Be of good cheer, Paul" (Acts 23:11). It was a blessed night, luminous with the glory of His presence, and his soul comforted with His word of promise. How easy it is for the faithful Saviour to meet the need of His suffering saint. He can speedily turn our prison house into a "palace beautiful" While Madame Guyon was lying in a French prison, she said "the very stones of her prison shone like rubies in her eyes." He knows how and when to speak a word to the weary.

6. A Dastardly Plot (Acts 23:12-15). These forty fanatics, who bound themselves neither to eat nor drink until they had killed Paul, doubtless thought that they were doing God's service, but such take good care never to consult God about it. There is no night black enough to hide such murderous plans from the eye of the Lord. The counsel of the wicked shall come to naught, their words shall not stand (Isaiah 8:10).

7. An Unexpected Discovery (Acts 23:16-24). This son of Paul's sister was a brave young lad. He evidently had overheard the plot, perhaps those cruel men were so intent on their fiendish purpose that they paid no heed to the boy near by. The boy heard, believed, and acted at once. To go up to the castle on a prisoner's behalf was a bold venture, but love constrained him. His timely effort was crowned with success. He was the means of saving the life of his beloved uncle. Procrastination is not only the "thief of time," but it is also the thief of souls and of heaven. What thou doest, do quickly.

PAUL BEFORE FELIX

Acts 24:1-27

The journey from Jerusalem to Caesarea was over sixty miles. To Paul it was a triumphal march out of the clutches of his would-be murderers. The Lord knows how to deliver the godly. Five days later the high priest with the elders, and the orator, Tertullus, arrived as the accusers of the prisoner. The priest and the elders had made the bullets, and hired this eloquent orator to fire them; but he missed the mark, for Felix had knowledge of "that way." Look at-

I. THE ACCUSATION.-After Tertullus had spoken some flattering words to the voluptuous Felix, he launched four terrible charges against the holy apostle. (1) A Pestilent Fellow. A man whose character is thoroughly diseased, and a danger to the morals of the people. (2) A Mover of Sedition. A disturber of the national peace, and an enemy to the Roman Government. (3) A Ringleader of the Nazarenes. A religious fanatic. A man who has gone crazy over the supposed resurrection of Jesus who was crucified. (4) A Profaner of the Temple. A rank heretic. A man who has no regard for the true worship of God. The charge was as foul as the prince of darkness could make it. The image of the "father of lies" was stamped upon it.

II. THE DEFENCE.-Paul makes no attempt to flatter the governor, but is glad to mention the fact that Felix had been for "many years a judge of the nation," and was well able to understand the nature of the case (Acts 24:10-11). (1) He Denies the Charge (Acts 24:12-13). What else could he do but hurl their hate-kindled darts back to their own bosoms with the challenge that they "cannot prove the things whereof they accuse me." (2) He makes a confession of his faith in the Word of God (Acts 24:14). Of his hope toward God, and the resurrection (Acts 24:15). Of the purity of his aim in seeking "always to have a conscience void of offence" (Acts 24:14). Because of the true, childlike simplicity of his character, Paul could not but speak out the deep and tender feelings of his soul. These things formed the very tissue of his spiritual life. (3) He gives an Explanation (Acts 24:17-21). He tells, in simple, truthful language, what in reality did happen. The truth always suits best, and the honest and the upright love it.

III. THE DEFERMENT.-When Felix heard these things he made up his mind to do nothing till Lysias, the chief captain of the Roman band at Jerusalem, should come and explain matters more fully to him (Acts 24:22-23) Meanwhile Paul was to have liberty and the privilege of seeing the friends who may call on him The honest man has scored a victory.

IV. THE PRIVATE HEARING.-Felix, willing to entertain his wife, who was a Jewess, and also evidently believing that Paul's name was one to conjure with, sent for him, and had a private interview, which reveals: (1) A Courageous Prisoner. Called to explain to them the cause of his "faith in Christ," he did not fail to reason with them of "righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come." He took this quiet opportunity to rebuke the noble sinners personally. Truly, he sought not great things for himself. (2) A Cowardly Judge. Although he trembled at the truthful words of his blameless prisoner, yet he "sent for him" and "bound him," just as he thought it might bring gain or honour to himself (Acts 24:26-27). But Paul lived before another Judge, whose mercy and grace had never failed him (Acts 23:1). Those who dare for Jesus Christ, can dare to stand alone. Felix was convicted-he trembled-but he was not converted. His conscience condemned him, but his stubborn will, through fear of man, or of woman, refused to yield. He proposed to consider this matter when he had a more convenient season. How readily we are to forget that there are two sides to a "convenient season." We cannot make a spring season at will. A fanner may have more time to sow his seed in the winter, but what would it profit him? The most convenient of all seasons for getting right with God, is when His Word is pricking us to the heart, and when we are trembling under the power of it.

PAUL'S APPEAL UNTO CAESAR

Acts 25:1-12

Paul had now been two years in prison. A new governor had just arrived (Festus) to take the place of Felix This was a new opportunity for those "Chief of the Jews" whose hearts were still full of murderous hate at the apostle, and they were quick to take advantage of it-

1. A Cunning Plot. They sought the favour of Festus that they might persuade him to send for Paul to Jerusalem, so that they might have a chance of killing him by the way (Acts 25:2-3). They were not privileged to kill Paul, but they were surely guilty of murder in the sight of God. "He that hateth his brother is a murderer." The Lord looketh upon the heart.

2. A Reasonable Proposal. It must have been very disappointing to these enemies of the apostle when Festus refused to yield to their sinister request (Acts 25:4-5). Caesarea, being the Roman headquarters, was the proper place for trial. As many of them as were able-having sufficient time and means-and we may add, sufficiently hardened in heart, could go with him and "accuse this man." But it was not justice these Jewish rulers wanted, it was the death of him who preached "Jesus and the Resurrection."

3. A Renewed Charge. The next day, after Festus arrived, Paul was brought out for the third time to be examined. The complaints of the Jews were many and grievous. They were as numerous and as black as so many lying tongues could make them, but not one of them could they prove. It has been said that "truth seldom goes without a scratched face." He who Himself was the Truth had a face more marred than any man's. Those who live at enmity with God will always love the darkness rather than the light. Christ said they hated Me without a cause, and they will also hate you.

4. A Renewed Denial. All the vile charges they brought against Paul could not bring the faintest tremor to his heart, or blush of shame to his cheek; be had not "offended in anything at all." Those who live before God with a good conscience need fear no evil (chap. Acts 23:1), for greater is He that is in them than he that is in the world. It is the Spirit of God in the believer that wars against the wicked spirit that works in the children of disobedience (Ephesians 2:2).

5. A Strange Request. Festus said to Paul, "Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem to be judged?" Why does the judge ask the prisoner as to where he might be judged? He is now wavering, and, being desirous to favour the Jews, he becomes "double-minded and unstable in his ways" (Isaiah 1:6-8). Those who would have the light of truthfulness to shine in their lives must, in heart, walk in the light.

6. A New Weapon. When the wide-awake apostle saw that his judge was likely to be bribed over to the side of his bloodthirsty enemies, he unsheathed an unexpected, but mighty, weapon of defence. "I appeal unto Caesar." As a Roman citizen, not proved to be a criminal, he had this right. When Festus answered, "Unto Caesar shalt thou go," it was another victory for the man of God. The finger of God is clearly seen in this. Had not the Lord told him just a little while ago that he must witness of Him at Rome (chap. Acts 23:11). Now he has the promise of being taken there free of all charge, to preach the Gospel in Rome also. Truly, God moves in a mysterious way, making all things work together for good to them that love Him.

PAUL AS A WITNESS FOR GOD

Acts 26:1-32

When King Agrippa came to Caesarea to salute Festus, the new governor, he was told the story of Paul, the prisoner; how the charges brought against him had not been proven, and how he had "appealed to Caesar." Festus was quite pleased that Agrippa should hear him on the morrow, in the hope that this might help him out of the "unreasonableness" of sending a prisoner to Augustus without being able to "signify the crimes laid against him." So Paul is brought out once more and permitted to speak for himself. The apostle's defence was the story of his conversion-this was always his apologetic for Christianity. Like the sword of Goliath, "there is none like it." It so affected Festus that he thought Paul had gone mad through "much learning;" it so touched the conscience of Agrippa that he said, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Look at Paul's defence, then, as revealing the characteristics of a true Christian-

I. HE IS A CHANGED MAN (Acts 26:9-15).-Once he did many things contrary to the name of Jesus. Now he was His bond-slave. The change was radical and complete, wrought not by the will of the flesh, nor the will of man, but of God. He was born from above. No one can be a Christian without being "born again." A new nature is needed before we can see the things of the kingdom of God, or enjoy the fellowship of Christ, the only begotten of the Father.

II. HE IS AN EMPOWERED MAN.-Empowered by the Lord Jesus Christ to be a witness unto Him by opening the eyes of sin-blinded men, and turning them from the power of Satan unto God (Acts 26:16-18). God does not send us a warfare on our own charges (Acts 1:8). The evidence that a man is sent by God is that he does the work that none others can do by their own strength and wisdom. Signs must follow those who believe.

III. HE IS AN OBEDIENT MAN.-"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision" (Acts 26:19). To be disobedient to the heavenly call is to seal our own spiritual doom. Neither did he dishonour Him who had called him by immediately conferring with flesh and blood (Galatians 1:15-16). He settled the matter right off with the Lord Himself as to what he would do.

IV. HE IS A DIVINELY HELPED MAN.- "Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day" (Acts 26:21-22). He had been often persecuted, but never forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed He had experienced the promise of his Lord-"I will never leave thee." Every faithful servant of Christ will be able, at the close of life, to raise an Ebenezer to the honour of His name. Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.

V. HE IS A DEVOTED MAN.-"Saying none other things than those. . . that Christ should suffer" (Acts 26:23). Paul was wholly yielded up to the interests of Christ and His cross. He meant it when he said," To me to live is Christ. I am determined to know nothing among men save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." Unless our lives are entirely yielded up to Him our testimony for Him will be powerless and fruitless.

VI. HE IS A MISUNDERSTOOD MAN.-Festus said, "Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad" (Acts 26:24). The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, they are foolishness unto him. To those who are in a perishing condition "the preaching of the cross is foolishness" (1 Corinthians 1:18). The disciple is not greater than his Lord Did they not say of Christ, He hath a devil and is mad? (John 10:20).

VII. HE IS A COURTEOUS MAN.-"I am not mad, most noble Festus." Honour to whom honour is due. The grace of God will always teach a man to be civil There is no man on earth who can better afford to honour the nobility than the Christian, for he himself has been exalted into the ranks of the blood-royal of heaven. Children of God.

VIII. HE IS A FAITHFUL MAN.-"King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets?" This personal appeal to the king must surely have come to him with startling suddenness, while it reveals the simple, fearless courage of the man whose heart God had transformed, and perhaps a real longing for the spiritual and eternal well-being of Agrippa. Paul had always an eye on his Master's business; pulling men out of the fire of sin.

IX. HE IS A SATISFIED MAN.-When Agrippa confessed that he was "Almost persuaded to be a Christian," see how quickly Paul shows him that it is the better part. "I would to God that thou and all... were altogether such as I am, except these bonds" (Acts 26:29). There was not a richer or happier man in Caesarea than Paul. The peace of God was in his heart, and the unsearchable riches of Christ were his.

PAUL'S SHIPWRECK, OR THE POWER OF FAITH

Acts 27:1-44.

The taking of Paul the apostle to Italy was one of the most important and far-reaching undertakings ever attempted by the powerful Government of Rome. The coming of that lonely prisoner was the coming of the Ambassador of Heaven to establish a new and everlasting kingdom among the Gentile nations of the earth. It was the planting of that new tree, the leaves of which will ultimately heal the nations. Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth. We cannot go into detail here, but will seek some spiritual lessons from the outstanding features. We note-

I. A PERILOUS POSITION.-"Exceedingly tossed with tempest... neither sun nor stars. . . and all hope taken away" (Acts 27:17-20). We can scarcely imagine a more agonising predicament. Such is a true picture of those who have been awakened by the Holy Spirit to a real sense of their guilt and danger as sinners in the sight of God. Tossed with fear and alarm, without seeing any guiding light, and all hope of salvation taken away. At that time ye were without Christ, having no hope (Ephesians 2:12).

II. A MERCIFUL REVELATION.-"The angel of God stood by me, saying, Fear not, Paul. . God hath given thee all them that sail with thee" (Acts 27:23-24) The effectual, fervent prayer of this righteous man hath availed much (James 5:16). It was doubtless in answer to Paul's earnest pleadings that this answer was given. What a victory of faith it was. Are we not reminded here of God's answer to the cry of Christ's heart, "I will give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance?" All who sail in the same boat with Jesus Christ will be eternally given to Him.

III. A FAITHFUL PROCLAMATION.-"Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer, for I believe God" (Acts 27:22-25). It was a "glad and glorious Gospel" that Paul had to preach to those whose souls were sinking in despair It was, indeed, the Gospel of Salvation. "There shall be no loss of any man's life." It was a Gospel of certainty to Paul, for he adds, "I believe God that it shall be, even as it was told me." Such is the Gospel of Christ to all who, like Paul, have received it as a revelation from God. Only those who believe the Word of God have any Gospel of certain salvation to preach.

IV. A NECESSARY CONDITION.-"Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved" (Acts 27:31). Paul warns the soldiers that if the sailors are allowed to desert the ship, they could not be saved (Acts 27:30). There is no inconsistency between the sovereign grace of God and the responsibility of man in the use of prescribed means. The promise was that "all would be saved;" the condition was, "abiding" in the ship. The Gospel of Christ offers salvation to all, but the condition is, believe in Him and abide in Him.

V. A COMPASSIONATE EXHORTATION.- "Wherefore, I pray you to take some meat, for this is for your health" (Acts 27:34). No shepherd could be more careful over his flock than Paul is over those 276 fellow-passengers. He seeks not only their salvation, but their health and comfort. But God's order is salvation first, then health, and better houses if you will. The Holy Ghost is the agent in every God-sent revival, and He never begins with the social conditions of men, always with their sinful, sorrowful spirits. But here note that eating, as well as abiding, is a condition of full salvation. "Thy Word was found, and I did eat it."

VI. A WONDERFUL TRANSFORMATION.- "Then were they all of good cheer" (Acts 27:36). What a contrast between the experiences mentioned in verse 29, "all hope taken away," and Acts 27:36, "good cheer." What has made the difference? The promise of salvation. After they had got the assurance that none of them would perish, they were able to eat with gladness of heart. It is so with all those who, by faith, receive the promise of God in Christ Jesus (Acts 16:31). Those who have had their feet taken out of the fearful pit of despair and planted upon the rock of God's Word will have the "good cheer" song put in their mouth (Psalms 40:2-3).

VII. A PERFECTED SALVATION.-"And so it came to pass that they escaped all safe to land" (Acts 27:44). Not all in the same way; not all at the same time; but all enjoyed the fulfilment of the same promise of deliverance. If they had not been obedient and abode in the ship, they would not have got the "boards" and "broken pieces" to float them ashore. It is always safe to trust God and obey His will. "None perish that Him trust." Christ shall lose none of those whom the Father hath given Him (John 6:39); in some way or other all shall come safely to the heavenly land. But how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation. From Paul's action at this crisis we may learn the value and power of individual faith in God.

PAUL AMONG THE BARBARIANS

Acts 28:1-10

"They all escaped to land." This seems to have been the third time that Paul had "suffered shipwreck" (2 Corinthians 11:25). There are few who have ever had such vivid glimpses of heavenly things as Paul, and few who have ever had to suffer so much for the cause of Christ. It would appear that every new spiritual experience needs its counterbalance of suffering. We observe here-

I. UNEXPECTED KINDNESS.-"The barbarous people showed us no little kindness" (Acts 28:2). Although the inhabitants of this island were not Romans, they were not savages. They had the "milk of human kindness" in their hearts. The fire was a welcome sight to those who had just come out of the sea into the drenching rain and biting cold. The Lord has many a way of scattering crumbs of comfort to those who fear His name (John 21:9). Doubtless Paul looked upon this fire as if it had been kindled by the hand of Jesus Christ.

II. HUMBLE SERVICE.-"Paul gathered a bundle of sticks." The great apostle of the Gentiles did not think it beneath him to go a-searching for fuel to help to dry the clothes of those soldiers and sailors who were his companions in tribulation. He had learned from his Master that the way to be greatest of all is to be the servant of all. The deeper our experience is of the greatness of God's grace the more generous and attentive shall we be to those little things that minister to the good of others. Paul did not need to be told to "mend the fire" before he did it. "Consider one another to provoke unto love and good works."

III. ANOTHER TRIAL.-"There came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand, and he shook off the beast into the fire." Why should the self-humbling effort of the apostle to comfort others be rewarded with the sudden grip of a poisonous viper? Why? Paul does not know, but he believes that "all things work together for good to them that love God." Those who would sacrifice themselves for the warming up of their shivering fellow-creatures need not be surprised although the heat should bring to life some torpid snake that will seek to fasten itself to that hand of mercy. Is it a temptation to sin, either in thought or act, shake the slimy thing off into the fire from whence it came, and possess your soul in patience.

IV. FALSE JUDGMENT.-These islanders, judging by appearance, thought first that Paul must be a murderer, then they believed him to be a god (Acts 28:4-6). When the viper succeeded in catching him, they condemned him, but when he conquered the viper they adored him. There is not much between the frown and the favour of those who know not the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. The world is always ready to applaud those who succeed, and is quick to believe in the worthlessness of the man who happens to become the prey of that venomous snake called calumny. It was such a viper that came out of the heat and fastened on Joseph while in Potiphar's house, but he shook if off, and felt no harm (Genesis 39:13-14). The devil often spoils his pictures by using a brush that is too big.

V. GENEROSITY REWARDED.-Publius was entertaining an angel unawares when he received Paul and lodged him and others for three days (Acts 28:7). He was amply recompensed for his kindness in the healing of his father by this mysterious prisoner. In some way or other God will compensate those who give even a cup of cold water to His disciple. Paul the prisoner was still Paul the apostle. No circumstance in which he was placed could ever mar his authority or stain the purity of his apostolic mantle.

VI. NEEDS SUPPLIED.-"They honoured us, and laded us with such things as were necessary" (Acts 28:10). They had lost their all by the shipwreck, but now, because of the merciful wonder-working power of Paul, all their needs for the journey to Rome were supplied. Truly the presence of this man of God among them was the salt that saved them from the corruption of death. The ungodly do not know how much they owe to the presence of those who believe in God. Judgment could not fall upon Sodom until Lot was taken out (Genesis 19:22). When the "preacher of righteousness" was shut up in the ark then the flood came.

PAUL'S MINISTRY IN ROME

Acts 28:11-31

The entrance of Paul into Rome, although unknown and unheeded by the multitude, was a greater event than the coming of an army of soldiers or the arrival of a fleet of battleships. He was as a corn of wheat cast into the ground to die, but destined to bring forth such fruit as would be a blessing to the nations of the earth. The possibilities of one single life, wholly yielded to God, and possessed by His Holy Spirit, are, for us, incalculable. Paul's life and testimony have been given as an example to them who should hereafter believe (Php_3:17).

I. THE CHEERING SALUTATION.-When Paul saw the brethren who had come to meet him, "he thanked God, and took courage" (Acts 28:15). Appii Forum is about twenty-seven miles from Rome, but some of the weaker brethren could only go the length of "the Three Taverns," a distance of seventeen miles. The angel-like ministry of encouraging the hearts of God's tried and suffering servants is quite within the reach of all the brethren who care to make a little self-sacrifice for their sakes. Don't wait till they come to you for sympathy, go and meet them. There are wonderful comfort and consolation in mutual faith and love (Romans 1:12).

II. THE PRELIMINARY CONFERENCE.- After three days Paul, who was "suffered to dwell by himself, called the chief of the Jews together," etc. (Acts 28:16-22). Although he had suffered so much at the hands of his Jewish brethren, yet his heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel was that they might be saved (Romans 10:1). He tells them of his sufferings in Jerusalem, and the reason why he was "bound with this chain." They had heard about this sect that was "everywhere spoken against," and were desirous of hearing from his own lips what he had to say about it. No man on earth could better tell them the story of the Gospel of Salvation.

III. THE STORY TOLD.-On the day appointed for this special purpose "there came many to him into his lodging," etc. (Acts 28:23). Has there ever been anywhere such a "lodging-house" gathering as this? A prison turned into a church, the prisoner the preacher; the subjects were "The Kingdom of God and the Things Concerning Jesus." The arguments are drawn from Moses and the prophets, and the sermon lasted "from morning till evening." Once more, note that Paul, ever since his conversion, knew nothing among men save Christ and Him crucified. Why should it be otherwise with preachers now?

IV. THE DIFFERENT RESULTS.-"Some believed, and some believed not" (Acts 28:24). Yes, thank God, "some believed." Wherever Christ is faithfully preached some will believe and be saved, while others will prefer, through unbelief, to remain vessels of wrath, instead of being changed into vessels of mercy. The preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness. No matter how clearly the word of salvation is preached, it will not profit unless the hearing of it is mixed with faith (Hebrews 4:2). By grace are ye saved through faith.

V. THE FINAL MESSAGE.-These are solemn and decisive words recorded in Acts 28:25-29. They contain Paul's last words of warning and rebuke to his impenitent brethren according to the flesh. They had eyes and ears, but they failed to use them in a proper manner, because their heart had become gross and sensual through pride and self-righteousness (Acts 28:27). There are none so blind as those who don't want to see. Those who have "pleasure in unrighteousness" will not believe the truth, but will readily believe a lie unto their own condemnation (2 Thessalonians 2:11-12).

VI. THE TWO YEARS' MINISTRY.-For two whole years in his own hired house, and with a soldier to guard him, Paul kept an open door for inquirers after the "things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ." With all confidence he preached, "no man forbidding him." Here several of Paul's richest epistles were written. How much the Church of God owes to Paul's imprisonment eternity alone can reveal. It was out of Bedford jail that Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" came. It is often out of the depths of our deepest trials that our richest fruits are found.

Romans

JUSTIFICATION

Romans 3-5

In the book of Job (chap. Job 25:4) this great question is asked:. "How can a man be justified with God?" And in these chapters before us we have a clear and decided answer. The importance of the question demands a plain heart-satisfying answer. The question is often asked: "How can a man get on best in the world?" How can a man be healthy? How gain the favour and patronage of men? How can a man be happy? etc. But when a man discovers himself a guilty sinner before God his question is: "How can a man be justified?" We shall try and answer this question by asking a few others.

I. Do all Men Alike Need to be Justified? In Romans 3 we read, "All are under sin" (Romans 3:9); "All the world guilty" (Romans 3:19); "All have come short" (Romans 3:23). "The portrait of both Jew and Gentile under the law is distinctly drawn in Romans 3:10-18. And the result sought is "every mouth stopped," every conscience smitten, every soul guilty before God. Each one believing and becoming subject to the judgment of God (see margin). All must be justified alike, for all are condemned alike, "for there is no difference" (Romans 3:22).

II. What is it to be Justified? In these chapters we notice a sevenfold blessing possessed by the justified. Taking the facts as we find them, they are these- 1. To be justified is to be FORGIVEN (chap. Romans 4:7-8).

2. To be justified is to be SAVED FROM WRATH (chap. Romans 5:9).

3. To be justified is to be RECKONED RIGHTEOUS (chap. Romans 4:9).

4. To be justified is to have PEACE WITH GOD (chap. Romans 5:1).

5. To be justified is to REJOICE IN HOPE (chap. Romans 5:2).

6. To be justified is to POSSESS THE LOVE OF GOD (chap. Romans 5:5).

7. To be justified is to be RECONCILED TO GOD (chap. Romans 5:10). In view of these precious blessings, what is it not to be justified? The difference is as far apart as light and darkness, Heaven and Hell.

III. Who is it that God Justifieth? "Oh," says the wisdom of man, "I believe God justifies the good and the godly." But what saith the Scriptures? "He justifieth the ungodly" (chap. Romans 4:5). "For Christ died for the ungodly" (chap. Romans 5:6). "He came to save sinners." So "while we were sinners Christ died for us (chap. Romans 5:8). He came not to call the righteous, therefore how could God justify them, whom Christ had not called? Man must take his place in the ranks of the ungodly before he can be justified in God's sight. It is very humbling, but it is the "bowed down" He raiseth up.

IV. How can God Justify the Guilty? Jesus was delivered for our offences, and raised for our justification (chap. Romans 4:25). God hath set Jesus forth to be a propitiation that He might be just and the Justifier of him which believeth on Jesus (chap. 25, 26). God can justify the guilty, because atonement has been made for them (chap. Romans 5:11). The propitiation was God's own appointment. He Himself paid the price of atonement (Exodus 30:15); and that price having been fully paid, He is just in justifying the believers in Jesus. Man's guilt is first forgiven, then God can righteously justify. He cannot justify men in an ungodly state, it is the believers in Jesus He justifies, for when we believe in Him we are forgiven and so fit to be justified.

V. Will a Man not be Justified by his Good Works? "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in His sight" (chap. Romans 3:20). If a man does as well as he can (and who does that?) will he not be justified? Yes, in the sight of men (James 2:21), but not in the sight of God. "If Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory (in the sight of men), but not before God" (chap. Romans 4:2). There can be no good works in God's sight unless they come from a good heart. And the fact that a man trusts his own goodness instead of God's proves that his heart is still at enmity against Him.

VI. In what Way does God Justify a Man? He justifies him judicially, as by His own righteous act as Judge, the moment he believes in Jesus as his atoning Substitute. But there are three words that occur ten times in this fourth chapter that clearly express the nature and manner of this justification. These words are, "counted," "reckoned," "imputed." Thus the righteousness of God is counted, reckoned, imputed to the believer. In the same sense as our sins were laid on or imputed to Christ. It is wholly a Divine reckoning. This righteousness is "upon all that believe" (chap. Romans 3:22) just as surely as He bore our sins in His own body. Where is feeling then? It is excluded. The question is: What hath the Lord done?

VII. Can a Man be Justified by simply Believing? Yes, completely, at once, and for ever-and in no other way. God justifies the believer in Jesus (chap. Romans 3:26). Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith (chap. Romans 3:28). Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God (chap. Romans 5:1). Abraham believed God, and it was counted for righteousness (chaps. Romans 4:3-16; Romans 3:22; Acts 13:39). The believing is ours, the counting is God's. By faith we count on God's Word being true, and act accordingly. He that does not reckon on this is an unbeliever; and he that believeth not is condemned already (John 3:18).

JOY IN GOD

Romans 5:11

"Joy" has been defined as the "smile of happiness, and the flower of glory." This joy is-

I. Needed. There is room for a broader "smile of happiness" on the countenance of our life and work. But the smile may be on the face while an aching sorrow is in the heart. This joy comes through the experience of God's salvation, but how possible it is to know God, and yet, like David, to lose the "joy of His salvation" (Psalms 51:12). Where there is spiritual bondage there can only be a joyless testimony. It is when the captivity of the soul is turned back that the joy becomes so great; then we are like men that dream (Psalms 126:1).

II. Possible. It is the will of Christ that His joy should be in us (John 15:11). Christ's joy was the joy of conscious fellowship with the Father. This "oil of joy" is a blessed substitute for the spirit of heaviness. No Christian worker should be without it. Even when he goes forth weeping, bearing precious seed, he knows that he will doubtless come back rejoicing, bringing sheaves with him (Psalms 126:5-6). Peter and John found this joy possible even while suffering shame for the Name and cause of Jesus Christ (Acts 5:41; see Acts 16:25).

III. Conditional. It is joy "in the Lord" (Isaiah 61:10). It is not joy in ourselves, in anything we have or are. It is joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have obtained reconciliation (Romans 5:11). This holy gladness can come from no other, source, and from no other condition. There is a joy that is like beauty in a face, it is attractive, but only skin deep: this joy is as deep as the heart of the Eternal God; it is joy unspeakable and full of glory (1 Peter I. 8). To rejoice in the Lord is to be joyful- 1. In His NAME. His Name stands for all that He is in His essential character (Psalms 20:5).

2. In His WORK. The redeemed of the Lord shall come with singing, and everlasting joy upon their head (Isaiah 51:11).

3. In His WORD. When His words are believed the soul must rejoice, as one who has found great treasure (Nehemiah 8:12).

IV. Effectual. It is "your strength" or "stronghold" (r.v., margin). Joy is strength, in the same sense in which despair is weakness. Joy in the Lord is one of the most aggressive of all spiritual forces. It was D. L. Moody who said that "God never uses a discouraged man." This joy is a power, because it is the evidence of a life happily adjusted to the perfect will of God. This strength is needed to overcome the manifold temptations that are ever at hand (James 1:1-3), and to uphold when we are made partakers of the sufferings of Christ (1 Peter 4:13). If joy in the Lord is to make us strong, then let us rejoice in the Lord alway, and again I say, rejoice. The Lord Himself fulfil His joy in us for His own Name's sake (John 17:15). THE BELIEVER'S RELATIONSHIPS

Romans 6.

This chapter explains the "death and life" character of the Christian. The beginning, the cause, and effect of both are clearly stated. To the unspiritual this statement is full of inexplicable riddles. And even to many who know Christ it is full of mysteries. To those who are taught of the Spirit it is an exact portrait of the birth and life of the new inner man. It teaches- I. The Believer's Relationship to Christ. This connection is of the closest possible kind. It implies-

1. DEATH WITH CHRIST. "Crucified with Him" (Romans 6:6). "Baptised into His death" (Romans 6:3). "By one Spirit are we all baptised into one body" (1 Corinthians 12:13). Our first connection with Christ is with His death. Our first dealings with God must be as a sinner. Life for God implies the death of self. "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live." The question of sin must be settled first. It is settled for us in our identity with His death.

2. BURIAL WITH CHRIST. "Therefore we are buried with Him" (Romans 6:4). When a man is buried he is supposed to be out of sight, and on the fair way soon to be beyond all possibility of identification. If the death has not been real the burial will not take place. We don't bury as long as there is a spark of life remaining. So the old man will not be put out of sight as long as he lives.

You might try to hide him and conceal his working, but if he is not dead he will be seen or heard somehow.

3. RESURRECTION WITH CHRIST. "Like as Christ was raised from the dead so we also" (Romans 6:4). Resurrection can only follow where death has taken place. The power of the old life must go before the new can come; and this new life is wholly from God. It is a being born from above, a new creation. "You hath He quickened who were dead." As surely as we have been dead and buried, so surely are we risen. "Passed from death into life" (John 5:24).

4. LIKENESS TO CHRIST. "We shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection" (Romans 6:5). This resurrection likeness is the result of being planted in the likeness of His death. If we have not felt the pangs of crucifixion we cannot have the resurrection image, any more than we can have day without night. This is the Divine likeness, the likeness of a conqueror, one endued with power.

II. The Believer's Relation to Sin. It is-

1. THE RELATIONSHIP THAT LIFE HAS TO DEATH. "Reckon yourselves dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God" (Romans 6:11). Sin is not dead, but the believer is to be dead to it. Death puts an end to fellowship in this life. There is a great gulf fixed between the living and the dead. No passing from one to another. So ought it to be with the Christian and sin.

2. THE RELATIONSHIP THE ACQUITTED HAVE TO THE BROKEN LAW. "He that is dead is freed (justified) from sin" (Romans 6:7). When a man has been acquitted before the Court, the law has no more claim on him. So the believer has been liberated from the claims of sin. The claims of the law end in death. Having therefore died in Christ, we are justified from sin. It will still make demands, but, remember, ye are free (Romans 6:18).

3. THE RELATIONSHIP THE VICTOR HAS TO THE VANQUISHED. "Sin shall not have dominion over you" (Romans 6:14). It is a foe disarmed, a king dethroned; as one whose power and authority are destroyed, but whose nature remains unchanged and unchangeable. A frozen serpent (that is powerless until warmed), over which we have the mastery and can easily destroy. Sin was once our master, but we must no longer "obey it" (Romans 6:12).

III. The Believer's Relationship to Service. It is-

1. ONE OF PERSONAL SURRENDER. "Yield yourselves unto God" (Romans 6:13). They first gave themselves unto the Lord. The whole man, with his affections and desires, must be consecrated to God. Some are prepared to yield time and money, but still reserve themselves for themselves. Your members are to be yielded as His servants to righteousness (Romans 6:19).

2. ONE OF HEARTY OBEDIENCE. "Ye have obeyed from the heart" (Romans 6:17). There can be no true service without hearty obedience. There is much service done to please man. God looketh upon the heart. If a man has not obeyed the doctrine of Christ he cannot be a servant of Christ. His truth and work go together.

3. ONE OF SINGLENESS OF PURPOSE. "Become servants to God" (Romans 6:22). "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord." Call no man master in this matter. If a believer has got the single eye, where is man-pleasing? There is often a wide difference between men-pleasers and God-pleasers. "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." NO

CONDEMNATION

Romans 8:1

I. What? "No condemnation!" What a happy privilege! What a blessed hope! All the black dread past blotted out. Blessed are the people that are in such a case.

II. When? "Now." "There is therefore now no condemnation." Then this great blessing may be enjoyed in this present life. We may walk through this world of sin and sadness with the assurance in our hearts that we are forgiven, and that our sins have already been judged, and that the night of guilt is passed and the day of peace hath dawned in the soul.

III. Why? Because "In Christ Jesus." He is the Refuge of the soul. God is our refuge and strength. Here the soul is as secure as Noah was in the ark. To be "in Christ" is to be cleansed from all sin, and wrapt up in the centre of God's eternal purposes. To be in Him is to be a branch in the True Vine, fitted to bear fruit. In Christ, we are complete, for He is made of God unto us, wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption (1 Corinthians 1:30). In Him, we are not found with our own righteousness, but clothed upon with the beauty of the Lord. If any man be in Christ he is a new creation, therefore there is now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus. THE LAW OF THE SPIRIT

Romans 8:2.

The law of the Spirit is as certain as the law of gravitation. He has His fixed method of operation, although, like the wind, He goeth where He listeth.

I. Its Nature. "It is the law of life." "The law of the Spirit of life." The law of the living One. It is the Spirit that quickeneth. The letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life. The moral law cannot give life, its force is only felt in making sin exceeding sinful. "I through the law am dead" (Galatians 2:19).

II. Its Sphere of Action. "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus." This law of life can only operate through the Prince of Life. The living truth of God comes to us through Him who is the Word of God (John 3:34). The Spirit of the Lord was upon Him to preach good tidings to the meek. The last Adam was made a life-giving Spirit (1 Corinthians 15:45).

III. Its Power. "Hath made me free from the law of sin and death." The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus is mightier than the law of sin and death, bringing deliverance and freedom. Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty. "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free" (Galatians 5:1). Having been made free from sin, it is that we might become servants to God (Romans 6:18-23). The sting of death is sin, but thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 15:56-57). THE CONDEMNATION OF SIN

I. The Weakness of the Law. "What the law could not do." The law can do much for it is "holy, just, and good," but it cannot forgive sin. It is utterly weak to justify a sinner. "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified." The law made nothing perfect (Hebrews 7:18).

II. The Love of God. "God sending His own Son." In this was manifested the love of God toward us (1 John 4:9). Who can measure the depths of this love in allowing His "Only Beloved" to be identified with human sin and guilt (John 3:16).

III. The Grace of Christ. "His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh." What grace is this on the part of the Son! "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us... full of grace and truth. Although in the form of God, and equal with God, He made Himself of no reputation... and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Php_2:6-8). By grace are ye saved.

IV. The End of Sin. "And condemned sin in the flesh." By the offering of His body as a sacrifice, He hath finished transgression and made an end of sin as an obstacle in man's way to God. "He was made sin for us...that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him" (2 Corinthians 5:21). We are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all (Hebrews 10:10). Sin was condemned in Him that we might be justified in Him. THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF THE LAW

Romans 8:4-5

I. Its Character. The law is righteous, and demands righteousness. It is "Holy, just, and good." It is an expression of the righteousness of God. By the law is the knowledge of sin. They are ignorant of God's righteousness who seek to establish their own.

II. Its Fulfilment. "The law might be fulfilled in us." Fulfilled by our submitting to the righteousness of God in Christ, for He is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. Love is the fulfilling of the law. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness. We can only be made the righteousness of God in Him, who was made sin for us (2 Corinthians 5:21).

III. The Condition. "Who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." They who would rejoice in Christ Jesus can have no confidence in the flesh (Php_3:3). To walk after the Spirit is to walk in the mind of Jesus Christ. Walk in the Spirit and ye shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh. Those led by the Spirit are not under the law. Walk in the Spirit and the righteousness of the law will be abundantly fulfilled in you, for the fruit of the Spirit which is "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control," will be manifested. Surely the law could not have a better fulfilment than this. These are not works, but the fruit of the indwelling Spirit (Galatians 5:16-25). Those created after the Spirit will mind the things of the Spirit (Romans 8:5). THE CARNAL AND SPIRITUAL MINDS

Romans 8:6-7

I. The Carnal Mind. "The carnal (or fleshly) mind is death." There is absolutely nothing in it that is pleasing to God. He that soweth to this fleshly mind shall reap corruption, the proof of death. They that are in the flesh cannot please God. The carnal mind is not death in a passive sense, for it is even worse than that, it is "enmity against God," and so very bitter that it cannot possibly be subject to the law of God (Romans 8:7). A corrupt tree cannot bring forth good fruit. The only cure for the carnal mind is crucifixion. Saul was delivered from his fleshly mind when he said, "What wilt Thou have me to do?" "I am crucified with Christ."

II. The Spiritual Mind. "To be spiritually minded is life and peace." It is the evidence of a great change. Life and peace are the results of this new Spirit-creation. The enmity has been slain by the Cross. They now sow to the Spirit and reap life everlasting. The spiritual mind is a mind illumined by the Spirit of truth, enjoying the love of God, and seeking the carrying out of His purposes. They are alive unto God, and thus members are yielded to Him as instruments of righteousness (Romans 6:11-13). It is the good tree that cannot bring forth evil fruit (Matthew 7:18). It is a condition of life in Christ and peace with God. IN THE SPIRIT

Romans 8:8-9

I. Not in the Flesh. "Ye are not in the flesh," although still in the body. They that are in the flesh (carnal mind) cannot please God, for they are in a state of death (Romans 8:6). Ye are not in that condition, for ye have passed from death into life, being born of God.

II. In the Spirit. Not in the fleshly mind is to be in the spiritual mind. Not to have the Spirit of Christ is to be none of His. The flesh stands for sinful, helpless man the Spirit is the holy, mighty, life-giving One. To be in the Spirit is to be in God, bound up in the bundle of the living ones.

III. The Spirit in You. "If so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you." "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (1 Corinthians 3:16). After that ye believed ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise. Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into your hearts (Galatians 4:6). The indwelling Spirit is the secret of Divine wisdom and power. He is able to work the good will of God in the heart and through the life. If the Spirit of God who leads into all truth, is in you, then you need not that any man teach you (1 John 2:27). THE RESURRECTING SPIRIT

Romans 8:10-11

I. The Cause of Death. "Sin." "The body is dead because of sin." Sin was the death of the soul, it is also the death of the body. In Christ Jesus both soul and body will yet be delivered from its power (John 11:25-26).

II. The Secret of Life. "The Spirit is life because of righteousness." The Spirit brings life because it brings the soul of the believer into rightness of relationship with God. "He that is joined unto the Lord is one Spirit" (1 Corinthians 6:17).

III. The Abode of the Spirit. "The Spirit that raised up Jesus dwell in you." When Christ was restored to the home of His Father's bosom, the Holy Spirit came to seek a home in the hearts of those redeemed by His blood. "He shall abide with you for ever."

IV. The Relationship Between the Spirit and Christ. "If Christ be in you...His Spirit dwelleth in you." The indwelling or abiding of Christ in the Spirit is often spoken of as synonymous. "Strengthened by His Spirit in the inner man, that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith" (Ephesians 3:16-17). The precious truth is this, that Christ's presence and power is realised by us in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given to us. Hear what the Spirit saith.

V. The Power of the Spirit. We are taught here that-

1. HE RAISED UP CHRIST FROM THE DEAD. He was put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit (1 Peter 3:18). This same mighty Spirit who hath quickened us into newness of life quickened Him.

2. HE SHALL ALSO QUICKEN YOUR MORTAL BODIES. He who raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise us up also (2 Corinthians 4:14). This corruptible must put on incorruption. The Holy Spirit, who hath begun the good work in us, will perfect that which concerneth us, even our mortal bodies. By the same Spirit shall they be changed like unto His own glorious body (2 Corinthians 5:4-5). THE NEW LIFE

Romans 8:12-14

I. This is a Life not After the Flesh. "We are debtors not to live after the flesh." Fleshly wisdom or energy could never produce such a life. It is a life which ye have from God. Born of God.

II. This Life Owes Nothing to the Flesh. "We are debtors not to the flesh." It received nothing from the flesh, gave nothing to it. The new man owes the old man nothing. Let the time past suffice for the will of the flesh.

III. This is a Life Opposed to the Flesh. "Mortify the deeds of the body." The salvation brought to us by the grace of God teaches us to deny all ungodliness. Paul kept his body under lest he should be cast aside as a useless weapon (1 Corinthians 9:2-7).

IV. This Life should be in the Power of the Spirit. "If ye through the Spirit." In yielding to the Spirit we shall obey the truth, thereby our souls shall be purified (1 Peter 1:22). This is God's great purpose concerning us (2 Thessalonians 2:13).

V. This Life is to be Under the Control of the Spirit. "Led by the Spirit." When the Spirit comes within us it is that we might "walk in His ways" (Ezekiel 36:27). He will guide you into all truth.

VI. This is to be a Life of Fellowship. "Sons of God." Beloved now are we the sons of God. Our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ, and in the Communion of the Holy Ghost. THE PRIVILEGES OF SONSHIP

Romans 8:15-17

In our present condition we are very slow to apprehend all that is meant by being "Sons of God."

I. Sons are Delivered from Bondage. "They have not received the spirit of bondage." The fear of the law has been taken away (Exodus 20:18-19). As many as are of the works of the law are under the curse. Perfect love casteth out fear.

II. Sons have the Spirit of Adoption. "We have received the Spirit of adoption." They are not only adopted, but they have the true Spirit of children born of God.

III. Sons Acknowledge the Father. "We cry Abba Father." I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, the Maker and Lord of all is my Father.

IV. As Sons they have the Witness of the Spirit. "The Spirit beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God" (1 John 5:10).

V. As Sons they are Heirs of God. "If children, then heirs." Having been joined to Christ they become jointheirs with Christ, and He is "Heir of all things." All things are yours, for ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

VI. As Sons they Suffer with Him. "If so be that we suffer with Him." The disciple is not greater than his Lord. If ye be reproached for the Name of Christ, happy are ye.

VII. As Sons they shall be Glorified with Him. "Glorified together." The Head and the members are not separated in suffering, nor in glory. The will of Christ the Son has made this sure (John 17:24). Having been made partakers of the divine nature they shall also be made partakers of His heavenly glory. THE FUTURE MANIFESTATION

Romans 8:18-25

I. It is a Great Reality (Romans 8:18-19). "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." Just now the world knoweth us not as it knew Him not. When He shall appear then shall we appear with Him.

II. It will be the Deliverance of Creation from Bondage (Romans 8:21). When Adam sinned the ground was cursed for his sake. At the appearing of the Second Adam, the Lord from Heaven, the curse will be rolled away.

III. It will have an Effect in every Creature (Romans 8:22, margin). The glorious manifestation of the sons of God will herald the Gospel of the Kingdom of God to every creature.

IV. It will be the Redemption of the Body (Romans 8:23). The sealing of the Holy Spirit is until the day of Redemption, when we shall have a body like unto His own glorious body (Php_3:20-21).

V. It is a Time Earnestly Longed for (Romans 8:23). We look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. The Spirit and the Bride say. Come, and let him that heareth of the Coming Saviour say Come. Come, Lord Jesus-Come quickly.

VI. The Prospect of it gives Joy in Suffering (Romans 8:18). Our present affliction is light, knowing that it worketh for us an eternal weight of glory while we look at the things which are unseen. Like Moses let us have respect unto the recompense of reward, and endure as seeing Him who is invisible. The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. THE PLEADING SPIRIT

Romans 8:26-27

I. The Spirit is Needed. "We know not what we should pray for as we ought." Without the guiding Spirit the Lord would need to be saying to us continually what He said to the mother of Zebedee's children, "Ye know not what ye ask."

II. The Spirit Helpeth our Infirmities. He imparts the needed wisdom whereby we may know our need and Christ's fullness.

III. The Spirit Maketh Intercession for the Saints. It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you. The indwelling Spirit pleads for the saint before both God and men. Being filled with the Spirit is the sure way to prevail, both in prayer and testimony.

IV. The Spirit Maketh Intercession with Groanings. The groanings of the Spirit are often realised by a soul thirsting for God in silently waiting before Him in the unspeakable solemnity of holy adoration.

V. The Spirit Maketh Intercession According to the Will of God. What was true of the Son is also true of the Spirit. Him God heareth at all times, because He delights to do His will. If we are "praying always in the Spirit" we are praying always according to the will of God. If we ask anything according to His will He heareth us. Believe in the Holy Ghost.

VI. The Searcher of Hearts Knoweth what is the Mind of the Spirit. Solomon says: "The prayer of the upright is the Lord's delight." How will He delight, then, in the prayer of the Holy Spirit! The great Heart-Searcher looks for the mind of the Spirit in us. Let our wills to Him be given. THE ALL-SUFFICIENT PROMISE

Romans 8:28

I. To Whom it is given.

1. TO THE LOVING ONES. "To them that love God." We love Him because He first loved us. He seeks first, not the work of our hands, but the love of our hearts.

2. TO THE CALLED ONES. "To them who are the called according to His purpose." "Beloved of God called to be saints." Make your calling sure (2 Timothy 1:9).

II. The Nature of It. It is- 1. GREAT. "All things." All things that pertain to life and godliness are included here. "All things are yours."

2. ACTIVE. "All things work." In the kingdom of grace everything is constantly on the move for the believer's good. As in the material world, there is no standing still here.

3. HARMONIOUS. "All things work together." There is no jarring or irregularities where all is working according to His purpose. All is right for the called of God, even when it seems most wrong. "Believe ye that I am able to do this?"

4. PRECIOUS. "All things work together for good." Jacob said, "All these things are against me," but they were all for good (Genesis 50:20). Have faith in God.

5. SURE. "We know." We know, because we know the faithfulness of the God in whom we trust. Faithful is He that hath promised. And because we know, our hearts are kept in perfect peace with regard to things present and things to come. "My grace is sufficient for you." THE ETERNAL PURPOSE I. The Great Purpose of God.

1. THAT HIS SON SHOULD BE THE FIRSTBORN among many brethren. He humbled Himself, but God hath highly exalted Him. In all things He must have the pre-eminence.

2. THAT BELIEVERS SHOULD BE CONFORMED to the image of His Son. As His workmanship, we are created in Christ Jesus, who is the image of the invisible God. Be not conformed to the world.

II. The Footsteps of Grace. It is profoundly interesting to notice the workings of infinite love on the way out to seek and save the lost.

1. FOREKNOWN. "Whom He did foreknow." "I knew thee before thou earnest forth" (Jeremiah 1:5). Written in the book of life, before the foundation of the world (Ephesians 1:4).

2. PREDESTINATED. Appointed according to the will of God. In Acts 4:28 the same word is translated determined. Whom He foreknew, them He hath appointed.

3. CALLED. There is no room for cavilling at these things. Let us say with Paul, "It pleased God, who called me by His grace." Called through the Holy Ghost to be a separate people unto Himself.

4. JUSTIFIED. "Whom He called, them He also justified." It is God that justifieth. Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? Justified freely by His Grace. 5. Glorified. "Whom He justified, them He also glorified." The glory which thou hast given Me, I have given them." If we suffer with Him, we shall also be glorified together by having a body like unto His glorious body. THE GREAT CHALLENGE

Romans 8:31-35.

I. Who can be Against us if God be for us? (Romans 8:31).

"The Lord is on my side, I will not fear what man can do unto me" (Psalms 118:6). Greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world. All the resources of God are for those who are for Him.

II. Who can Condemn when Christ has Died for us and is risen again? (Romans 8:34). Having died with Him, we are now risen with Him. Free from the law. To them who are in Christ Jesus there is therefore now no condemnation, neither by God, man, angel, nor Devil.

III. Who can Lay Anything to our Charge when God has Justified? (Romans 8:33). The heritage of the servants of the Lord is, "No weapon that is formed against them shall prosper" (Isaiah 54:17). When Satan attempted to bring a charge against Joshua, the Lord rebuked him (Zechariah 3:1-2).

IV. Who shall Separate us from the Love of Him who Gave Himself for us? (Romans 8:35). "I have given unto them eternal life, they shall never perish, neither shall, any pluck them out of my hand:" The Lord's people purchased by His own blood, are too precious to be easily parted with. The Father having loved His own which were in the world, He loved them unto the end.

V. Who can Hinder God from Giving us all Things when He Spared not His Son? (Romans 8:32). Being reconciled, we shall be saved in his life. (Romans 5:10, R.V.., margin). In Him every need will be met. Ye are Christ's, and all things are yours. How will He not with Him freely give us all things?

MORE THAN CONQUERORS

Romans 8:35-37

I. We are to be Conquerors. Not slaves to the fashions and pleasures of the world, but victors for God. Having been born of God, we belong to the upper class, and overcome the world through faith.

II. We are Conquerors in the Midst of Suffering. Tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, peril, and sword. All these are still with us, but faith gives the victory. We are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake. This present world always keeps in the place of death those who have the life of Jesus in them, but they conquer still, and press on to know Him.

III. We are More than Conquerors. Enemies are not only conquered and subdued, but brought as willing servants into the work of the Lord. Saul was more than conquered when he became a preacher of the Gospel he so much hated. Take note of this. To be more than conquerors we must be more than conquered. It is not enough that we be overcome, there must be the willing and entire surrender of ourselves into the hands of God, to say, to be, and to do all that He may appoint.

IV. We are More than Conquerors through Him. The power of conquest and aggressive work for God is not in ourselves, nor in our plans and organisations, but in the God who worketh in us. Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. They overcame by the blood of the Lamb. The blood of the Lamb is the sharp edge of the sword of the Word, the Spirit's holy weapon. Cling to it, use it. THE LOVE OF GOD

I. Nature of It. "The love of God." God is love, so that in manifesting His love He manifests Himself. Herein is love. Yes, herein is God. Not that we loved Him, but that He loved us. Behold, what love!

II. Channel of It. "Which is in Christ Jesus." He is the Mediator between God and men, the Ladder that reaches from earth to Heaven. In Him was manifested the love of God toward us that we might live through Him. "I am the Way."

III. Objects of It. "Us." He loved us and gave Himself for us (John 3:16). Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Us, even when we were dead in trespasses and sin.

IV. Power of It. "Neither death," etc., "shall be able to separate us from the love of God." "I have loved thee with an everlasting love." The trifling things of this world may be allowed at times to separate our love from Him, but, bless His Holy Name, nothing can separate from His love. His love is stronger than death.

V. Assurance of It. "I am persuaded." It is a great testimony when we can say in truth, "We have known and believed the love that God hath to us" (1 John 4:16). Having the love of God shed abroad in our hearts, and going on living day by day as those who believe in the infinite and everlasting love of God, this is the secret of a restful, joyful, contented life. "I am persuaded that nothing shall separate me from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

SELF-DEDICATION

Romans 12:1-2

In the foregoing chapters Paul has been dealing with fundamental doctrines. Now he comes to the application, for he is no mere theorist. Christianity is intensely practical, and the beseeching of the apostle proves how keenly he feels it. The Christianity of some is like a certain fish that is almost nothing but head. Whole-heartedness for God ought to characterise every Christian, and this is evidenced by our presenting our bodies a living sacrifice unto God.

I. The Sacrifice to be Offered. "Present your bodies." We are so apt to be content with committing our souls unto Him, and to give the body as a sacrifice to the soul. We seem to think that our bodies are all our own, and that our souls belong to God. Now the body is the temple of soul and spirit, and the medium through which these act, and by which they manifest themselves. The inner man thus acts through the outer man. Then the medium ought to be in the hands of God as well as the individual actor. In fact, unless God has full charge of the whole being, the Divine power will be withheld. He does not give us power so much as He desires to manifest His power through us. Each one must present his own body, as the Jew presented his lamb, and left it in the hands of the priest.

II. The Nature of this Sacrifice. It is to be-

1. A LIVING Sacrifice. The death of Christ has swept for ever all dead sacrifices from the altar. Now He seeks living ones. That is, we are, as it were, to live on the altar. The old sacrifices were on the altar only for a few moments. Ours is a CONSECRATED LIFE. "To me to live is Christ."

2. A HOLY Sacrifice. "Know ye not that your bodies are the temple of the Holy Ghost?" This temple must be holy, for God dwelleth in you, and in offering the body a sacrifice we offer Him what He has already claimed and sanctified for Himself.

3. An ACCEPTABLE Sacrifice. In the margin of the Revised Version it is "wellpleasing unto God." Not only acceptable, but in reality satisfying to God. God is not fully pleased with regard to our salvation until we offer ourselves a willing, holy, sacrifice unto Him. We are saved to serve.

III. The Motives Urged. These are twofold.

1. THE MERCIES OF GOD. "I beseech you by the mercies of God." "Great are Thy mercies, O Lord" (Psalms 119:156). What are His mercies toward us? Think of His love in Christ, His forgiveness, His peace, His joy, His Holy Spirit, His promises (chap. 8). These should constrain us to yield ourselves entirely up to Him. The goodness of God ought to lead us to repentance in this matter of withholding from Him what is His due, nay, what is His own by right of purchase (1 Corinthians 6:20).

2. THE REASONABLENESS OF THE SERVICE. "Which is your reasonable service." It is but rational that we should yield ourselves to God if He has redeemed us to Himself. It is but reasonable that He should have all. Then it is most unreasonable to withhold what is His.

IV. The Consequences of this Sacrifice.

1. A NONCONFORMING TO THE WORLD. "And be not conformed to the world." This is the remedy for worldly conformity. A definite yielding of ourselves unto God and a constant acknowledgment of the same. There is no likelihood of the dead following the fashion of this world. "Reckon ye yourselves dead." "He gave Himself for us that He might deliver us from this present evil world" (Galatians 1:4) Those who are wholly in God's hands are not much troubled as to whether this or the other thing is consistent with the, Christian life. He decides.

2. A TRANSFORMING OF THE CHARACTER. "Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." The transforming of the outward life will just be in proportion to the renewing of the inner man. When Christ was transfigured it was but the visible manifestation of the glory within. "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." Many long for the renewed life who wish not the renewed mind. The yielding is ours, the transforming is God's.

3. A NEW EXPERIENCE OF THE GOOD WILL OF GOD. "That ye may prove what is that good...will of God." Many have never proved the goodness and perfection of the will of God, because they have not given themselves wholly to God. And so the will of God to them is irksome. They dread it, instead of delight in it. The will of God is perfect, and only in His will are our lives perfect before Him. When the acceptable sacrifice is presented the acceptable will will be proved. He is able to work in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure. OUR REASONABLE SERVICE

The thought of sacrifice runs through the books of the Bible like the crimson thread in the ropes and cords of government. Sacrifice has two general aspects: (1) As a gift, handed over for the good of another, as in Mark 7:11; (2) As an object of "burning" to be utterly used up, as in Leviticus 1:9. Cain's offering belonged to the one class, and was incomplete. Abel's belonged to the other, and was acceptable. Both were voluntary acts, and so became a revelation of character. Here are three reasons why sacrifice on our part is most reasonable: Because-

I. Sacrifice was Made for Us. "Christ loved us and gave Himself for us" (Ephesians 5:2). "Himself for our sins" (Galatians 1:4). What a costly sacrifice for such a purpose. By the sacrifice of Himself He hath put away sin for ever, as an obstacle in the sinner's way of approach unto God (Hebrews 9:26). In giving Himself, He gave all that He was and had: not an impoverished self, for He who was rich for our sakes became poor, that we, through His self-emptying, might become rich (2 Corinthians 8:9). He, as the "corn of wheat," willingly died, that He might bring forth fruit in the lives of those for whom He died. If He gave Himself for us, surely we should give ourselves for Him.

II. Sacrifice is Asked of Us. "I beseech you therefore by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God" (Romans 12:1). Why the body? Because the body is the instrument, or weapon, of the Holy Spirit, which dwelleth in you. The possibilities of the body, for good or evil, are tremendous (Romans 6:13). How often backsliding and failure may be traced to the unconsecrated members of the body. To be a "living sacrifice" is to be continually and completely at God's disposal. This is "holy and acceptable to God." And also because of its acceptability to Him, it is most reasonable that it should be given. The yielding of ourselves unto God is the root and branch of self-denial, without which there can be no true discipleship (Matthew 16:14). It is true in the deepest possible sense, that "Ye are not your own, for ye have been bought with a price: therefore we should glorify God in our bodies and our spirits which are His" (1 Corinthians 6:20). Is it not reasonable that God should have His own, that which He hath bought with His own blood? We are robbing God when we are keeping back this part (bodies) of His purchased possession.

III. Sacrifice Ensures Greater Blessing for Us. In presenting ourselves "a living sacrifice" to God, we are saving ourselves from being "conformed to this age," and also putting ourselves into that position in which we can "prove the good and acceptable and perfect will of God" (Romans 12:1-2). The goodness and beautiful perfectness of the will of God we shall never prove in our own personal experience until we are completely abandoned to it; just as we cannot prove the power of water to sustain our own bodies until we have made an entire committal. A life wholly surrendered to God is the only reasonable life which a Christian can live. It is the secret of usefulness, because it means the proper adjustment of the faculties and functions of our being to the perfect will and purposes of God. Every gift laid on the altar is sanctified by the altar.

1 Corinthians

THE CALL OF GOD.

1 Corinthians 1:4-9.

All true Christian experience has its origin in the call of God: "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you." "Whom He called, them He also justified" (Romans 8:30). We shall note some precious things inherent in this call. It is-

I. The Call of Grace. "The grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 1:4). This grace by Jesus Christ could never come as a response to human merit. "By grace are ye saved, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). In grace He calls, because that, while "we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

II. A Call to Enrichment. "In everything ye are enriched by Him, in all utterance and all knowledge" (1 Corinthians 1:5). The new life in Christ is enriched with a new value and a new power. There is a deeper knowledge of God, a clear vision of the treasure of His Word, and fuller expression of all these in the life. Truly he is a rich man. Rich in faith, rich toward God.

III. A Call to Patient Waiting. "Ye came behind in no gift. Waiting for the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." It is to be feared that many do come behind in their gift of looking for the Coming of the Lord. The Christians at Thessalonica had this gift (1 Thessalonians 1:9-10). We should be thankful that this gift is being freely bestowed on God's people in these days.

IV. A Call to a Blameless Life. "That ye may be blameless in the Day of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 1:8) Herein lies the practical use of this "Blessed Hope," which if often questioned by the unbelieving. Our lives must be affected by our prospects. "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself" (1 John 3:3). How sayest thou then that there is no good in looking for His Coming?

V. A Call to Fellowship. "Ye were called into the fellowship of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord" (1 Corinthians 1:9). Brethren, what a high calling this is! Called into partnership with God's Son in seeking to save the lost and in the building up of His Church, and in the hastening of His Kingdom. In all this we are to be-not sleeping partners, but-active "co-workers together with Him." We are called into fellowship with Him, but the "capital" is all His own in this great business. "For in Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily" (Colossians 2:9). And from this fulness have we all received.

VI. A Call by a Faithful God. "God is faithful by whom ye were called" (1 Corinthians 1:9). This holy calling does imply serious responsibility. We might well tremble when we think of our own poverty and ignorance and weakness. But then, it was by the God who is ever true to His promise that ye were called. Hear what the apostle says to the merciful Philippians: "My God, so great in His wealth in Christ Jesus, will fully supply every need of yours" (Php_4:19). Only believe! THE APPEAL OF THE CROSS.

1 Corinthians 1:18-31.

The preaching, or message, of the Cross, is treated in these days much in the same way as Christ Himself was treated in the days of His humiliation and sorrow (1 Corinthians 1:18). The worldly wise sneered, and official dignity denied Him. By the preaching of Christ crucified the Cross is still making its appeal.

I. To them that are Perishing it is Foolishness (1 Corinthians 1:18). A man must be sinking into the blackness of final despair who thinks God's method of salvation is "foolishness." He might as well call it foolishness to expect light from the sun.

II. To them that are being Saved it is the Power of God (1 Corinthians 1:18). To them who are being plucked out of the fire, like brands from the burning, and being delivered from the dominion of sin, and translated into the Kingdom of His dear Son, and being taught by His Holy Spirit and satisfied with His grace it is the power of God.

III. To the Jew it is a Stumblingblock (1 Corinthians 1:23). The poor Jew, blinded by unbelief has been stumbling over the Cross ever since Christ rose from the dead. The Cross of Christ lies right across his path. He cannot possibly get it out of his way. Some of the things spoken of by this prophet have been literally fulfilled by the life and death of this Man called Jesus, the Christ (Isa. 53), whom they crucified. They as a nation will go on stumbling till the Lord Comes, and they look upon Him whom they have pierced (Zechariah 12:10).

IV. To the Greek it is Foolishness (1 Corinthians 1:23). The Greeks seek after wisdom, but the message of the Cross, which is the embodiment of the wisdom of God, is to those worldly-wise ones "foolishness." Surely the "foolishness of God is wiser than the wisdom of the wisest men" (1 Corinthians 1:25). "The age by its wisdom knew not God" (1 Corinthians 1:21). There are many in our own day, like those Greeks, who are earnestly seeking after wisdom, and yet deliberately pausing by Him who is the wisdom of God (1 Corinthians 1:24).

V. To the Christian, whether Jew or Greek, Christ and Him Crucified is the power of God and the wisdom of God (1 Corinthians 1:24). The Gospel of Christ is the power of God to save to the uttermost of man's need, and the wisdom of God to satisfy to the uttermost man's search for truth. To know God as revealed in His Word is to be made wise unto salvation. Our view of Christ in relation to God may be a great thing, but God's view of Christ in relationship to us His people is a much greater thing. It is with His reckoning we have specially to do. For by the reckoning of Almighty Grace Christ is made of God unto us-

1. "Wisdom" for the Mind. The quality of being wise belongs more to character than to thought. He has given us capacity to understand spiritual things. He can make us to abound in this wisdom (Ephesians 1:8), so that we might be filled (Colossians 1:9).

2. "Righteousness" for the Heart. This righteousness comes not by the "works of the law," but by the reckoning of grace. "Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness." To get right with God means, "Not I, but Christ."

3. "Sanctification" for the Work. Set apart, not as a recluse, but as a worker-together with Him. Jesus said: "On their behalf I consecrate Myself, in order that they may become perfectly consecrated in truth" (John 17:19, Weymouth). We are not saved as a miser saves his money, but as a wise father saves his son, by giving him fitness for his life's work.

4. "Deliverance" for our Assurance. This promise may well put cheer and confidence in our hearts, that He will work deliverance for us, whether as tempted and tried pilgrims, or as warriors for the truth. "Lo, I am with you alway." THE CHRISTIAN REVELATION.

1 Corinthians 2:9-16.

I. This Revelation cannot Possibly be the Invention of Men. The eye of man's carnal mind hath never seen it. The ear of man's worldly wisdom hath never heard it. Neither hath it ever entered into the heart of man (apart from the Holy Spirit) the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him (1 Corinthians 2:9), and since the beginning of the world it hath been so (Isaiah 64:4). The world by wisdom knew not God (chap. 1 Corinthians 1:21).

II. It is a Revelation from God. "But God hath revealed them unto us" (1 Corinthians 2:10). God only could reveal the mysteries of His suffering Son. "O the depths of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God concerning His Son" (Romans 11:33). This is the glory of the Gospel message, that it is as true and as gracious as the God who gave it (Galatians 1:12).

III. What this Revelation Is. It is the unveiling of the mystery of Christ and Him crucified (1 Corinthians 2:2). The revelation of the fact that He died for our sins, and rose again for our justification, and that He is coming again for our final deliverance (Hebrews 9:26). It is a revelation of His abounding grace to sinful men, and of His power to save to the very uttermost all that come unto Him.

IV. How this Revelation is Made Known. "God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit" (1 Corinthians 2:10). It has come from God, and it comes home to the believing heart by the Spirit of God. For "the Spirit searcheth the deep things of God." "The things of God no man knoweth without the Spirit of God" (1 Corinthians 2:11). The Holy Spirit is the minister of the things of Christ (1 Corinthians 12:8-11). He is the "Spirit of Truth," and He shall teach you all things bearing on the revealed will of the Father, "for He shall receive of Mine and shall shew it unto you" (John 16:13). Oh, that all His people were so taught of God. With such a "Teacher, come from God," there is no excuse for spiritual poverty. "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." For ye may know the letter of the word, and yet be strangers to its mighty power.

V. How these Things should be Preached. "My preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power" (1 Corinthians 2:4). "Our Gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power and in the Holy Ghost" (1 Thessalonians 1:5). Without this power, preaching is without authority-"sounding brass." There may be a demonstration of eloquent words and fleshly energy, but without the demonstration of the Spirit it is spiritually powerless (1 Corinthians 2:13). "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto Me" (Acts 1:8). Ye ministers of His, "Tarry ye until ye be endued with powers from on high" (Luke 24:49). "For the promise is unto you" (Acts 2:39).

VI. The Christian's Attitude Towards this Divine Revelation. "I am determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and Him crucified" (1 Corinthians 2:2). In Corinth there were many contentions, as there are in the world everywhere to-day. But Paul knew that the one thing needed by all was the power of the Gospel of Christ. The worldly, in their wisdom, would call this narrow-minded; but it is the wisdom of God to offer the Divine remedy for all the world's woes. "I am determined," he declared. "This one thing I do." Would God that this determination was the settled motive in the hearts of all who serve in the preaching of God's Word. The whole counsel of God radiates from the "Christ and Him crucified." "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord" (Php_3:8). OUR LIFE'S WORK TESTED.

1 Corinthians 3:10-20.

Paul, as a master builder, is here dealing with some fundamental facts concerning the Christian's life and work.

I. A Foundation has been Laid. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 3:11). A foundation was needed, first, by God Himself, in which to build the structure of His redeemed Church; second, by man, on which to build his hopes for this life and the life to come. This foundation has been well and truly laid by the hand of infinite wisdom. Laid as deep as the grave, and as stable as the Eternal Throne. "Upon this Rock (Christ) I will build My Church, and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). "For the foundation of God standeth sure" (2 Timothy 2:19). Since God the Father has purposed to build His Church and His Kingdom on that Rock, which is Christ, let us have the faith of God, and build our all on Him.

II. A Superstructure is Being Raised. "If any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones," etc. (1 Corinthians 3:2). Here are two different classes of builders-

1. The Wise Builder. Who builds "gold, silver, and precious stones." He puts in this foundation that which is consistent with its precious character (Revelation 21:19). He is careful about his doctrine, that the things he teaches in God's Name are in harmony with His Word. He is careful also about his manner of life. In 2 Peter 1:5-7 there is laid down before us a whole load of suitable material for a wise builder.

2. The Foolish Builder. He uses "wood, hay, and stubble, or timber, hay and straw." The foolish builder is wise in his own conceit. He thinks that as long as you believe in the foundation it matters little what you build upon it, and so false teaching becomes easy, and the vain philosophies of the proud in heart become attractive. He is careless and indifferent in practice, his faith in Christ has brought no change in his life and outlook. He still believes in building with "wood, hay, and stubble." These may be useful in some ways, but they are "after the tradition of men and not after Christ" (Colossians 2:8).

III. A Testing Time is Coming. "That day in which the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is" (1 Corinthians 3:13). The foundation has been already tried (Isaiah 28:16). But the work done that has been associated with His Name will be tried with the fire of God's searching judgment. "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, when the proud and all that do iniquity shall be as stubble" (Malachi 4:1). If the proud and the workers of iniquity are reckoned as stubble, so also are the works of the proud self-seeking Christians. This fiery test is not to reveal whether we are Christians or not, but whether cur works as Christians are worthy of Christ or not. Will He own them, or will He burn then? That depends on their own intrinsic character, whether they are gold, or wood, silver or hay, precious stones or stubble. What they are will determine their destiny.

IV. The Results.

1. Some Rewarded. "If any man's work-or building which he has created-stands the test, he will be rewarded" (1 Corinthians 3:14). He is not rewarded because he is a Christian. Salvation is not a reward for good works. It is the gift of God. The reward comes for the good works done in His Name, that are well pleasing in His sight; works that are consistent with the character of the Foundation. True and good, precious in. His eyes, and that bear the stamp of eternal value.

2. Some Not Rewarded. "If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire" (1 Corinthians 3:15). If his work is burned up it is because it is as wood, hay, and stubble, fit fuel for the fire. He may have a saved soul, but he has a lost life. Such will be the poorer through all the coming ages, as the result of his present ignorance and folly. The wages of this sin is also death. Death to the prospect of being rewarded for faithful service at the Coming of the Lord (1 Peter 5:4), who shall try every man's work of what sort it is. For we must all of us appear before Christ's judgment, set in our true characters, in order that each may then receive an award for his actions in this life, in accordance with what he has done, whether it be good or worthless (2 Corinthians 5:10). "Let no man deceive himself" (1 Corinthians 3:18), for we are assured that God will not be mocked. He cannot mistake the hollow, heartless, worthless hay and stubble service for the faith, love and works of the consecrated life. Let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon (1 Corinthians 3:10).

THINGS WE OUGHT TO KNOW.

1 Corinthians 6.

At this time the Corinthian Church was unstable in doctrine and factious in fellowship. Some things are specially emphasised by the prefix: "Do you not know" or "Know ye not." See what some of these things are. Know ye not that-

I. The Saints shall Judge the World (1 Corinthians 6:2). Daniel, in his vision, saw the Ancient of Days come, and the time that the saints possessed the kingdom (Daniel 7:22), Jesus said: "Ye which have followed Me in the times of regeneration, when the Son of Man shall be enthroned, ye also shall sit upon thrones judging" (Matthew 19:28). They lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years (Revelation 20:4). It is a small matter for His saints to be judged of men now. Their day is coming.

II. Your Bodies are the Members of Christ (1 Corinthians 6:15). "The body is for the Lord, and the Lord for the body" (1 Corinthians 6:13). Know ye not that these bodies of yours belong to Christ as really as your souls? The Lord is for your spirit, He also is for your body. Your body is a visible working member of Christ. The temptations of the Devil often come by way of the body. Keep it in subjection, lest by any means it might lead to uselessness (1 Corinthians 9:27).

III. Your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost (1 Corinthians 6:19) In Solomon's Temple the glory of the Lord rested on the mercy seat, right in the centre of the Holy of holies, making the Temple a true witness to His Presence and power. The Church of God is also His temple. "Ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be My people" (2 Corinthians 6:16). "Ye also are builded together for a habitation of God, through the Spirit" (Ephesians 2:21-22). We are all one in Christ, as a corporate body, it is the temple of God. But the body of each individual believer becomes a temple of the Holy Ghost. This is a more humbling, searching, and inspiring thought than that God dwells in His Church.

Your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit Right in the centre of this temple, in the Holy of holies, the heart, the Holy Spirit broods and works, bringing comfort and guidance in life, and power for testimony. God in the midst.

IV. Ye are Not Your Own for Ye are Bought with a Price (1 Corinthians 6:19-20). Is this freedom or bondage? It is both. It means the freedom of the sons of God, the liberty of the Spirit; and the bondage of a conquered love. Independence is an impossibility. To be independent we must be without a country, without a body, and without a God. "Ye are bought with a price." A price which only God Himself could pay: the precious Blood of His own dear Son (1 Peter 1:18-19). Christ is much more than an Example for us, He is our Ransom. Having been bought by His Blood, ye belong to Him; therefore, "ye are not your own," and should "glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Corinthians 6:20). The love of Christ ought to constrain us, that we who live by His redeeming grace should not henceforth live unto ourselves, but unto Him who died for us and rose again (2 Corinthians 3:14-15), that we might show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvellous light (1 Peter 2:9). THE MINISTRY.

1 Corinthians 9:7-27.

The apostle is here vindicating both his ministry and his method, and there are suggested some qualifications for a successful ministry.

I. He had a Personal Experience of Jesus Christ. "Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord?" (1 Corinthians 9:1). He had both seen Him and heard Him, and knew the transforming power of His revelation. He could truthfully say: "I know Him whom I have believed." Should not this be the initial experience of every messenger of the Gospel? How can we say, "We speak that we do know," if we have no personal experience of His saving power?

II. He had Faith in God for the Supply of his Need. Although he asked nothing from those to whom he ministered the Word, but showed them that if he sowed spiritual things it was no great thing if he should reap their carnal things (1 Corinthians 9:11), he reminded them that it was an ordination of the Lord, "that they which preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel (1 Corinthians 9:14). The Gospel of Christ is without charge, and he would put no price on it for his own advantage (1 Corinthians 9:18). He could say: "My God will supply all your need" (Php_4:19). It is a sorry service that can be bribed with money.

III. He has Enthusiasm for the Gospel. "Necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me if I preach not the Gospel" (1 Corinthians 9:16). This is not that kind of enthusiasm that can be worked up for a special occasion; not a convulsive effort that may be produced by a torrent of words. It is the result of the holy fire from the altar of the Cross blazing in the heart, where the "wood, hay, and stubble" of all self-seeking has been burned up, and where the Holy Spirit has taken possession of the life, and focused the energies of the soul in Christ and Him crucified. "To me to live is Christ."

IV. He has Humility of Spirit. "I have made myself the slave of all, that I might gain the more" (1 Corinthians 9:19). He was ready to take the lowest place that he might, if possible reach the lowest down. Like his Master, he took the towel of humility and girded himself, that he might wash the feet of others (John 13:4-5). "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted." "The proud He knoweth afar off." "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of His" (Romans 8:9).

V. He has the Power of Adaptation in Method. "To the Jews I become as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews. To them under the law, as under the law, that I might win them that are under the law" (1 Corinthians 9:20-21). He declares further: "That I am made all things to all, that I might by all means save some. And this I do for the Gospel's sake" (1 Corinthians 9:22-23). In all this we may be assured Paul never condescended to pander to that which was evil, or encourage customs and practices which were dishonouring to the Name of Jesus. He simply and lovingly stooped down far enough to get a hold of them, that he might lift up into God's salvation. No weakling in the faith should attempt this. It takes a strong man to swim against this tide.

VI. He is Self-denying that he might Keep Physically Fit. "I keep my body in subjection, lest I myself should be rejected" (1 Corinthians 9:27). The body is a sacred instrument for the work of God. In eating and drinking, in work or in physical exercise, let us remember that the body is for the Lord, and the Lord for the body (1 Corinthians 6:13). "Ye are not your own," therefore take care of the Lord's property.

GOD'S PROVISION FOR HIS PILGRIM PEOPLE.

1 Corinthians 10:1-4.

Paul assures us here twice over (vv. 1 Corinthians 6:11) that these things happened unto them as types, or examples unto us, upon whom the ends of the ages are come. We, like them, are pilgrims and strangers on the earth, enjoying great spiritual mercies. They had the "shadows," we have the realities.

I. The Moving Cloud. "All our fathers were under the cloud" (1 Corinthians 10:1). The cloud of shelter by day, and of fire by night as their protection and guide (Exodus 13:21). The cloud was the symbol and evidence of the Divine Presence, in itself a mystery. When it moved they moved. It seemed to move easily, but nothing on earth outside could move it. What a suggestive emblem of the revealed Word of God! They all were under it, and God was in it, and all were baptised into the one name (Moses), their leader and law-giver (1 Corinthians 10:2). They were infallibly led by the God-created cloud, just as we can be by His unerring Word. To move without the cloud was to go in their own name, wisdom, and strength, which would mean for them confusion and failure. This is what it means for us when we choose our way, and act without His authority. It was because they believed and followed the cloud that they were able to go into the midst of the sea upon dry ground (Exodus 14:22). It is because we have believed and acted on the "Word of the Lord" that we have passed from death into life, from the place of bondage into the liberty of the land of the promises. Keep on believing. Keep your eye on the God-inspired cloud.

II. The Daily Manna. "They did all eat the same spiritual meat" (1 Corinthians 10:3). "He gave them bread from Heaven to eat" (John 6:31). Those who follow the Word of God will surely be fed by the "Bread of God." Jesus said: "I am the Living Bread which came down from Heaven" (John 6:48-51). The manna, then, is typical of Jesus Christ, who came down from Heaven as "the Bread of Life." The manna was like Christ in that-

1. It was the Gift of God. Of course all bread is God's gift, whether it comes out of the earth or out of the Heavens; but the wilderness could do nothing by way of producing it. So Christ was God's gift to a starving world (John 3:16). God knew what the hungry heart of man needed when He gave His Son as "the Bread of Life."

2. It was Suited for All. All alike found it what it pretended to be: something to satisfy the craving of hunger. What Christ has to give is just what all the sons of men need, that which exactly suits them, the forgiveness of sins and grace to help in every time of need. Satisfied with His abundance.

3. It was Offered to All. From the youngest to the oldest, without money, without price. The rich and the poor alike needed it. In this offer of Heaven's bread, God is no respecter of persons, for all have sinned. So Christ as the "Living Bread" from Heaven is offered, in God's grace, to any man who will eat this bread (John 6:51), promising that he that eateth shall live for ever.

4. It was Personally Used. "They did all eat the same spiritual meat." It was not enough to gather and boast of how much they had gotten. To be personally profited there must be a personal appropriation. We may possibly gather much knowledge about Christ, and yet receive little strength and satisfaction from it, if the truth is not assimilated in our own spiritual life. "He that eateth Me shall live by Me" (John 6:47).

III. The Rock that Followed Them. "They drank of that Spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ" (1 Corinthians 10:4).

1. Like Christ, this Rock was Revealed by God. It may only have taken God a few moments to show Moses this rock in Horeb, but it took Him over thirty years to show the Rock, Christ; for all the years of His earthly life was an unveiling of His character as the Chosen One. "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

2. Like Christ, this Rock was Divinely Possessed. 'Behold I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb" (Exodus 17:6). At Christ's baptism the Holy Spirit rested upon Him. There was to be no mistaking Him as the God-appointed medium of blessing to His trusting people. "God was in Christ seeking to reconcile a wandering world to Himself" (2 Corinthians 5:19).

3. Like Christ, this Rock was Rich in Unrealised Blessing. The Israelites might say, "How can any good come out of this rock?" as they said of Christ, "Can any good come out of Nazareth?" or, "How can this Man save us?" but it pleased God that in Him should all fulness dwell (Colossians 1:19). But they could say later on: "Of His fulness have all we received" (John 1:16).

4. Like Christ, this Rock must be Smitten. "Thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink" (Exodus 17:6). The rock was not smitten for itself, but for the salvation of the people. He was wounded for our transgressions, the rod of God's judgment fell upon Him, and by His stripes we are healed (Isa. 53).

5. Like Christ, the Smitten Rock Poured Forth its Hidden Treasures. "He clave the rock, and gave them drink as out of the great depths" (Psalms 78:15). O wonder of wonders, that from His smitten Son there should come forth streams of redeeming mercies, out of the great depths of God's eternal purpose. In that day in which Christ was pierced, there was opened a fountain of cleansing for a sinful world. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters" (Isaiah 55:1).

6. Like Christ, this Spiritual Rock followed Them. They drank of that Spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ" (1 Corinthians 10:4). This water from the Rock was to them an abiding blessing. It followed them. Something to satisfy all the way. Jesus said "The water that I shall give him shall be in him a well, springing up into everlasting life" (John 4:14). And, "Lo, I am with you, and will never leave you nor forsake you." He is our Rock, the Rock of our eternal salvation and eternal supply.

OVERTHROWN BY SIN.

1 Corinthians 10:5-15.

They went up out of Egypt a mixed multitude (Numbers 11:4), but not a man of them saw Caleb and Joshua enter into the promised possession (Numbers 26:65) What a warning we have here against secret sin, which leads to backsliding and to final overthrow I. Who were They that Fell in the Wilderness? They had been-

1. Saved out of Egypt. They passed through the sea, and knew something of the God of Deliverance. They had identified themselves with the ransomed host.

2. Baptised into the Name of the God-appointed leader, acknowledging his authority, and professedly his followers.

3. In Full Communion. They did all eat of the same bread and drank from the same Rock (1 Corinthians 10:3-4). What privileges were theirs, but how hollow their profession.

II. Their Failure. It was great, and brought fatal results. "They were overthrown in the wilderness," There fell on one day twenty-three thousand (1 Corinthians 10:8). The character of their failure as backsliders may be seen in that they-

1. Displeased God. With many of them God was not well pleased (1 Corinthians 10:5). God's displeasure may not be apparent for a time, as He is slow to anger, but if not repented of will certainly ripen into judgment.

2. Missing the Mark. The mark was the Land of Promise, but they missed it because of their unbelief (Jude 1:3). They failed because they lost their faith in God.

3. Premature Death. Every one of them died, we might say, before their time. God was willing to bring them into the "good land," but evil slays the wicked (Psalms 34:21). Those who wander in heart away from God scarcely realise how they are cutting short their lives.

III. The Causes of Failure. They are many, but all have their root in heart-departure from the Living God, by ceasing to honour and obey His Word. Their sins are the sins of many in our own day, who have turned aside in heart from following the Lord.

1. They Lusted after Forbidden Things (v. 6). The pleasures of the old unregenerate life are longed for, the bread of God has become stale (Numbers 11:4), God Himself has become unreal.

2. They Worshipped Other Gods (v. 7). When any other object is loved and honoured more than the Lord our God, then we are idolaters, whether it be our business, our pleasures, our children, or ourselves. "He that loveth any one or anything more than Me," saith Christ, "is not worthy of Me" (Matthew 10:37-38).

3. They Indulged in Social Impurity (v. 8). This secret, soul-withering sin is without a covering in the eyes of God. "Be sure your sin will find you out."

4. They Murmured at the Providence of God (v. 10). They murmured against Moses, against Aaron, against God's method of dealing with them, and became discontented even with the manna from Heaven (Numbers 14:2). When a professing Christian begins to murmur against God's servants, and to criticise and find fault with God's Word and message, be sure that in heart they are estranged from God, if they ever truly knew Him.

IV. The Present Application. These things are all examples unto us (1 Corinthians 10:6-11). All sins, secret or open, have still the same effect in separating the soul from fellowship with God, and overthrowing the testimony of the life as a witness to the power of Christ. Discontent with the provision and promises of God is the blighted fruit of a doubting heart. Brethren, let us labour therefore to enter into that "rest of faith," lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief (Hebrews 4:11). "Thou standest by faith; be not high-minded, but fear" (Romans 11:20). "The end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer" (1 Peter 4:7). THE LORD'S SUPPER.

1 Corinthians 11:23-29.

This ordinance is the heirloom of the Christian Church. The emblems are of a most simple and homely character- "Bread and Wine." Yet the significance of them in the hands of Christ embody the profoundest facts in the Christian faith. The bread, "My Body;" the wine, "My Blood." Symbols of His character and mission.

I. His Incarnation. "He took bread and said, This is My Body" (1 Corinthians 11:23). A body hast Thou prepared me. He took on Him not the nature of angels, but the "likeness of sinful flesh" (Romans 8:3). He took the body prepared for Him by the Father, that He might have somewhat to offer as a visible sacrifice for the sin of the world. The taking of the bread as a symbol of His body was a voluntary act, for He made Himself of no reputation when He took the form of a servant (Php_2:7).

II. His Devotion. "He gave thanks" (1 Corinthians 11:24). He took the bread, emblem of His body, and gave thanks to God for it. Think of it! Giving thanks to God for a body that was to be bruised and broken on a Cross: thanks to the Father for the privilege of dying for a guilty and thankless humanity! In this simple, common act, see the whole-hearted devotion of our Lord to the awful work the Father had given Him to do. "Not My will, but Thine be done."

III. His Suffering. After giving thanks He brake it. Every word and act seems full of meaning. He did not ask Judas to break it. He Himself broke it. He gave Himself a sacrifice for our sins. He could say: "No man taketh My life from Me: I lay it down of Myself." He broke the bread, of which He said, "This is My Body" (John 10:18). It was because He loved us that He gave Himself for us an offering unto God (Ephesians 5:2). His life was a life of thanksgiving; His death was a voluntary offering. "Father, I will."

IV. His Substitution. "This is My Body which is broken for you." Not broken by accident. He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him. He was "broken for you" (Isaiah 53:5). The wine of His precious blood was poured out for our redemption (1 Peter 1:19). We are apt to speak lightly and think little of these words uttered at His last meal on earth. "My body, broken for" you. What would be the thoughts in His mind when uttering them? He already saw the Cross, and perhaps already felt the pangs of Gethsemane in His soul. But love constrained Him. When we sit at the Lord's table and handle the bread and cup, do we realise this as we should: "My Body broken for you," "My Blood shed for you?"

V. His Invitation. "Take, eat." "Do this in remembrance of Me." After atonement has been made by His suffering and death, there comes (symbolically) the invitation to partake of the benefits purchased. "Take, eat," appropriate to yourselves what is here set before you. This is the message of the Gospel. "Do this in remembrance of Me." There is no virtue in the mere eating and drinking. The soul of the ordinance is in remembering Him. The elements are but the memorials of what He hath done for us in giving His body and His Blood a Ransom for our souls.

VI. His Purpose in It. "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do shew forth the Lord's death." There is no symbolic ordinance left us to show forth His Incarnation, or His Transfiguration, or His Ascension, but there is for His Crucifixion. Why is that His death is to be so prominently and persistently kept before our minds? Because all our salvation has come out of it, and all the hopes of the ungodly are in it. "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of Jesus Christ our Lord" (Galatians 6:14). Preach Christ and Him crucified.

VII. His Prospect. "Ye do shew forth the Lord's death till He come" (1 Corinthians 11:26). When He comes again, according to His promise, the Church will have no need of this memorial of Him. We have little need for an absent friend's photograph when He Himself has come to us. The present dispensation is an interval between His Cross and His Throne. While we may sit at His table with sorrowful, yet peaceful, hearts; while we think of His sorrow and shame on our behalf, we can look hopefully up, knowing that He is coming again to receive us unto Himself (John 14:1-3). When we think of the Lord's table we must recognise that it is not the table of any particular Church or sect. It is the Lord's, and all have the right to it who are able to discern the Lord's body in the emblems. Our worthiness or unworthiness to sit at His table lie, not in our good education, not in our moral character, or religious profession, but in our spiritual discernment (1 Corinthians 11:29). THE CHURCH AS THE BODY OF CHRIST.

1 Corinthians 12:12-31.

The human body is a perfect metaphor, or image, of the Church of Jesus Christ, as it is a living organism with many members, controlled by one spirit

I. The Church is One Body. A body with two heads would be a monstrosity. So would a head with two bodies. "Ye are the body of Christ" (1 Corinthians 12:27). "Ye, being many, are one body in Christ" (Romans 12:5). We have Churches many, but Christ has only one.

II. The Members are all United by One Spirit. "By one Spirit are we all baptised into one Body" (1 Corinthians 12:13). We may be admitted into a local Church on a profession of faith, but to be united to the Spiritual Body of Christ we need the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing" (John 6:63). The Lord knoweth them that are His.

III. The Body of Christ includes Every Member. "Whether they be Jew or Gentile, bond or free" (1 Corinthians 12:13). Whether they be black or white, brown or yellow, rich or poor, young or old, learned or ignorant, living or dead: all who in every age have been made to drink of the one soul-nourishing Spirit (1 Corinthians 12:13), all are His. All who have been brought nigh by the Blood of Christ (Ephesians 2:13). Is the Church a failure? It may be. But the Church which is the Body of Christ is no failure, for when He comes to gather up His precious treasure, He will have a body that will be a glorious witness to the triumph of His sufferings.

IV. Each Member has its Own Function. "God hath set the members every one of them, in the body as it hath pleased Him" (1 Corinthians 12:18). The foot is not expected to do the work of the hand, nor the eye to do what the ear is made for. There are diversities of gifts (see 1 Corinthians 12:28-31), but one Spirit and one purpose. Be not discouraged if your gift is not so prominent and helpful as some others. The eye doth not covet the function of the ear, nor the ear that of the eye. Let us prayerfully seek to find out what that gift is which God hath been pleased to bestow. If you are a member of Christ's Body, there is something you can do for Him. A paralyzed member is a betrayal of His character.

V. All the Members are Interdependent. "The eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee," etc. (1 Corinthians 12:21). Each member of the body needs the help of the others. We ought to praise God for the gifts of other members, when the work of the Lord is being helped on. What does it matter which member has the special gift, so long as the will of the Head is being done through the body.

VI. There is no Division in the Body in His Sight (1 Corinthians 12:25-27). "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:28). "The same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him" (Romans 10:12). "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope" (Ephesians 4:4). Things that divide the members of His Body, in the eyes of men, are things devised by the pride and prejudice of men. As Christians, let us "Endeavour to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" (Ephesians 4:3).

VII. All the Members of the Body are in Mutual Sympathy. So the members of Christ should have the same care one for another. "If one member suffer, all the members suffer with it: if one be honoured, all the members rejoice with it" (1 Corinthians 12:25-26). There is no place for envy or jealousy here. In the Lord's service such unclean spirits must be cast out. For "though I speak with the tongue of an angel and have not love, I am become as sounding brass" (chap. 1 Corinthians 13:1). "Love seeketh not her own." Follow after love and desire spiritual gifts (chap. 1 Corinthians 14:1). THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CHRIST'S RESURRECTION.

1 Corinthians 15:12-23.

Here the apostle reasons on this great truth from two different standpoints- 1. The negative. "If Christ be not risen"-then what?

2. The positive. "But now is Christ risen,"-then what? As if one should say: "If the sun should not rise again, then what would happen?" But now the sun is risen and becomes self-evident.

I. If Christ be Not Risen.

1. Then Christ's Own Testimony was Untrue. He had given His promise: "I will rise again." "Destroy this temple (body) and in three days I will raise it up" (John 2:19). If He failed here, how could He be "the Resurrection and the Life?" (John 11:25).

2. Then His Disciples were Completely Deceived. For this was the keynote of their joyful testimony. "They taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead"

(Acts 4:2). When their Lord was crucified, the disciples were of all men the most miserable, hiding in shame from their countrymen. But suddenly they became the most joyful and courageous of mortals. What had happened? They had seen their Lord risen from the tomb.

3. Then the Christian Church is a Gigantic Fraud. It is a majestic structure, without any foundation. If there was no empty grave in Joseph's garden on the third day, then this is the emptiest thing on earth. It is built on the supposition that Christ rose from the dead. If He did not rise from the grave, then how are we to account for its strength and perpetuity all these long ages?

4. Then Christian Experience is a Grand Delusion. Our assurance of forgiveness, our joy in being justified in the light of God, our peace of heart and mind, our answered prayers, our sweet fellowship with God, our bright hopes for the world to come, are all imaginary; and all the millions in every age who have had these experiences have been fatally betrayed.

5. Then we who Believe in Immortality have been Living in a Fool's Paradise. Instead of "departing to be with Christ," those who have died in this faith have perished like the beast. The joys, hopes, and visions of the dying Christian have all been delusive. Their expectation of seeing Jesus and meeting the loved ones gone before have been but a treacherous empty fancy. Their whole life has been a mere hallucination.

6. Then we are of All Men the Most Miserable. For we, of all men, have stood on the highest pinnacle of expectation, having the brightest outlook and the most confident hopes of any other man. It means for us to be cast down from the high tower of our personal blessedness into the abyss of darkness and despair. If Christ be not risen then the Christian life is but a ghastly mirage, for there will be no resurrection of the dead (1 Corinthians 15:12), our preaching has been in vain, and our faith is also vain (1 Corinthians 15:14). We have been false witnesses, and we are yet in our sins, and all who have died in the faith are perished (1 Corinthians 15:18).

II. But Now is Christ Risen (1 Corinthians 15:20). What a joyful ring there is in this shout. It is like the blast of the trumpet of victory. "Now is Christ risen," and the foundations of Hell have been shaken. The sun has arisen in His strength and scattered the darkness, and brought health and beauty with His healing beams. "Now is Christ risen."

1. Then our Preaching is Not in Vain. The great commission still stands good and true: "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore" (Matthew 28:18-20). "Lo, I (the Risen One) am with you alway." He will not fail you, be not discouraged. The Gospel of the Risen Christ is still the power of God unto salvation to every believer.

2. Then our Faith is Not Vain. We are not trusting a dead Saviour, but Him who is "the Resurrection and the Life" (John 11:25). It is no vain thing to trust in the Living Lord, who had the power to lay down His life and to take it again. He who conquered death and the grave can easily restore our sickly faith and raise our dying efforts from the tomb of uselessness.

3. Then we are Not Now in our Sins (v. 17). He died for our sins, "but He rose again for our justification." His death was the paying of the price. His resurrection was the evidence that God had accepted the price paid for our redemption. Now we who believe are accepted in Him, being raised together with Him in the purpose of God.

4. Then those who have Fallen Asleep in Christ are Not Perished (v. 18). They are with their Lord, who was the firstfruits from the dead (1 Corinthians 15:23). "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him" when He comes to be glorified in His saints (1 Thessalonians 4:14-15) "Knowing that He which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus" (2 Corinthians 4:14).

5. Then we are Not of All Men the Most Miserable (v. 19). Christians should be the happiest people on the face of the earth. They have the best of all friends in Jesus, the sweetest of all promises in God's Word, the greatest of all treasures in the fulness of Divine Grace. They hold the highest of all earth's positions in being the servants of the Lord, crowned with honour and glory. They enjoy the brightest of all prospects in the Coming Kingdom. They shall reign with Him a thousand years (Revelation 20:6). THE RESURRECTION

1 Corinthians 15:20-22; 1 Corinthians 15:35-58.

There were some in the Corinthian Church who taught that "there is no resurrection of the dead" (1 Corinthians 15:12). To combat this fatal error, and to establish the doctrine more firmly in the minds of the saints, Paul wrote this magnificent compendium of the subject. There is nothing like it anywhere; no, not in all the world, for the great apostle; here delivers that which he had received from the risen Christ Himself (1 Corinthians 15:3-4). The great truths of this resurrection chapter are-

I. The Resurrection of Christ. "But now is Christ risen from the dead" (1 Corinthians 15:20). The Christ of the Scriptures must die, be buried, and rise again (1 Corinthians 15:3-4). That Jesus was the Christ was proved by His rising from the dead, and appearing to Cephas, and to "five hundred brethren at once" (1 Corinthians 15:5-6). To deceive five hundred brethren at once would have been about as great a wonder as rising from the dead, especially when these brethren were at first very sceptical. This is no myth, but a fact established by many infallible proofs (Acts 1:3).

II. The Resurrection Hope. "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins, and they who have died in this faith are perished" (1 Corinthians 15:17-18). Upon this foundation-the resurrection of Christ-this Spirit-taught apostle builds the whole structure of the Christian faith. The death of Christ will avail us nothing if He is not risen and accepted of God in our behalf. He died for our sins, but He must be raised and exalted with God's right hand ere forgiveness could be preached in His Name (Acts 5:31). If Christ be not raised, there is no hope for man (Romans 5:10).

III. The Resurrection of the Dead. Nothing but confusion and error can come to those who think that Paul is here speaking of a general resurrection at the last day. The dead referred to in this chapter are those who have "fallen asleep in Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:18). "Even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Corinthians 15:22). All are in Adam, but all are not in Christ. "They that are Christ's at His coming" (1 Corinthians 15:23). The wicked dead shall have no part in the first resurrection (Revelation 20:5). How could he speak of them as "sown in dishonour, and raised in glory?" (1 Corinthians 15:43).

IV. The Resurrection Body. Paul now raises this great double question, and proceeds to answer it. "How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" (1 Corinthians 15:35-49).

1. It will not be the same body that is sown in the grave (1 Corinthians 15:37). Thank God, there will be no cripples in Heaven; no deformed bodies there.

2. It will be a God-given body (1 Corinthians 15:38). A body in everything pleasing to Him, and worthy of a redeemed spirit (2 Corinthians 5:1).

3. It will be a body in every way suited to the individual spirit. "To every seed his own body (1 Corinthians 15:38). One body may differ from another body in glory, as "one star differeth from another" (1 Corinthians 15:41-42).

4. It will be an incorruptible body (1 Corinthians 15:42). Incapable of death, disease, or decay.

5. It will be a body of glory (1 Corinthians 15:43). Like unto His own glorious body (Matthew 17:2).

6. It will be a body of power (1 Corinthians 15:43). Not subject to the laws of earth. Every material fetter broken.

7. It will be a spiritual body (1 Corinthians 15:44). Entirely subject to the volitions of the blood-washed spirit (1 John 3:2). Then shall we be in the image of the heavenly (1 Corinthians 15:49).

V. The Resurrection Mystery. "Behold I show you a mystery," etc. (1 Corinthians 15:51-54). Here the apostle reveals a truth that had hitherto been veiled, and, strange to say, a truth that is still veiled to many, although revealed, viz., that all the children of God shall not die, but that all must be changed (1 Corinthians 15:51). The Lord Himself will come, and those who are alive and remain at that time shall be caught up together with those who have fallen asleep in Christ, but who shall then be raised from the dead (Thess. 1 Corinthians 4:15-17). In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, the dead shall be raised, and we (those living at that time) shall be changed (1 Corinthians 15:52). It is appointed unto men-not all men-once to die (Hebrews 9:27).

VI. The Resurrection Song. This song is entitled, "Death swallowed up in victory" (1 Corinthians 15:54). It is a victory over the power of sin, and sin, too, that was strengthened by a holy law (1 Corinthians 15:56). It is a perfect victory over all the effects of sin. "O death, where is thy sting?" Where is not the effect of thy poison in these new bodies of ours? "O grave, where is thy victory?" Once thou didst claim our bodies as thy spoil, but thou hast been eternally defeated in this new incorruptible body. But this is a song of praise as well as of triumph. "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:57). He alone could "swallow up death in victory" (Isaiah 25:8). This will be the complete fulfilment of Hosea 13:14. Notice there His "I wills."

VII. The Resurrection Incentive. Paul now closes his great argument with an exhortation which is full of motive power. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast" (1 Corinthians 15:58). Seeing that such glorious prospects are before us, what manner of persons ought we now to be?

1. There should be stability of character. "Be ye stedfast, immoveable." Let not the unbelief of others turn you aside from the faith of this Gospel.

2. There should be constancy of service. "Always abounding in the work of the Lord, "knowing that it is not in vain; for in the resurrection state, and at the Judgment-Seat of Christ, the reward will be given (Revelation 22:12). Every man's work shall be tried of what sort it is (1 Corinthians 3:12-15).

THE FINAL VICTORY.

1 Corinthians 15:51-58.

"Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:56).

I. Victory over Sin. "The sting of death is sin." "O death, where is thy sting?" (1 Corinthians 15:55-56). Death is as common as birth, as impartial as the law of gravitation, and as uncertain as a thief. To the Christian death is stingless, for the sting of sin was buried in the Crucified Christ, who bore our sins in His own body to the tree. The strength of sin is the Law, but His obedience unto the death on our behalf met the just demands of the righteousness of God. "Sin shall not have dominion over you; for ye are not under the law, but under grace" (Romans 6:14). The Law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ (John 1:17). Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory over sin.

II. Victory over Mortality. "For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal (body) must put on immortality" (1 Corinthians 15:53). These bodies of ours are to share the victory of our Saviour's resurrection when He comes again. Then "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we (those who are still alive) shall be changed" (1 Corinthians 15:52). "We that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened (with the infirmities of the body): not that we are ourselves to be unclothed but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life" (2 Corinthians 5:4). He is longing for that "house which is from Heaven," the new abode of the Spirit. "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Corinthians 15:44). Our resurrection bodies may differ in lustre, according to the lives we have lived. "For one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead" (1 Corinthians 15:41-42). "Thanks be to God who giveth us this victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

III. Victory over Death. "O death, where is thy sting?" He hath swallowed up death (Isaiah 25:8), Christ Himself took part of the same flesh and blood that through death He might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the Devil, and deliver them who through feat of death were in their lifetime subject to bondage (Hebrews 2:14-15). Death has always been a winged monster to the human race, where Christ and His resurrection is unknown. For Jesus Christ hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel (2 Timothy 1:10). Thanks be to God who giveth us this victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

IV. Victory over the Grave. "O grave, where is thy victory?" The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice and come forth (John 5:28). "The Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thessalonians 4:16). Those who are the members of His Body shall be the first to share in the triumph of their Lord over the bondage and corruption of the grave. This is the first resurrection. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection, the terrors of the second death and the second grave will have no power over them" (Revelation 20:5-6). "Therefore, beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Corinthians 15:58). Thanks be to God who giveth us this victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

2 Corinthians

THE TRIUMPHANT LIFE.

2 Corinthians 2:14-17.

"Thanks be unto God, who always causeth us to triumph in Christ" (2 Corinthians 2:14). The life that has always been led on in triumph should indeed be a thankful one. There are so many seeming failures in one's experience. What are the secrets of a victorious life? In those few verses as above, we note some of them.

I. A Life in Christ. "God causeth us to triumph in Christ." There is no possibility of living the victorious life, in God's sight, put of Christ. To be in Christ is to be at one with Him, and so entirely yielded to His will that His will will be done in us. As the apostle put it, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me" (Galatians 2:20). "We know that we dwell in Him, because He hath given us of His Spirit" (1 John 4:13).

II. A Life that Reveals Something of the Wisdom of God. "He maketh manifest the savour of His knowledge by us" (2 Corinthians 2:14). The guiding principle in the Christian life is the truth revealed in His Word (2 Corinthians 4:2). Those led by the Spirit of God will surely be witnesses to something higher and nobler than the wisdom of this world, which is foolishness with God.

III. A Life that has a Sweet Savour of Christ unto God. "For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ" (2 Corinthians 2:15). "Christ gave Himself for us an offering to God for a sweet smelling savour" (Ephesians 5:2). Those who have been partakers of that offering are to be partakers also of the same sweet savour unto God. He could say: "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased," for He knew that all His interests committed to His Son would be safe and successful. Let us so seek to please God.

IV. A Life that Affects both Saved and Unsaved. "A savour of Christ in them that are saved and in them that perish" (2 Corinthians 2:15). The influence of one Christian's life can be made a confirmation to another who loves the same Lord. The "savour of Christ," like the fragrance of the rose, can be easily detected by those who are saved, but to those who are perishing it smells condemnation, so they don't like it (2 Corinthians 2:16).

V. A Life True to the Word of God. "We are not as many which corrupt the Word of God" (2 Corinthians 2:17). Those who walk in craftiness are sure to handle the Word of God deceitfully (chap. 2 Corinthians 4:2). If the heart is not true to God, the life will not be true to His Word. It is easy to corrupt God's message by mingling it with Christ dishonouring philosophies and the traditions of men. There can be no spiritual victory for those who have gone out of the way (Colossians 2:8).

VI. A Life Lived in the Presence of God. "In the sight of God speak we in Christ" (2 Corinthians 2:17). Abiding in Christ and practising the presence of God in the daily life is the evidence of vanquishing power. This is the victory that overcometh the world, our faith. Faith in Him who is greater than all that can be against us. "If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you" (John 15:7). Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God. "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." THE GOD OF THIS AGE.

2 Corinthians 4:1-7.

"The god of this age hath blinded the thoughts of the unbelieving, that the light of the Gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God, should not dawn upon them" (r.v., margin). This Scripture is burdened with neglected but tremendous realities. There are mighty spiritual forces that war against the higher interests of the souls of men. "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness" (Ephesians 6:12). All under the leadership of "the god of this age."

I. His Personality. This god is no mere phantom, but a great and mighty spiritual individuality. So great that even "Michael the archangel" did not dare to use abusive terms when contending with him (Jude 1:9). It was no ordinary wicked spirit that could dare to tempt the Lord Jesus Christ with the kingdoms of this world (Matthew 4:8-9). Even the Lord did not sneer at his folly and ridicule his presumption. He simply said: "Get thee hence, Satan." This is not language suitable to some unseen evil influence, but to the "prince of devils."

II. His Position. He is "the god of this age." This age is the dispensation of the ministry of the Holy Spirit; it is also the "hour and the power of darkness" (Luke 22:53). In John's Gospel Satan is called "the prince of this world" three times; also "the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience" (Ephesians 2:2). It was doubtless under his influence that the rulers of this world killed the Prince of Life, for he "deceiveth the whole world" (Revelation 12:9). The god of this age is not worshipped and obeyed as an ugly, cruel-faced devil, but as an "angel of light," for Satan has so transformed himself (2 Corinthians 11:14). He is the great arch-deceiver in these latter days, when knowledge has increased and multitudes run too and fro upon the earth.

III. His Purpose. It is to blind the thoughts that the light of the Gospel of the glory of Christ should not dawn upon them (2 Corinthians 4:4). The Gospel of the coming glory of Christ, when He shall put down all authority and power, and take unto Himself His right to reign, must strike terror into the heart of Satan; for then he will be spoiled of his goods; then "that great dragon, that old serpent called the Devil and Satan, will be cast out" (Revelation 12:9). Why in this age is Satan so anxious to hinder, if possible, the dawning of the light of the truth about His Coming again in power and great glory? Is it because this revelation brings fresh inspiration and a more joyful confidence into the hearts of Christ's servants in these last and testing days? But this diabolical purpose is being largely thwarted now, in that multitudes of God's people are rejoicing in the light of the Gospel of that glory of the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is surely drawing nigh.

IV. His Manner. How does he manage to blind the thoughts of men to the light of the Gospel of the glory of the coming Christ? See how he dealt with our Lord when tempting Him. Was he not trying to blind the thoughts of Christ to the Father's time and method of giving Him the dominion of this world when he "showed Him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them," and offered them to Him for an act of obeisance? Does he not still show men the honours and pleasures of earth that he might blind their thoughts to the greater and more enduring things of the Kingdom of God and of His Christ? By putting a special lustre on material things it is not difficult for the great deceiver to blind the eyes of men to the things that are eternal. Even when the seed of God's Word has been sown in the heart, it is easy for this wicked one to catch it away, by blinding the understanding with confused interests (Matthew 13:19). We are not ignorant of his devices. Let us watch and be sober.

V. His Subjects are those which believe not (2 Corinthians 4:4). Those whose hearts are closed to the "light of the knowledge of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (2 Corinthians 4:6), and fit subjects and willing dupes to Satan's delusions. They cannot enter into the light and liberty of the sons of God because of unbelief. They may have a growing desire for the fictitious, the theatrical, and the sentimental, but the things that belong to their eternal peace are still hid from their eyes, and those counterfeits of the god of this age become increasingly attractive. If he can only hide the Gospel of Jesus Christ from their eyes he knows that his purpose will be successful-they will be lost (2 Corinthians 4:3). For this is the condemnation that light is come into the world, and men love darkness rather than the light. He that believeth not is condemned already (John 3:18-19).

VI. His Overcomers are those into whose hearts "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God hath shined" (2 Corinthians 4:6). The light of God's truth alone, as revealed in the face of Jesus, can deliver from the power of darkness, which is the domain of Satan's operations. Here spiritual death reigns; but Christ, by His death, has delivered us from this death and from him that had the power of death- the Devil (Hebrews 2:14). Christ our Redeemer and Conqueror now holds the keys of Hell and of death (Revelation 1:18). He that is born of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not (1 John 5:18). Jesus said to Peter, "Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have you, but I have prayed for you that your faith fail not" (Luke 22:32). Listen to this joyful shout of final and eternal victory that will ring from the Heavens: "Now is come salvation and strength and the kingdom of our God, and the power of His Christ; for the accuser of our brethren is cast down! They overcame him by the Blood of the Lamb" (Revelation 12:10-11). "Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory." THE IDEAL LIFE.

2 Corinthians 4:7-11.

God is being pleased to manifest Himself. In creation God is manifesting His wisdom and almightiness in the works of His hands. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the earth His handiwork." In Jesus Christ God is manifesting His love in merciful plenitude for our salvation. In the lives of the redeemed He desires to manifest His saving and satisfying grace for a witness and encouragement to the unbelieving; for the life of Jesus is to be made manifest in our mortal flesh (2 Corinthians 4:10-11). The life of Jesus is the ideal life, and the life of the Christian is to be, in measure, a spiritual reproduction. Many lives of Christ have been written, but the most effective and God-honouring is the living one. "The life of Jesus made manifest in our body." Let us think of it. The life of the Lord Jesus was-

I. A Life from God. He was born from above (Luke 1:35). He could say: "I am from above: I came down from Heaven." He was God manifest in the flesh (1 Timothy 3:16). If then, the life of Jesus is to be manifest in our mortal flesh, we must be born of God, born from above. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God." How then can he live the life of Jesus if he has not received the Jesus' life? Christ must live in us if His life is to be manifested by us (Galatians

II. A Life Entirely Yielded to God. It was a life fully surrendered to the Divine will. At His baptism he gave Himself up to fulfil the righteousness of God. He said: "The Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He seeth the Father do" (John 5:19). He also spake the words of the Father (John 14:10). "My doctrine," he declared, "is not Mine, but His that sent Me" (John 7:16). The keynote of His life was: "Not My will, but Thine be done." What an example for all who desire to live the life of Jesus in their mortal bodies. Entire surrender to God's Word and will and work was needful for Him. How can it be less needful for us in seeking to live His life and to do His work? "Yield yourselves unto God as those that are alive from the dead" (Romans 6:13).

III. A Life Empowered by the Spirit of God. John bare record, saying: "I saw the Spirit descending from Heaven like a dove, and it abode upon Him." God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power (Acts 10:38). Being made in the likeness of sinful flesh, He made Himself dependent on the power of the Holy Spirit given Him by the Father (see Isaiah 11:2-3), and when He began His public ministry He testified that "the Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the Gospel" (Luke 4:18). He knew that all His disciples needed this spiritual enduement from on high if they were to be true witnesses for Him. So He told them to tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued. How can we expect to live this life of Jesus without this gift? There is no substitute on earth for spiritual power. There is no excuse for being without it. For the promise is to you and to all that are afar off (Acts 2:29).

IV. A Life of Unwavering Faith in God. His face was steadfastly set to do the will of His Father at any cost. Because of this attitude and His devotion, He must needs suffer. The holiness of His character brought suffering, because He could not be understood by sinful and wicked men. He suffered through His faithfulness in testifying against the world's evil works (John 7:7). He was not of the world, therefore the world hated Him (John 15:9). He suffered because of His intense love for blind, deluded sinners, as seen in His tears over guilty Jerusalem. Yet withal, His faith in the Father had no tremor of doubt. "If any man will live godly he must suffer." How ready we are to shrink from seeking to live "the life of Jesus" in our mortal bodies, because of the testing conditions that are sure to follow. This is when a steadfast faith is needed. But who is sufficient for these things? Our sufficiency is of God (2 Corinthians 3:5). "For it is God Himself who worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure" (Php_2:13).

V. A Life of Concentrated Activity. His first recorded utterance was: "Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?" The Father's business was His life's business. Never was there any one more diligent in business than Jesus. "Lo, I come, in the volume of the Book it is written of Me. I delight to do Thy will, O My God" (Psalms 40:7). In our Lord's ministry there was no dissipation of interest or of energy. Everything was subordinate to the known will of His Father. If this feature of the character of Jesus is to be manifest in our present life, then we also must be willing to make ourselves of no reputation, and take the form of a servant, by putting on His yoke, that we might learn of Him meekness and lowliness of heart; and so in fellowship with Him in service, manifest in our bodies the devotion of Jesus Christ. "This one thing I do."

VI. A Life Crowned with Victory. It was one prolonged battle, with one prolonged victory. His words were all victories of wisdom. His miracles were all victories over human weaknesses. His dying was His victory over the world's sin, in the breaking down of the great barrier that stood in the way of man's approach to God. His resurrection was His victory over mortality, death, and the grave. He knew no defeat. May we who are called upon to manifest "the life of Jesus" in our mortal flesh, expect to have victory all along our pilgrim life? Has God made provision for victory or defeat? Was the apostle fearful because of the infirmities of the flesh when he said: "Thanks be to God, who always causeth us to triumph in Christ" (2 Corinthians 2:14). Again, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians 15:54). If Jesus Christ has conquered in us, then in all these things we are more than conquerors (Romans 8:37). We have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellence of the power may be of God (2 Corinthians 4:7). "Bear about. . . the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus may be manifest in the body" (2 Corinthians 4:10). "Not I, but Christ." THE GREAT CHANGE.

2 Corinthians 5:14-21.

The experiences of a Christian may not all be Christian experience. Experiences may be as varied as Christians themselves. But there are some radical and fundamental experiences that lie at the root of every real Christian life. Here are some of them. We shall note-

I. The Change Needed. "If One died for all, then were all dead" (2 Corinthians 5:14). "Death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Romans 5:12). "The wages of sin is death." Sin separates from God, and to be separated from God is spiritual death. A change is needed, not in God, but in the condition of the soul that is already lost to Him because of sin.

II. The Change Wrought. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creation" (2 Corinthians 5:17). To be in Christ is to be trusting Him so entirely that God is pleased in grace to reckon the righteousness of His Son as for us. In this new creation old things have passed away. No man can create himself. We are His workmanship. "Created in Christ Jesus unto good works" (Ephesians 2:10). The change is so great that "all things become new," both in us and around us, because the heart is renewed and the eyes are enlightened.

III. The Divine Method in Accomplishing this Change. "God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself" (2 Corinthians 5:19). Yes, in Jesus of Nazareth this lowly Man of Sorrows, God was seeking to reconcile a world at enmity with Himself. In Christ we meet with this seeking and forgiving God, finding salvation and newness of life, being justified freely by His grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus (Romans 3:24). "By grace are ye saved through faith." "It is of faith that it might be by grace" (Romans 4:16).

IV. The Evidence of this Change. "He died for all that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto Him who died for them" (2 Corinthians 5:15). The evidence that we have of being redeemed and transformed is a changed attitude towards ourselves and our Lord. It is not "I" now, but "Christ." He gave Himself that He might redeem us. Now henceforth it must be ourselves for Him. This new purpose in life is surely what is expected from a new creature. Let the time past suffice for the love of self, the will of the flesh, and the pride of place. The grace of God that saved us now teacheth us to deny worldly lust and to live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world (Titus 2:12). For God hath called us unto holiness (1 Thessalonians 1:7).

V. The Responsibilities Connected with this Change. "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:20). We are Christ's representatives in the world, both as to His character and His purpose. In Christ's stead we are to beseech men to be reconciled to God. Having been reconciled to God by Jesus Christ, there is committed unto us "the ministry of reconciliation" (2 Corinthians 5:18). Thank God, it is not the ministry of hopeless damnation. God is not waiting to be reconciled to men, but to reconcile men to Himself. As ambassadors, we are not left to our own resources. We are workers together with Him (chap. 2 Corinthians 6:1). Out of His fulness are we all to receive. Let us labour and pray that souls may be won for Christ and His Kingdom A CALL TO SEPARATION.

2 Corinthians 6:14-18; 2 Corinthians 7:1.

The Christian is not of the world, but has been sent into it as a new creature, to be a witness for Jesus Christ (John 17:18). The danger is to compromise with the evil customs and false doctrines with which he is surrounded.

I. Why is Separation Needed? Because the two great currents of influence in the world are diametrically opposed to each other. "The Spirit of Truth and the spirit of error." The purpose of the Lord Jesus Christ and "the god of this age" are vastly different.

1. "What Fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness?" How can the righteousness of God and the unrighteousness of Godless men abide in fellowship?

2. "What Communion hath light with darkness?" Darkness, it is said, is the natural condition of the universe. Light is its conqueror. "Ye were sometime darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord." Walk as children of light. Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness (Ephesians 5:6-11).

3. "What Concord hath Christ with Belial?" What harmony can exist between the Holy Christ and pure vileness and worthlessness? (Deuteronomy 13:13).

4. "What Part hath he that believeth with an infidel?" The part of the believer is the knowledge of God and the joy of His salvation. What is the part of the infidel?

5. "What Agreement hath the temple of God with idols? "Ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you" (1 Corinthians 3:16). How could the Spirit of God agree to that which would dethrone God? Separation is absolutely needed.

II. The Gall to Separation. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean" (2 Corinthians 6:17). God at the first "divided the light from the darkness" (Genesis 1:4), and ever since man has been trying to blend them. The carnal and the spiritual, the works of the flesh, with the works of the Spirit. In our minds and hearts, in our thoughts and affections, there is to be an exodus from the dominion of world influences, and a complete surrender of ourselves to the call of God. "Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth, for ye are risen with Christ, and your life is hid with Christ in God" (Ephesians 3:1-3). They are reckoned enemies of the Cross who are devoted to earthly things (Php_3:18-19). "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Therefore come out and be separated for God and for His Christ.

III. The Promises Made to the Separated.

1. "I will receive you" (2 Corinthians 6:17). You are not going out into cold isolation. When you separate yourself for God, you are but going closer into His arms, and nearer to His heart. The man of the world may look upon you with wondering pity, because he has no experience of fellowship with God or of victory by His constraining Spirit.

2. "I will be a Father unto you" (2 Corinthians 6:18). Our God knows how very much we shall need Him when we are separated for Him. So He promises, and will act the true Fatherly part toward His devoted children. They can joyfully say: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us" (1 John 3:1). Fear not, He will not fail thee.

Having, therefore, these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of the Lord (chap. 2 Corinthians 7:1). Father, I will. OUR WARFARE.

2 Corinthians 10:3-7.

The idea of warfare here is very emphatic. It is a bloodless struggle for the higher life. Being deserters from the camp of Satan, we must expect conflict, but greater is He that is for us.

I. Our Enemy. Our enemy consists of allied forces. There is-

1. The Flesh, or Carnal Mind. "Though we walk in the flesh (body) we do not war after the flesh" (2 Corinthians 10:3). "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh." The carnal mind is a sworn enemy to the things of the Spirit. It is a rebel against the law of God (Romans 8:7). The worldly mind is essentially opposed to the mind of the Spirit. To be carnally minded is death.

2. Imaginations. "Casting down imaginations" (2 Corinthians 10:5). Those high-flying renegade thoughts that would carry us to the palace called vanity, and that seeks to put the crown of pride, upon our self-satisfaction. Such vain imaginings are dangerous to the soul's highest good (Psalms 2:1).

3. Every Thing that Exalteth itself Against the Knowledge of God (2 Corinthians 10:5). Every thought and feeling and act that springs up from a doubting heart against the word, the will, and the wisdom of God is vile presumption. Everything that is moral in the "old man" seeks to exalt itself. Beware of pride.

II. Our Weapons. The weapons of our warfare-

1. Are Not Carnal (2 Corinthians 10:4). They don't belong to the "old nature." They are not man-made. Not a product of human ingenuity. Spiritual enemies cannot be overcome by material weapons. We cannot overcome evil with evil. "Railing for railing" and such like are of the flesh and not of God.

2. They are Mighty through God. They are mighty because God's hand grips them, and that hand is almighty. These are His weapons for bringing down the "strongholds" of unbelief, sin, and Satan, and breaking the wings of our vain and lofty imaginations, and everything that would exalt itself "against the knowledge of God." This unbending and never-failing weapon is the "Word of God" in the hand of the Holy Spirit, for the sword of the Spirit is the Word of God (Ephesians 6:17). With this weapon of His Truth, we are also, through faith, to be more than conquerors. "For the Word of God is quick and powerful, sharper than any two-edged sword, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12). Like the sword of Goliath, "There is none like it.

Give it me."

III. Our Victory

1. Is Sure. "The pulling down of strongholds" (2 Corinthians 10:4). The first stronghold that has to be pulled down is our own self-will. This is the citadel of the carnal man. Here we have victory by surrendering to the Prince of Life. When our wills have been conquered by the subduing power of His mighty love, then we become partakers of the Divine nature, and are brought into league with Christ Himself, and so become, by His grace, victors over sin and the strongholds of Satan. "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might" (Ephesians 6:10).

2. It is to be Complete. "Bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ" (2 Corinthians 10:5). When a fort has been captured, then all that are in it are taken prisoners. Thoughts are fugitive things, and have to be watched and restrained, "for as a man thinketh, so is he." Thoughts constitute character. Pure thinking leads to noble action. They are the subtle weapons of life's warfare. How important then it is that our thoughts should be brought into captivity to the will of Jesus Christ. Thoughts require mastering. Who can guide, sanctify, and use them as Christ can? Under His control they become weapons of triumph. Thoughts are difficult things to get hold of, but when captured by Christ, He will hold them for thoughts are captured when they are captivated. Like Rebekah, they say, "I will go with this Man" (Genesis 24:58). We can bring out thoughts into the captivity of obedience of Christ by keeping steadfastly "looking unto Jesus," who is the Author and Finisher of our faith, the Subduer of our wills, the Winner of our affections, the Captor of our thoughts, and the Giver of every good and perfect gift. "What think ye of Christ? "

SUFFERING FOR CHRIST

2 Corinthians 11:24-33

When Paul was called as a chosen vessel to bear the Name of Jesus Christ before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel, the Lord uttered these significant words: "For I will shew him how great things he must suffer for My Name's sake" (Acts 9:15-16). He who would live godly, by receiving Christ's Word, occupying His place, acting only in His Name, and for His glory, must suffer; for the world still lieth with the wicked one, and the carnal mind is still at enmity against God. "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you." The sufferings of this servant of God were terrible. See the-

I. Reason why He Speaks of Them. Some "false apostles and deceitful workers" had been glorying in themselves, and seemingly doing all they could to belittle the name and character of Paul. He condescends (as a fool) to take them on their own ground by giving them a list of his sufferings and perils in the cause of Jesus Christ. Had the great apostle not played the fool for once, we never would have known the half of all that he endured in faithfulness to his Master. The fact that he felt ashamed to speak of his sufferings for the Christ who had died for him shows the nobleness of his true inward character.

II. Nature of Them. They are simply appalling. It is almost hard to believe that any one man could go through such an ordeal in the course of a single lifetime. Five times lashed, at the hands of the Jews, receiving 39 strokes each time. Three times beaten with rods by a Roman official. Three times shipwrecked and tossed in the deep, perhaps clinging to a spar for a whole "night and a day." Many long and wearisome journeys. Endured eight different kinds of peril, suffered eight kinds of bodily privations, and, beside all this, having the personal care of all the churches upon him. But all this tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, and peril did not separate him from the love of God in Christ Jesus (Romans 8:35). How like his sufferings were to those "many sorrows" which marred the face of his Holy Master, and how truly did he thereby become a "partaker of the sufferings of Christ."

III. Effect of Them. He did not mourn over them, he gloried in them (2 Corinthians 11:30-31). He did not look upon them as misfortunes, but as marks of his Master's favour. They were medals won in his battles for the Lord (2 Corinthians 12:9-10). Glorying in tribulation was an article in Paul's creed (Romans 5:3). He knew that, if "we suffer with Christ, we shall also reign with Him" (2 Timothy 2:12). Perhaps this was one of the reasons why they could sing praises in the prison, with bleeding backs and aching limbs (Acts 16:25). Only those who look at the things which are unseen, can possibly "esteem the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt (Hebrews 11:26). "If men revile you and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely for My sake, rejoice and be exceedingly glad; for great is your reward in Heaven." THE GRACE THAT GLADDENS.

2 Corinthians 12:9.

Notice Paul's testimony. He has had a revelation from the Lord and a messenger from Satan. Revelations and buffetings, visions and thorns, make up much of the Christian's experience.

I. The Promiser. He said, "My grace," He who cannot lie, He into whose lips grace has been poured, He will give grace and glory-He, the God Man, Mediator, in whom all fulness dwells.

II. The Promise. "Grace sufficient." Sufficient.

1. To Save. It is made perfect in weakness. It delights to forgive, to deliver, and keep.

2. To Supply. To meet all need (Php_4:19). It is a stream sufficient to turn every mill, to satisfy every longing of the trustful heart.

3. To Support. It bears up in midst of all trials and temptations, all the thorns and thistles in life; enables also to bear the unspeakable revelation without pride.

4. To Overcome. It slays the power of sin within, resists the devil without, and turns the dark shadows of death into forerunners of glory.

III. The Result.

1. Gladness. Most gladly will I glory. Glad because everything needed is promised by such a loving and faithful one (Romans 8:32).

2. Power. Power of Christ resting upon him, because he rejoiced in his weakness, the weakness that enabled him to lean all the more on His mighty promise.

POWER IN WEAKNESS.

2 Corinthians 12:1-10.

The personal experiences of the apostle, as recorded in those verses, are deep with significance for all who are persistently staggering after his example.

I. A New Revelation. "He was caught up, and heard unspeakable words" (2 Corinthians 12:4). This revelation was for himself alone, therefore it was unutterable to others. We can only know its character by its fruits, for by their fruits ye shall know them; and the fruits as seen here are worthy of the God of all grace. Special revelations are given to many of God's faithful servants, when their minds and thoughts are caught up by the Holy Spirit, as on wings of faith and hope, into the highest Heavens (Ezekiel 11:24; Acts 8:39), where they see and hear things which the language of mortals cannot fully express. They are precious seasons of the consciousness of God's presence, and the reality and power of eternal things.

II. A New Trial. "There was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan, to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure" (2 Corinthians 12:7). New trials usually come after new visions. God knows that pride goeth before a fall, so He permitted Satan to drive this stake of affliction into his body. What it really was it is difficult to say. To the Galatians he wrote: "Ye know that through the infirmity of the flesh I preached unto you the Gospel" (Galatians 4:13). He was still more anxious to preach the Gospel than glory in his special revelation. It is better, in His eyes, that we should be witnessing for Christ than revelling in our new discoveries, but know that these are not contradictory, but complementary.

III. A New Promise. "My grace is sufficient for thee: for My strength is made perfect in weakness" (2 Corinthians 12:9). The power of this weakness is abundantly evident in 1 Corinthians 2:3-5. This is not the weakness of ignorance or of unbelief, but that of conscious self-inefficiency and entire dependence on the offered grace of God. If God's strength is to be made perfect in weakness, surely here is an opportunity for all of us. But it is much easier for some to be self-confident than self-emptied. To be full of self-confidence is to be empty of the power of God. God will not give His glory to another for self-display. Humble thyself, and He will exalt thee.

IV. A New Source of Gladness. "Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (2 Corinthians 12:9). Glorying in our infirmities is something nobler than merely submitting to them. But no one can glory in afflictions because they are afflictions; but if by faith we can see them to be the Divinely appointed means whereby we are made more effective witnesses to the power of Christ, then we may gladly glory in them. It is common for Christian workers to find gladness in their gifts, but not so common to find gladness in their infirmities. Rejoice in the Lord alway: He doeth all things well.

V. A New Resolution. "Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong" (2 Corinthians 12:10). He took pleasure in every trial and hardship that made him feel more keenly the measure of his weakness, knowing that this only made more room in his life for the grace and power of God. We glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, experience, hope (Romans 5:3). "No chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous, nevertheless afterward it yieldeth peaceable fruit unto them that are exercised thereby" (Hebrews 12:11). Let this afterward strengthen our faith for the present.

Galatians

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST.

Galatians 1:3-9.

The Gospel of Christ is simply the good news concerning Christ. The Law was given by Moses, but grace and truth, that is, the favour and exact expression of God, came by Jesus Christ (John 1:17-18).

I. What is Offered to Men in this Gospel?

1. Forgiveness. "He gave Himself for our sins" (Galatians 1:4). Here we have God's best, in contact with man's worst. The Holiest One in Heaven, with the foulest thing on earth. What must sin be in the eyes of God, when it took the life and death, and all the wealth of the character of His own Son to put it away? Now in Him we have redemption through His Blood, and the forgiveness of sins (Ephesians 1:7).

2. Deliverance. "That He might deliver us from this present evil age" (Galatians 1:4). Although forgiven and justified, we are still here in the midst of all the evils of this present age, and need to be delivered and continually kept from their enthralment. "He is able to keep you from falling. "

3. Grace and Peace (Galatians 1:3). Grace sufficient to meet your every need, and the peace of God to keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus (Php_4:7). Bless God for such a full salvation.

II. How are these Blessings to be Received? How can I make sure that they are mine? "Him that called you into the grace of Christ" (Galatians 1:6). The Gospel brings God's call to the soul to enter into the full enjoyment of that grace abounding which is in Christ Jesus. There is no other way but by the obedience of faith. You believe the message, you obey the call, and the grace of God does all the rest (1 John 3:5). "He is faithful that hath promised. "

III. How Can this Gospel be Perverted? "There be some who would pervert the Gospel of Christ" (Galatians 1:7). The Gospel in itself cannot be perverted: it is always and everywhere the same. But it can be so misrepresented that the minds and thoughts of men may get a very distorted view of its real character. The Judaizer taught that they must be circumcised to receive the full benefits of the Gospel of Christ. We Gentiles are not concerned about being circumcised; but there are many who think that they ought to be compromised, that God will save them because of their moral character and good works. This is a perverted view of the Gospel of Christ. Anything we can do, or be, will never add any value to the saving grace of God in Jesus Christ. "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8). Therefore it is by faith that it might be by grace (Romans 4:16). "The gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. "

IV. There is No Other Way. "Though we, or an angel from Heaven, preach any other Gospel, let him be accursed" (Galatians 1:8-9). Neither the wisdom of the ages, nor all time, nor eternity, will ever produce another Gospel whereby sinful men-without the grace of God in Jesus Christ His Son-can be saved. "There is none other Name under Heaven given among men, whereby ye can be saved" (Acts 4:12). Jesus said: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me. " "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). Believest thou this?

"THE LIFE I NOW LIVE."

Galatians 2:16-21.

This was certainly not the life he used to live, when he was "breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord" (Acts 9:1), but it is a brief spiritual autobiography of the life he now lived. It is-

I. A Life Justified Without the Deeds of the Law. "By the works of the law shall no flesh be justified" (Galatians 2:16). If we have offended in one point, we have broken the law. The law cannot forgive sin, but by the law is the knowledge of sin (Romans 3:20). To be justified in God's sight is to be free from guilt. So free from punishment.

II. A Life Imparted Through Faith in Jesus Christ. "We have believed in Jesus Christ that we might be justified by faith in Christ" (Galatians 2:16). Thus by faith in Christ the righteousness of God is imputed to the believer. The law is but our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ, that we might be justified by faith (Galatians 3:24). "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness" (Romans 4:3). This is the Divine law of grace. "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God."

III. A Life Lived Unto God. "I am dead to the law that I might live unto God" (Galatians 2:19). Being now delivered from the terrors of the law, and the ensnaring power of sin; saved out of the self-life into the happy freedom wherewith Christ hath made His believing ones free, his one absorbing purpose is to love, honour, and obey Him who hath redeemed by the Blood of His Son and brought into sweet communion with Himself.

IV. A Life Crucified with Christ. "I am crucified with Christ" (Galatians 2:20). The old man, with all his fleshly passions and lusts is crucified with Christ, that the body of sin might be destroyed (Romans 6:6). In the Cross of Christ he sees the whole body of his sinful nature nailed to the tree, and in this he gloried. "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world" (chap. Galatians 6:14). Crucifixion is a painful remedy, but it is effectual.

V. A Life Indwelt by Christ. It is now, "Not I, but Christ liveth in Me." He has now become, as it were, a new personality. A new will, a new purpose, and a new power now rules and reigns. Where Christ dwells is always a centre of attraction, like the home in Bethany. To be strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man is as Christ dwelling in the heart. This comes by faith (Ephesians 3:16-17). Christ's indwelling is manifested by the Holy Spirit's presence and power. "Herein know we that we dwell in Him, and He in us, because He hath given us of His Spirit" (John 4:13).

VI. A Life Continued by Faith in the Son of God. "The life I now live in the flesh, I live by faith in the Son of God" (Galatians 2:20). This life begun by faith in Christ, is to be perpetuated by a continuous act of faith in Christ. By grace are we saved through faith, all the way long. Ours is a life of faith in the Son of God. We live by faith, not by sight. Continue in the faith, and be not moved away from this doctrine. He that endureth to the end in this steadfast attitude of unfailing trust will be saved with a full salvation. "Without faith it is impossible to please Him" (Hebrews 11:6).

CHRIST IN ME

Galatians 2:20

Paul had two distinct revelations of Jesus. While on the way to Damascus Jesus was revealed to him. This revelation slew the enmity of his heart and converted him to God. Then he writes to the Galatians that "It pleased God to reveal His Son in me" (Galatians 1:16). This second revelation proved his sanctification and fitness for service, for he adds, "That I might preach Him among the heathen." How barren and fruitless our testimony for God is until Christ in all His power and sufficiency is revealed-not only in Heaven-but in us. Then, like him, we can triumphantly say, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." If Christ is in me, then I must be-

I. A New Creature. When the "Living One" enters, then the reign of death ceases, "I am come that ye might have life." Regeneration is the incoming of the "Life of God" into the soul by the Holy Spirit. Which were born, not of blood-it is not hereditary; nor of the will of the flesh-it is not by carnal energy; nor of the will of man- it is not by intellectual power, but of God. How will evolutionists explain this? Until Christ is trusted and received there can only be death and degeneration; but when He enters into the heart and life of man how completely His Word is fulfilled: "Behold, I make all things new."

II. A Temple of God. Solemn thought. Shall God in very deed dwell with men? "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God?" (1 Corinthians 3:16). As God came down and dwelt in the temple of Solomon, so God the Holy Ghost has come to dwell in the body of each believer, to show forth the glory of His grace and power (1 Corinthians 6:19-20). The indwelling of the Spirit implies the all-cleansing of the blood. Cleansed, possessed, used. Spirit, soul, and body.

III. Governed by His Will. "Not My will, but Thine be done," was a gleam of Heaven's glory from Jesus as the temple of God. The house cannot stand that has two opposing wills within. If I recognise "Christ in me," then all my ways and purposes will be heartily submitted to Him. The earth is His footstool; but He sitteth not on a footstool, but on a throne; the centre of power and authority. The reign of Christ within is the divine remedy for unruly passions, ungovernable tempers, fruitless testimony, and the spirit-grieving life of selfishness. Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in us, as it is in Heaven.

IV. In Possession of all Sufficiency. The continual needs of the spiritual life are very great, but all fullness dwells in Him; and if He dwells in us, then we may be filled with all the fullness of God. Surely the "unsearchable riches of Christ" are sufficient to meet the daily and hourly demands of our new and God-given natures. "Christ in me." What a reservoir to draw from. Christ in me, to fill up every crevice in my being, as the waters cover the deep. Christ in me, to impel and constrain, as the steam in the engine. "God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that ye always may have all sufficiency in all things" (2 Corinthians 9:8).

V. Sinful Pleasures will have no Attraction for Me. "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." What fellowship can light have with darkness? If Christ fully satisfies the desires of the heart there will be no cravings for things contrary to His will. When Christians hanker after doubtful things, it is an evidence that Christ is not fully trusted. She that is satisfied with her lover does not seek another. The cabbage leaf cannot have the attraction for the butterfly that it had for the caterpillar. Those whose lives are hid with Christ in God will set their affections on all things above.

VI. Willing to Sacrifice for Others. If Christ is in me, then the Christ-like life will be manifested. "He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister" (Matthew 20:28). He glorified God by a life of self-sacrifice for the good of man. He did not seek popularity by striving and crying in the street (Matthew 12:19); If Christ is in us there will be no striving for the chief seats of honour; no courting the praise of man. Since Christ hath loved us, and given himself for us, ought we not, through love to the perishing, give ourselves to God for their salvation?

VII. More than Conqueror. The Christ-possessed soul will come into contact with principalities and powers, with rulers of the darkness, and with wicked spirits, in a way that others cannot understand; bat "greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world" (1 John 4:4). Let us never forget while fighting against unbelief, unrighteousness, and all the powers of darkness, that the battle is the Lord's. God, who dwelleth in you, He doeth the works. "God working in you, both to will and to do of His good pleasure" (Php_2:13). How the apostle must have realised the power of the indwelling Saviour when he exclaimed, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." By faith we, too, must reckon on His almighty power, so great things will be done in His Name. Doubting or ignoring "Christ in us" is the source of weakness, fruitlessness, and discouragement in the service of God. Believe God, that Christ by the Spirit dwells in you; reckon always in His presence, power, and fullness, and soon you will sing, "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ!"

LAW-GRACE-FAITH.

Galatians 3:6-14.

These three, but the greatest of these is "grace." The law shows us our need. Grace reveals God's provision to meet that need. Faith is the personal application of that provision to meet that need.

I. By the Law there is Condemnation.

1. It Demands a Perfect Obedience. "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the law to do them" (Galatians 3:10). "He that offendeth in one point is guilty of all." You cannot break one link without breaking the whole chain.

2. It Cannot Justify a Transgression. "No man is justified by the law in the sight of God" (Galatians 3:11). It is easy for us to justify ourselves in our own eyes, but then it is with God we have to do. This was the delusion of the Pharisees (Luke 16:15).

3. To be Trusting the Works of the Law is to be Under the Curse (v. 10). That is a withering sentence against those who are hoping to earn eternal life by their trying to obey the just demands of the law. "Whatsoever things the law saith, it saith to them that are under the law, that every mouth may be stopped" (Romans 3:19). The law would shut us up, that we might look to Christ.

II. By Grace there is Salvation. "Grace came by Jesus Christ" (John 1:17).

1. "Christ hath Redeemed us from the Curse of the Law" (v. 13). Jesus Christ hath bought us with His own Blood. We now belong to Him and are not under the law. So we are freed from its curse. One is your Master now, even Christ.

2. By "Being made a Curse for Us." "He was made under the law, that He might redeem them that were under the law" (Galatians 4:4-5). He became under the law, that He might come into contact with those who were under the curse. He could not be made a curse for us by becoming disobedient to the law. He said: "I am not come to destroy the law, but to fulfil" (Matthew 5:17). He willingly took the place and curse of those under the law, and bore their penalty when He was hanged on a tree (Galatians 3:13). He died for us, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God.

3. Christ Redeemed us "that we Might Receive the Promise of the Spirit" (Galatians 3:14). It is a great blessing for us to be delivered from the curse and dominion of the law. It is also a great honour to Christ that we should be possessed by His Spirit and made witnesses for Him. Is not this the ultimate purpose of our redemption? Saved to serve. He hath redeemed us that we might receive the promise of the Spirit. The Holy Spirit is promised to every believer in Jesus, and a promise is for faith. "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? " (Acts 19:2).

III. By Faith there is Justification. "The just shall live by faith" (Galatians 3:11). Abraham was justified by faith because he believed the promise (Galatians 3:6). This was 430 years before the law was given. The promise of eternal life, given us in Christ, which the Scripture foresaw before Abraham (Galatians 3:8) is an infinitely greater revelation of God than the law given by Moses. The law offers no promise, but is a command with a penalty for disobedience. Having no promise, then it cannot be by faith. The Gospel is a glorious God-honouring promise, therefore the appeal is to faith. "All that believe are justified from all things." "He that heareth my Word, and believeth in Him that sent Me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation" (John 5:24). As the Gospel is offered in promise, then salvation cannot be by works. Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay, but by the law of faith (Romans 3:27). THE PURPOSE OF THE INCARNATION.

Galatians 4:4-7.

I. The Time. "When the fulness of the time was come" (Galatians 4:4). There is no premature action in the Divine Providence. He does not pluck unripe fruit. The time was ripe for the coming of the long promised Seed (Genesis 3:15). The Mosaic age had come to its close. "Now once in the end of the age He appeared to put away sin" (Hebrews 9:26). The psychological moment had arrived, prophetically and politically, for the Coming of Him who was to bring to the sons of men the new age of saving grace.

II. The Person. "God sent forth His Son" (Galatians 4:4). The pre-existence of the Son is clearly implied. "In the beginning was the Word" (John 1:1). "He is before all things" (Colossians 1:17). "He only could speak of the glory which He had with the Father before the world was" (John 17:5). "It was by His Son God made the world" (Hebrews 1:2). Now by His Son He seeks to save it. What a "good-bye" among the angels when He left His Father's Home to take the form of sinful flesh, and become "God manifest in the flesh." It is humiliating to think that there are teachers so blind and so presumptuous as to say that this Christ was a product of the age. "God loved the world, and sent His only begotten Son" (John 3:16).

III. The Manner. "Made of a woman" (Galatians 4:4). With regard to His physical nature, He was born of a woman; but He was never called the Son of Mary. He was not the Son of Joseph. But He called Himself "The Son of Man," the Son of humanity, as if the blood of the whole race was in His veins. He was the Child of all ages and of all nations. "Unto us a child is born; unto us a Son is given." As a child in human form He was born; but as a Son in the likeness of His Father He was given (Isaiah 9:6). "Made under the law." No angel ever knew what it was to be under the law, yet He who was higher than the angels, humbled Himself to become a debtor to do the whole law, and to be obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross. Neither the law, nor any of His accusers, nor the prince of this world, could find anything against Him (John 14:30). Worthy is the Lamb!

IV. The Purpose. When the clock of time struck the appointed hour, God sent forth His Son.

1. To Redeem "them that were under the law" (Galatians 4:5). All were under the law, and all were under the curse (chap. Galatians 3:10), and the only way of escape from the curse was by a Divinely ordained redemption: for no man could "redeem his brother." He gave Himself as the Surety for an insolvent humanity.

2. "That we might receive the Adoption of Sons" (Galatians 4:5). This sonship is based on redemption. There are those who teach that Christ came to reveal the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. These facts are implied in the teaching of Christ, but never is it stated that He came and suffered and died to make this known. "He came to seek and to save the lost." He came to redeem us, that we might receive the adoption of sons. All men are God's creatures, but only those who have been reconciled to God by the death of His Son can have the true spirit of sonship (Galatians 4:6). Sonship implies family likeness. "All one in Christ."

3. "If a Son, then an Heir of God." "An heir of God through Christ" (Galatians 4:7). "If children, then heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ" (Romans 8:16). All who are in Christ are heirs with Him of that inheritance of "honour and glory" which is now His, being exalted to the right hand of God. This is an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and reserved in Heaven for you (1 Peter 1:3-4). "All are yours, for ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's" (1 Corinthians 3:23). "What think ye of Christ?"

SOWING AND REAPING.

Galatians 6:7-9.

In chapter 5, verses 17-25, there is a description of the works of the flesh and the fruit of the Spirit. The contrast is between rottenness and perfect soundness, between the basest and the best. The works of the flesh are separate individual acts. The fruit-not fruits-of the Spirit are all of one, but manifold in its expression. This fruit is the outcome of the energy of the indwelling Spirit, and "against such there is no law," because they are above and beyond the law. Now he speaks about sowing to the flesh and sowing to the Spirit. Here we have- I. An Unalterable Law. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap" (Galatians 6:7).

1. The Seed. The harvest will not be according to how much we know, but how much we sow. There may be a large stock of seed in the barn of the mind, but unless planted in suitable soil there shall be no profit in the time of harvest. The seeds of thought are sown in words and deeds. The "Word of God" is the incorruptible seed (1 Peter 1:23). That always brings forth fruit "after its kind."

2. The Soil. There are two classes of soil: the flesh and the Spirit. To sow to the flesh is to sow rotten seed, in a poisonous soil. Nothing can come from it but corruption. We sow to the flesh when we sow to our carnal self-pleasing, worldly lives. There is nothing in this for the honour of God, so it will rot like a lifeless carcass. To sow to the Spirit is to sow to the revealed will of God, that which is pleasing unto Him. Then the fruit of the Spirit will appear.

II. A Solemn Reminder. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked" (Galatians 6:7). No one can ever gather "grapes from thorns," or "figs from thistles," or the fruit of the Spirit from the works of the flesh. The flesh is bad, and cannot bring forth good fruit in the sight of God. The Spirit is good, and cannot bring forth evil fruit (Matthew 7:17-18). By their fruits ye shall know them.

1. Be Not Deceived. It is easy to deceive ourselves by false expectations, by trusting to appearances, by being guided by our feelings, instead of God's Word. We deceive ourselves when we think it matters not what we sow, if only we mean well. Would that be wholesome advice for a farmer? Most certainly the self-life will never produce the fruit of the Spirit.

2. God is Not Mocked. He is not going to be silenced and put to shame by men's indifference and unbelief, in regard to this great eternal law, that spiritual things can never be produced by carnal things. The unrenewed man cannot bring forth the fruits of the new creation. The flesh and the Spirit are as different as death and life. The Christless man sows to the fleshly life, and reaps corruption. The Christian sews to the Eternal Spirit and reaps life everlasting (Galatians 6:8).

III. A Word of Encouragement. "Be not weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9). We have much need of this cheerful word in these conflicting days. The season for us to reap the final harvest from all our spiritual sowing is not yet due; but the firstfruits are being gathered, when the personal character is being made rich with the graces of the Holy Spirit. Some weary themselves looking for the fruits of their labours, and get discouraged because they seem so scanty and poor. Let such seek more earnestly that the fruit of the Spirit may be manifested in their own lives, and God will look after the fruit of their labours (John 15:5)

Ephesians

CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCES.

Ephesians 1:3-14.

This is a marvellous and comprehensive statement of Divine grace and of the believers' progressive discovery of its riches. "Blessed with all spiritual blessings in the heavenlies in Christ" (Ephesians 1:3). The apostle's view is from the Divine standpoint. "Chosen in Him before the foundation of the world" (Ephesians 1:4), then following step by step down to the day that "ye heard the Gospel of your salvation" (Ephesians 1:13). It might help us to reverse this order, and take the truths as they appeal to Christian experience.

I. "Ye Heard the Word of Truth, the Gospel of your Salvation" (Ephesians 1:13). What a Gospel this is. Good news of Christ's redeeming love, that has its origin away back in the eternal purpose of the Eternal God. To hear it is to behold the open door into the fulness of blessing in the favour of a reconciled God.

II. "Ye Trusted after that ye Heard the Word of Truth" (Ephesians 1:13). It is not enough to hear, there must needs be the committal of the heart's affections and confidence. This trust is the personal appropriation of the offer God has made in Jesus Christ. "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Jesus Christ" (Galatians 3:26).

III. Ye were Sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise "After that ye believed" (Ephesians 1:13). The Holy Spirit of Promise has been given as an earnest in our hearts of all that God hath laid up in store for His children (2 Corinthians 1:22). "Ye are sealed until the day of final and perfect redemption" (Ephesians 4:30). Ye are claimed by Him and stamped with His signature.

IV. Ye have Redemption through His Blood (Ephesians 1:7). Ye were not sealed that ye might be redeemed, but because ye have been redeemed. He gave Himself for us that He might redeem us from all iniquity (Titus 2:14). He was the "Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world." Redemption is an older thought than creation, and will be the theme of the final song (Revelation 5:9).

V. Ye have the Forgiveness of Sins, and that "According to the riches of His grace" (Ephesians 1:7). Bought by the precious Blood of Christ, and forgiven according to the infinite riches of almighty grace. Oh, how marvellous is His lovingkindness to us, who deserved nothing but His righteous condemnation. He hath loved our souls out of the pit, and called us sons of God (1 John 3:1).

VI. Ye are Accepted in the Beloved (Ephesians 1:6). Yes, already accepted in Him in all our ignorance, weakness, failure, and conscious helplessness, through faith in Christ. God is pleased to wrap the trusting soul within the folds of the riches of His grace in Christ Jesus that we might be to the praise of His glory (Ephesians 1:6). How gladly and fully did the Father accept the Son when He raised Him from the dead. That is the measure of your acceptance in Him.

VII. Ye have Obtained an Inheritance. "In Him also we have obtained an inheritance" (Ephesians 1:11). Not only accepted in the Beloved, but a partner in His inheritance. "If children, then heirs: heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ; for if we suffer with Him, we may be glorified together" (Romans 8:17). This will be the inheritance of the saints in light (Colossians 1:12). "Heirs of God?" What can this mean? Jesus Christ is God's only begotten Son and Heir. The Church is the Bride of Christ. All saved by His grace and possessed by His Spirit are one with Him. The redeemed Bride shall share the glory and honour of the Bridegroom in that day when the "Marriage of the Lamb" is come.

VIII. Ye were Predestinated unto the Adoption of Children (Ephesians 1:5). Having been forgiven, accepted, and honoured as heirs, we make this great discovery that all these experiences were according to the predetermining purpose and good pleasure of His will (Ephesians 1:5). "Whom He did foreknow, He also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of His Son" (Romans 8:29-30). We in our simplicity, may have thought that when we first trusted in Christ we were adding some fresh lustre to the glory of Christ, but now we see that we were only fulfilling the promise of the Father to the Son, that He would give Him an inheritance from among the nations of the earth. Jesus said: "All that the Father giveth Me shall come to Me" (John 6:37).

IX. Ye were Chosen in Him before the Foundation of the World (Ephesians 1:4). The origin of the Church, as the body of Christ, may date as far back as, "In the beginning was the Word" (John 1:1). Pentecost was the visible manifestation of this eternal purpose (2 Thessalonians 2:13). There was nothing haphazard about the covenant God made with His Son to give Him a people for the eternal honour of His Name. Christ did not die in chance that some might believe in Him and be saved. He knew that the Father had given Him power over all flesh, that He should give eternal life to as many as the Father had given Him (John 17:2). So our Lord could say: "This is the Father's will which hath sent Me: that of all which He hath given Me, I shall lose nothing" (John 6:39). What a halo of glory is here seen on the brow of the Church of God; that it was a completed thing in the Divine purpose a thousand ages before the incarnation of His beloved Son. The Christ who loved the Church before it was born, and gave Himself for it, will, one day present it to Himself a "glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing" (Ephesians 5:27). Then shall He see of the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied. "Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy. To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory, and majesty, dominion and power for ever and ever" (Jude 1:24-25).

SEALED WITH THE HOLY SPIRIT

Ephesians 1:13

Here is Weymouth's translation of Ephesians 1:13 : "In Him you Gentiles also, after listening to the Message of the truth, the Good News of your salvation-having believed in Him-were sealed with the promised Holy Spirit."

I. The Seal is the Holy Spirit, which was promised, and is now given. His presence in our hearts is the evidence of our approval in the sight of God (2 Corinthians 1:22, R.V.). As a seal may be marred and broken, so the Holy Spirit may be "grieved" and "quenched."

II. The Sealer is God, who gives the Spirit to them that believe. "Him hath God the Father sealed" (John 6:27). He that wrought us for this very thing is God, who gave unto us the earnest of the Spirit (2 Corinthians 5:5).

III. The Sealed are they "who have heard the Gospel of salvation, and have trusted in Christ" (Ephesians 1:12-13). It is "because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Sons into your hearts" (Galatians 4:6).

IV. The Significance of the Sealing. It is usually given as the closing act of a bargain. Mohammed is called by the Moslems, "the seal of the prophets," because they believe him to be the last of that order. The sealing of the Holy Spirit speaks of-

1. SECURITY. The stone laid at the mouth of the den where Daniel was imprisoned was "sealed with the king's signet" (Daniel 6:17) that the purpose might not be changed. The sealing of the stone at the sepulchre of Jesus was also with the same intent. Those who are chosen of God, "according to His purpose," are built upon that foundation of God, which standeth sure having this seal. "The Lord knoweth them that are His." None shall pluck them out of His hand.

2. OWNERSHIP. When the Holy Spirit descended upon the Son of God there came also the voice saying, "This is My beloved Son." Those sealed by the Spirit are owned of God. All who are established by God in Christ are also anointed and sealed (2 Corinthians 1:21-22). The blood of Christ redeems to God. The Holy Spirit possesses for God. God's marked men are those whom the pleasure-loving world would avoid, those who "sigh and cry" (Ezekiel 9:4).

3. AUTHORITY. THE SEAL IS THE SIGN OF AUTHORITY. Joseph and Mordecai were both clothed with royal authority when they received the seal of the king (Genesis 41:41-42; Esther 8:8). Possessed of the king's seal, they acted in the king's name; so we possessed of the Holy Spirit are to act "in Christ's stead" (2 Corinthians 5:20). They are witnesses unto Him in whom the power of the Holy Ghost has come (Acts 1:8).

4. LIKENESS. A seal imparts its own image to the object sealed; that is, if the object is in a condition to receive and retain the image. Not even the Holy Spirit can imprint the image of Christ on a hard and stony heart. The humble and contrite heart will have God the Holy Ghost dwelling with them (Isaiah 57:15). Those sealed by the Spirit will have the mind of the Spirit, which is "the mind of Christ." The work of the Spirit with us produces the character of Christ in us. Yield yourselves unto God. He is able to work in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure. A COMPREHENSIVE PRAYER.

Ephesians 1:15, Ephesians 1:21.

The spirit in which this great prayer was offered was that of thanksgiving and abounding faith. Prayer and thanksgiving are twin sisters (Ephesians 1:16).

I. To Whom it was Offered. The manner in which men approach God is often a revelation of their spiritual character. This prayer was offered-

1. To "the God of our Lord Jesus Christ" (v. 17). He is doubtless thinking of the manifestation of His own character in the person of His Son. He is praying to the God of infinite love and super-abounding grace.

2. To "the Father of Glory." The Father of all the glory that belongs to His eternal Son, in whose face this glory was seen (John 1:14). Christ's personality was the Shekinah of God, unveiled before the eyes of men.

II. The Petitions. They are in sweet harmony with such a gracious God.

1. That He may "give unto you the Spirit of Wisdom, and Revelation, in the Knowledge of Him." This would mean a precious inheritance to any possessor. Wisdom to discern spiritual things. Fresh revelations and a growing knowledge of the glorious character of Him who is the Wisdom and the Power of God. All such gifts are for the magnifying of Jesus Christ in our hearts and lives.

2. That the Eyes of your Heart may be Enlightened (v. 18). There may be things Spiritual and Divine which we can see with our hearts, that we cannot comprehend with our minds. The affections of the heart may lay hold on what the intellect is inclined to doubt, as when doubting Thomas said, "My Lord and my God" (see 2 Corinthians 4:4-6).

III. The Expected Results. That ye may know-

1. What is the Hope of His Calling. Not what is the hope of your calling. But what is the hope of His calling. The greatness and grandeur of that hope into which the grace of God hath called us, how few can realise. "Walk worthy of God who hath called you unto His Kingdom and glory" (1 Thessalonians 2:12). Our calling as we view it, and our calling as God views it, may be vastly different things. The apostle had the Divine outlook when he said: "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus: for our citizenship is in Heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall fashion our bodies like unto His glorious body."

2. What is the Riches of the Glory of His Inheritance in the Saints? We often think of our inheritance in Christ, but here it is the riches of Christ's inheritance in the saints (Ephesians 1:18). All are His saints-or separated ones-who have been born from above, possessed by His Spirit and yielded to His will. They are Christ's peculiar treasure. The Lord's portion is His people; and in the coming ages the glorified Church will be an everlasting witness to the riches of the glory of Christ's saving grace.

3. What is the Exceeding Greatness of His Power to Usward? We believe that God is Almighty. We see His power in the creative work of His hands. But what is the greatness of His power in operation toward us, who are now His needy children? It is the same mighty power that wrought in Christ when He raised Him from the dead and set Him in the heavenlies, far above every form of power and every name that is named in this world, and also in that which is to come (Ephesians 1:20-21). This is the power at the disposal of the Church of God to-day; for it is given to Christ to be Head over all to the Church (Ephesians 1:22). "All power is given unto Me. Go ye, therefore." "Ye are complete in Him" (Colossians 2:10). THE BELIEVER'S PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

Ephesians 2:1-13.

I. Their Past. This constitutes a dark and dismal review. They were-

1. Without Life. "Ye were dead in trespasses and sins." Spiritually dead to God, and buried in graves of their making-"trespasses and sins." No response to all the overtures of Divine mercy in Christ Jesus. "To be carnally minded is death."

2. Without Strength. "Ye walked according to the course of this world" (Ephesians 2:2). Carried away by the current of the world's influences, and, like a dead fish in the stream, without any power of resistance.

3. Without Christ. "At that time ye were without Christ" (Ephesians 2:12). All that Christ now stands for in our personal experience and future hopes, at that time had no existence in our lives. Here see the poverty and desolation of unregenerate souls. Destitute, afflicted, tormented.

4. Without Promise. Strangers from the covenants of promise (Ephesians 2:12). It is said that there are thirty thousand promises in God's Book, but not one for the man whose mind is at enmity with God. There are "exceeding great and precious promises," but the worldly, carnal, Christless soul sees no value in them.

5. Without Hope. "Having no hope" (Ephesians 2:12). Being without a promise, they are without hope. This is God's judgment of their case: but it is not theirs. Jesus Christ said: "No man cometh unto the Father but by me" (John 14:6). But at that time we were "without Christ," and so could not come to the Father in His own appointed way. "He that believeth not is condemned already." Without hope.

6. Without God in the World. Without God, in a world teeming with evidences of His wisdom and power. In the world, loved by God, where God's own Son lived, loved, and died to save sinners (John 3:16). Yes, such were some of us, "but ye are washed."

II. Their Present. But now in Christ Jesus. What a change!

1. Ye are Quickened (Ephesians 2:1). The Holy Spirit of God hath breathed into you the breath of a new life. Your eyes have been opened to see the mysteries and realities of eternal things. The darkness is past and the true Light now shineth. The clouded promises now appears like stars of the first magnitude. Christ has become an overshadowing reality.

2. Ye are Made Nigh. "Now made nigh by the Blood of Christ" (Ephesians 2:13). Christ has been trusted, and He who died, the Just for the unjust, has brought us to God (1 Peter 3:18). The sins that separated have been put away. We have now the fellowship of the reconciled.

3. Ye are Raised together with Christ (Ephesians 2:6). In the purpose of God we were one with Him in the Cross. Now we share His resurrection life and power. "He died for our sins, but He rose again for our justification."

4. Ye are Seated together with Him in the heavenlies (Ephesians 2:6). His last word on earth was, "It is finished," then He ascended to the Father's right hand and sat down. Our blessed privilege now is to rest with Him in the work accomplished for us.

5. Ye are His Workmanship. It is all His doing. Through faith we are saved by grace, that not of ourselves, it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure" (Php_2:13).

III. Their Future. "That in the ages to come He might shew the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus" (Ephesians 2:7). In this present age we have seen much of God's kindness toward us through Christ Jesus in His saving, keeping, satisfying fulness. But in the age to come we shall be witnesses of the glory that was to follow. When the Lord Himself shall appear, and when all His redeemed shall be caught up together to meet Him and to be glorified together with Him as "heirs of God," we shall then have entered into our glorious inheritance (Romans 8:17-19, Luke 22:28-30). THE CHURCH AS A NEW MAN.

Ephesians 2:14-22.

In by-gone ages the Church's character "was not made known unto the sons of men" (chap. Ephesians 3:5). It was "a mystery hid in God" (chap. Ephesians 3:9). In all ages God had His Holy ones; but the Church as a new man, a new created Body of Christ, through which the manifold wisdom of God was to be make known (chap. Ephesians 3:10) had not yet been revealed. This is the theme before us now.

I. The Divine Plan. This was to make in Himself of twain (Jew and Gentile) one new man, one new Body, so making peace (Ephesians 2:15). This new Body was to be-

1. Composed of Jew and Gentile. These terms represent the whole human race. He that is not a Jew is a Gentile, whatever be the colour of his skin or the language he may speak. The Church is to be composed of "called out" ones from every nation and people under the heavens.

2. Reconciled One to Another. No more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens and of the household of God (Ephesians 2:19). "All one in Christ Jesus." In being brought to God, each member is to be brought into sympathy and fellowship with one another. They all belong to the "household of faith" (Galatians 6:10).

3. Reconciled to God. "That He might reconcile both unto God in one body" (Ephesians 2:16). Before God there is now neither Jew nor Gentile, but one body, made nigh by the Blood of Christ (Ephesians 2:13). All are saved by grace. This "new man" is "accepted in the Beloved" for the Head of this new creation is Christ Himself.

II. The Divine Preparation. Before this gracious purpose of God could be accomplished a great work had to be done, a work that God only could do. There was-

1. A Wall of Partition to be Broken Down. "He hath broken down the middle wall of partition" (Ephesians 2:14). In the temple worship the Gentile court was cut off from the inner court by a separating wall or partition. But in this new creation in Christ all such prejudice, sectarianism, and every dividing thing is to be broken down. But men are still building partition walls in their priestly pride, religious bigotry, and pagan superstitions; but, thank God, that in Christ all are done away, "broken down."

2. Enmity to be Slain. "He hath reconciled both unto God by the Cross, having slain the enmity thereby" (Ephesians 2:16). The Cross of Christ is God's mighty weapon for breaking down barriers between individuals and nations, between human hearts and a Holy God. The greatest of all partition walls is the enmity of the carnal mind (Romans 8:7). This enmity cannot be cured, it must be slain; and the humbling and melting vision of Christ crucified for our own sins can slay it.

3. Both Must be Possessed by the Same Spirit. "Through Him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father" (Ephesians 2:18). This union between Jew and Gentile is not a mere expediency for a temporary end. It is a vital and eternal work of God's grace. One Spirit animates the whole body. "For by one Spirit are we all baptised into one body, whether we be Jew or Gentile, bond or free; and have all been made to drink into one Spirit" (1 Corinthians 12:13). Christ is the Fountain Head of this Spirit-life that flows through every member of the body. "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink" (John 7:37).

III. The Divine Purpose is to have this "new man" as a fixed abode of God through the Spirit (Ephesians 2:22, Weymouth trans.). Does that mean that in the coming age the Church will be the fixed abode of the Holy Spirit for the manifestation of the glory of Christ? "He shall abide with you for ever."

1. All Built on the One Foundation. Built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief corner stone (Ephesians 2:20). The prophets as well as the apostles built upon the truth revealed, whether by the Holy Spirit or by Christ Himself (Hebrews 1:1-2). In both instances Jesus Christ Himself was the chief corner stone, binding the whole spiritual fabric as one to Himself. The strength and stability of the structure depends on the presence and position of the "Chief Corner Stone" (Matthew 21:42).

2. All Fitly Framed Together. "In Him all the building is fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord" (Ephesians 2:21). In Christ every separate believer is depending on Him as the foundation of all their hopes, but they are also individually to be "fitly framed together" with their local fellow-believers. There is to be "no schism in the body." Stones which do not fit with each other make an untrustworthy or uncomely structure. Christians have often rained their testimony by being out of harmony with their brethren. The Church is a growing concern, "growing unto an holy temple in the Lord."

3. All Uniting to Make a Fixed Abode for God through the Spirit (v. 22). When this holy temple in the Lord will be ready as a fixed abode for Him to whom it belongs, no tongue of angel or pen of scribe can tell. But the day will come when the last addition will be made, and when the top stone will be put on, with "shoutings of Grace, Grace, unto it" (Zechariah 4:7). Truly every stone in the building is a monument of the grace of God through Christ Jesus. Thus this "new man," full-grown and glorified, will become the temple of the Lord, and a witness to the triumph of Christ's sacrifice in the kingdom that is to come. Well may we pray: "Thy Kingdom Come."

BELIEVERS' POSSIBILITIES.

Ephesians 3:14-21.

"For this cause I bow my knees." This was no mere formal prayer. Paul deeply realised the immense importance of the petitions he was about to offer. He knew that as Christians these experiences were needed.

I. What these Blessings Were. He prayed that they may have-

1. Spiritual Power. "Strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man" (Ephesians 3:16). The might of the Holy Spirit in the inner man is the supreme need of every Christian in our own day. Herein lies the secret of our real influence for God. This power He is ready to give to the faint (Isaiah 40:29-31).

2. The Indwelling Presence. "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith" (Ephesians 3:17). There can be no spiritual power where Christ is not honoured. If by faith Christ dwells in us, then the Spirit will take the things that are Christ's and show them through us. This indwelling is assured by an unfailing faith in Him.

3. Stability of Character. "Ye being rooted and grounded in love" (Ephesians 3:17). The downward growth of the roots of our being are to be in the rich, fruitful soil of God's love, and the upward growth of the building of character is to be based also in love. "Rooted and built up in Him, and established in the faith" (Colossians 2:7).

4. Enlarged Comprehension. "That ye may be able to comprehend with all saints... and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge" (Ephesians 3:19). It will take the comprehension of "all saints" in every age to find out the breadth, length, depth, and height of that love of Christ which in itself passeth knowledge. It is a great discovery to find out the immeasurable magnitude of that love wherewith Christ hath loved us. And who shall separate us from that love? (Romans 8:35).

5. Complete and Abiding Satisfaction. "That ye might be filled with all the fulness of God" (Ephesians 3:19). Filled out of this fathomless fulness of God. "That ye might be complete in accordance with God's own standard of completeness (Weymouth). Already "from His fulness have all we received, and grace upon grace" (John 1:16). But, Lord, increase our faith, that we may rise to the Divine standard of fulness.

II. The Unfailing Source. "Now unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all we ask or think" (Ephesians 3:20). These were great requests, but the apostle knew that he was coming to a great and gracious God. He knew and believed what we so easily forget, that "He that spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things" (Romans 8:32). If this princely truth reigned over our prayers, how different many of them would be. God has given us His Son, this is the proof and pledge that He will withhold no good thing from those that love Him and ask Him. But the measure of our receiving is "according to the power that worketh in us" (Ephesians 3:20). "According to your faith." This power worked mightily in the apostle, and mighty things were done (see Heb. 11).

III. The Measure of God's Giving. "According to the riches of His glory" (Ephesians 3:16). We think that we know something of "the riches of His grace" (Ephesians 1:7), but what can we know of the "riches of His glory?" In dealing with His pleading servants, it is the larger measure of His eternal glory that He uses, according to the wealth of His risen and glorified position. If in His poverty He could so bless and enrich needy souls, how much more now, since He has entered into the inheritance of His Father's glory. "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and on earth." Believest thou this? "Ask, and ye shall receive." "He giveth liberally and upbraideth not."

CHARACTER AND CONDUCT.

Ephesians 4:17-32.

As those who have learned of Christ (Ephesians 4:20), the apostle exhorts the Ephesian brethren that their manner of walk must be different from "other Gentiles," who walk in the "vanity of their mind," with the understanding darkened and "alienated from the life of God," because of ignorance and blindness of heart (Ephesians 4:17-19). What a sad picture this is of the unrenewed man. "Such were some of us, but ye are washed." The difference grace makes must be apparent in character and conduct. To this Christ-honouring end he calls upon them and us to-

I. Put Off the Old Man (Ephesians 4:22). This old man is just the same age as yourself. You cannot put him off like an old coat, nor can you put him off with promises. It is the natural carnal mind, whose motto was "Me first"-the self-seeking, self-praising, self-satisfying spirit. It is the old, corrupt heart, that loved the things that dishonoured the Christ. Shake him off as you would a poisonous viper! Let him be crucified (Romans 6:6).

II. Put on the New Man. This new man is after the image of God in righteousness and true wholeness (Ephesians 4:24). This new man is the "second man, the Lord from Heaven." "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the old man" (Romans 13:14). To put on Christ is to put on His Spirit and the yoke of His will. When He has His rightful place in the heart and life there is no room for any other. "Jesus must reign."

III. Put Away all Unreality. Every deceptive and untruthful thing (Ephesians 4:25). Does it seem strange to be warning those who have been made anew after the likeness of Christ, of lying, anger, and stealing? We all know that the thoughts of the heart, as well as the words of the tongue, often betray. In their most incipient stage these things are to be hated and disowned.

IV. Give No Place to the Devil (Ephesians 4:27). The Devil is always in search of a place in our lives. He knows that if he can but get his poison into the blood, that the whole man will be affected. Paul forgave others, "lest Satan should get an advantage of us" (2 Corinthians 2:10-11). The hasty temper and the unforgiving mood gives Satan a great advantage. "Resist the Devil and he will flee from you."

V. Let your communications be free from corruption, and Good for Edifying (Ephesians 4:29). When conversation degenerates into mere gossip, or a display of repartee, there is little thought of obeying this injunction of making it a "ministry of grace to the hearers." Many a God-given opportunity has been utterly lost by the frivolous mood displayed at times by God's servants in the presence of quiet, thoughtful, anxious souls (Colossians 4:6).

VI. Grieve not the Holy Spirit. This is an awful possibility on the part of a Christian worker. He may be grieved by ignoring His presence, by unholy talk and temper which falsifies His character, by resisting His teaching, by depending on our own wisdom and strength. A grieved Spirit means the loss of the enjoyment of God's love, the loss of communion which is by the Holy Spirit, the loss of power for service (Isaiah 63:10). Grieve Him not, for by the Holy Spirit are ye sealed and secured unto the day of Christ's final redemption (Ephesians 4:30).

VII. Be Kind and Tender-hearted. "Forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you" (Ephesians 4:32). Be kind, tender-hearted, forgiving one another for Christ's sake: even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you. This measure is "until seventy times seven" (Matthew 18:22). BE FILLED WITH THE SPIRIT.

Ephesians 5:16-18.

To "redeem the time" (Ephesians 5:16) and to "understand what the will of the Lord is" (Ephesians 5:17), we must be "filled with the Spirit." God does not now thunder from a mount or send prophets with new messages. The last of the prophets was His Son from Heaven, and His last great gift for this age is the Holy Spirit, who reveals the will of God and inspires with power to do it.

I. A Striking Contrast. "Be not drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Spirit." A contrast between being drunk and Spirit-filled. Between man's most debasing vice and God's holiest and highest virtue. Between that which genders mockery and self-deception and that which gives Divine illumination. Between that which gives license to lust and shame and that which gives liberty and power in God's service. The one means waste and loss of self-control, the other means new gifts and self-renewal. The one leads to vain imaginations and regretful deeds, the other guides into truth and makes strong to do the will of God. "Wine is a mocker." The Holy Spirit is the great Teacher come from God to take the place of the Lord Jesus Christ.

II. A Needful Exhortation. "Be filled with the Spirit." This implies-

1. That the Holy Spirit has been Given, and that as surely as God gave His Son, Pentecost is a witness to that (Acts 2:1-4). Just as there is an ample provision in the Sacrifice of Christ to meet all our needs as sinners in the sight of God, so there is sufficiency in the Holy Spirit to meet our need as sons and servants of God in the presence of men.

2. Every Believer has been Influenced by the Spirit. It was He who first convinced of sin (John 16:8). It was He who gave the first quickening touch to our spiritually dead souls (Ephesians 2:1), and since we first trusted in Christ has been in many ways helping, guiding into truth, and revealing the things of Christ to our lagging hearts. "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His." But there is something more than this-

3. Every Believer should be Filled with the Spirit. When the Spirit was first poured out, He rested upon each of them, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost (Acts 2:3-4). Again, after prayer, we read that all assembled together were filled with the Holy Ghost (Acts 4:31). While Peter yet spake, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word (Acts 10:44). It is perfectly clear that the apostles, at the beginning of their ministry, were taught by the providence of God that every believer in the risen Lord was to be, or might be, filled with the Spirit. Paul's first question to the Ephesian disciples was: "Did ye receive the Holy Spirit when ye believed?" (Acts 19:2). There are many young disciples to-day that could give the same answer they gave: "We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost to be received." "By grace are ye saved," but by the Holy Spirit are ye to be filled. This filling is for you. Seek it.

III. A Powerful Inducement to seek this filling is presented to us in the peaceful, faithful, and fruitful lives of those who were filled with the Spirit in Bible and in modern times. We can only note some of the more prominent characteristics.

1. A Deep Sense of Personal Unworthiness. The more of the Spirit the less of self. "Not I, but Christ." They know that apart from Him-nothing.

2. A Hunger for the Word of God. When the Spirit has full control within, and reveals afresh the things of Christ, there is a growing love and reverence for the living Book.

3. A Quickened Realisation of the Presence of God. There are wonderful sights and sounds in nature, which cannot be seen nor heard without some special instrumentality. There are more wonderful things in the spiritual sphere, that the natural eye or ear hath never seen or heard, but God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit (1 Corinthians 2:9-10). We know Him.

4. A Desire for, and a Delight in, Prayer. Prayer now means having fellowship with God in our need. There is no misgivings as to God's Personal interest in His trusting child. His prayers are mingled with notes of thanksgiving and heart-felt praise.

5. A Yearning for the Salvation of Others. Paul wept over those who were the enemies of the Cross of Christ (Php_3:18). Spiritual things have become so vital and precious that compassion and pity have been intensified for those who are out of the way. The love of Christ constraineth.

6. A More Real Conflict with Spiritual Enemies. Hitherto we were but onlookers and students of spiritual forces, but now we are right in the arena of battle, "wrestling against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of darkness and wickedness in high places" (Ephesians 6:12), and know the power of the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God.

7. A More Christ-like Attitude in the Face of Opposition. When misunderstood and misrepresented (Acts 2:13), not giving railing for railing, but contrariwise, praying for them that despitefully use you, as Christ and Stephen prayed: "Father, forgive them." To be filled with the Spirit is to be filled with the knowledge of His will and a desire to please Him.

IV. What Doth Hinder? There is no hindrance on the Divine side. He says: "Be filled with the Spirit." Then, if we are not, the hindrance must be in us. Is it ignorance of its possibility and need? Is it unbelief in its reality? It may be indifference as to its vital importance, or it may be love of the world and sheer self-satisfaction. Whatever it is, we are responsible for not being filled with the Spirit. Then, for the sake of Jesus Christ, and your own eternal honour, "Be filled with the Spirit." "If ye, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him" (Luke 11:13). "If thou knewest the gift of God thou wouldst have asked of Him" (John 4:10).

CHRIST AND THE CHURCH.

Ephesians 5:21-33.

The union brought about by a truly Christian marriage is here used by the apostle as a metaphor of that spiritual union between Christ and His Church. Let us examine- I. The Relationship of Christ to the Church.

1. It is that of a Lover. "Christ loved the Church" (Ephesians 5:25). When did this love begin? He loved it before it was born, as the promised gift of the Father. His love is an abiding benediction, a love that passeth knowledge (chap. Ephesians 3:19).

2. It is that of a Redeemer. "He gave Himself for it" (Ephesians 5:25). Like a true lover, He gives Himself first. He has bought the Church for Himself by the ransom of His own precious Blood (Ephesians 1:7). "Ye are not your own."

3. It is that of a Husband. "The husband is head of the wife, even as Christ is the Head of the Church" (Ephesians 5:23). The Head is the seat of authority. With the Head also rests the responsibility of supplying the needs of the wife- the Church. Why, then, for the work of the Head, do we constantly appeal to the wife for the means to carry on? If we are doing the Lord's work we ought to do it in the Lord's way, by trusting Him who is "able to supply all our need" (Php_4:19).

4. It is that of a Sanctifier. "That He might sanctify and cleanse her with the washing by His Word" (Ephesians 5:26). He sanctifies, or separates, her for Himself. He found her in rags and wretchedness, but He looked on her in love and spread His skirts of mercy over her. He washed and clothed her with broidered work. He anointed her and decked her with ornaments and jewels, and made her perfect with the comeliness He put upon her (Ezekiel 16:5-14). It is all His doing. Praise His Name.

5. It is that of a Satisfier. "He nourisheth and cherisheth it" (Ephesians 5:29). No mother was ever more careful over her child than the Lord is over His Church. He nourisheth her with the milk of His Word, and fondles her in the arms of His love (John 17:14-15). He satisfies with good things by His comforting Spirit (John 16:13-14).

6. It is that of a Bridegroom. He longs to "present it to Himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing" (Ephesians 5:27). A Bride without blemish in His eyes. Seeing that this is His ultimate purpose concerning all His own, should we not expect Him to work out that which is pleasing to Him now in each individual life? Let us ever remember that we are always in the hands of Him who is able to keep us from falling, and to present us faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy (Jude 1:24-25). That will be the happy day of the "Marriage of the Lamb."

II. The Relationship of the Church to Christ. It is that of-

1. Saved Ones. "He is the Saviour of the body" (Ephesians 5:23). It can never be forgotten that the Church is as a brand plucked out of the fire.

2. Members of His Body, of His flesh, and of His bones (Ephesians 5:30). So close is the relationship that "they two shall be one flesh" (Ephesians 5:31) The members of the body are the operators on behalf of the Head (Romans 12:5).

3. Submission. "Therefore the Church is subject unto Christ" (Ephesians 5:24). The members of the body that is not subject to the control of the Head is either separated or paralyzed.

4. Reverence. "The wife see that she reverence her husband" (Ephesians 5:33). We reverence our Lord when we believe His Word, love His will, and adore His Holy Name. This is the happy slavery of love. "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive honour." THE CHRISTIAN'S ARMOUR

Ephesians 6:10-20

Bunyan was wise in sending his Pilgrims into the armoury immediately after supper. As soon as we are brought into communion with God, we need to be fitted for the fight of faith. All who are in the Kingdom of God's dear Son have got the forces of the kingdom of Satan against them, so they need to be panoplied with the whole armour of God. Let us look at-

I. The Enemy. "Not flesh and blood, but principalities, powers, world rulers, spiritual hosts of wickedness" (Ephesians 6:12, R.V.). All the authorities of Hell and all the rulers of the darkness of this world, who are in league with the Devil, are opposed to the progress of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. Not flesh and blood, but that wicked spirit that works in the children of disobedience, using flesh and blood as an instrumentality (Ephesians 2:2). Our warfare is not so much with mortal beings as with the immortal powers of evil that rule in their lives, and that come to us in the form of the "wiles of the Devil." These wiles are very varied, and are adapted to suit the different tendencies of the age or the individual. If he fails with his wiles he will surely try his "fiery darts" (Ephesians 6:16). These may come as unclean thoughts shot into the mind like ignited arrows from the pit. Truly, in the face of such a mighty and invisible foe we need the whole armour of God.

II. The Armour. Our putting on of the armour of God simply means being fortified against all the powers of evil by those virtues or moral excellences by which the Son of God was able to withstand all the temptations of the Devil (Colossians 2:15). This armour consists of six parts-

1. THE GIRDLE OF TRUTH. The loins of the mind are to be girded with the truth as it is in Jesus Christ, and so made strong to think and act for Him. This truth is "light from Heaven," which scatters all the darkness of doubt and fear, and enables one to speak out what they do know, and not what they don't know, like those who don the girdle of doubt.

2. THE BREASTPLATE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS. A conscience void of offence toward God and men, is that rightness which is as a protecting breastplate for the peace and joy of the heart. This breastplate Christ constantly wore, because He always delighted to do the will of His Father.

3. THE SHOES OF PREPAREDNESS. The "Gospel of peace" provides for our feet the shoes of preparedness, so that we should be always ready to do His will and to run in the way of His commandments. Those who have received the Gospel of peace should have swift feet to publish it (Isaiah 52:7).

4. THE SHIELD OF FAITH. The Roman shield was so large that the soldier could hide himself completely behind it, thus it was above or over all. This was the shield behind which David sheltered when he faced the terrible Goliath. This piece of armour signifies that unstaggered confidence in God which always overcomes (1 John 5:4).

5. THE HELMET OF SALVATION. The assurance of salvation is a mighty protection for the head in these days when there is so much false teaching all about us. The strength of this helmet lies in the fact that God Himself is our Salvation. This piece, like the others, is the gift of God, so we are to take it.

6. THE SWORD OF THE SPIRIT. The sword of the Spirit is the Word of God, not the thoughts or opinions of men. Jesus Christ did not fail to use the written Word when assaulted by the arch-enemy of God and man (Matthew 4:4). There be many in our days that seem at a loss to know where to find this sword now; the Devil has so blinded their minds that they imagine that the "Word of God" has been buried in a heap of ancient rubbish, and so they go on fighting with the rotten sticks of their own theories. Nothing but failure and shame can follow where the Word of God is not preached, because the Holy Spirit of God, the author of life and blessing, can use no other weapon. It is the sword of the Spirit.

III. The Warfare. The attitudes to be maintained in this conflict are-

1. STANDING. "That we may be able to stand." Having been justified freely by His grace, and accepted in the Beloved, we have got a blessed standing, from which the great enemy of souls is ever seeking to drive us. The stratagem of the Devil is to get in between bur souls and God, that the source of our spiritual supply may be cut off."

2. WRESTLING. "We wrestle against principalities," etc. In this warfare we cannot hide ourselves in the host. Wrestling is a personal conflict, an individual contact with the enemy. By putting on the whole armour of God every single Christian is to overcome by faith in Him who is able always to give the victory.

3. PRAYING AND WATCHING. This will not only keep the armour bright, but will keep it on. Polished armour hanging up in the hall of pur creed will not save us in the day of battle. A praying heart and watchful eyes will never be taken unawares by the scouts of the kingdom of Satan. Daniel prayed three times a day, and, in spite of the trap carefully set by his enemies, he triumphed. This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. THE WARRIOR'S ENEMY.

Ephesians 6:11, Ephesians 6:12.

(For Notes on "The Whole Armour of God," see Vol. IX, page 179.) Here we shall briefly look at "Your Adversary the Devil." The Christian's great enemy is "not flesh and blood" (Ephesians 6:12). Not even human nature, as such, but a real spiritual and powerful personality. "Called the Devil and Satan" (Revelation 12:9).

I. His Character. There is but one Devil, or Satan, but there are many "demons." "The Devil and his angels." He has had long experience in sinning. "The Devil sinneth from the beginning." He is great. Called "the Son of the Morning" (Isaiah 14:12). He is also called a "lion" for strength, a "dragon" for fierceness, the "old serpent" for subtilty. Even our Lord called him "the prince of this world." When he led the revolt in Heaven it was the great Archangel Michael who fought against him (Revelation 12:7). This is the passage we have to deal with: Who is the "accuser of the brethren" (Revelation 12:10).

II. His Sphere. When cast down from Heaven, he seems to have pitched his camp in the aerial regions near this world, and became "the prince of the power of the air," and the god of this age (2 Corinthians 4:4), and "the spirit that now worketh in the Children of disobedience" (Ephesians 2:2). Although his stronghold is spiritual wickedness in high places, he is found "going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it" (Job 2:2),

III. His Resources. These are difficult to define. But when we take our "stand against the wiles of the Devil" (Ephesians 6:11) we are in conflict with the despotisms, the empires, the forces that control and govern this dark world-the spiritual hosts of evil arrayed against us in the heavenly warfare (Weymouth). But, thank God "greater is He that is for us."

IV. His Methods. We are not to be "ignorant of his devices," lest he should get an advantage of us (2 Corinthians 2:11). His devices are varied-

1. He tries "Wiles" (Ephesians 6:11). Something attractive, but deceptive and ensnaring. This was his method with Christ in His great temptation.

2. He tries "Fiery Darts" (Ephesians 6:16). Poisoned tipped arrows, that strike as suddenly as an unclean thought or a dishonest and evil imagination. If you do not love such, but hate them, you need not worry over them. Disown them.

3. He tries the Prolonged Struggle, or "wrestling." "We wrestle against the rulers of darkness, against spiritual wickedness" (Ephesians 6:12). The conflict may be severe, but resist the Devil and he will flee from you.

V. His Subjects are not those who are warring against him, but those who are his willing, because blinded, slaves (Ephesians 2:2; 2 Corinthians 4:4). They live in his "kingdom of darkness," being captured by his powers, his signs, and lying wonders (2 Thessalonians 2:9). They are in bondage to a great delusion. This is the condition into which sin and unbelief had brought us, and where all unsaved ones now are. May the love of Christ constrain us to seek their deliverance.

VI. His Victors. Our Lord Jesus Christ, the stronger One, has come into the Devil's dominion, and has overcome him, and spoiled him of his goods (Luke 11:21-22). By His life and death, and triumphant resurrection, He has spoiled principalities and powers. He shook them off, and boldly displayed them as His conquests, when by His Cross He triumphed over them (Colossians 2:15). The Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the Devil, even him that had the power of death (Hebrews 2:14). Now we who believe in Him have been delivered from the power and dominion of Satan, and translated into the Kingdom of God's dear Son (Colossians 1:13). We know that we have passed from death into life (John 5:24), and that the darkness is passed, and the true light now shineth (John 2:8). "Thanks be to God, who hath given us the victory" (Revelation 12:11). THE SELF-HUMBLED BUT GOD-EXALTED CHRIST.

Php_2:5-11.

I. His Humiliation. The pre-incarnate position and glory of the Lord Jesus Christ is frequently referred to in the Scriptures. "He was in the form of God, and thought it not dishonouring to claim equality with God" (Php_2:6). "In the beginning was the word... and the Word was God" (John 1:1). He is before all things (Colossians 1:17). It was He who "laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the works of His hands" (Hebrews 1:10). This is He who was "the Lamb slain before the foundation of the world" (Revelation 13:8). This is He who-

1. Made Himself of No Reputation (Php_2:7). Think of the reputation He had in the Heavens, before the world was, and how much He stripped Himself off when He appeared amongst men to be despised and rejected. "A man of sorrows, acquainted with grief."

2. Took Upon Him the Form of a Servant. He who was the Creator of the ends of the earth, whom angels delighted to serve and adore, who was in the form of God, takes the form of a servant, that He might bring blessing to a rebel world (Luke 22:27).

3. Was Made in the Likeness of Men. He Himself took part of the same flesh and blood, for it behoved Him to be made like unto His brethren (Hebrews 2:14-17). "The Son of Man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give" (Matthew 20:28). He who was the "express image of the invisible God" takes upon Him the likeness of a sinful humanity.

4. Became Obedient unto Death (Php_2:8). Obedient! but not to the clamoring of a proud, sin-blinded race, but to the will of His Father. "I delight to do Thy will, O my God" (John 6:38). Nothing on earth or in Hell could turn Him aside from His great and gracious purpose. "He set His face like a flint."

5. Became obedient Even unto the Death of the Cross (Php_2:8). From our natural standpoint it is simply appalling to think of the Eternal and Beloved Son of God submitting to be nailed to a Cross by those whom He lovingly sought to save. The utter unworthiness and guilt of men could never make itself more hideous before the eye of Heaven. But yet the infinite grace of God is hereby revealed. He was giving "Himself a ransom for us all." The Just One was willingly suffering for the unjust, that He might bring us to God (Galatians 3:13).

II. His Exaltation. "Wherefore God hath highly exalted Him" (Php_2:9). Because of His voluntary humility and suffering, in the fulfilling of His Father's purpose, He hath highly exalted Him as the Son of Man, as the Eternal Son of God. He could not be exalted above His pre-natal position, "as One with the Father" (John 14:9). There was given unto Him-

1. A Pre-eminent Name. "A Name which is above every name" (Php_2:9). The Name which is for ever above every name is "Jehovah." Now the Man, Christ Jesus, who became a "Man of Sorrows," has been lifted up above every name that is named. He who was crowned with the thorns of shame for us is now crowned with glory and honour (Hebrews 2:9) as our Representative.

2. Universal Authority. At the Name of Jesus every being in Heaven and on earth, and in the under world shall yet bow (Php_2:10) "All power is given unto Him in Heaven and on earth" (Matthew 28:18). He who now bears the eternal stigma of the Cross upon His hands and feet, will "subdue all things unto Himself," not only in this world, but also in that which is to come (Ephesians 1:20-21).

3. Universal Worship. "Every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father" (Php_2:11). It was God the Father who sent His Son to seek and save the lost, and He shall be honoured and satisfied when a whole redeemed world shall confess Jesus as Lord. For He shall be Lord both of the dead and the living (Romans 14:9). Now we see Jesus, who tasted death for every man, crowned with glory and honour. "Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever. Amen." "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

HOLY ASPIRATIONS.

Php_3:7-14.

When Paul met the Lord on his way to Damascus (Acts 9) his whole being was revolutionised. His eyes being opened, he discovered that in Him he had found a limitless store of spiritual wealth, for which he counted everything else as worthless (Php_3:7). We have here some of the experiences which his holy ambition aimed at. May our own hearts also be stirred up to seek them.

I. That I may Win Christ (Php_3:8). Christ had already won him (Acts 9). But the apostle realised that although he was now in the land of promise, there was still much land to be possessed. He evidently wished to find Him as a daily prize. He was determined not to know anything among them but Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 2:2).

II. That I might Know Him (Php_3:10). There are, of course, many degrees in knowledge. All Christians know Him whom to know is life eternal. But the Christ some saintly men and women know is a much greater Christ than many have ever experienced. It is the same Jesus, but they have a much deeper and more intimate knowledge of His character and capabilities. It will take all eternity to know Him as He really is. We are to "grow in grace," but also "in the knowledge of Hint."

III. That I may be Found in Him (Php_3:9). It is an abiding victory for all those whose faith and works are found in Him. If He abides in us we shall be found in Him (John 15:4), and at last, when the time of our departure is at hand, it will be a joy to us, an honour to Christ, and glory to God, when He finds us enveloped in the worthiness of His own Son. To be found in Him will be to find us blameless and complete (Romans 8:1).

IV. That I Might Know the Power of His Resurrection (Php_3:10). There is no doubt as to the fact of Christ's resurrection. He had seen Him, and had such exultant faith in Him, that he longed for the power that raised Jesus from the dead, that the risen life of Jesus might be manifested in his mortal flesh (2 Corinthians 4:10). If we have been crucified with Christ, then are we raised together with Him. The power of His resurrection is the power of His life-giving Spirit. The vitality of the Gospel has its source in His resurrection.

V. That I may Know the Fellowship of His Sufferings (Php_3:10). With the sufferings of Christ as our atoning Substitute, we can have no fellowship. He was alone, and will be for ever alone in that, but in suffering because of His holy, God-honouring devotion to His Father's will, He hath left us an example, that we should follow His steps; for "if any man will live Godly he must suffer" (2 Timothy 3:12). We cannot know the fellowship of His sufferings unless we are possessed by the same Spirit and faithfully serving in the same cause. This fellowship demands a consecrated life, a life willing to be "made conformable unto His death."

VI. That I Might Attain unto the Resurrection from Among the Dead (Php_3:11). At the coming of our Lord the dead in Christ shall rise first (1 Corinthians 15:20). This is called "the first resurrection." "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection, for they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with Him a thousand years" (Revelation 20:5-6). Doubtless this is the truth the apostle refers to here in being raised from among the dead. (The rest of the dead lived not till the Millennial reign had closed.) He desired to attain a place of honour and service in the coming Kingdom of his Lord; and certainly he will, for he "fought the fight and finished the course," he kept the faith and expected the crown (2 Timothy 4:7). "Seek those things which are above."

VII. That I may Apprehend that for which also I am Apprehended (Php_3:12). It was Jesus Christ who suddenly apprehended him, while on a persecuting expedition (Acts 9). He still yearns to know and to carry out to completion the whole purpose of His Lord in saving him. Many there are who are satisfied just because they are saved from the penalty of sin. They have no concern as to the work the Lord has saved them to do. Saul was very practical and reasonable, for as soon as he was converted he said: "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do," and he made it his life's business to do that will. "To me to live is Christ" is the faithful Christian's motto.

VIII. That I might Gain the Prize of the High Galling of God in Christ Jesus (Php_3:14). The higher the calling the greater is the reward. To be "called of God," and that "in Christ Jesus," is the greatest honour Heaven can bestow upon a sinful man. What can the prize of this heavenly calling be? It must be perfectly consistent with the glory of the calling. That surely means a perfected character, not only in the world to come, but here and now, as the reward of true-hearted obedience (1 Peter 5:10). "Let us therefore as many as be perfect, be thus minded" (Php_3:15).

For they shall know who follow on to know the Lord (Hosea 6:3). THE BELIEVER'S POSITION, EXPECTATION, AND PREPARATION.

Php_3:20-21; Php_4:5, Php_4:6.

I. Their Position. Their "citizenship is in Heaven" (Php_3:20). They have been born from above, and have their home in the City of God So they have "no continuing city" here, but they look for that city whose "Builder and Maker is God" (Hebrews 11:10). They know that in their Father's house there are many rooms, and that a place is prepared for them there (John 14:1-2). Knowing that they are citizens of a better country, they love not the world nor the things of this world, but are loyal to Him who rules in the "Heavenly Jerusalem."

II. Their Expectation. The expectations of the believer are as great as the promises of God.

1. They expect that Christ will Come Again. "They eagerly look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ" (Php_3:20). They believe that He will appear the second time without a sin-offering unto a perfected salvation (Hebrews 9:28). They are obedient to His Word in waiting for the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 1:7; 1 Thessalonians 1:10). Happy are they who hold this "Blessed Hope."

2. They expect a Transfigured Body. "Who shall change our mortal body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body" (Php_3:21). The Lord Jesus showed His disciples a pattern of this new body, when on the mount He was transfigured before them (Luke 9:29). So when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall we appear with Him in glory (Colossians 3:4). We are sons of God now, but "it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him" (1 John 3:2). For this corruptible body must be changed for the incorruptible (1 Corinthians 15:53). Then shall "death be swallowed up in victory." "Believe ye that I am able to do this?"

III. Their Preparation. The watchword of the early Christians seem to have been, "The Lord is at hand" (chap 4 5). In view of His appearing, they were exhorted to-

1. Be Careful for Nothing (v. . Php_4:6). Let no harassing care trouble your mind with regard to the seemingly conflicting experiences of this life or the signs of the times. He who is Coming again would have us to cast all our care upon Him, because He careth for us (1 Peter 5:7). He who bore our sins is the same Lord who carries our sorrows. Roll thy burden on the Lord, and He shall sustain thee (Psalms 55:22). "Be careful for nothing."

2. Be Prayerful in Every Thing. "In every thing by prayer let your requests be made known unto God" (chap. Php_4:6). Nothing that troubles us is too trifling to bring to God. Those who have learned this holy practice know what it is to "pray without ceasing." The blessedness of it is unspeakable. In these closing days of this age, with the end of present conditions at hand, "Be ye therefore sober and watch unto prayer" (1 Peter 4:7).

3. Be Thankful for Anything. "In every thing... with thanksgiving" (chap. Php_4:6). For "all things work together for good to them that love God." "This is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you," that ye should in every thing give thanks (1 Thessalonians 5:18). It is easy to thank God when we receive the things we desire and that please us; but when disappointment comes, when our plans are thwarted or friends betray us, it may be easy to forget this: but it is then that we need the faith that God doeth all things well, that we may still say, "Thanks be to God."

Colossians

THE POWER OF THE GLORIFIED CHRIST.

Colossians 1:9-14.

In this prayer the apostle shows his great faith in the all-sufficiency of his Lord, when he pleaded for the "brethren in Christ," that they might be blessed "according to his glorious power," or rather, His power in glory. Let us remember that we have the same Lord who is rich unto all that call upon Him.

I. What the Lord has Done for Us.

1. He has Redeemed us. "We have redemption through His Blood" (Colossians 1:14). He "gave Himself for us that He might redeem us" (Titus 2:14). Our redemption price is incorruptible (1 Peter 1:18), and so possesses eternal value.

2. He has Forgiven us. "Even the forgiveness of sins" (Colossians 1:14). Yes, God, for Christ's sake, hath done this (Ephesians 4:32), and, for His sake, He is ready and willing to do for them all that His forgiven ones really need.

3. He has Rescued us. "Delivered us from the power of darkness" (Colossians 1:13). Rescued from the grip of sin, from the fear of death, the terrors of darkness, and the dominion and delusions of the Devil.

4. He has Settled us. "Translated into the Kingdom of His dear Son" (Colossians 1:13). We who were strangers and foreigners have, by the grace of God, been taken and settled in a new kingdom, under a new King, and in entirely different conditions. "Passed from death into life."

II. What the Lord is Able to Do for Us. He is able-

1. To "Fill with the Knowledge of His Will" (Colossians 1:9). With regard to God's character and purposes, there is no place for mere speculation. His will for us is clearly revealed in His Word, and the Holy Spirit is ready to teach, giving "wisdom and spiritual understanding." If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth liberally.

2. To make us "Walk Worthy of the Lord" (Colossians 1:10). There are many references in the Word concerning the Christian's "walk," that is the outward and visible expression of their every-day life before men should be pleasing to God. "Walk worthy of Him who hath called you" (1 Timothy 2:12). Walk worthy of your vocation (Ephesians 4:1). Walk in newness of life (Romans 6:4). Walk as the wise (Ephesians 5:15). Enoch had this testimony that he pleased God (Hebrews 11:5). To walk and not faint is a crowning blessing (Isaiah 40:31).

3. To make us "Fruitful in Every Good Work" (Colossians 1:10). What a victory this would mean to many a discouraged worker. This is possible, for it is God-honouring. "Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit" (John 15:8). A barren ministry is dishonouring to God, and is a betrayal of the worker's weakness. Where the Holy Spirit controls the "fruit of the Spirit" will be manifest (Galatians 5:22-23). The Holy Spirit is fruitful in all His work. Abide in Christ, and let His Word abide in you, and your fruit will remain (John 15:16).

4. To "Strengthen with all Might." All the might of our glorified Lord awaits His needy, believing people. The strength referred to here is that they might be "patient and longsuffering with joy fulness" (Colossians 1:11). It needs strong faith to be patient and joyful in the midst of prolonged suffering. Many of God's saints in the past have "out of weakness been made strong" (Hebrews 11:34).

5. To make us Meet for the Inheritance of the Saints in Light (Colossians 1:12). Paul did not believe that the saints were buried in the darkness of the grave, or lost in the abyss of "eternal oblivion." He knew that they had entered into the fuller light of the Presence of His glory, and had found their inheritance in the fellowship of their Redeemer. He longs to be a partaker with them of the "glory that is to follow." This is not the morbid desire of a faint heart, but the longing of a truly loving heart. "Absent from the body, present with the Lord." THE PRE-EMINENCE OF CHRIST.

Colossians 1:15-19

Jesus Christ, as God's Beloved Son, and as the Redeemer of men, has been so honoured by the Father that in all things, in all spheres, in all times, and in all Eternity He should have the Pre-eminence. He has the pre-eminence:

I. In Power "For by Him were all things created." All things in Heaven and on earth, visible and invisible (Colossians 1:16). It pleased God that "by" Him, "through" Him, "in" Him, and "for" Him, were all things brought into existence, and without Him was not anything made that was made (John 1:3). By Him also He made the universe (Hebrews 1:2). Think of it. This is the same Christ by whom, through whom, in whom, and for whom, God is now seeking to save sinners for the glory of His Name.

II. In Birth. "He is the Firstborn of every creation" (Colossians 1:15). He could say: "I am the First: the Beginning and the End" (Revelation 21:6). He is also the "Firstborn from among the dead" (Colossians 1:18). This has been called His "second birth." Christ the firstfruits, afterwards they that are Christ's at His Coining (1 Corinthians 15:23). The firstborn usually becomes the heir. God hath "appointed Him heir of all things" (Hebrews 1:2). And now by His marvellous grace, we who believe in Him are made "heirs together with Him."

III. In Likeness. "He is the image of the invisible God" (Colossians 1:15). Angels are holy, many of His people in every age have been Godly, but Christ alone in His essential character was the express image of His Person (Hebrews 1:3). He could say: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John 14:9); also: "I and My Father are One." If the Gospels were read in the light of this glory from the "face of Jesus," surely they would have a deeper meaning, a more humbling, yet more inspiring influence on our hearts and lives. Here we see grace pre-eminent

IV. In Authority. "By Him all things are held together" (Colossians 1:17). The law of gravitation as an ordinance of God has a mighty balancing effect in holding material things together. But this law has no influence over heavenly things. The things invisible, the theories, dominions, principalities, and spiritual powers (Colossians 1:16). Christ upholdeth all things by the Word of His power (Hebrews 1:3). His wisdom and His will are in constant activity over all the works of His hands. His will is done in Heaven, and the time is coming when it will be done on earth. The enmity of man's free will is meanwhile a perennial obstacle. But all power has been given Him in Heaven and on earth, and He will yet subdue all unto Himself. The Lord shall reign.

V. In the Church. "He is the Head of the Body, the Church" (Colossians 1:18). Here His pre-eminence is generally acknowledged, but does He get His true place as such in the practical life? It is the Head of the body, and not the hands, that does the thinking and the planning. In His Word we have His mind, and will concerning us clearly revealed. The secret of the Church's authority and power lies in obedience to His Word, both in doctrine and in polity. What is displeasing to the Head must be dishonouring to the body. The head takes all the responsibilities of the body, therefore we should cast all our care on Him, both for men and resources. He supplies all the needs of His Body.

VI. In Riches. He is pre-eminently rich, "for it hath pleased the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell" (Colossians 1:19). This is a Divine act of grace, that God should be pleased that in Jesus Christ the world's Redeemer, all fulness should dwell, that all who are in Him by faith may be in touch with all the fulness of God. "He who was rich, for our sakes became poor: that we through His grace may become rich." "And of His fulness have all we received" (John 1:16). All the blessing we have received has come out of His fulness. Our cup may be full, but the oceans of His fulness still remains (Ephesians 1:3). His Name shall be called "Wonderful" (Isaiah 9:6).

COMPLETE IN CHRIST.

Colossians 2:9-15.

I. Where this Completeness is Found. "Ye are complete in Him." In Him in whom "dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead in human form" (Colossians 2:9). This fulness is abiding in Him for ever, that all His loved and loving ones may be filled up and eternally perfected. He is made of God unto us wisdom and righteousness, and sanctification, and deliverance (1 Corinthians 1:30). This is part of His fulness, which we have "all received with grace upon grace" (John 1:16). In Christ we dwell in God's storehouse of infinite grace, and with Him who is "the Head of all principality and power." In Him there is fulness to satisfy and power to protect, to guide, and to keep, to strengthen, to deliver, and to make the life abundantly fruitful. "Ye are complete in Him."

II. How this Completeness is Attained. Simply by being in Christ. But what is implied by this experience? The statements which follow in Colossians 2:11-15 explain.

1. By Being Forgiven. "Having forgiven you all trespasses" (Colossians 2:13). Forgiveness is our first necessity, and God's forgiveness is complete. All trespasses. It is against God that we have sinned, and the reconciliation must begin by His act of grace in not imputing their trespasses unto them (2 Corinthians 5:19)

2. By Having the Bond that was Written Against us Cancelled. Blotting out the handwriting that was against us, and contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to His Cross. The law was a bond against us, saying: "Do this and live, disobey this and die." But this bond as the condition of life, Christ hath for us blotted it out by nailing it to His Cross-making it a part of His Cross (Colossians 2:14). Now ye are not under the law, but in the kingdom of His grace. For He hath abolished in His flesh "even the law of commandments," and by His Cross He hath slain the enmity (Ephesians 2:15-16).

3. By Being Buried with Him. "Buried with Him in baptism" (Colossians 2:12). This is no mere symbol or figure of speech, but a deep and real spiritual experience. Through faith we are baptised into the death of Jesus Christ (Romans 6:3). Now the "old man" is to be thrown off and left in the grave (1 Peter 3:21). Paul refers to this when he says, "I am crucified with Christ." The Cross should be to us the death of the self life.

4. By Being Raised with Him. "Ye are risen with Him through God-given faith" (Colossians 2:12). Having been identified with His death, we have been quickened together with Him (Colossians 2:13) into the new resurrection life. Having been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection (Romans 6:5). The Christian life, then, is a life hid with Christ in God; a life whose birth is "from above;" a life that is the life eternal, for He hath begotten us again unto a living hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ (1 Peter 1:3). Then what doth the Lord now require of us? Surely it is this: "Yield yourselves unto God as those that are alive from the dead" (Romans 6:13). The life we now live in the flesh has been given us through Jesus, then surrender it to Him in thankful service.

5. By Having our Enemies Conquered by Him. "He hath spoiled principalities and powers, triumphing over them" (Colossians 2:15). All power is given unto Him, and He is able, and hath made His faithful followers more than conquerors through His own unfailing and inseparable love (Romans 8:37-39). "All the hostile princes and rulers He shook off from Himself, and boldly displayed them as His conquests, when by the Cross He triumphed over them." In Christ "Greater is He that is for us, than all that can be against us." "Ye are complete in Him." "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ." THE HIDDEN LIFE.

Colossians 3:1-4.

The essence of Christianity is not a "creed," not a "system of doctrine," not a particular mode of worship, but a life, and that life Christlike. It is-

I. A Life from the Dead. "Ye were dead" (Colossians 3:3) "Dead in trespasses and sin." Dead to God, in that there was no faith in Him, no response to His love, no felt need of His mercy; as insensible to spiritual and heavenly things as the dead in their graves are to the things of earth.

II. A Resurrected Life. "Risen with Christ" (Colossians 3:1). The carnal man, as a corn of wheat, has fallen into the ground and died, and the new life, quickened by the Spirit of God, hath appeared (John 12:24). "For that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die." The dead leaves of the old life fall off in the springtime of the new. If we have been buried with Christ in His death, we are risen with Him in newness of life. This life in Christ is eternal, for He who is our life dieth no more. We have passed from death into "the life everlasting."

III. A Life Supported by Heavenly Things. "Seek those things which are above. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth" (Colossians 3:1-2). This life which is from above can only be fed and nourished with the things that belong to the heavenlies. Material things can never satisfy a quickened spirit. They that are after the Spirit must mind the things of the Spirit (Romans 8:5). The spiritual life is often choked with the riches of this world. Seek ye first the things of God, and all other things will be added (Matthew 6:33); and by so doing ye shall lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven. "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him (1 John 2:15).

IV. A Substitutional Life. "Christ, who is our life" (Colossians 3:4). If His death was a substitute for us, so also is His resurrection and life. "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." "We are in Him that is true, even in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life (1 John 5:20). Truly we "live, and move, and have our being in God." He was judged for us on the Cross. Now we are justified by His life (Romans 5:10). "Because I live, saith the Lord, ye shall live also" (John 14:19).

V. A Secure Life. "Your life is hid with Christ in God" (Colossians 3:3). In grace God was in Christ reconciling sinners unto Himself. In glory, Christ is in God representing His ransomed people. By faith, "Ye are in Christ as the fruit of His victory, the special treasure which He found in the field of the world (Matthew 13:44). "Hid with Christ in God," ye are as safe as Christ Himself. As Noah was shut up in the ark by God, so has His Church as His Body been shut up and sheltered in the ark of His anointed. "I give unto them eternal life, they shall never perish, neither shall any power be able to pluck them out of My hand" (John 10:28).

VI A Life Yet to be Manifested. "When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory" (Colossians 3:4). "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." "Here we suffer grief and pain," because of the world's sins and sorrows, and because of our own weakness and shortcomings. But when He shall appear we shall be like Him, seeing Him as He is (1 John 3:2). For "He shall change our mortal body, and fashion it like unto His glorious body" (Php_3:21). "What we now suffer, count as nothing in comparison with the glory which is soon to be manifested in us" (Romans 8:18). Christ came and died that we might have life. He rose and ascended that we might have it in abundance (John 10:10). "Fear not, little flock."

CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

Colossians 3:8-24.

The believers at Colosse are here reminded that as Christians there are some things they must put off as inconsistent; some things they must put on as absolutely needful; some things to do as a proof of their faith; and how they should be done as an evidence of true-hearted devotion.

I. Some Things to Put Off. Put off-

1. "The Old Man with his deeds" (Colossians 3:9). The old carnal mind which is corrupt, and which lives under the spell of deceitful lusts (Ephesians 4:22). Throw him off.

2. "Anger, Unholy Passion, ill-will, evil-speaking, personal abuse: put off all these" (Colossians 3:8). Why should Christians need to be told to put off things that are more like the Devil than their Redeemer? These are sins that do beset some (Heb. 12).

II. Some Things to Put On. Put on-

1. "The New Man, which is after the image of God" (Colossians 3:10). To put on the new man is to give the Lord Jesus Christ-the Second Man, the Lord from Heaven-His true place in the life. Act as if He is mantling you with His presence.

2. "Tender-heartedness, kindness, lowliness of mind, longsuffering" (Colossians 3:12). Note that these are the features of the Divine image, as seen in the face of Jesus (This is the fruit of the Spirit). "And above all, we are to put on love" (Colossians 3:14). "God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him" (1 John 4:12-16). May the love of Christ constrain us to be more like Him.

III. Some Things to Let In.

1. The Peace of God. "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts" (Colossians 3:15). What a blissful kingdom our hearts would be if the peace of God ruled therein (Romans 14:17). "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee" (Isaiah 26:3). We can let this peace rule in our hearts by a trustful submission to the will of Him who is able to say, "Peace, be still."

2. The Word of God. "Let the Word of God dwell in you richly" (Colossians 3:16). "That Word, which is quick and powerful, and a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12). "Search the Scriptures, for they are they which testify of Me." It is Himself that our souls need if our character is to be enriched and our testimony made fruitful.

IV. Some Things to Let Out. What we have by faith taken in, should in service be let out. "Freely ye have received, freely give." We are to-

1. Serve Loyally. "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus" (Colossians 3:17). How different life would be if our ordinary duties were done for "Christ's sake. "In His Name" would take the sting of shame but of many a lowly deed. "One is your Master, even Christ."

2. Serve Heartily. "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord" (Colossians 3:23), "not with eye-service, as men-pleasers." Heartless service must be a solemn mockery in His eyes. Formal lip-service is rank hypocrisy.

3. Serve Thankfully. "Do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father by Him" (Colossians 3:17). We should give thanks always for all things (Ephesians 5:20). The Lord hath done great things for us, and is still doing them on our behalf, therefore "His praise should be continually in our mouths" (Psalms 34:1). In giving and in taking away, His Name is still to be blessed (Job 1:21).

V. Some Things for which we Look Up. "Ye serve the Lord Christ, and from the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance" (Colossians 3:24). Every good thing done is to be rewarded (Ephesians 6:8). The inheritance as a harvest will be according to our works. He shall render to every man according to his deeds (Romans 2:6). But to see Him, and be made like Him, and to dwell with Him, this is the reward of grace alone.

1 Thessalonians

THE MODEL CHURCH.

1 Thessalonians 1:6-10.

The beauty of this Church did not consist of a gorgeous material building, but of a people who are said to be "In God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Thessalonians 1:1). And that they were ensamples to all believers (1 Thessalonians 1:7). Note their character.

I. They were Saved from Wrath. "They were delivered from the wrath to come" (1 Thessalonians 1:10) It should never be forgotten that there is "wrath to come" (Revelation 6:17) Wrath against all ungodliness. Blessed are they whom "God hath appointed to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Thess. 5 9). Christ our Refuge. "Flee from the wrath to come."

II. They were Converted to God. "They turned to God from idols" (1 Thessalonians 1:9). Christ is the propitiation for the sin of the world, but that fact in itself does not save the world; there must needs be a personal turning to God from sin and unbelief. The idols of the unconverted are numerous and varied. To turn to God is to forsake everything that would divide our affections or hinder our whole-hearted trust.

III. They were Receivers of the Word of God. "They received the Word in much affliction" (1 Thessalonians 1:6) These were troublous times, as we learn from Acts 17; but the antagonism of the worldly-minded did not hinder them from boldly receiving the Word. It is always a sign of a healthy soul or Church, which gladly drinks in the truth as revealed in God's Word Human philosophies may have their place, but they are the food to build up a model Church. Quickened spirits need the "Word of Life."

IV. They were Devoted to the Service of God. "They turned from idols to serve the living and true God" (1 Thessalonians 1:9). What a change! Serving the Living God, instead of dead things that only mocked their needs with a silent indifference. "To whom, O Lord, can we go but unto Thee?" Thou art worthy of the service of every power and passion, every thought and feeling of the soul, which Thou hast redeemed by Thy Blood. "Serve the Lord with gladness."

V. They were Looking for the Son of God. They had made up their minds to serve, and "to wait for His Son from Heaven" (1 Thessalonians 1:10). They believed Christ would come again, as all the early Christians did, and as He Himself had promised This was called "that blessed hope" (Titus 2:13). The prophets of old looked and waited for the Coming of the Messiah long ages before He came; but in the fulness of the time He did come. The Church may have waited long, so long that many have lost the vision and the hope. But in the fulness of the time He will Come as He said (see John 14:3; Acts 1:11; 1 Thessalonians 4:16 Revelation 1:7).

VI. They were Joyful in the Spirit of God. They had the "joy of the Holy Ghost" (1 Thessalonians 1:6). With the Word of God in their hearts, and this glorious prospect before their eyes, and the power of the Spirit resting on them, their service was not a burdensome task, but a happy privilege and a growing delight. This was characteristic of the first Church members. "They were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 13:52). "How are the mighty fallen?"

VII. They were Examples to Others. "Ye were ensamples to all that believe" (1 Thessalonians 1:7). This was certainly a prosperous Church, although there is nothing said regarding their financial position, no reference to their "Annual Balance Sheet." But their faith in God was known everywhere (1 Thessalonians 1:8), and the influence of their missionary enthusiasm, in sounding forth the Word of God, had been felt throughout Macedonia and Greece. They honoured Christ as the Head of the Church, and they were honoured by Him in doing things worthy of His great Name. This is what the Church of Christ should do. This is what every Church true to the Word of God is; and this is what every Christian should be-an encouraging example to others. "Believe, and thou shalt see."

COMFORTING WORDS.

1 Thessalonians 4:13-18.

There is much food for thought in these verses, closing with this exhortation: "Wherefore, comfort one another with these words" (1 Thessalonians 4:18). There is comfort here concerning-

I. The Second Advent. "The Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven" (1 Thessalonians 4:16) The Lord does not promise to send death, or any other messenger, to take His Bride home. He is coming Himself for her. It is "this same Jesus which was taken up into Heaven, that is coming in like manner as He was seen to go" (Acts 1:11); and "they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of Heaven with power and great glory" (Matthew 24:30). What a comforting hope this is in these "perilous times."

II. Our Departed Friends. We are not to be in ignorance about them, nor to be in sorrow for them, for we believe that Jesus rose again, and that when He comes He will bring them with Him (1 Thessalonians 4:13-14), for in spirit they are with Him now (2 Corinthians 5:8) It is the "dead in Christ" who will rise first (1 Thessalonians 4:16). This rising means the putting on of the incorruptible body, being changed into His resurrection image. They shall lose nothing by being put to sleep before the Coming of the Lord (1 Corinthians 15:52). For we who are alive at the Coming of the Lord shall have no precedence over those who have gone to sleep (1 Thessalonians 4:15). Comforting words indeed.

III. The Living Saints. "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them to meet the Lord in the air" (1 Thessalonians 4:17). We are assured, as God's people, that all shall not die before He Comes. "We shall not all sleep (die), but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the sound of His last trump" (1 Cor. 1 51, 52). When all in every age who have been put to sleep in Jesus have been raised and clothed with immortality, and when all the believers who are alive on the earth, when He comes, are changed in a moment and caught up together with them. What a host of ransomed souls. "A multitude whom no man can number" Tell me, will any man say on that day that the Church of God has been a failure? "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied." "Comfort one another with these words" (1 Thessalonians 4:18).

IV. The Place of Reunion. "Caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air" (1 Thessalonians 4:17). The air is spoken of as the sphere of Satan's stronghold. He is called "the prince of the power of the air, the spirits that are now at work in the hearts of the sons of disobedience" (Ephesians 2:2). Does it mean that the transfiguration and reunion of all Christ's redeemed ones will take place right in the heart of Satan's territory? What a triumph this would be for "The Lamb that was slain," and for all those who all their lives were warring against the prince of darkness? And what a shameful defeat for the Devil. "I saw Satan fall like lightning from Heaven" (Luke 10:18).

V. Our Final Position. "And so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thessalonians 4:17). Saved by Him. Made like Him. Then for ever with Him. He has gone to prepare a place for His Church in the coming Kingdom. He will come again and receive it unto "Himself, that where He is, there shall the Bride be also (John 14:3). Then the Bridegroom's prayer will be gloriously answered. "Father, I will that they also whom Thou hast given Me be with Me where I am; that They may behold My glory" (John 17:24); and be "for ever with the Lord." Earth's greatest blessing is to find Him. Heaven's greatest honour is to be for ever with Him. This honour have all the saints. "Comfort one another with these words." THE SECOND ADVENT

1 Thessalonians 4:13-18; 1 Thessalonians 5:1-6

This is a subject full of vital interest for these latter days. Paul's teaching here is clear and urgent. In every chapter of this epistle he refers to the Lord's Coming. In the portion before us he states several facts that might be looked at separately.

I. That the Lord will Come Again. "The Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven" (1 Thessalonians 4:16). This is not the coming of death, neither is it the coming of the Holy Spirit. It is the coming of "the Lord Himself." It is as much a personal coming as when David anointed himself and changed his apparel and came into the house of the Lord (2 Samuel 12:20).

II. That those who Sleep in Jesus will Come with Him (1 Thessalonians 4:14). All those who have died in the faith have been put to sleep in the grace and presence of Jesus. So when He comes He brings those redeemed spirits with Him, for they are His own peculiar treasure, bought by His own blood, and cannot be separated from Him.

III. That those who are Alive when He comes shall not go Before those who are Asleep (1 Thessalonians 4:15). Neither time nor circumstances can give any precedence on that day. Those who have died in the Lord shall lose nothing by it; those who remain alive at His coming shall be spared the pain of dying, but shall not have any advantage thereby in the way of pre-eminence before Him (2 Corinthians 4:14).

IV. That the Dead in Christ shall Rise First (1 Thessalonians 4:16). All those who have died trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, having been saved by His grace, shall have a part in this "first" resurrection. It will only be "they that are Christ's at His coming" (1 Corinthians 15:23). Blessed and holy is he that hath part in this first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power. The rest of the dead, who have died in their sins, shall not be raised till one thousand years after (Revelation 20:5-6).

V. That all Shall be Caught up Together (1 Thessalonians 4:17). When Christ comes those Christians who are living on the earth shall be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," and together with those who have been raised from the dead will be "caught up" to meet the Lord in the air. They are all one in Christ Jesus. One shepherd, one flock.

VI. That we Shall be for Ever with Him (1 Thessalonians 4:17). To be for ever with Him, who is the Wisdom and Fullness of God, for whom all things were made, and by whom all things consist, implies more than tongue can tell or finite minds can grasp. They follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth. Then shall Christ's own prayer be answered, "With Me where I am" (John 17:24). Surely we may comfort one another with these words (1 Thessalonians 4:18).

VII. That this will be an Awful Day for the Unbelieving. While they are saying "Peace and safety." He shall come as a thief in the night, then "sudden destruction shall come upon them" (1 Thessalonians 4:1-3). A thief does not give any warning as to the time he will break into the house. He will be careful to choose the most unexpected moment. Sudden and everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord will be the doom of every Christ-rejecter at His coming (2 Thessalonians 1:9). These are terrible words; their terror lies in the fact that they are true, and that this fulfilment may be at any moment. Are you prepared?

VIII. That the Christian should be Looking for His Coming. All who are Christ's are the "Children of light," having been saved from the darkness that is in this world through sin. They are "not of the night," sleeping the sleep of indifference or unbelief, but are those who are expected to "watch and be sober" (1 Thessalonians 4:5-6). It is high time to wake up, for now is your full and final salvation nearer than when ye believed (Romans 13:11).

Chapter 69

2 Thessalonians

THREE FACTS OF UNIVERSAL IMPORTANCE.

2 Thessalonians 1:6-12.

Here are events that are sure to come, and will affect all mankind.

I. A New Revelation. "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His angels of might in flaming fire" (2 Thessalonians 1:7). The same Lord Jesus who was forsaken by His disciples in the time of His greatest sorrow. In the day of His humiliation He could have called "legions of angels" to His assistance, but now the angels of His might came with His burning Presence, to accomplish His long-delayed purpose of gathering out of His kingdom all things that offend and them that do iniquity (Matthew 13:40-42). "The reapers are the angels" (Matthew 13:39), who are waiting now till the "harvest of the earth is ripe" (Revelation 14:15). The Lord has been during this age revealing Himself as the meek and lowly and merciful Christ; but He will yet reveal Himself as a "flaming fire" against all ungodliness. Who shall be able to stand when He so appeareth?

II. An Unfailing Retribution. "Taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Thessalonians 1:8) The day of grace has now passed; there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries (Hebrews 10:27). The culprits are those who know not God, because they have not obeyed the good news of Jesus Christ. To obey the call of the Gospel of Christ is the way to know God, whom to know is eternal life. There may be some excuse for ignorance, but there is no excuse for neglect. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" What is the punishment? Everlasting destruction from the Presence of the Lord and the glory of His power. Not annihilation, but eternal banishment from the Presence of the Lord and the glory of His power. "In His presence there is fulness of joy. At His right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalms 16:11). Then what will it mean for those who are eternally exiled from the Kingdom of God and the pleasures that are ever flowing from His beneficent Presence? Call this state or condition by whatever name you may. There is an awful atmosphere about it. "Escape for thy life."

III. A Christ-Honouring Reward. "He shall come to be glorified in His saints, and admired in all them that believe" (2 Thessalonians 1:10). He shall be glorified in glorifying His saints with His own glorious likeness. He shall be "admired" in the work of grace bestowed upon all them that believe. While the reward will be ours, the glory will be His. "Not unto us, O Lord, but unto Thy Name be the glory." "All principalities and powers in heavenly places shall be made to know by the Church, the manifold wisdom of God" (Ephesians 3:10). We shall be satisfied when we shall see Him as He is; and He shall be satisfied when He shall see us as we shall then be. The Church will be His joy and crown of rejoicing at His Coming (1 Thessalonians 2:19-20), and something to be wondered at through all the coming ages. Its presence with the Christ of God in the glory will mean: "Blessing and glory, and wisdom and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might, unto our God for ever and ever" (Revelation 7:12).

"Thou shalt see my glory soon.

When the Work of Grace is done." THE "MAN OF SIN.

2 Thessalonians 2:1-12

In the above verses we have a prophetic picture drawn by the inspired apostle, which demands serious attention in these days, and which is also a powerful indictment against the popular doctrine that the "world will be converted" before the Coming of the Lord. Paul bases his appeal (2 Thessalonians 2:1-2) on the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ is Coming, and that His people will be gathered together unto Him on that day. Then gives the warning against being "shaken in mind" or "troubled" because of false teaching concerning His Coming. But His appearing is certain; so also is the appearing of that "Man of Sin " (2 Thessalonians 2:3).

I. The Time of His Appearing. Two conditions precede "The Day of Christ." First, there will be a "falling away" from the faith, then the revelation of that "Man of Sin." This falling away must mean the apostasy of the Church in the denial of those truths once believed or consented to. No one can fall away from where they have never been. The Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, etc. (1 Timothy 4:1-3). "The mystery of iniquity," or, rather, lawlessness, is always in evidence (2 Thessalonians 2:7). This is the spirit of Antichrist, which even now already is in the world (1 John 4:3), and in these days abundantly manifest in midst of much preaching and Bible distribution. Lawlessness, which is the practical denial of Divine and Spiritual authority, is a congenial moral condition for the appearing and work of this "Man of Sin." The fulness of the time for his manifestation may be near (2 Peter 2:1-2).

II. His Character. He is called "the son of perdition" (2 Thessalonians 2:3). As Jesus, the Son of God, was the embodiment of the Divine character, so the "son of perdition" seems to be the human embodiment of the satanic character, for "His coming will be after the working of Satan" (2 Thessalonians 2:9). He is also called "that wicked one," whom the Lord will consume with the "brightness of His Coming" (2 Thessalonians 2:8). Does this imply that sin and lawlessness will yet find its culmination in a person, a man of the world, energised by satanic power, believed in, and followed by a restless, sceptical, and Christ-defiant populace, making their last united attempt to overthrow the faith that was "once for all delivered unto the saints?"

III. His Purpose. Is to oppose everything that belongs to God, and His Christ and to exalt himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped (2 Thessalonians 2:4). Thus showing himself to be "the Antichrist" "Exalting himself," this was the sin of Satan at the beginning, but by becoming incarnate in the "Man of Sin," will surely be his last device to seduce a gullible humanity. He has always been the "Deceiver of the whole world." If Satan hopes to succeed by this blasphemous pretention of being himself above "all that is called godly," it certainly reveals something of the terrible depths into which humanity has fallen by this departure from the truth. Beware of self-seeking and self-exaltation, it savours of the "Man of Sin." "He that exalteth himself shall be abased." "Not I, but Christ." is the only absolutely safe attitude.

IV. His Methods. They are varied and mighty. "With all power and signs," and "lying wonders," with all "deceivableness of unrighteousness" (2 Thessalonians 2:9-10). That is, with every wicked device agreeable to those who are on their way to perdition. This "Man of Sin" looks like the beast that is to come out of the earth with the power (horns) of a lamb, and the passion and purpose of a dragon; and who is able to make fire come down from heaven in the sight of men (Revelation 13:11-13). We have often thought of the "wiles of the devil" in relation to our individual life, but here is a "Man of Sin," the offspring of perdition (2 Thessalonians 2:3), endued with the power of Satan, worshipped as God, and leading to the eternal abyss the multitudes of those who "have not received the love of the truth that they might be saved" (2 Thessalonians 2:10). The wonders of the truth were rejected for "lying wonders."

V. His Hinderer. There is One who is a Hinderer to his diabolical mission. "He that hindereth will hinder, until He be taken out of the way" (2 Thessalonians 2:7).

1. Who is He? This hinderer is not a system, or party, but a Person. He must be mighty and Divine to resist such powerful and delusive work. Who can He be but the Holy Spirit of God, who is still striving with men, and leading many to Jesus Christ.

2. How Does He Hinder? By opening the blinded eyes of sinners to see their need of a Saviour. By revealing to them the things that are Christ's for their salvation. By guiding them into the truth which satisfies and fortifies against the "wiles of the Devil."

3. When Shall He be "Taken Out of the Way?" Surely when the Church of God is taken away from the world, as in 1 Thessalonians 4:17. The Church, as the Redeemed Body of Christ, is presently the "temple of the Holy Ghost." When He is taken away with the Church, then shall He cease to "strive with men." Then who shall hinder Satan in his work of deception and spiritual destruction? "If the salt lose its savour, wherewith shall it be salted?"

VI. His Temporary Ally. For once we see God adding His influence to crown Satan's efforts with success. What an awful crisis this is. The people have rejected His truth that was given to save them (2 Thessalonians 2:10). "For this cause He sent them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie" (2 Thessalonians 2:11), because they would not believe the truth (2 Thessalonians 2:12). Thus making their condemnation doubly sure. Brethren, what shall we say to these things? God is not to be mocked. When Israel would not hearken to His voice He gave them up to their own hearts' lusts (Psalms 81:11-12). In the reign of the coming "Man of Sin," when men's spiritual indifference has turned into God-defiance, and God's longsuffering mercy turned into loathing and vengeance, then what shall the end be? (1 Thessalonians 1:8)

VII. His Destruction. The Lawless One, "whom the Lord will sweep away with the tempest of His anger, and utterly overwhelm by the awful splendour of His Coming" (2 Thessalonians 2:8). Those who have been dazzled and bewitched, and awe-stricken by the lying wonders of this Satanic "man," will be smitten with terrible confusion before the "brightness of His Coming." "They shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of Heaven, with power and great glory" (Matthew 24:30). The glory of that "Man of Sin" will be discovered as a delusive will-o-the-wisp in the Presence of the glorious effulgence of the Man Christ Jesus. But there will be those at His Coming, who shall say: "Lo, this is our God. We have waited for Him. He will save us, and we will rejoice in His salvation" (Isaiah 25:9). "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

1 Timothy

A PERFECT PATTERN.

1 Timothy 1:11-17.

Here the apostle speaks of himself as a pattern to believers (1 Timothy 1:16). A pattern may be given as a specimen of workmanship for exhibition, or as an example for imitation. Paul's experience was both an exhibition of Divine grace and an example to all them "which should hereafter believe." We shall look at him as a pattern or specimen of-

I. Sin's Delusiveness. He was "a blasphemer, a persecutor, and injurious" (1 Timothy 1:13). Here is a man so self-deceived that he thought he was doing God service by making havoc of the Church (Acts 26:9-11). History has furnished us with many examples of the same kind of madness, through the pride and prejudice of unbelieving hearts and sin-blinded minds. But what a disillusion came when this "Jesus of Nazareth" whom he was persecuting, met him and smote him to the earth with the brightness of His Presence, and when he, "trembling and astonished," said, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:1-6). Every saved sinner has in some measure made the same discovery.

II. Abundant Grace. "I obtained mercy: the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant" (1 Timothy 1:13-14). The might and the abounding sufficiency of the grace of Christ to subdue and to save a sinner surely was never more manifest Here is a pattern of what the "grace of our Lord" can do. "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound" (Romans 5:20). He was thankfully speaking the truth when he said: "By the grace of God I am what I am" (1 Corinthians 15:10). If the "chief of sinners" was saved by grace, none need despair. "By grace are ye saved through faith." But remember that it is the grace of God.

III. Believers' Responsibility. "The Gospel of the glory of the blessed God was committed unto me" (1 Timothy 1:14). If we have been made partakers of this same salvation, are we not also partakers in some measure of this responsibility? The good news has been given to save us, and also as a deposit that we might be a blessing to others. If God, "who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, giving us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ," then He has also commanded that we let our light shine. "Ye are as lights in the world" (2 Corinthians 4:6). "Go ye, therefore, preach the Gospel by lip and life."

IV. Christian Testimony. As a brief and perfect pattern of personal testimony, there can be nothing on record more effective than 1 Timothy 1:15. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of the acceptation of all, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief." This saying is as faithful as God Himself is, and the blessing offered meets the most urgent need of humanity "to save sinners." No statement more worthily deserves the acceptation of all. Jesus Christ came into the world to save. Where did He come from? What an incidental proof of His pre-existence. Through Him God the Father is commending His love to a rebellious race (Romans 5:8). Do your friends know what great things God hath done for your soul? (Mark 5:19). The Psalmist said: "Come and hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare what He hath done for my soul" (Psalms 66:16). "Let him that heareth say. Come."

V. Praise and Thanksgiving. What a beautiful pattern this is. "Now to the immortal and invisible King of all the ages, who alone is God, be honour and glory to the ages of the ages. Amen" (1 Timothy 1:17). Often the language of mortals cannot express the deep things the heart may feel; but God judgeth the heart, and takes account of every thankful recognition of His mercies. Praise and thanksgiving, adoration and worship, are most fitting when the Majesty of God's goodness becomes overwhelming. "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness" (Psalms 107:15). In counting your many blessings, do not fail to add your benediction.

INTERCESSORS NEEDED.

1 Timothy 2:1-6.

In Isaiah 59:16 we read that the Lord "wondered that there was no intercessor." He wondered at the folly and unbelief of His people, in neglecting this most effective means of blessing. This is a privilege within the reach of every child of God, a sphere of service open to every believer to make intercession.

I. Its Importance. "I exhort, therefore, that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions be made" (1 Timothy 2:1). Here this holy exercise gets the first place in his exhortations. It is possible that an intercessor's reward may be greater than a preacher's. Samuel knew how this honoured the Lord when he declared: "As for me, God forbid that I should sin against Jehovah by ceasing to pray for you" (1 Samuel 12:23). Prayerlessness is not only a sin against our own souls, but our fellowmen, and against God.

II. Its Scope. "For all men and for all in authority" (1 Timothy 2:1-2). If ye know not what to pray for as ye ought, here at least is a wide field for its operation. Those of the Captivity were exhorted to "seek the peace of the city wherever they were, and to pray unto the Lord for it" (Jeremiah 29:7). Our modern cities are in desperate need of intercessors, and perhaps our modern Churches not less. In praying for "all men," don't forget the all in your own home, all in your fellowship, city, and nation. Remember the great all for whom Christ died.

III. Its Incentives. As an encouragement for intercession, think of-

1. The Will of God. "Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth" (1 Timothy 2:4). By His own power God could save all men whether they will or not. But in grace He is willing to save all that come unto the knowledge of the truth. In praying for "all men" we are in line with the Divine will, and helping the fulfilment of His purpose.

2. The Ransom Price. "Christ gave Himself a ransom for all" (1 Timothy 2:6). There is ample provision in the death of Christ, and in the will of the Father for the salvation of all men. "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

3. The Mediator. "There is one Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus" (1 Timothy 2:5). What an incentive to prayer this is, when we realise that the Eternal Son of God in the likeness of men is our Mediator before the throne, and He ever liveth to make intercession. Ponder also-

IV. The Examples set before us. Abraham interceded for the doomed city of Sodom (Genesis 18:24), Moses on the hill top with uplifted hands silently pleading for victory (Exod. 17), Elijah praying for a Divine manifestation that the nation might be rescued from idolatry (1 Kings 18:37), Job in midst of his sorrow and sufferings making intercession for his mistaken friends (Job 42:10). Think also of "the Man of Sorrows," who was wounded and bruised for our iniquities, yet He made intercession for the transgressors (Isaiah 53:12), and His last prayer on earth was for His murderers. "Father, forgive them." Well may we pray. "Lord, teach us to pray." The need for intercessors is a great and growing need, for the harvest is plenteous, but the divinely equipped labourers are few. Pray ye therefore (Matthew 9:37-38).

2 Timothy

THE FOUNDATION, THE HOUSE, AND ITS VESSELS.

2 Timothy 2:19-21.

Timothy is being warned against a cankerous error that had overthrown the faith of some; but no amount of error can alter the "foundation of God."

I. The Foundation. It is "the foundation of God" (2 Timothy 2:19).

1. It is Sure. "It standeth sure." This Rock, as a foundation for God's building, is as firmly established as His own Eternal Throne, for that Rock is Christ (Matthew 16:16), and He liveth and abideth for ever (1 Corinthians 3:11).

2. It is Unmistakable. Having this inscription: "The Lord knoweth them that are His." Every individual soul that is trusting in Christ is known personally by Him. This is not true of any other religion under Heaven. Multitudes bow to dead prophets and false gods, but the worshippers are individually unknown by the objects of their adoration. "I know My sheep" (John 10:14).

II. The House. "In a great house there are different vessels" (2 Timothy 2:20). This "great house" doubtless refers to the "Church of God" (1 Timothy 3:15). Which is the biggest and most self-evident concern in the world, because it is the strongest, built on Jesus Christ, who is the embodiment of Eternal Truth. It is great, because it is occupied by a great tenant, the Holy Spirit, who is through Christ's Body, the Church, seeking to fulfil the great purpose of God in the salvation of men. It is a great house, has been abuilding for over 1900 years, and is still being "added to".

III. The Vessels. In every great house there are vessels of different value and design, suited for all useful purposes. "Some gold and silver, some wood and earthenware" (2 Timothy 2:20). Some to honour and some for common use. Those of gold and silver get the position of honour, because of their more perfect character and special fitness for the higher and more conspicuous service. Those servants who may be classed with the "wood and earthenware" types may be just as useful in their own sphere as their more honoured brethren. The gold and silver vessels are not looked for in the lowly but indespensable work of the kitchen. God's servants have all their own place in the great house of God. Some prophets, some apostles, some pastors, some teachers, some evangelists, and some who may be the "wood and earthenware," who are taken no special notice of, but who are waiting and ready to be used for anything that the Master appoints. These vessels, though different in character, all belong to the same great house, and owned by the same Master, and are all needed for the one purpose, the fulfilling of their Lord's will. All have not the same gifts and qualifications, but all are partakers of the same grace. There is no occasion for envy or jealousy. Each one might say: "By the grace of God I am what I am." But the alchemy of Divine grace is suggested here. It is possible for a common vessel to be transformed into a vessel of honour. "If a man purge himself from all that is false and unclean, he shall be made a vessel unto honour, sanctified and made meet for the Master's use, fully equipped unto every good work" (2 Timothy 2:21). "Behold, as the clay is in the hand of the potter, so are ye in Mine" (Jeremiah 18:6). "We are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works" (Ephesians 2:10). "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" A DYING CHRISTIAN'S TESTIMONY.

2 Timothy 4:6-8.

This joyful testimony was written by Paul the prisoner, while lying in a dungeon at Rome, waiting the hour of his doom. It speaks of- I. A Victorious Past.

1. As a Soldier. He had "Fought a good fight" (2 Timothy 4:7). He had gone through a glorious contest. He had fought "the good fight of faith" against all the principalities and powers of evil, seen and unseen. It was a good fight, because it was for the goodness he had discovered in his God and Saviour.

2. As a Racer. He had "finished his course." His course was specially marked out for him (Acts 9:15-16). The track Divinely ordained for this runner had many obstacles, which proved hard for flesh and blood. "The Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city saying that bonds and afflictions abide me" (Acts 20:23). It is ours "to run in the way of His commandments;" it is His to help us to finish.

3. As a Believer. He had "kept the faith." He had guarded the truth revealed to him, and preached and presented the Gospel of God's grace as revealed in Jesus Christ. If any man "preach any other Gospel let him be accursed" (Galatians 1:8).

II. A Peaceful Present. "I am now ready, and the time of my departure is at hand" (2 Timothy 4:6). He was ready, like ripe fruit, to fall into the hand of Him to whom he belonged. Death to him had no sting or terrors; to him the grave had no victory. To depart was to be "with Christ, which is far better" (Php_1:23). "Be ye also ready." Our readiness does not consist in the amount of good works we may have done, or the number of years we have lived, but in that "quietness and confidence" in Jesus Christ which brings the strength of His prevailing peace into the heart, and that calmly whispers: "Father, not my will, but Thine be done. Thou hast redeemed me, O Lord. Into Thy hands I commit my spirit." A Scotsman lay dying in a country home, while a snow storm was on. His daughter said: "Father, will I read to you." He answered: "Na, my lassie, don't trouble. I thatched my house in calm weather."

III. A Blissful Future. "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord will give me" (2 Timothy 4:8). The crown of righteousness is the reward that is kept for and bestowed upon those who have lived the righteous, God-pleasing life. It is not only for an apostle, but for "all them that love His appearing." Does not this imply that loving His appearing has a gracious and inspiring influence on the life? This faith in, and this looking for, the Coming of the Lord is no vain and fruitless imagination, but an holy incentive to a righteous life. "He that hath this hope in him purifieth himself." "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away" (1 Peter 5:4). The Second Coming of Christ is the enlightened believer's perennial expectation and the world's only hope of deliverance (Romans 11:26).

"Behold I come quickly: and My reward is with Me, to give every man according as his work shall be" (Revelation 22:12).

PAUL'S LAST LETTER

2 Timothy 4:6-18

There is always a special pathos about the last words of loved ones. Such are very frequently a revelation of the inner character and life. It is so with this final message from the pen of our beloved apostle. As we bow our ear to catch this message, as it were from his dying lips, we are not left to faintly guess what he means. There is a telling ring in his voice, his mind is clear, his words are emphatic, and speak out volumes of truth. They speak of-

I. Perfect Resignation. "I am now ready to be offered." He who had poured out his life in the service of the Lord Jesus Christ was now ready to have his blood poured out as a sacrifice for Him. At one time he was in a strait about this (Php_1:23), but now he was ready. He was like one who had everything packed up in readiness to step on board that ship which was to take him to a better country. Be ye also ready.

II. Assured Success. "I have fought the good fight. I have finished the course. I have kept the faith" (r.v.). He was perfectly confident that his life and testimony as a servant of the Lord was no failure, but that the will of God in calling him to His work had been fulfilled in him. As a warrior he had fought and conquered; as a racer he had abode in the course and honourably finished the race; as a custodian he had firmly kept the faith delivered to him. He was faithful unto death (Revelation 2:10).

III. Joyful Hope. "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown," etc. The Lord, who was his righteous Judge, had this crown laid up for him, although Nero, the unrighteous judge, had laid up for him a sword. In view of his crowning day, Paul could joyfully sing: "O death, where is thy sting?" The Lord always lays up treasure and honour for those who faithfully serve Him now in the day of His rejection at the hands of men (James 1:12).

IV. Painful Experiences. It was surely with a deeply grieved soul that the aged apostle told of "Demas," who had forsaken him, "having loved this present world," and of Alexander, the coppersmith, who had done him "much evil," and of how that "no man stood with him" while on his first trial, but "all forsook him." In all this Paul was a sharer of his Master's sorrows (Matthew 26:56). "Only Luke is with me." Love of the world, backbiting, and cowardliness are still the sins that bring sorrow to many a faithful servant of God. In the world he had tribulation, but in Christ he had peace.

V. Forgiving Love. "I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge." He is true to the Spirit of his Master in praying for those who "despitefully used him and persecuted him" (Matthew 5:44). This ought to be the desire of all who have themselves experienced the forgiving grace of God. To overcome the evil actions of others with your good actions is to fight in the armour of God.

VI. Divine Faithfulness. "Notwithstanding the Lord stood with me and strengthened me" (2 Timothy 4:17). While giving his "first answer" before the unrighteous judge, he doubtless experienced the fulfilment of the Lord's promise: "It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which is in you" (Matthew 10:19-20). Paul's last testimony, like that of Joshua, is to the unfailing faithfulness of his God and Saviour (Joshua 23:14). "Lo, I am with you alway!"

VII. Unfailing Confidence. "The Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto His heavenly Kingdom" (2 Timothy 4:18). Come what may, there is no shadow of doubt or tremor of fear in the heart of this noble man as to his present safety from all evil and his future reward and eternal satisfaction in the coming Kingdom of His glory. He is assured that the sufferings of this present, life are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in that day when "He shall appear." Look up, for the day of your redemption draweth near.

Titus

SEVEN WONDERS.

Titus 2:11-14.

The novelty hunters are very numerous; like the Athenians they are always grasping for something new. But the greatest wonder in the world is the Bible. Its origin, teaching, and power are all superhuman.

I. A Wonderful Exhibition. "The grace of God that bringeth salvation to all men hath appeared." This is an exhibition of the grace of God. This means all the attributes of God, flowing out in order to save men. An exposition of the goodness of God. This is seen at the Cross of Calvary, in the Son of God's love, bleeding and dying for guilty men. The great "World's Fair" was only a heap of rubbish compared with this.

II. A Wonderful Character. Jesus is here called "The Great God and our Saviour." You may say Jesus Christ was only a man. Paul declares that He was the Great God. "His Name shall be called Wonderful-the Mighty God." What consolation is here for the Christian! Your Saviour is the Great God-fear not. What encouragement is here for the anxious! The great God is a Saviour- fear not to trust Him. What consternation is here for the self-righteous. You hope to save yourself, how fruitless your effort. It takes the Great God to save a soul.

III. A Wonderful Gift. "He gave Himself for us." For a man to lay down his life for his friend is wonderful. This is man at his best. But while we were yet enemies, Christ died for us. This is Divine. This is the only example the history of the world has ever given us of one willingly dying for his own murderers. He gave Himself for you. What hast thou given for Him? Oh, you say, "I have no time." What, no time to thank thy God for such a Gift.

Room and time now give to Jesus, Soon will pass God's day of Grace;

Soon thy heart be cold and silent, And thy Saviour's pleadings cease.

IV. A Wonderful Work. The work of Christ as here stated was to redeem and to purify, to purchase and to cleanse. When a woman buys a set of china, she does not think them fit for use until they are washed. They are bought, then washed. The Lord uses us, not because we are great and gifted; not because we are clever, but because we are clean. It is not enough that we be redeemed. If God is to be glorified in us we must be cleansed.

V. A Wonderful People. The redeemed and the purified are to be "a peculiar people." Some Christians are afraid of being peculiar, lest they should be talked about. They wish to mar the very works by which they ought to be known. Christians are a peculiar people. They have a peculiar citizenship. Their citizenship is in Heaven, because they have been born from above. Such a birth is not a thing to be ashamed of. They speak a peculiar language. The ungodly don't care about their conversation any more than for one speaking in a foreign tongue.

VI. A Wonderful Life. The life of the redeemed man is to be a resisting life. "A denying of ungodliness." It is to be a sober life, not only a teetotal life. This is implied, but much more. Be sober in your eating, in your clothing, in your speech. It is to be a righteous life. The Christian should be the most punctual business man, the most trustworthy of all men. It is to be a godly life. A life beaming with the gentleness and truthfulness of Jesus, reflecting back on a dark world the image of the invisible God. It is to be an active life, "zealous of good works."

VII. A Wonderful Prospect. "Looking for His glorious appearing." That the sun will rise to-morrow is not more certain than that Christ will come again. It may seem strange that He should say, "Behold, I come quickly," nineteen hundred years ago, and not to have come yet. But we must remember that 1000 years are with the Lord as but one day, so that two days have not yet passed according to His reckoning. He will come. Are you ready for His appearing? God grant that you may be prepared for that great day.

FULL SALVATION.

Titus 3:3-7.

It is easy to say that there is fulness of water in the ocean, fulness of wealth in the earth, and fulness of light in the sun; but can the richness of this fulness be reckoned up? So there is fulness of salvation in the grace of God, but that fulness can only be realised in the ages of the ages. In the above Scripture we see what might be termed seven steps into a full salvation.

I. An Honest Confession. "We ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, and slaves of sin" (Titus 3:3). Confession is the opening of the windows of the heart to the light of Heaven: an acknowledgment before God of our guilt and need of His mercy. God is faithful and just to forgive every sincere confessor (1 John 1:9).

II. A Divine Revelation. Of the "kindness and love of God our Saviour toward men" (Titus 3:4). God's kindness and love, as revealed in Christ Jesus, is the greatest and most precious discovery any sinful man ever made. To him it is a fountain opened, where streams of mercy flow for all his sin and uncleanness. When seen and trusted, constraining him to make this other confession: "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 John 4:9-10).

III. A Complete Justification. "Being justified by His grace" (Titus 3:7). As we have sinned against God, God alone can justify. This He does by His own free, unmerited favour, through Jesus Christ. "It is not by works, lest any man should boast" (Galatians 2:16). When God justifies the believer in Jesus it is an evidence that his forgiveness has been full and complete.

IV. An Entire Regeneration. "He saved us by the washing of regeneration" (Titus 3:5). Suppose it were possible to be justified from all sin, and yet not be changed in heart, or made a new creature How soon this justified one would be like the sow that was washed returning again to the mire. "Whom God justified, them He also glorified" (Romans 8:30). Justification sets us right with God for further blessing. Regeneration makes us like God in character for holy service. It would not be a full salvation without being "born from above."

V. A Daily Renovation. To meet this need there is "the renewing of the Holy Ghost which He shed on us abundantly" (Titus 3:5-6). This is the Divine remedy for spiritual staleness. "Be renewed in the spirit of your mind" (Ephesians 4:23). Along life's rough path there is much to tear and wear the energy of the soul; but the Holy Spirit can renew our freshness and fitness by His quickening influence. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth." Here the flesh profiteth nothing. Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. Our Lord said: "He that believeth on Me out of his inner man shall flow rivers of living water: this spake He of the Spirit" (John 7:37). "Believe and thou shalt see."

VI. An Eternal Possession. "Made heirs of the life of the ages" (Titus 3:7). Our Heavenly Father has such vast possessions that every child "born of God" becomes an heir-not merely of eternal existence, that is seen, without being "born again;" but of the abundant life that is in Jesus Christ, throughout all the coming ages. Thus we have fulness of mercy to begin with, fulness of grace to continue in, and at last fulness of life to glory in through all eternity. "He that hath the Son hath life" (1 John 5:11). "He is able to save to the uttermost."

Philemon

Philemon This is the briefest of all Paul's Epistles. It is the only sample of the Apostle's private correspondence that has been preserved. It is known as "The Courteous Epistle." Its object was to persuade Philemon not to punish, but reinstate, his runaway slave, called Onesimus, and as he was now converted, treat him as a brother in the Lord. THE TASK AND ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT.

Philemon.

I. The Task.

Invariably, in those days, runaway slaves were crucified. Paul must try to conciliate the master-Philemon-without humiliating the servant-Onesimus; to commend the repentant wrong-doer, without extenuating his offence; thus he must balance the claims of justice and mercy.

II. Its Solution.

1. Touching Philemon's heart by several times mentioning that he was a prisoner for the Gospel's sake.

2. Frankly and fully recognised Philemon's most excellent Christian character, thus making it difficult for him to refuse to live up to his reputation, and to lead him to deal graciously with the defaulter.

3. Delayed mentioning the name of the penitent until he had paved the way.

4. Referred to Onesimus as his "son," thus establishing the new kinship in Christ.

5. After presenting his request, assumed Philemon would do as he had requested (21).

6. Refused to command with the authority of an apostle, but entreated as a brother, as a bosom friend. See Philemon 1:8-9, Philemon 1:20; especially "Dearly beloved" (Philemon 1:1).

7. Frankly acknowledged the wrong done (11), and promised to make good any loss (18, 19).

8. By a careful choice of words, avoided irritation, as, for example, he says "departed" (15), not fled or runaway, etc., etc.

9. Feels the slave must not encounter his outraged master alone, so arranges for Philemon's friend, Tychicus, to accompany him and act as mediator. It is clear that Tychicus conveyed this letter to Philemon with Onesimus. (See Colossians 4:7-9).

10. Mentions his plans to visit Philemon (22); and how could he meet him if he had refused to carry out his request? A FOURFOLD FELLOWSHIP.

Philemon.

I. Fellow-believer. Trusting (6).

1. "Fellowship of thy faith" is R.V. "This faith which you share with us" (Way.).

2. What a glorious fellowship is this of faith. What an honour to be numbered as a member of the Lord's Household of Faith.

II. Fellow-soldier. Fighting (2).

1. Apphia is called "The Sister" in R.V. Was she Philemon's wife or daughter?

2. It is generally understood that Archippus was Philemon's son.

3. Fighting follows trusting. Soon the young believer discovers this. Fightings without-yes, and fightings within-"Flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh" (Galatians 5:17). Remember it was immediately after God had given water (type of Holy Spirit) to Israel, that Amalek (type of flesh) fought Israel. (See. Exodus 17:1-8). Observe force of "Then" in Philemon 1:8. But in this fight, through our Heavenly Moses on the Mount-our Lord Jesus as Great High Priest-we are more than conquerors.

III. Fellow-labourer. Working (1).

1. Philemon is not mentioned in the Epistle to the Colossians, but Archippus, whom Paul associates (in Philemon 1:2) with Philemon, is mentioned in such a way as to imply that both were office-bearers (Colossians 4:17). "Sharer in our toil" is Way's translation. Philemon was one of Paul's converts.

2. "Our fellow-workman" (J.N.D.).

IV. Fellow-prisoner. Suffering (23).

1. Only Epistle where Paul begins by simply calling himself a "prisoner." Six times does he allude to this (1,9,10,13,22,23).

2. The Epistle begins with Paul in bonds, but leads up to Paul in prayer.

3. Observe, "prisoner for Jesus Christ" (1, R.V.). He does not dwell on this in any spirit of boasting or proud display, but for a benign purpose.

4. Suffering for the Lord falls naturally to the lot of all born-again ones. The lustings of the flesh, for example, cause suffering. Then grace does refine, making us more sensitive to the jeers and taunts of the world, and to the unkind and uncharitable criticisms of fellow-believers.

5. But let us never forget we are not the only sufferers, for this is the common lot of all believers. "Fellow-prisoner."

6. It is generally understood that the prominent brethren took turns in voluntarily sharing the Apostle's imprisonment, so as to minister to him in his bonds, "not being ashamed of his chain" (2 Timothy 1:16). By such a fellowship of suffering they must have refreshed the heart of the Apostle.

7. Epaphras is the shortened or provincial form of Epaphroditus. AN ANALOGY OF OUR SALVATION.

Philemon.

I. Original Position. God created man perfect, and thus man was His property. But in sinning he not only departed from God, as Onesimus had done, but also robbed Him of His rights and just dues.

II. Sad Plight. As Onesimus fled to Rome, and was in a parlous position, so with man. As Roman law gave a slave no right to asylum, so the Law of God affords man no right of asylum, no resting place, no way of escape. The Law says, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."

III. God has a Partner (17). It is thought by some that Philemon and the Apostle had been partners in some business concern. In Jesus, God has a Partner utterly and entirely one with Him. He interposes on our behalf. Knowing to the full how much we have wronged God, and how much we owe Him, Jesus says, "Put that on Mine account." All our debt is put to Christ's account.

IV. Grace Intervenes. Roman law permitted a slave to flee to his master's friend, who could plead for him. Onesimus sought out his master's friend, Paul the Apostle, and he was born again-"whom I have begotten in my bonds" (10). Sinners fly to the Lord Jesus Christ. In Him, and through Him, they receive pardon, are begotten anew as sons, and find both a Saviour, an Intercessor, and a Father. The sinner returns to God, and is received, not as a runaway slave, but as Christ Himself (16). IN CHRIST JESUS.

Philemon 1:5-8.

There are eleven references to the Lord Jesus by name in this short Epistle of but one chapter. The specially significant phrase, "In Christ Jesus," occurs oftener than in the same number of verses anywhere else in Scripture. The Lord Jesus is referred to in many offices, as follows:

I. The Object of the faith and love of His people (5). "A faith that looks up to our Lord Jesus" (Way).

II. The Channel through which God's grace and peace becomes ours (3, 25).

III. The Source of any good thing in us (6).

IV. The Transforming Power (16). In Philemon 1:11 we have two pictures of one man. Here is a play upon the meaning of the name of Onesimus, which is "Profitable." Profitable by name, he became, through sin, unprofitable to his Master, but through the grace of the Lord, and through Christ's wonderful transforming power, profitable to both Paul and his friend Philemon. The Lord transforms waste into wealth. "In the Lord" (16), that is the explanation of the wonderful transformation in Onesimus.

V. Gives Boldness to His servants (8).

VI. Gives Satisfaction and refreshment to workers, by prompting their converts to generous and praiseworthy actions (20).

VII. Gives Restfulness in the consciousness that He knows all, and that nothing can come to us save by God's permission (1, 9, 23). Observe, Paul calls himself, not a prisoner of the Roman authorities, true though that was, but of Jesus Christ. Behind Rome he saw the Lord, and knew his imprisonment could not have been but for Divine permission.

RECEIVE.

Philemon.

This may be taken as the key-word of the Epistle, and forms both its heart and radiating centre. Observe the gathering emphasis in his repetition of this word, how he strikes each time a louder note and a higher key.

I. The Act. What was he to do? Receive (12).

II. The Manner.-How was he to receive Onesimus?

1. As Philemon would Receive Paul Himself (12, 17). "As my own flesh and blood" (C. & H.). "As a piece of my very heart" (Way). "I send part of myself" (W.). As Dr. Scofield has pointed out,. "Receive him as myself"-reckon to him my merit. "If he hath wronged thee or oweth thee ought, put that to my account" -reckon to me his demerit. Striking illustration of the Divine reckoning in our justification.

2. As a Beloved Brother in the Lord (16). In the flesh, Philemon has his brother-man for his slave; in the Lord Jesus he has the slave for his brother. By conversion, one sinner becomes son to Paul and brother to Philemon, his owner and master.

III. The Period. "Receive him for ever" (15). "For perhaps he therefore departed for an hour (lit.), that thou shouldest receive him for ever." What a contrast we have here. Paul suggests a loving Providence over-ruling.

BESEECH.

Philemon 1:8-10.

Note the intensity of feeling apparent by Paul's use and repetition of the strong word "beseech." But pray also note the Apostle's great wisdom in waiving his authority to command.

I. Paul's Authority (8). "Therefore, though I might with Christ's authority speak very freely and order you to do what is fitting, it is for love's sake that-instead of that- ... I entreat you" (W.). Paul had authority to command Philemon to reinstate Onesimus, because 1st. He was an Apostle.

2nd. He was Philemon's spiritual father.

3rd. Philemon was an office-bearer under Paul.

II. Paul's Wisdom (9). Paul wisely decided, in this case, not to exercise his authority, but to appeal to their mutual love, and to his aged and suffering condition. Elder brethren, and Christian leaders in Churches, would be well advised to more frequently emulate Paul's example, and to take care that their responsible position does not create a permanent, officious, domineering, autocratic, and dictatorial spirit. Such can easily be developed. Note the frequency in Paul's Pastoral Epistles of his commendation of a "gentle" spirit. There is a world of wisdom in that exhortation.

III. Paul's Success (10). There is no doubt whatever that Paul succeeded in his plea. His skill in presenting his case, and, above all, his gentle, loving entreaties were overwhelming. More success would be granted in many difficult Assembly and Church matters if Paul's example were more frequently copied.

Hebrews

Hebrews

Hebrews is an anonymous book. Though no one can dogmatise with regard to its authorship, it does seem to be of Paul's thinking and Luke's composition and writing. It was addressed to the converted Jews living in Judea, who, on account of bitter persecution, were wavering in their allegiance to Christ. It is an epistle of exhortation, comfort, and warning.

HOW TO PRESENT THE GOSPEL TO JEWS.

Hebrews.

Those who are called to evangelise Jews declare that there is no better statement of the Gospel to present to Jews than this Epistle. Let us trace the method of presentation, as seen in this Epistle. We notice first, that the Author here proves to the Jews that the Jesus of Nazareth they put to death on the hated Cross is none other than CHRIST their messiah, the son of God, the Second Person in the blessed Trinity. This is an important point. We cannot but admire the courage and faithfulness of the Apostle, for the Jews then, as now, were prepared to admire much in Jesus', but would not listen to His claim to Deity. Observe how slowly and methodically he declares and proves this.

I. Greater than Prophets. The prophets whom all Jews value, were great, but Jesus was greater than any or all of them (Hebrews 1:1-3). Why? Jesus is the 1. Origin of all things: "By whom also He made the worlds" (2).

2. Sustainer of all things: "Upholding all things" (3).

3. Glory of all things: "Brightness of His glory" (3).

4. Unique amidst all. Here the writer points out the absolute uniqueness of Jesus. However great were the prophets, none shared Deity, none were the "express image of" God.

II. Greater than Angels. Angels are great beings, but Jesus is greater than any or all of them put together (Hebrews 1:4-14), because:

1. Divine Names are given to Him (Hebrews 1:2, Hebrews 1:5, Hebrews 1:8, Hebrews 1:10).

2. Divine Worship was offered Him (Hebrews 1:6).

3. Divine Nature is announced as His (Hebrews 1:8).

4. Divine Majesty is ascribed to Him (Hebrews 1:8).

5. Divine Anointing bestowed upon Him (Hebrews 1:9).

6. Divine Works are assigned to Him (Hebrews 1:10).

7. Divine Attribute of Immutability (or Permanence, of constant continuity) residing in Him (Hebrews 1:11-12).

8. Divine Companionship was His-companion of the Most High (Hebrews 1:13).

9. Divine Rule committed to Him (Hebrews 2:5-8).

10. Divine Redemption worked out by Him (Hebrews 2:9-18).

III. Greater than Moses. Moses was very great, but Jesus was, and is, greater. This must have staggered the Jews. But the writer proves this point thus:

1. Moses was only a servant, whereas Jesus was Son of God, and a son is greater than a mere servant (Hebrews 3:5-6).

2. Moses was "in God's House" (Hebrews 3:5), but Jesus "over" God's House'.

3. Yea, more, Moses was only in God's House, but Jesus "over His Own House" (Hebrews 3:5-6).

IV. Greater than Joshua. Joshua was a great leader, but Jesus far greater (Hebrews 4:1-13). Because Jesus renders a more conspicuous service in the bestowal of a Rest far better than the one Joshua (R.V., Hebrews 1:8) led Israel into. Study Philemon 1:5 and Philemon 1:8 in contrast to Philemon 1:9.

V. Greater than Aaron. Aaron, the first high priest of Israel, was great, but Jesus greater (Hebrews 5:4-8; compare Hebrews 7:10-28). How can this be?

1. His Title. Aaron was High Priest, but Jesus called "Great High Priest" (Hebrews 4:14).

2. His Sonship. No high priest ever was called "The Son of God" (Hebrews 4:14). Note, not "a" Son, but "The Son."

3. His Perfect Sympathy. "Touched with the feeling of our infirmities" in a more perfect fashion than any earthly priest (Hebrews 4:15).

4. His Sinlessness. All priests, or high priests, are only sinful men, but even the bitterest enemies of Christ have had to acknowledge His sinlessness (Hebrews 7:26).

5. His Kingship. Jesus is King and Priest, a combination not permitted to any king of Israel or Judah (Hebrews 7:1). (Study Numbers 16:40; Numbers 18:7; 2 Chronicles 26:18). He was made Priest after the order of Melchisedec, and Abraham acknowledged Melchisedec to be his superior (Hebrews 7:4-10).

6. His Sphere. Jesus ministers in a far better sanctuary than Aaron or any of his successors (Hebrews 8:1-4; Hebrews 9:1-15).

WHY JESUS CHRIST CAME DOWN TO THIS WORLD OF OURS.

Hebrews 1:3.

Much confusion exists in the minds of many men and women as to our Lord's chief errand in coming here to this world of ours. Was He sent into the world

I. To be the Prophet of God? He did come with a message from the Most High, and such a message! It was entirely original and unique. He was and is the (not a) prophet of God, yet that was not His primary mission.

II. To be the Revealer of God? "Shew us the Father and it sufficeth us," said the disciples to our Saviour, thus articulating man's agelong hunger and passionate desire. Now Jesus did reveal the Unseen. He declared "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father"-marvellous statement. Yet that was not His supreme mission.

III. To be the Ruler of God? He was not only born of the tribe of Judah, but of the family of David, thus of the Davidic line. He entered Jerusalem as King after three and a-half years' ministry. He claimed the Throne of David. But He was rejected. Yet He must ascend that throne by and by. The next king of united Israel must present and prove his descent from David. Only one Person can do this-the Man Christ Jesus. For all genealogical registers were burned at the destruction of Jerusalem and the burning of the Temple, a.d. 60, and the only descendant of David who can present his genealogy is Jesus, for that has been preserved in perpetuity in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke. Yet He came to do something very important, ere He could reign.

IV. To be the Lamb of God? Yes. Hebrews 1:3 declares the primary work He came to do. This was the work for which He came. He came to be a man and die. Seeing He came to purge our sins, why spend so much time in these early chapters of Hebrews to prove His Deity and His Majesty? Ah, the importance of the work performed is proved by the greatness of the Agent. The more important work of the State is entrusted to the most important servants. When the King entrusts a duty to his own firstborn Prince, all are conscious of the importance of the task. THE ETERNAL FRESHNESS OF CHRIST'S SACRIFICE.

Hebrews 10:20; Revelation 5:6.

Dr. Chadwick draws attention to the Greek word rendered "New," stating that it is unknown elsewhere in Scripture, and means "newly slain." Thus is declared the perpetual freshness of the offering of Christ. This is further taught in that pregnant sentence in the Revelation, "A Lamb as it had been slain," as if freshly slain. Luther saw this point, and remarked, "It seems but yesterday that Jesus died on the Cross." A modern poet also saw this truth and crystallised it in that line of poetry:

"Dear dying Lamb, Thy precious Blood

Shall never lose its power." THE ETERNAL COMPLETENESS AND EFFICACY OF CHRIST'S DEATH.

Hebrews 8:12.

This is brought out and emphasised many times in this Epistle (Hebrews 7:27; Hebrews 9:25-26; Hebrews 10:1-3), but particularly in association with Hebrews 8:12. The late James Neill, M. A., has so well pointed out that the New Covenant referred to in chapter Hebrews 8:6-13, begins at a point to which the Old Covenant never for a moment reached. For there was no sacrifice to atone for wilful sin under the Old Covenant, with four exceptions only:

1. Wilful concealment of knowledge as a witness (Leviticus 5:1).

2. A wilful lie (Leviticus 6:2).

3. Perjury (Leviticus 6:2).

4. A sin of uncleanness (Leviticus 19:20, Leviticus 19:22). As to all else, it is said: "The soul that acts presumptuously... that soul shall be cut off" (Numbers 15:30). That shows the force of David's petition, "Thou desirest not sacrifice, else would I give it" (Psalms 51:16). He is referring to his wilful sin, for which no provision had been made. But of this New Covenant, well, it begins at a point where the Old Covenant never reached-the full, free, forgiveness of all sin. Praise the Lord! Hence the force of "The Blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7).

BETTER.

Hebrews.

This may be taken as the keynote of the Epistle. The Jewish Christians, to whom this Epistle was specifically addressed, owing to the taunts and jeers of their persecutors, were beginning to undervalue their Christian possessions. Therefore the writer rings the changes on the word "better," conceding they had certain things under the Law, but under Grace far "better."

1. Blessings (Hebrews 11:40).

2. Sacrifice (Hebrews 9:23).

3. Blood that Speaks of Better Things (Hebrews 12:24).

4. Hope (Hebrews 7:19).

5. Covenant (Hebrews 8:6; Hebrews 7:22).

6. Promises (Hebrews 8:6).

7. Substance (Hebrews 10:34).

8. Country (Hebrews 11:16).

9. Resurrection (Hebrews 11:35).

"WE HAVE."

Hebrews.

The Jewish Christians were being taunted by their unconverted countrymen that through espousing the cause of Christ they had lost everything. The Apostle proves to them that they have only lost the shadow for the substance. The "We have's" of the Apostle must have greatly impressed them. "We have"

1. A Great High Priest (Hebrews 4:14).

2. Such a High Priest (Hebrews 8:1).

3. A Strong Consolation (Hebrews 6:18).

4. A Cheering Hope (Hebrews 6:19).

5. Boldness (Hebrews 10:19).

6. A Better Substance (Hebrews 10:34).

7. An Altar-Christ (Hebrews 13:10).

SALVATION.

Hebrews.

1. Our Name: Heirs. "Heirs of salvation" (Hebrews 1:14).

2. Our Salvation: Great. "So great salvation" (Hebrews 2:3).

3. Our Peril: How? "How shall we escape? " (Hebrews 2:3). The unanswerable question. What must I do to be lost? Just nothing. No need to reject salvation or treat it with contempt-just neglect it.

4. Our Benefactor: Author. "Captain of their salvation (Hebrews 2:10). Captain means author or originator.

5. Our Destiny: Eternity. "Eternal salvation" (Hebrews 5:9).

6. Our Blessings: Things. "Things that accompany salvation" (Hebrews 6:9).

7. Our Goal: Uttermost. "Saved to the uttermost" (Hebrews 7:25).

8. Our Hope: Without Sin. "Without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:28).

SAVED TO THE VERY END.

Hebrews 7:25.

This verse has been called "The Gospel for Saints." But why saints? Sinners need the Gospel, that is universally admitted. But do saints need a Gospel message? Yes; and when the message of "uttermost" is understood, the force of this word is seen. The meaning of the word in the Greek rendered "uttermost" is really "to the very end." "The end"-not end in time but end in place. It is true His salvation is good for both. But we are endeavouring to penetrate into the meaning of this word before us.

Israel was saved from death in Egypt by the sprinkling of the blood, and saved from the power of their enemy when the waters of the Red Sea drowned the pursuing army. But they were not saved "to the uttermost," i.e., "to the very end" (as Rotherham renders it) until, after the forty years' wanderings expired, they crossed the Jordan and took possession of the Promised Land. This is a great word. If a redeemed soul has not yet fully entered into his possessions in Christ, and in consequence is not living the life of victory and communion of Beulah land, he has not yet been saved "to the uttermost?"

1. His Ability to Save. "He is able."

2. Whom He Saves. "Them that come."

3. Extent of His Salvation. "To the uttermost," right up to Canaan, i.e., the life of fellowship and victory.

4. Period of His Salvation. "To the very end" (r.).

5. Ground of this Salvation. "He ever liveth."

6. Character of His Salvation. "Completely" (J.N.D.).

DWELLING AT COURT.

Hebrews 10:19-22.

The Doctrinal part of the Epistle is now ended, and the important application begins. Here we reach the goal. Here we see the child of God at home. That Home is the Holy Place, the very presence of God. "Christianity is a religion of access."

I. The Privilege. "Having therefore liberty" (19, A.V., marg.). The privilege of dwelling in the Secret Place is the fruit of Christ's death. And this privilege is for to-day, and all our days, for time as well as eternity.

II. The Enablement. "Let us draw near." Observe: "Boldness," associated with "the Blood of Jesus."

III. The Conditions.

1. A True Heart. Heart right with God.

2. "Full Assurance." Faith in full, vigorous, healthy exercise.

3. Good Conscience. Through His Blood we find release from the haunting sense of guilt.

4. Purified Bodies. A dedicated and purified body and a life cleansed from all outward degrading and ignoble habits and practices.

FAITH IN OPERATION.

Hebrews 11.

This chapter has been called the Westminster Abbey of the Bible. Herein are preserved word-portraits of some members of the family of God in relation to the life of faith. Have you ever wondered why mention should be made of their faith and not their sins? Why? Obviously because every believer is seen here in the light of chapter 10. They stand in the Covenant of Grace, and are seen as those who have fully accepted the great sacrificial work of the Redeemer, and that means the pardon and blotting out of their sins, never to be remembered again forever. Praise the Lord!

Let us summarise this chapter: In Hebrews 11:1 we have the Nature of Faith-that it is not a guess, nor an airy nebulous sort of thing, but "substance," "evidence." In the rest of the chapter we have demonstrated the Possibility of Faith to all classes and grades of individuals, women and men, servants and master, the weak and the strong, the educated and the illiterate.

FAITH.

Hebrews 11.

Faith's:

1. Description, Substance and Evidence (1).

2. Report, Elders (2).

3. Credence, Creation (3).

4. Worship, Abel (4).

5. Witness, Enoch (5,6).

6. Work, Noah (7).

7. Walk, Abraham (8).

8. Patience, Abraham (9, 10).

9. Willingness, Sarah (11,12).

10. Welcome, Unknown Heroes (13-16).

11. Sacrifice, Abraham (17-19).

12. Triumph, Isaac (20-22).

13. Preservation, Parents of Moses (23).

14. Renunciation, Moses (24-26).

15. Flight, Moses (27).

16. Contagion, "He" then "Them" (28, 29).

17. Exploit, Israel (30).

18. Salvation, Rahab (31).

19. Manifold Activities, Many Saints (32-40). THE RAGE.

Hebrews 12:1,Hebrews 12:2.

In the Bible there are various views of life. Here is an athletic one, that of a race. This simile is suggestive.

I. The Race. Speaking of 1. Strenuous effort.

2. Run, not loiter.

3. Changeful life implied, with fresh views.

4. A Progressive life, calling for 5. Concentration.

II. The Appointment. "Set before us."

III. The Incentive. A cloud of witnesses. We are being watched, at anyrate by our Blessed Lord.

IV. The Preparation. "Let us lay aside."

"The Weight"-lawful things, yet things not helpful.

"The Sin"-besetting sin.

V. The Speed. "Let us run," not loiter.

VI. The Spirit. "Run with patience."

VII. The Inspiration. Looking unto Jesus.

VIII. The Goal. The Glory.

Note.-For a more detailed study of this Epistle, see the Author's "The Outlined Hebrews," where there are 118 separate and distinct studies in addition to these. OUR GOD A CONSUMING FIRE

Hebrews 12:29

Here are a few striking words used in Scripture to describe the essential character of God. (1) God is Spirit (R.V.., margin). Herein is seen His indivisibility and greatness. (2) God is Love. This reveals His unfathomable and unchangeable goodness. What a privilege to dwell in such an abode (1 John 4:16). (3) God is Light. And this, because He is Love. In Him is no darkness at all. No uncertainty. No unrighteousness. (4) God is Fire. Not in figure, but in reality-a consuming fire. This solemn, dreadful, aspect of God's nature is frequently overlooked. Herein is the death of sin and self; herein is the life of holiness. This is the God with which we as Christians have to do. It was as fire God first appeared to His servant Moses; this made the place holy ground, and although the bush was not consumed, we may be assured that everything unclean within the bush would be burned up. We carry about with us daily the mystery of the burning bush "Know ye not that God dwelleth in you?" Yet the frail bush of our bodies is not consumed. We have this treasure in earthen vessels "that the excellency of the power may be of God.

I. As a Fire our God Consumes. On the altar, the fire, as a symbol of God's presence, was ever burning. On the altar of our heart, as on the throne of our being, there still dwells the Spirit of burning. This holy fire cannot suffer the approach of that which is unclean. The Nadabs and Abihus of pride and self-conceit are instantly devoured (Num. 10). It was a self-crucifying revelation Paul received, when it pleased God to reveal His Son in him (Galatians 1:15-16; Galatians 2:20). The Holy of Holies was such, because the pillar of fire abode there. Hence there was no way of entrance without blood. May the Blood of Jesus so guard the way of access into our inmost soul, where the Holy Spirit dwells, and may this holy fire consume all that would approach without the blood.

II. As a Fire our God Purifies. The presence of God was the purifying and the sanctifying of the Temple. It is true now, that when the Lord the Spirit suddenly comes into the temple of our body He is like a refiner's fire. "Who shall stand when He appeareth?" (Malachi 1:3). There must be no other authority when He appeareth; every power of our being must become subject to Him, and in the submitting they are purified. As every vessel of the Tabernacle was given to God, and claimed and used by Him, so the members of our body are to be yielded to Him as instruments of righteousness (Romans 6:13).

III. As a Fire our, God Empowers. What a real power fire is. Think of the fire-driven engines that push the mighty ironclads like ploughshares through the deep. Wherever fire is, its power is felt. "Our God is a consuming fire." Can He be in us without a Divine power being seen and felt? When the disciples were baptised with the Holy Ghost and with fire it could not be hid. "These men," they said, "are full of new wine." When the live coal touched the lips of the prophet, how quickly the power was seen in him. "Here am I, send me" (Isa. 6). The indwelling fire is the remedy for all formality and coldness in the Lord's service. It is the eternal enemy of the chilly, freezing breath of unbelief. "He shall baptise you with fire." Are you willing to be baptised with this baptism?

James

James

Or, the Epistle of Jacob, for James is another form of Jacob. This is a letter written primarily for the Jewish Christians. It is the most practical of all the Epistles, and could be called "A Practical Guide to Christian Life and Conduct," or "A Guide-Book for Everyday Religion." Note the vivid and picturesque style. James thinks in figures, and illumines his theme with metaphors. He is often quite dramatic. He frequently states great truths in a form which touches on paradox, so compelling active thought. THE DEITY OF OUR LORD.

James 1:1; James 2:1.

Bondman. That is the real meaning of the word "servant." "James, bondman of," etc. (J.N.D.). Most of the servants of that time were slaves, and the New Testament writers proudly accepted that title as an apt description of their association with God and with Christ.

Observe the humility of James in abstaining from any reference to his earthly relationship to the Lord Jesus Christ, to Whom he was brother according to the flesh.

Though James mentions the Name of God seventeen times, he repeats the Name of Jesus but twice, here, and in James 2:1, but note how reverently and devoutly he does this; and what a world of significance there is in his deliberate association of the awful Name of God with Jesus. Though James was bitterly opposed to Jesus and His claims prior and up to His death, he was, immediately after the Resurrection, converted by a special and private interview with the Risen One (1 Corinthians 15:7). This adds value to the testimony of James with regard to the Deity of our Lord.

I. An Arresting Fact. James only refers to his own brother Jesus twice, and then in a reverent and devout fashion. Though they knew each other so well, there was no familiarity, for he called Him, Lord and Christ as well as Jesus. This is an arresting fact.

II. An Impressive Fact. The fact that a brother associates his relative in such a way with God as to imply an equality with the Almighty is very impressive. If Jesus were not Deity, then such an association would be blasphemous. Note, "God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ."

III. A Glorious Fact. James calls his brother Jesus "The Lord of Glory" (James 2:1). This is a glorious Old Testament title for God.

IV. A Significant Fact. James calls himself the slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ. That implied on his part full surrender of will and life. A slave because:

1. Purchased-by the Blood of Christ.

2. Liberated-from sin's guilt and servitude.

3. Pledged-conscious of blessed freedom, in great thankfulness he pledged life, service, and possessions.

4. Dependent-in conscious utter dependence upon Him.

V. An Interesting Fact. "To the twelve tribes." Then there were not any lost tribes, for he addressed his letters to the twelve, whose location was evidently well known at that time.

TEMPTATIONS.

James 1:2,James 1:12-15.

After the briefest of greetings, James at once plunges into his subject. He begins by telling them how they are to regard their temptations.

I. Nature (13). The temptation dealt with here is not that testing of character so familiar in other parts of the Bible (Genesis 22:1, etc.), but the enticement to sin.

II. Origin (14). We must not lay the blame on wrong shoulders. Whilst testings of character come from God, temptations to evil come not from Him, but from the evil one through our own corrupt nature. "Fall," not "go into" (2).

III. Form. "Manifold" (Young). "Divers temptations" (2). "Hedged in" is the Weymouth rendering.

IV. Estimation. "Count it all joy," etc (2). "Greet it as pure joy" (M.). We usually count it joy when we escape from temptation, sorrow, or loss. Instead, we should count the testing a glorious opportunity of proving our faith.

V. Purpose (3). Why we have to count it joy is not the trial itself, but its purpose. God makes such the instrument of blessing. It is quite possible for trial to work impatience, but He will give grace that the real purpose of it may be accomplished.

VI. Blessedness. The man who does not escape, but survives and conquers temptation, is blessed, and becomes happily conscious of the Lord's benediction (12).

COUNTING.

James 1:2.

Spiritual arithmetic is of value. The arithmetic of the Bible is important, and no Christian believer can afford to ignore it. James, in James 1:2, invites his Christian brethren to "count."

I. God's Counting.

1. His Counting of Identification. As Job, on account of his sickness, was counted an enemy (Job 19:11; Job 33:10), and a stranger and alien (Job 19:15), so God counted the Lord Jesus on the Cross, as we should have been counted-an enemy and an alien.

2. His Counting of Righteousness. As Abraham's faith was counted for righteousness (Genesis 15:6), so with us (Romans 4:3).

3. His Counting of Comfort. He counts: a. Believers as "Seed of Promise" (Romans 9:8). b. All our Steps (Job 31:4). c. All our Hairs (Matthew 10:30). Most of us only see the Lord's care in counting our hairs; but the late Dr. Pierson saw much more. Said he "Numbered, not simply counted. Every hair has its own number, and if one has disappeared, that number has gone off the list." What a marvellous thought this is! d. Counts the place of our birth as deserving of honour (Psalms 87:6). e. Delights in counting His servants as faithful ones (1 Timothy 1:12). f. And as partners (Philemon 1:17).

II. Believer's Counting.

1. Blood as Precious (1 Peter 1:19), in contrast with some who count that same Blood an unholy thing (Hebrews 10:29).

2. God's Thoughts, as preserved in the Bible, to be Precious (Psalms 139:17-18).

3. Himself as a Sacrifice, and to live, day by day, the sacrificial life (Acts 20:24).

4. All Human Merit as loss for Christ (Php_3:7).

5. Prepared to Undervalue everything, counting it as "dung" in order to gain a more excellent knowledge of Christ (Php_3:8).

6. Count the Cost of loyalty and devotion to our Lord (Luke 14:28).

7. Trials as Profitable (James 1:2).

PATIENCE.

James 1:3-4; James 5:7-8, James 5:11.

What a man James was for the word "patience!" Both J.N.D., W., M., and Young give "endurance" in James 1:3-4, which is one fruit and manifestation of patience.

I. Its Passivity. The Dictionary defines patience as forbearance; longsuffering; endurance. "Patience" in James 1:3 is translated "endurance" in some other versions. Patience is a passive virtue. It enables us "to grin and bear up" under the most trying and testing ordeal.

II. Its Activity (James 1:3-4). Yet patience is not only passivity-it really does work. "Let patience have her perfect work." If patience is allowed full scope and operation in our lives, then we shall speedily mature, and enjoy fulness. "That ye may become perfect and complete, deficient in nothing" (W.).

III. Its Production. The various allotments of Divine Providence come as testings, and these, by God's grace and blessing, will produce patience (James 1:3-4).

IV. Its Exercise (James 1:4). Patience is a grace, for which special grace is given. Its muscles require exercise for development. "Long patience" is suggestive (James 5:7). "Let your endurance be a finished product" (M.), on James 1:4.

V. Its Exemplar (James 5:11). Job is brought before us as an illustration and exhibition of patience. Ponder the phrase, "The end of the Lord," i.e., His purpose in permitting and designing Job's trials. There was an end to Job's patience, but none to the Lord's.

WISDOM.

James 1:5; James 3:13,James 3:15,James 3:17.

Wisdom was a great word amongst the Jews. It is required for every walk of life. The presence of wisdom here in association with temptations is suggestive. It is specially difficult to behave wisely in times of testing, when wronged and insulted. But the wisdom from above will enable us so to do. Let us put together the teaching on wisdom found in this short Epistle.

I. Lack of Wisdom. It is possible to lack wisdom. This is suggested by the sentence: "If any of you lack wisdom." What a sad lack. What a mess such a lack can lead us into.

II. Uniqueness of Wisdom. Does James say, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him sit down and think, or take a course of study?" No. Then the wisdom he has in mind is absolutely unique.

III. Origin of Wisdom. This wisdom is "from above" (James 3:17), from God (James 1:5). We get from the sky, and not from the earth, all those gracious influences without which our world would be only a gigantic, lifeless cinder, rolling through space. Light and heat, sunshine and rain, come from above. Our spiritual life as well as our earthly life is dependent upon what comes from above.

IV. Condition of Wisdom. Its possession follows "asking of God" (James 1:5). Prayer leads to the possession of this wisdom.

V. Counterfeit of Wisdom. This is the point suggested by James 3:15. How sad to be deceived-to imagine oneself to be wise. Yet the wisdom which comes not from God is at the best but "earthly," and possibly "sensual," yea even "devilish."

VI. Proof of Wisdom. "Which of you is a wise and well instructed man? Let him prove it by a right life with conduct guided by a wise and teachable spirit," is W. most excellent translation of James 3:13. The crowning proof of wisdom is in our "conversation" (James 3:13). It is here in tongue, when under trial, we so often fail. Wisdom from above will influence our tongue.

VII. Manifestation of Wisdom. The true wisdom is manifested by the possession and practice of the following most excellent qualities recorded in James 3:17 :

1. Purity.

2. Peaceableness.

3. Gentleness-"Courteous" is W.

4. Easy to be Entreated"-"Not self-willed" is W.

5. "Full of Mercy"-"compassion" is W.

6. "Without Partiality"-"free from favouritism" is W.

7. "Without Hypocrisy"-"free from all insincerity" (W.). THE GIVING GOD.

James 1:5.

Our God is a God who loves to give. Alexander the Great said to one overwhelmed with his generosity, "I give as a King." Jehovah gives as the infinite God. Someone has stated that the sentence here could be translated: "Ask the Giving-God." He loves to give because He is Love, and love must give and continue giving.

I. What? The Identity of His gifts. He gives many things, but wisdom is mentioned here. How much we need wisdom. God gives that mercy.

II. To Whom? The Recipient of His gifts. God gives "to all," for He is no respector of persons.

III. When? The Date of His giving. "Let him be asking of God," is Rotherham's rendering. We must continue asking, not presenting our petition once only, but again and again.

IV. How? The Spirit of His giving. "Who gives with open hand to all men, and without upbraiding" (W.). Observe:

1. He Gives Liberally. His giving goes beyond our asking.

2. He Gives Ungrudgingly.

3. He Gives without Criticising or Scolding. "And reproaches not." is J.N.D.'s rendering. He does not reprimand our ignorance, nor scold our foolishness. He utters no word of reproach. He casts up nothing of the past.

PRAYING.

James.

In the first few verses of this Epistle, James touches on most of the things he later on elaborates. That is particularly true of the subject of prayer.

Prayer is one of the easiest subjects for speakers to preach, or authors to write upon, but not so easy to practice. After listening to an address on prayer, to ask the speakers how much time they devote to prayer might give them a very bad half-hour.

Now James has much to say on prayer. What about his practice! Ah, he did practice what he preached. The tradition concerning him is that, when on his death, the women came to bestow upon the body the last sad attentions, they found that his knees were worn hard as a camel's through his constant habit of prayer.

I. Necessity. James, in common with other of the New Testament writers, points out the necessity, and extreme value of prayer.

II. For Whom? "For each other" (James 5:16), as well as for ourselves (James 1:5).

III. When? Of course at all times, in the common and everyday affairs of life, but especially when "afflicted" (James 5:13), or sick (James 5:14).

IV. How?

1. Earnestly (James 5:17).

2. Fervently. "The fervent supplication."

V. Requirement?

1. Faith (James 1:6; James 5:15). "Prayer of faith."

2. Energy (James 5:16-17). The energy of the Holy Spirit is required. "The supplication of a righteous man, when it is energised" (R.). "The fervent supplication" (J.N.D.).

3. Righteousness. "Of a righteous man," that is of a man who has discovered the worthlessness of his own righteousness, and the righteousness of God which becomes ours by faith.

4. Wholeheartedly. "The heartfelt supplication of a righteous man" (W.).

VI. Success.

1. "Very Strong is a working supplication of a righteous man " (Y.). Prayer is strong with God.

2. "Much Availeth, the supplication of a righteous man" (R.), 3. "Exerts a Mighty Influence" (W.).

VII. Exponent. Elijah (James 5:17-18). THE RICH AND THE POOR.

James.

James in his Epistle shows characteristic disregard of, yea, almost contempt of, wealth. Whilst there were many poor folk in the early Christian assemblies, there were also the rich. Evidently there was a tendency to exaggerate the importance of wealth, and on the part of some to show undue regard and respect to the wealthy, to the detriment of the poor. James seeks to correct this mistake There is a place for respect in daily life. To show respect for age, for weak, for women, for official position, for authority, is a Christian duty. For subjects to show respect to their King, Emperor, or President, is commended in Scripture. But the respect James denounces is quite different. Respect of persons is not only a breach of good manners, and discourteous to the poor, but sin against God (James 2:9). What James here forbids, the world does every day-worships the successful, strong, and wealthy; and despises the man who is poor. Believers must not follow the example of the world.

I. The Poor:

1. Should rejoice in being heirs of the Kingdom (James 2:5).

2. Should see that they are rich in faith (James 2:5).

3. Should humbly rejoice in any improvement in employment or wealth (James 1:9).

II. The Rich:

1. Should bow humbly to the various adverse allotments of Divine Providence (James 1:10).

2. Should not expect any preferential treatment in the assembly (James 2:2-4).

3. Should humbly remember injustices inflicted by some wealthy folk on the poorer members of Christ's flock (James 2:6-7). ON BEING DECEIVED.

James 1:16, James 1:22, James 1:26.

Three times over in this chapter does James warn God's people upon the possibility and danger of being deceived. Wise are we if we take heed to the warning.

I. About God (James 1:16). "Be not deceived" is the R.V. At first sight we are not sure whether this is a warning against (13) blaming God for our temptations to evil, or imagining changefulness in Him (17). On a second sight we decide that it has to do with James 1:17-21.

1. God's Gifts are:

a. "Good." b. "Perfect." c. "From above" (17) 2. God Himself.

a. Source of all Light-like the sun, the centre and chief of all the glories of the visible universe. b. Free from variableness-is to be relied upon. c. "Free from shadow cast by turning" (R.).

II. About Ourselves (James 1:22).

1. If only a hearer and not a doer of the Word, we shall deceive ourselves (James 1:22).

2. Such are like most of us who have a habit of looking into the mirror in an absent-minded sort of way (James 1:23-24).

III. About Religion (James 1:26).

1. The religion that does not influence the tongue is not a true or vital one.

2. True vital godliness leads to, and includes: a. Control of tongue. b. Purity of life-"Unspotted from the world." c. Usefulness in life-"Visit the fatherless and widows." THE BOOK.

James.

It is both interesting and instructive to trace what James has to say about the Holy Book of God. Putting all together we get a helpful study.

I. Its Names.

1. "Word." Origin of it (James 1:18). Word proves authorship. A word is the result of the mental and vocal exercise of a personal being. Therefore in that simple word of four letters, w-o-r-d, we have taught the origin of the Book-God Himself.

2. "Law." Authority of it (James 1:25). What a paradox we have here. Law imposes restraint. Yet we find here the phrase, "Law of Liberty." Observe a few points: a. Restraint of the Book-"Law." b. Liberty of the Book-"Law of Liberty." c. Perfection of the Book-"Perfect Law." d. Authority of the Book-Law implies the Law-giving God.

3. "Truth"-finality of it (James 1:18). It is the Word of Truth-that suggests its finality. Both Christ, the Living Word, and the Bible, the Written Word, are Truth.

4. Judge. Exercise of it (James 2:12). This verse declares no new thought, but only enforces what our Lord Jesus declared (John 12:48). The Word of God will be our Judge at that Great Day, II. Its Operations.

1. Convinces (James 2:9). The Law convinces of transgression.

2. Begets (James 1:18). We are born of God's Holy Spirit, through the Word. The Word is the great regenerating medium.

3. Implants (James 1:21). "Lay aside all filthiness and abounding of wickedness" is J.N.D. translation. The word "engrafted" is suggestive, teaching that upon the stem of our natural life God engrafts His Word, and so infuses His own life. For "engrafted" J.N.D. gives "implanted," teaching the inwardness of the operation of the Word.

4. Energises (James 1:25). The phrase "Law of Liberty" is suggestive of power, of energy. Law stands for force, power, energy.

III. Our Attitude.

1. Examine (James 1:25). "Looketh into." In this, and also James 1:23, the Word is likened to a Mirror, into which we peer, and the contents of which we are to examine.

2. Hear (James 1:23). "Hearer of the Word." What a privilege it is to hear His Word.

3. Receive (James 1:21). But hearing the Word is not sufficient, we are to "receive" it "with meekness."

4. Do (James 1:23). How practical is James. We must not be satisfied with only "hearing," we must go on doing. THE TONGUE.

James 1:19, James 1:26; James 1:3.

In the early Christian Church there evidently was great freedom of speech, and that liberty was abused. From the severity with which James deals with the tongue it is clear that there had been a great deal of ill-considered, ill-natured, self-assertive and violent speech amongst the Jewish Christians.

Probably this had taken the form of angry debating and bitter strife in the Assembly. At any rate verse I of chapter 3 seems to hint at this. The verse clearly shows that there were many who aspired to leadership and public ministry, without taking in mind the serious responsibilities of that position. In this verse James refers to the danger associated with too great a readiness to put forward one's opinions on matters of religion.

Associated here with warning are bright Gospel lessons, and the reminder that one proof of our justified state is seen in our words; that our speech will reveal what and whose we are. A young man was sent to Socrates to learn oratory. On being introduced to the philosopher he talked so incessantly that Socrates asked for double fees. "Why charge me double?" asked the young fellow. "Because," replied the orator, "I must teach you two sciences, the one how to hold your tongue, the other how to speak."

I. An Awakening Statement (James 3:2). Who is a perfect man? James informs us: "If any man offend not in Word." Having mastery of that difficult member, the tongue, the rest is easy. "Able to curb his whole nature" (W.). "The same is a perfect man" is in W.: "That man has reached maturity of character." This then is the mark of a mature Christian.

II. A Sobering Description. Note the suggestive descriptions James gives of the tongue.

1. A Fire (James 3:6). Setting the whole being on fire as from Hell.

2. "A World of Iniquity" (James 3:6). Defiling the whole being of each individual.

3. "Full of Deadly Poison" (James 3:8).

4. "Unruly Evil" (James 3:8).

III. A Dread Possibility (James 3:9-10). That the same tongue can:

1. Bless and curse (James 3:9-10).

2. A fountain sending forth two kinds of water (James 3:11).

IV. A Wise Admonition (James 1:19; James 3:13-18). Notice how affectionately James addresses his readers. "Swift to hear, slow to speak"-what wise words! A wise man will seek only to produce "Good conversation."

V. A Sad Confession (James 3:7-8). Most living things can be tamed, yet "the tongue can no man tame," save the Man, Christ Jesus.

VI. A Glorious Possibility (James 1:26; James 3:3-6). This point forces itself upon us as we ponder the figures used by James for the tongue.

1. Bit and Bridle (James 3:2-3). To turn the whole body of the horse a firm hand on the bridle is required. The hand of the Man, Christ Jesus, can grip and firmly use the bit and bridle on our tongues.

2. Small Helm (James 3:4). The pierced Hand can firmly control and wisely use the helm of our lives-our tongue. THE ROYAL LAW.

James 2:8.

The Law of Love is here called the Royal Law. This is a lovely and suggestive description, teaching I. Its Origin. This Law comes from Heaven's Royalty, the Triune God.

II. Its Dignity. It is a Royal Law. Nothing petty or mean about it.

III. Its Authority. The fact that it comes from God gives it royal authority, the very authority of Heaven.

IV. Its Breadth. Its Royal sweep, taking in not only myself and my own, but others. "Thy neighbour" with the interpretation of Luke 10:29, Luke 10:36, means any and all.

V. Its Subject. Love, not admire or respect. What a Royal quality.

VI. Its Quality. There is Royalty in Its quality. We are to love "As thyself." But the new commandment (John 13:34) is even of richer quality and a higher standard, "Love one another as I have loved you."

VII. Its Power. Its Royal power. Love is here called a Law, i.e., a. power, a force, a dynamic.

WHAT IS SIN?

James 2:9; James 4:17.

What a simple question! Yet how it floors many. Mark you, the question is not: "What do men say sin is," but, "What saith the Scriptures?" Give the very words of the Bible. There are seven definitions of sin in the Book- two given by James, two by John, one by Paul, and two by Solomon.

I. Stepping Over, or breaking the Law of God (1 John 3:4).

II. Coming Short of the requirements of the Law (1 John 5:17).

III. Not Living Up to the Light God has already given to us (James 4:17).

IV. We Can Sin in Thought as well as by actions (Proverbs 24:9).

V. We Sin when we do Things we are Doubtful about (Romans 14:23).

VI. Sin Viewed as Pride and Vanity, and the performance of legitimate and indeed essential things, such as ploughing, with a wrong motive (Proverbs 21:4).

VII. Respect of Persons (James 2:9).

SOLIDARITY OF THE LAW.

James 2:10-12.

We are here exhorted ever to keep in mind the fact that we shall be judged by the Law, called here the Law of Liberty (James 2:12), and that the constant remembrance of that fact should influence our speech and conduct. "So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the Law of Liberty."

There is another point we shall deal with in our next study, but we must now note the solidarity of the Law.

It is human to gloss over sin. Said a little girl when excusing some questionable act, "I haven't broken the commandment, I've only cracked it." Here in James 2:10 and James 2:11 we are told that if only one commandment be broken, we are "guilty of all," that in the breaking of one we break all. Read Galatians 3:10 which enforces this fact, observing the word "all." We may have a fine chain, but of what use is it if all links are good save one? That one broken link renders it useless. "For whosoever obeys the whole Law, and only makes a single slip, is guilty of everything" (M.).

Another fact. It is clear that the one sin thought of here is that mentioned in Galatians 3:9., viz., respect of persons. And there are few, if left to themselves, who would ever dream of reckoning such behaviour as sin.

These are facts to ponder.

JUDGMENT AND MERCY.

James 2:13.

The point in this verse is that alluded to by our Lord in Matthew 7:1-2, that as we treat others, so shall we be dealt with. "For He shall have judgment without mercy, that hath showed no mercy." But are there not positions in which it is difficult to think of the exercise of mercy? Certainly. What then? For your guidance observe that fine phrase, "Mercy rejoiceth against judgment," or, as Dr. John Kerr remarks: "In the face of it." "It is a fine figure, mercy looking full in the face of judgment, and not losing a particle of its joy." These are great facts in human history and experience.

I. Judgment Without Mercy. Bad for the sinner (Psalms 1:5). No standing for the ungodly.

II. Judgment With Justice. Bad for the Saviour. Justice and judgment are the habitation of God's throne (Psalms 89:14; Psalms 97:2). He suffered in our stead.

III. Judgment With Righteousness. Good for the sinner (Psalms 33:5). At Calvary, God's mercy and righteousness met in the Person of Christ, and God's judgment was satisfied.

IV. Judgment With Mercy. Good for our neighbours. Such an exercise produces song (Psalms 101:1).

V. Judgment Defied by Mercy. One principle in our treatment of those who have wronged us. Good for our erring brother (James 2:13).

FAITH AND WORKS.

James 2:14-26.

This is the very heart of the Epistle, showing that real living faith is always known by its fruits. Many have imagined that James wrote these verses to combat Paul's teaching concerning justification by faith, as unfolded in the Epistle to the Romans. As a matter of fact, James wrote his Epistle some years before Paul wrote Romans. There is no conflict between the two Epistles, as the one is the complement to the other. Faith and works are inseparable, as the following proves. An old ferryman, a man of much thought and observation, but of few words, a reader of the Bible and a firm believer in its truths, had among his regular passengers two business men, who crossed together on the same day once a week. Their conversation often turned to this matter of faith and works, one of them thinking he could do without works if he had faith, and the other thinking he could do without faith if he had works. The ferryman's patience was so tried by the frequent and fruitless repetition of "faith" and "works," used as they were in a sense so different from their import and so destructive of their Scriptural harmony, that at last he felt that he must intervene. He said nothing, but fell upon the following expedient. On one of his oars he painted the word "Faith," and on the other "Works." When on his next passage across with the two friendly disputants, he reached the most dangerous part, he took in "Faith," and with all his might plied "Works." The boat went round and round, to the annoyance and fear of the two passengers. "Put out the other oar," called one of them in a loud and angry voice."Very well," was the old man's calm reply, as he took in "Works" and put out "Faith," which he used as he had formerly used the other. Of course this produced the same result, and the two men thought he must be out of his mind. The old man, however, continued his practical demonstration for a little, and then called their attention to the names painted on the oars. "I have tried your way," said he, "and yours; and you have seen the result. Now, observe my way." And as he gave a steady pull to each oar the boat at once acknowledged in its forward course the power of their harmonious strokes, and in a few minutes was at the land-place. "Thus it is," he added, "that faith worketh by love." So faith without works, or works without faith, will not suffice to bring us unto our desired haven. But let there be both, and the haven will be safely reached.

I. A Live Faith. Works are an evidence of a real live faith. The possibility of the possession of a dead faith is here declared (14, 15, 17, 18, 20, 26). Just as a live body will manifest its life in action, so live faith will move.

II. A Profitable Faith. Works make faith profitable (14). "What doth it profit?" is a great question. Here we have profit associated with faith. It is essential that we should have a profitable faith.

III. A Working Faith.

1. Faith Leads to Shuddering (19). Real faith leads us to believe in a living God. But what does such a faith lead to? It makes even devils tremble, or, as it could be rendered, "The devils also believe and shudder" (M. reads, "So do the devils, and they shudder"). Has your faith in the existence of God led to shuddering yet?

2. Faith Leads to Sacrifice (21). Abraham's faith led him to Mount Moriah, and to offering his son. Real faith will lead us to Calvary, and to accept the sacrifice Christ has made.

3. Faith Leads to Justification (24). That is, real, living faith.

IV. Perfection of Faith (22). Faith can mature. The proof of a strong and maturing faith will be seen in a plenitude of works.

FRIEND OF GOD.

James 2:23; James 4:4.

Unworldliness is here shown to be an infallible proof that we stand amongst the justified, that we have real and saving faith in Jesus Christ. Has this phrase, "The friend of God," ever gripped you? God evidently needed a friend, and He found in Abraham just that friendship that His heart craved.

What are the essentials to true friendship with God? This question is answered by noting what are the requirements for earthly friendship.

I. Confidence. There can be no real friendship without confidence, trust. This is its foundation. Confidence is the child of knowledge. The more we know of our friends, the more we trust them. Faith is the beginning of friendship with God.

II. Love. Confidence alone will not make an ideal friendship. Love is essential. This is essential to friendship, true friendship with God.

III. Frankness. Friends have frank, familiar intercourse one with another. A little girl defined a friend as one who knows all about you, and yet loves you in spite of that. A friendship that cannot bear the truth is of no value. Friendship with God welcomes the truth.

IV. Consideration. Friends delight to meet each other's wishes. They consider each other in every sense. We, if friends of God, will give Him every consideration.

V. Sacrifice. Even going to the point of real sacrifice in so doing. And, of course, real friends love to give presents to each other.

VI. Loyalty. True friends will stand up for each other, especially when absent the one from the other.

VII. Perpetuity. A true friendship is not for a time, but will stand the passage of the years. THE CRAZE FOR PLEASURE.

James 3:18; James 4:1-5.

Four times the word "lust" occurs in this section. What is lust? Dr. Pierson defined it as "A natural, normal longing which oversteps the limits God appoints. Passion should be our slave, and not our master." Dr. Jowett denned it as "anything that steams the windows of the soul," and thus blurs our vision.

Instead of the word "lusts," in James 4:1 and James 4:3, the A.V. margin and J.N.D. give "pleasures," and that forms the key to the meaning of these verses, and also the clue to the teaching they contain. Here we have a craze for pleasure, for sinful pleasure, and the results. Over-indulgence in pleasure is sinful. The Work of Pleasure-Mania.

I. Fomentation. "From whence come wars and fighting ("brawlings" in margin) among you? Come they not hence, even of your pleasures" (James 4:1). Inordinate pleasures, the craze for pleasures, fomented trouble in the Church. Compare the "fruit of righteousness" (James 3:18) with the results of sinful pleasures in James 4:1-4.

II. Penetration. "Your pleasures that take the field in your members," or Dr. Young's translation, "that are as soldiers in your members." These renderings are suggestive. If pleasure is allowed to have its own way in us, like soldiers, it takes the field in our members; that is, gets the mastery of us, and the results are saddening.

III. Agitation. "Ye covet" (Rotherham's rendering) and have not." "Ye envy (margin of A.V.) and desire to have. Ye fight and war" (James 4:2). What a state of agitated unrest have we depicted here, as a result of indulgence in sinful pleasures. And we note a further sad result described in one word-

IV. Dissatisfaction. Observe: "Ye covet (R.) and have not" . . . "Desire to have, and cannot obtain." What an unsatisfied and dissatisfied condition have we here.

V. Stagnation. Note: "Ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your pleasures" (James 4:2-3). What a dreadful effect over-indulgence in pleasure has upon the prayer-life, as shown in these verses. What a dreadful picture of spiritual stagnation! First-prayerlessness- "Ye ask not." Secondly-fitfulness-"Ye ask and receive not." Why? Because "ye ask amiss," asking for a wrong purpose, actuated by a wrong motive.

VI. Degeneration. What dreadful backslidings have we expressed in the following: "Ye adulterers and adulteresses"-"Friendship of this world," "Enemy of God" (James 4:4). How these believers had degenerated in their Christian walk, practice, and experience. They were now unfaithful to their God.

VII. Is there a Cure? Yes. Examine closely James 4:5, reading from Dr. Weymouth's translation: "The Scripture saith. . . the Spirit which He has caused to dwell in our hearts yearns jealously over us" (James 4:5). Or, as the late Dr. F. B. Meyer loved to say: "It could be translated, 'The Spirit which He made to dwell in us jealously yearns for our entire devotion.'" No believer who has fallen a victim to pleasure can ever be satisfied in that sad state. Certainly the Holy Spirit is not. How the Holy Spirit must love us to "yearn jealously over us." The cure is shown in the following verses, viz., getting low before the Lord, and seeking His full deliverance.

HUMBLED OR HUMILIATED-WHICH?

James 4:6-10,James 4:13-17.

What a difference there is between being humbled or humiliated! The first is my act, the second is the act of God; the first is remedial, the second retributive; the former is the beginning of blessing, the latter is the commencement of a curse. There is no escape from either the one or the other. If I do not humble myself under the mighty hand of God, the mighty hand of God will humiliate me.

I. Submit to God (James 4:6-7). Why should we submit ourselves to God?

1. In View of the Sadness of the Past (James 4:1-4). What a sad catalogue of sin and failure we have in James 4:1-4, showing what a mess we ourselves have made of our lives. This comes from the lack of surrender to God.

2. In View of the Present Power of the Evil One. Observe, before we are exhorted to "resist the Devil" we are urged to submit ourselves to God. To attempt to withstand the Evil One without fully surrendering to God, is asking for trouble. When the Devil is resisted by those who previously have fully surrendered to God, he flees.

3. In View of the Uncertainty of Life (James 4:13-15). How easy it is to plan without God, yet how futile. All our plans should first be submitted to God, and even then announced as "If the Lord will."

4. In View of the Surprises of God (James 4:13-15). This is another line of thought suggested by these verses. Life is a series of surprises. By the division of time God isolates us every day, loving to surprise us. Indeed life is a series of surprises. What a wonderful God have we!

II. Draw Nigh to God (James 4:8-9). This is one, and, indeed, the first expression, and proof of submission to God. How must we draw nigh to Him?

1. With Sincerity (8). Seeking cleansed hands and purified hearts.

2. In Penitence (9). With real sorrow for sin.

III. Humbled in the Sight of God (James 4:10). Remembering our sinnership, taking the lowly place. Then- what?

1. God will Lift you Up. As a parent lifts up the sorrowing head of a child.

2. God will give grace (James 4:6).

OPPRESSING THE HIRELING.

James 5:1-11.

Evidently many of the poor amongst the Christian Jews were oppressed by the wealthy, and defrauded of their hard earnings (James 5:4). Faith in Christ and His Coming will lead us to a patient sufferance of evils we cannot avoid. "The Just One" is R.V. of James 5:6."Murdered the Righteous One" is Rotherham's rendering. The Labourer's:

I. Hire. "Kept back by fraud" (4). Observe- "Crieth." What a striking phrase. Crieth with a voice God can hear.

II. Patience (7, 8, 10, 11). James turns from the oppressors to the oppressed. "Suffer with long patience" is the marginal note. This is wise advice. For agitation sometimes is futile.

III. Hope. But why be patient? How long should patience be exercised? The defrauded labourer who cannot find immediate redress by man, must remember the future Advent of our Lord when all wrongs will be righted. Read in the prophecies of the Old Testament the glowing results of Messiah's reign. Our great hope is the Coming of the Lord. That Coming "draweth nigh." That was true in those days-how much more so in our day. There are impatient folk who desire immediate redress of all wrongs, and who object to the advice here given. This is the ideal, not immediately realizable. What then? Should not patience be allowed to operate until wrongs are swept away. And who will sweep these things off the face of the earth? Man has done his best and failed. Ah, there is one-the Man, Christ Jesus. "He, the Judge, standeth before the door" (James 5:9). In the meantime, let us who cherish ardently this hope be patient, and reveal our patience in-

IV. Silence. That is taught in James 5:9. "Grudge not one against another," is, in the margin, "Groan not one against another," or, as J.N.D., "Complain not one against another," or as Rotherham, "Be not sighing one against another." Surely this means that, counting on the Coming of the One Who will sweep away all abuses and punish the oppressors, we shall cease to complain to one another, or of one another, ceasing to be constantly "dinning" into other people's ears the story of our grievance. Groaning will give place to glorying-glorying in the Lord. Silent to man on our grievances because not silent to the Lord.

V. Prayer (13). Ah, here is the great result of uncomplaining-we pour out into the ears of our loving God our sorrows, and the wrongs inflicted upon us.

PURE SPEECH.

James 5:12.

There is a closer connection between this verse and the subject of the oppression of the hireling already dealt with, than at first sight imagined. Under the galling pressure of injury and oppression one is tempted to the use of expletives, of impure and unwise speech, as one outlet, but this is here forbidden. Is not this verse but an echo of words spoken on the Mount by the illustrious Brother of James, as recorded in Matthew 5:33-37. Our speech, to be golden, must be:

I. Pure. "Swear not."

II. Unadorned. "Let your yea be yea," etc.

III. Dignified. As becometh believers.

IV. Inspired. By and from the right source. "For whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil" (Matthew 5:37); or, as Weymouth, "Comes from the evil one," suggesting that the Evil One is the author of impure and undignified speech.

V. Disturbing. Anything else causes us "to fall into condemnation," disturbing our own consciences, and grieving the Lord.

PRAYER AT ALL TIMES.

James 5:13-18.

What James preached he practised, for he himself prayed much. All the way through this Epistle the writer has insisted on the necessity and extreme value of prayer.

I. Pray when Afflicted (13). When a man is suffering he is tempted to forego prayer. This temptation must be resisted.

II. Pray when Sick (14, 15). The afflicted one must pray, but the sick one should call for others to "pray over him, anointing him with oil in the Name of the Lord." Strange, that believing men and women forget to pray when sick! What a gracious promise of answer to such prayers is given here.

III. Pray when Faulty (16). Here we are urged to confess to each other our faults, but not our sins. The latter should be confessed to God only. What should confession lead to? To prayer for each other.

IV. Pray when Merry (13). To sing Psalms means to pray through sacred song, for the best prayer book in the world is the Book of Psalms.

V. Pray when Thriving. M. reads: "Is anyone thriving? let him sing praise." Singing and praying are signs of spiritual health. AN ERRING BROTHER.

James 5:19, James 5:20.

The gracious ministry of restoration is here commended. That is how this Epistle closes. No leave-taking but an abrupt close on a high note.

I. Possibility. Possible for even brethren to err. "Brethren if any of you do err."

II. Defection. Err in what? "Err from the truth."

III. Seriousness. Deflection from the truth creates a multitude of sins.

IV. Peril. Death is the peril. "Save a soul from death." What a dreadful peril!

V. Salvation. Whilst the Holy Trinity operates in salvation, here it is human ministry which is stressed. For usually the Triune God operates through the agency of man.

1 Peter

1 Peter This letter was written by the Apostle Peter towards the close of his life (a.d. 60), whilst staying at Babylon (James 5:13), where a Christian Church had been established. It was intended principally, though not exclusively, for Hebrew Christians. Observe- "Jews" (James 1:1, R.V.); "Gentiles" (James 2:9-10). It was written for two purposes. First, to show that Peter agreed with Paul's teaching. Second, to strengthen and comfort God's people passing through fiery trials. It is a Book of Comfort.

LIVING AS FOREIGNERS.

1 Peter 1:1.

I. Introduction. The writer of this Epistle needs no introduction. In fulfilment of our Saviour's exhortation and commission: "When thou hast once turned again strengthen thy brethren" (Luke 22:32, R.V.), Peter wrote this Epistle to comfort and strengthen his Christian brethren passing through a time of sore trial and bitter persecution. So richly is it stored with counsel, warning, and consolation, that Luther, the reformer, greatly prized it. The depth of doctrinal insight surprises us. "Whence hath this man this wisdom?" Most assuredly from God the Holy Ghost. Nowhere else in Scripture do we find fuller teaching on the Trinity. You will specially note how Peter seeks to comfort sufferers, by filling their minds with great thoughts of God and His salvation. Would you be skilled in comfort's art? Then take notice of this fact. Place before sufferers great and deep thoughts of God, His salvation and truth.

II. Strangers. There are various opinions held concerning the folk Peter meant when he addressed his letter to "strangers." Some think he simply meant Jews who were scattered in Asia. Yet Paul in Ephesians speaks of the Gentile Christians as "strangers" (Ephesians 2:11-12). Pray note:

1. Our time here is a sojourning (1 Peter 1:17).

2. Once we were strangers to grace and God (Ephesians 2:14).

3. We are now in these matters "no more strangers" (Ephesians 2:19).

4. But so far as the world is concerned, we are "strangers and pilgrims," that is, pilgrims because strangers (1 Peter 2:11).

III. Foreigners. Weymouth gives "foreigners," and Moffatt "exiles" for "strangers." What is the duty of a foreigner? A foreigner's-

1. Absentmindedness. He ever thinks of his native land. Let us "Set our affections on things above." Thus we shall have an absent heart and mind.

2. Separation. A foreigner differs in dress, appearance, and palate, from those amongst whom he is living. As foreigners, we must live the separated life, being moulded not by the world's maxims and laws, and enjoying new food.

3. Detachment. Does not take "root" in a foreign soil. Ever remains detached.

4. Loyalty. Seeks, in a foreign land, to maintain the honour, and advance the interests of his own country. This is an important thought.

5. Literature. An exile loves to browse on literature from his own native land, and to satisfy that craving, makes arrangements with publishing houses in the land of his birth. If we are truly living as foreigners here in this world, we will love to read and study the literature of the Better Land, which we have already provided for us in the Bible.

6. Fellowship. An exile loves to meet for fellowship with fellow-exiles, and will go to no end of trouble to thus meet them. Spiritual foreigners love to have fellowship with kindred spirits.

ELECTION.

1 Peter 1:2.

Due to wordy battles of the past, many of the Lord's people are frightened of the words "elect" and "election." Yet they are Bible words and Bible truths. "Chosen" is the word Weymouth gives. Election in Scripture is employed for three purposes: 1st, Describes an election to, or being chosen for, an office (John 15:16). 2nd, Appointed to certain privileges (Psalms 135:4). 3rd, To salvation. These scattered Christians are called the elect of God. What an honourable title!

I. The Origin of Election. Not sanctification, as some think-that is our sanctification, though in one sense we may say that this election was made possible by Christ's sanctification to the work of salvation and His obedience unto death, for that really and truly was its purpose. The true origin of election is the grace of "God the Father." It is comforting to find that Peter associates (as some consider), the harsh doctrine of election with the softening and comforting doctrine of the Fatherhood of God. The one delightfully blends with the other. Election is the electing love of the Father.

II. The Possibility of Election. Observe here in Psalms 135:2, also Psalms 135:20, and also Acts 2:23; Romans 8:29; Romans 11:2; and 2 Timothy 2:19, the association of God's foreknowledge with God's election. In these verses we are permitted to enter the council chamber of the Most High, and to listen to the Eternal Counsels. This association of foreknowledge with election has been of great assistance to the puny minds of earthly mortals when grappling with this deep, deep truth.

III. The Proof of Election. The infallible proof of our election is of a twofold character.

1. Internal. To feel and constantly foster within us the sanctification of the Holy Spirit.

2. External. To render swift obedience, and to live as exiles, as foreigners in this world.

IV. The Purpose of Election. "Is given that you may learn obedience, and may be sprinkled by blood," is 20th C. rendering. Thus two things are in the purpose of election.

1. "With a view to their obedience," is W. Our obedience.

2. And that we might enjoy the sprinkling of blood.

V. The Privilege of Election.

1. That the Elect should be constantly Sprinkled by the Blood of Christ.

2. Grace and Peace Multiplied. This means more than given. They had been given and received, now they arc to be multiplied. These blessings travel hand in hand. First, Grace, i.e., God's unmerited favour which is ours through Christ. Grace is also a name for blessings that are ours in Christ. These are to be multiplied, now that they have been received.

Peace-peace with God, through our Lord Jesus, and peace of God. Someone has remarked that "grace is the nurture of the Christian life; peace is its character."

Note the phrase, "Sanctification of the Spirit unto obedience." Learn from this that- a. True sanctification is of and by the Holy Spirit. b. The purpose and result of sanctification is a life of obedience, not merely our happiness and comfort. God thinks more of our holiness than of our happiness, though He is not forgetful of that mercy. THE BIRTH OF A DOXOLOGY.

1 Peter 1:3-5.

Probably you have noticed in the New Testament writings the frequency of Doxologies. It is both interesting and profitable to study it, seeking to track it to its source. Here we are able to do that. This Te Deum is sung at the remembrance of redeeming grace in regeneration. How easily these early Christians burst forth into Doxologies. Why? How is it that we are so far behind them in this practice? Has not the Lord done as much for us as He did for them? Is not the reservoir of grace still as full as ever? Yes! Surely the reason is the poverty of our individual Christian experience. The rush of daily life leaves little time for reflection on the wonders and marvels of grace; and so few believers appropriate, as they ought, the riches that are their own in Christ Jesus.

I. The Doxology.

1. A New Theme. "Blessed be the God," etc. The word rendered "Blessed" here has not the same significance as the word used in the Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount. Here it is blessing on account of something inherent in the person, whereas in the latter it describes blessing received. "Blessing God," literally means, "Speaking well of Him." It is good when a father blesses his child; it is touching when the child blesses the father. Here we find a child blessing his Heavenly Father.

2. A New Relationship. "Blessed be the God and Father." This is a new relationship. This relationship in the New Testament sense, is unknown in the Old Testament. Note, "God and Father." Note John 20:17. Not "Our Father," but "My Father and your Father." Also, "My God and your God," not "our God."

II. Its Origin.

1. A New Birth. "Hath begotten again." This is one of the unique phrases of the Christian vocabulary, not found in other religious systems. Other systems emphasize culture, training, discipline, education, evolution.

2. A New Life. "Has given us a new life," is the 20th Century New Testament rendering.

3. A New Hope. "A new life of undying hope" (20th C). Before regeneration, there was nothing to which to look forward. Note the connection of hope here with the Resurrection of Christ. Certainly if He had not risen from the dead, then our hope would never have been born. The Christians' hope is a Living, or as we have it here, "a Lively Hope," because Christ is living. The grave is no longer a terminus, but a thoroughfare.

4. A New Inheritance. "To an inheritance" (4). We are born again to an estate. As sons of Adam we have a dread inheritance-heirs of a fallen nature and of the wrath of God. Now, through grace, heirs of "an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away."

5. A New Security. "Who are kept" (5). The R.V. substitutes "guarded" for "kept," thus retaining the military metaphor which is in the text. Guarded by God's power-Jesus (1 Corinthians 1:24), and "in God's power" (R.). The inheritance is preserved for the heirs, and the heirs for the inheritance.

6. A New Salvation. Salvation is a big word, including not only what God has already done for us or is doing for, or in us, but which He will yet do for us-"a salvation which even now stands ready for unveiling" (W.). THE BIRTH OF A PARADOX.

1 Peter 1:6, 1 Peter 1:7.

In our last study we were tracking a doxology to its source; in this we are to watch the birth of a paradox. In 2 Corinthians 6:9-10, we have a cluster of paradoxes. Here is Peter's paradox: "Leaping for joy," and yet "in heaviness."

I. The Paradox.

1. An Exuberant Joy. "Wherein ye greatly rejoice." "Wherein, ye leap for joy" is another rendering. The one thing that amazed the heathen world of that time was the joy the believers enjoyed and exhibited in the midst of suffering. Our Christian faith enables us to face trials with un-diminished and undimmed serenity and cheerfulness. Our salvation is one that leads to great gladness.

2. A Depressing Sadness. But the joy mentioned here is gladness plus sadness. "Though now for a season ("for the passing moment," M.), if need be, ye are in heaviness ("ye are put to grief," R.)." "Though for the passing moment you may need to suffer various trials; that is only to prove your faith is sterling" (M.).

How can an exultant joy and a depressing sadness exist together in our experience. That we have "heaviness" is beyond question-on account of personal trials, and outside pressure; that we "greatly rejoice" is also beyond question.

II. The Explanation. There is a great difference between always and only rejoicing. The joy and the sadness do co-exist. The joy does not deprive the heaviness of all its weight, nor the sorrow of all its sting. There is no artificial stoicism about the Christian faith; nor any attempt to explain things away.

III. The Possibility. What is necessary to make this paradox possible?

1. Contemplation of our Glorious Privileges. That little word "wherein" connects what has gone before with this statement. We are not asked to manufacture spiritual emotion. We are urged to determine what to think about most, and what to look at most. The possibility of this paradox depends on the object of our contemplation. Are we dwelling on the truths proclaimed in 2 Corinthians 6:3-5? Then this paradox is possible.

2. The Remembrance of the Transciency of Sorrow. "For a season if need be," is the A.V., or, as M., "For the passing moment." How quickly will this moment pass.

3. Recognition of the Purpose and Results of the Trial. "If need be." There is therefore a needs be. Faith is very precious. As a man's faith is, so is the man. Fire tries and refines. The word "prove" in the R.V. means more than test. It really means to reveal, strengthen, confirm.

4. A Remembrance of the Great Reward. "Might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ." When suffering, keep your eye on the Coming of the Lord. Keep in mind the joy of hearing His "Well done, good and faithful servant." NOT SEEN, YET TRUSTED AND LOVED.

1 Peter 1:8.

Introduction. Not Seen. Remember Peter is speaking and writing. He had seen the Lord. There seems to be a kind of tender pity in the words. "Whom having not seen." Twice over he repeats the statement that they had not seen Him. "You have never seen Him, and yet you love Him. And though you do not even now see Him, yet you believe in Him, and exult with a triumphant happiness too great for words" (20th Century). "You never knew Him but you love Him; for the moment you do not see Him, but you believe in Him" (M.).

Believe. Surely here we find Peter re-echoing the words of His beloved Master as we have them recorded in John 20:29.

Love at Sight. "Love at first sight" is a well-known phrase. Most human love follows the sight of the eyes. But the love Peter refers to is not love at eye-sight, but love at heart-sight. (For they had never seen the Lord with the eyes of flesh.)

Proof of Love. Do we love Him? How easily one can be mistaken in imagining admiration to be love, which it is not. Here are the proofs of real love.

I. Attachment. Love unites two into one. In "marriages made in Heaven," the marriage ceremony in Church, indispensable according to the law of God, is, after all, only an outward recognition of a union that has already taken place, the union of hearts and minds, of affections and ideals, of purposes and plans. Love, real love, unites two into one.

II. Obedience. Love delights to meet the wishes, and to obey the slightest commands of the loved one. That is pre-eminently true in each individual experience if we really love the Lord. Love will obey His commands (John 14:15), and impel to deeds of sacrifice (2 Corinthians 5:14) in service.

III. Separation. Love will separate us from all other likes and admirations, and unite us in lonely and glorious devotion to the person and interests of the one loved; and 1 John 2:15 is the verse we have in mind in this connection.

IV. Consecration. Love leads us to strip ourselves of our treasures and place them at the disposal of the loved one, becoming utterly devoted to their interests. This we see in the love Jonathan had for David (1 Samuel 18:1-4). If our love to the Lord Jesus has not led us to bow low before the Lord whom we love, and strip ourselves of all we have, and are, and hope for, in the words of the well-known hymn, then our love is lacking in its essential quality.

"Take my life, and let it be

Consecrated, Lord, to Thee;

Take my moments and my days,

Let them flow in ceaseless praise.

"Take my hands, and let them move

At the impulse of Thy love;

Take my feet, and let them be

Swift and beautiful for Thee.

"Take my voice, and let me sing

Always, only, for my King;

Take my lips, and let them be Filled with messages from Thee.

"Take my silver and my gold;

Not a mite would I withhold;

Take my intellect and use

Every power as Thou shalt choose;

"Take my will, and make it Thine;

It shall be no longer mine:

Take my heart-it is Thine own.

It shall be Thy royal throne.

"Take my love: my Lord I pour

At Thy feet its treasure-store;

Take myself, and I will be

Ever, only all for Thee."

V. Anticipation. Love lives in anticipation of more blessed fellowship. Love renders each other essential to life. Lovers find a difficulty to live their separate lives, and longingly anticipate the time when they can live under one roof, and never be absent the one from the other only when compulsory for the purpose of earning a living. If we really love the Lord we will ardently look forward to being with Him in the glory, when we shall see Him face to face and be known even as we are known.

THREE UNSPEAKABLE BLESSINGS.

1 Peter 1:8, with 2 Corinthians 9:15; 2 Corinthians 12:4.

Introduction. George Eliot, in her "Scenes in Clerical Life," speaks of the possibility and danger of having a good religious vocabulary without a corresponding religious experience. A real peril lurks here. It is possible to have a tolerably good grasp of religious truth, to be able to define Christian doctrine, and to express our views in clear language, and yet to be without the experience of those truths. The fact that one can talk fluently on Divine themes is no proof of the possession of a real and vital experience.

There is another peril, that of possessing a religious experience that can be reduced into, and expressed by, a vocabulary. That such an experience is rather common must be admitted. A weak, sickly spiritual life can easily be described. Such has but few if any thrilling experiences. Quite easily words can be found whereby it can be described. Shame on us if this is true concerning us.

Cowper calls speech a "Sacred interpreter of human thought." And what a wonderful interpreter it is to be sure. Yet it is possible for the most skilled interpreter to come prematurely to the end of his resources. We have witnessed the inability of a splendid interpreter to translate some florid phrases. That sacred interpreter of human thought cannot but fail to translate some experience into words. That is true regarding even earthly things. All the deepest and richest things in everyday life are unspeakable. "A mother's love! Who has discovered a symbol by which to express it? It is unspeakable. A profound grief! Where is the speech in which it can be enshrined? It is unspeakable." A glorious sunrise or sunset-who can find words to fully and adequately describe them? The majesty of the mountains, the beauty and fragrance of the lily, and other flowers- where is the language that can tell all?

If that is true regarding earthly things, what about the heavenly? If a mother's love is unspeakable, what shall we say concerning Divine love?

"But what to those who find? Ah! this.

Nor tongue nor pen can show:

The Love of Jesus, what it is.

None but His loved, ones know."

Even inspired apostles found now and again the inadequacy of human language. They then press into service the word "unspeakable," which occurs three times in Holy Writ, and each we shall now notice.

I. Unspeakable Gift. "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift" (2 Corinthians 9:15), or, as Weymouth renders it, His "Unspeakably precious gift," or as another rendering, "Thank God for His unexpected bounty." This is one of Paul's doxologies. With most of them there appears to be no connection between the subject he is dealing with and the doxology. Often, right in the midst of a profound argument, he has to pause for worship. But there happens to be a connection here.

The Apostle has been referring to the generous gifts of the Macedonian Christians, holding them up as an example worthy of copying by the Corinthians, when the thought of the wonderful grace and goodness of God overwhelmed him, and he found relief in this outburst of adoring love and worship.

There is something wrong with us if, now and again, we, too, are not similarly affected. One infallible test of a real growth in grace is a growing appreciation of the love of God in Christ, and of His substitutionary death on the Cross. For God's gift cannot be overestimated, cannot be over-valued. His riches are unsearchable, and His love passeth knowledge. God's gift is a Person. And such a wondrous Being. Have you thanked God to-day for His unspeakable Gift? Is that Gift unspeakably precious to you?

II. Unspeakable Words. "How that he was caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful or possible for a man to utter" (2 Corinthians 12:1-4). It is Paul speaking. He is here disclosing a personal secret he had kept for fourteen years. Just at that time Paul was stoned outside Lystra (Acts 14). No one could be stoned and live. Undoubtedly he was killed, and whilst his poor battered body lay still, he himself went up to Paradise, but as his work was not yet finished, God performed a miracle, and he and his body were re-united. Whilst in Paradise he heard words he could not possibly find human words to describe.

Incidentally this is important, as showing the effect of Christ's death and resurrection on Paradise. Before the Cross, Paradise was beneath (Luke 16:19-31), in the heart of the earth (Matthew 12:40), to which Christ went at His death. When He rose from the dead, He transferred Paradise to the third Heaven, the immediate presence of God (2 Corinthians 12:2, 2 Corinthians 12:4; Ephesians 4:8-10), though leaving the place of the departed ungodly just as before.

What rapturous words are these! And they are applicable to us in this life. Is not this true of prayer and communion with God? Living in communion with Him we shall hear unspeakable words, as the hymn, "In the secret of His Presence" expresses it:

"If I tried, I could not utter

What He says when thus we meet." Our Paradise now is to have beneath us the Everlasting Arms, and hear His words of love; our Paradise by and by will be the immediate presence of the Lord.

III. Unspeakable Joy. "Ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Peter 1:8), or as another version has it, "Ye exult with a triumphant happiness, too great for words!" There are joys that weaken and impair the soul. Not so this-it is crowned with glory. Who were these happy folk to whom Peter addressed himself? A poor, despised, persecuted folk, many of whom had been robbed of their property for the sake of the Name. They were believers in the Lord Jesus. Joy, therefore, depends not upon what we have, but what we are; not on circumstances, but on Communion with Christ.

Observe, this is not an exhortation, but a statement of fact. He was not urging them to rejoice, but simply stating what had already taken place in their own experience. Evidently this was their normal experience. How far short believers of to-day seem to come of an experience of this sort!

Now pray note the order of these three "Unspeakables." Unspeakable Gift first, then Words, and finally Joy. Before the experience must come the reception of the gift. The first act of importance is the reception of that gift. Then it is our privilege to commence to walk and talk with God in holy blessed Communion. That will mean the possession of a joy that cannot be described. THE GLORY AND GREATNESS OF OUR SALVATION.

1 Peter 1:9-12.

Introduction.

Salvation. It is quite evident that Peter loved to repeat the word "salvation." See how it slips off his pen in 1 Peter 1:5,1 Peter 1:9, and 1 Peter 1:10. Apparently he never thought of it without a thrill. This is brought out in the Moffatt rendering: "And you will thrill with unspeakable and glorious joy to obtain the outcome of your faith in the salvation of your souls." That is to say, the thought of the glory and greatness of our salvation thrilled him with joy, as it most certainly will do so in our experience.

Thrill. Have you ever been thrilled as you have thought of your own personal salvation? Some do not value a thing until they discover others greatly value it. In this study we are to see that our salvation has been, and indeed is, the wonderment of the prophets of the past, and of angels in the past and present.

I. The Description of Salvation. Note the remarkable variety of words and phrases employed here to describe one thing-salvation.

1. Salvation. A great word, pregnant with meaning.

2. Grace. It comes in grace, and it is grace.

3. Glory. What a description of the fruit of grace.

4. Gospel. Great word.

II. The Basis of Salvation. Peter stresses here that the sufferings of Christ form the base or foundation of our salvation. This is the fundamental fact of Christianity. Here you observe that Peter never speaks of the sufferings of Jesus, or of Jesus Christ, but of Christ! He prefers to dwell upon the passion of Christ in its official aspect, and not in its personal sense. Examine the first Epistle and you will be impressed by this fact. He refers to "Jesus Christ" in 1 Peter 1:2-3,1 Peter 1:7,1 Peter 1:13;1 Peter 2:5, and so on. In the following Scriptures he refers to Jesus simply as the Christ: 1 Peter 1:11, 1 Peter 1:19; 1 Peter 2:21; 1 Peter 3:18; 1 Peter 4:1, 1 Peter 4:13-14; 1 Peter 5:1. Peter never forgot that the very day he confessed Jesus as Christ, he took His Lord to task for speaking of His suffering and death (Matthew 16:22-23). The Gospel is not that Jesus died, but that "Christ" died for our sins (1 Corinthians 15:3). "Christ" is Jesus' official title, thus the use of that draws attention to the official aspect of His death. He died, not a martyr's death, but the death of a sacrifice. Observe the Gospel is- 1. Not a speculation.

2. Not a mere theology.

3. Not a morality.

4. Not a declaration of principles.

It is a history of fact, of things done on this earth of ours.

III. The Prophecy of Salvation. It was foretold by the prophets (Luke 1:69-70). Our salvation was the substance of prophecy. The unity of salvation is disclosed in, the fact that the things which the prophets foretold are spoken of as the same as those "which are now reported unto you by them" (1 Peter 1:12).

Some of the people to whom Peter wrote this Epistle- particularly the Jews-had a great veneration for the prophets, and would be tremendously impressed by the fact he emphasises, that they foretold this wondrous salvation now ours. He is great on the theme, as Acts 3:18 proves. Paul also stressed this fact (Acts 26:22-23). Also note John 8:5,John 8:6. The Gospel unlocks the treasures of the Old Testament. The Old Testament creates an attitude of expectancy, pointing onward, with ever increasing distinctness, to Christ. So much was this so, that the pious souls stood, as it were, on the tip-toe of expectancy when the "fulness of the time had come."

IV. The Investigation of Salvation.

1. The Persons who searched. "The prophets."

2. The Object of their search. "Time," "Salvation."

3. The Manner of their search. "Inquired and searched diligently."

4. The Success of their search. What a sublime disappointment was theirs, as is shown in John 8:12. Read Hebrews 11:40.

V. The Angelic Study of Salvation. "Which things the angels desire to look into" (1 Peter 1:12). "Bend aside to see." This is the literal rendering, indicative of a strained attention to something which has caught your eye, something out of your usual line of sight.

Scripture. 1 Corinthians 4:9; Ephesians 3:10; 1 Timothy 3:16.

Ruskin wrote: "There is a mean curiosity, as of a child opening a forbidden door, or a servant prying into his master's business; and a noble curiosity, questioning, in the front of danger, the source of the great river; a nobler curiosity still, which questions the source of the River of Life, and of the space of the Continent of Heaven, things which the angels desire to look into."

Cherubim.

1. The idea in the word, "Look into," is that of eager desire and fixed attention.

2. The outspread wings and bended heads of the brooding Cherubim which sat above the Mercy-seat, gazing down upon the miracle of love that was manifested beneath them there, is here suggested.

Poets. This reference to angelic curiosity has seized the fancy of poets. C. Wesley:

"Ask the Father's Wisdom how

Him that did the means ordain;

Angels round our Altars bow,

To search it out in vain.

"Angels in fixed amazement

Around our Altars hover,

With eager gaze adore the grace

Of our Eternal Lover."

Final Points.

1. "Has the grace come unto you?" (1 Peter 1:10).

2. Does "the Spirit of Christ" in you "point unto anything?" (1 Peter 1:11).

3. Do you know the "testifying" of the Holy Ghost" (1 Peter 1:12).

Subject of Inspiration. The present passage is one of the most striking in the whole of the New Testament regarding the subject of inspiration.

1. Are the prophetic writings, which we now possess, the result of that inquiry? a. Was their knowledge gained as a result of personal effort? If so, how this rebukes the sluggishness and slothfulness of many. Yet this is not so. b. Rather, the prophetic writings were the subject of their inquiry, then God gave the knowledge they possessed. c. They knew they were speaking concerning a salvation but they knew nothing about details.

2. How far were their utterances their own, and how far suggested to them from on High? The prophets found themselves impelled to say and write words which they were conscious of choosing, and using, but which they felt to have a deeper meaning than they themselves were conscious of intending. This is a notable fact.

GIRDING THE MIND.

1 Peter 1:13-16.

Introduction. The modern emphasis on the mind, upon the importance of the thoughts in the realm of good living, is thought to be a new psychological discovery. As a matter of fact it is no new thing at all, so far as the Bible is concerned. For proofs of this note, Genesis 6:5; Genesis 8:21; Proverbs 23:7; Php_4:8. Here in Peter we are to note the close connection there is between the girding mind and a holy life.

"Wherefore." This wee word at once connects this and our last lesson. The last meditation was on the intense and reverent curiosity of the prophets of old, and even of the angels, too, in the wonderfully devised scheme of redemption. The word "wherefore" gathers up all the wealthy results of the previous study. What effect should the result of our previous study have upon us? A girded mind leading to a holy life.

I. The Girded Mind. "Gird up." Is this an echo of John 21:18? It seems likely. The figure of the passage is taken from the flowing garments of the oriental dress. The flapping robes caught the wind and wrapping about the legs, become serious hindrances to easy and progressive movement. The wearer, therefore, lays hold of the hindering garments, tucking them into a girdle which discharges the ministry of a belt.

"A similar disorder may prevail in the realm of thought and affection. Our life may be characterised by mental slovenliness. Our thoughts may trail in loose disorder. How much loose thinking there is concerning Divine things."

Now loose thinking is dangerous. Like the trailing garments, it may trip us up; it might lead us to careless and inconsistent living.

"Brace up" is the 20th Century rendering. The navvy or coal worker tightens the belt to brace himself up for some particular laborious task. So we must "gird up our minds," or "brace up our minds" for the great task before us.

II. The Cool Mind. "Be sober." This is more than an injunction against intemperance. It is a call to serious thought. This is a frivolous, butterfly kind of age. Yet do not confuse gravity with gloom. We have to be grave, yet not sullen. Moffatt's rendering is, "Keep cool." Let sufferers keep their heads when a blow falls, and not make any railing accusation against the Lord. "Let them keep cool." A fevered condition is dangerous.

III. The Controlled Mind. "Exercise the strictest self-control," is the 20th Century rendering. That is really one fruit of girding.

IV. The Obedient Mind. "As obedient children." Obedience in relation, and as one condition, to holiness. We shall return to this subject.

V. The Optimistic Mind. "And hope to the end," or, "Hope perfectly," as in the margin of the R.V. The reference here is not to duration, but to the quality of the Christian hope. Observe:

1. The Object of the Christian Hope. "And hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." "Is being brought" (R.V., margin) ,i.e., is already on its way. It is very remarkable language. The light from fixed stars may take centuries to reach us, but is speeding through space all the while. So the grace that is to be revealed when the Lord comes in on its way.

2. The Quality of the Christian Hope. "Hope perfectly" is the margin. Then there are degrees in hope. Hope may be weak at first, but should develop and strengthen by use.

HOLINESS.

1 Peter 1:14-16.

Undoubtedly the Apostle Peter had Leviticus 11:44 in mind in speaking as he does on holiness. Yet there is a difference. Guided by the Holy Spirit, he changed the imperative command ("Ye shall be holy") into a loving appealing exhortation ("Be ye holy").

I. The Dislike of Holiness. Dr. Stuart Holden writes: "I remember a man who spoke to me, finding fault with something that had been said from the platform because he disagreed with it. He said, 'I do not believe in all this teaching about holiness and Christ conformity. I am quite content to know that I am saved and on my way to Heaven;' and I had to say to him, 'My friend, that is hardly the proper criterion of judgment. You are satisfied to know that you are saved and going to Heaven. But is God satisfied? Is that what Christ died for?' And the man was silent."

Bishop Moule declared: "The fully pardoned must long to be fully holy."

II. The Need of Holiness. Said one concerning a woman for whom he had an admiration, though imperfect knowledge, "She is the salt of the earth!" "Yes," replied one who knew her much better, "Salt! Why, she is mustard and pepper, and the whole cruet!" That is the sad meaning of unlovely goodness. A friend called such folk, "The Lord's acid drops." They have their niche in life, but they are at times a sore trial to others.

III. The Definition of Holiness. In one sense it is undefinable. George Goodman remarks: "No words can describe holiness, for it is known only to those who yield themselves to God." It is well to remember this, and to note that the best definition may be faulty and imperfect. What is holiness? "It is just complete conformity in all things great and small alike, to the Holy Will of God; being at one mind with God in all the judgments of the mind, in all the feelings of the heart, and in all the outgoings of the life, agreeing with God's estimate of things."

Thomas Carlyle stated that "holy," in the German language heilig, also means healthy; our English word "whole," all of one piece, without any hole in it, is the same word. You could not get any better definition of what holy really is than healthy, completely healthy.

"Holiness," says George Goodman, "is to have a conscience clean through the Blood, and a life guided by the Spirit through the Word. It is to have the power of Christ resting upon you, and to be glad in the freedom He gives."

IV. The Condition of Holiness. This is pointed out in 1 Peter 1:14 as obedience-obedience to all known commands and desires of our Lord. Obedience to Him always leads to the Blood (1 John 1:7).

V. The Pattern of Holiness. "As He" (1 Peter 1:15). Our Gracious God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, are our true Pattern.

VI. The Imperative of Holiness. "Ye shall be" (Leviticus 11:44). Law, in his "Serious Call," says, "We may choose a married life or a single life, but it is not left to our choice whether we will make either a state of holiness, humility, devotion, and all other duties of the Christian life. It is our duty to devote ourselves to God in these states."

VII. The Field of Holiness. Holiness in "conversation" (1 Peter 1:15); or conduct (M); or behaviour (R.); holiness even in trifles. One has said: "Whosoever has not a Christianity that sanctifies the trifles, has a Christianity that will not sanctify the crises of life."

VIII. The Possibility of Holiness. The very fact that God here in His Holy Word, urges us to Holiness should be quite sufficient to settle the possibility of holiness. Yet, for your help, note that holiness is wrapped up in Christ. "Christ for us is all our peace before a Holy God; and Christ in us is all our strength in an unholy world." "Holiness is both a gift and a process." It is a good gift from God in Christ; it is also a process to be worked out in daily life.

"PASS YOUR TIME IN AWE."

1 Peter 1:17-21.

This is one of several surprising statements in this section. Further, there are in these verses several extraordinary conjunctions of terms. Fear! I thought the believer was delivered through grace from fear. But what is meant by fear? It does not mean terror or dread. We are not to pass the time of our mortality in paralysing dread, or to go through life cringing like slaves. Both Rotherham and 20th Century New Testament give "reverence" for "fear." "Fear" here really means a wholesome awe, a fear which grows out of love, a fear lest we should grieve One so abundant in mercy.

There is a lamentable lack of reverence amongst the Lord's people. There is a call for more reverence in thought, prayer, and walk. We should cultivate a reverential fear. How? Well, the rest of the verses will show. It all lies in remembrance. We are to remind ourselves of three facts.

I. The Character of the Author of Redemption. "If ye call on Him as Father," is the R.V. "Call," let that word arrest you. It means more than sending a wireless telegram to the Most High, brief, though com-mendably to the point. It means a long telephone call; yea, more, it surely is a long personal interview face to face, though at present we see Him not. He is always "At Home." "Call" means to wait on Him. Remember He "called" upon you first. Return that "call."

Another point. "Father," "Judge." What a surprising conjunction of opposites. Is God both? Verily. But what an amazing union of opposites. "Instead of the friendliness of the fireside, we have the awfulness of the throne; instead of the hearthstone, we have the Great White Throne." Some think all of the Father and forget the Judge; and some conceive of Him only as Judge and forget He is Father also. Do not let filial confidence drive out legitimate fear. Holy sovereignty must be an element in our conception of the Fatherhood of God.

Yet, let us ever keep in mind that our loving Heavenly Father is also the august Judge of all the earth, that His Throne is not only of grace, but of impartial justice. "Who without respect of persons judgeth." Such remembrance will generate reverence and annihilate undue and unbecoming familiarity. Yes, the Author of Redemption is the Father-Judge. Never for one moment forget this.

II. The Cost of Redemption. "Forasmuch as ye know" (1 Peter 1:18). Know what? Why, that we have no cheap redemption. It cost all that God had-His Beloved Son. Oh, let us ever move with breathless steps amidst the mysteries of redemption. Have you ever been gripped by that verse in Psalm 130: "There is forgiveness with Thee that Thou mayest be feared." Feared? Should it not be loved? Ah, no. When we realise the awful cost of redemption we fear Him with a fear that fears to sin against Him. A cheap redemption might have made us easy, but it would never have made us good. A cheap forgiveness would only have confirmed the sin it forgave. When we fully realise the cost of redemption we will seek to have done with sin.

III. The Purpose of Redemption. It is helpful to note the various renderings which bring out the purpose of redemption here disclosed.

1. "From your vain conversation" (A.V.).

2. "From your aimless life in which you were brought up" (20th C).

3. "From your frivolous habits of life" (W.).

4. "From your vain behaviour" (R.).

PURITY.

1 Peter 1:22.

What fulness of teaching and of truth we have in this first chapter of Peter. Consequently, in our study we are making slow but steady progress. There are two subjects before us in this verse: Purity and Love. We deal with purity in this study. The key words are "in," "through."

I. The Need of Purity. This is purity of the soul and of life that Peter recommends, actual and not merely ceremonial purity. It is personal purity.

II. The Means of Purity. "In" obeying the Truth. Moffat spells truth with a capital "T.," thus suggesting that He who is the Truth is meant here. Certainly in obeying His Word we are obeying Him.

III. The Bestower of Purity. "Through the Spirit." The Holy Spirit is the Spirit of Purity, and the source of Purity.

IV. The Issue of Purity. "Unto unfeigned love of the brethren."

LOVE OF THE BRETHREN.

1 Peter 1:22.

There are eleven Commandments-the ten given by God through Moses, and the eleventh, the New Commandment given by the Lord Jesus: "That ye love one another as I have loved you." We love the Lord Whom we have not seen (1 Peter 1:8); we must love our brethren whom we have seen and do see. The latter is indeed the test of the former (1 John 4:20).

I. Its Nature. Now love is more than courtesy, attachment, or affability. It means self-denial, self-giving; it means that we shall check the hasty word, the unkind speech, the damaging criticism. It is a fair and exquisite flower. The flower of love Peter has in mind is a tender exotic. There is a coarser kind more easily grown, common to all, irrespective of creed or belief. But this is a tender plant, yet, oh, so much needed in this weary world!

II. Its Reason. "Being born again." Love possessed, enjoyed, and lived out, is an evidence of the New Birth and a result of the New Birth.

III. Its Soul and Atmosphere. Purity of heart and life is here pointed out as the soul and atmosphere of true love. There is such a thing as impure love. Moffatt renders it "purified your souls for a brotherly love." "From a pure heart fervently" is R.V. and W. "For cherishing sincere brotherly love."

IV. Its Cultivation. "See to it that ye love one another," etc. The mode of its growth is the Word of God loved and indwelling. Love is knowledge of the Word set on fire. The cause of its growth-the maintenance of purity within.

V. Its Guardianship. "See that ye love," etc. We are in charge of that tender exotic. We are its guardians.

VI. Its Quality.

1. Brotherly Love. "Love of the brethren" (22).

2. Unfeigned Love. That is to say, no mere pretence at loving. Often we are tempted to profess more than we feel.

3. Steady Love. Moffatt's rendering: "Love one another heartily and steadily." A love that is steady, whatever its testing or trial.

4. Fervent Love. Not a cold love. "Heartily and fervently" is the W. version. THE WORD OF GOD.

1 Peter 1:23-25; 1 Peter 2:1,1 Peter 2:2.

Introduction.

Why we Should Love. The Apostle Peter introduces the subject of the New Birth as an additional reason why we should love one another. Through the New Birth we have become members of a new family, sharing one life, and for this reason we ought to love. The New Birth. In referring to the New Birth he made two great statements. The first is, how this great change called the New Birth was brought about. In so doing he magnifies the Word of God. That is the principal theme in these verses. Yet we must look at the subject of the New Birth in passing. Is it God or the Word that Liveth and Abideth for Ever? The A.V. states that it is the Word. The R.V. and R. teach it is God. The Word of God Who liveth, etc., is R.V. margin. "Through means of the Word of a living and abiding God," is R., Moffatt reads, "By the living, lasting Word of God." The fact is, you cannot divide the two without great loss. What can we know of God but for His Word? God speaks to us through His Word. Neglect the Bible and your spiritual life will suffer. Note:

1. "All flesh is as grass." Men and women pass away as the successive crops in the meadows.

2. "The glory of man." The very elite, like the flowers of the earth, share the fate of the humble blades of grass.

I. Its Might Like a Hammer (Jeremiah 23:29).

1. The Might of the Word of God. Smashing hard hearts.

2. The Usefulness of the Word of God. How useful in daily life is a hammer.

II. Its Usefulness and Warmth like a Fire. This simile is also found in Jeremiah 23:29, and conveys three thoughts:

1. Its Destructiveness. Fire destroys the consumable and inflammable. The Word of God as fire burns up our tinsel and dross-the wood, hay, and stubble in our lives.

2. Its Warmth. What a comfort is a fire on a cold stormy night. What a comfort is the Word of God when conscious of the coldness of the world, and in times of sorrow and darkness.

3. Its Protection. In wild regions travellers find a fire at night a wonderful protection from the wild and ravenous beasts.

III. Its Fruitfulness likened to Seed.

1. Jeremiah 23:23 answers the question: How to be born anew. It was through the Word of God there was given to us the seed of a regenerated life.

2. The best seed that the world knows of is corruptible, but this is incorruptible.

3. "Through the Word of God" is R.V.

4. Here we have the fruitfulness the Word of God brings into barren and unfruitful lives.

IV. Its Sustenance likened to Milk.

1. Here we are told how to grow (1 Peter 2:1-2).

2. "So off with all malice" is M. rendering. For "guile," F.F. gives "deceit;" and for "malice," F.F. gives "vice."

3. "As new born babes." The metaphor is a very touching one. The world is but the nursery in which the heirs of God are spending the first lisping years of their existence.

4. "As new born babes desire," or as R.V., "long," or M. "thirst."

CHRIST. THE LIVING STONE.

1 Peter 2:4-8.

Was Peter, when he wrote these words, thinking of what the Lord Jesus said to him, long, long ago, up there at Caesarea Philippi? (Matthew 16:17-18; John 1:42). It seems likely. Peter is an old man now. He vividly remembers the past, and here is one echo of his thoughts.

Jacob was the first to think of the Lord as a Stone (Genesis 49:24), to be followed by Moses, David, and others

Peter piles up his metaphors in rich profusion-babes, stones, priests, etc. In the Old Testament the Lord is likened to a Stone, or a Rock. But the New Testament goes further-a Living Stone. Though in nature a living stone is inknown, in the spiritual world it is a fact.

Christ, the Living Stone- I. In His Essential Characteristics.

1. Everlastingness. Rock of Ages-exactly. Rocks and stones seem everlasting. He is the everlasting One.

2. Invincible Strength. How strong stones seem.

3. Ability to Uphold. He upholds the whole weight of the glory of God. The salvation of His people rests upon Him and is safe, solid, and enduring. He is also the foundation stone on which we build.

4. Combination of Opposites. Two ideas, opposite in themselves, are joined in this title "Living Stone," showing how wonderfully all combine in the Lord Jesus. a. Life and death. b. Warmth and immobility. c. Sternness and gentleness. d. Meekness and anger.

II. In God's Estimation and Man's. There is a tradition that during the erection of Solomon's Temple, a stone was brought up by the straining oxen which refused to fit into any of the rising walls. It was cast aside, soon forgotten, and covered by weeds. At last, as the building neared completion, it was found that a stone of special form would be required to knit the walls and fill a particular corner. The need suggested the forgotten and rejected bit of masonry, which fitted perfectly. Does not this remind us of Psalms 118:22, quoted by our Lord Himself?

Note the rendering:

1. "Rejected indeed by men as worthless" (W.).

2. "But chosen of God and precious" (A.V.), or as F.F., "Distinguished in the Presence of God."

Man's unbelief and lack of appreciation does not depreciate His value (1 Peter 2:7).

III. In His Blessed Ministry to Man.

1. Draws Us by His Love. In the old mythological fancy the stones of Thebes were drawn by the Lyre of Amphion. We do know that the living stones now being built into a spiritual temple-redeemed men and women- have been drawn to the Lord Jesus by the attractive force and power of His love. This Precious Stone attracts men and women to Himself.

2. Communicates His Own Marvellous Characteristics. Coming to Him, we become what He is Himself. A combination of opposites, in blessed harmony. We, who spiritually are as dead as stones, become living stories.

3. Unites the Separate Units into One House or Dwelling for God. He is the "Comer Stone" binding the separate units into one. What wonderful unity amongst people is the result of union with Christ!

4. Provides Essentials: a. A place of safety in danger. b. A sure foundation for building character and hopes. c. A safe foothold for wrestling with the powers of evil. For, as Psalm 40 shows, He not only lifts us out of the pit, but "sets my feet upon a rock." A PECULIAR PEOPLE.

1 Peter 2:9-12

Introduction.

"But." Peter turns from a contemplation of the fate of rejecters of Christ with evident relief to a happier and more pleasant subject. He contrasts the blessed position of the Lord's people with the sad position of the worldly and unsaved people. Yea, more, he contrasts the Church's present glory with the forfeited glory of Israel.

"Ye." The pronoun "ye" is very emphatic. He is drawing a contrast between the disobedient and unbelieving, Jews and Christian people.

I. Our Past. What we Once Were (1 Peter 2:10).

1. "Not a people."

2. "Had not obtained mercy." "Unpitied" in M.

II. Our Present. What we Are (1 Peter 2:9).

1. Elect Race (R.V.). "Select Race" (F.F.). The Jews certainly were God's elect nation. During the present period of their rejection, the Christian Church has been summoned to the glorious work of becoming the channel for the Divine blessing to mankind. They have become a "chosen generation."

2. A Royal Priesthood. "A spiritual house" (5) were they. Those who were once but as the rubble on the hill sides, are not only constituted part of the spiritual fabric, but by a rapid change in the thought, they are represented as performing priestly functions, "an holy priesthood." The reference is undoubtedly to Exodus 19:6 (when the Chaldee renders "kings, priests"), a character and an office one of the Jewish commentators says will return to the Jews in time to come. In the meantime, it has come to the Church.

"A Royal Priesthood," with the a. "Power of kings," over sin and Satan. b. "Riches of kings." "Unsearchable riches of Christ." c. Apparel of kings. The Robe of Christ. d. Fare of kings. Sitting at the King's table, feeding on royal dainties. e. Retinue of kings. Angels being our servants and life-guard. A priestly people, with direct access to God, and also representing God to man. These two offices were jealously kept apart in Israel. In Christ they blend (Zechariah 6:13).

3. A Holy Nation.

4. A Peculiar People. This word rendered "peculiar" is a difficult word to translate. Authorities say that it was a word in ancient time for the slaves who were allowed to earn and retain their earnings. There are great differences in the Lord's people to people of the world. For "peculiar," M. gives, "the people who belong to Him." Surely in this word we have an echo of Exodus 19:5. Our gracious God bears towards His people- a. A peculiar love. Bestowed. b. Peculiar blessing. Takes. c. Peculiar care of them; and makes them d. His peculiar treasure. The Hebrew word rendered "jewels" in Malachi 3:17, has the same significance as the Greek word rendered "peculiar." The Lord's people are the Lord's "jewels," the Lord's treasure.

III. Our Duty. What we Should Be (11,12).

1. An affectionate title: "Dearly beloved."

2. And an affectionate entreaty: "I beseech you."

3. Note the suggestive title: Pilgrims. Observe the order: not pilgrims and strangers, but "strangers and pilgrims." That is to say, pilgrims because, through grace, we have become strangers to the world and worldly things.

4. "Which war against the soul," or, "which take the field against the soul."

IV. Our Mission. What we should Do (9).

1. Instead of "a peculiar people," F.F. gives "A people for action." Here we have a hint as to service.

2. Our mission is to show forth His praises. How may we show forth His praises? a. By Proclamation. "That you may proclaim the wondrous deeds" is M. rendering of Malachi 3:9. We must publish abroad His praises. b. By Testimony. "Show forth His praises." We must testify to His wondrous grace. c. By Life. Showing forth in our lives His virtues, or His excellencies. THE MINISTRY OF SEEMLY BEHAVIOUR.

1 Peter 2:11-25.

Introduction. The late Dr. Jowett saw in these verses "an appeal for the evangelising influences of a chaste and winsome character. A glorification of the silent witness of saintliness."

We may not all be called to the ministry of the pulpit or platform, yet we may all exercise the ministry of seemly behaviour. "Every man may be an ambassador of life discharging his office through the medium of holiness."

It is instructive to note how literally these precepts were obeyed. Tertullian contrasts the behaviour of the early Christians with the heathen. It was then stated that the holy example of the primitive Churches was one of the principal causes of the conversion to Christianity of the old pagan Roman Empire.

Peter points out that Christ's death was more than an example. 1 Peter 2:24 was written as well as 1 Peter 2:21. Why did He die?

1. That we might live? Yes.

2. That we might be healed? Yes.

3. That we might break with sin? 1 Peter 2:22 and 1 Peter 2:24. "By His stripes." "By His weals." Slaves then knew the meaning, by bitter experience, of stripes and weals. He bore the cruel punishment in our stead. Those stripes were both the price of our redemption, the evidence of our purchase, and the sign-manual of pardon.

Peter and Paul on Death of Christ. Have you ever noticed that, while Peter and Paul both make the Cross of Christ the centre of their teaching, Paul speaks more about His death, while Peter speaks more of His sufferings. The reason is that in Peter we have the eye-witness of a loving Friend's sufferings, which led him to dwell upon the accompaniments of His death. (Study this in connection, 1 Peter 1:2, 1 Peter 1:19; 1 Peter 1:11; 1 Peter 2:21; 1 Peter 3:18; 1 Peter 4:1, 1 Peter 4:13; 1 Peter 5:1.) I. Our Duty as Individuals (1 Peter 2:11-12).

"Abstain." A new kind of abstinence to that which we are usually familiar.

"As." Confess that you are pilgrims by and in your life as well as by speech.

"Having your Conversation." A perfect man is one who offends not in tongue.

II. Our Duty to the State (1 Peter 2:13-17). It was a favourite charge against the early Christians that they were plotting the overthrow of the Empire, and the dethronement of Caesar, in favour of "One, Jesus." Their private meetings were supposed to be convened for unlawful political purposes.

It was, therefore, necessary that men's minds should be disabused of the impression that any violence was contemplated. Peter, therefore, exhorts them to conform, as far as they were able, to the demands and usages of the people amongst whom they sojourned. For the Christian man is one who recognises the necessity of social order. Note how wise were the words of exhortation given by the Apostle.

1. "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man"- "any human authority" (M.), "every authority set up by man" (W.), "for the Lord's sake."

2. Here is "the will of God" revealed. "Put to silence" is literally, "muzzled as a dog."

3. Note: a. All men to be honoured. How many are obedient to this command? Are not our eyes too often upon the dress or incidental trappings rather than upon the man himself? b. The Christian brotherhood to be loved. Love is not sentiment, but self-sacrifice. c. God to be reverenced. (See M.). d. The earthly king to be honoured and respected.

III. Our Duty to our Employers (1 Peter 2:18-25). Remembering that "servants" meant mostly "slaves," the exhortation is most touching and forceful. "This is thankworthy" (1 Peter 2:19), is in 20th Century. "This is a beautiful thing." "Live like free men" is M. for "as free" (1 Peter 2:16). "The froward," mentioned in 1 Peter 2:18 describes, as otherwise rendered, "surly," "unreasonable" (W.), "unfair" (20th C.), or "perverse" (F.F.) masters. "With all fear" (1 Peter 2:18) is in M. "with perfect respect." THE IDEAL WIFE AND HUSBAND.

1 Peter 3:1-13.

In the passage before us the Apostle delineates some of the characteristics of the ideal wife and husband. As Christians we not only have to show our Christian faith by Christian actions toward king, country, and neighbours, but in our own homes. In speaking to wives and husbands Peter was qualified by experience. Remember the problems then confronting them because of- 1. Woman's emancipation through the Gospel.

2. The common human tendency to rush to extremes.

3. Many of the wives who had become followers of the Lord Jesus wondered if they ought not to leave their heathen husbands. Observe, "That your prayers be not hindered" (1 Peter 3:7).

I. Concerning Wives (1 Peter 3:1-6). Elements in true feminine adornment- 1. Loyalty to "own husbands" (1 Peter 3:1). The emphasis on "own husbands" is impressive.

2. Subjection (1 Peter 3:1). "Be in subjection." A wise woman knows her rightful place.

3. Robe of Purity in conversation and behaviour (1 Peter 3:2). "When they see how chaste and reverent you are," is M. rendering of 1 Peter 3:2.

4. "Hidden Character Right" (R.) (1 Peter 3:4). "The hidden man" means the hidden character.

5. Gentle. "With the immortal beauty of a gentle and modest spirit" is M. rendering of 1 Peter 3:4.

6. Modest. As M.

7. Respectful (1 Peter 3:5-6).

8. Fearlessness (1 Peter 3:6). "Are not afraid with any amazement" is in M. "Yield to no passion," or as R.V., "Not put in fear by any terror." The rendering of 1 Peter 3:3 in the 20th C. New Testament is very fine. "A woman's attractions should not depend upon such external things as the arrangement of her hair, the jewellery she wears, or the style of her dress; but upon the inner life-the imperishable beauty of a quiet and gentle spirit, for this is very precious in God's sight." This, certainly, was how the holy women of old made themselves attractive.

II. Concerning Husbands (1 Peter 3:7). Husbands are to be- 1. Considerate. "Ye husbands must be considerate" is M.

2. Intelligent. "According to knowledge." Suggests the need of intelligence, of being well-informed.

3. Respectful. "Give honour unto the wife," or paying homage, that is, bowing down in the spirit in the posture of serious and religious regard. Why? For two reasons:

1st. They are the weaker vessels.

2nd. We are "heirs together."

III. Concerning Each Other (1 Peter 3:8-13).

1. To Fellow-Christians there should be a. Oneness of mind (1 Peter 3:8). b. Compassion (1 Peter 3:8). c. Love (1 Peter 3:8).

2. To the Weak and Erring. "Be pitiful," i.e., tenderhearted (1 Peter 3:8).

3. To Equals. Be courteous (1 Peter 3:8-9).

4. To Enemies. Do not retaliate (1 Peter 3:13). THE BEHAVIOUR OF THE PERSECUTED

1 Peter 3:13-17.

Verse 15 is a quotation from the Prophet Isaiah (Isaiah 8:13), with some very significant variations. Isaiah was in danger through faithful preaching, whereupon the Lord sends, or rather gives him, a reassuring message. This Peter quotes, substituting, without any explanation or vindication as if it was a matter of course, the name of Christ in place of Jehovah of the Old Testament. Remembering the reverence the Jews had for the Scriptures, their intense monotheism and dread of putting any creature in place of God, something of the significance of this act will grip you.

Another difference. The Lord is the Sanctuary in Isaiah, whereas in Peter we are the sanctuaries. These are important points. The Persecuted. Peter is still concerned over the persecuted ones. Persecution brings suffering. In all Paul's Epistles the word "Suffer" occurs but seven times, and never twice in the same Epistle, whereas it comes twelve times in one short letter of the Apostle Peter. Don't forget to connect 1 Peter 3:12 with 1 Peter 3:13. The lesson is: If God's eye is upon you, who shall harm you? The Safety of Zeal (13). It may seem a strange sentence, yet it is most certainly true, that our safety depends upon ourselves, as well as upon the Lord. Note the importance of the little word "if." "And who is he that will harm you if"- "if" what? "If ye be zealous of that which is good" (R.V. and R.). Moffatt reads, "All who will wrong you if you have a passion for goodness." It could be rendered, "If ye make yourselves zealous." Our Lord Jesus was clad with zeal as with a cloak (Isaiah 59:17). And so should His followers be donned. The idea of zeal as a cloak is suggestive. A cloak is (1) a protection from the weather, so we are partly secure in our own enthusiasm. (2) a cloak is seemly and becoming. Not to be zealous for the Lord and His cause is very unseemly and unbecoming of us.

SANCTIFYING THE LORD.

1 Peter 3:11-17.

Introduction. A Heart Religion. Note the emphasis here upon a heart religion. This is something that has to take place in the hearts of God's people. "Reverence Christ as Lord in your own hearts" (M.). "In your hearts consecrate Christ as Lord" (W.). "But love the Lord Christ in your hearts" (F.F.).

Man a Shrine. The heart of a Christian man or woman is a shrine. It is a place of worship. There is a large congregation there, consisting of wishes, motives, ambitions, desires, likes, unlikes, passions, wishes, longings. And Christ also is there. He ought to be chief, the One in command. He first comes as Guest, but ought to become supreme Master-Lord, in every sense of that word. This should be our deliberate act-place the Guest on the throne of our being, ask the Passenger to mount the bridge and take command of the vessel. Ask our Companion to take supreme command I. What it Means to Sanctify Christ.

1. Set Him Apart from the Common and Ordinary to Special Use. To sanctify in the Bible means to "set apart," and in consequence to view in a different light, ceasing to use or treat as formerly. What is the common use made of our Lord? A Fire Escape. We first begin to think of Him as Saviour from sin and the wrath to come. He is a Fire Escape. But He is much more. He should become everything to us. Thank God that He has saved you from Hell, but also find out what He has saved you to! If a believer, He is already in your heart as Christ. Now make Him your Lord, Master, Sovereign.

2. Worship. To sanctify the Christ in your heart as Lord means that you do set Him on the pedestal and pinnacle of your being, and that you bow down before Him with adoring love and wonder, and with reverence and submission, worshipping Him.

3. Hallow. Sanctify is the same word in the Lord's Prayer rendered "hallowed be Thy Name." We sanctify or hallow One who is holy already, when we recognise that holiness, and honour in speech, thought and act, what we recognise. It means to hallow Him by lip, thought, and service.

II. What will be the Result of such an Act on our Part?

1. A Good Conscience (1 Peter 3:16). What a boon. A conscience void of offence toward God and man.

2. Purity (1 Peter 3:16). Purity of heart and thought and life, so patent to our persecutors, "they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation (or life) in Christ."

3. Fearlessness and Calmness (1 Peter 3:14). "Be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled." When Christ is Master within our hearts, He calms and steadies, and gives us calmness and courage.

4. Mental Alertness (1 Peter 3:15). "And be ready" of the A.V. is in R.V. "Being ready," that is to say, mental alertness follows the setting apart of Christ as Lord. Mental sloth and inability to grasp spiritual things is a malady only too prevalent, and one which would largely disappear if Christ was made Lord of our being.

5. Gentleness. Being ready always to "answer gently and with reverence" is the M. rendering. Another wonderful and impressive result of sanctifying Christ as Lord. THE SPIRITS IN PRISON.

1 Peter 3:18-22.

What a problem this section is! Regarding it, the late Dr. Jowett wrote: "The concluding passage of this great chapter is like a landscape in the uncertain light of the early mom. Here and there the black shadows still linger and prolong the night. The hollows are filled with mist. A prevailing dimness possesses the scene. From only a few things has the veil dropped, and their lineaments are seen in suggestive outline. On the whole, we are dealing with obscure hints, with partial unveilings, which awaken wonder rather than convey enlightenment." Three separate views of this subject of preaching to the spirits in prison are held, two of which we reject.

I. A Probation After Death. After His death our Lord descended into Hell to preach the Gospel. Some think this probation is only for those who have never heard the Gospel of Christ. Oh, the folly of building such an idea and hope on one solitary vague Scripture. This Scripture does not say there is a probation after death. Our probationary period is now, in life.

II. Jesus Went to the Angels, the Fallen Angels, in prison, to proclaim His triumph on the Cross. There is more in these verses to support this view than the first idea we have noticed. For the word rendered "spirits" by itself, without any qualifying description, is used always of supernatural beings, higher than man, and yet lower than God. By comparing certain passages, such as 2 Peter 2:4-9; 1 Timothy 3:16; Jude, 1 Timothy 3:6 and 1 Timothy 3:7, we learn that prior to the Flood, certain angelic beings sinned. But note this, the word translated "preached" is never used in connection with the preaching of the Gospel. R. renders it "proclaim" or "herald." If we accept this view, then what the passage simply states is that the triumphant completion of Christ's death on the Cross was made known to Hell as well as Heaven. We are not told that any repented, or even could repent.

III. A Preaching which Took Place in the Days of Noah, by Noah Himself. The late Dr. Pierson, who was very level-headed, declared: "These Scriptures do not refer at all to His (Our Lord Jesus) own preaching to them after His death, but in the person of Noah by the Holy Spirit who guided Noah as a preacher of Christ." Noah was a preacher. He preached, for the Lord, by the aid of the Holy Spirit. "By which (Spirit) He went and preached (through Noah) to the spirits (now) in prison" (C.H.M.). Do not let this problem of the "spirits in prison" crowd out the main idea of the verses. Peter is comparing the sufferings of our Lord with the sufferings of His persecuted followers. Are you suffering? Take heart, you are not exceptional. Even our Master was not exempt from suffering, and suffering need not hinder our usefulness.

Important Points.

1. "Once suffered" (18). This overthrows the idea behind the sacrifice of the Mass, of repeated sacrifices.

2. "For." That preposition contains a whole volume of theology. It announces the substitutionary aspect of the death of Christ.

3. "Bring us to God." "Introduces us to God" is the R. rendering.

ARMED.

1 Peter 4:1-6.

Armed with a mighty thought in order that the life might be dominated by the Will of the Spirit of God.

Introduction. There are several arresting phrases in this section.

1. "Arm yourselves" (1 Peter 4:1). "Nerve you" (M.). This is a picturesque metaphor. Life is a battle, a campaign. We must arm ourselves! What with? A thought! And a thought about the death of Christ and its implications and applications.

2. "Cease from Sin" (1 Peter 4:1). "Gets quit of sin" (M.). "Ceased unto sins" (R.V., margin). "Is at rest from sin" (W., margin). What a glorious message we have here!

3. Note the Two Wills. The Will of God (1 Peter 4:2) versus the Will of the Gentiles (1 Peter 4:3).

4. Note the Two "Think it Strange" (1 Peter 4:4, 1 Peter 4:12). They were not only astonished, but also persecuted.

I. Reign of the Flesh. "Appetites " (1 Peter 4:3).

1. There is no harm in any natural appetite, considered in itself. Appetites have been given for the preservation of the race, and for our physical well-being.

2. But our appetites have been spoiled by the Fall. They have been disturbed by sin, so that they do not work as God intended. As the late Dr. F. B. Meyer wrote: "When man fell, appetite broke from the grasp of the will, and began to seek often its own gratification, irrespective of those necessary uses and legitimate bonds which had been assigned by God's love and wisdom."

3. These appetites, these habits, have been strengthened by generations of evil living.

4. Now, here is the problem: These appetites must not be eradicated. This must not be, else the race would perish. Instead, they must be cleansed, sanctified, controlled. Is this possible?

5. The sins in the appalling list given in 1 Peter 4:3 are, most closely connected with the flesh, literal flesh.

II. The Reign of the Spirit. How is 1 Peter 4:2 possible? This is the very purpose of the Gospel (1 Peter 4:6). And how can this be brought about? Arm yourselves with a thought. Thus we see the effect of mind upon character.

Someone has remarked: "Christian morality brought two new things into the world-a new type of life in sharp contrast with the sensuality rife on every side, and a new set of motives, powerfully aiding in its realisation. Both these novelties are presented in this passage."

What Thought? We are to arm ourselves with a thought. What thought? 1st, That suffering in the flesh is not, as the world counts it, an unmixed evil, but often a deep blessing. 2nd, That Christ's sufferings during life were because of the fact that "His life was dominated by a supreme thought; it was controlled by an all-commanding purpose. He rejected the sovereignty of the flesh; He subordinated the temporal! He uncrowned the body, making it a common subject, and compelling it to obeisance to high commands." 3rd, The thought of the Cross of Christ. Drink in the meaning of Christ's death. "The pious contemplation of His death will most powerfully kill the love of sin in the soul, and kindle an ardent hatred of it." 4th, The thought of my death in Christ, of my identification with His death. Drink in the spirit of Christ's death till it be repeated in you. Dead men do not sin. We are viewed in the Mind and Purpose of God as having died with Christ in His death, and raised in His resurrection. We must regard ourselves as having passed out of this life in which flesh and sense reign supreme.

HELPS TO THE PRAYER LIFE.

1 Peter 4:7.

Introduction. To those who read the signs of the times, two movements are noticed with delight. First, a general expectancy of the Lord's Coming. Second, a general revival of prayer. Is there any connection between the two? Yes. The latter is the result of the former. Read 1 Peter 4:7. The subject of prayer is one of great importance. Prayer is the first evidence of the new life; (Behold he prayeth, Acts 9:11) an elementary condition of the fulness of the Holy Spirit (Luke 3:21-22). One of the first conditions for the hearing of God's Voice is shutting the door (Matthew 6:6 exemplified in John 20:19-23), and for success in Christian work, see what followed Elisha's shutting of the door (2 Kings 4:33, etc.). Of course we must work as well as pray.

1. A ship was overtaken by a storm. The tumult of the wind and the waves was rendered more fearful by the flashes of lightning and the roar of thunder. The captain issued orders, and all but one man ran to their several posts of duty. This one, overcome with terror, fell upon his knees" on the deck, and prayed for mercy and deliverance. Seeing the man on his knees, he ran at him, shook him by the collar, crying, "Say your prayers in fair weather."

2. Two Scottish ministers were once crossing a loch in the Highlands. It was a ferry, and the boat was full of passengers. A sudden storm arose, as often happens in these mountain waters. It seemed a time of peril. One of the passengers exclaimed: "Let the ministers pray, or we'll be drooned!" "Na,na," said the boatman, "the little ane may pray, but the big ane maun tak' an oar and pull while he prays."

I. Self-Control. "Exercise self-restraint and watchfulness, to help you to pray" (20th C). "Therefore, sober-minded and temperate, so that you may give yourselves to prayer" (W.). Let there be a noble self-restraint in respect to every lawful appetite.

II. Sobriety of Thought. "Steady then, keep cool and pray," is the Moffatt rendering of 1 Peter 4:7. The thought of the nearness of the Lord's Coming should not lead to excitement and neglect of common duties, but to sobriety of thought.

R. gives "of sound mind" instead of sober. This is suggestive of health-a healthy mind. Life is to be chastened by reasonableness and sanity. We must avoid panic and giddiness.

III. Alertness. "Watch unto prayer." Note the association elsewhere of alertness and Lord's Coming (Matthew 24:44; Matthew 25:13), and also prayer (Matthew 26:41; Ephesians 6:18; Colossians 4:2).

LOVE.

1 Peter 4:8-11.

Introduction.

Peter's Lesson. We are not surprised to find the Apostle Peter insisting so strenuously on love. Could he ever forget the interview the Lord had with him when the Master thrice reminded him that the supreme qualification for ministry was love. The agreement of the Three. In giving pre-eminence to love as the greatest of Christian virtues, Peter is in perfect harmony with both Paul and John. It is of special interest in this connection to remember the different natures of these three men, and to observe their agreement in this emphasis. Paul was a theologian; Peter a zealot; John the mystic. Yet all are agreed, as is evident by their writings, that love is the distinguishing virtue of Christianity. The Quality of Love.

1. Peter assumes that the charity is there, but insists on the quality.

2. It must be fervent: a. At boiling point. b. A love that is warm, ardent. c. "He did not so much suggest a love that is ardent as a love that is tense. The very word tense is almost the original word" (Jowett).

3. A love that will show itself in many practical ways.

I. Love Covers. "Love throws a veil over a multitude of faults" (1 Peter 4:8).

1. This is a quotation from Proverbs 10:12.

2. Have you ever connected Proverbs 28:13 with this statement in Peter?

3. There is a covering of sin which is allowable, if the sin be another's, and not my own.

4. Love forgets as well as forgives.

5. Love does not keep hinting at past failures and past revolts. Love is willing to hide them in a nameless grave.

6. Few of us are without faults.

II. Love Gives (1 Peter 4:9).

What? Many things, but hospitality is here referred to. How? Without "grudging" or "murmuring" (R.V.).

1. Most of the early Christians were very poor, and living in what we would call hovels. Yet they were exhorted to be hospitable.

2. The need then of hospitality is clearly seen. a. Those who had lost homes for Christ's sake. b. Those who were pilgrim preachers away from their own homes.

III. Love Ministers (1 Peter 4:10).

1. For "gift" M. gives "talent."

2. "Manifold." "Many coloured" was Sir Arthur Blackwood's translation. a. He did not merely mean by manifold, "many." b. "Varied" (M.). Variegated, many coloured, Not a question of quantity, but quality.

3. "Let every man bring his colour, and let all the world see how variegated in charm and love is the total grace or gift of God."

4. "Every man holds his own colour of grace as a steward."

5. Shades of colour only look well in the whole.

6. Other variegated mercies are as follows: a. Wisdom (Ephesians 3:10). b. Mercies (Nehemiah 9:19-20). c. Works (Psalms 104:24). d. Grace (Ephesians 3:7). e. Talents (1 Peter 4:10).

7. "Received." Then we must not take any credit.

IV. Love Dogmatises (1 Peter 4:11). "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." Or, as M., "preach as one who utters the Words of God;" or W., "as uttering God's truth."

Love speaks with no uncertain sound. For love speaks with authority. There is also in this phrase the thought of speaking in the Holy Spirit as the oracles of God were written.

V. Love Glorifies. The master-passion of love is that the loved one-the Lord-should be glorified. "That God in all things may be glorified."

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SUFFERING ONES.

1 Peter 4:12-19.

As already pointed out, Peter wrote his Epistle particularly to comfort sufferers. This is a precious section. Let us summarise. His advice to suffering saints is-

I. Don't be Surprised (1 Peter 4:12). Note the depth of his sympathy as expressed in "Beloved." "Do not be surprised at the ordeal that has come to test you, as though some foreign experience befall you. You are sharing what Christ suffered" (M.). Once Peter thought differently. (Study Matthew 16:21-23). Now he thinks it strange that he or anyone could have imagined anything else. To save you from thinking "it strange" that you should be called to pass through fiery trials, remember:

1. What you are. You are a child of God at enmity with Satan and opposed to the world.

2. Where you are. You are passing through enemy territory. You are travelling through what rightly could be called "Emmanuel's Land," but the enemy has invaded and captured it, and has become "the God of this World."

3. Your Destiny. You are marching through enemy territory to "fairer worlds on high." No wonder you are assailed and persecuted.

Observe, "Fiery trial." W. renders it "The scorching flame of persecution." Fire: a. Tests character. b. Purifies lives. c. Unites believers. d. Introduces to a holy and blessed companionship (See Daniel 3:25).

II. Be Sure and Rejoice (1 Peter 4:13). Why? You are sharing suffering with the Lord. He suffers with you. You will, in consequence, share in His triumph. "Ye may be glad also with triumphant gladness" (W.).

III. You are to be Envied (1 Peter 4:14). "If ye be reproached for the Name of Christ you are to be envied." (W.). Why? Several reasons may be given, but Peter gives one-a special gift of the Holy Spirit is bestowed upon sufferers. "Spirit of God Himself resteth upon you" (M.).

IV. Yet be on your Guard (1 Peter 4:15-16). Take great care that you yourself, by misconduct, do not bring suffering down on your head.

V. Be Assured that He will Avenge You (1 Peter 4:17-18). Does not He say elsewhere, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord?"

VI. Let there be a Definite Commitment on your Part (1 Peter 4:19). "According to the will of God" is in 20th C. "Because God wills it, commit your lives."

Commit! Had Peter Jesus' dying commitment in mind? (Luke 23:46). It seems likely. The Lord Jesus did this in the hour of His greatest suffering.

"Saved with Difficulty" is 20th C. rendering for "scarcely be saved." This is very suggestive, and is fully dealt with in another section of this volume of "Handfuls on Purpose"

QUALIFICATIONS FOR SERVICE.

1 Peter 5:1-7.

1 Peter 5:5-7 form a suggestive grouping of helpful and important thoughts on Christian Service. Observe some interesting facts:

1. The simplicity of the constitution of the primitive Church showed in the simile "Flock of God."

2. Word "Feed." "Tend" in the R.V. means more than caring. It means defend, govern, restrain.

3. Was Peter thinking of John 21:16 when he wrote these verses? He certainly was put in charge of the Lord's lambs and sheep. But that is not a Petrine prerogative: it is a duty that devolves upon others.

I. A Witness (1). "A witness of the sufferings of Christ." This is the one qualification for tending the flock of God: beholding, each for himself, the sufferings of Christ with the eye of the soul. This seeing is also a qualification for sharing the glory.

II. A Willingness. "Not by constraint" (2). "Not reluctantly," but eagerly, according "with the will of God," is W. rendering.

III. A Call. "But willingly, according unto God" is R.V. Does this mean a call to the work itself, or as to how to do the work?

IV. Eagerness. "Not reluctantly, but eagerly" is W. This suggests eagerness for service as a fourth essential.

V. Affection. "Not for filthy lucre," but for love's sake.

VI. Cheerfulness. "Of a ready mind" is in W. "Of a cheerful mind."

VII. Humility (1 Peter 5:3-6). "As lords" or "lording it." For "God's heritage," R. V. gives "allotted portion;" not merely God's portion, but the portion He entrusts to you. Instead of "clothed" with humility, M. reads "aprons of humility," that is, put on the slave's apron. Dr. Maclaren has a nice word on this: "The Apostle used here an expression of a remarkable kind, and which never occurs again in Scripture. The word rendered in the A.V. "be clothed," or better in the R.V. as "gird yourselves with," really implies a little more than either of these renderings suggests. It describes a kind of garment as well as the act of putting it on, and the sort of garment which it describes was a remarkable one. It was a part of a slave's uniform. Some scholars think that it was a white apron or overall, or something of that sort; others think that it was simply a scarf or girdle; but at all events, it was a distinguishing mark of a slave, and he put it on when he meant to work, and, says Peter: "Do you strap round you the slave's apron, and do it for the same reason-to serve." When Peter wrote this sentence, was he thinking of his Master's act, as recorded in John 13:4-5?

VIII. Trustfulness (1 Peter 5:7). What a grand verse! "Let all your anxieties fall upon Him, for His interest is in you" (M.). "Throw all your anxieties upon Him, for He makes you His care" (20th C). "Banish care and welcome glee" is a good motto. When Florence Nightingale had reached the age of ninety, and could no longer follow sustained reading, she still liked to hear familiar hymns. Her biographer says: "A favourite, if one may judge by the frequency with which verses from it appear in her latest written meditation was:

"O, Lord, how happy should we be,

If we could cast our care on Thee,

If we from self could rest."

Once the expression of an aspiration; now, perhaps of attainment."

SOBRIETY.

1 Peter 5:7, 1 Peter 5:8.

Frequently we find in the New Testament exhortations to sobriety, and this means much more than abstinence from intoxicating drink. We can be intoxicated by pride, self-esteem.

I. Commended. Here it is commended in our Scripture.

II. Definitions. Sober has been rendered:

1. Be Watchful.

2. Be Vigilant.

3. Be Sound.

4. Be Moderate. "Curb every passion" (W.).

5. Be Prudent.

6. Be Dignified in Restraint. "Exercise self-control," is 20th C. rendering, instead of sober.

III. An Extra.

1. Add to Holiness (1 Timothy 2:15). With moderation and prudence.

2. Add to Acceptance of Second Advent Truth (1 Peter 1:13).

3. Add to Prayer (1 Peter 4:7-8).

IV. Sober in What?

1. Thoughts (Rom. 12). Sound mind.

2. Words (Acts 26:25). Prudence and moderation.

3. Life (Titus 2:12). Temporately and prudently

4. Mind (2 Corinthians 5:13). Sound and prudent. A mind evenly and well balanced (1 Thessalonians 5:6, 1 Thessalonians 5:8., i.e., Let us be mentally alert or watchful).

V. Why? We are of the day (1 Thessalonians 5:8). Therefore be watchful and alert.

VI. Who?

1. Bishops (Titus 1:8; 1 Timothy 3:2). Be vigilant.

2. Wives (1 Timothy 3:11). Be vigilant.

3. Aged Men (Titus 2:2). Sound-minded.

4. Young Women (Titus 2:4).

5. Young Men (Titus 2:6).

6. Women (1 Timothy 2:9). THE ENEMY.

1 Peter 5:8-14.

Introduction. Is there a personal Devil? Of course there is. "A gang of thieves is never so dangerous as when they have it widely rumoured that they have left the neighbourhood" (Meyer).

I. Our Adversary (1 Peter 5:8).

1. His Identity. Here we are told he is the Devil.

2. His Guises. He has a fairly extensive wardrobe. He is a quick-change artist. He has three common and familiar guises. He assails us more frequently in either of these three guises than any other. Let us take them in their Biblical order: a. Serpent (Revelation 12:9; Genesis 3:14).

(i.) As a Serpent he is more dangerous than a Roaring Lion.

(ii.) This name suggests that he beguiles our senses, perverts our judgments, enchants our imagination. b. Angel of Light (2 Corinthians 11:14).

(i.) Deceiving with false views of spiritual things.

(ii.) As thus, he poses as an evangelist and teacher, all the while undermining the faith he is professing to teach.

(iii.) "If the evil that assails us were as frightful in its aspect as it is in its essence, we could run little danger from its assaults, but often it besets us in fair forms and is dazzlingly coloured, and here lies its peril." c. Roaring Lion (1 Peter 5:8).

(i.) Terror in his threatenings.

(ii.) Exhibited in threatenings and persecutions.

(iii.) In blows and blasphemies of the roaring multitude.

(iv.) Strength-bearing us down.

(v.) Seeking to destroy us by violent oppositions.

II. Our Duty (1 Peter 5:8-9).

1. Keep Cool (M.).

2. Keep Awake (M.).

3. Resist. Also give no place (Ephesians 4:27). Stand against (Ephesians 6:11).

4. "Curb every Passion" (W.). Exercise self-control (20th C.) 8.

III. Our Safety (1 Peter 5:9).

1. "Keep your foothold in the faith" (M.). a. Have you planted your foot upon the faith? b. It provides a firm foothold.

2. Remember your testing is a common experience.

IV. Our Enabling (1 Peter 5:10-11). "But. . .God."

1. Are you fearful at the thought of your adversary?

2. "But God."

3. Beautiful Title: "of all grace."

4. "Himself shall" (R.).

5. Architectural Metaphors. a. Perfect. "Repair" (M.). Put you in joint. b. Stablish. Established. c. Strength. "Firm" (W.). d. Settle. Settling on its foundation.

2 Peter

2 Peter This Epistle the Apostle Peter wrote for an altogether different purpose to First Peter. The latter was intended for encouragement to Believers passing through severe trials and bitter persecutions. On the other hand, Second Peter was written to warn the Lord's people of the presence and propaganda of false teachers and of their corrupt and corrupting doctrines. First Peter was written to console; Second Peter to warn. A GLORIOUS EQUALITY.

2 Peter 1:1-2.

Introduction. As Dr. Jowett pondered over these first two verses, there leapt into his mind the watchwords of the French Revolution, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity." Certainly these three words sum up admirably the truths here.

I. Liberty.

"A Bondman." Paul (Romans 1:1; Php_1:1; Titus 1:1); James (James 1:1); Peter (2 Peter 1:1); Jude (Jude 1:1).

1. How strangely that sounds! "Simon Peter a bondman!"

2. Knowing what slavery meant then, this is indeed strange.

3. Read on: "a bondman. . . of Jesus Christ." Where Does the Liberty Come In? Ponder over the following quotations:

1. "At the heart of all true freedom there is a certain bondage."

2. "Even anarchist societies are compelled to have some rules; and the making of a rule implies the forging of a chain."

3. "Bondage is the secret of freedom."

4. "The man who will not be bound to anything or anybody, is always the most enslaved."

5. "The greatest triumph of the Gospel is the fact that it leads men from lives of undisciplined freedom into lives of willing bond-service."

6. "Consecration is the entering into a deeper bondage."

7. Note: a. A slave, but not servile. No cringing. b. The slavery of a lover-a lover slaves for loved ones. c. Recognition of his rightful ownership. d. The meaning of this in the life can only be discovered as we go on in the Christian way.

II. Equality. Who are They who are Equal?

1. "To them... with us," "like"

2. We are not superior to you. We are on a Gospel equality.

Equal-What in?

1. Spiritual privileges.

2. There are many inequalities in temporal things.

3. In "Student in Arms," Donald Hankey, in chapter entitled, "An Experiment in Democracy,"writes: "Equality of opportunity had been granted, and the inequality of man had been demonstrated."

"Like Precious Faith."

1. "Equally precious faith" is R.

2. Not that all had an equal amount of faith.

3. But their faith was alike though differing in robustness, as brothers can resemble each other, though differing in health and other things.

Precious. Why?

1. By it we enter into possession of righteousness.

2. Because of the wealth which, through it, comes into the life.

3. "Door of faith." A door is of little value in itself, but if it opens into a palace it is of value.

How Obtained?

1. "Obtained by lot,." i.e., a good gift from God.

2. Greek word implies that they had not won or earned it for themselves, but that it had been allotted to them.

Through the Righteousness of God.

1. This is a great surprise.

2. This is a so-called Pauline word, yet Peter utters it.

3. Instead of "through," read "in."

4. Does the word here mean what it means in Romans? Luther and others think so.

5. Certainly in bestowing righteousness God is no respecter of persons.

"Equity" is the Moffatt rendering, instead of "righteousness." "In the absolute justice and favour of God you have obtained an equally precious faith with us," is another rendering.

How Obtained? You obtain this blessing of faith through faith, yet owing to the righteousness of God.

III. Fraternity.

1. Listen to the wishes of Peter and other sacred writers for one another: "Grace and peace be multiplied."

2. It is encouraging and cheering to receive the well-wishes of others. THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE LORD THE ONLY SOURCE OF BLESSING

2 Peter 1:2, 2 Peter 1:3.

Introduction.

Key Word.

1. In the first Epistle we hear much about suffering; in this second Epistle much about knowledge.

2. Peter knew His Lord so well, therefore speaks much of the necessity and result of knowledge.

Gnostics.

1. Very early in the Primitive days there arose those who laid claim to exclusive knowledge, calling themselves gnostics, i.e., knowing ones.

2. The same tendency to arrogate to ourselves superior wisdom always exists.

3. In this Epistle we are shown the true knowledge.

"In."

1. Instead of "through," read "in"-i.e., sphere.

2. The knowledge of God is the sphere in which all spiritual blessings come to us.

"Personal."

1. "In the personal knowledge " (R.).

2. Not an intellectual knowledge merely, but spiritual and evangelical to the individual.

"Full" (2 Peter 3:18). It must be a growing knowledge.

1. "Full knowledge" is literal rendering.

2. Shallow knowledge makes superficial Christians, 3. How can my knowledge grow?

1st. By coming to Him.

2nd. By living with Him.

3rd. By communing with Him.

4th. By silence before Him. "Be still and know."

5th. By His Word.

"Of God and Jesus." What a wonderful union! A Dread Possibility. Be barren and unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord (2 Peter 1:8).

Through Growing Knowledge we have:

I. Grace and Peace (2 Peter 1:2).

1. Grace first, peace next. God's favour, then the effects of that favour.

2. You possess these, but they can be multiplied.

3. Others in the New Testament only express the wish, but do not point out the path to that experience.

4. How? Through a growing knowledge of Him.

II. Every Requisite for Life and Piety (2 Peter 1:3).

1. "All things needful" (W.); "necessary" (20th C); "suited" (R.).

2. "Hath." Already in our possession.

3. "All" things.

4. Called us to "glory and excellence." "By" (20th C.) or "through" (R.).

5. "It is impossible to live a holy life," say some. Nay; do not say that. Do you wish to know how? Get to know Him.

III. Purity (2 Peter 2:20).

1. There are awful pollutions in the world to be sure.

2. Is it possible to escape from them every day and all the day? Yes.

3. How? By partaking of the Divine Nature through regeneration.

Application. How can I secure this knowledge, and how may it be deepened?

1. Coming (Matthew 11:27-28).

2. Communing. The more we talk with people, the deeper our knowledge of them.

3. Word. Learn God's heart in God's Word.

4. Stillness. Be still and know (Psalms 46:10).

"SHARERS IN THE VERY NATURE OF GOD."

2 Peter 1:4.

Introduction.

Bold. These are indeed bold words. They are staggering. This was the fondest dream of the Ancients. They thought it a possibility only for Emperors and such exalted personages. But now "Ye," the common crowd, the ordinary folk! Only an original phrase for an old truth. Just another way of speaking of regeneration.

Sharers. Note the W. rendering. "Become sharers in the very nature of God."

Ministry of Wealth. Connect 2 Peter 1:3 with 2 Peter 1:4. This wealth brings blessing. The ministry of this wealth is to effect- a. A Deliverance-from corruption. A wonderful escape. b. A Glorious Adoption into the Family of God.

"Earthly Cravings."

1. Is (W.) for "lust."

2. Thus lust means more than animal appetite; it means an earthly ambition.

1. Note how he piles up the adjectives.

2. Promises a. Size=great. Exceeding great. b. Quality-precious.

3. Isaac Watts lay dying. He observed, in conversation with a friend, that he remembered an aged minister who used to say that the most learned and knowing Christians, when they came to die, have only the same plain promise of the Gospel for their support as the common and unlearned. "And so," he said, "I find it. It is the plain promises that do not require much labour and pains to understand them, for I can do nothing now but look unto my Bible for some promise to support me, and live upon that."

Peter, now that he was old, emphasised the value of the promises of God.

Oh, it is blessed, if the promises become more precious to us the older we become!

Profound and Original Conception. What a profound and original conception is this: Vital participation in His own sacred and glorious nature!

I. The Negative Aspect.

1. No Exclusiveness in God. a. In all human society there is an unhappy tendency to exclusiveness and self-absorption. b. It has been said that "the end of human law is to prevent the dispersion of the benefits which certain groups of men have made their own." c. The end of Divine Law is to diffuse the wealth of God, even to the being and life of God.

2. No Divine Nature in Man. a. What do you mean by saying "there is the Divine in all men?" Are you referring to God's image, or God's Life? b. Oh, the need of care just now. c. His image remains in us, though marred (1 Corinthians 11:7). But not an atom of His Life. We are dead, lifeless, so far as the Life of God is concerned.

3. No Absorption in God. a. Partaking does not mean absorption. b. This is the dream of extravagant mysticism. c. Absorption, as a drop of water which goes back into the ocean and is lost? That can never be. d. For there will always be "I" and "Thou"-two separate and distinct personalities.

4. No Sharing in Essential Attributes. a. Shareholders, not of the essence of God so as to be deified. b. Shareholders, not of the essential, but the moral attributes of God. c. Shareholders, but not as Christ. In Him dwelt the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

5. No Absolute, but a Growing Participation. This participation is a growing thing. Therefore not absolute.

II. The Positive Aspect. We become sharers in the Divine Nature by becoming-

1. Partakers of the Promises (2 Peter 1:4, with Ephesians 3:6). Thus we have the ministry of the Word in regeneration (1 Peter 1:23). How? By becoming- 2. Partakers of Christ (Hebrews 3:14). a.

"Companion" (literally) of Christ. b. Shareholders (literal) in Christ. c. How?

3. By Partaking of Bread (1 Corinthians 10:7). a. That is, by taking Christ, who is the Bread of Life. b. This is an act of faith. c. How?

4. By Partaking of Holy Ghost (Hebrews 6:4). a. What a wonderful phrase! b. Surely when the Holy Spirit enters, we become partakers of the Holy Ghost.

III. The Blessed Results.

1. As to Character. Partakers of His holiness (Hebrews 12:10).

2. As to Living. Partakers of His sufferings (1 Peter 4:13).

3. As to Consolation. Partakers of His comfort (2 Corinthians 1:7).

4. As to Service. Partakers of His hope (1 Corinthians 9:10).

SPIRITUAL SHORTSIGHTEDNESS or, Spiritual Advancement in Grace and Holiness

2 Peter 1:5-9.

Introduction.

"For this very Reason,"

1. Is the M. rendering in place of, "and beside this."

2. This connects our past meditation with this.

3. We are sharers in the very Life of God, therefore we must press on to possess more.

Diligence.

1. Peter was a man of action.

2. This is just like Peter to insist on need of diligence.

3. This is a demand for business vigilance in the realm of the spirit.

4. Original meaning of the word is haste. It is employed to describe the eager swiftness with which the Virgin went to Elizabeth after the angel's salutation and annunciation.

Advance.

1. Peter desires to excite and engage them to advance in grace and holiness.

2. One has said: "Diligence is the panacea for all diseases of the Christian life. Where there is faith all that is needful in order to possess any other grace is diligence."

3. Is this correct?

Limitations.

1. There are limitations in the mastering and possessing of things natural. Example: Musical Attainment, Language, Art.

2. But there is no kind of moral worth which is beyond the attainment of believing diligence.

Choric Dances.

1. Word translated "add," in its primary significance alluded to the Choric Dances, where, with hands joined together, the performers kept up a measured movement to the sound of music.

2. Hand linked in hand, let all the graces advance together, faith giving one hand to courage, courage giving the other hand to knowledge, knowledge holding with free hand to temperance, etc., etc.

3. That is the significance of the R.V.: "In your faith." These are not detachable graces, but faith is the root from which virtue and all other graces grow.

Add.

1. It is not one grace which makes a Christian.

2. These graces will not come without an effort, nor remain without culture.

Let us note separately these graces:

I. Faith.

1. Faith leads the van or chorus. Indeed is the root.

2. No number of excellencies make a Christian unless they be excellencies added to faith.

3. Faith is the foundation grace; but a foundation is of little use if no structure follows.

II. Virtue.

1. What virtue is meant here? "A noble character" is rendering in (W.). "Resolution" (M.).

2. Courage or fortitude is meant, or manliness-the holy courage which enables men to quit themselves as men.

3. "Brave," without "bluster"-fearless without ferocity.

III. Knowledge.

1. Intelligence (M.).

2. General and particular knowledge, of science, and particularly that of the Bible and of Divine things.

IV. Temperance. "Self-control" (W.). A proper and limited use of all enjoyments.

V. Patience. "Power of endurance" (W.). "Steadfastness" (M.).

VI. Godliness. "Piety" (M.).

VII. Brotherly Kindness. "Affection" (W.).

VIII. Charity.

Application. Not to do so means:

1. Spiritual myopia, a word the oculist uses for physical short-sightedness.

2. If a man has these things he has sight.

3. Cannot look back far enough ("Hath forgotten") and cannot look forward as he ought.

SPIRITUAL CERTAINTY.

2 Peter 1:10, 2 Peter 1:11.

Introduction.

"Diligence."

1. Here we have this businesslike word again.

2. 2 Peter 1:5; 2 Peter 3:14.

Connection.

1. He speaks in 2 Peter 3:5 of the need of diligence in acquiring spiritual graces.

2. He that lacks such things suffers from spiritual shortsightedness.

3. Do not let that be so, "but give diligence to make your calling and election sure.

Blessedness of Certainty.

1. Life is full of uncertainty so far as natural things are.

2. The certainty respecting spiritual things is possible and desirable.

I. Spiritual Uncertainty is One Fruit of Spiritual Immaturity.

"Spare no Effort.

1. To put God's call and choice beyond all doubt" (20th C).

2. "Spare no effort": (a) In prayer. (b) In study. (c) In converse with elder Christians.

Peter had No Doubt.

1. Peter thus wrote, not because he entertained any doubt concerning them. See Peter 2 Peter 1:2.

2. Whilst he entertained no doubt, probably they were the prey of doubts.

"Calling and Election."

1. That was how they referred to salvation.

2. This expresses the Divine side of our salvation.

3. Giving diligence to make sure and certain.

4. None can look into the Book of God's Eternal Counsels and Decrees. Yet we have something to do.

5. "Though God has called and elected us in Christ, yet it depends on our own care to make them effectual to salvation" (An Old Bishop).

Some Scriptures.

1. On Predestination (Romans 8:29-30; Ephesians 1:5, Ephesians 1:11).

2. On Election. Israel, God's elect people (Isaiah 45:4). He has an elect to-day (Romans 8:33; Colossians 3:12; 1 Peter 1:2; Romans 9:11; Romans 11:5; 1 Thessalonians 1:4).

How to Make Sure.

1. By examination of our own lives. Are we manifesting the graces of the Spirit.

2. By seeking the witness of the Spirit.

II. Spiritual Certainty Produces Blessed Results.

1. Stability in Grace. "Ye shall never stumble" (R.V). "Never make a slip" (M.). a. Life is full of slippery places. b. Growth in grace means strength to our spiritual ankle bones.

2. Stability in Purpose. "Ye shall never falter" (F.F.). a. No ruinous hesitancy. b. Many a battle has been lost by hesitation. c. To know definitely the mind of God is grand.

3. A Triumphant Entrance into Glory. "A triumphant admission" (20th C). No crawling through the Gate of Heaven. We shall go sweeping through the Gate.

4. Freedom from Shame when Before Him. "Fully equipped" (F.F.). a. In a grand review, how ashamed an ill-equipped soldier would be. b. Anything lacking in the uniform would merit censure. What about the Grand Review at the Reward Seat of Christ?

TWO REASONS FOR MINISTERIAL URGENCY.

2 Peter 1:12-15.

Introduction.

Negligent.

1. Peter has been urging his hearers to diligence.

2. What about himself? I, too, will not be negligent.

3. I will not neglect my duty.

Remembrancer.

1. Peter had a duty to perform-he had been appointed a remembrancer for the Lord.

2. This is the office of all faithful pastors.

3. Note: (1) "Always." (2) "Of these things." (3) Though they knew them. (4) And were established in them. ("Fixed in the truth"). And it was "meet."

4. We need to be put in mind of what we already know to prevent our forgetting it, to improve our knowledge, and reduce all to practice.

Reasons for Ministerial Urgency:

I. A Common Proneness to forgetfulness.

1. Common Malady (see 2 Peter 1:9). a. Forgetfulness is a common malady. More prevalent to-day than in olden times. b. "Memory is such a child of caprice," even in purely secular matters. c. It plays us curious pranks. d. "We remember people's faces but forget their names; we remember a single injury, and forget a multitude of gracious benefits." e. It is more pronounced in things spiritual. f. We find it easier to remember material than spiritual things. g. Note: Israel in the past. "Then they forgot the Lord their God."

2. Need of Remembrancers. a. We feel our need of aids to memory in things material and commercial. b. Humorous are some of the stratagems. (Tying a piece of thread or ribbon on our fingers). c. God has his methods of reminding us, as: (i.) The ministry of the Word (2 Peter 3:1) or, (ii.) The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. "A piece of broken bread recalls the broken body of the Lord;" and also (iii.) The ministry of His servants. Note.

1. A minister's duty is to remind us of truths we already know as well as to bring to our notice new truth.

2. And to do this even to fully established souls.

3. Memory is admitted not to be as good to-day (owing to mind helps), as in Old Testament days, when the memory had more work to do. Therefore the need of being reminded to-day is greater than in past.

II. The Brevity of the Worker's Life (2 Peter 1:14).

1. Note the force of Wycliffe's rendering: "Knowing that swift is the putting off of my tabernacle," i.e., my death will be swift and sudden.

2. Body likened to a tent. "Little tent" (F ,F.).

3. This was a popular metaphor.

4. Stands for: a. A frail, fragile structure. b. A moveable structure. c. The home of a tenant. d. Easily removed-"Exodus." e. Must be put off.

Man-God.

1. Man forgetting God (Deuteronomy 32:18; Isaiah 17:10; Jeremiah 2:32; Jeremiah 3:21; Jeremiah 13:25; Hosea 8:14).

2. God never forgetting man (Isaiah 49:15). THE TRUTH OF OUR CHRISTIAN FAITH.

2 Peter 1:15-21.

Introduction.

"Always in Remembrance."

1. Peter's diligence that they should keep all these things "Always in Remembrance."

2. But are they worthy of an effort to remember?

3. There bursts upon his memory the scene on Mount of Transfiguration.

4. Indeed it must have been often on his mind, for he frequently speaks of his own departure by the very word which the heavenly visitors had used of Christ's departure on the holy mount-Exodus.

Declaration.

1. Yes, they are worthy of all belief.

2. They are not "cunningly devised fables," like other religious beliefs.

3. We made known the- a. Power of our Lord Jesus. b. Presence (R.) (R.V.) of our Lord Jesus. c. Not Second Advent, but Incarnation.

Peter and Paul. One has said: "It is interesting to compare the Epistles of Peter with those of Paul. Peter's Epistles tell of grace-Christ on this earth; Paul's of glory- Christ in the Heavenlies. Peter saw the Transfiguration on the earth; Paul was caught up to the Heavens and saw the God of Glory. Peter tells of the things he saw here; Paul of the revelation and of the word unspeakable.'"

I. The Truth of Christianity Demonstrated.

1. The Testimony of Personal Experience (2 Peter 1:16). a. "Eye-witnesses of His Majesty." b. Such evidence in favour of Christianity has a vast cumulative value for us. c. Put first by Peter. Please do not forget your own experience. d. "What took the kick out of my life?" asked a friend of another.

2. The Testimony of the Divine (2 Peter 1:17). a. Personal experience is not sufficient. b. What an experience that must have been. "When there came such a voice." There was the testimony from above. Here was the testimony of the Divine.

3. The Oral Testimony (2 Peter 1:16). a. 99% of our knowledge comes by hearsay. "When we made known." b. The testimony of others is of value.

4. The Testimony of Scripture (2 Peter 1:19-21). a. "More Permanent."

(i.) Read the forcible (W.) rendering to 19. "And in the written Word of prophecy we have something more permanent."

(ii.) "And thus we have gained fresh confirmation of the prophetic Word" (M.). b. "More Sure." Made more sure because we have received the confirmation of all that the prophets spoke dimly of.

II. Confidence in Scripture Justified.

1. Its Origin (2 Peter 1:20-21). a. From Heaven, "when carried away by the Holy Spirit" (M.). b. Private Interpretation.

(i.) Not the product of the prophet, (ii.) Not the prophet's own interpretation of the vision presented to his mind. c. Definition of Inspiration.

(iii.) All Scripture agrees with Scripture.

(iv.) No Pope or body of men are to limit or dictate what the interpretation of the Scripture is.

(v.) Can only be understood in the Spirit (Read 20th C).

2. Its Design. A Lamp. a. Illuminating. b. Squalid places-exposing the squalor of its time.

3. Its Aim. a. It shines like a guiding lamp. A fuller light of day dawns upon the soul, as the believer, led by the prophetic Word, realises the personal knowledge of the Lord. b. Progress of Revelation-lamp or star. c. The Day.

(i.) Of Christ's fuller revelation to the soul, (ii.) Of Christ's Second Advent. d. Does this mean that we have less use of the Scriptures when living near to God? No.

4. Its Interpretation (2 Peter 1:20.). a. "No prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation," i.e., "Its own interpretation." That is, each separate Scripture to be understood clearly must be compared with other Scriptures. b. Ponder over the 20th C. rendering of this verse: "First be clear on this point-There is no prophetic teaching in Scripture that can be interpreted by man's unaided reason." Thus we require the light of the Holy Spirit.

APOSTASY.

2 Peter 2.

I. False Teachers and their Destiny.

1. Character of Chapter. a. "This is a dark and appalling chapter. b. There is no softening of the shade from end to end." c. It is a chapter of unrelieved gloom.

2. Only Another Similar. a. Only one other portion of Scripture like it-Book of Nahum. b. Nineveh was an apostate people. So that Nahum's message was to apostates.

3. Awfulness of Apostasy. a. Apostasy is worse than ignorance. b. Only thing God can do with apostates is to destroy them. c. "Light that is trifled with becomes lightning."

4. Good and Bad. a. In previous lesson we read of good prophets. b. Now we learn of the bad prophets.

5. Accomplished Fact. a. Peter says "shall be"-a prophecy. b. Jude says "are"-an accomplished fact.

6. Crowning Sin and Proof of Apostasy. a. "Denying the Lord that bought them." b. This is the mark by which to test and reject the false teacher. c. That which lowers Him and His redeeming work must be false. d. The force of this-Peter denied His Lord three times. e. This is "a shorthand expression for all sorts of sin." f. How we may deny:

(i.) By speech.

(ii.) By life-an ungodly life (iii.) By doctrinal views.

II. Swift and Certain Punishment upon Past Apostasy. Proved by that of 1. Angels (2 Peter 2:4).

2. The whole world (2 Peter 2:5).

3. Cities of the plain (2 Peter 2:6).

III. God's Power and Willingness to Keep Us if we Desire to be Kept (5-7 to 9).

1. Noah lived and preached righteousness (2 Peter 2:5).

2. Lot lived righteously and never got reconciled to unrighteousness (2 Peter 2:8).

3. "The Lord knoweth"-no one else does (2 Peter 2:9).

IV. Description of Apostasy.

1. Cunning-privily (2 Peter 2:1).

2. Chief Sin and Mark (2 Peter 2:1).

3. End (2 Peter 2:1; 2 Peter 2:3; 2 Peter 2:12-13).

4. Success-"many" (2 Peter 2:2).

5. Immorality-lascivious (2 Peter 2:2; 2 Peter 2:10; 2 Peter 2:14; 2 Peter 2:18).

6. Treacherous and Deceitful (2 Peter 2:3).

7. Presumptuous (2 Peter 2:10-11).

8. Beastly (2 Peter 2:12).

9. Mercenary (2 Peter 2:15-16).

10. Empty (2 Peter 2:17).

11. Sad Commentary (2 Peter 2:20-22).

12. Undeterred by Miraculous Effort to Guide Aright (2 Peter 2:16).

13. Popularity (2 Peter 2:18). THE LEISURELINESS OF GOD.

2 Peter 3:1-9.

Introduction.

It may be well to remind ourselves of the difference between the First and Second Epistle. First Epistle written to strengthen those who were passing through trial; the Second to warn of terrible dangers; the First concerned with dangers without, the Second concerned with dangers within. The dangers within are more perilous than those without.

1. Good and Bad Prophets. a. We have noticed Peter's reference to the good and bad prophets. b. He returns to this subject. In effect he says: "I don't want you to be forgetful of what those good prophets said" (2).

2. Writings of Apostles and of Old Prophets (2). a. Note the force of 2 Peter 3:2. b. Peter, without any hesitation, places his own writings and the writings of the other Apostles on a level with Old Testament writings. c By R.V. Peter claims Divine origin for his and their writings.

3. Optimist and Last Days (3). a. This optimistic and energetic writer has much to say concerning the last days, and that the last days would be sad days. b.

(i.) "Scoffers"-"mockers" (R.V.).

(ii). W. suggests that mocking had become a habit, for they mocked at everything.

(iii.) These scoffers were bad living men.

(iv.) The sad fact to-day is that good living men scoff at Advent Truth.

(v.) Oh, the sadness!-making sport of the great Hope of the Church.

4. Why do they Mock? Their arguments amount to the following: a. He is not coming because He has not yet come. b. Nothing will happen out of the usual, because nothing unusual has ever happened.

5. Wilfully Forgetful. They are forgetful deliberately and wilfully: a. Of the Deluge-things have not remained since the Creation unchanged. b. The Deluge.

6. Singular Aptness. There is a singular aptness in the reference to the Deluge as a judgment on sin.

7. Water and Fire. a. Note "stored with fire" (R.V., margin). b. What water failed to accomplish fire will secure.

8. Why His Delay? His slowness-absence of hurry-leisureliness.

I. In Sphere of Nature.

1. How slow, and sure, and splendidly persistent God has been in fashioning the world.

2. God is patient because He is Eternal (Augustine).

3. There are 1000 years within His day.

4. The "Day of Salvation" has lasted 2000 years nearly.

II. In Sphere of Revelation.

1. There is one thing God has never done, and that is to be in a hurry to reveal Himself.

2. To have revealed everything all at once would have been: a. Cruelty, and not kindness, for men would have been blinded by the glare. b. Besides, it would have been worse than useless.

III. In the Sphere of Judgment.

1. Sometimes God is very swift in Judgment.

2. At other times inexorably slow.

IV. In the Sphere of Christian Living.

1. In the Revelation of His Will to Us. a. Not all in a moment, but step by step does God reveal the pathway of our duty. b. Paul wished to go southward to Galatia, and wished to turn northward to Bithynia. But the Lord directed otherwise.

2. In Answer to our Prayers. Not all at once does He answer.

3. In the Bestowal of Some of His Gifts (Galatians 4:4).

4. Lesson. Be patient.

HURRYING UP THE GLORIOUS TIME.

2 Peter 3:10-14.

Introduction. Why doth He tarry, the absent Lord? Oh, why? At Burial Service we pray that "Thou mayest shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect." Here in our lesson we have one important thought.

1. Two Days (2 Peter 3:10; 2 Peter 3:12). a. In the verses we have two distinct days mentioned. b. "The Day of the Lord" and "Day of God" are not the same. c. The four days:

(i.) Man's Day (1 Corinthians 4:3, marg.) is the Day of Salvation.

(ii.) Christ's Day (2 Thessalonians 2:2) is the Day of Glorification.

(iii.) Lord's Day is the Day of Tribulation.

(iv.) God's Day is the Day of Realization.

2. Peter on Day of Lord. a. He says it will come as a thief-silently, stealthily, unexpectedly, so far as the world is concerned. b. "Heavens vanish with crackling roar" (M.). c. "The stars will be set ablaze and melt" (M.). d. "Works of man. . . shall be burned up" (W.).

3. Peter on Day of God. a. The terrors in heaven and earth usher in the Day of God, concluding the Day of the Lord (2 Peter 3:12). b. New heavens and new earth (2 Peter 3:13). c. Righteousness in heaven and earth.

I. Our Expectation.

1. "Looking for." "Unto you that look for Him" (Hebrews 9:28).

2. "Expecting" (R.)-that is what "looking for" means. We look not merely out of curiosity, but with great expectancy.

3. What expectations have you?

II. Our Preparation 1. Hurrying up the grand Day of God.

2. Accelerating it by our repentance, prayers, and effort.

3. How we May Hasten. a. By Holy Living (W, 2 Peter 3:11). "All holy living." b. By Godly Conduct (W., 2 Peter 3:11). "And godly conduct). c. By Holy Conversation (R.V.). Take care of your speech. d. By Eagerly Looking (W., 2 Peter 3:12). "Eagerly looking forward." e. By a Godly Aim (M.). "You who expect and hasten the advent of the Day of God." Note (1) Diligence-we shall never be holy without diligence. (2) "Found of Him" (2 Peter 3:14).

III. Our Becoming Attitude (2 Peter 3:14).

1. All this is becoming of those looking for the Lord's Coming.

2. Are you looking forward for His Coming? What effect has that hope had upon you?

GROWTH

2 Peter 3:15-18.

Introduction.

1. How differently Peter ends Second Peter to First Peter, and how differently it ends to other Epistles.

2. He is dwelling upon a solemn subject, and is so full of the subject that he ends abruptly.

3. Meaning of His longsuffering: (1) Not slackness. (2) "Means salvation"-in His longsuffering He has purposes of salvation.

4. "Faithful are the wounds of a friend." "Our beloved brother Paul," though he had withstood him to his face" (Galatians 2:11). "Beloved brother Paul."

5. "If any lack wisdom," etc. "Wisdom given unto him."

6. Wisdom from above required for letter writing. "Hath written unto you."

7. Brain sweat (2 Peter 3:16). "Hard to understand."

8. Paul's writings placed on a level with other Scriptures (2 Peter 3:16).

9. Sad misuses of Scripture (2 Peter 3:16).

10. "Ye. . . know. . . Beware" (2 Peter 3:17). Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

11. "Beloved." (1) Not like Jews "For the Father's sake," but for Jesus' sake.

Unusual. You would never think of telling a child to grow any more than you would tell a plant to grow. But Peter does tell Christian men and women to grow. Why? Because they are not plants, but men and women with wills, which can resist, and can either further or hinder their progress.

I. An Environment Essential to Growth.

1. Significance of "The" in the R.V. and other versions.

2. No growth out of grace and personal knowledge.

3. You cannot "grow" into grace.

4. Here are conditions for growth.

II. The Nature of that Growth.

1. "Grace" Grace stands for one of three things. a. "Favour" (Luke 2:52, R.). b. Gifts. c. Graciousness.

2. "Knowledge." a. Increase your acquaintance with Him. b. In the possibilities of His Saviourhood (fully saved). c. In the possibilities of His Lordship. d. In His Jesus (Joshua) nature-Leadership. e. In His Christhood-the Anointing-One who anoints.

III. The Necessity for Growth.

1. Growth is necessary for steadfastness.

2. No standing still in Christian life.

3. Each going on or getting off.

4. "Be always" (W.).

1 John

1 John This Epistle, written about a.d. 90, was produced for a fourfold purpose, as John himself declares: First, that they might be happy (1 Chronicles 1:4); second, that they might be holy (1 Chronicles 2:1); third, that they might be safe (1 Chronicles 2:26, R.V.). Finally, that they might be sure- "know" Its key-words are "know" and "fellowship." THE JOYFUL LIFE.

1 John 1:4.

"These things write we unto you, that your joy may be full."

I. The Joy of Forgiveness is the Beginning of Joy. We can know we are forgiven (1 John 2:12). Observe "are" forgiven."

II. The Joy of Fellowship is the Fulness of Joy. John points out that the fulness of joy is the outcome of fellowship with the Father, with the Lord Jesus Christ, and with our fellow-believers. This fulness of joy, because of close and blessed fellowship, follows:

1. Walking in the light.

2. Confession of sin.

3. Forgiveness of sin.

4. Cleansing from sin. THE FIRM FOUNDATION UPON WHICH RESTS THE DIVINE FORGIVENESS.

1 John 1:9

Introduction.

One of Wesley's preachers, who had seven children dependent upon him, was thrust into prison. One of his persecutors said in Court: "The man is well enough in other things, but the gentlemen cannot stand his impudence. Why, sirs, he says he knows that his sins are forgiven him!" What was considered impertinence in this case is our great privilege and birthright. It is our joy not only to ask for His forgiveness, but to enjoy the consciousness of His pardoning grace. With the Psalmist we may look up into His face and say, "With Thee there is forgiveness" (Psalms 130:4), and "Thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin" (Psalms 32:5). This is a word for all-the old saint as well as the young believer, because forgiveness is the grace to which more than all others, we have continually to appeal. Day by day we need to pray, "Forgive us our trespasses." Is there any Danger of its Withdrawal? That God forgives is recognised. But is there any conceivable reason for its withdrawal? A woman had a long and bitter quarrel with a sister Christian. For months they had not spoken to each other. The injured woman was laid low by serious illness. She thought she was dying, and the thought of the estrangement through the quarrel made her afraid to die. She sent for her friend, and they sought each other's forgiveness, following which they had a pleasant time together.

Just as she was passing out of the room, the sick woman called her friend back, saying, "I have truly forgiven you, because I feel it is my duty to do so, and I could not die in peace otherwise. I do not expect to get well; but in case I should, I want it distinctly understood that this old matter remains just as it was before I sent for you." When God forgives, is there any danger of its withdrawal? We feel for our peace we need the constant assurance of God's loving mercy to us all through our lives, and indeed right through Eternity.

Blessed be His Name, there is no fickleness or change-ableness in Him. He has left on record in His blessed Book abundant assurance of His lasting forgiveness. His forgiveness rests upon a threefold, impregnable, immovable basis.

I. Divine Justice. His forgiveness rests on a foundation of Divine justice. A very young girl came one day, and throwing herself at the feet of Napoleon, exclaimed: "Mercy, sire; have mercy on my father!"

"Who is your father, my child?" the Emperor asked, graciously. "He is in prison," she replied; "he has been condemned to death." When Napoleon got from her an account of the crime, he said, "Poor child, this is the third time your father has conspired against the State. I must do justice!" "Ah, sir, O know it! But it is not justice I demand, but mercy!" The lips of Napoleon trembled, and grasping the hands of the young girl, he said: "Rise up; I pardon your father for your sake!" This story has often been quoted as an ideal one for us to copy in our approaches to God, and we have been asked and urged to ask Him for mercy, and not for justice. Yet the amazing and marvellous fact about the Divine forgiveness of sin is this, whilst it is granted for the sake of Another, the Lord Jesus, and in compassion, too, for it is written, "He being full of compassion forgave their iniquity" (Psalms 78:38), yet it is also granted on the solid foundation of Divine Justice! Observe, "He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins."

There is such a thing as a forgiveness arising out of mere paternal love or a good natured indifference to sin. If God's forgiveness was of this nature, what would happen? Suppose that He should, without requisite satisfaction, pass over my offences, and forgive me for what my own conscience condemns me, what would be the consequences of this clemency? I could no longer reverence or esteem Him. Ceasing to be just (for remember the poet Cowper's phrase, "A God all mercy were a God unjust"), He would cease to be God in my eyes. The only kind of forgiveness that satisfies is one that proceeds not from love alone, but from law, not from pity alone, but from holiness and justice. The Cross has made this seemingly impossible benefit gloriously simple. Because the penalty of sins had already been borne, to punish the penitent would be to punish a second time; to do that would be a breach of faith with the vicarious Sufferer, and an injustice to the sinner himself, who, in the person of his Substitute has met the penalty of the broken law-death. That God will never do, for He is just. "Faithful and just to forgive us our sins." Glory be to His Name!

II. Divine Faithfulness. His forgiveness rests also on a foundation of Divine faithfulness.

"Faithful and just to forgive us our sins." In the annals of warfare we have heard of a promise of pardon offered only to catch the offenders in hiding. Not so with the Lord. He means what He says. God is faithful to His promises, and to His covenant engagements.

III. Divine Supervision. His forgiveness rests also upon the foundation of Divine supervision.

What we mean by this sentence can best be explained by an incident from the life of Richard I, the favourite king of our childhood days. Coeur-de-Lion was not only a brave man, but was generous and able to forgive wrongs. When he had reigned ten years, one of his French vassals rebelled. Richard at once marched his army and besieged the rebel in his castle. During the last and successful attack, a young man, Bertrand de Gurden, shot an arrow, which mortally wounded the king! The castle fell, and Bertrand was brought before the dying monarch. To the chagrin of his men, Richard said, "Youth, I forgive you my death," and turning to his officers commanded, "Let him go free, and give him a hundred shillings." Richard died, and Bertrand, having been recaptured, was executed. Richard was unable to see that his commands were carried out. The Lord Jesus died to set us free, and to enrich us. But He lives to see that His wishes and commands and covenant agreements are carried out. If He forgives, it is for ever. The proof of forgiveness is seen in a cleansed life: "And to cleanse us." Forgiveness and cleansing are inseparable. Sin is in the soul in two forms-in guilt, which requires forgiveness; and in pollution, which requires cleansing.

"If." The whole verse turns on this first word. There can be no forgiveness without confession. And confession implies forsaking (Proverbs 28:13). THE VICTORIOUS LIFE.

1 John 2:1.

"My little children, these things write I unto you that ye may not sin."

1. This is a message to "My dear children," to those who had become so through Christ Jesus.

2. Being God's children through faith in Christ Jesus, the victorious life should be their own possession and enjoyment. "I write. . . because ye have overcome the wicked one" (1 John 2:13).

3. Alas, we do sin. For sinners there is an Advocate.

4. "Advocacy is that work of Jesus Christ for sinning saints which He carries on with the Father whereby, because of the eternal efficacy of His Own Sacrifice, He restores them to fellowship" (Scofield).

5. The late Dr. Griffith Thomas has a nice and helpful word on this subject: "There is a perfect propitiation provided: 'If any man sin, we have an Advocate.' There is no allowance for sin, but a perfect provision in case we do sin: no need to sin, no right to sin, no compromise with sin, no license, but a provision in case we, do. On board ship the provision of life-belts is not associated with any intention to have a shipwreck, but they are there in case of need. When it is said, 'If any man sin, we have an Advocate,' it is the provision in case of need. As you know, there are two Advocates. The Lord Jesus Christ is the Advocate with the Father; and the same word is used of the Holy Spirit in John's Gospel-He is the Advocate within. There is Christ's perfect provision for us, and there is the Holy Spirit's perfect provision in us." THE SAFE LIFE.

1 John 2:26.

"These things have I written unto you concerning them that seduce you," or, "would lead you astray" (R.V.).

1. Heresy already at work (1 John 2:18-19). "We know that it is the last hour" is R.V. rendering. These had gone astray doctrinally.

2. Yet believers are safe-guarded by the Holy Anointing (1 John 2:20-27).

3. That unction illuminates our minds, conveying knowledge (1 John 2:20). THE KNOWING LIFE.

1 John 5:13.

"These things have I written unto you that believe. . . that ye may know." "Know" is one of the key-words of this Epistle. Let us examine some of them.

1. How can we be sure that "we know Him? " "If we keep His commandments" (1 John 2:3, 1 John 2:5).

2. A constantly growing knowledge of God, His ways, and Word, is one sign of spiritual maturity (1 John 2:13).

3. The Holy Spirit so teaches us that "ye know all things" (1 John 2:20).

4. "We know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him" (1 John 3:2).

5. We are certain "we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren" (1 John 3:14).

6. The Holy Spirit with us advises us as to abiding in Him (1 John 3:24; 1 John 4:13).

7. One infallible test of knowledge (1 John 4:1-3).

8. The consciousness that we have eternal life comes through belief in God's Word (1 John 5:13).

LOVES FOUR PREPOSITIONS.

1 John 4:16, 1 John 4:9,1 John 4:12, 1 John 4:17.

I. "Toward us"-the Direction of love (1 John 4:9).

II. "To us"-the Intention of love (1 John 4:16).

III. "In us"-the Habitation of love (1 John 2:15; 1 John 3:17; 1 John 4:12).

IV. "With us"-the Perfection of love (1 John 4:17, margin). "Herein hath love been perfected with us" (A. V., margin). Suggesting a greater measure of the love of God dwelling within us, and a greater realisation, by mind and heart, of the greatness of His love. THE HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT OF LOVE.

1 John 4:8-9, 1 John 4:17; 1 John 2:5.

I. The Essence of His Love-God Himself-"God is Love" (1 John 4:8).

II. The Cause of His Love-not in us. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us" (1 John 4:10).

III. The Activity of His Love-Sending His Son to die for us (1 John 4:8-9).

IV. The Manner of His Love. The outcome of that love is our adoption as children (1 John 3:1-2).

V. The Perfecting of His Love. That is, the increasing discovery on our part of the assurance and perfection of His love. This gives us boldness (1 John 4:17).

VI. The Maturing of His Love. That is, what we must do in order to liberate the love of God shed abroad in our hearts and lives in holy action (1 John 2:5).

LOVE.

1 John 4:7-9, 1 John 4:11.

I. Love's Home.

1. "Love is of God" (1 John 4:7).

2. Love is God, or better: "God is Love" (1 John 4:8).

II. Love's Apprehension. "We have known and believed the love" (1 John 4:16). Knowledge following faith.

III. Love's Manifestation. The proof of God's love was the sending of His Son (1 John 4:9).

IV. Love's Overflowing. Leads us to love one another (1 John 4:7, 1 John 4:11). Surely 1 John 4:7 teaches that there is no Divine love in the heart of any unregenerate person. Divine love is a far higher thing than mere natural affection.

WHY BELIEVERS SHOULD LOVE ONE ANOTHER.

1 John 4:19.

I. Because He First Loved Us (1 John 4:19, R.V.). In the R.V. it reads: "We love because He first loved us." This dropped word means that we love not only God, but also one another.

II. Because He Still Loves Us (1 John 4:11).

III. Because He Commands Us (1 John 3:23).

IV. Because He has Come to Dwell Within Us (1 John 4:12).

V. Because We have Passed from Death to Life (1 John 3:14).

VI. Because We are no Longer Children of the Devil as Formerly (1 John 3:10).

GOD.

John 4:24; 1 John 1:5; 1 John 4:8, 1 John 4:16.

How simple is the language of the Book. Some of the greatest possible Biblical truths God has written in monosyllables. The simplicity of Holy Writ is so appealing and satisfying. On the mysteries connected with the Being of God we have three profound monosyllables. These contain more information about God than all the sacred books of the East put together.

I. "God is a Spirit." The Spirituality of His Being (John 4:24).

1. This is one of the most sublime revelations in the Bible of the nature of God.

2. It really could be written: "God is Spirit," not a, nor the, but Spirit.

II. "God is Light." The Brilliancy of His Being (1 John 1:5).

1. Not a light, nor even the light, but Light.

2. Strictly speaking, white is no colour, but combination of all colours. When the Apostle wrote, "God is Light," he meant that God is not a hue, nor a colour, not a tone, nor a shade. He is the combination of all colours, all shades, all hues.

III. "God is Love." The Warmth and Attractiveness of His Being (1 John 4:8, 1 John 4:16).

1. Not "God loves," though of course He does. Not that He shows love, but that He is love.

2. We usually say that Love is one of the Divine attributes. Strictly speaking, this is hardly correct. He is Love. Love is His very Being.

3. He is Love to us because He is essentially and eternally Love in Himself.

SIN.

1 John.

I. Its Definition. John gives two of the seven definitions of sin in the Bible, viz:

1. Transgression. Stepping over the Law., i.e., lawlessness. Sin is lawlessness, i.e., the absence of all authority, and the denial of all obligation to God.

2. Unrighteousness. Not coming up to the Law (1 John 3:4; 1 John 5:17).

II. Its Universality (1 John 1:8, 1 John 1:10). What plain language.

III. Its Destruction. Why the Lord Jesus came? To "take away" sin (1 John 2:2; 1 John 3:5; 1 John 4:10). This means more than to cover sin-it is putting it away, taking it away, blotting it out.

IV. Its Confession (1 John 1:9).

V. Its Cleansing (1 John 1:7).

VI. Its Victory (1 John 2:1; 1 John 3:8-9). "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye may not sin" (R.V.) "In order that ye may not sin" (Wey). 1 John 3:8-9 have troubled many of the Lord's dear children. But observe the following rendering: "He who is habitually guilty of sin is a child of the Devil" (W.). "Whosoever is born of God doth not practice sin," i.e., doth not continue sinning. It is God's good will that we be daily more than conquerors over sin, over the world, the flesh, and the Devil.

VII. Its Secret. The secret of constant victory over sin is abiding in Christ (1 John 3:6), and "being kept" (1 John 5:18, R.V.). THE NEW BIRTH: ITS EVIDENCES AND RESULTS.

1 John.

The Apostle John does not point out in this Epistle how regeneration can take place, because that he had already done in his Gospel, particularly John 1:12-13, and the whole of chapter 3. Here in his Epistle he points out the proofs whereby we may know we are born from above.

I. Faith is both the condition and the proof of regeneration. "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God" (1 John 5:1).

II. Love. "Every one that loveth is born of God" (1 John 4:7).

III. Life. "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit (margin, "practice") sin; or as W., "No one who is a child of God is habitually guilty of sin" (1 John 3:9). This is to say, one of the clearest proofs of the new birth is to be found in the fact that a new life is begun. Not a life of sin as before, but a life of victory-there may be, there usually is, especially in the early days, lapses into sin, but not a life of sin. By and by we learn the secret of full victory.

IV. Overcomes. "For whosoever is born of God overcometh the world" (1 John 5:4).

V. Kept. "We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not, but He that was begotten of God (i.e., the Lord Jesus) keepeth him" (1 John 5:18, R.V.). The begotten one is kept by the only Begotten of the Father. And the result?

VI. Holiness. Personal holiness. "Every one that doeth righteousness is born of Him" (1 John 2:29).

ABIDING IN CHRIST.

1 John.

I. Conditions.

1. Abiding in Christ follows the Word of God abiding in us (1 John 2:14,1 John 2:24).

2. Abiding in Christ follows the anointing of the Holy Spirit (1 John 2:27).

3. Abiding in Christ follows obedience to Christ (1 John 3:24).

II. Knowledge. We know that He abides in us and we in Him "by the Spirit which He hath given us" (1 John 3:24).

III. Results.

1. Walk becomes wonderfully different (1 John 2:6).

2. We love others (1 John 2:10).

3. Fearlessness in the day of the Lord's Coming, when we shall be ushered before Him (1 John 2:28).

4. A life of victory (1 John 3:6).

ETERNAL LIFE.

1 John

I. Its Definition. Eternal Life is a living relationship to a living Personality (1 John 5:11-12).

II. Its Location. "This life is in His Son" (1 John 5:11).

III. Its Personification. At the Incarnation the life was manifested. It is personified in Christ (1 John 1:1-2).

Note. We only live; He is the Life.

IV. Its Pre-eminence. "He that hath the Son hath the life" (1 John 5:12, R.V.). There are lives and lives. But this is the life of all lives.

V. Its Possession.

1. Negative. a. Those who have not the Son have not life (1 John 5:12). b. We are by nature dead. "We pass from death unto life" (1 John 3:14). Wondrous journey! c. One who hates his brethren hath not Eternal Life (1 John 3:16).

2. Positive. a. Eternal Life is a promise to be prized (1 John 2:25). b. Eternal Life is a gift to be received (1 John 5:11). c. In receiving the Lord Jesus we receive Eternal Life (1 John 5:11-12). d. We may know for a fact when we have Eternal Life (1 John 5:13). e. Faith leads to possession of Eternal Life (1 John 5:10-11).

MANIFESTED.

1 John.

This is a great word. The Apostle John seems fond of it. Never a word so rich in meaning. "It condenses in a vocable the history of the long descent" of Jesus from the Glory, to the manger, the cross, and from the sepulchre to the Throne. The Dictionary states that "to manifest" means to make plain to sight or understanding; and that "a manifest" is an invoice of a cargo for customhouse purposes. In and through Him is manifested:

I. Life Manifested (1 John 1:2). Life resides in the Lord Jesus, and by His Incarnation "was manifested unto us."

II. Love Manifested (1 John 4:9). By His Incarnation God's love was manifested and is being manifested to-day by the Holy Spirit, and through the lives of redeemed men and women.

III. Salvation: Purpose of His Manifestation (1 John 3:5). "To take away our sins." Wonderful fact! This is more than covering sin. The latter was all that could be done in the Old Testament.

IV. Reformation, or Sanctification. The result of His manifestation (1 John 3:8). "The devil sinneth from the beginning," i.e., Satan is the original sinner. He was created perfect, but deliberately rebelled against God. Thus through him sin came into the world, and all its woe. But the Lord Jesus "was manifested that He might destroy (undo) the works of the Devil." This means in the long run, not only a new man, but a new Heaven and a new earth.

FEAR.

1 John 4:18.

1. When, by God's gracious Holy Spirit, the love of God is made personal to me, and when that love comes sweeping into my heart by the Spirit, it casts out the fear that hath torments, but deepens reverence!

2. "Godly fear is not a shrinking apprehension; it is love upon its knees" (late Dr. Moule). THE POWER OF FAITH

1 John 5:4.

An old writer says, "Faith is the foot of the soul; so it comes to Christ. Faith is the hand of the soul; so it receives Christ. Faith is the arm of the soul; so it embraces Christ. Faith is the eye of the soul; so it looks upon Christ. Faith is the mouth of the soul; so it feeds on Christ. Faith is the lips of the soul; so it kisses Christ."

I. Faith is Precious. It is infinitely precious, because of its own infinite possibilities. With it, nothing needful is impossible. It is the hand that takes with firm, unfailing grip the faithful promises of the God of salvation. The fruits of faith are precious. By it we are justified (Romans 5:1), sanctified (Acts 26:18). It is by faith we "live" (Romans 1:17), "stand" (Romans 11:20), "walk" (2 Corinthians 5:7), "wait" (Galatians 5:5, R.V.). It is a soul-revolutionising grace, because it involves the surrender of the will to the living, transforming Word of God. "To take up half on trust, and half on try, is not faith, but bungling bigotry." God glorifies faith, because faith glorifies God. Without faith it is impossible to please him.

II. Faith should be Progressive. Paul commended the Thessalonians because their "faith grew exceedingly." Faith cannot but grow when there is a growing knowledge of God, and of the fullness and faithfulness of His Word. Faith, like love, will not be driven or forced, it must needs be fed and inspired. The manner of its growth is "from faith to faith" (Romans 1:17). Not from "one confession of faith to another, but it may be from little faith to great faith, from great faith to greater faith, from the greater human faith into the absolute and perfect "faith of God" (Mark 9:22, margin). The "faith of God" is God's faith in His own Word and work. He shall not be discouraged, His Word shall not return to Him as having missed the mark. Lord, increase our faith, and let it grow up and out, into the faith that Thou Thyself hast in Thine own Spirit-breathed Word and blood-sprinkled work.

III. Faith shall be Triumphant. Faith lays hold of the mightiest of all weapons, when it grips the Word of God, which is the Sword of the Spirit. The victories mentioned in Hebrews 11 were all achieved by the weapon of faith. The world's truly mighty ones have all been men of faith. The hands of Christ were omnipotent, because they were the hands of faith. This is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith (1 John 5:4). By faith we overcome the world- 1. Like ENOCH, by being translated out of it into the Kingdom of God's dear Son (Hebrews 11:4).

2. Like NOAH, by accepting God's warning, and entering the ark of God's salvation (Hebrews 11:7).

3. Like ABRAHAM, by obeying God's call, and stepping out into the unknown (Hebrews 11:8).

4. Like MOSES, by refusing to be called the son of the world; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God (Hebrews 11:24-27).

5. Like JOSHUA, by marching round the walls, and expecting their downfall (Hebrews 11:30).

6. Like GIDEON and DAVID, by subduing kingdoms... and obtaining promises (Hebrews 11:32-33). These all obtained a good report through faith. "Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God."

"LIETH IN THE WICKED ONE."

1 John 5:19 (R.V.).

In this passage there are two startling statements.

I. The Word "In." This is the same word used of the believer when he is said to be in Christ, as branches in the Vine. This is a staggering word. It teaches us that just as believers in Christ are united to Christ, drawing from Him life and blessing, so the ungodly are united to Satan, and are being energised by him.

II. The Word "Lieth." Literally "Lieth asleep," depicting a state of unconsciousness. The saved are in the Father's hand, and have beneath them the Everlasting Arms; but the great mass of humanity is in the arms of Satan, and by his subtility lulled to sleep, therefore unconscious of their dread position.

2 John

2 John This is a private personal letter from the aged Apostle John, addressed to an unknown Christian woman, and her pious family. This is the only Epistle in the New Testament addressed exclusively to a lady. There is a tradition that the lady addressed was Martha of Bethany. "The Greek Hyria (Lady, 1 John 1:1), answers to the Hebrew Martha," wrote Bengel. If this be true, the "sister" referred to in 2 John 1:13 would be Mary. It was written specifically to warn this lady and her family of some false teachers (1 John 1:10).

LOVE AND TRUTH.

2 John 1:1, 2 John 1:2.

The word "truth" is met with five times in this short Epistle of but thirteen verses, and forms its key-word.

I. The Source of Love. Truth. Most versions print truth with a capital "T," Truth. Certainly this is one of the Lord's Names, and He is the source of all true love.

II. The Reality of Love. That is, the nature of love commended here is true love, love that is no mere pretence or make-believe.

III. The Breadth of Love. Love cannot be confined to one. The Elder (John must have been about 90 years old when he wrote this Epistle) not only loved "The elect lady," but also "her children," and this pious family was not only loved by the aged apostle, but also by "all they that have known the truth."

IV. The Realisation of Love. R. gives "understand" for "known" in 2 John 1:1. This is to say, those who have realised truth and the love of God in Christ to themseves love others.

V. The Inwardness of Love. "Which dwelleth in us," God's love shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit. Is it truth or love that is meant here? Well, He is both Truth and Love, and as both dwells within us and with us.

GRACE, MERCY, PEACE.

2 John 1:3.

This is a very unusual form of the apostolic salutation in the New Testament, only found in the Pastoral Epistles and here (1 Timothy 1:2; 2 Timothy 1:2; Titus 1:4). You will observe that "Mercy" is added to the usual salutation, "Grace-Peace." What is the significance, and what is the teaching?

Well, read Luke 10:37 with Genesis 39:21. Who showed mercy? The Good Samaritan. What is showing mercy? Binding up wounds and bruises, etc. But what had "mercy" to do with Joseph in prison? Ah, there are more dangerous wounds than those of the body-there are wounds and bruises of the spirit. Joseph's reputation had been challenged; he had been cast into prison on a false charge. His spirit was bruised and bleeding. But the Good Samaritan came when all doors were shut, barred, and bolted, and ministered comfort and consolation to the distressed one. The Lord's servants frequently require the Lord's gracious Good Samaritan ministry.

TRUTH.

2 John 1:4.

1. Is given to walk in (2 John 1:4), not merely to admire.

2. This is one proof of our love to God (2 John 1:6), for love manifests itself in ready obedience.
THE TEST OF TRUTH.

2 John 1:7, 2 John 1:11.

False teachers were travelling (2 John 1:7-11) amongst the churches, and John warns this lady against even entertaining them (2 John 1:10-11), much less their false doctrines. Then the aged Apostle gives an infallible test of truth.

1. The reality of the humanity of our Lord in His earthly life. "That Jesus Christ is come in the flesh."

2. The reality of the humanity of our Lord in His second advent. "Cometh in the flesh" (R.V.).

Apply this test to some popular religious movements of our day, and the result is startling. Christian Science, Spiritism, Russellism, and other similar movements are unmasked, and shown to be against Christ, and utterly wrong-of the Devil.

3 John

3 John This is another sample of the Apostle John's private correspondence. This letter was written to a generous and warm-hearted friend called Gaius, noted for loving hospitality, urging him to continue entertaining the travelling preachers, in spite of the bitter opposition of an autocratic and blustering Church official called Diotrephes.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS.

3 John 1:2, 3 John 1:4-5, 3 John 1:11.

1. Was Gaius ill? (2).

2. Was Gaius one of Paul's converts? Note: "My children" (4).

3. Did Paul love Gaius very ardently? The word "Beloved" is repeated in this short letter, indicating ardent affection (1, 2, 5, 11).

4. Was Gaius prospering spiritually in the things of God? (2).

VARIOUS ASPECTS OF TRUTH.

3 John 1:1, 3 John 1:3-4,3 John 1:8.

As in his previous writings, John has much to say about Truth. Note the various aspects of Truth.

I. An Indwelling. Truth is first regarded as being in the man. "The truth that is in thee" (3).

II. A Road. Truth is then viewed as a road on which, and within whose limits, the man walks. "Even as thou walkest in the truth" (3).

III. An Atmosphere. Truth is now considered as an atmosphere in which the man moves. "Walk in truth" (4).

IV. A Soil, in which love is rooted (1). "I love in the truth."

V. A Weapon (8). "Fellow-workers with truth" (R.V.). Suggesting truth as their powerful weapon in Christian Service.

VI. A Companion. "Fellow-helpers to the truth" (8), suggesting that in our pilgrimage we should make truth our companion.

VII. Referee. Giving testimony in favour of these who walk in truth. "Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself."

Jude

Jude

Like James, Jude was not an apostle, but just an ordinary disciple. James, his brother, had been martyred a few years before Jude wrote this letter. He laid himself out to write a great treatise on (verse 3), Salvation, but abandoned it under the constraint of the Holy Spirit, to write a half-page letter giving a history of Apostasy, from the very beginning, and to warn his readers of that peril.

KEPT

(Jude.)

The words "keep" and "kept" are mentioned five times, and form a helpful study.

I. The Lord's People are Kept Ones. Kept by God from sin for the Lord Jesus. "Preserved in Jesus Christ" (1) is the R.V. "Kept for Jesus Christ."

II. Some Angels "Kept Not their First Estate" (Jude 1:6), so are "kept" (R.V., instead of Reserved) in chains.

III. We Must Keep Ourselves in the full constant assurance that God loves us (Jude 1:21).

IV. He is Able to Keep Us, not merely from "falling," but as R.V., from "stumbling," for it is stumbling which precedes falling (Jude 1:24).

ETERNAL THINGS

(Jude 1:6-7; Jude 1:21).

Three eternal things are mentioned in this letter.

1. Life (Jude 1:21).

2. Chains (Jude 1:6).

3. Fire (Jude 1:7).

COMMON SALVATION

(Jude 1:3).

Salvation is called "common," not because it is cheap and worth little, but because:

I. It comes from a Common Source-God, the Love of God.

II. It is Offered to All Classes. "Commons" are open spaces belonging to the public, and held by Corporations or Councils for all to share and enjoy alike. So salvation is for all.

III. It Supplies a Common or General Need.

IV. It is the Common Theme of all the sacred writers.

Chapter 82

Revelation

The Revelation A well-known Methodist minister and Cliff College Principal, the late Samuel Chadwick, confessed that in his early ministerial days the Revelation was an enigma to him. He then set himself to solve it by reading the book through at a sitting, every day for a month. No wonder the book began to sing and preach to him, and that he discovered it to be a precious treasure-house of instruction, and a sanctuary for worship.

We neglect this book at our great loss and peril. Even in the dark days it acts as a comforter. Someone has remarked that "without tears the Revelation was not written, neither without tears can it be understood" (Revelation 5:4). As aids to its right understanding note:

1st. We should come to this book primarily to find out what it says about the Lord Jesus, and not what it has to say about the future. Its key-phrase is its first five words, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ" It unveils the Lord Jesus. It is simply full of Him. No less than twenty-six times do we find in it Christ's sacrificial title, "Lamb."

2nd. After the end of Revelation 3 the Church is never represented as on the earth. Between Revelation 3 and Revelation 4 the removal of the Church must have taken place.

3rd. Revelation 4 and onward have to do with the Tribulation and last things.

Revelation 1:19, gives its correct threefold division, the last again falling into three sub-sections. THE UNIQUENESS OF THIS BOOK.

Revelation 1:1-9, Revelation 1:19.

I. The Unique Character of the Book (1-3).

1. What is it? A "revelation," i.e., unveiling of Jesus Christ-not a mystery. If the book is a mystery to you, that is a proof that you are reading it wrongly.

2. Whence came it? By revelation. Given by God to His Son (1), the Son gave it to His angel (note, His Angel-an angel specially set apart to look after Jesus- probably the one who ministered to him in Gethsemane), the Angel giving it to John (Revelation 22:16).

3. Why was it given? To show them things that were to come to pass.

4. For whom was it given? His servant, therefore specially for workers.

5. What does it contain? (2). Christ's testimony, i.e., either testimony concerning Him, or which comes from Him.

6. Why should it be Read? (3).

7. When should it be read? Now, for the time is at hand.

8. Special blessing to readers, hearers, lovers of the book ("lay to heart," W.), meditators ("keep in mind," Bullinger), obedient (keep).

II. The Unique Order in the Book (Revelation 1:19).

1. "The things which thou hast seen." The Lord Jesus as the Glorified One (1).

2. "The things which are." The Lord Jesus as Head over the Church (2 and 3).

3. "The things which shall be hereafter." The Lord Jesus as the Triumphant One (4 to 22).

III. The Unique Introduction to the Book (4 to 9).

1. Salutation (4). John alone was left of the Apostles.

2. Benediction (4). Grace first then peace.

3. Doxology (5, 6).

4. Anticipation (7).

5. Self-revelation (8). The voice of the Son of God.

6. Explanation (9). He writes as a brother, not as a lord over God's heritage.

Note. "Seven Spirits," or sevenfold Spirit. Not so much the Spirit viewed in His individual personality, as the Spirit in the manifestation of His operation in the Church. Seven is the Bible number for perfection, therefore the Holy Spirit in His sevenfold completeness. OUR GLORIFIED LORD.

Revelation 1:9-20.

A Glowing Word-Picture of our Glorified Lord.

Introduction.

1. Significance of this Vision. a. Before John could be the messenger to others of the unveiling of Jesus Christ, he himself must look on the Lord in His glory. b. Before he could see God the Father (Revelation 1:4) he must see God the Son. c. The Holy Spirit revealed the Lord Jesus (Revelation 1:10). d. This vision given to him in loneliness. One of the Lord's blessed compensations. e. And to one who was suffering for Christ's sake. Life is full of compensations.

2. John Heard before he Saw-the value of the Word of God. What right have we to ask God to reveal Himself if we neglect the Bible?

I. The Lord (Revelation 1:9-18).

1. What we Know of the Lord Through this Vision. The Lord shown in kingly and priestly dignity: a. Voice (Revelation 1:10; Revelation 1:15), clearness; musical; significant of great majesty. b. Priestly garb. c. Girded. Active service; breast, not loins. Royal repose and priestly calm. d. Girdle. Golden. Kingly dignity. e. Head and hairs (Revelation 1:14). Eternity and Divinity (see Daniel 7:9). Sometimes white hair is one result of great sorrows. None ever suffered as He. f. Eyes. Searching, penetrating. g. Feet. Hot to burn, heavy to tread. h. Hand (Revelation 1:16), mouth. Power of His Word.

2. What we Know of the Lord Through His Titles. a. He is Jehovah (Revelation 1:4). The Jehovah of the Old Testament is the Jesus of the New. b. Faithful witness (Revelation 1:5). Oh, so faithful! c. "First begotten" (Revelation 1:5). A title of dignity and honour. d. Prince (Revelation 1:5). e. Alpha and Omega (Revelation 1:8; Revelation 1:11; Revelation 1:17). f. Almighty (Revelation 1:8). g. Son of Man (Revelation 1:13). h. The Living One (Revelation 1:18).

3. What we Know of the Lord Through His Action. This grand vision gives us indeed the Lord Jesus clothed with majesty, and wielding supreme power, but it also shows us the old love and tenderness (Revelation 1:17), the very same Jesus.

II. The Church (Revelation 1:12).

1. Golden. Matchless Value. Cannot rust.

2. Lampstands. No light in themselves. How dependent upon Him.

3. Seven. a. Emblem of a unity not formal, but real. b. Not uniformity, but oneness in diversity. c. Oneness not by any external connection.

4. Lord in the Midst: a. Not indifferent. b. Not forsaking his unfaithful Church.

III. The Officials (Revelation 1:16). Stars.

1. Symbol of Authority.

2. Symbol of Talent. Having star-like gifts.

3. Stars are for the Darkness. Stars, like men, are for the dark days.

4. Held in the Hand of Christ. Prominence in Christian work exposes to special temptation, but special privilege is granted. He holds us up.

Notes.

Alpha and Omega. In 1893 Moody conducted a great Gospel Campaign at the Chicago Exhibition. Dr. A. J. Gordon lodged in the same house as Rabinowitz of Russia, who one day said: "Do you know what questionings and controversies the Jews have kept up over Zechariah 12:10? 'They shall look upon Me (Aleph-Tev in the Hebrew) whom they have pierced.' They will not admit that it is Jehovah whom they pierced. Hence the dispute about the Whom. But do you notice that this word is simply the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Do you wonder, then that I was filled with awe and astonishment when I opened Revelation 1:7-8, and read these words of Zechariah, now quoted by John. Jesus seemed to say to me, 'Do you doubt who it is whom you pierced? I, Jesus, am the Aleph-Tev, the Alpha Omega, Jehovah Almighty.'"

Threefold Portrait of Jesus. In Rev. 1 we have a threefold portrait of Jesus:

1st. Prophet. His prediction (Revelation 1:1).

2nd. Priest. His garment down to foot (Revelation 1:13).

3rd. King. His golden girdle (Revelation 1:13).

"Fell at His Feet as Dead" (Revelation 1:17). Any drawing near to God which does not bring us down to the earth in deepest abasement and self-emptying must be mere imagination. THE MESSAGES TO THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

Revelation 2 and 3.

Introduction.

Angel means Messenger. The Angel of the Church is a title borrowed from the Jewish Synagogue, and was the name given to the prominent official there. The Angel of the Church was the one in charge. In addressing in the first instance the Angel of the Church, we have the Lord's wonderful courtesy to the responsible official.

I. Ephesus. The Serving Church (Revelation 2:1-7). Fault: Decaying love.

1. Introduction (Revelation 2:1).

2. Recognition (Revelation 2:2-3). Their service, character and doctrine seemed right. Good discipline and loyalty.

3. Warning (Revelation 2:4-5). Language of wounded friendship. He finds a servant where He looks for a bride.

4. Commendation (Revelation 2:6).

5. Promise (Revelation 2:7).

II. Smyrna. The Suffering Church (Revelation 2:8-11). No fault; all praise.

1. The briefest of these addresses is to Smyrna.

2. Proud of their antiquity, He declared He was of greater antiquity: "First and last" (Revelation 2:8).

3. They were suffering, but He had plumbed to the depths of suffering: "Was dead, and is alive" (Revelation 2:8).

4. He was the All-knowing One (Revelation 2:9).

5. He was One whose standards of valuation differed from that of the world's: "Thou art rich" (Revelation 2:9).

6. He warns of worse times to follow (Revelation 2:10).

7. He encourages to loyalty, even to death (Revelation 2:10).

III. Pergamos. The Compromising Church (Revelation 2:12-17). Tolerating evil in their midst.

1. Introduced Himself in His Judicial character (Revelation 2:12).

2. He recognised their special sinful environment (Revelation 2:13). Pergamos was a special centre of Heathen Worship.

3. He praised them for their loyalty (Revelation 2:13).

4. He warned them of the presence of sinful men in their midst (Revelation 2:14-15).

5. He urges to repentance (Revelation 2:16), warning of the result of non-repentance.

6. He promises: a. Special sustenance, and b. Special friendship (Revelation 2:17).

7. Sharp Sword. At Pergamos dwelt the Roman Governor of that province, who alone had the right of wielding the sword. But Jesus has a unique sword (Revelation 2:16).

IV. Thyatira. The Church in Peril (Revelation 2:18-29). Permitted a false teacher to occupy an honoured position. At Thyatira we find a Church which, along with much faithfulness and energy of service, is most seriously affected with false teaching. And one of these false teachers was allowed to occupy an important official position in the Church.

1. Place of little importance.

2. To this obscure and unimportant Church the Risen Lord describes Himself in terms of the most exalted majesty, and conveys a promise of the most exalted power.

3. "Thy wife, Jezebel" (R.V.).

4. Only letter in which a woman is mentioned.

5. And in which the Lord declares so clearly his Sonship. a. The Introduction (Revelation 2:18). b. The Commendation (Revelation 2:19). "You have toiled harder than you did at first" (Weymouth). c. The Warning (Revelation 2:20-23). i. Identity of false teaching, ii. Judgment on false teaching. d. Admonition (Revelation 2:24-25). e. Blessings for overcomers (Revelation 2:26-29).

V. Sardis. The Church in Death (Revelation 3:1-6). Fault: Lost their hold of Christ.

1. Sad condition (Revelation 3:1).

2. Steps that led to that sad condition: a. Defiled garments (Revelation 3:4). b. Fell asleep. "Waken up!" c. Dead minister.

3. Penalty on such (Revelation 3:3).

4. Steps to Recovery: a. Rouse yourselves. b. Look after the dying things. c. Remember. d. There is a Spirit. e. Glorious reward (Revelation 3:5). i. Not blot out. ii. Name confessed. Mentioned in Despatches, iii. Walk with Him in white.

VI. Philadelphia. The Church of the One Talent (Revelation 3:7-13). Characteristic: Faithfulness to God's Word. There were only two of the seven Churches which received no censure or rebuke from the Lord-Smyrna and Philadelphia. The former receives but little praise, though much sympathy; the latter stands alone in the abundance and unalloyed character of the eulogium which Christ passes upon it.

(1) Not that they were perfect; only "a little strength" (Revelation 3:8).

(2) Not that they were beyond need of warning.

1. The Eulogiser (Revelation 3:7). a. Character. Perfect holiness and perfect truth. b. Authority. Keys of David.

2. The Eulogised. Why? a. A little strength (Revelation 3:8). b. Guarded and loved His Word (Revelation 3:8; Revelation 3:10). c. Confessed name (Revelation 3:8).

3. The Promise. a. Opened door. b. Respect of others. c. Kept.

VII. Laodicea. The Lukewarm Church (Revelation 3:14-22). Characteristic: Self-centred and self-satisfied.

Note. Remarkable that the first and last Church suffered from the same disease of spiritual declension, only the former was in the germ, and the latter fully developed.

1. The Lord's Character (Revelation 3:14). Amen. Witness. Originator.

2. The Lord's Diagnosis (Revelation 3:15; Revelation 3:17).

3. The Lord's Preference (Revelation 3:15).

4. The Lord's Threat (Revelation 3:16).

5. The Lord's Counsel (Revelation 3:18).

6. The Lord's Appeal (Revelation 3:19).

7. The Lord's Attitude (Revelation 3:20).

8. The Lord's Reward (Revelation 3:20-21). THE HEAVENLY COURT OF THE KING OF KINGS.

Revelation 4.

Introduction.

1. The Fact of Christ's Sovereignty and Power a great comfort. This is revealed here. a. Dr. Dale mentions in one of his works that, in a time of great bodily weakness and depression, when suffering from a serious illness, he sought to stay his soul on Scripture promises that reminded him of our Lord's love and tenderness, but they failed to comfort him. b. Then, trying to dwell on the fact of Christ's Power and Sovereignty, he found a strange support on which he could rest. c. When the Boxer Riots broke out in China, and the leaders of the China Inland Mission came to their office one morning, dreading at any moment to receive tidings of disaster, some one discovered that the day text on the wall was a promise based on the fact that the Lord is King. The words brought the needed sense of reassurance and strength, and they were able to turn to their usual work, sure that all would be overruled for good. d. The fact of the Divine Sovereignty steadies. e. That is the view Revelation gives of the Lord. f. This is the thought we need for dark days. g. Also the assurance of the ultimate victory of good over evil.

2. Also in this section of Revelation (Rev 4 to end) we have the assurance of the ultimate victory of good-God.

3. This chapter begins the third great section of Revelation.

4. The scene shifts from earth to Heaven.

5. We are introduced to the glorious Audience Chamber of the Great King.

6. Everything speaks of Royalty.

I. The Opened Heaven (Revelation 4:1).

1. There are Five Openings mentioned in Bible: An opened Heaven: a. In Judgment (Genesis 7:11). b. In Blessing (Malachi 3:10). c. For the Holy Spirit (Luke 3:21). d. For a sight of Jesus (Acts 7:56). e. Lord as Conqueror (Revelation 4:1; Revelation 19:11).

2. "Come Up." We cannot apprehend the highest truth if we live on a low plane of thought and conduct.

II. The One on the Throne (Revelation 4:2-3). "He saw the Almighty high and lifted up, throned above all worlds, veiled in light unapproachable, yet known, His presence scintillating with the brilliance of the diamond, glowing like a cornelian, with the concentrated redness of a furnace, and yet over-arched with fresh and living green, as of an emerald. Blinding brilliancy; the glow of a consuming fire; the soft radiance of rainbow promise; these were the contrasted elements in the impression made upon the seer by the vision of Him who sat upon the throne."

Note.

1. "Rapt in the Spirit" (M.).

2. The two opposites in Him. a. He who was Sardine under the Law has ended as Jasper by the Revelation of His Son. b. Holiness and wrath. c. Sardine as well as Jasper. Never know all of Him.

3. Rainbow: a. Complete circle. Covenant sign. b. Green.

III. The Ones Before the Throne (Revelation 4:4-8).

1. The Elders (Revelation 4:4-5), heads of angelic ranks.

2. The Living Ones (Revelation 4:6-8). a. A sea of crystal, not water. No cleansing in Heaven. b. A combination of Seraphim and Cherubim, combining: i. Royalty and boldness of lion, ii. Usefulness of calf, iii. Intelligence of man, iv. Spirituality and soaring quality of eagle.

IV. The Song of Creation (Revelation 4:8-11).

1. The Holiness of God.

2. The Sovereignty of God.

3. The Almightiness of God.

4. The Timelessness of God, THE RAINBOW IN HEAVEN.

Revelation 4:3.

Introduction.

1. Murray M'Cheyne, but a while after he began his ministry, had a most serious illness. When convalescent he wrote: "Ah, there is nothing like a calm look into the Eternal World to teach us the emptiness of self-seeking and vain-glory, to teach us the preciousness of Christ who is called the Tried Stone."

2. Many can bear similar testimony. The world, with all its pomp, ambition, strife, pride, and vain-glory, has never been the same to you, indeed has lost its charm since that serious illness when you had a near look into the Eternal.

3. We believe it to be the Lord's mind that, assisted by God's Word here and God's Spirit, we should have a calm look into the opened Heaven.

4. It seems out of fashion to meditate about Heaven. But we are quite willing for the time being, to be out of the fashion. For some years Heaven seems very near and very real. For we could say with Samuel Rutherford: "Christ hath come and run away to Heaven with my heart and my love, so that neither heart nor love is mine." One by one our best treasures are being taken there.

5. What a thrilling description does John give here. He has had an interview with the Son of God; now the Seer is introduced to the Audience Chamber of the Great King. He saw the Heavenly Court of the King of kings, in the centre the Almighty, "high and lifted up, throned above all worlds, veiled in light unapproachable yet known, His Presence scintillating with the brilliance of the diamond, glowing like a cornelian, with the concentrated redness of a furnace, and yet overarched with fresh and living green as of an emerald. Blinding brilliancy, the glow of a consuming fire, the soft radiance of rainbow promise, these were the contrasted elements in the impression made upon the Seer by the vision of 'Him who sat upon the Throne.'"

6. As we gaze at that marvellous scene so realistically portrayed to us, let our eyes rest for a moment on the rainbow. Have you ever seen the like?

7. The rainbow we are familiar with is indeed one of the most beautiful things in nature. It usually appears when a storm of rain is about to cease, and is caused by drops of water in a cloud breaking up the rays of light.

8. We were at sea. On every side save one, naught was to be seen save sea and sky meeting in loving embrace. On our left could just be discerned in dim outline some of the Welsh mountains. Suddenly the sky became black and lowering and rain fell copiously. But all at once from the dark bosom of the thundercloud a rainbow-that Heavenly flower of light, opened its seven leaves of coloured light. It was a ravishing sight.

9. But whilst our eyes were fastened on that lovely thing, this text came into mind. Ah, no earthly rainbow in spite of all its glory, was ever arrayed like this.

10. Note some of the distinguishing points of difference.

11. But, before doing so, let us look:

1st. At the Rainbow in Genesis-in sky, on earth (Genesis 9:9-17).

2nd. At the Rainbow in Ezekiel-in wilderness (Ezekiel 1:26-28).

3rd. At the Rainbow in Revelation-in Heaven (Revelation 4:3).

I. It Appears In Heaven as a Prelude to the Storm.

1. Not so the rainbow we are familiar with. That appeared for the first time after the awful deluge, as a token or pledge of the promise of God never again to drown all the earth by a flood of water.

2. By a study of God's Word we see that there is an awful time ahead, a time of fiery judgment. The prophets refer to it with bated breath as that great and dreadful day of the Lord.

"Behold, He cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see Him, and they also which pierced Him, and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him" (Revelation 1:7). "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of His power" (2 Thessalonians 1:7-9).

3. Well might we cry in trumpet tones: "Flee from the wrath to come."

II. In Heaven the Rainbow is Green.

1. Ours consists of the seven prismatic colours, but in Heaven all colours are blended into one, its emerald greenness absorbing, or at least throwing into shade, its other and varied hues.

2. Yes, all the colours are blended into one, and that the softest and most refreshing of all hues to the eyes. For there is in green something on which the eye does not fear but loves to rest.

3. You have been hard at work all day, your eyes are weary, and your brain tired, and you take a short walk in the park. As your eyes rest upon the green grass and foliage they are rested and renewed and refreshed.

4. And so, as the eyes of the believer rests upon the Throne of God he finds rest and comfort there, for though it be a Throne of Judgment, it is arched by the emerald rainbow, a pledge that God in judgment will remember His covenant promise.

5. In the first chapter of his book, Ezekiel describes to us a vision he had of the Throne of God. He, too, saw a rainbow encircling that Throne, but it was of a fiery bloodied colour. And why? God was angry with His people.

6. What colour is the rainbow around the Throne to you? a.. If you cannot say, "Though Thou wast angry with me," it will be blood-red-a thing of terror, of awful dread and fear. b. But if, like John, you know the Lord, then your eyes will fall with delight on the sight, you will find rest there, your spirit will be refreshed. For you will remember if Noah's rainbow is a sign of the great world covenant, telling us that God is a faithful Creator, this speaks to me of a Faithful Redeemer 7. Besides that, the August Person on the Throne is, through Christ, my Father.

III. In Heaven the Rainbow is a Full Circle.

1. On earth it is only half a circle-sometimes not that-at the best it is imperfect and incomplete. Indeed everything down here is imperfect and incomplete. Read Ecclesiastes to see the result of the most diligent and painstaking search after happiness and rest in things down here ever prosecuted. Result-weariness and disappointment.

2. But in Heaven everything is complete and perfect. The rainbow is full circle. Everything is perfect. Heaven meets all our needs. Whatever be the longings of your soul, Heaven will meet. a. A fisherwoman, who had lost her husband and two sons at sea, was asked what she most liked to think about when she thought about the land beyond, and she said: "And there shall be no more sea." b. Ask the mourners what they like to think about concerning Heaven: "And there shall be no more death;" that sufferer racked with pain: c. "Neither shall there be any more pain;" to that one struggling with poverty: "They shall hunger no more;" to the lover of nature: "Eternal Spring." There, everlasting spring abides, and never withering flowers.

IV. In Heaven it Endures.

1. On earth it is only fleeting, a sign of a changing state of things.

2. But in Heaven it abides, remains.

3. We smile when a tradesman declares that a cloth or garment "is everlasting wear." This rainbow abides.

V. Final Word.

1. Please note, "after this." After what? After vision of Son, vision of Father.

2. John met with Christ on earth, and then saw the Father on the Throne.

3. God out of Christ is a consuming fire. THE LAMB AND THE BOOK.

Revelation 5.

I. The Book (Revelation 5:1-4). Note a. Not the book of life-that is already the Lamb's. b. It is the Book of Judgment-the book of the secret acts of God. c. Note.

1. It is a Sealed Book. Its secrets known only to God. a. In Daniel 12:1-3 we read of the Great Tribulation. But Daniel is not permitted to do more than make known that fact, not the particulars. Hence Daniel 12:4. b. The Book is about to be unsealed and particulars made known. c. But even John is not allowed to reveal all he saw (Revelation 10:4).

2. It is A Completed, Filled up Book. a. It was written on both sides. b. Therefore no space for further writing. c. It contained the whole counsel of God. d. The designs and methods of God during the Great Tribulation are fixed and made a matter of record, and this record is known to none but Himself.

3. It is a Book to be only Opened by One Worthy. a. The possession of God's secrets is a privilege conditional on personal worthiness. b. No one was found worthy either in Heaven or earth. c. Does the fact of the unworthiness of man cause us to weep?

4. The Book- a. Of Life. A register of names (Revelation 3:5). b. Of Works. A register of works (Revelation 20:12). c. Of God's Judgments. A register of God's punishments (Rev. 5.).

II. The Lamb (Revelation 5:5-6).

1. The Supremacy of the Lord Jesus. "In midst."

2. The Pre-eminence of the Lord Jesus.

3. The Power of the Lord Jesus.

4. The Wisdom of the Lord Jesus.

Seven Horns. Completeness of strength. Seven Eyes. Completeness of wisdom.

5. The Ministry of the Lord Jesus.

6. The Kingliness of the Lord Jesus.

7. The Uniqueness of the Lord Jesus.

"Root of David" (a son father of his father).

8. The Worship of the Lord Jesus.

III. The New Song. Song of Redemption.

1. Price. Blood.

2. Objects. "Men of every," etc.

3. Purpose. "For God."

4. Result. Kings and priests.

5. Glory. Only to Lord. THE PRIESTHOOD OF BELIEVERS

Revelation 5:9-10

It is well for us to keep in mind the difference between priesthood and apostleship. The priest represented the people before God, the apostle represents God before the people. Jesus Christ was both Apostle and High Priest. God's purpose in grace was to manifest Himself to man; this He might have done without any human medium, but it pleased Him to call Aaron and his sons, that they might, through sacrifice, act as mediators between Him and the people, thus shadowing forth Him who was to be the great High Priest and only Mediator between God and man. Christ was a Priest after the order of Melchisedec- royal priesthood-having no predecessor and no successor. By His birth He set aside the Aaronic priesthood, by His death the veil of the temple was rent in twain. He offered Himself a sacrifice, and entered "by His own blood." Now we who believe have been redeemed to God by His blood and made unto God kings and priests.

I. Our Calling. No man taketh this honour unto himself but he that, is called of God, as was Aaron (Hebrews 5:4). Aaron was chosen of God, and his sons were chosen with him (Leviticus 8:2). We are chosen in Christ--and what a mystery-before the foundation of the world. The sons of Aaron were priests by birth. There is no other way of getting into the priesthood that God accepts and owns but by being "born from above." Neither a priestly robe nor a priestly profession constituted' a priest; the sons of Aaron were priests independently of these. In these days it is to be feared that many are substituting the robe and the profession for the call of God.

II. Our Character.

1. WE ARE CLEANSED. "Aaron and his sons were washed with water" (Leviticus 8:6). Whom He calls, them He also justifies. The call of God implies cleansing from all sin. Called to be holy. There can be no fitness for service till the question of sin has been settled and guilt put away. "Except I wash thee thou hast no part with Me."

2. WE ARE CLOTHED. "And Moses brought Aaron's sons, and put coats upon them" (Revelation 5:12). Aaron, as a type of our great High Priest, wears the "breastplate," and is clothed with robes of "glory and beauty;" the sons, as representing believers, put on the "pure linen," which speaks of the righteousness of the saints, which is the righteousness of God unto all, and upon all them that believe.

3. WE ARE CLAIMED. "The blood was put upon their ear, hand, and foot" (Leviticus 8:24). The blood speaks of redemption, redeemed to God, and claimed by God- "priests unto God" (Revelation 5:10). The blood-sprinkled foot, hand, and ear may remind us of a blood-purchased body, soul, and spirit. Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your bodies and spirits, which are His.

4. WE ARE SANCTIFIED. The anointing oil was sprinkled upon them and upon their garments (Leviticus 8:30). This holy anointing shadows forth the blessing of Pentecost. The precious ointment flowed from the head of Aaron, the high priest, down to the skirts of his garments. This was fulfilled at Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit, typified by the oil, was poured out over the head of Him who is our great High Priest, down to "your sons and daughters" (Acts 2:17), who are as the skirts of His garments. No priest was allowed to officiate without this anointing; before we can be "priests unto God" we must be anointed with this heavenly oil. For what is called "Divine service" there must needs be a Divine fitness.

III. Our Privilege.

1. WE ARE PRIESTS UNTO GOD. As ambassadors, we are sent forth for God. It is to be lamented that these offices are so largely confounded among men in their Christian practice. Before God, we should ever come with solemn, sacred, humble, heart-felt awe. As priests, there must be no frivolity, no pretence nor unreality. Before men, as witnesses, there must be no flinching, no wavering, or cowardliness; the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, must be told out. Alas, when men invert this order, and bring the brazen face to God and the velvet tongue to the ungodly.

2. AS PRIESTS, WE HAVE LIBERTY OF ACCESS. Only the priest was allowed to pass through the veil into the presence of God. Oh, what grace to be permitted to stand before God! By Him-who was sacrificed for Us-we also have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God (Romans 5:2). Liberty of access surely implies liberty of success.

3. AS PRIESTS, WE OFFER SPIRITUAL SACRIFICES (1 Peter 2:5). The world sets little value on a humble "broken spirit," but it is a sacrifice of sweet savour unto God (Psalms 51:17). May we so be saved from all pride and self-will, that the incense of a "broken spirit" may ever ascend. If this is our character and condition We shall be well fitted to offer the sacrifice of praise which shall glorify God.

4. AS PRIESTS, WE MAKE INTERCESSION. Abraham acted the priest when he pleaded for Sodom; Moses, when he interceded for the people; Paul, when he prayed for Israel. What a privilege and power prayer is! And it is within the reach of every Christian. Many may not be able to sing or preach, but all can "make intercession." If as priests we were more frequently in the secret place of the closet, we would prevail more as princes with God and with man. The people of Israel were blessed after the priest had been in the presence of God. So our Father will not reward us openly as witnesses unless we have been much with Him secretly as priests (Matthew 6:6). Believer, are you using this privilege as you ought?

SEVERE JUDGMENTS ON THE EARTH.

Revelation 6.

Introduction.

1. Our warships sometimes sail under sealed orders. Only in midst of ocean have the seals to be broken. The Roll of Judgment containing the deep secret purposes of God is sealed with seven seals, i.e., perfectly seated.

2. It is the Lamb who opens the Sealed Book containing the deep, hidden, and sealed purposes of God. The key of the future is in the hands of Christ.

3. The Day of Tribulation begins with the opening of the First Seal.

4. The judgments increase in intensity and severity as they proceed.

I. First Seal: Invasion-by Antichrist (Revelation 6:1-2).

1. "A bow," but no arrows, hinting at bloodless victories.

2. A great conqueror, and a great conquest.

II. Second Seal: Civil War (Revelation 6:3-4).

III. Third Seal: Famine. Food 16 times more costly than ordinarily. In the reign of Tragan one penny bought twenty measures.

IV. Fourth Seal: Pestilence and Death. (Revelation 6:7-8). "Death appears mounted on a horse, not on a throne; he arrives, he passes by" (C. G. Rossetti).

V. Fifth Seal: Jewish Martyrs (Revelation 6:9-11). This fifth seal is marked off and separated from all the others.

1. Their Identity.

2. Their Loyalty to God's Word.

3. Their Prayers.

4. The Departed: a. Are not non-existent. b. Are not unconscious. c. Retain a consciousness of their former life on earth. d. Retain the power of prayer. e. Are capable of receiving knowledge. f. Are capable of receiving additional comfort and glory. g. These were impatient for the hour of justice and recompence to strike.

VI. Sixth Seal: Signs in Heaven Above and In Earth Beneath (Revelation 6:12-17).

1. A great earthquake.

2. A great hiding.

3. They wanted to be hidden from the face of the Lord. We mourn when He hides His face.

4. Question in Revelation 6:17 : "Who shall be able to stand," is answered in Revelation 7:9.

5. "Moved out of their places" (Revelation 6:14) foretold Matthew 24:35; Isaiah 34:4; Isaiah 13:6-13). THE SEALED ISRAELITES AND THE REDEEMED GENTILES.

Revelation 7.

Note.

1. This is the first of several parenthesis in Revelation.

2. It is given to show us that a great work of grace will be wrought during the Great Tribulation.

I. The Sealing (Revelation 7:1-8).

1. Preparation. a. Revelation 7:1. No influence from East, West, North, or South, can be allowed to hinder what God is now about to do. b. Revelation 7:2. They are marked as God's, not by a man out of the City, as in Ezek. 9, but by an angel. (You will note that the Beast, too, has his seal for his followers. See Revelation 13:16-18; Revelation 14:9-11; Revelation 16:2; Revelation 19:20; Revelation 20:4). c. Ezekiel 9:3. A visible sealing. The Romans marked their soldiers on their hands, but their slaves on their foreheads.

2. Subjects. a. A change of Dispensation. Israel now taken up. b. Note: Levi included, but Dan omitted. Why? (See Deuteronomy 29:18-21). c. Lessons: i. By association with the Lord Jesus we shall be exalted. ii. "Be sure your sin will find you out." iii. The preserving character of present-day sealing. iv. We do not know what this seal will be. v. Success of this sealing (Revelation 14:1-5).

II. The Great Multitude (Revelation 7:9-17).

1. Comforting. To distressed workers and tried Christians.

2. Who are they? a. Not the Church. They have been translated. b. Not the Bride, for she is in, not before the Throne. c. Redeemed ones who have passed through "The Great Tribulation."

3. Their Position. a. Before the Throne. b. Serve Him constantly. c. Indwelt by God. d. No more hunger, etc. e. No more tears.

SILENCE IN HEAVEN.

Revelation 8, 9.

I. Silence (Revelation 8:1-6).

1. Strange that silence should be the first result of the opening of the Seventh Seal.

2. The need of silence in our own spiritual lives.

3. This is the silence before the storm.

4. It is a silence that prayer might be heard.

5. How our prayers are offered (Revelation 8:3-4).

6. The direct result of the offering of the prayers was awful judgment.

7. The prayers in Revelation 6:10 are presented (Revelation 8:3-4) and answered (Revelation 8:5).

II. The Trumpet Judgments (Revelation 8:7-13; Revelation 9:1-21). a. This Seventh Seal is remarkable as that which discloses the judgment of deepest woe. b. These plagues correspond very closely with the plagues of Egypt, only these are universal and horrible.

1. Judgment which Affected Land (Revelation 8:7). Trees well-known symbol of human greatness (Daniel 4:4-27).

2. Judgment on Sea. One-third of fish and shipping destroyed. (Revelation 8:8-9). A mountain in Scripture language represents a kingdom (Isaiah 11:9; Zechariah 4:7; Jeremiah 51:25).

3. Judgment Affecting Drinking Water (Revelation 8:10-11). Note, not a mountain, but like one, "as it were."

4. Judgment Obscuring Sun, Moon, and Stars (Revelation 8:12-13).

5. Strange Locust Judgment (Revelation 9:1-12). Locusts have no king (Proverbs 30:27), but these have, and his name is given (Revelation 9:11).

(a) Opened Heaven in Revelation 4:1; now opened Hell (Revelation 9:2).

(b) The Star fallen from Heaven-the Prince of the Power of the Air. c. Hellish origin of this plague. d. Not to kill, but torment (Revelation 9:5). e. Not able to die (Revelation 9:6). f. The locust army is a symbolical representation of judgment of a superhuman kind.

6. An Army of Cavalry, Two Hundred Million in Number (Revelation 9:13-21). a. The Sixth Trumpet summons a swift overwhelming, and destructive host from the East to stay men of the Western Empire. b. Dreadful picture of human perversity (Revelation 9:20-21).

VICTORY AT LAST.

Revelation 10:1-11 and Revelation 11:1-18.

Note.

1. Instead of the Seventh Trumpet sounding, we have another parenthesis. Why? It is that we may turn from these scenes of terror to get another glimpse of the Lord.

2. Before the Seventh Seal was opened a sealing took place (see Revelation 10:7); before the Seventh Trumpet is sounded we have another sealing (Revelation 10:4).

3. We come to the close of the first section of this third great division (Revelation 4:1-11:18).

I. The Angel (Revelation 10:1-7). (The Lord Jesus). He comes down from Heaven as the great Antagonist of the "Angel of the Abyss," who comes up from below, and is enveloped in the cloud of the smoke of the Pit.

1. His Might.

2. His Descent.

3. His Majesty. Clothed with a cloud. Special sign of Jehovah's majesty (Isaiah 19:1). The drapery of the sky floats upon His shoulders; the rainbow forms His diadem.

4. His Act of Possession.

5. His Shout of Victory (Revelation 10:3).

6. His Declaration ("Delay no longer," Revelation 10:6).

"The description of this Angel has been admired by every classical scholar. Considered merely as a literary production, it stands unrivalled by anything we meet with in all the pages of Grecian and Roman literature."

II. The Little Book (Revelation 10:8-11).

1. There are many things sweet to know, but bitter to realise.

2. It is sweet to be in the service of the Lord, yet there is bitterness also.

3. The servant of the Lord, to be a true witness, must first assimilate the message.

III. The Measuring (Revelation 11:1-2).

1. The Temple is to be rebuilt (see 2 Thessalonians 2:4).

2. The Lord taking under His special care: a. Holy Place. b. Brazen Altar. c. The Worshippers.

IV. The Two Witnesses (Revelation 11:3-12).

1. Who are they? Are they Enoch and Elijah? Or Elijah and Moses? (See Malachi 4:5-6; Matthew 11:14).

2. Note, they: a. Are empowered by the Lord (Revelation 11:3). b. Preach 3-1/2 years. c. Exercise their ministry on Old Testament lines (Revelation 11:5-6). d. Killed when work is finished (Revelation 11:7-8). e. Their dead bodies maltreated (Revelation 11:8). f. Rejoicing of enemies cut short by their resurrection and glorification (Revelation 11:11-12).

3. Note the first mention of the Beast (Revelation 11:7).

V. The Great Earthquake (Revelation 11:13-14).

VI. The Seventh Trumpet of Victory (Revelation 11:15).

VII. The Song of the Messiah (Revelation 11:16-18). This is the fourth great song in the Book. 1st, was the Song of Creation (Revelation 4:9-11). 2nd, was the Song of Redemption (Revelation 5:9-14). 3rd, was the Song of Victory (Revelation 7:9-12). 4th, was the Song of Messiah (Revelation 11:17-18).

SATANIC POWERS.

Revelation 11:19; Revelation 12:1-17; Revelation 13:1-18

The Satanic Powers Operating During the Great Tribulation.

Introduction.

1. We begin a study of the 2nd Section of this 3rd Division of the Book of the Revelation.

2. The former division (Revelation 4:1 to Revelation 11:18 of chap. 11) had more do do with secular wickedness, and its standpoint is the Throne; this division has more to do with religious wickedness, and its standpoint is the Temple.

3. The other section began with Christ glorified (Revelation 4:5) and ended with Christ triumphant (Revelation 10:11); this section takes us further back still, to the Birth of Christ, and back to events further still, giving us many additional details.

4. We get in this section the inner view of events, the mighty evil personalities behind all the terrible apostasy and wickedness of the last days.

5. Note: Sign (Revelation 12:1, margin).

I. The Woman (Revelation 12:1-2).

1. Not Christ; nor Church; not Mrs. Baker Eddy (as Christian Scientists declare); nor Virgin Mary (as some Roman Catholics assert).

2. The Woman is Israel, whose glory is described with unimaginable splendour.

3. Note, might and borrowed light under her feet.

II. The Dragon (Revelation 12:3-4).

1. Another wonder, not a great wonder.

2. Only ten horns.

3. "The tail"-meaning his influence. He led to ruin many of the Heavenly beings.

III. The Man Child (Revelation 12:5).

1. No difficulty in recognising who is meant by Man Child, when Revelation 13:5 is compared with Psalms 2:9. It is Christ.

2. His life and death passed over, as this is emphasised elsewhere.

IV. The War in Heaven (12:7-9, 12).

1. At present Satan is "prince of the power of the air."

2. He has yet to be cast from thence by Michael the Archangel.

V. The Wilderness (12:6).

1. Dragon is first described as the enemy of the Child, but presently becomes the enemy of the woman.

2. He has always persecuted the true Israel.

3. Israel under Moses spent 40 years in the wilderness; they are yet to spend 3-1/2 years there.

VI. The Dragon Standing on a Sea-shore (Revelation 13:1, R.V.). Significance of calling them Beasts.

1. The First Beast (Revelation 13:1-10). a. This is not only the Imperial system of Rome revived, a great political power, but a person-Antichrist. b. A caricature of the resurrection (Revelation 13:3). c. His work (Revelation 13:5-10).

2. The Second Beast (Revelation 13:11-18). a. Coming up "out of the earth" is out of a settled order of things. b. He is the False Prophet (Revelation 16:13; Revelation 19:20; Revelation 20:10). A great ecclesiastical power. c. Our Lord spoke of false prophets as well as false Christs (Matthew 24:5, Matthew 24:11, Matthew 24:24; Mark 13:22). d. His speech betrayed him (13, Revelation 11:11).

Finis. Three great requisites for these times (Revelation 13:10).

1. Flight (Matthew 24:15-28; Mark 13:14-23; Revelation 12:14).

2. Patience (Revelation 1:9; Revelation 2:19; Revelation 3:10; Revelation 14:9-12).

3. Faith (Revelation 2:10, Revelation 2:13, Revelation 2:17; Revelation 17:14). THE COMING OF THE SON OF MAN.

Revelation 14:1-20; Revelation 15:1-8; Revelation 16:1-21.

Introduction.

1. The last chapter (Rev 13) is the darkest chapter in this Book.

2. What a relief to turn away from the awesome sight of the dread Trinity of Evil to get another glimpse of the Lord.

3. In last chapter we saw the Devil and his associates busy; but what is God doing with and for His own? In this study we see the result of the Lord's working.

I. The Lamb and the Sealed (Revelation 14:1-5).

1. Mount Zion, Jerusalem-there to take possession of the city (Revelation 14:1).

2. Lamb standing, not sitting.

3. With Him are those who were sealed in chapter 7, only since then they have passed through the Tribulation.

4. Their appearance on Mount Sion with the Lamb is the occasion of great rejoicing among their brethren, the martyred saints of the Tribulation, now risen and in Heaven (Revelation 14:2).

5. The Character of the Sealed AND Redeemed. a. Purity (Revelation 14:4). Free from the awful moral impurity associated with idolatry; free from spiritual impurities in worship and practice. (Newman erroneously took this as eulogising celibacy). b. Obedience and Discipleship. "Follow the Lamb" (Revelation 14:4). c. Truthfulness (Revelation 14:5). "The lie." d. Blamelessness (Revelation 14:5).

II. The Preaching of the Everlasting Gospel (Revelation 14:6-7).

1. Not the Gospel preached to-day.

2. Note: a. No sound of mercy nor story of love. No mention of the Name of Jesus. b. It speaks of fearing God: of Judgment. c. It is the Gospel of God as Creator.

III. A Terrible Picture of Fate of Ungodly (14:8-13). Most terrible picture of the fate of ungodly to be found in Scripture. The eye shrinks from the spectacle. It is given as a warning against worshipping the Beast.

1. Four Pourings Out. a. Blood (Leviticus 4:7). b. Blessing (Malachi 3:10). c. Holy Spirit (Acts 2:17-18). d. Wrath (Revelation 14:10).

2. No Rest-For a. The Redeemed (Revelation 4:8; Revelation 14:13). b. The Ungodly (Revelation 14:11).

Rest from works, but not rest from worship.

IV. Christ as Judge Coming in the Clouds of Heaven (Revelation 14:14-20). "White cloud"-symbol of the Divine Presence.

V. The Completion of God's Wrath (Revelation 15:1-8; Revelation 16:1-21).

1. Seven angels with the seven last plagues (Revelation 15:1).

2. The victorious martyred company of Judah (Revelation 15:2-4).

3. The ministers of God's wrath equipped for judgment (Revelation 15:5-6).

4. The Plagues (Revelation 16:1-21).

Conclusion.

Note two statements concerning the Head of the Son of Man. First time His Head referred to in New Testament, Luke 9:58. Last time His Head referred to in New Testament, Revelation 14:14.

BABYLON THE GREAT.

Revelation 17:1-18; Revelation 18:1-24; Revelation 19:1-16.

Introduction.

Law of Recurrence. This law is seen in operation in connection with Babylon. It was mentioned in Revelation for the first time in Revelation 14:8, and again in Revelation 16:19. The writer returns to this subject to give additional particulars.

Notable Fact. Here is a most notable fact, that no event, save the death of the Lord Jesus, has been so much made of in the Word of God as giving such intense satisfaction, as the fall of Babylon. Why is this?

History of Babylon. Satan is an imitator. God's Holy City is Jerusalem. God having His City, Satan must have one, too and Babylon is Satan's capital. It was founded by the Lord's opponent (Genesis 10:9). It was built as is recorded in Gen. 11. This eleventh chapter of Genesis records two facts, the building of Babel and call of Abraham, that is, man's attempt to establish himself upon the earth, and God calling a man out of it, to find his portion and home in Heaven.

What is Meant by Babylon? Is this Babylon or Rome? There is Babylon mystical and Babylon literal (see Revelation 17:18). The Woman.

1. We have read of a woman before (see Rev 12).

2. But there are striking differences. a. The other clothed with light-all the adorning of this one is counterfeit (for "decked" read "gilded."). b. The sun-clothed woman had no name-this one has (Revelation 17:3; Revelation 17:5). c. The first one stood on the moon; this one is seen sitting on a beast (Revelation 17:3), i.e., upheld by Satan and Antichrist. Who is this Woman?

1. Roman Catholics say the woman was Pagan Rome.

2. Protestants say it is Papal Rome. The officials of the Roman Catholic Church array themselves in those colours.

3. A City? Yes (Revelation 17:18). It is both. It is a City, the seat of a false religious system, supported by Antichrist.

I. The Vision (Revelation 17:1-6).

1. One of the Seven Vial angels.

2. "The Great Whore"-City (Revelation 17:18).

3. Scarlet Coloured Beast-Papal Rome.

4. Seven Heads-Forms of Government.

5. Ten Horns-Royal personages.

6. Names of Blasphemy-Many and varied forms of self-will and rebellion against God.

7. "Decked"-Having a wondrous and attractive idolatrous system full of abominations.

8. Drunken with Blood-Guilty of many deaths.

II. The Interpretation (Revelation 17:7-18).

1. "Was"-Past; "is not;" at present; "shall ascend," that is, shall be resurrected (Revelation 17:8).

2. "Seven Mountains"-The Seven Hilled" City of Rome.

3. Make War with the Lamb.

III. The Fulfilment (Revelation 18:1-24).

1. "Habitation of devils"-Headquarters of Spiritism.

2. Call to separation (Revelation 18:4).

3. Her wickedness (Revelation 18:5).

4. The merchandise.

5. "In one hour," "In one day" (Revelation 18:8; Revelation 18:10; Revelation 18:17; Revelation 18:19).

IV. The Rejoicing (Revelation 19:1-16). The Amens.

1. Amen to the Curses (Deuteronomy 27:15).

2. Amen to St. John's strange command (1 John 5:21).

3. Amen to His Presence (Matthew 28:20).

4. Amen to the Lord's Working (Mark 16:20).

5. Amen to His Coming (Revelation 22:20).

6. Amen with the Alleluia (Revelation 19:4).

SOME OF THE LAST THINGS.

Revelation 19:1-21; Revelation 20:1-15.

How significant are the words of our Lord in Matthew 26:63-64. On the right hand of power He has been sitting ever since His Ascension, while He has gathered His beloved Church to Himself, Now the second part of the statement is to be fulfilled, "Coming in the clouds of Heaven."

I. The Marriage Supper of the Lamb (Revelation 19:1-10).

1. Note the Four Hallelujahs (Revelation 19:1-6).

2. This is the first occurrence of this word in the New Testament.

3. The first occurrence of this word, Alleluia, in the Old Testament corresponds in a marked manner with its first occurrence in the New Testament. We first find it in Psalms 104:35. What the people of the world lament over ("woe" or "alas", Revelation 18:9-10), these say, Alleluia!

4. On Psalms 104:3, Tennyson the poet, wrote: "Magnificent conception, darkness and fire rolling together for ever and ever."

5. Then in Psalms 104:7-10 we have the Marriage of the Lamb. The Bride is the Church. Blessed are they who are "called" (Revelation 19:9), yet more blessed are they who call- the Bride. Note the folly of the adoration of angels and saints (Revelation 19:10).

II. The Great Supper of God (Revelation 19:11-21).

1. The Second Advent of the Word of God (Revelation 19:11-16). Heaven opened, not a door in Heaven as formerly ((Revelation 19:14). Observe the Lord's three names ((Revelation 19:12-13; Revelation 19:16). Note, an army without weapons.

2. The Battle of Armageddon (Revelation 19:17-21). This will be the last battle. "War against Him." Who? The Lord. Observe, "Cast alive."

III. The Millennium (Revelation 20:1-6).

1. Observe: Chains that can bind spirits (Revelation 20:3). There are chains that can bind flesh and blood, and there are chains that can bind spirits. Thrones (Revelation 20:4).

2. "Laid hold on the dragon" (Revelation 20:2). He who has planned all and used 'all for the accomplishment of his own sinful purposes, must now be dealt with.

3. The first Resurrection we have recorded in Psalms 104:5 and Psalms 104:6.

IV. After the Thousand Years (Revelation 20:7-15).

1. After the Millennium Satan must be loosed (Revelation 20:7). Observe the "must" of Divine necessity in Psalms 104:3.

2. Satan's going out himself to deceive (Revelation 20:8). So here he does not leave this to others. His special tool at this time will be Gog, prince of Rosh, Mesech, and Tubal.

3. Gog and Magog. Gog and Magog denote the nations as a whole. Magog is mentioned in Genesis 10:2, as the first son of Japhet. Josephus renders the word Magog, Scythians. The two words combine the nations North and East of Palestine. The word Magog is found only in Genesis 10:2, as a son of Japhet; in Ezekiel where it means a land or country of which Gog is the prince; and in Revelation 20:8, where Gog and Magog appears to be an inclusive term for the Gentile nations. Ezekiel 38 and 39 must be distinguished from Rev. 20. Ezekiel records the war referred to in Revelation 16:14; Revelation 17:4; Revelation 19:17-21, which takes place before the Millennium, while Rev. 20 takes place after it.

4. "Compassed the camp of the saints" (Revelation 20:9). Ezekiel 38:18-22. So terrific will be the slaughter, that it will take seven months to bury the dead, and for seven years the children of Israel will have fuel enough for their use from the wood of the weapons left behind upon the field.

5. "Great White Throne" (Revelation 20:11).

Note.

a. "Great," indicating the greatness of the occasion. b. "White"-purity, holiness, righteousness. c. No name and no rainbow given, no form described- only an awful mysterious presence. d. "Small and great"-all classes. e. "Stand"-past kneeling, past praying. f. "Books"-vouchers for the Book of Life. g. "According to their works." THE HOLY CITY.

Revelation 21:1-27; Revelation 22:1-5.

Introduction.

1. Three Jerusalems: a. Present City now existing. b. Heavenly City-a literal City in Heaven. c. Mystical City-both a people and a city here in Revelation.

2. Is the City of Verse 2 same as Verse 10? a. Walter Scott says: "The 'coming down' in Revelation 21:2 is a thousand years after the 'coming down' of Revelation 21:10. The former is in Eternity, the latter is at the commencement of the Millennial Age; the former the Church comes down to the eternal earth, in the latter she rests over the Millennial earth." b. The Law of Recurrence explains.

3. This chapter and next deal with eternal events. The Eternal times and events are described more fully in the first eight verses of 21 (Revelation 21:1-8), than in any other portion of the inspired Word.

I. New Heaven and a New Earth (Revelation 21:1).

1. The Divine declaration in Revelation 21:5 (present tense).

2. The Fulfilment (in Revelation 21:1).

3. The Agent-First (2 Peter 3:10).

(Holy Land given to Israel for an everlasting possession).

Note.

1. A "new earth" does not necessarily mean another earth.

2. To make all things new is different to making new things, e.g., make a new garment out of an old one.

3. Two words translated "new" in New Testament: a. That which has recently been brought into existence. b. A fresh aspect, given to what has previously existed, but being outward. The latter is the meaning here.

4. No More Sea. a. Literally true then. b. Spiritually true, too. No more mystery, lawlessness, unrest.

5. Everlasting distinction even in Heaven of earthly and heavenly people.

II. The New Jerusalem (Revelation 21:2-27; Revelation 22:1-5).

1. What was Necessary before John Saw (Revelation 21:2; Revelation 21:9-10). John was led into the wilderness that he might see Babylon (Revelation 17:1), the false Church and City; he must be placed on high ground that he might see the true Church and City.

2. What he Saw. A city and a people (Revelation 21:2; Revelation 21:9).

3. The City: a. Expected. Looked for (Hebrews 11:13-16). b. Origin. Like Jesus and Holy Spirit, it descended out of heaven (Revelation 21:2-10). c. Character. Holy (Revelation 21:2; Revelation 21:10). A Holy City must come from above.

4. Beauty (Revelation 21:2; Revelation 21:11; Revelation 21:18-21). a. Glory of God. Not like Babylon, glory of man. b. Pure gold, yet transparent (Revelation 21:18). c. Authorities in precious stones marvel at the amazing skill here displayed in the harmonising and arrangements of the colours.

5. Its Lack. No Temple (Revelation 21:22). Therefore far beyond the Millennium.

6. Its Size. Greatness, 1500 miles in length, breadth, and height (Revelation 21:16).

7. Its Ample Protection. a. Strong City surrounded by a wall (12) 216 feet high. b. See Revelation 21:27.

8. Its Popularity (24).

9. Its Light (23).

10. Its Life (Revelation 22:1).

11. Its Glorious Inhabitants (Revelation 21:3, Revelation 21:22).

12. A Splendid Array of Negatives. Tears (Revelation 22:3).

13. Three Elements of the Perfect State of Man: a. Service. b. Contemplative. c. Likeness.

14. Freely (Revelation 21:6). THE COMING OF CHRIST.

Revelation 22:6-21.

Introduction.

1. Affirmations concerning the truth of the Book of the Revelation. a. By God Himself (Revelation 21:5). b. An an Angel (Revelation 22:6). c. By the Lord Jesus (Revelation 22:16, Revelation 22:18-19).

2. The Imminence of His Second Advent. a. By Angel (Revelation 22:6; Revelation 22:10). b. By Lord Jesus (Revelation 22:7; Revelation 22:12; Revelation 22:20).

3. Reaffirmed blessing for readers and keepers of this book (Revelation 22:7). "He," not "they," as in Revelation 1:3.

4. The second time John failed in the presence of these glorious scenes (Revelation 22:8-9). "Worship God" (note John 5:23).

5. Obedience to commands is not the ground on which Eternal Life is bestowed (14. Note R.V. and John 5:24).

6. Daniel has to "seal the Book" (Daniel 12:4) for the time of the end was far off; here "Seal not the sayings. . for the time is at hand."

7. In eternity no further offer of mercy (Revelation 22:11; Revelation 22:15).

8. Note the significance of Revelation 1:16. Source, yet offshoot of David.

9. The last of the "Gospel 'Comes' of the Bible" (Revelation 22:17).

10. Old Testament ends with a "curse" (Malachi 4:6); New Testament ends with a blessing (Revelation 22:21).

I. Imminent. Can you say, "Even so Come?"

1. Significance of Current Movements.

III. Why is the Second Advent Never Mentioned in New Testament except in a casual kind of way? Because the primitive believers were so well-instructed in Second Advent truth.

IV. The Most Prominent Theme in the Bible.

V. The Progress of the Divine Revelation concerning the Lord's Coming in the Bible.

VI. The Lord's Promise (John 14:3).

VII. Each Apostle Emphasises a Different Phase of the Lord's Return.

1. With James it was Justice (James 5:1-7).

2. With Jude it was Judgment (Jude 1:14-15).

3. With Peter it was Majesty (2 Peter 1:16).

4. With Paul it was Rapture (1 Thessalonians 4:13-14).

5. With Hebrews it was Fulfilment (Hebrews 9:28).

6. With John it was Purity (1 John 3:3).

VIII. The Lord's Coming.

1. Testimony of the Angels (Acts 1:9-11). a. Certainty. "Shall." b. Identity. "This same Jesus." c. Manner. "So come." d. Pre-millennial. e. Time. f. Fruit.

2. Testimony of the Apostles. a. Why observe Lord's Supper (1 Corinthians 11:26). b. We shall not all die (1 Corinthians 15:51-52). c. Of Paul when Old (Titus 2:11-14). d. Three Appearances. i. Past (Hebrews 9:26). ii. Present (Hebrews 9:24). iii. Future (Hebrews 9:28). e. Three Shepherds. i. Good (John 10:11). ii. Great (Hebrews 13:20). iii. Chief (1 Peter 5:4). f. Three Comings. i. He came first to die. ii. Next time He will come for His own (1 Thessalonians 4:17). iii. Finally He will come with His own (2 Thessalonians 1:7).

IX. General Outline of Events at and succeeding His Coming. The Four Judgments.

1. Judgment at the Reward Seat (2 Corinthians 5:10). In the air. (Immediately.) 2. Judgment of Living Nations, on the earth (Matthew 25:31). (Seven years afterwards.) 3. Judgment of the Unconverted Dead at the Great White Throne (1000 years after). (Revelation 20:11-12).

4. Judgment of Angels (2 Peter 2:4; Jude 1:6; 1 Corinthians 6:3).

X. To be More than a Mere Doctrine. "Love." (2 Timothy 4:8).

The Penitential Psalm

The Penitential Psalm A THREEFOLD VIEW OF SIN.

Psalms 51:1-5.

INTRODUCTION.

1. The 51st Psalm is one of the great Penitential Psalms.

2. It has been called "The Sinner's Guide."

3. Have you ever read it on your knees? For years the Author has read this Psalm on his knees every Lord's Day morning.

4. Remember it was the prayer of "a man after God's own heart," who had gone astray.

5. It is thus the prayer of a sinning saint.

6. A whole year had elapsed between David's crime and David's penitence (Far, far too long).

7. It had been a year of misery, as Psalm 32 shows. (Psalm 32 is David's account of his experiences during that year.) 8. In mercy came Nathan the Prophet.

9. The cold frost that had bound his soul melted away, and he confessed his sin.

10. Though forgiven immediately, yet he comes into the sanctuary and wails out this hymn of agony and sorrow.

11. This Psalm repays careful study.

12. First, let us study David's view of sin.

13. Here we see how David viewed his sin after (not before) his restoration. No one can have a right view of sin until forgiven.

14. There is a threefold repetition that is very impressive. "It is not a mere piece of Hebrew parallelism. It is more than the requirements of poetical form. It is the earnestness of a soul that cannot be content with once asking for the blessing, but dwells upon them with repeated supplication."

What a Man Thought of Sin who had Sinned.

1. The very hard things that are said in this Psalm about sin, are said by this man about himself.

2. Pray remember, we have here not merely what a man thought of sin, but what a man thought who had sinned.

3. We have something more than a theological treatise.

Tread Softly.

1. And because of that we must tread softly.

2. We must handle the words with the reverent sadness with which we enter the house of mourning.

Why have we Largely Lost the Sense of Sin?

1. A young minister put this question to an eminent Christian Judge, and he replied: "Because the world is losing its consciousness of God, and when men lose the consciousness of God's existence they lose their fear of sin."

2. Fear is a very wholesome preventative in our civic and national life.

3. Men fear to break the laws of the country because of punishment for so doing.

4. When I am possessed of a consciousness of God I not only fear to sin, but fear because of sin.

I. HE VIEWED HIS GRIME AS TRANSGRESSION (Psalms 51:1; Psalms 51:3).

1. The startling fact discovered from a study of the word "sin" is that it means much more than stepping over a mark, the interpretation usually given.

2. For it is the English translation of the Hebrew word "pesha"-rebellion.

3. By Young's Concordance we find the word "transgress" in our English Bibles is the translation of several different Hebrew and Greek words. a. Deceive-to deal treacherously-"Bagad." b. Trespass-"Maal." c. Passover-"Abar." d. Rebel-"Pasha."

4. In the New Testament the words there carry all these meanings: "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth (does lawlessness) the law."

5. That is the root idea in the word transgression.

6. It really means rebellion, a breaking away from, and a setting of oneself against lawful authority.

7. Transgression is rebellion against a rightful sovereign.

8. In this word we get the outward aspect of sin.

9. And this is the first view of sin in the Psalm.

II. HE VIEWED HIS GRIME AS INIQUITY (Psalms 51:2; Psalms 51:5).

1. Observe, he first used the plural, now the singular.

2. This is the inward aspect of sin.

3. Young gives "perversity" as the meaning of "avon," the Hebrew word here.

4. This indicates that iniquity means that which is twisted, bent, wrung, or warped from the straight line of right.

5. To that line, drawn by God's law, our lives should run parallel, bending neither to the right hand nor to the left.

6. "I was shapen in iniquity." This does not mean that motherhood is a sin, and maidenhood more holy and blessed, bat that the twist in our natures is inherited from our parents.

7. Sin consists not only in wrong doing, but in wrong being.

8. It also consists not only in actual wrong committed, but in the intention, the will, the wrong attitude of the soul. An aged and wealthy physician in Prussia was found dead in his bed, with finger marks around his throat, and a knife wound in his chest. His house had been plundered. Soon after an upholsterer was arrested in a neighbouring town with some of the stolen property in his possession. He made a full confession, telling how he had killed the aged physician in his sleep. But the Doctor who had performed the post-mortem examination declared that the man had died of apoplexy, and must have been dead before the burglar had broken into the house. The prisoner, in spite of his murderous intent was only punished for burglary. Under human law he was a burglar; under Divine law he was a murderer.

III. HE VIEWS HIS GRIME AS SIN (Psalms 51:3-5).

1. Young gives the Hebrew word to be "chata," i.e., missing the mark.

2. Sin is coming short of God's mark.

3. It seems to point out that every sin is a blunder as well as a crime.

4. "Thee only." What is the meaning of this? Has not David made a mistake? Had he not wronged man as well as God? Answer: a. Here we have the language of a thoroughly penitent man. The half repentant man fixes his eye on the humiliation and shame, on the opinion of his fellows, on the disgrace it will mean to him. But the man who has got to the heart of the matter puts men and reputation out of view, forgetting every one but God. b. Strictly speaking, sin can only be against God. c. The returned prodigal in Luke 15 put Heaven first, then his parent: "I have sinned against Heaven and in thy sight." A sure and convincing proof of his genuine repentance. And how this prayer was answered we shall see in our next study. A TRIPLE BLESSING.

"Blot"-"Wash"-"Cleanse" (Psalms 51:1-2)

INTRODUCTION.

Opinions.

1. "The 51st Psalm is theology made luminous" (Prof. Elmslie).

2. "The 51st Psalm is the noblest expression of Penitence."

What it Follows.

1. It is well to remember that this Psalm followed Nathan's declaration of the Divine forgiveness toward David.

2. This teaches: a. The revelation of God's love and wonderful grace precedes and is the cause of the truest penitence. b. The assurance of pardon, so far from making a man think lightly of his sin, is the thing that drives it home to his conscience, and teaches him what it really is. c. Here is the true reason of Psalms 51:4. Pardoned, you think less of the consequence of sin, and more of the act (see Ezekiel 16:60-63), Mercy.

1. He appeals at once to the mercy of God before he mentions his sin.

2. Mercy is a foremost attribute of God. The Lord passed by before Moses and proclaimed: "The Lord, the Lord God, merciful" (Exodus 34:6).

3. The word "merciful" in Latin is very expressive- it is"misericordia," "miseria"-misery, and "cor" heart, i.e., a heart touched and pained at the misery of another.

"According to," i.e., in proportion to.

1. Note how he heaps up these phrases.

2. "Love-in-kindness;" "multitude of Thy tender mercies."

3. His whole hope rests upon God's own character as revealed in His Word and in the endless continuance of His acts of love.

Triple Blessing. As he spoke of sin in a threefold fashion, so he asks for a triple blessing. A Query.

1. Have we here David's cry for pardon?

2. Have we here how David thinks of forgiveness?

3. Why he was forgiven already!

4. We know that he knew very well that he was already forgiven (Psalms 32:5), and certainly he would not ask for what he already possessed.

5. We shall see in our study that he was asking for three further blessings: a. God's forgetfulness of His crime. b. God's sanctification of his soul. c. Fellowship with God and His people.

I. "BLOT OUT"-FORGETFULNESS OF SIN (Psalms 51:1; Psalms 51:9).

1. Young gives meaning of original as "To rub or wipe off."

2. He deserved to be blotted out of God's Book (Exodus 32:32), instead he asks for his sin to be blotted out.

3. I wonder if the Psalmist had Numbers 5:23 in mind- the blotting out of the curse from a scroll?

4. Here David asks the Lord to deal with his sin as an erasure of a writing or indictment, as the wiping out of a record of rebellion.

5. Is this possible? We know from Isaiah 43:25 and Isaiah 44:22 that it is.

6. Praise God, He not only forgives but forgets.

7. And it is done because of the Cross (Colossians 2:14).

II. "WASH "-DESIRE FOR PURITY (Psalms 51:2).

1. An examination of Young's Concordance shows that the Hebrew word "Kabas" (met with 37 times) is always used in relation to the cleansing of a garment. Another word is used for cleansing of hands and feet and body.

2. He recognises that sin, though pardoned, has defiled his soul, and now, being forgiven, he requires cleansing.

3. The garments of the soul require purity.

4. Note "Wash me throughly," literally "again and again."

5. He is praying for purity.

III. "CLEANSE"-ADMISSION INTO FELLOWSHIP (Psalms 51:2).

1. This is ceremonial cleansing.

2. It is the technical word for the priestly act of declaring ceremonial cleansing from the stain of leprosy (Leviticus 13:6-34).

3. Observe, the leper already was clean from his leprosy, but he had to be pronounced ceremonially clean before being allowed fellowship with God and Israel in Tabernacle or Temple worship.

4. David recognised that sin cut him off from fellowship with God; he is craving for restored fellowship. THE JUSTIFICATION OF GOD.

Psalms 51:4.

INTRODUCTION.

Uncommon.

1. This certainly is an uncommon subject.

2. The justification of the sinner is a well-known topic.

3. Not so the justification of God.

Important.

1. Yet one can easily see its importance.

2. Can God be justified in all His dealings with mankind?

3. You see, His very character is at stake.

True Meaning.

1. I don't think anyone will doubt that here David is anxious for the justification of God.

2. Bishop Patrick's paraphrase makes it clear: "If Thou shouldest pronounce the heaviest sentence upon me for my crimes, and execute it with the greatest severity, I could not accuse Thee of too much rigour, but must still justify Thee in Thy proceedings, and clear Thee from all such unjust imputations."

Unique.

1. This is a unique illustration, and proof of a great desire for the glory of God.

2. More than desire-a consuming passion.

3. Contrast this with other illustrations: a. Adam and Eve-Silent at the judgments of God. b. Cain (Genesis 4:13). Here is a puzzle. Was he complaining at the severity of the judgment? Or was he admitting his case as hopeless? c. Eli (1 Samuel 3:18). Resignation, but that alone. d. Hezekiah (2 Kings 20:19).

I. MAN JUSTIFYING GOD BY REPENTANCE AND A TURNING TO CHRIST (Luke 7:29).

1. These were the words of the Lord Jesus Himself.

2. This is a very unusual way of putting the truth.

3. In what way did these people justify God? a. They believed and accepted the message God had sent to them by John. b. That message contained much that was stern. It foretold judgment to the unrepentant. c. They admitted the justice of God's condemnation and accepted His offer of mercy.

4. At the proclamation of the doom of the impenitent many charge God with injustice.

5. But we justify God.

II. MAN JUSTIFYING GOD IN THE JUSTIFICATION OF THE SINNER (Romans 3:26).

1. What is the message of the Epistle to the Romans? Justification of repentant sinners?

2. No; not the justification of the sinner, but the justification of God in justifying the sinner.

3. Remember it is more important that God be justified in this act of mercy than that sinners be justified.

4. If in the justifying of the sinner God became unjust, then the whole scheme of salvation falls to the ground.

5. But the Divine plan of Redemption is so wonderful that God is justified in justifying the sinner.

III. MAN JUSTIFYING GOD IN HIS DEALINGS WITH JEWISH NATION (Romans 3:4).

1. This is part of one great argument.

2. Here Paul is dealing with objections to the levelling of the Jew to the plane of the Gentile.

3. In doing this, does not God prove faithless to His promises to the covenant people?

4. No; and then Paul quotes the LXX rendering of Psalms 51:4.

IV. MAN JUSTIFYING GOD IN THE SEVERE JUDGMENTS AND CHASTISEMENTS HE HAS TO BEAR (Psalms 51:4).

1. And for this David provides by a frank acknowledgment of his sin, and by confessed meriting of all God's severities.

2. What an example here for all to copy: a. For the saved sinner, suffering physically as a result of a life of vice and sin in the unregenerate days. b. For the saint suffering through the breaking of some of nature's laws. THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Psalms 51:10-11, Psalms 51:12.

INTRODUCTION.

1. Three Petitions. Connected with the word Spirit, we have in the great Penitential Psalm three separate petitions.

2. Though we have the same word three times, we have not the same thought.

3. The first one most certainly stands for disposition or character; the second word stands for the Third Person in the blessed Trinity; the last some think is like the first, standing for disposition or character; but surely it stands like the middle one, for the Holy Spirit, only it gives another view of His character.

4. Shall we take them in the order in which they occur?

I. "RENEW A RIGHT SPIRIT WITHIN ME" (Psalms 51:10).

Introduction.

1. He desired an inward work.

2. "Renew," once it had been there.

3. What is a right spirit? Best answer to that question is the other renderings.

Renderings.

1. R.V., "Steadfast."

2. A.V., margin, "Constant."

3. F.F., "Put a new mind in my breast."

Significance of "Steadfast" Rendering.

1. I have so easily yielded to temptation.

2. Renew within me a steadfast mind, a mind steady in following the path of duty, an unyielding spirit.

3. John Bunyan, in his immortal allegory, has a Mr. Standfast, a most attractive character.

Meaning of Rendering "Constant."

1. Think of a mariner's compass or a clock.

2. A compass or a clock, always right and dependable, are to be prized and valued.

3. Oh, to have a mind always set on God!

Right Spirit. A wrong spirit can take possession of us.

Renew.

1. It was once there.

2. Lord, put it there again!

"Within."

Here he desired an inward work of grace.

How Often should we Offer this Prayer?

1. More frequently than we imagine we should.

2. For our dispositions seem mercurial, as changeable as the weather.

3. The ideal is: "The same yesterday, to-day, and forever."

4. The same, without sameness.

5. God alone can accomplish this work.

6. Let us present this prayer daily.

II. "TAKE NOT THY HOLY SPIRIT FROM ME" (Psalms 51:11).

He Possessed.

1. David regards himself as still possessing the Spirit.

2. We know when the Spirit first possessed him (1 Samuel 16:13).

3. What longsuffering on the part of the Spirit to remain in an unclean life.

Saul.

1. Had David Saul in mind when he prayed thus? (1 Samuel 16:14).

Dispensation.

1. Is this a prayer for this dispensation?

2. Scofield's valuable note: "No believer in this dispensation aware of the promise of His abiding (John 14:16) should pray, 'Take not Thy Holy Spirit from me' (Ephesians 4:30); but, while Christian position is not bound here, Christian experience in essence is."

3. Observe the force of John 14:16.

What can be taken away?

1. The Consciousness of that Holy Presence. a. This is our Heaven below. b. We may live in the regular enjoyment of that presence. c. The manifestation of the Spirit is the fruit of loving obedience and watchfulness.

2. The Power of that Almighty Presence, though not the presence. a. When we lose that power we become "weak as other men," as in Samson's experience. b. It is the power of the Holy Spirit that makes all the difference between preachers and workers.

III. UPHOLD ME WITH THY FREE SPIRIT (Psalms 51:12).

Introduction.

1. Two facts attract one in this prayer-the desire to be upheld, and the adjectives describing the character of the Spirit.

2. This is the prayer of conscious weakness.

Renderings.

1. "Willing." R.V., margin, "Thy willing Spirit."

2. "Princely." Lit., "Thy princely Spirit."

3. "Free." Spirit has wonderful freedom. "Thy free Spirit." A Wonderful Description of God's Holy Spirit.

1. God's Spirit is Royal and Princely in character, and communicates a Holy, and Royal, and Princely dignity to us.

2. God's Spirit is a "Willing Spirit," willing to work for and in us, and will communicate to us a willingness and an ability to do God's will.

3. God's Spirit is a "free" Spirit, imparting wonderful freedom.

Uphold. Oh, keep me! Hold me up!

Application. Thos. Waugh discovered "though he had the Spirit, he was not filled with the Spirit; though he had welcomed the Spirit as Guest, he had not welcomed him as Host." Let the Guest become Host, i.e.. Lord. Instead of, "Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty," Rotherham has, "Where the Spirit is Lord, there is liberty."

WHITE, THEN WHITER THAN SNOW.

Isaiah 1:18; Psalms 51:7.

(This study appears also in Scripture Couplets in Vol. XII, only here there are additional thoughts in harmony with the Penitential Psalm Studies.) NOT SYNONYMOUS.

1. These are not statements that mean one and the same thing.

2. Points of difference are easily noted: a. One was the Word of the Lord to Israel, the other a prayer by a king to the Lord. b. The first is the Lord's promise, the second a penitent's plea. c. At least 300 years separate the two utterances. d. The first describes the work of God when He pardons and justifies the sinner; the second describes a deeper and an inward work of grace desired by the restored sinner. e. This order is always observed: White as snow, then whiter. f.

The one is righteousness imputed, the second is righteousness imparted.

3. This does not mean that the first work was imperfect. No. It was a perfect work of justification.

I. WHITE AS SNOW. How familiar is this statement in Isaiah 1:18. It is:

1. A Word of Authority: "Come now." a. Therefore it is a word that cannot be treated lightly. b. What is behind a command is of importance. c. If I say, "Move on," to loiterers in the street, they can afford to treat it lightly; if a policeman says the same, they will either have to "Move on" or "Move in!"

2. An Appeal to Reason. God appeals to reason as well as to affections, to our heads as well as to the heart.

3. An Importunate Word: "Now." It brooks no delay.

4. A Word for All. And that is so because it concerns sin.

5. A Word for the Double-dyed Sinner. a. Those who understand the original declare that the word translated "scarlet" here really means the double-dyed-the twice dipped. b. For the scarlet colour in ancient times was the result of two dippings. c. "But I am not a double-dyed sinner," do you say? But you are. d. We are all twice-dipped sinners-first in the vile pool of original corruption, then in the bath of actual transgressions. e. In other words, we are sinners twice over-by birth and by choice.

6. A Word Teaching the Permanency of Sin. a. Scarlet is a fast colour, fixed and permanent. b. It is the Bible colour for sin, not black. c. There is no power in chemistry that can take the scarlet colour out without destroying the fabric. d. But what is impossible in chemistry is possible in grace.

II. WHITER THAN SNOW.

Arctic Grave. Away in the far North, on the brow of a hill covered with snow, illuminated by the light of the Polar Star, a member of an arctic expedition lies buried. A large stone covers the dead, and, on a copper tablet at the head of the grave, this text is inscribed: "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." There, amidst the eternal snows, man's passionate longing for purity finds a voice.

David's Mistake.

1. But did David not make a mistake when he prayed thus?

2. Surely nothing can be whiter than snow.

3. The fact is that the snowflake is not pure.

4. It seems that everything that touches this sin cursed earth is contaminated.

5. Elements of earthliness are wrapped up in the bosom of every snowflake that falls upon the earth.

6. It has been calculated that a slight fall of snow carries to the surface of the county of London alone 343 tons of solids in the following parts: 75 tons of dissolved solids, 142 tons of suspended matter, 100 tons of coal, 25 tons of salt, 1 ton of ammonia.

7. So this is a passionate longing after a deeper purity. Oh, for a purity as God counts purity! He who imparts the longing and inspires the prayer will grant the desire. A THREEFOLD JOY.

Psalms 51:8, Psalms 51:14, Psalms 51:15.

INTRODUCTION. In this Penitential Psalm we not only have a threefold view of sin, a threefold blessing, and a threefold reference to the Spirit, but also a threefold view of joy and gladness.

Songless Birds.

1. The Psalmist had been for a year songless.

2. No Psalms had he composed and sung, and no song could be found in his heart.

3. "When I kept silence"-suggestive phrase. He had been silent. "My bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long"-strange paradox. Silent in praise, but conscience roaring-that is the meaning.

Longing for Old-Time Joy.

1. Here he longs for the old-time joy.

2. Here he longs and asks for double joy-joy and gladness.

3. Read Psalms 51:12 : "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation."

4. Observe: a. He wanted and longed for God's joy. b. The joy associated with His salvation. c. A joy that deepens as our salvation becomes more thorough.

Three Organs.

1. David refers to three important organs-ear, tongue, and lips.

2. Each of which have to do with joy and gladness.

3. Let us take them in the order in which they are found.

I. CONCERNING THE EAR (Psalms 51:8).

Introduction.

1. It is notable that he begins with the ear.

2. Deafness and dumbness are associated.

Sin has a Sad Effect upon our Spiritual Hearing.

1. The unforgiven one has no ear for joy and gladness. He feels out of harmony with heavenly melody, for the great discord has entered his soul. He cannot bear or tolerate joy in others when in that sad mood.

2. How could he be expected to enjoy music when he was as a wretch with every bone broken. a. For he likens himself to one whose bones are crushed. b. And crushed by no ordinary means. c. He groaned under no mere flesh wounds. Like some poor sufferer, he is swallowed up of himself.

3. Then sin had made him hard of hearing. Sin always does. He prays for the recovery of hearing.

4. Before joy and gladness there must come: a. Forgiveness and cleansing. The sense of forgiveness is like a glad morning to song birds. b. The recovery of hearing. c. The mood to enjoy music.

5. Another rendering: "If you hear me I joy and am glad" (F.F.). Joy and gladness the result of the assurance of God hearing and answering prayer. What a joy that brings!

II. CONCERNING THE TONGUE (Psalms 51:14). Literal.

1. It is clear that David has in mind the guilt of Uriah's death.

2. Uriah's blood weighed upon his soul.

3. Is there a condition of soul more awful than this, to have another man's blood resting on us!

4. Well might he be songless.

Spiritual.

1. But there is such a thing as spiritual blood-guiltiness.

2. Read Acts 20:26.

3. Without doubt Paul had Ezekiel in mind. Read Ezekiel 3:17-21; Ezekiel 33:1-9.

4. What a serious view this is of pastoral responsibility.

5. Watchmen were the police of the East, or rather, a combination of police, soldier, and sentinel.

6. Note, the watchman's: a. Commissioner-God (Ezekiel 3:17). Usually the people appointed a watchman, but God appointed this Watchman. b. Privilege. Friendship with God. Hear the Lord's voice "at my mouth." c. Self-sacrifice. Self-denial; awake when others were asleep. Self-sacrifice-sometimes to die for others. d. Chief Duty. "Give them warnings."

How to be Free from Blood-Guiltiness.

1. Unwearied labour. In rules drawn up by John Wesley for the guidance of his young preachers, we have this: "Only through unwearied labour and perseverance can we really be 'free from the blood of all men.' Go into every house and teach every one therein, young and old." (He meant the house of all members of the Wesleyan Society.) 2. Declaring the whole counsel of God.

3. Warning.

III. CONCERNING THE LIPS (Psalms 51:15).

1. Praise is not easy. It is spoken of as sacrifice.

2. Only God can make praise possible.

3. How does God unlock the lips? By way of the heart. For praise is the employment of happy and thankful hearts.

4. It was sin that closed his lips; God would open them by dealing satisfactorily with his sin.

CONCLUSION.

1. Sometimes it happens that the older we get the more songless we become.

2. Should this be so? THE PROBLEM IN THE PENITENTIAL PSALM.

Psalms 51:16-19.

INTRODUCTION. A Problem.

1. These verses present several problems for solution.

2. What affinity has Psalms 51:18 and Psalms 51:19 with the rest of the Psalm? Have they never grated upon your spiritual senses? Have you never felt a jar upon your spiritual sensibilities when you reached them? You are confessing sin and unworthiness and pleading with the Heavenly Father for soul fitness and spiritual equipment, when you come smack up against Zion and bricks and mortar. What has the blotting out of sin and sanctification of the soul to do with the Walls of Jerusalem? Why, this sentence seems an alien, a stranger, in this torrent of confession.

3. Then again, are not Psalms 51:16 and Psalms 51:17 in flat contradiction to the evangelical teaching concerning the Atonement. Is not salvation by blood repudiated? Does not David try to saddle God with those heterodoxical views? An Attempt. Feeling the sentence to be alien, several solutions have been suggested, some of whom are very drastic, more in the nature of the surgeon's knife.

1. F.F. makes another Psalm of them.

2. Prof. Blaikie says they are a "Later Addition."

3. Dr. B. says "probably added by Hezekiah."

4. Dr. Adam Clarke: "A Psalm of themselves, a kind of ejaculatory prayer for the redemption of the captives from Babylon, the re-building of Jerusalem, and the restoration of the Temple worship."

Reject. I am not afraid to say that I reject those views. Rightly considered, we shall find they are an essential part to and complement of the rest of the Psalm. Instead of being alien, we shall find they are of the same blood and ancestry.

I. DAVID'S SIN was so heinous that no provision was made for it in the Mosaic economy (Psalms 51:16-17).

1. "Murder and adultery were by law punishable by death; and therefore no sacrifices were appointed to be offered by those who were guilty of them."

2. Now read Psalms 51:16 and Psalms 51:17 with that fact in mind.

3. A murderer could only appeal to the mercy of God, as in Psalms 51:1 of this Psalm.

4. Here is an interesting Dispensational fact-the taking of life is God's prerogative which He reserved for Himself in the Adamic dispensation (Genesis 4:15), but handed over to magistrates in the antediluvian (Gen. 5 and 6).

5. Let us remember that that last decree has never been repealed, so that the agitation for the abolition of capital punishment is wrong and unscriptural.

6. If I was asked to visit a murderer in his cell, I should direct him to Luke 23:34-43, and the story of David with the 51st Psalm.

II. THE GREAT VALUE OF REAL REPENTANCE, plus the Sacrifice of the Cross (Psalms 51:17; Psalms 51:19).

1. Oh the importance of that little word "Then" in Psalms 51:19.

2. What a fine description of true penitence we have in Luke 23:17.

3. Penitence alone has no saving element in it.

4. Yet only the true penitent can enter into the benefits of Christ's death.

5. God has no delight in sacrifices and burnt-offerings for their own sake; but merely as shadows of the true atonement and expression of a penitent and believing heart.

6. An impenitent spirit bolts and bars the door against the mercy and grace of God, and makes of no value the death of Christ.

7. Of what value is the repetition of the General Confession without true penitence?

III. THE GREAT BULWARK OF A NATION consists primarily in spiritual fitness and qualification (Psalms 51:18).

1. What, think you, is the great bulwark of a nation? Not warriors and warships, but godly men and women. "Sin is a disgrace to any people, but righteousness exalteth a nation."

2. David's sin had exposed the whole nation to disaster.

3. David feared lest his guilt should render him as an Achan in the congregation of Israel, and therefore he concluded his penitential prayer with entreating God to protect and prosper Zion.

4. His sin had, as it were, broken down the walls of Jerusalem. Grace alone could rebuild.

5. I doubt whether our City Missions would be reckoned by many as a national asset; rather they would be estimated as a non-producing class, therefore parasites. But the fact is, they are re-building and strengthening the national wall of defence against our foes.

6. The workers are under-masons, working under the great Master-mason and Architect of the Universe. Let us build well, for we are building for eternity.

SOUL-WINNING.

Psalms 51:13.

INTRODUCTION.

Final.

1. This, our eighth study, must for the present be our concluding study of Psalm 51.

2. And from the standpoint of workers, what a fine conclusion this is to be sure.

"Then."

1. How important some little words are.

2. The first word of this verse is of supreme value.

Soul-Winners.

1. All believers should be professional soul-winners, carrying on soul-winning on non-professional lines.

2. Here are several important points:

I. IT'S QUALIFICATION.

1. In his Presidential Address at a Wesleyan Conference, Dr. Ritson made this statement: "The Christian ministry is the only profession in the world in which the message and the messenger are inseparable."

2. The success of our message depends very largely upon the success of the message with and in us.

3. In order that the right quality might be behind the work, there must be soul adjustment with God.

4. "Then." When? a. Be converted (Luke 22:31-32). The Lord might at times use unconverted people, but that is not His usual rule. b. Be converted again i.e., restored. c. In the enjoyment of pardon, assurance, fellowship, purity, gladness. d. In the possession of Pentecostal fulness. e. In the practice of prayer.

II. ITS MOTIVE.

1. "Then." When? When additionally indebted to God for wondrous grace.

2. An expression of gratitude for abounding mercies received personally.

3. As a great longing for others to share in the same blessed experience.

III. ITS USUAL PRELIMINARY.

Teaching God's Ways. And what a wondrous teacher David would become. From bitter experience he could discourse on:

1. The evil nature and bitterness of sin itself.

2. The nature of true repentance.

3. The requirement in order that sin might be forgiven, i.e., Cross.

4. Encourage them to come by relating own experience.

How we May Teach God's Ways.

1. Through the Word, noting God's ways with others.

2. Through a relation of our own personal experiences.

IV. ITS ULTIMATE END. "And sinners shall be converted unto Thee."

1. Not unto a Church, or denomination, or Assembly, or system of belief, good and essential as these are.

2. "Unto Thee."

BOASTING.

Negative: "No flesh shall glory" (1 Corinthians 1:29).

Positive: "Let him glory in the Lord" (1 Corinthians 1:31). Boasting seems part and parcel of our make-up. All glory in something. God has prepared a cure, not by repressing the instinct, but by giving it a worthy subject and object. Boasting is therefore quite legitimate if the right theme be adopted. And the theme? Jeremiah 9:23-24. Paul gloried in:

I. The Cross, Galatians 6:14 II. The Lord, 1 Corinthians 1:31 III. Tribulation, Romans 5:3 IV. Infirmities, 2 Corinthians 12:9

Chapter 85

The Golden Passional Of The Old Testament

The Golden Passional of the Old Testament

Isaiah 53. No subject more important than the substitutionary death of Christ. Burdened with that thought, the author prepared for "Threshed Wheat" a series of studies in defence of the old interpretation of Isaiah 53, and as an exposition of that Golden Passional. Conscious of the timeliness of these studies, by the courtesy of the Editor, they are here reproduced. The Hall-mark of Our Saviour. Dr. J. R. Miller tells a story of a Scottish mother who once accidentally wounded her child's wrist with a knife. To comfort him in his grief, she said: "Never mind, my bonnie bairn; your mither will ken you by that when you are a man." They had been separated for years, and when one day a fine-looking man called on the old woman and announced himself as her son, she was sceptical until he drew up his sleeve, and cried, "Mither, mither, dinna ye ken that?" In a moment the old woman had her boy in her arms. She knew him by the scar. The scars are the hall-mark of Christ. So though we have never seen Him as we see each other, some day we shall, and then "We shall know Him By the print of the nails in His hands."

We fail to recognise in much of the preaching of to-day the true Saviour of sinners. Men paint sometimes very sweet and winning pictures of the Christ. They picture the poetry of His actions, the unsullied whiteness of His thoughts, the moral stainlessness of His conduct, the sweetness of His words; but in all their portraits there is no trace of His sacred wounds, no vision of His atoning death. There cannot be a Saviour without the Cross. We fail to recognise the kind of Saviour for the lost many modern preachers proclaim.

Eulogies.

1. Ever since this wonderful chapter we know of as the 53rd of Isaiah was written, it has been considered as peculiarly sacred and pregnant with meaning.

2. "It looks as if it had been written beneath the Cross of Golgotha," writes a great German scholar.

3. As far back as Apostolic days we find it was treasured. Polycarp, the disciple of John, called it "the Golden Passional of the Old Testament."

4. Luther said that every Christian ought to be able to repeat it by heart. (Can the reader do this? If not, will the reader set about to memorise it?)

5. Augustine considered the whole of Isaiah, and, of course, particularly the 53rd chapter, as "not a prophecy but a Gospel."

6. Dr. Culross has suggestively written: "It is a prelude to much that is most distinctive in New Testament doctrine, and is the root from which not a little of the thinking of Christian ages has grown. Its phraseology has entered largely into Christian speech, and it has supplied more texts to the Gospel preacher than any other portion of the Old Testament. There are individual phrases in it resembling peaks, from which we faintly descry vast realms of truth which we cannot yet explore, but which shine with a mystic light whose summit is Divine."

Heart of Consolation.

1. The Rabbis call this second section of Isaiah "The wonderful book of consolations," and 2. Isaiah 53 forms the very centre of that second section, and of course 3. Is the very heart of all true consolation.

History. So realistic is it that, as my old and valued friend, the late David Baron says "Instead of a prophecy uttered centuries in advance, it reads like an historic summary of the Gospel narrative of the sufferings of the Christ and the glory that should follow."

I. ITS JEWISH CRITICS.

Torture. This has been called "The Torture Chamber of the Rabbis," and "the bad conscience of the Synagogue," and no Jew is allowed, on pain of severe penalties, to study it until of age.

Conversion. The fact is that no portion of Scripture has been used more than this in the conversion of Jews.

Puzzle. It certainly was a puzzling chapter to all Jews before and since Christ. The portrait it gives of a suffering Messiah was utterly at variance with the popular conception.

Fact. Yet until nearly in the eleventh century the Messianic interpretation of this chapter was almost universally accepted and adopted by the Jews. A Sample. Here is a sample of Jewish interpretation as evidence of this. Jonathan ben Uzziel (first century) begins his Targum (i.e., paraphrase or commentary) with, "Behold My Servant Messiah shall prosper" (Isaiah 52:13). An Important Date. Rabbi Solomon Yirchaki (or Rashi) 1040-1105, was the first to apply it to the Jewish nation. Right up to his time it was almost universally adopted by Jews that this had to do with the Messiah.

Synagogue. In the Jewish Synagogue on the Day of Atonement, in the Liturgy for that day is the following sentence: "We are shrunk up in our misery, even until now, our Rock hath not come nigh us; Messiah our Righteousness has departed from us. Horror hath seized upon us, and we have none to justify us. He hath borne the yoke of our iniquities and our transgressions, and is wounded because of our transgression. He beareth our sins on His shoulders, that He may find pardon for our iniquities. We shall be healed of our wounds at the time the Eternal will create Him (Messiah) as a new creature."

Other Jewish Interpretations. Several other interpretations and identifications have been given of the Servant, such as Jeremiah; others say Isaiah was meant; and Hezekiah, Joshua, or Job have also been suggested.

II. ITS GENTILE CRITICS.

Past. If for seventeen hundred years the Jews beheld the Messiah in Isaiah's portrait, so also the Christian Church for eighteen centuries has identified this portrait with Christ.

Present. To the amazement and disgust of loyal Bible students there has arisen a school of Gentile modern thinkers who deny that Isaiah 53 has anything to do with Christ. To our sorrow hosts of ministers of religion take that view. This is alarming!

Seriousness.

1. We see in this modern attack on Isaiah 53 an attempt against the Atonement.

2. Of course the truth of the Atonement does not depend completely on Isaiah 53.

III. WHY WE HOLD TO THE ORTHODOX VIEW.

1. Our Lord Himself recognised and taught that Isaiah 53 was a prophecy concerning Himself (see Luke 22:37. Note "In Me," "Concerning Me).

2. Paul recognised the message of the Servant sent to ignorant nations as the good news concerning Christ. (See how Paul refers to Isaiah 52:15 in Romans 15:21.)

3. John finds in Israel's refusal of Jesus the direct fulfilment of the prophet's heart-broken cry concerning unbelief. (John quotes Isaiah 53:1, in John 12:38.)

4. Matthew recognised in Christ's healing miracles the Servant who was to carry our sicknesses and to exhaust Himself with our healing. (He quotes Isaiah 53:4, in Matthew 8:17.)

5. Mark recognises in the two robbers the transgressors with whom Isaiah's Servant was to be catalogued. (Isaiah 53:12 in Mark 15:28.)

6. Philip, when filled with the Holy Spirit, and speaking under His command, answers the Eunuch's question on the identity of the Servant by preaching to him Jesus (Acts 8:2).

7. Israel is sometimes called the Servant of Jehovah, but never as here in Isaiah 53:11, "My Righteous Servant" (Isaiah 41:8; Isaiah 43:10; Isaiah 44:1).

8. Note "For the transgression of My people was He stricken"-one Person suffering for a people.

9. This 53rd chapter portrays an innocent Servant suffering for others (Psalms 51:9). "He had done no violence, neither was any deceit in His mouth." Was this true of the Nation? Were they innocent? What has the first chapter of Isaiah to say about this?

10. The suffering Servant portrayed here in Isaiah 53 is a voluntary sufferer. Read Isaiah 53:12 : "He hath poured out His soul unto death." Did the Jews go voluntarily into captivity? Were they not dragged into it by force?

11. The suffering Servant portrayed in Isaiah 53 is an unresisting Sufferer. "He opened not His mouth." "He is brought as a lamb." "He opened not His mouth" (Isaiah 53:7). Was that Jewish Nation an unresisting one? A very hasty glance at their history is quite sufficient to convince us of this.

12. The sufferings of the Servant ended in death Isaiah 53:8, "cut off" (see 9). Have the sufferings of the Jewish nation ended in the death of that nation? The nation, in spite of centuries of persecution, is very much alive.

13. "Oh," says the critics, "nowhere else in Scripture have we suffering associated with the Messiah, hence this chapter is out of harmony with all previous conceptions of the Messiah, and cannot be accepted as applicable to Christ. An individual with such features has no analogy in Hebrew prophecy" But that is not true. What about Genesis and Psalms.

14. "Is it not impossible," says some, "or at least improbably inconsistent, for the same prophet first to have identified the servant with the Nation, and then to present Him to us as an individual?" Our reply is "No."

15. The Experimental Argument. We know the orthodox view is the correct one because it has brought salvation to us. We found the Atoning Saviour here, and that brought salvation to us. Now we can say: "Surely He hath borne my griefs, and carried my sorrows. He was wounded for my transgressions; He was bruised for my iniquities. With His stripes I am healed. Alleluia!"

IV. ITS STYLE. Jewels are best appreciated when in a suitable setting. The Golden Passional of the Old Testament is more valued when its setting, style, and outline are noted.

Differs.

1. It differs in style from all the rest of Isaiah.

2. It is "broken, sobbing, and recurrent," whereas the rest of Isaiah runs smoothly with "formed flowing sentences."

3. This peculiarity is so pronounced that, "added to the fact that, if it be omitted, the prophecies on either side readily flow together, have led some critics to suppose it to be an insertion, borrowed from an earlier writer."

4. But that is no argument. Principal G. A. Smith, who is favourable to Higher Criticism, sensibly exclaims, "Surely both style and words are fully accounted for by the novel and tragic nature of the subject."

Pronouns. It is important to notice the personal pronouns. Much of the meaning of the poem depends on the use of the pronouns "we" and "he."

Mysterious. A student has drawn attention to the element of mystery in this Passional: "Most wonderful and mysterious of all is the spectral fashion in which the prophecy presents its Hero. He is named only in the first line: elsewhere He is spoken of as He. We never hear or see Himself. But all the more solemnly is He there."

V. ITS SETTING. It is necessary to observe the structure of the Book in order that we might see clearly its setting.

Isaiah.

1. At first sight the book of Isaiah falls into two great divisions-1st, chapters 1 to 39; 2nd, chapters 40 to 66. On closer inspection it can more readily be divided into three: a. Denunciatory-1-35. Prophetic. b. Deliverance-36-39. Historic. c. Consolatory-40-66. Messianic.

2. This third section falls into three sections: a. Comfort-40-48. b. Servant-49-57. c. Future Glory-58-66.

3. In this poem of the broken heart there are 15 verses.

4. It is the middle chapter of the middle section of the third book.

5. It has been pointed out how remarkable is the structure of the book of Isaiah when compared with the Bible: a. Bible has 66 books, Isaiah 66 chapters. b. As the Bible has two great divisions (Old and New Testaments) so Isaiah. c. There are 39 books in the first division of the Bible- that is the Old Testament-and there are 39 chapters in the first division of Isaiah. There are 27 books in the New Testament; 27 chapters in second section of Isaiah. d. The prevailing note in the Old Testament is Law, and prevailing note in first section of Isaiah is Judgment; prevailing note of the New Testament is Grace, and of second section of Isaiah, Comfort.

VI. ITS OUTLINE.

Stanzas.

1. There are 15 verses in the Poem. The Poem begins at 52:13.

2. These fall into five sections or stanzas of three verses each.

3. In the Hebrew the strophes appear, not of equal (as in A.V. or R.V.) but of increasing length.

1st, 9 lines.

2nd, 10 lines.

3rd, 11 lines.

4th, 13 lines.

5th, 14 lines.

4. Each strophe begins with one word or two words, which summarise the meaning of the whole strophe, and forms a title for it: a. Behold-Servant. b. Who hath believed-Faith. c. Surely He hath borne-our Substitute. d. He was oppressed-His oppression. e. And it pleased the Lord-Lord's pleasure. The Outline.

1. Study the chart on the next page.

2. Note its first stanza: a. We have God's Ecce Homo. b. The Servant would gain success through His prudence. c. This first stanza is really a summary of the whole of the poem, and contains in brief the whole story of Messiah's suffering and the glory that should follow.

VII. THE MYSTERY OF CONTRADICTION. Have you noticed the bundle of apparent contradictions in this Golden Passional? Calmet points out: "The Old Testament plainly foretold that the Messiah would be God and man: exalted and debased: master and servant, priest and victim; prince and subject; involved in death and yet a victor over death; rich and poor, a King, a conqueror glorious, a man of griefs; exposed to infirmities, unknown, and in a state of abjection and humiliation." But how bewildering all this must seem!

Look at Isaiah 53.

1. Root out of a dry ground (Isaiah 53:2)-Yet fruitful (Isaiah 53:10).

2. No form or beauty (Isaiah 53:2)-Yet God's Servant (Isaiah 53:11).

3. Despised and rejected (Isaiah 53:3)-Yet the appointed Messiah.

4. Suffering unto death (Isaiah 53:8)-Yet ever living (Isaiah 53:10).

5. Without generation (Isaiah 53:8)-Yet numerous seed (Isaiah 53:10).

6. Rejected and beaten (Isaiah 53:4)-Yet prospered (Isaiah 53:10).

7. Cut off (Isaiah 53:8)-Yet prolonging His days (Isaiah 53:10).

8. Growing up (Isaiah 53:2)-Yet Eternal Son.

9. A tender Exotic (Isaiah 53:2)-Yet bearing and enduring an awful storm.

10. No beauty to lead us to desire Him (Isaiah 53:2)-Yet the desire of all nations.

11. Wounded to death-Yet those wounds that led to death are life to us.

12. Jehovah laid upon Him (Isaiah 53:6)-Yet He was Jehovah Himself.

13. Helpless in the hands of His persecutors. Yet omnipotent and delivering others from their oppressors (7).

14. Dying-Yet dividing the spoil (Isaiah 53:12).

Harmonise.

1. No wonder the Jews were embarrassed when they abandoned the old view.

2. In the Lord Jesus they harmonise. THE SERVANT AND HIS SERVICE.

Isaiah 52:13.

I. "BEHOLD." At once our attention is invited and arrested. The "Beholds" of Scripture are all impressive and important, and without exception, challenge and merit our most careful attention. This "Behold" excels all others, for it is the herald drawing attention to the only Begotten of the Father.

God the Father is not ashamed to draw attention to His Son. "Hast thou considered My servant Job?" God proudly drew Satan's attention to the patriarch; "there is none like him;" and right nobly did Job bear up under his crushing sorrows. He did not let God down. There yet was sin and also much imperfection in this honoured and much tried servant. The fiery trial brought to the surface the sin of self-righteousness Job never dreamt was present in him. There is no such fear in our examination of the Lord Jesus. No one ever detected a flaw or blemish in His spotless character. The fiery trial only brought out all the clearer His perfections, as the fire from the Altar in Tabernacle and Temple only revealed more than ever the wonderful fragrance of the sacred incense.

There are four specially attractive "Beholds" connected with the Lord Jesus, and they wondrously harmonise with the predominant message of the four Gospels.

1. "Behold thy King" (Zechariah 9:9), agreeing with the Gospel of Matthew wherein is drawn for us the portrait of the Lord Jesus as the King.

2. "Behold My Servant" (Isaiah 52:13) agreeing with the portrait drawn of our Lord in Mark's Gospel.

3. "Behold the Man" (Zechariah 6:12) agreeing with Luke's portrait of the Saviour, wherein the humanity of the Lord is emphasised over and over again.

4. "Behold your God" (Isaiah 40:9) where attention is drawn to the Deity of the Servant, as in John's Gospel.

II. THE SERVANT. It is well to observe that God the Father is not ashamed to direct the attention of the Universe to His only begotten Son as "the Servant." There is nothing derogatory in this. In distant parts of the earth, in the habitations of paganism, idolatry, and cruelty, a gentleman is one who never works, and as a proof of this, allows the finger nails to grow to great length, and is arrayed in lengthy and costly robes. But the very glory of Christ is that He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. On the eve of His Passion, fully conscious of His Deity and glory, like a common Eastern slave He girded Himself with a towel, and washed the feet of His disciples. He could even say, "I am among you as one that serveth." There is a great deal of miserable cant in even these so-called democratic days. For why should a domestic servant be considered worthy of less respect and honour than another girl in office or professional labour? Even the King and Queen upon the Throne are but the servants of their subjects. The Lord Jesus, by becoming a servant, has for ever sanctified and dignified that humble word.

Here in this Golden Passional the great service rendered by the Divine servant is that of atoning for the world's sin. The Hebrew word for servant means a person at the disposal of another, to carry out that person's will, to do that person's work, to represent his interests, and to fulfil a mission. This also is the New Testament definition of a servant. In those days a servant and a slave were synonymous terms. The Lord Jesus placed Himself entirely at the disposal of the Father. In the Scriptures various individuals are referred to as God's servants.

1. Worshippers (Psalms 134:1) are called God's servants. How important worship is to be sure, and what an important service it is.

2. Trusting Ones (Psalms 34:22) are honoured by that designation. To place and exercise faith in God is delightful and important service.

3. The Jewish Nation (Isaiah 41:8) is so designated. It would have been well if they had more constantly remembered this, and lived up to this great honour.

4. Certain Individuals are so marked, as for example; David (Isaiah 37:35); Isaiah the Prophet (Isaiah 20:3); and Nebuchadnezzar (Jeremiah 25:9). But the greatest and most glorious of all the servants of the Most High was the Lord Jesus (Isaiah 42:1-7).

III. THE QUALITY OF HIS SERVICE.

1. Filial Service, the Service of the Son. There is a tremendous difference between a mere servant and a sonservant. That is, between a mere hireling and one who, because of a recognised and proud relationship, renders the service more whole-heartedly and more devotedly. It is well to notice He was first Son, then servant, or may we put it-God's servant because He was God's beloved Son. Before we can become God's servants labouring in His vineyard, we must become His children through faith in Christ Jesus.

2. Compulsory Service, the Compulsion of Love. "The love of Christ constraineth us," was the testimony of St. Paul, and was the secret of his incessant and abundant labours in the Gospel. Love was the great constraining force in the life of Christ. It was because He loved the Father that He was so ready to place Himself at the Father's disposal; it was because He loved mankind that He so readily came to render the service of the Cross. Love should be the great dominating force in our lives.

3. Heart Service, not the Service of the Eye. How significant is the phrase used by St. Paul with regard to service. "Not with eye service as men pleasers." Our blessed Lord's service was a real heart service, and so should ours be.

4. Chosen Service, a Service by Wondrous Grace.

"My servant whom I have chosen" (Isaiah 43:10). Undoubtedly our gracious Master is referred to here. He was the chosen one of the Father. But how significant when we can place side by side with this, that amazing verse in John 15, "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you." We, too, are His chosen ones. He has some special work that we alone can do, for which His choice has fallen upon us.

5. Commissioned Service, not an Unrenewed Commission. "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." He came for a definite and specific work, and He has some definite and distinct work for us to do. It is the highest wisdom for all young Christians to place themselves entirely and unreservedly in the hands of the Redeemer,

6. Powerful Service, Energised by the Holy Ghost. "For He spoke with authority, and not as the Scribes," There was wonderful unction in all His addresses. Not one of His words fell to the ground. God save us preachers and speakers and Sunday School teachers from becoming as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal, a mere sound. But may there ever be recognised a definite power behind all that we say.

7. Sustained Service, Upheld by Wondrous Grace. Isaiah 42:1 clearly shows this. Is that not a significant phrase found in Revelation 2:1, "He that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand," indicating the seven leaders of the seven churches in Asia upon whom so great a responsibility rested had special supporting grace given to them. He will sustain us. We, too, will always be held up by wondrous grace. THE SERVANT'S PRUDENCE.

"Behold My Servant shall deal prudently" (Isaiah 52:13)

In this introductory stanza to the Golden Passional we have God's "Ecce Homo." Let us never forget that this was a prophecy uttered many years before Bethlehem and Calvary. Have you ever thought of the goodness of the Father in not only prophesying of the sufferings of Christ, but also of the glory that was to follow? "He shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high." These are expressions confined by Isaiah to the Godhead (consult Isaiah 6:1; Isaiah 57:15). Therefore we here not only have prosperity foretold, but much more than that: surely this means nothing less than the exaltation and enthronement of Deity. Unlike mere mortal and finite men, the Man of Sorrows knew exactly all that awaited Him-the betrayal, the failure of His followers, the cruel scourgings, and the awful death. But how often, as He reflected on all these sad accompaniments of His death, His heart must have been cheered by this bright and attractive forecast. That prosperity should follow prudence is to be expected. "My Servant shall deal prudently-He shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high." Sometimes prudence fails in man, but never in the Man Jesus Christ.

I. THE NATURE OF HIS PRUDENCE. What is prudence? Prudence and wisdom are not one and the same thing. "Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent"-here they are referred to as separate and distinct, though closely related. Prudence is wisdom in action. The prudent are not only the possessors of wisdom. They are those who use that wisdom wisely and well. It is possible to be wise and yet not prudent. In other words, for wisdom to dwell alone. But prudence always dwells with wisdom, as is pointed out in Proverbs 8:12 : "I, wisdom, dwell with prudence." Prudence and wisdom are twin sisters.

II. THE FACT OF HIS PRUDENCE. Our Blessed Lord Jesus was greater in wisdom and prudence than Solomon. Indeed He was, and is, the source of all wisdom and prudence. The greatest and grandest example is found in Him. This declaration in the Golden Passional is, of course, a prophecy. His own life is its fulfilment.

III. THE EXERCISE OF HIS PRUDENCE. A very devoted and eminent preacher of the Gospel of our own time has pointed out how our Lord so wonderfully exercised prudence in His life, and manifested it also in His death.

1. In Not Prematurely Surrendering His Life. Time and again His enemies sought to slay Him, but our Lord and Saviour took every precaution. Till He knew His work was done He would not allow His life to be squandered,

2. His Insight into Character. All who came into touch with Him became conscious of the fact that He knew them through and through, better than they knew themselves. They were aware, time and again, of the fact that He could read their thoughts; and He acted toward all with unerring wisdom.

3. In the Adroitness of His Replies. Christian workers cannot do better as a preparation for missionary work, whether at home or abroad, than to study our Lord's methods with individuals. Both as a preacher and as a teacher He manifested amazing skill-was calm, never flurried, had always an apt reply, ever hitting the nail on the head. Over and over again we simply marvel at His replies.

4. In His Concessions to the Limitations of His Hearers. That He was the All-Wise One, and the All-Knowing One, possessing and exercising in His human life all the attributes of Deity is a fact, yet He never talked or preached above the heads of His hearers. As as example of this He stooped to parabolic teaching, conveying the most abstruse thoughts in simple language. Hence "The common people heard Him gladly," as well as the learned scholars of His time. Many a public teacher is destroyed through lack of prudence.

5. In His Encouragement of all Good Living and Well-intentioned Folk. Time and again, in dealing with individuals, He recognised and complimented them where He could. As for example: "Thou art not far from the kingdom." How encouraging this must have been. "Ye search the Scriptures" (R.V.). There He admitted their diligence in ascertaining the mind and will of God in the written Word.

6. In His Work of Salvation. He ever recognised that man's greatest need is not teaching, but disposition, not merely a code of morals, but a clean heart. Nicodemus right away opened the interview by acknowledging our Lord Jesus as a peerless teacher, assuming that all that was required for the regeneration of mankind was better teaching, but this our Lord at once countered by a firm declaration that man's chief need was a new life. "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again."

7. In His Wondrous Scheme of Redemption. Study Ephesians 1:8. It is in the redemptive work of our Lord that we have the greatest example of His prudence. So marvellous is the scheme that Satan with all his skill has never yet been able to find fault with it, and we may add, he never will. Every Divine attribute is in perfect and harmonious operation in this wondrous plan of salvation. There at the Cross mercy and truth met together, there, righteousness and peace kissed each other.

IV. THE REWARD OF HIS PRUDENCE.

1. Exalted to the highest pitch of honour. Study Ephesians 1:21.

2. Extolled. Study Php_2:9-11.

3. Glorified.

V. THE EXAMPLE OF HIS PRUDENCE. These records of His wonderful prudence are given to us not merely for our admiration, but also for our emulation Heavenly wisdom is exceedingly practical, as is pointed out in James 3:17. Prudence is much to be coveted and desired in our daily lives and service, and "who is sufficient for these things?" Christ is. The marvel of our redemption is that not only did our Lord Jesus suffer on the Cross in our stead, but after we have accepted that great fact and received Him, He comes to dwell within us and to live out His own wondrous life. The Prudent One will be prudence to us. Oh, that He might fill us with His own gracious presence!

CHRIST, THE STARTLING ONE.

"So shall He startle many nations" (Isaiah 52:15, R.V., margin.)

(This study appears in the author's "Cameos of Our Lord," but is here reproduced with additional thoughts, to complete the series of studies.)

During the last few years the nations of the world have been startled as never before. The greatest war of all time sobered and alarmed them, and post-war happenings have continued to agitate and unsettle. But if this short inspired utterance means anything, it announces another and a greater startling, and that by the Lord Jesus Christ. Many scholars object to the A.V. reading of Isaiah 52:15. Without doubt the original has proved a sore trial to translators, for it is not the usual word for "sprinkling," and therefore ceremonial cleansing is not meant. One learned authority affirms, "It is simply treason against the Hebrew language to render it 'sprinkle.'" On the other hand, the late David Baron defends the A.V. rendering in a learned fashion. Bishop Chandler says: "That to sprinkle is used for to surprise, to astonish, as people are that have water thrown upon them." So we can combine both views, and say what is meant here is that nations would be startled as a man is when cold water is suddenly and altogether unexpectedly dashed upon his face.

I. THE ONE WHO STARTLES. As one closely studies this great stanza of the Golden Passional in order to answer the question-who is the one who will startle many nations?-only one reply is possible-the Servant of Jehovah, the Saviour Himself.

II. THE TIME OF THE STARTLING. In a measure, this was true of Him in the past. It has been truly remarked that "there was something amazing, portentous, sensational about Him. He set all Palestine in a ferment. He "troubled" Herod and all Jerusalem at His birth. And He continued to startle the people up to His death on the Cross. There was something electric, explosive, volcanic, in the very air while Jesus lived amongst men." And yet He never made any attempt at the sensational.

He startled the world:

1. By His Birth. He was born of a Virgin. That is to say, He had no human father. This was something altogether new. The so-called Incarnations in Pagan faiths bear no comparison whatever with the birth of Jesus Christ the Lord. It was startling to find Deity in humanity and the frail bush not consumed.

2. By His Lowliness. He was born in a cattle-shed, was brought up in a peasant's home, and not a Royal Palace. He came as a servant. Considering His lofty claims His lowly condition was startling.

3. By His Teaching. His teaching and preaching altogether differed from that of His day. "They were astonished at His doctrine, for He taught as one having authority and not as the scribes." His teaching was accompanied by miracles, and these performed without strain or effort were startling.

4. By His Death. There is a great difference and a swift and altogether startling change between Isaiah 52:13 and Isaiah 52:14. In the former we have His exaltation, in the latter, His degradation. From the picture of His enthronement we find Him confronted by a ring of shocked and horrified spectators (read Luke 23:48). Isaiah 52:14 must be considered in the light of a parenthesis. And that is quite fitting. In the reading of a narrative, we usually lower the voice on reading a sentence in parenthesis, and Isaiah 52:14 should be read in a subdued and reverent manner. Dr. C. I. Scofield declares that the literal rendering is terrible: "So marred from the form of man was His aspect that His appearance was not that of a son of man," i.e., not human, the effect of the brutalities described in Matthew 26:67-68; Matthew 27:27-30. As the spectators watched Him on the Cross, many thoughts would enter their minds with startling effect. a. The fact that One so good and useful should suffer. That, of course, was an old and familiar problem. All along in the history of the world the sufferer has been an astonishment and stumbling-block. Did not the sufferings of Jesus prove His guilt? And yet the governor declared he could find no fault in Him! b. The fact that the powerful Jesus was now so weak. A few days before He acted and spake with power and authority. But now He seemed weak and powerless, suffering an entire eclipse. c. The marring of His visage and form. This has been entitled "The Marvellous Marring." Observe "His visage," i.e., His face; "His form," i.e., His body. "More than other men." This must not be considered as exaggerated language, but to be taken literally. What mars? Suffering mars the visage, sometimes almost beyond the possibility of recognition. If the face and body of the Son of God were marred more than any man, it certainly was because He suffered more than any man. And we must remember that His keenest sufferings were not physical. It is perfectly certain that the accompaniments of crucifixion caused untold and unimagined bodily suffering. But the spiritual and mental agony of forsakenness, and the natural shrinking of a pure soul from contact with a world's sin, were ingredients in His cup of suffering we cannot comprehend or assess. Of course there is a possibility of unduly magnifying the incidents and surroundings of His death. After all, the death was the all important fact. Yet are we Protestants not in danger of ignoring or minimising the incidents surrounding His death? It is by reflecting upon these incidents that we travel along one way of understanding and grasping the awful cost of our redemption.

III. THE CAUSE OF THE STARTLING. But the greatest startling is yet future. Note the value of observing Matthew 27:14 as a parenthesis, and the force and power of the wee word "so." Certainly His sufferings startled, but He will be the cause of a greater startling in the future. In Matthew 27:13 we have a word-picture of enthroned Deity-"Exalted. . . extolled, and be very high," are expressions confined by Isaiah to the Godhead (study Isaiah 6:1; Isaiah 57:15) so we have here something more than a mere prophecy of prosperity. What will startle His own nation, and "many nations," will be that the One who stooped so low should rise so high. What will His enemies say when they behold, seated on the Throne of the Universe, the One they nailed to the Tree. Will not our exaltation also startle those who despise us? He has promised that we should sit with Him in His Throne.

IV. THE RESULT OF THE STARTLING. "Kings shall shut their mouths at Him." Tongues will be silenced in amazement. If the silence of amazement be the first result of the startling, surely the second result will be cleansing. "He will cleanse many nations" is another rendering. The Jewish nation will be born anew in a day in consequence of their startling, and no doubt many Gentiles will share their blessing as in the Exodus of the past. The third result will be refreshing. "So shall He cause to leap or spring up for joy," as another renders this sentence. After the awakening and cleansing, will come a great joy.

REASONS FOR REJECTING HIM.

Isaiah 53:1-3.

What rapid changes we have in this Passional. In former studies we saw a group of horrified spectators, then another large group of nations and kings speechless with wonderment and astonishment. Now our attention is directed to a further group-the godly remnant confessing their astonishment at the unbelief of the chosen people. In this second stanza we have reasons for rejecting Him:

1. Unbelief (Isaiah 53:1).

2. Lowly origin and mysterious growth (Isaiah 53:2).

3. Lack of beauty (Isaiah 53:2).

4. Despised.

5. Treated as a leper. Has it ever occurred to you how abruptly this wonderful chapter opens? It is as if the thought of the rejection of the message overcame the prophet: "Who hath believed our report?" This challenging question is twice quoted in the New Testament Scriptures- John 12:38, as an explanation why all did not believe in the days of His flesh prior to Calvary; Romans 10:16, as an explanation why all the Jewish nation had not believed the Gospel preached by the Apostles and disciples. To whom, in the first instance, is this question presented? Here the person is not mentioned, but by the two quotations we see it was the Lord. It is good to take all failures to Him. It is well if the Lord's servants to-day would now and again apply this question to themselves. The great object of our ministry, either by speech or pen, is to get a verdict for Christ. We have a report to give. Are there any reasons in us why it is not believed? Is it simply what we have heard? "Who have believed that which we have heard" (R.V., margin). Of course, it is right and proper that we should pass on what we have heard or read, but only when it has become part and parcel of ourselves. We must firmly believe it ourselves. And further, we must exemplify and illustrate it ourselves.

I. THE ARM OF THE LORD. This is one of Isaiah's favourite expressions. What is meant by this term? God is pure Spirit, and therefore "without body, parts, or passions." It is a figure of speech. The arm is that by which we execute a purpose. It is used in Scripture as an emblem of power. It is a natural symbol of the active energy of Jehovah. The reference to the arm made bare is an Eastern figure, as a warrior would throw back his loose robes when he would strike, or as the workman would pull up or tie his loose flowing sleeves in order to do his work. As we carefully ponder the references to the arm of the Lord, we seem to note here and there hints respecting the personification of the arm. Two Persons in the blessed Trinity form the Executive-the Lord Jesus is, as it were, the outstretched Arm of Jehovah, and certainly the Holy Spirit is also.

1. Where Seen. The Arm of the Lord is seen in: a. Creation (Jeremiah 27:5; Jeremiah 32:17). b. Redemption (Exodus 6:6; Psalms 77:15). Creation is spoken of as the work of His fingers (Psalms 8:3), but redemption required His arm, i.e., more difficult to redeem than to create. c. Salvation (Isaiah 59:16). d. Providence (Isaiah 51:5). e. Eternal Preservation (Isaiah 40:11).

2. Its Character. The Arm of the Lord is: a. Almighty in strength and might. b. Guided by unerring wisdom. c. Controlled by unfailing love. d. Paralysed by unbelief (Isaiah 51:9, with Matthew 13:58).

II. CHRIST WAS NOT THE PRODUCT OF HIS AGE is one of the most startling facts connected with His birth and growth, and to this our attention is drawn in Romans 10:2. This is at the very threshold of the statement clearly declared.

1. The Fact of His Growth. "He shall grow up." Read Luke 2:52. There certainly was physical growth, for His wee baby form grew to boyhood, youth, and manhood. There was also growth in wisdom and knowledge. Yet He was, and is, the All-Knowing, and the All-Wise One. Have you ever pondered over Psalms 22:9? If this verse means anything, it certainly declares that, as a babe on His mother's breast, He possessed self-consciousness, mental alertness, spiritual longing and hope, that is, a God-given conviction respecting future things. Only one babe ever had that experience, and that was the Babe of Bethlehem. What a wonderful mystery is the Incarnation!

2. The Delight in His Growth. "Before Him." In His development the Father took special delight. Does this not also convey that He grew up ever conscious of the Father's presence?

3. The Protection of the Growth. "As a tender plant." Tender-oh, so tender! Yet guarded and kept by the Father's love.

4. The Royalty of that Growth. "As a root-sprout." The tree is in prophecy an emblem of royalty (see Isaiah 11:1). Royal descent is here referred to, but from a royal house fallen on evil days.

5. The Mystery in that Growth. "A root out of the dry ground." Born in a stable, He grew up in a tiny village among the hills of Galilee and opened out as He grew the wondrous blossom of a perfect humanity, such as had never before been evolved from any root, nor grown on the most sedulously cultivated plant. Brought up in a tiny village, how was it he was entirely free from provincialism? Reared in a peasant's home, how was it He was fit to grace an earthly monarch's presence, and was well-mannered and of kingly presence? The only education He had was in a humble village school, yet He manifested marvellous wisdom and knowledge, outshining all the greatest authorities of that and all subsequent time. And what is the explanation? Only this is sufficient, the Lord Jesus does not represent so much the ascent of man as the descent of God; not so much the climbing of the human into the Divine as the condescension of the Divine to the human; that His birth was not a mere birth but an incarnation.

6. The Beauty of that Growth. "He hath no form or comeliness... no beauty." What is the meaning of this? Surely this cannot mean He was ugly!

Charles Kingsley was overheard in his last illness murmuring quietly to himself: "How beautiful God is! How beautiful God is!" Augustine cried: "O beauty, so old, and yet so new; too late I loved Thee!" Only a beautiful mind could have produced so beautiful a world! Let us never forget that God is the Author and Giver of all the colour, fragrance, glory, and song. Only a beautiful mind could have created such beautiful things. And the Son of God was beautiful. He had:

1. Physical Beauty, a perfectly formed and beautifully fashioned body.

2. Mental Beauty, for only a beautiful mind could have conceived the Sermon on the Mount.

3. Moral Beauty most certainly was His, as also 4. Beauty of Disposition, and 5. Beauty of Action. And yet because there was an absence of martial glory the leaders of His nation were blinded by prejudice and unbelief to His moral glories. There was nothing in His appearance that the carnal or worldly-minded could be attracted by, so different was He to the popular expectancy.

III. AN ILIAD OF WOES. No value was set on Him. "We esteemed Him not." "He was despised." All rejected are not despised-He was both. The rejection followed the despising. Another rendering reads, "He was despised like one hiding his presence from us," just as a leper hid his face and presence. So they treated Him as a leprous person. But pray take note of the tenses. He was despised-that is past history. But pray observe, "He is." Is He still the despised and rejected One? Yes, by many. God grant not by you, dear reader! THE BURDENED SERVANT.

Isaiah 53:4-6.

Is it possible in a short sentence to present our faith? That question has been asked of late. We might point to that wonderful compendium of faith as expressed in the Apostle's Creed, but then it occupies more space than a sentence. When Robert Taylor asked Spurgeon, in his last illness, if he could state his faith in a sentence, without hesitation he gave it in four words: "Jesus died for me." Dr. Fullerton tells of a Church sister who, in visiting a hospital was asked by one of the nurses to speak to a dying boy, who was as much a heathen in Central London as if he had been born in Central Africa. Evidently guided by the Holy Spirit, she said: "Sonny, God made you; God loves you; God came down from Heaven and died for you; and now He is going to take you home to be with Him for ever." "Say it again, lady," he pleaded, so she said it again twice over: "Sonny, God made you; God loves you; God came down from Heaven and died for you, and now He is going to take you home to be with Him for ever." Pulling himself up by the rope hanging over the bed, the boy, who seemed to have gained new vitality, said: "Then thank Him for me," but before she could respond he fell back lifeless, and proved it all for himself, and gave his own thanks face to face with the Eternal. Any preaching or teaching that does not centre on, and radiate from, the substitutionary death of Christ, is doomed to failure, and has no Gospel in it. Is it possible in a short sentence to present our faith? Most certainly. Here is the inspired word: "The Gospel- Christ died for our sins" (1 Corinthians 15:1-3). In the third stanza of the Golden Passional which is before us at this moment we have presented to us the Burdened Servant. The speakers are the penitent people of God in the future. In outline we have:

1. An Assumption. "Surely He hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows" (Isaiah 53:4).

2. A Confession. "Yet we did esteem Him stricken," etc. (Isaiah 53:4).

3. A Declaration. "But He was wounded," etc (Isaiah 53:5 and Isaiah 53:6). We find ourselves contrasting His burden with ours, as shown in Psalms 68:19.

4. God Burdening His People with Blessings. "Blessed be the Lord who daily loadeth us with benefits." Here in the Golden Passional God's Servant is seen with a load of sins laid upon Him by God.

5. God Sharing His People's Burdens. "Blessed be the Lord, who daily beareth our burden" (R.V.). But in the Golden Passional He had to bear His crushing load alone.

Examining very closely this third stanza, we find two burdens.

I. THE BURDEN OF SYMPATHY. The Bleeding Sympathy of the Servant. On the surface of these verses we have a declaration of Christ's true sympathy. "And Jesus, moved with compassion." That last word is an exceedingly strong one. "Passion"- that is a word descriptive of the sorest of suffering. "Come" -together, a suffering with another, a sharing of the sorrow because of the most intimate and closest affinity. Two harps, if perfectly tuned together, though at either end of a room, if one be struck the other will respond. We have not a High Priest who is not touched with the feeling of our infirmity. His manhood was, and is, so perfectly attuned to ours, that when we suffer, He suffers with us. A truly sympathetic sick-visitor will, when in the sick room beholding the gasping sufferer, involuntarily have the same sensation, and for the moment feel as if he or she were struggling for breath. Our Lord's sympathy is a heart sympathy. He not only speaks the consoling word, but shoulders our burdens, getting right under our sorrows. True sympathy always means this. Let all Christian workers pray for grace to retain their tender and sympathetic touch, and to be preserved from those dulling and hardening effects of daily routine and constant contact with suffering. But there is infinitely more suggested here than the sympathetic identification with the sorrows of others: we have II. THE BURDEN OF SIN. The Vicarious Suffering of the Servant. That is to say, we have here declared an active bearing of those consequences of sins which He had not committed. It is here we part from much, very much of the preaching and teaching of to-day. So-called "Modernism" sees only in the death of Christ the bleeding sympathy of Jesus with us. We, too, see that-but we go very much further. If words mean anything at all, Psalms 68:5 and Psalms 68:6, do clearly and emphatically declare the Saviour's death as substitutionary.

There is a close connection between Psalms 68:3 and Psalms 68:4. They supposed He was suffering on account of some great sin of His own. But they had erred. It was for sin-but not His own actual transgressions. It was our sin imputed unto Him, and in that sense, and only in that way, made His own. This third stanza is an acknowledgment that they had erred. Of course this is prophecy yet to be fulfilled so far as the Jewish nation is concerned. Even up to the present day they persist in their cruel and erroneous mistake. To-day, the orthodox Jew considers our Lord suffered for His own sins, and He is called Poshe-the Transgressor. "In the Talmud Jesus of Nazareth is placed in hell alongside of Titus and Balaam, and as undergoing not only the severest, but the most degrading form of punishment." But they will alter their view. May that day be hastened! A very eminent Jewish authority, himself a converted Jew, known and beloved by me in my own Mildmay days, but now with his Lord in the Glory, on Psalms 68:4-6, declared that no plainer or stronger words could be used to express the thought of vicarious suffering than those employed in the original of this verse. The verb "to bear," is continually used in Leviticus of the expiation effected by the appointed sacrifices, as, for instance, Leviticus 16:22. Both the verbs used in Isaiah 53:4, "borne," "carried," are to be understood in the sense of an expiatory bearing, and not merely of taking away. "The meaning is not merely that the Servant of God entered into the fellowship of our sufferings, but that He took upon Himself the suffering which we had to bear, and deserved to bear, and bore them in His own person, that He might deliver us from them."

DECLARING HIS GENERATION.

Isaiah 53:7-9.

In our study of this Golden Passional we come to the most difficult portion. No words in the Hebrew Bible have been so variously rendered as those which constitute in the original language Isaiah 53:8. Translators have been puzzled how to adequately translate them.

I. THE SILENCE OF THE LORD JESUS (7). Of all animals, only one is silent when handled roughly by man, and that is the sheep. Rarely is a bleat heard in a shearer's shed or slaughter-house. The prophet points to this unusual animal characteristic as a figure and prophecy of the attitude of the Lord Jesus, the Lamb of God, toward and under His suffering. What a picture we have in Isaiah 53:7 of the unresisting endurance of the Servant! Surely here we have the most perfect, pathetic, and majestic picture of meek endurance!

There is a danger of forgetting the need and value of silence in this fussy and noisy age. There are moments when prolonged and unbroken silence is golden, and more expressive and fitting than words. Hannah Moore, in one of her essays, remarks, "That silence is one of the great arts of conversation is allowed by Cicero himself, who says there is not only an art, but even an eloquence in it." But silence never shows itself to so great an advantage as when it is made the reply to calumny and defamation. The prophecy of Isaiah 53:7 was literally fulfilled in our Lord's silence under gross injustice. "He opened not His mouth." Jesus' lips were opened in witness, but never in complaint or remonstrance. What a majestic silence!

Now let us consider Isaiah 53:8.

II. THE DIFFERENT RENDERINGS of Verses.

1. "He was taken from prison and from judgment" (A.V.), i.e., His death was a judicial murder.

2. "By oppression and judgment. He was taken away" (R.V.), i.e., the violence meted out to Him, and the suddenness of His death.

3. "By tyranny and law was He taken" (Smith), i.e., by a form of law that was a tyranny.

4. "Without restraint, and without a sentence was He taken away" (a Rabbi), i.e., the swiftness, suddenness, and unseemly haste of His murderers.

5. "And who shall declare His generation" (A.V.).

6. "And as for His generation, who among them considered that He was cut off out of the land of the living" (R.V.) i.e., the indifference of public opinion.

7. "And of His life, who shall recount, for He was cut off" (R.V., margin).

8. "And of His age, who reflected" (Smith).

9. "And among His contemporaries who was concerned" (Von Orelli).

10. "Who shall declare His life," i.e., the mystery of His being.

11. "Who can declare the number of His generation" (Hengstenburg), i.e., of those inspired by His Spirit, or filled with His life.

12. "Who can declare the length of His life hereafter" (Luther, Calvin, and Vitringer).

13. "Who can declare His posterity" (Kimchi).

III. PRISON AND JUDGMENT. "He was taken from prison." He was not imprisoned for long. At the longest but an hour or so. He was arrested at 1 a.m. and crucified at 9 a. m., and in between a great deal took place. The following time-table has been suggested:

1. Arrested and taken before Annas (John 18:13), 1:05 to 1:46 a.m.

2. Trial before Caiaphas (John 18:19), 1:46 to 2 a.m.

3. Taken before Sanhedrin (Matthew 26:59), about 2 a.m.

4. Trial before Sanhedrin (Luke 22:66-71), 5:06 a.m. to 5:50 a.m.

5. Taken before Pilate (Luke 23:1), 5:51 a.m.

6. Taken before Herod (Luke 23:7), 6 a.m.

7. Condemned and scourged (Matthew 27:26), after 6 a.m.

8. Crucified, 9 a.m.

IV. DECLARING HIS GENERATION. What a problem this has been to generations of Bible readers and students. This expression ceases to puzzle one when an old custom is remembered. In those olden days, under the Jewish law, it came to be the custom that every condemned man should receive forty day's grace before his execution, during which period an official, somewhat of the character of our old town-crier, passed to and fro through the town, city, or neighbourhood, and "cried" the offence and sentence of the man, together with his tribe, family, and branch of the family, and announcing that any of his generation (i.e., family or tribe) who could adduce evidence of innocence could appeal before the end of the forty days for a new trial. But Jesus had no forty days' grace, and no one declared His generation. Thus no opportunity was given for a new trial. What unseemly haste!

V. THE BURIAL. The A.V. rendering, "He made His grave," etc., suggests that He had the power to select His grave, and, of course, He had, yet that is not the truth here. The R.V. clears up that point: "They appointed."

Those who know the Hebrew well are startled to find that it is deaths, not death. Assuming that a man can have but one death, critics have fixed upon the plural here as either supporting the application of this Golden Passional to the Jewish nation, and not an individual; or to the extreme violence of that death, the very pain of which made it like dying again and again. But in a surprising fashion, the plural here fits in with the actual facts of the case. For there were two deaths on the cross, spiritual first, then physical. On the Cross Jesus died before He died. What is the death of the soul but separation from God, and the Redeemer "tasted death" during the three hours' darkness (Matthew 27:45-46) when He declared He was forsaken! What an awful "taste" that was! It was then He tasted spiritual death. But it soon passed. Afterward He experienced physical death.

Respecting the death of criminals, Josephus states the Jewish law thus: "He that blasphemed God, let him be stoned, and let him hang upon a tree all the day, and let him be buried in an ignominious and obscure manner," usually in an unclean place. Thus even after death, shame followed the criminal. The Jewish leaders, not content with the humiliation and sufferings heaped upon Him, nor with the cruel and shameful death inflicted, followed Him with hatred to the grave, for "They appointed His grave with the wicked," intending His mortal remains to be interred in an unclean place. But that was an appointment never kept. He died at 3 p.m. Joseph of Arimathaea, a member of the Jewish Council, boldly went and requested the body of Jesus which was granted, and with the help of Nicodemus and others, he took it from the Cross, wrapped it in one cwt. of spices to prevent corruption, and placed it in his own rock-hewn tomb, this burial taking place between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. And thus "that body, reverently bedewed with tears, wrapped in fine linen, clean and white, softly laid down by loving hands, watched by love stronger than death, lay in fitting repose as the corpse of a king, till He came forth as a conqueror." He was buried in a rich man's tomb. And what is the force of this? The fact that the authorities permitted His friends to have the body of Jesus was a proof that they did not consider Him guilty, that although slain as a criminal, He was not a criminal! What a vindication of His innocency and honour! A CLUSTER OF SPIRITUAL PARADOXES.

Isaiah 53:10-12.

A paradox is a statement seemingly absurd yet true. There are quite a number in this" Golden Passional, and there are a cluster of them in this last stanza. Observe that the speaker is the prophet speaking for God, and the main subject, the glory that should follow the suffering.

I. THE PLEASURE OF THE LORD. The opening sentence of this last stanza found in Isaiah 53:10 is at first sight startling. It has a grim repulsiveness about it. He who has no pleasure in the death of the wicked was pleased to put His Righteous Servant to grief. Surely the God of the Bible does not resemble the many gods of the heathen in being a lover of blood and agony! The explanation of this problem is found in other two statements concerning the pleasure of the Lord, in Psalms 149:4, "He taketh pleasure in His people;" and Psalms 35:27, "He taketh pleasure in the prosperity of His people." The pleasure He takes in His people themselves, and in their prosperity, urged Him to take pleasure in the sufferings of His beloved Son, for, without that atoning death they could never have become His people, and they could never have prospered.

II. THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST DIVINELY INFLICTED. It is distinctly stated that it was the Lord who bruised Him. This might be objected to: was not His death due to the hatred and plottings of wicked men? Study Acts 2:23, where it is shown that whilst the murderers of Christ were acting in fulfilment of a Divine decree, their deeds were really and absolutely their own. It was the Divine counsels that used the enemies of Christ as His instruments. Now in the recognition of this great fact lies the secret of composure. The secret of a happy life is the recognition that nothing can come to us without God's consent. This is the thought and fact that makes pain tolerable, and lights up the profound mystery of suffering. We can always find good shelter behind either His actual or His permissive will.

III. THE SOUL AN OFFERING (Isaiah 53:10). This sentence is impressive. It was His soul and not merely His body, or should we not say, it was His soul plus His body, or through His body, that was the offering for sin. "The prophet lays no particular emphasis upon Christ's bodily sufferings, because, though visible, it was not the main part of His atoning sufferings. Mental pain is harder to bear than bodily pain. The soul, with its larger capacities, finer sensibilities, and chief place as governor of the body, is more sensitive."

IV. HE SHALL PROLONG HIS DAYS (Isaiah 53:10). Note the second occurrence of this sentence, "the pleasure of the Lord." Is it not remarkable that the prophet says nothing about the Saviour's activity on earth till after death! When He is dead He begins to work! Having died He prolongs His days, sees His offspring, and carries into effect the Divine purposes! What a cluster of paradoxes!

V. THE SERVANT'S TRAVAIL (Isaiah 53:11). The word travail, coined to describe the toil and agony attendant on motherhood, is also used in Scripture for painful toil and exhausting labour for Christ. There is a place for travail in Christian service. Toil without God is, in Ecclesiastes 1:13 and Ecclesiastes 3:10, described as a travail. But Paul also uses the word in 1 Thessalonians 2:9; 2 Thessalonians 3:8 to describe the exhausting nature of his labours for his blessed Master. Do we know anything of soul-travail in our missionary labours, or are we "easy going?" What about your prayer-life? Is there ever any travail in it?

VI. THE SERVANT'S SATISFACTION. Many an one is not satisfied with the fruit of his labour-not so the Saviour. As creation ended with the rest and satisfaction of the Creator, so the redemptive work of our Saviour has and will end with the Redeemer's satisfaction. For He will be satisfied with:

1. The Number of the redeemed (Revelation 7:9): "A great multitude which no man could number."

2. The Variety of the redeemed: "Of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues."

3. The Character and attainments of the redeemed. "I shall be satisfied when I awake in Thy likeness." And He cannot be satisfied with anything else.

4. The Prospects of the Redeemed (John 17:24).

5. The Praises of the Redeemed (Read Revelation 5:9, Revelation 5:11-14; Revelation 7:10; Revelation 14:1-3; Revelation 19:1-7).

6. The Service of the Redeemed.

VII. THE SERVANT'S KNOWLEDGE AND OUR JUSTIFICATION. How perplexing is 2 Thessalonians 3:11. What has knowledge to do with our justification? Are we not justified by faith? Then whose knowledge-the Divine Servant's, or our own? There are three explanations.

1. The Punctuation Explanation. A Biblical scholar thus renders and punctuates: "Satisfied by His knowledge, My righteous Servant shall justify many." That is to say, His knowledge of the vast numbers who will be justified through His sufferings, brought satisfaction.

2. Instruction Explanation. Another thus renders the sentence: "By His instructions, My Servant will make many righteous." He is One under authority, and has acted under instruction.

3. The Objective Explanation. David Baron declares that the phrase in the original cannot be understood definitely to be in either a subjective or objective sense, as grammatically it can be rendered either way. But he points out that all the commentators who understand by the Servant our Lord Jesus Christ, prefer the latter, viz., by the knowledge of Him on the part of others. He also points out that the Hebrew "Yada" stands in the Bible for experimental knowledge-a practical experimental knowledge. That is to say, it is not His knowledge of me, but my knowledge of Him which leads to my justification. And even that knowledge, the knowledge of His death and resurrection, of His atonement, of the conditions of justification, we have gained by His grace.

VIII. THE SUFFERING SAVIOUR A GREAT CONQUEROR. There is a singular contrast in 2 Thessalonians 3:12 to the rest of the prophecy. In the former we have the lowliness and the suffering-the minor key; here we have the rapture and the triumph, the major key. Here the once suffering Servant is depicted as a Conqueror, leading back from His conquest a long train of captives, a rich booty. "He shall divide the spoil." This sentence is taken from the custom of distributing the spoils of victory after a battle. In ancient time, one convincing proof of a victory was the securing of captives and booty. Note:

1. The Time of the Victory. Here is a striking fact, another paradox, the victorious campaign and glorious conquest is achieved after the Servant is dead. This is never so in the case of mere man.

2. The Allies in the Victory. Note the singular blending of God's power and the Servant's own activity: "Therefore will I"-"He shall divide."

3. The Condition of Victory. Note "Because"-that is an important word. The Cross was the condition of the Servant's victory.

4. Evidences of Victory. Great spoil.

5. Recompense Accompanying Victory. Viewing the spoils, He will feel amply recompensed for all the toils and perils of the battle.

"Numbered with the transgressors." He, the Sinless, was counted sin that we sinners might be counted righteous (2 Cor. 5 21). He was numbered with the transgressors that we might be numbered with the redeemed. His name was placed on the roll of transgressors that I might have my name written in the Book of life. "He bare the sins of many." This may seem to teach a limited atonement for a select few. But that is not so. Hebrew scholars say the stress should be placed on the article "the many." It might be rendered "The masses," "an indefinite expression, which, if not declaring universality, approaches very near to it." Thank God for 1 John 2:2 : "And He is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world."

IX. THE INTERCESSOR. The Golden Passional closes with a sentence which summarises the whole. In the A.V. we have the past tense-"Made" intercession; in the R.V. we have the present tense-"Maketh intercession." It takes both the past and the present tense to describe His work. He made intercession by His death. Observe the close connection between His death and intercession in the verse. But He "maketh" intercession now in the Father's presence in the glory.

"Why don't you beg?" exclaimed a passer-by to a ragged man. "Beg?" he replied, "why, every rag on my body begs with a loud voice!" In the glory Jesus Christ bears the marks of the crucifixion in His glorified body. Every one of those marks prays and intercedes for us with a loud and prevailing voice. Thus His very presence is a mighty and overwhelming plea on our account. (Note Hebrews 7:25.) Glory to His Name!

RIGHTEOUSNESS.

1. God is Righteous (John 17:25). So is the Lord Jesus (1 John 2:1).

2. Man is Incapable of Righteousness (Isaiah 64:6; Romans 3:10). Sin is any want of conformity to the character of God, whether it be in act, disposition, or state.

3. Yet there have been some Men and Women who were Righteous (Luke 1:6). Indeed it is one of the names of the true Christian.

4. How is this Possible? a. God alone can make this possible (Romans 5:17). b. And then, only through Christ (Romans 3:21-22). c. It first is imputed (Romans 3:22; 1 Corinthians 1:30). d. Then imparted, indeed is one characteristic of the New Birth (Romans 8:4; 1 John 2:29). e. Promises for those who hunger and seek after it (Matthew 5:6; Matthew 6:33).

The Death Of Christ

The Death of Christ

SUBSTITUTION.

The Simplicity yet Supremacy of the Substitutionary Death of Christ.

The importance of any item of news can be gauged by the amount of space given to it in the newspaper. The same rule is applicable to the Bible. Take the subject of death. As we commence to read the Bible, we find the smallest possible space given to notices of the death of Bible characters. That first impression is deepened as we prayerfully make our way through the sacred volume, until we come to the New Testament, when we find a great deal of space-whole long chapters-devoted to the death of Christ. Matthew devotes a chapter of 66 verses; Mark, usually very brief in all his statements, 47 verses; Luke, 56; and John, 42. How is this? Surely the implication is that that death was different to all other deaths! The fact is, our Lord's supreme work for the salvation of men was accomplished in His death. We come to live; death ends our work. He came to die; death was the means of accomplishing the work He came to do. And another fact is equally impressive, and that is that the Bible declares that there is no salvation apart from that death. One of the simplest aspects of the death of Christ is that of Substitution. That is taught in innumerable portions of Scripture, such as John 10:11; Galatians 2:20; 1 Peter 3:18. But no clearer explanation or illustration of substitution can be found than what we have in Genesis 22:13, "In the stead of." That great evangelist, D. L. Moody, was right when he remarked: "You take the great doctrine of Substitution out of the preaching of Paul, Peter, John, James, Philip, and all other holy men, and you take out all that they preached. There does not seem any ray of hope for men that ignore the blessed subject of Atonement."

Coming back to Genesis 22, why give Abraham a journey of three days to offer up his son? To show that the act was not one of hasty impulse, but of calm, deliberate, and measured intent. This is one of the clearest pictures of the substitutionary death of Christ in the Bible. The intended sacrifice, Isaac, resembled the Son of God, God's great Lamb, in his supernatural birth; in the fact that he was his father's dearly beloved and only begotten son; in his willingness to be sacrificed; and that he, as later the Lord Jesus, carried the wood (in the Latter's experience, the wooden Cross) to the place of death; in their loneliness, the two apart from all others, in this great act, a faint picture of the loneliness and isolation of God the Father and God the Son on the Cross, shut off from the crowd by the three hours of darkness. Only no substitute was found for the Son of God, as was done in the case of Isaac, for instead, the Lord Jesus was our substitute, and died in our stead. Have you beheld, with the eye of faith, God's Lamb, as John bade his hearers in the famous words: "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world?"

PROPITIATION.

Christ's Death as a Propitiation: Its Need, Method and Enjoyment.

"God is angry with the wicked every day" (Psalms 7:11), is a statement in the Book of all books that many would like to get rid of. For there are those who object to any such quality in the Most High. They cling proudly to the declarations concerning the love of God, yet scornfully reject those statements, equally inspired, which ascribe to Him anger and wrath. Yet in all parts of the Bible we find such statements: "And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses" (Exodus 4:14); "O Lord, rebuke me not in thine anger, neither chasten me in Thy hot displeasure" (Psalms 6:1). These are but samples of very, very many references to the anger of the Lord. Even in the New Testament they are found in plenty. Though pre-eminently the New Testament books stress the love of God, we find many references to His anger and to His wrath. The simple reason why God is at times a God of anger, is because He is a God of love. For the God of the Bible is not a cast-iron Colossus, without emotional qualities or feelings! Why, it is written: "Like as a father pitieth His children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." And the human being who knows best his own heart never boggles at such statements concerning His anger, for in his heart of hearts he knows that he has merited by his sins the fiercest wrath of the Almighty. And when the Holy Spirit of God awakens a sinner to a sense of his own sin, he becomes also conscious of the Lord's displeasure on account of his wickedness, and the need of propitiation. But what is the meaning of Isaiah 12:1 : "And in that day thou shalt say, O Lord, I will praise Thee: though Thou wast angry with me, Thine anger is turned away, and Thou comfortedst me?" What wonderful words! Here the individual, once alarmed to find that the anger of the Lord was his portion, now is blessedly conscious of the glad fact that that anger has been turned away. How is this? God is holy, and must hate sin. And His holiness and hatred must be manifested, and meet and strike someone. His wrath against sin must strike somewhere, either the sinner himself, or a lawful substitute. "The Lord hath laid on Him" (literally, "Made to strike upon") the iniquity of us all" (Isaiah 53:6).

Ah, there is the secret of Isaiah 12:1 -the stroke due to us fell upon Him, and by the Blood He had become propitiated. There is no thought in the Bible doctrine of Propitiation of placating a vengeful God, but of doing right by His Holy Law, and so making it possible for Him to righteously show mercy. This word Propitiation only occurs three times in the A.V. of the Bible, and is the translation of two different yet related Greek words. In 1 John 2:2, and 1 John 4:10, it is the rendering of the Greek hilasmoss, i.e., that which propitiates; and in Romans 3:25, Greek, hilasterion, i.e., the place of propitiation. In Hebrews 9:5, hilasterio is the Greek word used by the Holy Spirit for the Mercy Seat. Whatever the Mercy Seat was to Israel typically, that the Lord Jesus Christ is actually to the believer. The Mercy Seat was sprinkled with atoning blood on the great Day of Atonement, in token that the righteous sentence of the Law had been (typically) carried out, so that what must else have been a Judgment-Seat could righteously be a Mercy Seat, a place of blessing.

I. The Divinely Appointed Means of Propitiation- The Death of Christ. "For Him hath God set forth in His Blood, to be a propitiatory sacrifice, by means of faith, thereby to manifest the righteousness of God; because in His forbearance, God had passed over the former sins of men in the times that are gone by" (C. & H.'s rendering of Romans 3:25). This verse will ever be memorable as the means of the conversion of Cowper the poet, at St. Albans, in 1764.

Here is a difficulty. While God had proclaimed His Law and had not yet proclaimed His Gospel, yet He did bear with sinners. Why? Did He think lightly of their sin? Far from it! This verse is the answer. God's past forbearance was exercised in virtue of what the Lord Jesus was to do in the fulness of time. To propitiate is to appease and dispose to kindness or favour, with consequent blessing. This can only be done by sacrifice. But whose? Such an effectual sacrifice the Lord Jesus has made. The Blood of Christ avails to appease His holy and righteous anger.

II. The Divinely Appointed Place and Pledged Security for Propitiation, is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. What the Mercy Seat was typically to Israel, so Christ Himself is to the believer to-day. Note what is said, "He is the propitiation" (1 John 2:2). Not merely that He has effected propitiation, but that He is, in His own person, the pledge and security of Propitiation.

Think of the old Mercy Seat, and see how it portrays Christ.

1. It was made of pure solid gold, costing £25,000. So our Mercy Seat is pure, Divine.

2. It hid the two unbroken Tables of Stone, witness to the sin of Israel. Ah, but between the symbol of God's presence in the Shekinah Glory over the Mercy Seat, and that witness of the sin of Israel, was the sprinkled Blood on the Mercy Seat. It was that Blood which made what should have been a Judgment Seat a Throne of Mercy and Blessing.

3. It was only here where God could meet with sinful man in grace, and only here where God's voice could be heard in mercy. It was here where God communed with redeemed man.

God now says to the sinner: Do you desire, in spite of your sin, to meet Me? Would you be no longer My enemy estranged from Me? Do you desire My blessing? Do you desire to commune with Me in peace and unity? Would you do business with Me? Would you like to be at peace with Me? Would you have traffic with Heaven? Well then, come to Christ, as the Israelite came to the Mercy Seat, where I can meet with you in grace and wondrous blessing.

RECONCILIATION.

Christ's Death as a Reconciliation.

In a recent book issued in connection with a new and unsound modern movement occurs this passage: "The ancient sacrifices spoke of an angry God Who needed to be propitiated by the blood of victims 'on Jewish altars slain.' The Cross of Christ revealed a God of love Whose love, so tender and so vast and so deep, could go even to the Cross of Calvary." To say the least, this is a mischievous paragraph. It certainly is a caricature of the truth. How foolish to attempt to pit the New Testament against the Old, with the intention that the latter should be discredited. For remember, the Old Testament is equally a revelation of the love of God as the New, as Deuteronomy and other Bible books prove. And why should an attempt be made to laugh out of court the wrath of God? For it is found in the New Testament equally with the Old. Romans 1:17-18 and many another Scripture proves that the Gospel is not only a revelation of the love of God, but equally a revelation of His righteousness and righteous wrath. Besides, the God of the Old and the New Testaments is not an unemotional, stereotyped Being. He is love, and loves all, yet is "angry with the wicked" in the sense that His wrath burns against them in so far as they identify themselves with their sin.

It is quite evident that behind this statement is a deep dislike to the substitutionary Aspect of the death of Christ, and to the truths which most certainly lie behind such a necessity. In certain quarters much bitterness has been shown in criticism of Charles Wesley's well-known verse:

"My God is reconciled. His pardoning Voice I hear."

Say they: "If the Atonement was an act of reconciliation, it was rebellious men, and not God, who needed to be reconciled, for God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself" (2 Corinthians 5:19). God is love, and cannot need to be reconciled." This statement is inaccurate. Certainly men need to be reconciled; but was there no need for reconciliation in God? God is indeed Love, but that is why His reconciliation was a first necessity. However startling this may be to some, it certainly is the truth.

I. Reconciliation of God to Man. "And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:18). What is the meaning of the word "scarcely?" It cannot mean that there is the least degree of uncertainty concerning our Salvation. The believer's salvation is assured the very moment they trust the Saviour. There is the glorious ring of certainty concerning this vital matter.

Neither does it mean that, though our ultimate salvation is assured, we shall only just be saved, as a shipwrecked mariner scarcely gains the shore on a plank. No doubt that will be the character of the Home-going of many. Yet it is not God's ideal. He desires for us an "abundant entrance," and that we should go sweeping through the gates of the New Jerusalem. The word "scarcely" really means "with difficulty." That is the rendering in the margin of the Scofield Bible. "If a good man is only saved with difficulty," is the rendering of this verse in the Twentieth Century New Testament, and Weymouth reads: "And if it is difficult even for a righteous man to be saved, what will become of irreligious men and sinners?" The same word rendered "scarcely" is used in Acts 14:18 : "And with these sayings scarce restrained they the people;" and Acts 27:7 : "And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against Cnidus." This verse surely means that, in arranging His scheme of redemption, God was confronted with great difficulties, and the first great difficulty lay within Himself. He had no difficulty whatever in loving us. How could He, seeing "God is love." Neither had He any difficulty in persuading Himself to lay bare His arm on our behalf, for His love is most practical. The difficulty lay in His Attributes.

God has been pleased at sundry times to reveal, by word or act, that certain characteristics or qualities reside in Him. These are known theologically as His Attributes. Ah Attribute is that which belongs to a person as distinguished from the person Himself.

Five of the Divine Attributes are known as Absolute or Essential, because they are essential to Deity-Eternity, Unchangeableness, Omnipotence, Omnipresence, and Omniscience; and five are known as moral Attributes: Holiness; Justice (or Truth or Righteousness); Love; Mercy; and Faithfulness. Now of necessity every act of God must be in perfect harmony with each separate Attribute. Not a single Attribute can be overlooked or violated. The problem was: How could God be just, and yet the Justifier of the ungodly? The Attribute of Justice clamoured for man's condemnation, yet the Attribute of Mercy desired his pardon; the Attribute of Righteousness demanded the death of the sinner, whereas the Attribute of Love pleaded for the salvation of the sinner. In the parable of the Wicked Husbandmen there is a single sentence: "What shall I do?" (Luke 20:13), which is a small four-paned window letting in a flood of light. Does this not reveal the Divine dilemma, the Lord puzzled? Speaking, of course, as man speaks. We talk about "the simple plan of salvation," and we are right. Yet there is a danger of forgetting in the thought of the simplicity the difficulty of salvation. In Psalms 85:10 we have a statement regarding a meeting in perfect accord of those very Attributes: "Mercy and Truth are met together, Righteousness and Peace have kissed each other." Surely this was a prophecy uttered many years before it came to pass. That prophecy was fulfilled at the Cross. It was there the Divine Attributes met and found the means of perfect Reconciliation. In pondering much on this theme, many thoughts have been suggested, overthrowing popular ideas. Rather hesitant at these discoveries, one has been helped by the mature thoughts of several devout and fully accredited Biblical scholars.

"The reconciliation, which is the foundation of the Apostolic Gospel, is not something which we effect when we lay aside our unbelief and enmity and turn to God in repentance and faith (though we must say there is truth in this statement, as we shall note in our second point). It is something immeasurably more important, something which God effected through the propitiatory sacrifice of Christ."-A. E. BARNES-LAWRENCE, M.A.

"The whole tenor of Scripture is to the effect that through the vicarious sacrifice of Christ a change was wrought in God of this nature, that whereas previously He could not, consistently with the perfection of His attributes, grant forgiveness or repentance, now He can."-litton.

These are great thoughts. Of course, we must observe that the Atonement was necessary, not to induce God to forgive, but to enable Him to pardon sin without injustice.

"The death of Christ removes all moral hindrances in the mind of God to the saving of sinners. By Christ's death, God's infinite love and power are released from restraint by the accomplishment of every judgment which His righteousness could demand against the sinner."-L. S. Chafer.

Thus in the death of Christ a basis is provided upon which God can deal in perfect justice, yet in wonderful mercy, with the world. The fact that Christ died provides a sufficient ground upon which God in full harmony with His holiness is free to save even the chief of sinners.

During a mission in Aberdeen conducted by Major Whittle many years ago, a young man of eighteen years testified: "I am saved by the justice of God." This greatly startled the Major. But the young man continued: "By the justice of God I was condemned; by the justice of God, Jesus Christ became my Substitute, I died upon the Cross, and I am saved by the justice of God." That young man had had revealed to him by the Holy Spirit a great truth, and a real stabilising truth, too, of which thousands in our day are ignorant. Oh, it is glorious to find that our salvation rests on so solid a foundation! The late Dr. A. T. Pierson has splendidly outlined another aspect of the problem of all problems.

"The problem of redemption was this: to justify the sinner without justifying his sin; to save him from legal penalty, and yet save God from compromise and complicity with his guilt. Justice demands the execution of the penalty in the interest of law, and of perfect government; mercy yearned to rescue the offender in the interests of love. The problem was so perplexing that only Infinite wisdom and grace together were equal to its solution. Now that it is solved, it may seem simple."

Blessed be God, on account of the substitutionary death of Christ, the problem has been solved. God is now reconciled, and He can be both "a just God and a Saviour" (Isaiah 45:21); "Just and yet the Justifier of the ungodly" (Romans 3:26); "Faithful and yet just to forgive us our sins" (1 John 1:9).

II. Reconciliation of Man to God. The dictionary declares that reconcile means "to bring to agreement; to bring to acquiescence; to restore to friendship." All these definitions are suggestive in relation to the reconciliation of man to God.

Now the sad fact is that the sinner is not merely helpless and in danger, but is actively rebellious and persistently obstinate, which state and temper bears sad fruit in a dreadful defiance of God and His Law. The truth of reconciliation in the Bible is of a twofold nature. The first necessity was a reconciliation in God Himself. And so far as that is concerned, it was accomplished at the Cross (Ephesians 2:16). The second necessity is a reconciliation of man to God, and that, too, was made possible at the Cross (Romans 5:10; Colossians 1:20-21; 2 Corinthians 5:18-19).

"While it is never implied that the world enmity towards God is removed, it is declared that the judicial state of the world is so altered before God by the death of Christ that He is said to have reconciled the world unto Himself."-L. S. Chafer.

Another theologian has finely expressed it thus: "The overture of reconciliation is from God, the acceptance is of man."

Estranged as we are by nature from God, God has taken the first step. God was reconciled to man; the worst of men might now be reconciled to God. Now He sends forth His servants with the Gospel, with the great message of Reconciliation to proclaim: "Be ye reconciled to God" (2 Corinthians 5:20).

One of John Wesley's preachers, testifying of saving grace, said that Charles Wesley's hymn, particularly the first verse, was blessed to his conversion, quoting:

"All ye that pass by

To Jesus draw nigh;

To you is it nothing

That Jesus should die?

Your ransom and peace.

Your Surety He is;

Come, see if there ever

Was sorrow like His?"

He remarked: "I then believed that God for Christ's sake had forgiven all my sins, and found that peace which arises from a sense of reconciliation."

ATONEMENT.

Christ's Death as an Atonement, and Much More.

On one occasion, when Tennyson the poet was on holiday in a country place, he asked an old Methodist woman if there was any news. "Why, Mr. Tennyson, there is only one piece of news that I know, and that is, 'Christ died for all men.'" He responded, "That is old news, and good news, and new news," and he was right. Surely there is no better news, old, yet ever new, because its meaning and power are being personally discovered and experienced continually by first one and then another.

It is rather startling to find that in the Revised New Testament the word "Atonement" disappears; but there is no cause for alarm; for whilst that word disappears, the truth concerning the sacrificial death of Christ remains. Rather than be perturbed, we should be profoundly thankful, for nothing brings out the perfection and thoroughness of the work of Christ on the Cross more than this disappearance. In the Authorised Version of the Bible the word "Atonement" occurs 77 times in the Old Testament, and but once in the New Testament- Romans 5:11. In the Revised Version the word is retained in all the Old Testament passages in which it is used in the Authorised Version, but it disappears from the New; the word in Romans 5:11 being correctly rendered "reconciliation." The fact is that in the original text of the New Testament, the Old Testament word for "atonement" does not once appear in the New.

What is the significance? The meaning of words change with the passing generations, as any English Etymological Dictionary will prove. That is so with the word "atonement," The Biblical use of the word "atonement" differs from its present theological use. In the Old Testament it stands for one Scriptural experience only. To-day in theology it covers the whole sacrificial and redemptive work of Christ. In that sense, of course, the Atonement is the fundamental fact of our Christian life. Salvation through the atoning sacrifice of our Lord Jesus Christ is not merely one of importance, but the essential and characteristic feature of our Christian faith. Indeed it is the fundamental fact of our Christian faith.

We must ever remember that the work Christ wrought on the Cross was so great, so stupendous, and so varied in its aspects, both God-ward, man-ward, and creature-ward, that it cannot possibly be compressed into one word. For clarity of thought, and in order to note the varied aspects of the word "atonement" in its Biblical sense, the following outline will be helpful.

I. The Origin of the Atonement: Sacrifice. From time immemorial, whenever man thought of approaching Deity, he invariably did so through sacrifice. This practice seems universal. In all parts of the globe this custom is observed.

II. The Reason of the Atonement: Sin. The Bible is the only sacred Book in the world that gives this true reason for the fear of the Divine. That dread lies in man himself-his sin.

III. The Meaning of the Atonement: To Cover Up. The Hebrew word "atonement" means "to cover up." The very first occurrence of that word is in Genesis 6:14, where we are told that Noah's ark was covered with pitch, within and without, and thus made judgment-proof. With regard to sin, it means that sin is so covered up that God regards it as neutralised, disarmed, inoperative to rouse His anger. This is clearly the teaching of Genesis 32:20. Just when Jacob was about to meet his brother, whom he had angered and wronged, he sent the present and said, "I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterwards I will see his face; peradventure he will accept of me." The presents that Jacob sent on before his party were to cover the face of the offended person, Esau, so that he could no longer see the offence.

Blood was sprinkled on and before the mercy seat, that satisfaction might be given to Jehovah. Why? The Mercy Seat hid the two tables of stone, evidence of Israel's guilt. There was in the death of the Lord Jesus that which satisfied the righteous ire of the Holy God Who had been made angry by men's sin. But the work of Christ was more thorough. At the Cross there was no temporising or partial dealing with sin. Christ's work does not pass over or overlook sin, but takes it away. Study John 1:29; Colossians 2:14; Hebrews 10:4; 1 John 3:5. Have you really grasped this? Thousands of true believers have not. The Levitical offerings covered, but did not take away (Hebrews 10:4). These sins God passed over (Romans 3:25). According to Scripture the Levitical sacrifices covered the offerer's sin, and secured the Divine pardon. Yet the sin was not put away. Christ's death puts away sin completely.

There is another point. However welcome the provision of the Levitical offerings, the latter imperfectly met the need. For example, it does seem that there were sins, for which those offerings were unavailing. As Mr. Neill points out, there does not seem to have been any atonement for wilful sin under the Old Covenant, with four exceptions only (Leviticus 5:1; Leviticus 6:2; Leviticus 19:20-22). The Law provided sacrifices only for sins of ignorance, accidental omission, or forgetfulness, not for any wilful breach of the Ten Commandments, with three exceptions in the case of the ninth, and one in the case of the seventh (Leviticus 4:2-3; Leviticus 5:18; Numbers 15:22-29).

David knew this well, and in his sorrow cried, "Thou desireth not sacrifice; else would I give it." His sin was wilful; for which no provision had been made. The Lord was merciful to him notwithstanding. But the sacrifice of Christ provides pardon for all sin. What saith 1 John 1:7? "The Blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin." "All"-blessed, blessed word!

IV. The Source of the Atonement: God Himself (Isaiah 53:6, Isaiah 53:10). Not man. Oh, no. You would never have thought of this, if God had not devised this scheme.

V. The Foundation of the Atonement: Love (John 3:16; Ephesians 5:2 and Ephesians 5:25; 1 John 4:10). Not anger. Though God is a Being capable of anger and wrath, of pleasure and displeasure, love is behind the Atonement.

VI. The Method of the Atonement: Blood (Leviticus 17:11; Leviticus 16:27; Leviticus 19:22). The Lord said to Moses, "With My hand will I cover you" (Exodus 33:22). But that only took place after Moses stepped into the cleft rock, a picture of the Rock of Ages cleft for me.

VII. The Essence of the Atonement; or the Abiding-Place of the Atonement: Jesus Himself (1 John 2:2). The late Dr. Edwards of Bala, whilst engaged with his admirable treatise on the Atonement, was suddenly gripped with this thought. He rose from his desk, writes Dr. M'Intyre, leaving his books and papers as they lay, went into the street, and cried aloud, "Jesus is the Atonement! Jesus is the Atonement!" Then he returned to his study to write down sentences like this: "This is the Atonement-not the sufferings, and not the death, but the Person of the Son of God in the sufferings and in the death. He is the Propitiation. He is the Atonement- not He Himself without the act, but He Himself in the act... the Atonement is eternally offered to the Father in the Person of the Son."

VIII. The Result of the Atonement: Salvation. If covering of sin meant salvation in the Old Testament, what a wonderful salvation for us in the putting away of sin!

REDEMPTION.

Christ's Death and the Glory of Redemption.

Language has been called the amber in which a thousand precious and subtle thoughts have been safely embedded and preserved. This is peculiarly true with regard to the word "Redemption." Though, in addition to the precious and subtle thoughts, we must add many painful and saddening ones. Let us explain:

One of the most familiar of sights in the ancient world was long lines of manacled war-captives, on their way to the capital city. After taking a compulsory part in the victorious captor's triumphant entry, usually a price for redemption was placed upon their heads, whereupon they were imprisoned to await its payment, or death. In Israel there was an additional provision of a Gaal, i.e., one who, because a near relative, was duty bound to redeem a captive, or even to redeem an insolvent relative's inheritance. Redemption therefore means a buying back, or a changed state or condition of freedom from bondage as a result of that act of redemption. The Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ is, in a sense, a great mystery, or better, there is a mysterious side to it. Attempts have been made, in various ways, to explain and make clear something of its wondrousness, and one of the clearest is to think of it as a Redemption. Indeed it is surely the earliest conception by man, and one of the most beautiful aspects of that sacrificial death. View sin as a slavery; sinners as bondmen to sin and to Satan, Christ's Blood as the Ransom Price, paid to the holy demands of God for the sinner; the Christian as one freed from just condemnation, restored to liberty and much more, and you will begin to understand something of its length and breadth, its height and depth.

Only we must never forget that purchase implies a new ownership. The redeemed must now serve as loving and devoted slaves the One who has redeemed them. It has been well said that "the conception of God as Creator is the foundation-stone of the Christian revelation, the conception of God as Redeemer is the soul and substance of it." The following outline of Redemption, the result of years of brooding upon the subject, is here given in the hope that it may be of service to the Lord's people.

I. The Author of It Redemption is by God. The utter hopelessness of man ever redeeming himself or others is shown in Psalms 49:6-8. Why? The price of redemption is far too costly for any to pay. But observe Psalms 49:15, and how triumphantly the Psalmist exclaims, "But God will redeem." He is our only hope. Note "Of God" in 1 Corinthians 1:30.

II. The Channel of It: Redemption is through Christ. Has Ephesians 1:7, "In whom we have Redemption," ever gripped you? There is no redemption apart from the Lord Jesus Christ. He is our Kinsman-Redeemer: "Any of his kin." "One of his brethren may redeem him" (Leviticus 25:25,Leviticus 25:48). See Galatians 4:5.

III. The Price of It: Redemption is by Blood. That the Blood of Christ is the price of Redemption is clearly taught in Ephesians 1:7; Colossians 1:14; and 1 Peter 1:18-19. "Redeemed. . . with the precious Blood of Christ."

IV. The Depository of It: Redemption is in Christ. That Redemption is in Christ is the teaching of the following Scriptures: Romans 3:24; Colossians 1:14. Redemption is in Him, and only there can it be secured. When I receive Him, I receive Redemption.

V. The Security of it: Redemption Includes the Holy Spirit. In this connection ponder over Ephesians 1:13-14; and Ephesians 4:30. By the Holy Spirit we are "Sealed unto the day of Redemption," and the same Holy Spirit is the "Earnest of our Redemption." In land purchased in ancient times, instead of 10% of the agreed amount of money deposited as legal bond, the vendor would stoop down, and taking a handful of the earth bought, hand it to the purchaser. In giving the Holy Spirit to us, we receive the Earnest of our full Redemption. Double security.

VI. The Operation of it: Redemption is by Power. "I will redeem you with a stretched out arm" (Exodus 6:6). "By strength of hand the Lord brought us out" (Exodus 13:14). The power of the Spirit, the Executive of God in this dispensation, sets the captive free on the ground of the Blood of Christ. "The law of the Spirit. . . hath made me free" (Romans 8:2). Turn to Hebrews 11:35, where the word rendered "deliverance" is the same word rendered elsewhere Redemption.

VII. The Scope of it: Redemption is for All. Read and study 1 Timothy 2:6. This clearly shows that there can be no Redemption apart from the Lord Jesus, for "He gave Himself a Ransom," and that Redemption is "for all." It is thus available for all, yet only enjoyed by those who receive Him.

VIII. The Amazing Breadth of it: Redemption is Inclusive. See what a wide sweep Redemption has, and note its blessings. What are we Redeemed from?

1. Curse of the Law. Galatians 3:13. Note how the Old Testament ends with a curse (Malachi 4:6), and the New Testament with a blessing (Revelation 22:21).

2. All Iniquity. Psalms 130:8. This is not only a promise for Israel, for Titus 2:14 shows it is a promise for to-day.

3. All Evil. Genesis 48:16. "Which hath redeemed me from all evil" is R.V.

4. Destruction. Psalms 103:4.

5. Death. Hosea 13:14.

6. Deceit. Psalms 72:14.

7. All Troubles. Psalms 25:22.

8. Loneliness, as illustrated in Ruth, for which see our next point.

9. The Body. Romans 8:23. In these Scriptures we see what we are Redeemed from; now note what we are Redeemed to: (1) The first conscious blessing is the forgiveness of sins (Colossians 1:14; Ephesians 1:7). (2) The next conscious blessing is freedom from sin's power as well as from its guilt, as is shown in point 6.

IX. The Enrichment of it: Redemption is by Union. This is the teaching of the Book of Ruth. Especially study Rth_4:4-11. To redeem the possessions of Ruth, meant the union of Boaz and Ruth in marriage, meaning good-bye to loneliness and penury. For she then shared the companionship of her husband.

X. The Period of it: Redemption is for Eternity. Hebrews 9:12 clearly shows that He secured an Eternal Redemption for us. Thus the fact with its privileges and blessings, extends beyond time, right through Eternity.

"Glory to Him, whose love unknown,

Touched man's abyss from Heaven's high throne;

Like some new star its radiance beamed,

A new song rose: Redeemed! Redeemed!" THE REMISSION OF SINS.

Christ's Death Makes the Remission of Sins Possible.

At the last supper our beloved Lord said, "For this is My Blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the Remission of sins" (Matthew 26:28), and in the letter to the Hebrews the Apostle writes, "Without shedding of Blood is no Remission" (Hebrews 9:22). Remission is certainly one of the great themes of the Bible. In the solemn and dangerous Covenanting days a Highland lassie was on her way to an unlawful Conventicle, when a party of Claverhouse's troopers surprised her. "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" inquired the Captain. To have frankly declared her destination almost certainly meant instant death. "Oh, my Brother has died: I am going to hear His will read, and claim my share," was her quick reply. "Good luck to you," said the military officer, as he made way for her to proceed on her journey. And she was quite right. He who is "not ashamed to call us brethren" (Hebrews 2:11) has died. Is not the Bible the Will? Why not claim our share, every time we read it! We would be richer and better Christians if we did.

Now in a Will that concerns us every single word receives careful study. Why do we not pay more attention to single Bible words? Only by so doing will we learn the riches of our inheritance, and be enabled by wondrous grace to appropriate and enjoy to the full the fruits of His death.

Remission is the translation of the Greek word Aphesis. Only it is rather curious to find that Aphesis is not always so rendered. Yea, it is more than curious, for it is really an important fact, and in the due noting of it is great wealth. That same Greek word is translated Remission nine times; Forgiveness six times; Deliverance once; Liberty once.

Take up an ordinary English dictionary, and you will be surprised to find the variety of meanings attached to that one word, all of which are significant. It is a word used by the tradesman, as remittance, payment for goods; by a Court of Law, discharging one from a penalty or a fine; by a Sovereign, meaning the pardoning of guilt and annulling the penalty; by a Physician, meaning to abate or relax a fever; by an Emancipator or Restorer, meaning to deliver or to re-instate. By putting all these meanings together we get a wonderful grasp of the deep, deep significance of Remission. Observe:

I. The Foundation and Ground of Remission. When a customer sends an order for goods by post, he usually sends with the order a Remittance in the form of a cheque or Money Order. The price of the Remission of sins was the Blood of Christ. When He poured out His life on the Cross He made the Remission of our sins possible. In fact, the Blood made possible every blessing found in the Divine inventory. Every blessing we are in the enjoyment of comes to us Blood tipped. Apart from that precious Blood there is no hope and no blessing. Next, note:

II. The Sovereignty and Grandeur of Remission. Wherein does pardon, forgiveness, and justification differ? We have in them three aspects of Divine truth, and three views of our God. In pardoning, we have God acting as Sovereign; in forgiving, we have Him acting as Father, in justifying, we have God acting as Judge.

Strictly speaking, a converted and born-again person should never ask God for pardon, but for forgiveness. On the other hand, an unregenerate sinner has no right to ask God for forgiveness, but for pardon. The correct order is first pardon, swiftly, oh, how swiftly, followed by justification; then, as a child of God, day by day we need His grace of forgiveness. We do mix up these mercies in our prayers, and the Lord graciously overrules. Remission certainly means pardon, and includes forgiveness. When the Moravian missionaries first went to the Eskimos, they did not find a word in their language for forgiveness, so they had to manufacture one, and here it is: Issumagijoujungneinermik. It is a formidable looking word, a puzzle to us as to pronunciation, and yet one of beautiful meaning in their language-"Not-being-able-to-think-about-it-any-more." Praise the Lord! Now notice:

III. The Reality and Enjoyment of Remission. In a Law Court, Remission means to discharge from a penalty or a fine. Is not this just the result of His pardoning and justifying grace? Verily so. It means the blessed consciousness and full enjoyment of the Lord's pardon and justification. It is not only His will that we should be thus treated, but that we should be instantly conscious of those great and beneficent transactions. It is very important that we should learn:

IV. The Breadth and Significance of Remission. Remission is a word of broad and deep significance. It means, indeed is translated deliverance in Luke 4:18. That means much more than deliverance from the guilt and punishment of sin, though, of course, it does mean that; it means "Deliverance to the captives," and "To set at liberty (another translation of the same Greek word) them that are bruised" (Luke 4:18). Let us never forget that the Blood of Christ is:

"Of sin the double cure,

Saving from its guilt and power." There we have it-the double cure! It is His will that we should not only be pardoned and justified, but liberated from the prison house, not only hear sweet words of pardon in our ears, but the fetters on our hands and feet struck off, and full liberty given.

There is full and blessed deliverance and liberty from all evil habits, from all sinful desires, from every evil thing. A wonderful liberty is our Blood-bought heritage. Get rid of the old sinful idea that the only way to be kept humble is to frequently fall into sin. The branch of the fruit tree that bends the lowest is the one that bears the most fruit. If we fully surrender ourselves to Him, and to His Holy Spirit, He will fill our lives to the full with the fruit of righteousness, and in us the fruit of the Spirit will mature and multiply.

Remission also means healing and enrichment. We have noticed that Remission is a medical word used for the abating of a fever. Our Heavenly Physician not only pardons and justifies, but also sanctifies. He not only has accomplished a great work for us, but begins and continues a good work within us. He is able to cope with the fevered condition that inbred sin produces.

Remission is used for re-instatement, or enrichment. All that we lost in Adam we gain, and much more indeed, in Christ. But to enjoy we must by faith appropriate.

Dr. Guthrie, in his autobiography, describes an old Scotch parishioner of Airbirlot, "who died as he lived, a curious mixture of benevolence and folly." The lawyer who drew his will, after writing down several legacies of five hundred pounds to one person, a thousand to another, and so on, at last said: "But, Mr.---, I don't believe you have all that money to leave." "Oh," was his reply, "I ken that as well as you; but I just want to show them my good will." But God's "Good will toward men" is no mere pretence of bestowing gifts. We need to ascertain what has been left us, then we can claim our share in the Name of the One who shed His precious Blood for us. A PERSONAL INTEREST.

The Imperative Need of a Personal Interest in the Death of Christ shown by an Ancient Census Custom.

A wise tradesman will hold an annual stock-taking in order that he might discover how his business is faring. Nations as well as individuals have their stock-taking, only the former call it by another name-a census. The taking of a census is an ancient custom. We know the Egyptians were adepts at it, for they were most methodical, and were born organisers. Yet the most ancient census on record was not in connection with the Egyptians, but Israel, and it took place more than three thousand years ago. This is referred to in Exodus 38:26, when Israel were numbered in the Wilderness. When led to the Saviour over half a century ago, the writer became conscious of a great hunger and thirst for the Word of God, and was never so happy as when reading and meditating upon it. Well does he remember coming for the first time across 1 Peter 1:18, and upon reading, "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold," he rather emphatically exclaimed, "Why of course not, no one has ever been redeemed from sin, death and outer darkness, by such corruptible things as silver and gold: it is the Blood that maketh atonement." But later, when he began to read and ponder on the Old Testament Scriptures, to his surprise and bewilderment he learned in Exodus 30:11-16 of such a provision ordained of God. Unlike any other nation, every time a census was taken, whether it was a national census, a roll call after a battle, the conclusion of a military campaign, or for any other national purpose, every male Israelite from twenty years and upwards had to pay a small silver coin called a half-shekel, in value about 1/21/2 or 1/41/2.

There were other differences to those of our time, as for example, the census was taken just when the leader or king ordered, was carried out by the military, and women and children were not counted. But the outstanding difference was the payment of this small silver coin, and to omit this exposed the individual to terrible danger. Its payment in Exodus 30 was stated to be (a) a ransom (Exodus 30:12); (b) a preservation (Exodus 30:12); and an atonement (Exodus 30:15).

Before considering the significance of this strange custom, let us trace the eleven numberings recorded in the Scriptures. Probably there were many more, but of those no records are preserved. The First Census took place four months after the Exodus (see Exodus 38:25-26). The second took place nine months later, or four weeks after the erection of the Tabernacle (Numbers 1:1-3; with Exodus 40:17-18). Very shortly afterwards the third census was taken, which was confined to the numbering of the firstborn in Israel and the tribe of Levi, following the decision to take the latter in the place of the former, and those over the number of Levi had to pay a special redemption price of fifteen shillings (Numbers 3:46-47). The Fourth Census took place thirty-eight years after in the plains of Moab (Num. 26). Shortly after this a fifth was taken (Numbers 31:49-54), but this was more in the nature of an army roll call after a dreadful military campaign against Moab in which the prophet Baalim was slain. To their utter amazement, though the slaughter amongst the enemy had been great, not a solitary Israelite warrior was missing, and as a special thank-offering for this miraculous preservation, they asked to be allowed to offer gold instead of silver, which request was granted. The sixth was the one ordered by King David and recorded in 2 Samuel 24, when 70,000 men died by the plague. Had David the king, Joab the commander-in-chief, and the men numbered forgotten to pay the half-shekel as atonement money? It may be, for there is no mention of it whatever. If that is so, have we not in that omission a sufficient reply to the challenge to the justice of God in punishing 70,000 for the sin of one man? None numbered were innocent; they shared the guilt by not giving the half-shekel. The Seventh Recorded Census was taken by Solomon, referred to in 2 Chronicles 2:17. Was this the completion of the census begun hut not ended by David and Joab? The eighth was taken on the return from Babylon (Ezra 2); the ninth at the birth of Christ (Luke 2:1). The tenth took place during His wonderful, life, and is referred to in Matthew 17:24-27, when He admitted Peter to share in the miraculous redemption, reminding us how he admits every believer, to a share in His redemption now, and afterwards the glory. The eleventh is referred to by Gamaliel in Acts 5:37. The proceeds of the first census was used in providing the silver blocks for the Tabernacle to rest upon, this symbolising that God's dwelling with man, and our oneness and communion with Him, all rest on the solid basis of Redemption. Afterwards the redemption money was used to support the services of the Sanctuary. But now, what was the mission or lessons designed by this remarkable custom? What special spiritual truths did it convey? What would the Lord have us to learn, or be reminded of, as the outcome of this meditation?

I. Personal Unworthiness. "They shall give every man a ransom for his soul unto the Lord" (Exodus 30:12), In being numbered amongst Israel, they naturally would dwell on the great honour thus conferred upon them, and might begin to swell with pride, imagining the honour was by merit and not of grace. This Divinely appointed ordinance was designed to keep them humble and lowly at His feet. The moment of the numbering was the very moment God designed for the payment of the half-shekel to remind each individual of his personal unworthiness, sinfulness, and need of redemption. Hence they would be saved from that great peril-spiritual pride.

It has been well said that there are four kinds of pride:

1. Pride of Place-proud of one's position or standing in the world of men, or in the Assembly. Yet, whence came the qualities that make for leadership, and whence that insight into His Word that makes our ministry profitable and helpful to others? Whatever we have we have received from God. Of ourselves we are nothing, yea, less than nothing.

2. Pride of Race-boastful of the accident of birth. But God hath made of one blood all nations of men, determined when we were to be born and where (Acts 17:26). Why forget these facts?

3. Pride of Face. Probably this is more common amongst the young, though the older folk are not always free. But we should remember that all beauty is from God, and that beauty of face is only skin deep, unless it be beauty of soul and spirit.

4. Pride of Grace. Beware of this. It is a most subtle form of pride. Fancy, to be proud of our humility, or standing in His grace and Kingdom! Amazing! If the Devil cannot trip us up in any other way, he will make his appeal in this direction, and frequently he succeeds. Oh, keep humble and lowly before Him! Ever keep in mind your utter dependence upon His grace and the merit of our Redeemer. If this ancient census custom has ceased because of the perfection of Christ's work on the Cross, the coming week by week to the Lord's table, so far as a remembrancer is concerned, has taken its place. As we eat the bread and drink the cup in remembrance of His broken body and shed Blood, we should say in our heart of hearts:

"My richest gain I count but loss.

And pour contempt on all my pride."

II. Personal Appropriation. "Every man" (Exodus 30:12). "Every one" (14). In the numbering, each Israelite came, as it were individually before God, and each one, irrespective of birth or position had to give the half-shekel as a ransom "for his soul." The rich and poor were of precisely the same value before God, and equally in need of redemptive grace Redemption therefore, is a great leveller. If all are not sinners alike, all are alike sinners and need a Saviour. Every man had to give for himself, not for another Every one must have a personal interest in Christ and His great redemption. This is important. There must be an individual appropriation of the Blood of Christ and of the merits of our Saviour.

III. Personal Thanksgiving. The offering of the half-shekel at a numbering after a battle or campaign would not only be of the nature of atonement and ransom money, but also of thanksgiving. For sparing mercy each one individually rendered thanks to God. So complete and perfect was the one offering of Christ on Calvary for sin that the work was then completed once for all. "It is finished," was His cry. It was a great triumphant proclamation.

We are not now required to make an offering to atone for our sin-that has been done once for all by our Saviour. Our first need is to accept the work done. But, after this act of appropriation and identification there should be the giving, first of ourselves, then of our treasure, as an act of thanksgiving for a ransom and atonement completed. As we meditate on the Cross, there should not only be a deepened sense of personal unworthiness, and a fresh realisation of the worthiness of Christ, and the perfection of His finished work, but the out-pouring of our thanks to Him in prayer, and the offering of money, for the support and furtherance of His work at home and abroad. Not, of course, to buy salvation, but to celebrate a salvation already received and enjoyed. THE FINISHED WORK.

The Glorious Completeness of the Work accomplished by Christ in and by His Death, and what is meant by "receiving double."

No one can deny the presence of difficult and puzzling statements in Holy Writ. Time and again in our reading of the Book we encounter them. How they challenge and arrest us. As we halt and wrestle with them, what a glow such healthful exercise bestows. Whilst the Holy Scriptures are so simple a child can understand them, there are portions so profound that the keenest intellect is baffled. Some erroneously conclude that the presence of the stiff intellectual problems in the Bible are so many proofs that the Book is not from above. Rightly understood, the contrary is really the case. Is it not perfectly natural to expect in the writings of the Master Mind, statements far beyond our grasp and thought, that challenge us at every turn? Verily that is so. But some of these difficulties arise through ignorance of old Eastern customs. As the years have inarched on, a then well-known custom behind a Scripture had lost its popularity, and falling into disuse, is now forgotten. In consequence of this, some of the Scripture preserved for us in the Divine Library becomes a kind of enigma. Isaiah 40:2 is an instance of this. "Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins." "Double" what? How puzzling this seems Receiving double! In plain English, this word means "twice as much." In Jewish Inheritance Law it meant an extra portion. But these meanings do not help us here. When we turn to the Commentaries this mystery deepens, for in the multitude of words counsel is darkened. The most popular explanation is positively and emphatically erroneous, and at variance with the rest of Divine revelation. In one of the recognised and authoritative expositions of Isaiah, a learned University Principal states: "It declares that Israel has suffered of punishment more than double enough to atone for her sins," and recognising that this was antagonistic to the usual view of Christian doctrine, defends his views by asserting that we must not square the teaching of the Bible by our views of Divine truth, but rather subject ourselves to the authority of the Word. Quite so. But one interpretation of a Scripture which violates other clear statements of Holy Writ cannot possibly be the correct one. If one thing is true, it is that sin always breeds suffering; but the sinner can never atone for his sin by his own suffering. The simple fact is that here we have an old Jewish bankruptcy custom. Insolvency was then considered a very serious matter indeed When it was quite patent to the clamorous creditors that a debtor was hopelessly insolvent, notification was given to a certain Jewish official, who, after inscribing on parchment the name, family, and tribe of the bankrupt, with the amount of the debt, would make sad procession to the gate of the city or town, and nail up the document. This was a trying exposure of the unfortunate debtor. Ecclesiastically excommunication followed the nailing up, and this was considered a dreadful punishment. If subsequently the debt was paid by or on behalf of the debtor, the official would make another journey to the gate, and reaching the offending document, and withdrawing the nail, would double it up so as to effectively hide its contents, and then drive the nail with all his might through the doubled sheet to the post. Then the towns-people would excitedly gather around to inspect it, proudly exclaiming: "So-and-so has received double for all his debts." To double up the document meant the cancelling and hiding of the sad record, and the withdrawal of the excommunication. Now the boycotted and ostracised individual was admitted to religious fellowship. Is not this gloriously suggestive of the blessedness and reality of the Divine forgiveness? When He forgives He forgets-doubles up-and all repentant ones who accept the Saviour enter into this blessed experience. The blessed fact is the doubling up has already taken place. For is not that the teaching of Colossians 2:14. "Having forgiven you all trespasses; blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to His cross." When you think of the Cross, what do you see there? Paul saw the record against him doubled up Every nail driven into the body of Christ was a nail doubling up the record standing against us. Have you ever heard the story of the good wife of a celebrated officer in the French army, who had offended the first Napoleon-offended him so sorely that it seemed probable he would have him executed? His loving wife ventured into the presence of the great soldier and began to plead her husband's cause. She thought that he had been unjustly accused, and she began to explain the matter and excuse her husband. Then it was that Napoleon rang his bell, sent a messenger to bring the proofs of this man's guilt, and handed the incriminating document to the pleading wife. She read it through her tears, and could plead no longer that he could be forgiven as a matter of justice; she owned his guilt, but pleaded now for mercy.

Then Napoleon, in a moment of compassion, said to her: "Madame, as you hold in your hands the proof of your husband's guilt, destroy it, and so disarm the severity of our martial law."

What do you think she did? Why, she walked straight away to the blazing furnace and thrust the documents into the very heart of the flames. She acted wisely. There could not have been any better thing to do in the matter, unless Napoleon himself had burnt the proofs. That is what Christ has done. He has taken our sin, the evidence of our guilt, and nailed it to the Cross, put it into the fire of forgiveness. It will never be found again; the sin has all been put away, obliterated, forgiven. The literal application of Isaiah 40:2, is of course to literal Israel. This will be fulfilled in the coming glorious days when Judah and Israel will be restored not only to their own land, but also to the Divine favour. The spiritual application is for our enjoyment here and now. And now we must note the blessings which follow an acceptance of this great and glorious fact. With this in view, let us note some occurrences of the word "double."

I. Deliverance from the Shame of Guilt. Note Isaiah 61:7 : "For your shame ye shall have double." Sin is a disgrace to any nation or individual. There is the shame of guilt. The awakened soul blushes at the revelation of inward and actual depravity. But when that soul turns in penitence to the Throne of Grace, pleading the merits of the precious Blood of Christ, pardon is granted, and indeed very much more of the Divine clemency and grace, and the one who, like the publican, was ashamed to draw near or look up (Luke 18:13) goes down to his house delivered from the shame of guilt, and justified.

II. Deliverance from the Shame of Bondage. "Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope; even to-day do I declare that I will render double unto thee" (Zechariah 9:12). This was a favourite text with the preachers of a past decade or two, but is seldom used these days. This has literal application to Jerusalem in the time of Jacob's trouble. But it has spiritual application here and now. "Prisoners"-we are not only by nature bearing a load of guilt, but in present bondage to sin. The Law is both prison and jailer (Galatians 3:23).

We not only are conscious of the shame of guilt, but also of the shame of defeat. But thank God, there is hope. If "prisoners," we are prisoners of "hope," and not of despair, for in Christ there is not only deliverance from sin's guilt, but also from sin's power. Thus He saves from the shame of defeat.

III. Deliverance from the Shame of Insolvency. This is behind Isaiah 40:2. Ours is a far worse debt than the one in Matthew 18:24 (£67,500,000). We are hopelessly insolvent. But we are frankly and freely forgiven for the sake of One who paid it all. Then all the resources of God in Christ are at our disposal. Thus, by grace now in the enjoyment of the heavenly riches, we are able to live the life we ought to live. See the play upon the word "double" in Isaiah 61:7. In Christ we receive more than Adam ever lost.

IV. Deliverance from Heart-Grief. "Comfort ye" (Isaiah 40:2). No wonder there is a great change of tone between Isaiah 1 to 39 and 40 to 66. For sin pardoned, blotted out, and all the riches of Christ at our disposal, sadness goes and comfort arrives. Debt shut the Jew out from taking any part in the religious festivities. He was cut off. But grace admits us into the family and fellowship of God.

ALWAYS WHITE.

The Enjoyment in our own Individual Experience of Some of the Blessed Fruits of the Death of Christ.

The brightening of the walls of our homes by artistically illuminated and tastefully produced texts of Scripture is both good for its inhabitants and for visitors. We cannot be reminded too often of God's Word. Moreover, it is quite Scriptural (Deuteronomy 6:9, Deuteronomy 11:20), and is one method of confessing our faith in Christ and His Book.

Spending a week-end in Gospel ministry away from home, and being shown to my room, over the wash-stand a card was seen with these words "Let thy garments be always white." In the dim light of evening, it was thought to be only a motto, but in the better light of morning, it was discovered to be an inspired utterance from Ecclesiastes 9:8. It had conveyed one simple yet important lesson, the same Dr. F. B. Meyer had in mind when he remarked to one who had become a missionary: "It is not cleverness but cleanliness that really matters." But what did this simple message convey to an Eastern mind when it was first penned, and afterwards? By research, one discovered it would convey one or all of five distinct messages.

I. Divine Acquittal. "Always white" means, live daily in the enjoyment of the Divine acquittal, for that would be the first lesson it would convey. When a Jewish priest was charged with a crime and brought before the great Sanhedrim, if found guilty he left the court dressed in black, if declared innocent he left the court dressed in white. White, therefore, was the colour of acquittal. This was also the case in ancient Persia. In relation to God and His justifying mercy, here is the marvel and miracle of grace-only the guilty, who own up to their guilt and unworthiness, and show repentance toward God and faith toward the Lord Jesus Christ, are acquitted, justified. Marvellous grace! Guilty, yet acquitted. And the proof of my acquittal is the wearing of the white robe, the white garment of imputed righteousness. So far as purity is concerned, the natural man is naked; so far as righteousness is concerned, clothed with filthy rags. But what are those filthy rags? Not his drunkenness, impurity, iniquity, but his righteousness. That is what our best things are in God's sight. Then what must our evil things be! The white robe of innocence has gone for ever, but there is another robe-the robe of righteousness imputed. All believers recognise this glorious Gospel fact. But do we constantly enjoy our justification? Remember, the blessed fruits of Christ's atoning death are for the enjoyment as well as possession of believers. "Let thy garments be always white"-live constantly in the enjoyment of the Divine pardon and justification. A devoted servant of the Lord, the late Sir Arthur Blackwood, wrote that he had been living a whole week on two words, "Justified freely." Some of God's dear children do not seem to enjoy their salvation. The joy in salvation can be restored by daily remembrance and meditation on God's justifying mercy.

II. The Life of Victory. "Always white" means, live daily the life of victory, which should follow our justification by faith, as another result of Christ's death, and is the second message this simple admonition conveys, for white in ancient Greece and Rome was the colour of victory. It is not significant of triumph now. The white flag is the symbol of submission, and the white feather is the badge of cowardice. But in Solomon's day it was the symbol of victory. In the official state receptions to military conquerors the hero entered the city amidst the plaudits of the throng, dressed in white. Hence the significance of Revelation 3:5 : "He that overcometh the same shall be clothed in white raiment."

Precisely! "I felt so beautifully saved this morning, till the clothes-line broke," mournfully exclaimed a weeping woman," and since then I've not felt the least bit saved." Poor soul. She had not been long on the Lord's side. In the moment of testing, when a whole morning's labour was lost, her old habits of passion and bad language overcame her. She was assured that in Christ there was not only forgiveness, but deliverance from the chain of evil habit, and getting low before the Lord, and confessing her sin and failure, she went on her happy way dressed in white.

Let thy garments be always those of a conqueror. Yea, through Him we may become "more than conquerors" (Romans 8:37).

III. The Life of Purity. "Always white" certainly means, live daily the all white life, the life of purity, because of His Cross, for white is the symbol of purity in every language, and in every land. In Canada, the highest compliment that can be paid to any is, "He's white," by which is meant, he is genuine, upright, open, honest, brave, courageous, pure, one who would not do a mean thing to save his life. This is not the garb of innocence, but of those who have by grace overcome their sins. He can keep us sweet and pure wherever we dwell, and whatever our occupation.

IV. The Life of Joy. "Always white" means, live daily the life of joy, for white was the Jewish festive garb. Three times a year every male of twelve years old and upward had to appear before God in Jerusalem dressed in white. White is the colour which expresses joy. There is something gladsome in the light. It summons forth the music of the birds, and awakens the world of nature. Sometimes, like a wizard, it charms away the sadness and depression of the night. "Let thy garments be always white." This is an appeal for brightness and cheerfulness. We are not to go through life robed in sack-cloth or suit of mourning, but clothed with light, for if we are living in communion with Him, every day will be a festive day.

V. The Life of Service. "Always white" means, live daily the life of service, for white was the livery of heavenly service. It was the garb without which service in the Tabernacle and Temple by priests and Levites was not allowed. It is the garb which the angels wear. Live to self, you live in vain. Live for others, you taste the sweets of life. Pray note the progression of truth in the order of our thoughts. Before I can enjoy victory I must receive and rejoice in God's justifying mercy, then with justification and daily victory the life of purity and joy will be mine. Then I shall be fitted, experimentally, for service. But how is this possible in this world of sin? How difficult it is to keep things white in our sooty atmosphere. There is an absent note in Solomon's exhortation. He says, "Let your garments be always white," but does not explain how this can be brought about. It seems humanly speaking utterly impossible. But as we turn over the pages of our Bibles we discover that secret. In Revelation 7:13-14 we learn how they can be made white: "Washed their robes, and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb." Then in Revelation 3:4, how they can be kept white: "They shall walk with Me in white." This must be taken not merely as the reward of purity, but the cause of purity. "Walking with Me, they shall walk in white."

Finally, Solomon not only urged, "Let thy garments be always white," but added, "and let thy head lack no ointment." Surely the anointing and filling with the Holy Spirit is meant; and that is the pledge and secret of whiteness. In one of our large cities a little waif was rescued and taken to a home. After much labour he was made clean and clothed with a lovely velvet suit. Never had he known the delights of such a suit before. How proud he was, and how much he admired himself. By and bye bedtime came when, to his consternation and regret he was undressed. Then the matron attempted to teach him his first prayer, asking him to repeat the well-known children's prayer: "Now I lay me down to sleep," etc. Sleepily he murmured:

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my clothes to keep." And though they attempted to correct and explain, he again repeated his request as formerly. Can we not offer intelligently the same prayer? He can keep them white.

"THE CARDINAL FEATURE OF YOUR FAITH"

(1 Corinthians 15:1-8, Way's Rendering).

This is one of the sublimest chapters in Scripture. It is the great Hymn of Immortality and Life. In 1 Corinthians 15:1-19 Paul epitomises the proofs of our Lord's Resurrection, and in 1 Corinthians 15:20-30 and onward he bursts into a glorious wealth of thought.

1. Cardinal Fact. Way's rendering is as title. Cardinal is a strong word.

2. Historical Fact. The cardinal fact is historical. Christianity is based on historical facts, and not human surmisings.

3. Personal Fact. This cardinal fact is based on a person-Christ. No other fact is so.

4. Few Facts. There is no more concise statement of the central facts of the Gospel in human language than this. Christ's death (the Greek preposition translated "for" can only mean "on account of"). Our sins were the impelling cause of His death. Christ's burial and resurrection. Just three facts.

Gospel Studies

WITH JESUS AT BETHLEHEM. The story of the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem is an old and familiar one. Yet we can never say the last word on it. The birth of our Lord Jesus into the world was unique in the history of the race. We begin our existence at our birth; He lived from all Eternity-before the worlds were He was. He was the God-Man. Not God indwelling a man; not a man deified; but God and man, combining in one Personality those two natures. He had a human mother, but not a human father. He was conceived of the Holy Ghost, and born of the Virgin Mary.

Study the genealogical tables in the Gospels. A Mohammedan in Southern India was first drawn to faith in Jesus Christ by reading the genealogy in Matthew. Such a procession, he thought, must lead up to a mighty name; and he approached with reverence the story of the Nativity.

What is the genealogical list in Matthew, but the proof of the Messiah's connection with Abraham and David, showing Him to be the true and final successor to the Throne of the Davidic kingdom. The late David Baron pointed out that "This is an indisputable fact, that the Lord Jesus Christ of Nazareth is the last in Jewish history whose descent from the Royal line can now be established by sufficiently authentic proof." At the destruction of the second Temple, all the national genealogical records perished; and, apart from a few worthless traditions, there is nothing that any Jew now on the face of the earth can appeal to to prove even from which tribe, not to say from which family he springs. There is neither a tribe of Judah, nor a separate Davidic family now existing, and yet the true King of Israel must prove himself a son of David. The only genealogical records preserved are those proving our Lord and Saviour's descent from David, and they are preserved in the New Testament.

It seems quite clear that the Lord Jesus was born in His ancestral home. This Inn was known in the days of Jeremiah as the Inn of Chimham (see R.V., margin). Chimham was Barzillai's son (Jeremiah 41:17), whom David honoured for his father's sake (see 2 Samuel 19:37-40), and, as suggested by the late Dr. Schofield of London, gave him his ancestral home near Bethlehem (the house of Boaz and Ruth), who, on his death, made it an Inn. To give a Khan or Inn to a town then was equivalent to giving a park or a hospital now.

I. The Toilers Seeking Jesus (Luke 2). The shepherds represent the working class-the toilers. See how our Lord honours the lowly and the humble. A lowly maid was selected to be the mother of Jesus; the lowly town of Bethlehem was selected to be the place of His birth; and working men were honoured by receiving first the glad and joyous news.

1. They were in the Dark, and so are we, if we have not yet taken the all-important step to Christ. Not material darkness, as was theirs, but spiritual darkness, the darkness of sin and doubt.

2. They Got into the Light, a light from above that fell upon them, and so may we, and we most certainly will if we come to the One who has proclaimed Himself to be the Light of the World. It was a glorious light that shone about them.

3. They were Full of Fear, for light from Heaven always produces fear in the heart of the unconverted. Fear in the heart is one proof that light from Heaven has been given, and is the result of guilt of sin.

4. They Heard the Gospel, and the Gospel was preached by angels, a rare privilege for them. The angel declared Good Tidings, for unto "you is born... a Saviour." Not "unto us"-for there is no Saviour for the fallen angels.

5. They Obeyed the Gospel, for they determined to see for themselves, and the Gospel is to be obeyed as well as to be believed.

6. They Found the Saviour, as all earnest and genuine seekers do.

7. They Rejoiced Greatly, as all they who find the Saviour do, and they glorified God.

II. The Thinkers Seeking Jesus (Matthew 2:2). The fact that not only representative toilers sought Jesus, but representative thinkers did likewise is impressive. The greatest thinkers the world has ever seen have been humble followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Bible is a Book of Wisdom, and points out the true source of all wisdom. Ponder over this statement: "The testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." There we find how we may become wise men and women.

Note a few facts about these wise men showing their wisdom.

1. They were in a Far Country, and so are we, if we have not yet come to Him. They must have been in a far country, for they came from the East.

2. They Saw God's Messenger, and just where they were, too, and that was a sign of real wisdom. There are some folk who see nothing, going through the world with either eyes closed or unobservant. "We have seen His star in the east." Some, like the man with the muck rake do not see because they do not look up. Remembering Balaam's prophecy (Numbers 24:17), they took great heed, recognising in the Star God's messenger. The Holy Spirit is God's Star to-day, and He is ever seeking to draw the attention of sinners to the Lord Jesus. He is seeking to draw us to the only One who can do helpless sinners good.

3. They Started Forth to Find and Worship Jesus. Some see, yet never come. The purpose of the star was not to amuse, but to lead. They had a long journey to make, but we have not far to go to see and find the Saviour. We find not a weak babe, but a strong One mighty to save.

4. They Seem to have Made a Mistake, taking their eyes off the star and leaning too much on their own reasoning. Surely, thought they, that the Great One would be born in the capital; so they took their eyes off the star, following human reasoning, and came to Jerusalem. See the disastrous results that followed-the massacre of the innocents at Bethlehem. Far better to keep our eyes on the Heavenly messenger, and to be guided by the Lord.

5. Ah, soon they Found Jesus, as all real seekers do, and what satisfaction that find brought to their hearts and lives.

6. Then they Worshipped, presenting their costly gifts, as all should act who are the found ones of the Lord. Yet, alas, so many take all the Lord Jesus has to give, but forget to give as a thankoffering, first themselves, then to consecrate all they have to the One who has done so much for them.

COME.

One of the sweetest words in the Bible. "O words of words the sweetest." The first "Come" in the Bible is one of salvation (Genesis 7:1. Note "Come," not "Go!" A proof the Lord Himself was in the Ark), as is also the last (Revelation 22:17).

I. What Must we Come For?

1. Rest-"Come, and I will give you rest," Matthew 11:28 2. Knowledge-"Come and see," John 1:39 3. Satisfaction-"Come unto Me and drink," John 7:37 4. Discipleship-"Come and follow Me," Mark 10:21 5. Victory-"Come, put your feet upon the necks," Joshua 10:24 6. Fellowship-"Come and dine," John 21:12 7. Refreshment-"Come and rest a while," Mark 6:31 8. Inheritance-"Come and inherit," Matthew 25:34

II. How Must We Come? We must come just as we are, without any attempt to make ourselves presentable, for the very good reason that we are too far gone, and only He can do anything with us, and then He will make us new creatures-a new creation-in Jesus Christ.

"Just as I am, without one plea.

But that Thy Blood was shed for me.

And that Thou bidst me come to Thee;

Oh, Lamb of God, I come!"

III. When Must We Come? "One hour before you die?" said some one. Well, when will that be? You cannot say, so you had better come now. In fact, those are the instructions: "Come now," found over and over again in the dear old Book. WITH JESUS AT THE RIVER JORDAN.

The Significance of Christ's Baptism.

"Thus it becometh us" (Matthew 3:15).

Introduction.

"Becoming." That is a word often on our lips and in our thoughts. It is one of the tests of life. It decides matters concerning behaviour and dress. The answer to "Does it become me?" decides choice of material and style of dress, and, "It is most unbecoming of you" settles for us language and conduct. The Lord Jesus makes this the one reason why John should baptise Him. And we, too, are included, for He said, "Thus it becometh us," not me.

400 Years' Silence. For four hundred years prophecy had been silent. At last the silence was broken, and a voice was heard in the land speaking like those of old. It was the voice of one who was clad in the hairy cloak and leather girdle of the old prophets.

Rough Speech. "And," as old Bishop Hall put it, "his raiment was rough, so was his tongue; and if his food was wild honey, his speech was stinging locusts."

"Who" (Matthew 3:7). This phrase arrested our attention a while ago. As there was absence of any marks of true penitence, John asked under whose preaching they had been moved to ask repentance.

Character of his Preaching.

1. Spoke Plainly about Sin. a. Taught absolute need of repentance. b. Repentance must be proved by works. c. Warned men not to rest on outward privileges.

2. Spoke Plainly about the Lord Jesus. a. That He was mightier than he b. He was only slave. Jesus was the King. c. He baptised only with water, whereas the Lord would baptise with the Spirit.

3. Spoke Plainly of Holy Spirit. a. Such a thing as baptism of Spirit. b. Special offer of Lord Jesus to baptise thus in Spirit.

4. Spoke Plainly about Awful Danger of Impenitent. a. Told them there was a wrath to come. b. He preached of the unquenchable fire.

5. Spoke Plainly about the Safety of Believers. He taught there was a "garner" for all who were Christ's wheat.

John's Reluctance.

1. Had John ever seen the Lord? We know not.

2. He felt abashed at His presence. He noted in His face a majesty, purity, and peace, making him feel his unworthiness.

Why Did the Lord Jesus Seek Baptism?

1. It is a difficult question.

2. John's baptism was of repentance-but He was spotless!

3. One explanation is that, at this age, Levites were bathed and anointed and admitted to service.

4. We want to give four reasons why it was becoming of our Saviour to be baptised.

I. Serious Interest. It betokened a serious interest in this national religious movement, and surely that was becoming. "Then cometh Jesus from Galilee." In Carpenter's Shop. Whilst the Lord was working in the Nazareth workshop, news reached His village of the appearance of John, and the multitudes from all parts flocked to hear him. It was the beginning of a national religious movement. He showed sufficient interest to travel 24 miles to hear John.

Indifference.

1. We do not doubt that there were thousands who showed not the least interest in this movement.

2. It is so to-day-and that fact is a puzzle to us.

3. Surely a movement that has existed so long and has wrought such marvellous changes is worthy of a little serious interest.

Unbecoming. We would say to the thousands who have not the slightest interest in the Christian religion that, to say the least, such an attitude is most unbecoming.

Becoming Serious. It was not uncommon years ago to call conversion "becoming serious." And judging from the faces of some of its professors, it appeared to be a very serious matter indeed. It ought to be "becoming joyful." Yes, but you must become serious before becoming joyful. In one sense all unsaved are often sad enough.

II. Humility. His coming to be baptised of John was a proof and fruit of humility, and surely humility is becoming. "Then cometh Jesus to be baptised of him."

Usual. When a King is to be baptised a minister is sent for. But He did not stand on His dignity and send for John. He came. Usually when a King is to be baptised, a prelate or pontiff must officiate-some high dignitary at any rate. But He came to be baptised of this lowly prophet-preacher.

Humility. Humility of heart and mind will betray itself. And humility is most becoming of us.

III. Identification. It was an act of identification with His people, and surely that was most becoming of Him.

Why? It is a sinners' ordinance-but He was no sinner!

Lost His Character.

1. Have you ever thought of this, that our Lord lost His character by this act?

2. Only sinners came to the waters of baptism.

3. Note: a. He was numbered with the transgressors by His baptism. b. It was an act by which He consented to take His place among sinners. c. It was an act of identification with the people. d. It was, in figure, what He would actually do for them by and bye-die.

IV. Submission. It was His submission and obedience to a Divinely appointed ordinance, and surely that act was most becoming. His first public act is one of obedience to the Voice of God as in the rite of baptism.

Don't Go Too Far. There is a danger of some of us making too little because others make too much of ordinances.

Only Two Sacraments. Baptism and the Lord's Supper. Our Duty. Our becoming duty is to observe them.

V. Glorious Result.

1. Opened Heaven. This suggests, or rather, proves, the perfection of the thirty years He had lived at Nazareth.

2. Holy Spirit. First time Trinity clearly made known.

3. Voice. Proclaiming His love to His Son. WITH JESUS IN THE WILDERNESS.

The Temptation (Mark 1:12-13).

Introduction.

Rutherford. Old Samuel Rutherford, who knew the heart of man as few do, wrote in one of his letters: "If we knew ourselves well, to want temptation is the greatest temptation of all."

General.

1. Temptation is probably the most familiar experience of the Christian.

2. If we call the Christian life a life of joy and peace many will tell you they do not know it as such.

3. But speak of it as a life of temptation, and every regenerate soul will readily admit that such is the case.

Comfort. Seeing the experience of temptation is universal, how blessed it is to learn that:

1. He was tempted in all points like as we are.

2. That "He suffered, being tempted"-and to be tempted really meant suffering to Him as it does us.

3. That, seeing "He suffered, being tempted. He is able to succour them that are tempted. Not Sin.

1. It is well for us to note the distinction between sin and temptation.

2. It is not a sin to be tempted.

3. Sin lies in parleying and playing with temptation (as a cat plays with a mouse).

Count it Joy.

1. James says, "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations."

2. Nothing to be doleful about. With Jesus.

1. We are to accompany the Lord Jesus into the wilderness.

2. We have frequently to go into the wilderness to be tempted of the Devil, but we are safe if with Him.

3. And His presence makes the wilderness and the solitary place become glad, and the desert blossom as the rose.

Deep and Mysterious.

1. It is well to note the deep significance of the conflict.

2. Jesus was there in the wilderness as our representative.

3. Milton finishes his "Paradise Regained" at this point.

4. The first Adam stood as the head of the race and falling, dragged the race down with him. The last Adam stood as the Head of the new race, and, being victorious, lifted that race with Him, or made the lifting possible.

Points of Difference.

1. The Devil challenged the first Adam, the last Adam challenged the Devil.

2. The Devil ruined the first Adam, the second Adam spoiled the Devil.

3. The first conflict took place in a Paradise, the second in a Wilderness.

After Baptism.

1. The three Evangelists all state that the conflict followed immediately after the season of blessing after baptism.

2. Learn: a. No spiritual privileges saves us from fiery trials. b. The hour of blessing is often the hour of peril.

I. The Peril of Materialism. The first temptation-Stones into bread.

1. Its Application to Jesus. a. It was a Blow to His Sonship. "If." Satan likes to throw the "if" of doubt into our mind respecting our sonship. b. It was a Blow at His Life of Dependence.

(1) It was a temptation to self-reliance.

(2) Temptation to abandon the life of dependence the Father required of Him. c. It was a Blow at His Life of Dependent Service. It was a temptation to use the power to work miracles for an inferior purpose. Jesus always refused to work miracles to please the vulgar curiosity of the people. d. It was a Temptation to Think of the bodies of the People before or even instead of the Souls. The peril of modern social movements is just this-as all keen observers can see. This age thinks more of boots or clogs for bare feet, dinners for empty stomachs, weeks at seaside, than salvation of soul. Let that come first, and all the rest can follow. e. It was a Temptation to Materialism.

2. Its Application to Us. This temptation comes to us in various forms. a. The temptation to place body and its needs first (Devil's order is "Bread, trust, worship." God, "Trust, worship, bread"), then soul. b. To satisfy a legitimate craving of the body in an illegitimate way. c. What I need bother my head about is bread for the body, and never trouble about the soul.

Here Adam and Eve Fell.

1. But Jesus conquered.

2. He conquered by the Word.

Mark's Account.

1. How much Mark compresses into small space.

2. He is a master in the art of concentration and condensing.

3. Learn- a. The driving as well as wooing power of the Spirit. b. The forty days were all days of temptation. c. Probably the foe was invisible during the forty days and temptations were within. d. It was at the end of forty days that Satan came boldly out in visible form, and presented temptation without. e. Wild beasts were there, and were with Him. These creatures recognised His authority and lost their ferocity- a picture of the Millennial Day, when the lion and the lamb shall lie down together. f. The angels ministered unto Him. He who would not tempt God by working miracles at the Devil's bidding to procure bread, or by throwing Himself down, to see if angels should come and bear Him up from harm, now sees angels come and bring Him bread in the desert.

II. The Peril of Sensationalism. The Second Temptation-Leap from Pinnacle of the Temple.

Subtlety.

1. You trust in God? Very well, prove your trust by throwing yourself down from the pinnacle of the Temple.

2. You quote Scripture. I will also give you one to show that God will keep you.

Analysis.

1. It does appear that such an act would have been an act of faith.

2. But on closer examination we think you will see it would have been a clear proof of lack of trust.

3. It would have been an experiment.

"When we doubt a person we make experiments to discover how far they are to be trusted."

Application to Jesus.

1. It was the popular belief that their Messiah would appear suddenly, and in some marvellous way, as, for instance, a leap from the Temple roof into the midst of the crowd below.

2. It was a temptation to gratify the vulgar desire for wonders.

3. It was a temptation to dazzle the people.

4. To appeal to the senses by, in our day, awesome buildings, ritual, music.

Application to Us.

1. This temptation comes to us when he tries to show us we must show our trust by doing something extraordinary.

2. No; we must show our trust by doing the ordinary things of life in an extraordinary way.

III. The Worship of Satan. The Third Temptation-Worship Satan. There must be no compromise with evil.

Quick Panorama.

1. Luke 4:5 tells us Christ saw the vision in a moment of time.

2. He gave the Lord a quick panoramic view of the kingdoms of the world.

Observe.

1. Satan claims some right to the kingdoms of the world, and our Lord acknowledged that claim by later calling him Prince of this World.

2. In Psalms 2:8-9, God expects Jesus to ask of Him the world. But the temptation here was to ask of the Devil. In view of Psalms 2:8, how impressive is Satan's temptation.

Application to Jesus. It was temptation:

1. To secure the Kingdom without the Cross.

2. To take a short and easy way to possession.

3. To take the help of the Devil. Application to Us. This temptation comes to us when we are tempted to live without the Cross.

Secret of Victory.

1. Be born of the Spirit. Well begun is half done.

2. Be filled with the Spirit. This is our privilege.

3. Be assured of your Sonship. Never doubt your standing in Christ.

4. Be acquainted with the Word. WITH JESUS AT A MARRIAGE.

The Marriage at Cana.

"Thou hast kept the good wine until now" (John 2:10).

Introduction.

Lamp in a Sepulchre. Someone has spoken of religion as a "lamp burning dimly in a sepulchre." It sounds poetical, and has an element of truth in it. If it is a lamp in a sepulchre, it burns brightly, not dimly. But the thought behind the sentence is utterly wrong, viz., that we only need the Saviour in our times of sorrow, and as a preparation for the future. Many, alas, act on that thought, and never think of the Lord until face to face with death or sorrow.

Times of Gladness. The subject before us dispels that thought. Here we find the Lord present at a marriage feast. He took a journey of 43 miles (from Bethabara to Cana) to attend. After all, experience teaches us that it is times of gladness which especially need such a sanctifying presence. Then, it is mean to expect the Lord to share with us life's sorrows, and be debarred from its joys.

Jesus not Out of Place at a Marriage. And don't for a moment think He was out of place. You are out of place anywhere if He is not with you. He had no monkish idea of the unholiness of marriage. Marriage is a solemn and Divine institution. And the presence of Jesus proclaims its sanctity.

Jesus was there. Probably the first Christian wedding the world has seen. How we linger over Mark 1:2. If the Lord Jesus was present at your marriage you will never write as one did: "Oh! how many torments lie in the small circle of a wedding ring." It is a Christless wedding that leads to such a woeful testimony.

Shortage. An illustration of the failure of all this world's joys. Shortage, yes, even with Jesus present. Probably He and His disciples were the cause of the supplies running out, more coming to the feast than they had made provision for. But the difficulty was soon mastered. All will be well if He is there.

Mary's Thoughtfulness. It is a simple and homely act of forethought to save her neighbours from shame and confusion. She might have taken no notice, or said, "It is no business of mine," or gloried in the bad management of the parties.

Why Turn to Jesus? Why did Mary turn and tell Jesus of the need? It was her regular habit to do this. She had ever been accustomed to turn to Him in all her difficulties, and certainly she never consulted Him in vain.

Gospel According to the Blessed Virgin. Said a friend to a Romanist: "Have you ever heard of the Gospel of the Blessed Virgin?" And it is: "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."

Servants' Obedience. Fail not to notice the ready obedience of the servants. And their faith, too. Each held about 20 gallons-hence 120 gallons in all.

Ruler's Testimony.

1st. That this was a sober party, for they could distinguish between the two kinds of wine.

2nd. a. It was a high commendation of His work. b. But this is invariably His rule of working. c. The world gives its best first, and then it is not lasting, for "earth's pleasures come in cups, not in fountains," and the supply is limited and soon exhausted. d. Not so Christ. With Him it is always getting better.

I. In Creation the Best came Last.

1. What a sad condition we see in the beginning! Read again Genesis 1.

2. The first step to improvement was calling forth of light.

3. That is to say, a fuller revelation of the ruin.

4. Note the successive stages.

5. At last man, the crowning work of Creation, appears.

6. The best came last.

II. In Revelation the Best came Last.

1. Through sin came revelation of Gospel truth, yet in stages.

2. How dim, how obscure, how incomplete, for generations.

3. But it was the dawn. Gradually the sun rises higher and higher, until the full blaze and glory of God was seen in the face of Jesus Christ. The best then came, and it was the last.

III. In Christ's Life the Best comes Last.

1. "Man of Sorrows," "acquainted with grief."

2. Misunderstood by His own-hated by many.

3. The Cross with all its agony and shame.

4. But there came the Resurrection and the Ascension.

5. Best has still to come, when He comes for His own, and ushers in the Golden Age.

IV. In your Life, oh Worldling, the Best May Come Last.

1. What you may be tasting of life might seem all right.

2. But it is proof you haven't tasted Christ's wine.

3. These both thought theirs best until they tasted Christ's.

4. Then, what an awful outlook you have-Hell gaping wide to receive you.

5. Oh, worldling, thou art receiving the good things now, and thy evil things will come last.

6. It can be different, and it will be if you turn to Him.

V. In Christian Experience the Best ought to come Last.

1. The bitterness of repentance is followed by sweetness of forgiveness.

2. The sadness of conviction is followed by gladness of conversion.

3. And it ought to be ever improving.

4. Sad to say, in many experiences it is not so.

5. "Oh that I was as in days past," they exclaim.

6. Where is the blessedness I knew when first I saw the Lord?

7. But this should not be. Get low before Him and He will put things right.

VI. In our Christian Life the Best will come Last.

1. Cross-bearing is followed by Crown-wearing.

2. Disowned by the world, we shall be owned by the Lord before the assembled hosts of the Universe.

3. For our present weary pilgrimage will come eternal settlement in the promised land. WITH JESUS AT DIVINE SERVICE.

Jesus in the Synagogue.

"He came to Nazareth where He had been brought up, and, as. His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day" (Luke 4:16).

Introduction. A Hard Church to Join.

1. A negro had applied repeatedly for membership to St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Burlington, United States.

2. Bishop Hall was not satisfied that the negro's state of soul justified admission, so he kept delaying the matter.

3. At last he advised the applicant to pray that his spiritual condition might improve.

4. After doing so, he made a new application. The Bishop said to him: "Well, Erastus, have you prayed as I told you to?" "Yes, indeedy suh; I done prayed an' I done told de Lawd I wants to jine St. Paul's Church, an' de Lawd He says to me: 'Good luck, Rastus; I been trying to jine dat Church fo' twenty years mahse'f.' There is something more than humour, it seems to us, in this anecdote. It will bear thinking over.

Outside Many Churches.

1. That reply reminds us of the possibility of the Lord Jesus being outside the Churches.

2. That is the teaching of Revelation 3:20. "Behold I stand," etc.

3. And consequently there is lifelessness and barrenness.

4. There are some places of worship where all there is of the presence of God is what you take yourself.

Problems that Arise Thereon.

1. And that fact raises many problems.

2. What must I do when I go away on holiday, or remove, and cannot find a congregation or minister that come up to my ideal?

3. Our subject will be a help to us in the solving of this problem.

Sometimes we Can go to Synagogue to Find Him.

1. That was not so in case of crowd in John 6.

2. After miracle of feeding 5000, etc., Jesus and disciples crossed the lake.

3. People hunted and at last found Jesus.

4. It would seem by John 6:25 they found Him on seashore.

5. But by John 6:59 we find they found Him and heard His discourse on Bread of Life in the Synagogue.

6. Do we not sometimes lose the Lord Jesus, or the consciousness of His presence, like Joseph and Mary, in the crowd (Luke 2:44).

7. Thank God, like them, we may find Him in the sanctuary (Luke 2:46).

How Blessed to Take Him with Us. Ah, there is sure to be blessing then. This is the ideal. The Synagogue is an Interesting Subject.

1. Much might be said of it.

2. Its origin is lost in antiquity.

3. It came into common use in time of Babylonian Captivity.

4. Reading of the Scriptures a very important part of its worship.

5. Here is the significance of this study: "It was from the Synagogue, and not the Temple, that the early Christian Church took her constitution, and in the main, her forms of worship. The Anglo-Catholic Revival seeks to take from the Temple."

I. Our Lord had a Regular Habit of Going to the Synagogue on the Sabbath Day. As His Custom Was.

1. This does not refer to a habit cultivated since He entered upon His public ministry.

2. But it was His invariable custom from infancy.

Good Habits.

1. It is important to form good habits.

2. They play an important part in our lives.

How He Viewed.

1. Perhaps he first viewed the Synagogue behind the trellis division in the gallery with His mother.

2. Then by and bye with Joseph in the men's part.

II. This was His Habit when Away from Home as well as when at Home.

1. It is well to emphasize this point.

2. Before the statement in John 6:16 you have John 6:15.

3. Many will, of course, attend the Synagogue in their native place.

4. But how different when they go farther afield, where they are not known.

III. He did not Attend simply Because He had been Asked to do Something.

1. He simply attended as an ordinary inhabitant of Nazareth.

2. It seems quite clear He had never taught-hence their astonishment at the wisdom betrayed by His discourse: "They were astonished, and said, Whence hath this Man this wisdom" (Matthew 13:54).

3. Perhaps He had been Reader at times, but never expounder.

IV. He Attended Regularly though He Knew Far More than man could ever Teach Him.

1. This thought is worth careful pondering.

2. We fancy we ought not to attend a place of worship unless we are sure we shall learn something, and hear something fresh.

3. That was not so with the Lord Jesus.

4. In Him were hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

V. He Attended Regularly although He Knew there were Hypocrites and Self-seekers also Attending.

1. Undoubtedly He had met with such in His Synagogue worship.

2. Read Matthew 6:12; Matthew 6:5; and Matthew 23:6.

3. How He hated all such hypocrisy! How it must have grieved Him!

4. Yet He was regular in His attendance notwithstanding.

VI. Whenever He Attended Something Happened (Luke 4:16).

1. We Accompany Him to Nazareth Synagogue and Behold Anger Aroused.

a. If the first effect of His preaching at Nazareth was astonishment, the second was anger. b. Anger because:

(1) The thoughts of their hearts had been laid bare.

(2) The truth had been proclaimed.

(3) They had been rebuked. c. Nothing unusual even to-day, for things like this happen. d. How many have gone out of Assembly, Church, or Hall in anger because they have been found out by the Word of God applied by the Spirit of God?

2. With Him to a Synagogue in Capernaum to Behold the Casting Out of an Unclean Spirit (Luke 4:33).

a. An astonishing fact-one such in a house of prayer! b. Presence of purity made impurity squirm. c. And loudly protest. d. He was teaching, and people in astonishment were listening. e. When the quietness of the place is disturbed by the awful cries of this demon-possessed man. f. Note, the calmness and quietness and perfect ease of our Lord. g. And unclean spirits still obey Him.

3. With Him to a Galilee Synagogue to Behold the Healing of Withered Arm (Luke 6:6-11).

a. It was his right hand-only Luke tells us this. b. Note:

(1) Bade him step forward right in the midst.

(2) Stretch forth in faith.

(3) Type of good people not converted-only conscious of something lacking, something short, not of vileness, nor of moral leprosy.

4. With Jesus to an Unknown Synagogue, probably in Galilee, to Behold the Healing of the Crooked Woman (Luke 13:10). a. It was a trouble of long standing (18 years). b. It was a degrading trouble (could not look up). c. Jesus (1) Saw her. (2) Laid hands on her. (3) Cured her. d. Had she not gone there that day she may never have met Him again.

Conclusion.

1. We may have representations of all these cases in any Church or Assembly.

2. Some who may have a consciousness of vileness.

3. Others only conscious of shortcoming or crookedness.

4. But they are where the Lord can meet them.

5. Let Him heal. WITH JESUS AT THE SEASIDE.

After a Fishing Experience.

"Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord"

(Luke 5:8)

Introduction.

Seasonable.

1. We have here quite a holiday subject.

2. We are to accompany our Lord to the seaside.

3. To the piece of water fourteen miles long, and nine wide, known by three names: Lake of Gennesaret, Sea of Tiberius, Sea of Galilee.

Pressed upon Him.

1. One morning our Lord was walking on the seashore.

2. The people saw Him, and rushed together in crowds to hear Him.

3. "Pressed upon Him to hear the Word of God," not word of man.

4. What an inspiring sight is it to see men eager to listen to the Word of Life!

5. And what is more, they were not disappointed, for the R.V. says: "As the people pressed upon Him and heard." The Fishermen were Washing their Nets.

1. Too engrossed with their work to notice the Lord, or

2. Too busy to spare time to listen to the Lord. They were disappointed men, and disappointment sometimes makes hearts leaden.

3. How many treat Divine things like that.

4. We wonder if our Lord had not a double purpose in entering into Simon's boat-not merely to use it for a pulpit, but to get Simon's attention?

5. Simon granted our Lord's request, and thrust out a little.

6. And now was compelled to listen.

Why He Takes us from our Nets.

1. That is why He sometimes has to take us from our nets.

2. We are prone to allow even legitimate things to monopolise too much of our attention.

3. We pray you, let Him have the pre-eminence in all things.

Recompense.

1. The Lord was determined that Simon should not be any the loser by lending his boat, and being taken from His work.

2. The Lord will not remain in debt to any.

3. He desires to recompense Simon for the loan of the boat.

Note the Order.

1. He entered first, thrust out a little, then launched into the deep.

2. We have in mind many who are unwilling to give up the world and its pleasures.

3. My friend, don't bother about your unreadiness to do that, but invite Him on board your vessel-let that be your first concern.

4. The "thrusting out" followed, not preceded, His entrance. Get Him on board first.

5. Don't forget that the launching out followed the thrusting out. a. Don't be content with the shallows. b. Don't have a shallow, but a deep experience in Divine things.

6. Note, great success in service followed the launching out (or deepening of spiritual life).

Imperfect Obedience.

1. Peter's words sound all right.

2. But, on closer inspection, we note obedience was imperfect.

3. The Lord said nets, not net, plural, not singular.

Astonishing Success.

1. This was a miracle.

2. A great "catch of fish" at an occasional time is not miraculous.

3. But that this was a miracle appears from Peter's words.

4. Effects:

(1) Astonishment to all.

(2) But spiritual crisis in the soul of Peter. It burst upon him who Jesus was-Lord God.

I. It was the Language of-Whom?-What? Where was he?

1. At first sight, it is difficult to say-saved or no.

2. Not the first time he had come into contact with Jesus.

3. It was his brother Andrew who brought him to Jesus.

4. He had been following Jesus for a while.

5. But here he is back into the old ruts again.

6. There are thousands we are not sure of.

Dreadful Possibility.

1. It is an awful thought, that it is possible to see and hear the Lord, have Him pointed out as God's Lamb, note His miraculous work, and yet be unsaved.

2. Many admire Him, but do not resign to Him themselves.

3. Friend, it is not admiration, but submission. He asks first of you.

We Think we Must put them Amongst the Lord's Disciples.

1. It says they definitely believed on Him as result of miracle at Cana.

2. But, oh, the pity, that there should be the least room for doubt.

3. "This man put his hand to the plough and never looked back." So reads the epitaph on a tablet in Exeter Cathedral.

II. It was the Language of One Overwhelmed by the Consciousness of Sin and Unworthiness.

Disciple Before he Received Consciousness of Sin.

1. It is not a consciousness of sin that is essential.

2. But the recognition of the fact of sin.

3. We read that Sir A. Blackwood had no sense of sin until long after conversion.

How he Got this Revelation.

1. He had been gradually learning more of Jesus in the previous weeks or months.

2. Now it suddenly bursts upon him Who it is that sits beside him in his own boat.

3. This sense of unworthiness and self-loathing is ever the effect of the Divine power and presence.

Easier. It is easier to see sin in others than in ourselves.

III It was the Language of One who Mistook the Purpose of the Revelation. Not Willing to Die.

1. It was generally understood among the Jews that he who had had a special manifestation of God would die.

2. This was based on, "No man can see My face and live."

3. Simon did not wish to die yet.

IV. It was the Language of Ignorance.

Humility.

1. It was the language of humility, yet of ignorance.

2. "A sinner such as I am is not fit company for Thee."

3. Peter shuddered at the thought of so much unworthiness being so near such purity and grandeur.

False Conception. What a mistake Peter made. Why, He came to company with sinners.

See what it Would have Meant.

1. Separation from the Sin-Bearer-from Lamb of God.

2. Separation from Emancipation-"If Son shall make you free."

3. Separation from the Baptiser with Holy Spirit.

4. Separation from the Model-the Examplar.

All of these had been known by Peter through John the Baptist.

V. It was a Request Mercifully Unheeded.

Granted Once. Others made same request, only for a different reason, and the request was granted (Luke 8:37).

VI. It was a Request that brings, "Fear Not."

Rotherham's rendering is: "Do not fear, henceforth thou shalt be taking men that they may live."

Prosperity. They left all to follow Him, when their calling thus prospered.

Some in Charge. Mark says: "They left their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went after Him."

VII. A Warning: Those who say "Depart from me" shall have the Lord's "Depart from Me" (Matthew 7:23; Matthew 25:41).

1. No earthly judge makes the criminal's doom a matter of personal relationship to himself. Christ does.

2. "Depart from Me." In the final word lies the serious significance of the sentence.

3. Who is He from whom they are cast away? a. The Lamb. My sin must be taken away by Him if I am to be rid of it. To depart from Him means to depart from all hope. Expelled from the presence of Him Who alone can remove it. b. The Saviour. To depart from Him means no hope whatever. WITH JESUS IN A STORM.

"Master, carest Thou not that we perish?"

(Mark 4:38; Matthew 8:23; Luke 8:22-25).

Introduction. There is a story of a Christian Army. Officer at sea with his family in a storm. There was great terror amongst the passengers, but he was calm. His wife, in her consternation, chided him, saying that he ought to be concerned for her and her children, if not for himself, in such danger. He made no reply, but soon came to her with his sword drawn, and with a stern countenance pointed at her heart. She was not the least alarmed, but looked up into his face with a smile. "What," said he, "are you not afraid of a drawn sword at your breast?" "No," she replied, "not when I know it is in the hands of one that loves me." "And would you have me," he asked, "to be afraid of this tempest when I know it to be in the hand of my Heavenly Father, who loves me."

Two Lessons.

1. One lessen we are to learn from this Bible experience is that even in the wild tumults of nature we should be at peace, since our Saviour is Lord of nature.

2. And the other is that even in the fierce storms of life there should be a calm confidence in Him.

Day of Labour. This incident happened at the close of a day of great labour. Again He had preached from a boat as from a pulpit. Parables of Sower, etc., were uttered.

Without Preparation. He was weary and tired, and, as night drew near, He suggested crossing the lake. Probably He longed for rest and quietness, and could not otherwise escape the crowd. Without leaving the boat, and without any preparation, they started forth. (This is the meaning of "Took Him, even as He was.")

Subject to Squalls. The Sea of Galilee lies 600 feet below sea level, and, like all inland seas or lakes, is subject to violent hurricanes of wind, which at times sweep down from the hills with great velocity.

Unusual. This must have been a storm of unusual severity. For the disciples, who were well seasoned sailors, lost their nerve.

He Slept. But, while the wind howled, and waves leapt into the boat, Jesus was fast asleep. He slept because "His human nature was exhausted by His Godlike acts," and because His human life was real, and not merely played or acted. But why did He sleep? How could He sleep in such a storm? It was because He had such perfect trust in His Heavenly Father.

State of Panic.

1. These brave fishermen's faith was paralysed by fear.

2. They held out as long as possible, and then awoke the Lord by a cry of rebuke.

3. Why conflicting reports?

Matt.: "Lord save us, we perish."

Mark: "Carest thou not?"

Luke:"Master, Master, we perish."

4. The truth is, all are correct.

5. The fact is, they all cried at once. All place on record what they heard, or saw, or said.

6. They were in a state of panic.

What Awoke Him. Observe, what the shriek of the storm could not do, the weak, frail cry of a human soul in distress achieved.

Two "Arose." And what was the result. "There arose a great storm." "And He arose"-never fail to connect both. If ever a storm arises, remember He will, too.

Spoke to them First. Here again there is an apparent discord. Matthew states He spoke to them before He commanded the storm to be still; Mark and Luke afterwards. We believe both are correct. He calmed their souls first, then nature.

Threatened.

1. The original expressions, so we are given to understand, are singularly forcible, and are most happily rendered by the French translation, which says, "He threatened the wind and the waves."

2. Just as a master who, waking up, finds his servants in uproar and confusion, and addresses them in menacing tone, Jesus, beholding the commotion in the elements, said to the winds, "Silence!" to the waves, "Keep still!" to all nature, "Be calm!" The Impossible. "It is proverbial to express an attempt at impossibilities, by saying: You may as well speak to the winds." He did it. The wind is not accustomed to drop, in a moment, and when there is any approach to this, the sea is not instantly calm. Yet such was the power of Christ, and such the obedience of all nature to His Voice, that this was accomplished.

Fruitful in Lessons. This incident is fruitful in lessons. All of the utmost value.

I. They had Embarked with Christ.

Privileged. What a boon and privilege His presence was. Have You? We are all sailing on the ocean of life, to the vast shores of Eternity. Is He on board your frail barque?

All Can Have Him Now. That was not so then. "There were also with Him other little ships"-only near Him, they had not Him on board. What became of them in the storm? We know not.

Get Him in Calm as these Disciples Did. Men sometimes laugh at religion while the sun is shining. But when the tempest comes they are glad of Him. Seek Him while the sun still shines. If the storm is raging, and you have not the Lord on board, let us assure you that He is within hailing distance.

II. His Presence on Board is no Guarantee of Perpetual Calm.

1. One might think it would be so, but it is not.

2. Surely His presence in our hearts rouses the Devil.

3. The reason why this was so fierce a storm was because, we suspect, the Devil was trying to get rid of the Lord Jesus.

4. But if His presence means now and then a storm, remember "He maketh the storm a calm."

5. One enjoys the calm all the more because of the previous storm.

III. The Arrival of the Storm does not Mean that He has Left Us.

1. We should not conclude Christ has left us because the elements roar, and the deep threatens to swallow us up.

2. Therefore, let us trust Him in the darkness.

IV. Do not Lose Faith and Patience if He Seems Calmly Indifferent.

Problem of the Ages. This is the problem of the ages-the Lord's apparent indifference to our pain and suffering. Sometimes Christ seems unconcerned in the trouble of His people, and regardless of their prayers. "Awake, why sleepest Thou, O Lord? Arise, cast us not off for ever," is the exclamation in Psalms 44:23.

Worse Off than Disciples. They could see Him, and get hold of Him. We seem sometimes to be forgotten, and we cannot get hold of Him, and He seems a long way off. But He Does Care. One of these who cried: "Carest Thou not," years afterwards wrote: "He careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7). Many of His silences we can now explain, and those still unsolved some day will be understood.

V. Remember, His Fortune is Bound up with Yours. If your ship sinks, He will go down with it. WITH JESUS AT CAPERNAUM.

The Roman Officer and his Slave.

"Who was dear (precious, R.V.) to Him" (Luke 7:2).

Introduction. This is a charming incident in the life of our Lord. And it conveys an important lesson, especially as a study in contrast. This was most unusual conduct on the part of a master. It is not often that a master will put himself to inconvenience these days for a sick servant, and was most unusual in those distant days. Then, they got all they could out of the servant, and when of no further use, cast them off as a piece of orange peel. Then remember that the master was a proud Roman officer.

Note the trouble he took for this poor sick slave. He first sent a deputation of Jewish Elders (Mark 1:3); he then sent some friends of his own (Mark 1:6); and, finally, he was so concerned that he came himself (study Matthew 8:5-13). This last step was most certainly a wise thing for him to do. It certainly is good to get other people to go to God for us, but that is not sufficient unless we go to Him for ourselves.

Why did he do this?

1. Not from a mere sense of duty. For no one felt it to be their duty in those days. There was no public conscience on matters of this sort.

2. It was not out of fear for a Coroner's Inquest, for there were none then, so cheap was human life.

3. It was love that moved him. No Doubt about His Love. Why is there no doubt that the Roman officer loved his servant?

1. The way he acted emphatically proved this.

2. But the way he referred to his servant spoke volumes about his love. The beauty of the original is hidden in the A.V. The elders asked the Lord to heal the Centurion's slave; but the friends of the Roman officer took a direct message, which by and bye he himself supported, calling the sick slave, "My child." He does not use the rough word which implies a bondslave, but a term of endearment. This is brought out in the various renderings. "My young man," is the Weymouth rendering; "My boy," is the R.V.; and "My child," is Bullinger's rendering. This is delightful. Love betrays itself not only in conduct, but also in words, yea, in tone also. A More Remarkable Fact. But there is a more remarkable fact still, and that is that God has, and does, put Himself about for us. More, He did not send a deputation, but came Himself. And He came to be a man and die. There is no doubt at all about His love- His works and His words all proclaim this. And God's treatment of us in such a gracious manner is more remarkable. And for the following reasons:

I. This Servant was Deserving of such Attention. Whereas we are not. There is no doubt that the Centurion loved him because he was worthy of that love; yea, that he had merited that love. It is generally understood that he had, at the risk of his own life, saved the life of his master. No wonder then that he was loved, when his master owed life itself to his slave. But what about ourselves? Have we done anything notable for God? Why, the very opposite. We are, by nature, "enemies of God by wicked works," as the Bible declares. Yet, though utterly undeserving, we are dear to Him.

II. He was his Master's own Slave, whereas we Belong to Another. For the Centurion to put himself about concerning this servant really was not so very wonderful when considered from our standpoint, for was he not caring for his own property. Things are different with us, for we are the slaves of another, the enemy of God. Yet,"though the slave of another, God loves us.

III. He was Dying, whereas we are Dead. That makes a tremendous difference. Whilst there's life, there's hope, we say; in our case we are lifeless, so far as spiritual life is concerned.

IV. He was Helpless, and so are We. And, as in his case, Another is, and has, interested Himself in us. See what He has already done on our behalf-sent His Son to die for us; bestowed the Holy Ghost to convict, woo, and win us; and given us a wonderful Book for our guidance and learning. Is He Dear to You? You are dear to Him! It was the sickness of this servant that brought his master into contact with the Lord on His behalf. Surely you won't wait until sickness drives you to Him? WITH JESUS AT JERICHO.

The Conversion of Zacchaeus.

"He looked up and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchaeus, make haste and come down; for to-day I must abide at thy house" (Luke 19:1-10).

Introduction.

Most Unusual. That is to say, the Lord invited Himself. This was a most unusual thing for the Lord to do. In fact, this is the only instance on record when our Lord did do so. Therefore this incident stands unique in the sacred Records. His Custom. With this exception, He only became a guest when invited. He even acted in this manner towards His disciples.

1. In the account of our Lord walking on the water (Mark 6:48). Mark states He,"would have passed by them."

2. And in the walk to Emmaus (Luke 24:28), Luke states that "He made as though He would have gone further."

Often a Guest. He had often gone before as a guest into houses. Into houses not only of His friends, but also of His secret foes-but always as an invited guest. Yes, even into the houses of His enemies.

Enemies. If you feel a bitter enmity in your heart toward Him-take encouragement. He will enter your heart as a guest, even though you hate Him. He will then turn the hatred out.

Acted as a King. If you ask the reason why, there are two answers. One we shall deal with presently, the other we state now. This conduct of our Lord harmonises with the events narrated in this chapter later. This chapter gives an account of the one occasion on which He allowed His Kingship to be publicly acknowledged. Usually He checked and forbade any such acclamations. His Right. As a Royal Person He has a right to invite Himself. He has the right to command His subjects. That is what our own King does.

Clue to Former Study. Luke alone records this event. We said in another study that we knew not what length of time passed between the healing of the one blind man as He entered and the healing of the two as He left Jericho. But this gives us a pretty good idea. He must have stayed overnight with Zacchaeus.

Unique. So unusual an incident is worth our closest study. Why should Zacchaeus be selected? What was there about his character that justified this? He was once a pure, patriotic, Jewish boy. (Name reveals that he was a pure Jew).

I. The Descent of Zacchaeus.

1. Began with his Choice of Business.

a. I was going to say with his choice of residence. b. For without doubt he lived in a place that had a bad name. c. Probably he had been born there. d. But, without doubt, his first step down was when he decided to become a tax-gatherer under the Roman Government. e. Not that the business in itself was wrong. f. Rates and taxes are respectable, legitimate, nuisances. g. It was the method of gathering the Roman taxes which offered plentiful opportunities for robbery and extortion. h. Of course it was possible to conduct such a business honestly. We fancy Matthew (once a publican, afterwards an Apostle) must have done so. i. But to one of a weak nature like Zacchaeus such was next to impossible. j. Some trades had far better be abandoned by some who wish to live the better life.

2. His Descent Increased Rapidly when he Suffered the Loss of Reputation.

a. We do not love tax gatherers even in this country, for none care to be compelled to give to Governments. b. But in Judea, the tax gatherers were hated for an additional reason, that they had become the officials of a Heathen Power. c. Note how they had christened him-"Guest with a sinner" (7). d. Not that they did not admit themselves to be sinners (as in China).

3. His Descent became Swift when by Losing his Reputation he Lost Self-respect, and Consequently had no Character to Support.

a. Usually it is easy to degrade a person by reckoning them so. b. The first step downward is to sink in the estimation of others. c. The next step downward is to sink in a man's own estimation. d. As he had no character to support and live up to, he just let himself go.

4. At the Bottom.

a. There you see him at last right at the bottom. b. With a load of guilt.

II. The Ascent of Zacchaeus. God must have been at work with him. The first evidence of his ascent is:

1. It Began with his Repentance and Restitution.

a. Mark 1:8 has been understood as his decision after our Lord's entry into his house. b. But please not the present tense-not "I will give," but "I give." c. It was a policy he had been pursuing unknown to his enemies. d. And he only declared it to justify our Lord before the eyes of them, not for any personal honour. e. Think of it-this man, so condemned, had, all unknown to them, commenced to lead a better life. f. Ah, many a person we sit in judgment upon is perhaps leading a better life than we ourselves are. g. But we pray you to note, salvation did not come to him then. h. Repentance and restitution did not save him. i. Salvation only came when Christ came.

2. It Increased with his Refusal to Allow a Hindrance to Keep him from Jesus.

a. "Though Jesus did not follow after fame, fame followed after Him," wrote an old writer. Crowds followed. b. No doubt curiosity led Zacchaeus to seek to see Jesus. c. But there was heart hunger too. d. There is always something to keep us from Him, some crowd of engagements, friends, pursuits. e. Note:

(1) He pocketed his dignity.

(2) He did not mind being laughed at.

3. His Quick Response to Our Lord's Royal Command.

a. How did our Lord know Zacchaeus was there in hiding? b. How did our Lord know his name? c. Only one answer is possible-He was, and is, Divine. d. "To-day"-not to-morrow. e. Perhaps it was the first time for years his name had been uttered in kindly accents. f. He came down. There must be always a coming down ere He can abide in our hearts. g. Oh, how few, comparatively speaking, give Christ the glad, unhesitating obedience of Zacchaeus.

4. His Glad and Joyous Reception of the Lord Jesus.

5. His Humble Acknowledgement of the Lordship of Christ.

a. "Stood." b. The place of the humble slave. c. His acknowledgment of Jesus' lordly authority and dignity.

Application. This is a message to:

1. That one who, with a real heart hunger for better things, 2. And despised by others, 3. Is overburdened by a sense of unfitness and unworthiness.

4. "Oh! make haste!" cries the Lord. WITH JESUS AT JERICHO.

"And he, casting away his garment, sprang up and came to Jesus" (Mark 10:46-52, R.V.).

Introduction. That was how blind Bartimaeus came to Jesus long ago, and that is what we desire all poor sinners would do. Coming to Him always means a "casting away." Some cast away before they come to Him, whilst others come, then cast away. The all-important matter is "Come!" This is one of the most familiar Bible incidents. We have always admired the man who would not be silenced. But, familiar though it be, there are points about it all have not noticed. Our Lord was on His last journey to Jerusalem before His death. That journey was more in the nature of a Triumphal Journey than others He had taken. Crowds accompanied Him. He seemed exceedingly popular. The shouting multitudes are escorting Him out of the city. They had just passed the gate, and are in the act of turning toward the mountain gorge through which runs the Jerusalem road, when, amidst the plaudits of the throng a cry of need is heard. And what then? Could one cry of need be heard above the din? Certainly it was not a weak cry, for it could be literally rendered, "He screamed." But even then, what was the scream of but one amidst all that noisy Eastern crowd! Ah, the cry of wretchedness was far sweeter to Him than all their hollow Hallelujahs. It was heard, and it stopped the Lord in His progress. Have you ever been puzzled about prayer, and wondered if one cry from you would be heard, and felt tempted to give way to doubt and despair? Ah, take heart from this true story. Just think of the multitudes now hymning His praises in the glory. What is one cry? Everything to Him. Cry, and you will be attended to.

It was wonderful that Joshua of old could command the sun, and it was stopped in its progress; but here is something more wonderful still-a poor blind beggar arresting the steps of Him who bade the sun to be, and Who keeps it whirling in its orbit. He got to the Lord Jesus; and so may every sinner if they will take the five steps this man took. They are five words we can take as key-words, and they are: "Heard," "Cry," "Came," "Received," "Followed."

I. He Heard of Blessing Granted to Others (Matthew 20:30; Luke 18:35). Our Lord's Name had become a household word in Palestine. He had been labouring there for three years or more. There is no doubt that this blind man had heard of Him. Without a doubt he had heard of the blessing received by the blind man on the other side of Jericho, but a wee while before. A discrepancy has been supposed in the three Gospels. Matthew says that two men cried "as they departed from Jericho." Luke says one man cried "as He came nigh to Jericho." Mark says one man "as He went out of Jericho." Those who believe we have here a discrepancy do so on the assumption that they all tell of one and the same event. But the Scriptures do not say that this is the case. Surely there were three men healed at different times.

We have here a most solemn and yet an encouraging fact. The unknown man Luke tells about who influenced Bartimaeus, and Bartimaeus influenced his unknown companion in sorrow, are facts that are impressive. Who knows but that the salvation of someone depends upon your stepping out, as in the case before us!

II. He Recognised the Lord Jesus as the Divine One. He must often have pondered over the person and work of Christ, and he felt that here was One who was more than merely human. Asking the reason of the commotion, they informed him that "Jesus of Nazareth" was passing by, when he called out, "Jesus, thou Son of David," not merely "Jesus of Nazareth." He recognised His Mes-siaship.

III. He Made the Best of his Opportunity. Note that the Lord Jesus never entered in person Jericho again, so that this was the blind man's last chance, which he made good use of, thank God! Of course, now the Lord Jesus is present always everywhere, yet there are times when He seems to specially visit places and persons in salvation grace.

IV. He Did not Mind being Conspicuous. To come right out into the open means suffering to retiring dispositions, yet why should we not be bold in confessing our need of a Saviour. This blind man shouted to attract the attention of our Lord, never troubling about the attention he was drawing to himself.

V. He Refused to be Silenced. How changeable are folk, bidding us hold our tongue one minute, and then urging us to redoubled effort the next moment. But the more they tried to silence him the more he shouted.

VI. He Cast Aside every Hindrance. This happened to be the long Eastern cloak which hindered free movement. Observe, it was something useful and lawful, yet it hindered him coming. Whenever we think of coming to Him hindrances always crop up. These, by His grace we must lay aside, whether lawful or otherwise.

VII. He Received the Blessing. Observe, he was called whilst still in his blindness. His sight came after he came to Jesus and not before. He recognised sight as a gift to be received, and not as a reward to be merited or earned. He received his sight immediately. So will we.

VIII. He Followed, Glorifying God. WITH JESUS AT THE LAST SUPPER.

"And He took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this and divide it among yourselves" (Luke 22:17).

Introduction.

Thankfulness. Lessing, considered by some as one of the great thinkers of the eighteenth century, once remarked: "A single thought of thankfulness to Heaven is the most perfect prayer."

Present Difficulty.

1. Observe, He not only took the cup, but then gave thanks, and gave to others.

2. The difficulty is to persuade us to take the cup; and then to secure our thanks, and finally to get us to hand it to others.

Lord's Table Manners.

1. Here we incidentally get a glimpse at our Lord's table manners.

2. The Jews generally partook of their meals in a serious and devout manner, after a solemn blessing and thanksgiving to God for His goodness.

3. To partake of food without offering thanks to God was considered sacrilege.

4. We can almost say with certainty the exact words our Lord uttered. a. The usual grace said before partaking of bread was: "Blessed be Thou, our God, King of the Universe, who brought forth bread out of the earth." b. And before partaking of the contents of the cup they said: "Blessed be our God, King of the Universe, the Creator of the fruit of the vine."

Origin of Grace Before Meat.

1. It is generally conceded that here we have the origin of our present custom of saying grace.

2. Do you say grace?

3. In homes where this duty is not practised, it is often the first confession of Christ by the new convert.

4. The bowing of the head, not in an ostentatious spirit, but in grateful and adoring thanks.

5. It is reported that a good King noticed that his courtiers never said grace, so he resolved upon giving them a lesson. He picked a beggar from the streets in his rags, and told him how to act. The King brought him to the Royal table. After feasting on all the good things provided, to the astonishment of the courtiers, he arose up, and went away without giving thanks to the King for his liberality. At the expression of anger at the man's ingratitude, he reminded them how they had treated their Heavenly Father.

Before proceeding, whilst on the subject of grace before meat, let us make one or two remarks. a. Don't ask the Lord to make you thankful-what base ingratitude. Tell Him you are thankful. b. Long graces are not advisable, for the dinner will get cold. An impressive grace we heard was just, "We thank Thee!" c. Avoid saying grace in a mere formal fashion. Jesus would not repeat the usual Jewish grace in a mere formal fashion. The Lord's Habitual Practice.

1. But this action of our Divine Lord was His habitual practice.

2. Not only at the taking of the daily cups at the homely meals, but all the cups His Heavenly Father gave to Him.

3. There were four cups used at the Passover feast. a. At the commencement. b. During supper. c. Cup of blessing (Mark 1:17). d. At the singing of hymn (Mark 1:20).

4. There are three cups mentioned in Scripture. One the Lord drank. Two we can drink.

I. The Cup of Indignation and Wrath (Psalms 75:8).

1. That is the cup referred to in this Psalm and Luke 22:42.

2. The cup our Lord dreaded was cup of indignation and wrath.

3. In the Father's hand there was a cup-and the Saviour took it and drank it to the bitter dregs. That cup was not one of physical, but spiritual suffering.

4. Dr. Pierson has told a touching story relating to the war between Russia and Circassia in the middle of the last century.

5. The prophet chief, almost adored by his followers, found that someone was exposing to the enemy his designs and plans, and he issued a decree that if the traitor was found out, one hundred lashes on the bare back should be administered.

6. A few days later it was discovered, to his astonishment, that the guilty party was his own mother.

7. He went into fasting and retirement for two days, and coming out pallid and ghastly, ordered his mother to be brought from the tent, and her back bared for the scourge. He stood by while one, two, three, four, five of those fearful lashes gashed her flesh, then he made the executioner to arrest his blows, bared his own back, and took the other ninety-five lashes on his own person, till the flesh hung in shreds.

8. And the effect it is said was electric. His followers were melted, and even his mother was utterly subdued, as she never would have been by force.

9. Jesus stood forth. a. Bore all the stripes that were ours by right. b. Drank this cup, we by legal right should take.

10. Let your prayer be:

"Oh, make me understand it.

Help me to take it in;

What it meant to Thee, the Holy One.

To bear away my sin."

11. But He drank the cup of wrath in order that another cup might be ours.

II. The Cup of Salvation (Psalms 116:13).

1. Thinking of the Cross, my heart cries: "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?"

2. What can I do to show my gratitude? a. Our first expression of gratitude ought to be to "take"

(1) For before you can begin to toil for Him you must trust Him.

(2) Before our Lord cried "Blessed," He said "Repent."

(3) "Take"-He offers it to you.

(4) It is a gift-we are to be His guests. b. Your second expression of gratitude must be "divide" -i.e., hand story to others.

3. All you have to do is to take, give thanks-and give it to others after partaking of it yourself.

4. "How low down can I drink?" asked a poor little girl when handed a glass of hot milk. She belonged to a poor family, where such things had to be shared. She was astonished when informed she could drink it all.

5. Oh, drink deeply. Drink much of His Salvation. Drink, and drink again.

III. The Cup of Suffering (Matthew 20:22-23).

1. It is good when mothers come to the Lord on behalf of their sons-as the mother of Zebedee's children did.

2. "Ye shall indeed drink of the cup"-no escape from it.

3. The cup of suffering falls to the lot of all. Man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward.

4. But the advantage of the Christian over the worldling is that he takes the cup out of a loving Father's hand.

5. In the days of our childhood the bitter medicine went down the easier if the loving hand of our beloved father or mother handed it to us, rather than the hand of a stranger.

How do you Take the Cup of Suffering?

1. But how do you take it?

2. One we know was a long while ago called to pass through sorrow.

3. Whilst walking in a busy thoroughfare, and pondering over this text, like a flash the rebuke came: "You have taken the cup of suffering, but have never offered thanks."

4. Jesus did-He took the cup, and gave thanks.

5. There are cups of disappointment we have to drink.- Plans concerning your future service are overthrown. Plans concerning your children are upset. Plans concerning your position in life crumble to pieces.

6. What must we do under the circumstances? Take the cup and give thanks.

Let Us give Two Helps to Thankfulness.

1. Don't Forget Past Mercies. a. Look at life as Gladstone did. b. When he was reminded of the pain he suffered during the last six months of his life, he said there were no reasons why he should forget that he had enjoyed twice 86 times six months of wonderful painlessness. c. Generally we allow the little suffering to obliterate from our memories the years of painlessness. d. In Stanley's "Life of Arnold," we have a similar example. Taken suddenly ill, his son entered the room and sat down with his mother at the foot of the bed. Presently his father said in a low voice: "My son, thank God for me!" And as his son did not at once catch his meaning, he went on saying: "Thank God, Tom, for giving me this pain. I have suffered so little pain in my life, that I feel it is very good for me; now God has given it to me, and I do so thank Him for it."

2. Don't Forget the Bitter Cup is Handed to you by the Pierced Hand. Seek for the grace of thankfulness, so that you may be able to say:

"My God, I thank Thee, Who hast made

The earth so bright.

So full of splendour and of joy

Beauty and light;

So many glorious things are here.

Noble and right.

"I thank Thee more that all my joy

Is touched with pain;

That shadows fall on brightest hours,

That thorns remain.

So that earth's bliss may be my guide.

And not my chain.

"For Thou Who knowest, Lord, how soon

Our weak heart clings,

Hast given us joys, tender and true.

Yet all with wings;

So that we see, gleaming on high.

Diviner things." WITH JESUS AT CALVARY.

The Seven Words from the Cross.

Introduction. How fitting it is for the Lord's people to meditate on the seven last words of our Lord from the. Cross. Not His seven last words-His last word can never be spoken, for He is the Eternal One.

Out of the hundreds of people mentioned in the Bible, it has pleased the Lord to move the inspired writers to allude to the dying words of but some half-dozen, and then in the briefest possible manner. But there is one exception, and exceptions to general rules in the Bible arrest attention. That exception is the Lord Jesus. The chapters devoted to the account of Christ's death are altogether out of proportion to those dedicated to the record of His life. This fact is impressive. We know the lesson-the work He came to do was to die for men. That is the Gospel: "Christ died for our sins." The seven words from the Cross fall into two clear sections-the first three for others; the following four concerning Himself.

Suffering is a great test of character. What we really are is the more easily manifested through suffering. Observe that our Lord's first thought was not for Himself, but for others; and you realise one of the great revelations of His suffering. As He had to suffer the most agonising of pains, He could have been excused if He had been absorbed in His own sufferings and pains; but no. He thought of others-others were His first concern.

I. Forgiveness. Christ's first word from the Cross is the sinner's first great need, viz., forgiveness: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34).

"Then." When? Mark well that adverb. It was when, having nailed Him as vermin to the Cross of wood, and raising it, had allowed it to fall into the hole made for it with a dreadful and awful thud and jolt, that lacerated the newly made wounds-"then!" There was not a trace of resentment or bitterness. Prior to Him comforting His mother, before He gave thought to Himself or anything else, He prayed for His executioners, and the Jewish authorities who were behind the sentence.

"Father." What a tender word! But that tender and loving word was to be addressed to God no more till after the close of that awful three hours' agony. God remained His Father, but He took the sinners' place, and as the sinners' substitute could not use that word. This is an important thought, and explains a great deal.

Advocate. The Lord Jesus was Sacrifice and Advocate all in one. An Advocate always seeks for extenuating points. The moment the sacred Blood began to flow the intercession for sinners began. Jesus pleads in extenuation, the guilty party's ignorance.

Answer. This prayer was answered very speedily in the case of the dying thief; in the Centurion's case; in the case of the people on the Day of Pentecost; and in every penitent sinner since, including you and me, dear reader.

Some Questions.

1. Have you been forgiven? Do not stay away from Him. Has this prayer been answered for you yet?

2. Have you forgiven? Has the Spirit of Jesus taken possession of you? We forgive, not to be forgiven, but because we are forgiven (Ephesians 4:32).

3. Let me ask myself three questions: 1st, Am 1 a forgiven sinner? 2nd, Am I a forgiven saint? 3rd, Am I a forgiven servant?

II. Future Life. Christ's second word from the Cross settles the fear in most hearts concerning the future, and was spoken to the dying thief, viz., "To-day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise" (Luke 23:39-43). It is quite clear that at the first both thieves railed at Christ. To prove this, we have only to turn to Matthew 27:44, and Mark 15:32. Why the change? Certainly due to the Holy Spirit. Yet the Holy Spirit usually works through others. Assuredly it was the wonderful spirit of forgiveness manifested by the Lord Jesus, and indeed His whole demeanour which influenced the thief. The Evidences of Conversion are three:

1. His honest confession (Mark 1:41). The first step to God usually is the taking by the sinner of his proper place.

2. His frank declaration of our Lord's Divinity and Kingship. Note: "Thy Kingdom."

3. His conviction that the soul after death still lives: "Remember me." The Lord's Swift Reply.

1. Overthrows the teaching concerning Purgatory. "To-day shalt thou be with Me in Paradise." No such place as Purgatory here. From earth to Paradise right away, direct.

2. Explains what Paradise is. The value of the promise is in two words, "With Me." To have entered Paradise alone, without a friend to introduce him, and to plead for him, stained as he was with guilt, would that have satisfied and comforted him? But "With Me"-ah, that made all the difference in the world!

3. Overthrows the "sleep" theory. Jesus meant not that his soul should be with Him in sleep. Surely His words mean the conscious presence of two personalities thoroughly awake. "To-day, etc.," would have been deceitful language unless it meant that the soul of the penitent thief should be conscious of the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. Sleep is only used for the body.

Learn.

1. Here was salvation by faith only. He could not perform any works to save his soul, for he was nailed to the Cross.

2. A great deal of knowledge is not required to be saved.

3. There is a way to Heaven from the very gate of death.

4. The suddenness of conversion, and of spiritual change. In a moment.

5. Note also the swiftness of spiritual growth. Rapidly the dying thief got a grasp of Messianic truth, and other truth as revealed in his request.

6. There is hope for the worst of sinners.

"The dying thief rejoiced to see

That Fountain in his day,

And there may I, though vile as he.

Wash all my sins away."

7. Do not despise death-bed repentances-the Lord Jesus did not.

III. Home Circle. Christ's third word on the Cross touches the home circle, the loved family, wherein He commits as a legacy to John His mother (see John 19:25-27). After the Incarnation and birth of the Saviour, the blessed mother of Jesus seems to retire behind the scenes. We hear very little about her. Her work in the world was to be the mother of His humanity. Not the Mother of God, as some erroneously declare.

Mary at the Cross.

1. Being His mother, she is there at His death. How mother-like!

2. She is there submissively and uncomplainingly.

3. She is not alone, for other two Marys are with her- the blessedness of companionship in sorrow. The Sacredness of Family Relationships.

1. Here, in the hour of His greatest sorrow, He sanctifies the ties of home, the relationship of the hearth. Public servants should never forget private family claims.

2. Love needs only a hint. The disciple who understood Jesus, knew what our Lord's short message meant, and fulfilled his charge by taking Mary to his own home.

3. Have you ever been impressed by the fact that nowhere in Scripture does the Lord Jesus ever call Mary, "Mother!" Of course she was His mother, but in view of Mariolatry, how impressive is this fact!

IV. Atonement. Christ's fourth word reveals the awful price He had to pay to atone for our sin. The fourth word was the cry of the Forsaken One (see Matthew 27:46). From noon till 3 p.m. there was darkness. What happened to our Lord Jesus during those three hours we know not. We must respect the silence of Scripture. The darkness was Nature's sympathy with its Creator. Extraordinary light attended His birth; extraordinary darkness attended His death. At last the silence is broken by a cry. So there was not only the darkness of nature but there was darkness in the soul of our Saviour.

"My God." Only once did the Lord Jesus call upon His Father as God. And it was here. He appeals to God as the Creator, and that is the very lowest ground. Here in His agony He goes back to the language of His childhood, for He speaks in Syriac, His old vernacular. In the darkness He has not lost the consciousness or fact of Sonship, but the right, for the time being, on account of taking our place, so He does not use nor avail Himself here of the term Father. His Only Question. You will notice this is a question, the only question ever uttered to the Father from those lips. And how startling to find that to that solitary question there was no reply.

Why that Cry?

1. Was it weakness? No. It could not be weakness, because later He cried with a loud voice. This proved He was not exhausted.

2. Was it imagination? Sometimes we think we are forsaken of God, for most have their times of deep depression. But of course we are mistaken, for He Himself has declared: "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." Was He mistaken? Had He made a mistake? He never made a mistake in His life.

He was Forsaken because He was made Sin. "This really is a cry that no created intelligence can fathom. It is a cry out of deeper depths than the human soul has ever touched." It was really true. He was forsaken because we ought to have been; He was forsaken in order that that fate might never be ours.

Reflection. The Lord's people sometimes have to walk or sit in darkness (read Micah 7:8). Remember even in the darkness we can still say, "My God." Jesus had no desire or intention to abandon the God who had forsaken Him.

V. Thirst. Christ's fifth word from the Cross is the cry of His humanity, "I thirst" (John 19:28). This is the only word of the seven that brings home to us the real humanity of the Lord Jesus. He really became flesh. For a while His spirit was completely triumphant over His body; but presently His bruised body asserted itself, and physical anguish must find language. This is the shortest of the seven words.

Various Thirsts.

1. There is bodily thirst. This was the anguish of physical thirst in its most acute form.

2. There is thirst for God. "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee." His cry after God was an evidence of the possession of this soul-thirst.

3. There is thirst after the souls of men. "He thirsted to be thirsted after."

VI. Accomplishments. Christ's sixth word was, "It is finished" (John 19:28-30). Rightly understood, this is a claim unique. It means much more than, "It is all over." Most men leave unfinished tasks. Jesus accomplished everything He set out to do.

"The finished work of Christ" was a phrase our fathers were very fond of. By this phrase they meant that God did not need to be propitiated, for Jesus had accomplished that great work.

Professor Clow gives four thoughts on this phrase. In it he saw:

1. A Sigh of Relief. What a relief it is when we have completed some arduous task. "There, that's finished," we exclaim. This meant for the Saviour that His life of suffering and of loneliness was finished.

2. A Shout of Victory. Tennyson declared that "The most pathetic utterance in all history is that of Christ on the Cross, 'It is finished!'" "Nevertheless," says his biographer, "He also recognised the note of triumph in 'It is finished.'"

3. A Message to the Father. He was not ashamed to announce to His Father the completion of the work entrusted to Him. The work had been well and truly done.

4. A Proclamation to Men. What has this to do with me? The fact that someone else has completed a task may have little interest for me! But this has to do with me! The successful completion of His work is a matter of life and death to me.

What was Finished? The work of atonement!

VII. Rest. Christ's seventh and last word on the Cross is a very precious one: "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit" (Luke 23:46). These words were uttered in a loud voice, proving that Jesus did not die of weariness, that His life was not forced from Him.

Observe.

1. He died with Scripture on His lips. You will find these words in the Old Testament.

2. He again calls God by the endearing term, Father. The storm of God's wrath beat fiercely upon that devoted head-but the storm has passed and the sunshine has come again.

3. Note, "Thy hands." Not the Devil's. Some erroneously say that when He died Satan got hold of Him, and took Him to Hell. No; no; a thousand times, no! He was in the Father's safe and loving keeping: "Thy hands."

William the Conqueror died exclaiming: "I commend my soul to Mary." But Lady Jane Gray, laying her head upon the fatal block, said: "Lord, into Thy hand I commend my spirit." She followed her Lord's example.

Then we read that our Lord "Dismissed His spirit"- wonderful statement! This was an act of Deity. We can never dismiss our spirits. He did. WITH CHRIST AT CALVARY.

In Darkness.

Sitting in Darkness, Luke 1:78-79

Hanging in Darkness, Matthew 27:45-46

Called Out of Darkness, 1 Peter 2:9

Turned from Darkness, Acts 26:18 Four Scriptures which have a close connection with each other, as we shall see in the course of our meditation.

I. Sitting in Darkness (Luke 1:78-79). With glee some Bible critics have pointed out here a supposed inaccuracy. "See," say they, "how Zacharias, filled with the Holy Ghost, misquotes Scripture!" This they say on the supposition that he was quoting Isaiah 9:2. But Zacharias did not say so. He was so saturated with Scripture that, on examining his utterance, we find that he was quoting from Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Psalms, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Malachi. As a matter of fact there are in Isaiah two special Scriptures on darkness-1st, one on Walking in Darkness (Isaiah 9:2). But 29 years later, the prophet spake on Sitting in Darkness (Isaiah 42:7).

It is a picture of deterioration and degeneration, and in our Lord's day it had come true. Once, though in darkness, they exercised an element of freedom and unsettlement and dissatisfaction, for they walked in darkness; now, in fast and fatal bondage, they sit in a dark and loathsome dungeon.

Allow this picture language to grip you. The late Dr. Jowett has so graphically drawn attention to it. "Sitting in darkness!" Try to realise it. You sit by the fireside on a winter's night, with a bright fire making the room genial and warm. You sit on, until the fire burns low, and eventually dies out, and the warmth gives place to a searching chill. Then the lamp goes out, and darkness is added to coldness. But you still sit on, and terrible bondage becomes yours. And there are people whose soul-life is just like that. There is no fire in the grate, and their light is gone out, and they abide in cold and dreary desolation, and hard bondage.

It was not ever thus. Once there was a fire in the grate, and a bright light showing and shining. The soul of man was lighted by the presence of the Holy Spirit, and wanned by the fact and presence of Divine love. But sin changed all this. Sometimes a darkened room helps an invalid to recover health, but a darkened soul is the result of a spiritual catastrophe, and betokens the presence of a dead spirit, a lifeless soul. Job speaks of "a land where the light is as darkness."

Sitting in Darkness. This is either a picture of enjoyment, contentment, or enslavement and despondency, or all.

II. Hanging in Darkness (Matthew 27:45-46). Have you ever connected Sitting in Darkness with Hanging in Darkness? There is a very close connection. If we had never walked or sat in the darkness of sin, He would never had found it necessary to have hung in darkness. He hung in darkness to atone for our sin, and to make it possible for us to sit in light-the light of His presence and love. The solar darkness He experienced, was an emblem of soul-darkness He endured on our account.

III. Called Out of Darkness (1 Peter 2:9). This declares that for those sitting in darkness God has a tender regard. That, for them, "a Day-spring from on High hath visited us." That also a voice is heard, calling out of the darkness.

IV. Turned from Darkness (Acts 26:18). Do you say: "I hear the voice calling me out of darkness, but I am chained fast, and cannot respond." Well, for you there is hope, for there is One Who will turn you out of darkness, for He can liberate you from the fetters of sin, and lead you right out into liberty.

PROVISION FOR NEED.

"And Abraham called that place Jehovah Jireh" (Genesis 22:14).

The name of Jehovah Jireh is a monument of a great discovery and a great deliverance. It means either the Lord will see, or the Lord will provide. In common speech these two words "see" and "provide" are distinct in their meaning. Yet the moment we deal with God the two words are found to be one and the same, for His prevision means His pro-vision.

"In the mount of the Lord it (A.V.)-He (R.V.)-shall be seen." Surely here we have a hint and explanation of John 8:56. God gave Abraham insight into the mystery of the Cross.

We can say that the Lord has now provided for man's great needs.

I. For Man's Insensibility and Slumber, He has provided in the Person of the Holy Spirit an Awakener, One to rouse us from the slumber of sin.

II. For Man's Sin, the precious Blood of Christ. It is not left to the sinner to provide a sacrifice (Genesis 22:8), for God Himself has done this. The Lord Jesus died in our stead, as the ram died in the stead of Isaac. Dr. Dinsdale T. Young has so splendidly declared: "Every day I live, yes, every day, this possesses me more and more completely in mind and heart-that that death was a substitution. I know it is an old-fashioned word, a word that is spurned in some quarters. I confess that it satisfies my guilty conscience and comforts my troubled heart, and gives me a joy in my religion incomparable. When I look up and say, He took my place, I cannot understand it. But He did it. He bore my sins in His own body on the Tree."

III. For Man's Ignorance, His Word, the Bible. Read Psalms 119:98-99. We must be people of the one Book, whatever other books we may possess and read. We must give the Bible its chief place in our lives.

IV. For Man's Weakness, the Holy Spirit. How weak is man. But the Holy Spirit communicates strength, through Regeneration and Renewal.

V. For Man's Emptiness, the Divine Fulness. There is fulness of blessing for all who believe. It pleased the Father that in His beloved Son all fulness should dwell, and when He comes and fills my heart and life with His holy and blessed presence I have the fulness.

VI. For Man's Loneliness, the Divine Companionship. He has promised never to leave us.

What ample and blessed provision He has made for all our needs. THE NAMES OF OUR LORD JESUS.

Matthew 1:21, Matthew 1:23.

1. Emmanuel-What He was, His Person.

2. Jesus-What He was to Do, His Work.

3. Christ-What Place He was to Fill, His Office.

4. Lord-What Claim He was to Make, His Headship.

5. King-What Rank He was to Hold, His Kingdom.

6. Son of God-In Relation to God, His Mission.

7. Son of Man-In Relation to Man, His Mission.

PASSING OVER.

"And when I see the blood, I will pass over you"

(Exodus 12:13).

Introduction. Not Pass By. Have you ever been gripped by that? For years we thought it just meant He would pass by them, but when the real import of the language used came home to one, how beautifully new this old verse became.

National history is always interesting and instructive. Exodus gives the history of Israel and their development from a family into a nation. Exodus 12 gives very unusual particulars concerning the great event which led up to their emigration from Egypt to Canaan, and we are prepared to pass on, thinking it had no further interest for us, only we cannot forget several important and impressive facts.

1. The Space Devoted to the Passover Attracts our Attention. If a great deal of space is given to any one event in the Bible, we can be quite sure that, in the mind of the chronicler, that particular event is of prime importance.

2. We Become Impressed by the References in the New Testament to the Passover, especially that statement: "Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us" (1 Corinthians 5:7). So that, without doubt, this great Passover event is of prime importance to us.

3. We Become Impressed by that word "It" in Exodus 12:4, Exodus 12:6, Exodus 12:9, and Exodus 12:10 of Exodus 12. On Passover eve not less than 250,000 lambs would be required to be slain to meet the needs of the nation, yet all those thousands of lambs are considered as one. Never do we read, "Kill them," but "Kill it." Evidently those thousands of lambs in the mind of God stood for but one-the Lord Jesus Christ, who was declared to be by the forerunner, "The Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

4. It is also impressive to note that what saved was not the eating of the lamb, but the Sprinkled Blood. This is very important. Eating the Lamb was part of the ritual, but only after the sprinkling of the blood. We are not saved by going to the Lord's Table to partake of the Bread and Wine, sweet memorials of the Broken Body and shed Blood, but by hiding under the protection of the Sprinkled Blood.

5. Observe where the Blood was Sprinkled. First, on the lintel of the door, suggestive of protection from the righteous wrath of Heaven; then on the doorposts, separating them from Egypt. Oh, do please take note of this important fact-the same Blood which saved from the wrath of a Holy God, separated them from all around them. When we come to the Blood of Christ, we are not only saved from our sin, but also separated from the world unto the One who has shed His Blood on our account.

Pondering on the verse at the head of this study, we note that the Sprinkled Blood meant eight great mercies:

I. A Substitutionary Mercy. "A lamb for an house." Interest in each lamb for each person. The Gospel is "That Christ died for our sins," that is to say, His death was a substitutionary one.

II. A Sparing Mercy. Authorities state that "I will pass over" could mean, "Step over," or "Leap over." The idea of sparing from the judgment that went abroad that night all over the land.

III. A Brooding Mercy. Better still, the word "Passover" means "Brood Over," as a bird broods over her young, protecting them with her own body (see Deuteronomy 32:11, and Matthew 23:37). When we trust the Blood of Christ, He covers us with His wings, and we are then and thus safe from all harm.

IV. An Assuring Mercy. "When I," not you, "see the blood." Thus He assures us of our safety, and thus we should be free from all fear.

V. A Regeneration Mercy. As suggested in the sentence "Beginning of months" (Exodus 12:2). Israel were thus to commence their reckoning from the date of the blood shedding and sprinkling, so that Redemption and Regeneration are linked. The moment we come under the shadow of the Cross of Christ, that moment we are regenerated by the Holy Spirit of God.

VI. A Feasting Mercy (see Exodus 12:8). Blood sprinkled before eating, yet eating following the sprinkling of the blood. Feasting in the Scriptures always speaks of great joy and gladness. What joy follows a reception by faith of the Lord Jesus Christ as our Atonement.

VII. A Cleansing Mercy (Exodus 12:17). The Feast of Unleavened Bread always follows the Feast of the Passover. Did not put leaven out in order to be saved, but because they were saved. There really was no break between the two feasts. Nor can the doctrinal truths and experiences they symbolise be separated.

VIII. A Delivering Mercy. After the Feast of Passover, there came glorious deliverance from Egypt. And that after many years of hard, hard bondage. How welcome would be this liberty!

Warning. The blood was not to be sprinkled upon the floor, and none on the threshold. Is that not an awful word in Hebrews 10:29 : "Trampled under foot the Son of God. . . and accounting the Blood... an unholy thing." Dread possibility!

WHY GOD WANTS US TO DRAW NEAR.

1. To Hear (Words before Works), Joshua 3:9 2. For Revelation of Himself and His Will, Genesis 45:4 3. For Victory, Joshua 10:24 4. For Ministry, Ezekiel 44:15-16 CHRISTENING AND CURING. Have been much amused at the remark of old Aunt Matilda Jane, who said, when the doctor told her she had nasal catarrh: "It is a common cold in the head, but I haven't sent for you to christen it, but to cure it." In the moral and spiritual realm there is far too much christening and too little curing.

Yet a right christening is not to be despised. Doctors cannot deal satisfactorily with a patient until first they have made a right diagnosis.

What is the Matter with Mankind? There are too many quacks about, so let us turn to the Expert, for none can make a diagnosis like Him. See what He says about our hearts: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it? I the Lord" (Jeremiah 17:9-10). Also note His diagnosis in Isaiah 1: "The whole head is sick, and the whole heart is faint, from the sole of the foot even to the head there is no soundness in it." It is an appalling description of our state by nature. Note:

1. Heart wrong. Heart is seat of affection.

2. Head wrong. Head is seat of intelligence.

3. Foot wrong. Feet make possible movements. The Cure. Ah, has it ever gripped you that on the Cross:

1. Blood flowed from His head, to atone for our sins of thought.

2. Blood flowed from His heart, to atone for our sins of affection.

3. Blood flowed from His hands, to atone for our sins of action.

4. Blood flowed from His feet, to atone for our sins of walk. What a perfect atonement! In the Old Testament ritual (Cleansing of the Leper, etc.) oil followed the blood, that is, the Holy Spirit, for oil is an emblem of the Spirit. If the Blood be applied to us, His Holy Spirit will anoint our heads, feet, and hands, thus with a new heart created within us, we are made new creatures in Christ Jesus. A SELF-RIGHTEOUS MAN'S REST AND COVERING.

"For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it: and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it" (Isaiah 28:20).

Introduction.

1. To appreciate to the full the force of this statement you need to read it on some cold frosty night.

2. Then the thought of some poor body having to pass the night on a bed too short for them, and a covering so narrow they cannot wrap themselves in it, simply makes one shudder.

3. What a night of unrest and discomfort he is sure to have; yea, further, what a positive danger is he in, through lack of proper clothing, for a serious and probably fatal illness might ensue.

4. That is but a faint picture of the condition of the self-righteous. His resting place is too short for his need; his covering is frightfully narrow and totally inadequate. In fact everything is short about him, for it is written: "There is no difference, all have sinned and come short." And that one is in terrible danger.

5. So was it with these men of Jerusalem (Exodus 12:14), to whom this word was spoken by the prophet Isaiah. They were in jeopardy from other nations. Though still away from God, they had made their plans, and boasted about their rest and safety.

6. But the Lord said: "Your refuge is a refuge of lies, you have found a resting place and a covering you think will hide you, but both are totally inadequate for your need."

7. The overflowing scourge shall pass through, and ye shall be trodden down by it.

8. You are wise in scenting danger, but you have erred in making to yourselves a refuge.

9. May this not be a message of warning for some of us.

10. Like them, you see the danger. "A prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are punished" (Proverbs 22:3).

11. But the question now is: On what are you resting your hopes upon; what are you relying upon in the way of covering? Could our text be truthfully applied to you?

12. But before we proceed, let us inquire:

I. Do you Feel your Need of Rest?

1. For, after all, what is the use of talking of a resting place, unless you feel your need of rest.

2. It is only the weary who desire a resting place.

3. That sweet invitation of our Lord: "Come. . . and I will give you rest," sounds only as music in the ear of the weary.

4. All are not conscious of soul-weariness.

5. And the reason is simply that they have never given the salvation of their soul a single thought.

6. Standing by the sick bed of a young man, I asked him that question, and he had to confess he never had.

7. And I said he reminded me of some young married couples, who, in order to get a good house of furniture, denied themselves of even the necessaries of life, so much so, that they weakened their bodies, and easily fell victims to a contagious disease.

8. They thought solely of their house, and forgot the inhabitants of the house.

9. Frank Bullen, in his "Apostles of the South East," speaks of some "who live the life of an intelligent animal, without the wise instincts which prevent an animal from doing harm to its own body."

10. May we just note what leads to weariness? a. Disappointment leads to weariness. Life is full of disappointments. Life's friendships are often full of bitter disappointment. Could you not say, "I've tried the broken cisterns," etc. b. The Burden-Bearer soon gets weary. The one whom the Lord invites in the sweet invitation is the "heavy laden," for it is the heavy laden who feel their need of rest. Have you no burden to bear? What about your guilt, your burden of iniquity? c. Labour leads to weariness. It was to those who "labour" our Lord speaks. That is, to those who were desperately hard at work, seeking to gain salvation. That one who seeks Justification by works is sure soon to be weary, for it is a hard and hopeless task. d. Disease leads to weariness. One of the first symptoms of a diseased condition is weariness. Bad sign when you awake weary to begin the day. What about your spiritually diseased condition?

II. On What are you Relying for Rest and Covering?

1. This message is really for those who do feel their need of rest.

2. May we ask what is absolutely required for full and complete rest? A resting place and a covering sufficiently large to meet all needs.

3. Mark you, these are not essential for sleep.

4. Some boast they can sleep on a clothes line. I do know that one can sleep on a hard board.

5. But there is a vast difference between sleep and rest. You can have a very restless slumber.

6. Even those seeking rest on a short bed and narrow covering sleep.

7. That is the trouble-the unconverted are asleep.

8. But whilst there is sleep, there is no comfort and no rest.

9. Your bed, oh, self-righteous one, lulls you to sleep.

10. Your place of rest may satisfy you, but does it satisfy God! And is it sufficient for your needs?

III. The Perfection of His Rest.

1. We used to sing: "On the other side of Jordan there is rest for the weary," etc.

2. You have no need to wait for "the other side.." On this side Jordan you can have rest.

3. We hear a great deal of "rest cure." Certain it is that His rest is a cure for all the ills of the soul.

4. On Him there is room sufficient for complete rest- you can stretch yourself.

5. In Him you have ample covering.

Application.

1. You invite me to come, but I don't feel weary! Have I to wait until I find myself to be weary? No, come just as you are.

2. You are more weary than you imagine.

3. Often you only find out how weary you are after you lie down.

CHRIST'S ASCENSION AND ELIJAH'S.

2 Kings 2:11.

1. Elijah did not ascend; he was carried up. Jesus did ascend, without any outward sign to accompany His slow upward movement through the quiet air.

2. The Lord Jesus went up by His own power; not so Elijah.

3. Elijah left his cloak; the Lord Jesus left a benediction and sent His Holy Spirit.

4. When Christ went up on High He relinquished nothing of His activity for us; Elijah's work was done when he was carried up on High. A DOUBLE PORTION OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

2 Kings 2:9.

The Double Portion was the eldest son's portion, the portion allotted to the heir. Jacob treated his son Joseph as his eldest son by giving him a double portion. Elkanah, as a mark of his special affection for his wife Hannah, gave her a double portion (see R.V.) of sacrificial food. Job received a double portion when the Lord turned his captivity. The Lord Jesus is God's Firstborn, entitled to a double portion, and we are joint-heirs with Him. By and by, when the Lord again takes up Jacob and his descendants, the Lord will give them a double portion (Isaiah 61:7; Zechariah 9:12; Isaiah 40:2).

NOTHING BUT LEAVES.

Mark 11:13.

Strange.

1. But why curse the fig tree for not bearing figs, seeing it was not time for the fruit? How strange!

2. It is our Lord's only destructive act.

Circumstance.

1. Jesus had spent His last Sabbath on earth with Martha, Mary, and Lazarus at Bethany.

2. Though He had just left that hospitable home, He became hungry-evidence of the reality of His manhood.

3. Though passing many fig trees by the wayside, only one particularly attracted His attention though "afar off." He came expecting figs and found nothing but leaves. Why expect figs though it was not the time for figs?

Clue.

1. The fig tree produces fruit first and leaf afterwards, and in some cases the leaves accompany, but do not precede the fruit.

2. This fig tree was false and untruthful; it made a loud profession by its leaf, but there was no possession.

Two Lessons. "And Jesus answered" (14): He heard what the fig tree said.

1. Jesus draws a lesson on the wonderful power of the prayer of faith.

2. Indirectly there is given to professing Christians a solemn warning on the peril of mere profession without possession.

Direct.

1. The direct application of the parable is to the Jewish nation.

2. The heathen nations of that time were barren enough, but they were not professors as Israel were.

3. A curse has rested on Israel for now 19 centuries.

4. But that fig tree will yet be restored to fruit and blessing.

Alpine Climbers.

1. It is said that skilled Alpine climbers can tell their altitude by the kind of vegetation they see growing around them.

2. Skilled spiritual guides can tell a person's spiritual plane by the graces to be observed in that life.

3. Worldly habits and outlook proclaim a life lived on the low altitude of the world.

Why Leaves Only is Considered Serious.

1. Misrepresent our Christian faith. For true religion does not consist in mere church or meeting attendance.

2. Such hinder seekers. a. The blessed man in Psalm 1 is the one who stands not in the way of sinners. b. Mere professors have always been the stumbling-block.

Why No Fruit?

1. No life, in some cases, though not in this, as leaf proves.

2. No nourishment-poorness of soil.

3. No concentration. Expending strength in producing wood and not fruit. Wasteful expenditure of energy.

4. No shelter. Exposed to the cutting east winds. Do you shelter in Him?

5. No careful scrutiny. Take time to be holy.

6. Uncongenial atmosphere. In some towns plum trees will not grow, nor some kinds of apple trees, because they are very sensitive to soot-laden atmosphere. (Cinema and theatre attenders.) Application.

1. Jesus hungers for fruitfulness, for goodness and usefulness. Shall we not seek to satisfy Him?

2. Remember, He will come for the last time, and then the curse will fall. The date of this miracle has an important bearing on its meaning and purpose. It occurred on the first week day morning of the last week of Christ's ministry. A Father's Prayer. A little boy knelt down at his father's knee to say his bedtime prayers. After he had repeated his usual ones, the father suggested offering some other. After some hesitation, the wee one said: "Dear Jesus, when I grow up, make me big and strong like daddy." The words sank deep into the father's heart for he had gone astray, and very late that night, hours after, he prayed, "My Father, now that I am grown up, make me pure and sweet like my boy." And his prayer was answered.

TWO COMMANDS.

1. "Come down and sit," Isaiah 47:1 The Sinner's Position.

2. "Arise, shine," Isaiah 60:1 Following the Sinner's Salvation.

THREE QUESTIONS IN JEREMIAH.

1. "What have I done?" Jeremiah 8:6 2. "What wilt thou do?" Jeremiah 12:5 3. "What wilt thou say?" Jeremiah 13:21

"CALLED, HELD, KEPT, USED."

Isaiah 42:6, Isaiah 42:7.

Frances Ridley Havergal, the sweet poetess, whose lyrics have cheered so many weary pilgrims on their way to the Celestial City, found great comfort in these words in her last moments. On the last day of her life she asked a friend to read to her Isaiah 42. When the friend reached these verses, Miss Havergal stopped her, saying, "Called, held, kept, used," then she whispered, "Well, I will just go Home on that." And she did go Home on that, making the promise her triumphal chariot in which she went through the gates of pearl into the city of gold.

What spiritual insight she had in the meaning of these verses. With what skill she brought out the ideas enshrined therein. If these thoughts were a source of consolation to her when dying, they should be a fountain of encouragement to those who are living. Of course, literally, these words were spoken in reference to the Divine Servant-the Lord Jesus. But they have an application to the Lord's servants here and now. We, too, are the "called ones," as is emphasised so often in the New Testament.

I. Called-Salvation.

1. All are called, yet all have not responded to the call. Once in a Court of Law a very small man was pushing his way through a crowd. "What are you pushing for?" inquired some. "Why, I'm called," he replied. At once all made way for him.

2. The call to salvation is a call to holy living as text shows.

3. He has a perfect right to call us-we belong to Him. He has right as well as love on His side.

II. Held-Companionship.

1. What condescension on His part.

2. When we respond to His call, He will become our Friend. We shall then be admitted into His fellowship.

III. Kept-Preservation.

1. Kept, not always from temptation and trial: not always from sorrow and affliction, not from crosses and losses, but kept in and through, and sometimes by, all these processes of discipline.

2. On a tombstone there is simply name and one word, "Kept." What a glorious epitome of a life of faith and trust in the Saviour.

IV. Used-Service.

1. It is said that in Athens of old, there was a law to the effect that any man who had a lighted candle, and refused to allow another to light his at it, was punished with death.

2. If God has lighted our candle, let us light others. Let us allow others to be lightened by us.

THREE IMPORTANT POSITIONS.

Mark 3:3; 1 Kings 17:1; Php_4:1.

"Can your horse run fast?" was a question addressed to a boy by a gentleman as the former was holding the horse's head in a busy London street. He replied, "No, sir; he cannot run fast, but he can stand fast"; a great quality to be admired and commended in a horse. Yes, and in men and women. For these are difficult days, and there are many temptations to turn us from the paths that are right and good.

How can we stand fast in times of trial and temptation is an important question. For our comfort, let us notice that this is not the first position we should take. There are two prior ones, as follows:

I. Stand Forth (Mark 3:3). This is the sinner's position. The man in the story here was only conscious of shortcomings, and not moral leprosy, yet he needed the healing touch of the Saviour just as much as the leper. This is a lesson all very respectable sinners should take to heart. Yet, whether conscious of moral leprosy or not, we all need the Saviour. To receive His blessed healing ministries we must take the definite step to Him, standing forth even in the midst (see marginal note), that is, a public confession of our sinnership.

II. Stand Before (1 Kings 17:1). This is the position of the believer. Elijah was known as the man who stood before God. This position is suggestive of fellowship as well as service. We are saved that we might, yea, should, might we not say must stand before God; that is to say, that we might enter into blessed friendship with Him, and such a friendship bearing the fruit of happy and successful service.

III. Stand Fast (Php_4:1). This is the position of the loyal friend, loyal to all the interests of the Lord. This follows naturally the other two; in fact, the prior positions fit us for this one. Oh, to be true to Him at all times under all circumstances, and at all costs! THE POWER OF THE DIVINE TOUCH.

I. The Power of His Touch in Nature (Psalms 144:5).

II. The Ministry of His Touch in Grace:

1. Awakening,|1 Kings 19:5|

2. Healing,|Matthew 8:3|

3. Cleansing, |Isaiah 6:7|

4. Shrivelling the self-life, |Genesis 32:25|

5. Bestowing Holiness,|Exodus 29:37|

6. Giving a willingness to serve,|1 Samuel 10:26|

7. Bestowing power to speak, |Jeremiah 1:9|

8. Suffering, |Job 19:21|

PAYMENT OF VOWS.

Psalms 66:13, Psalms 66:14.

Introduction.

Returning Emigrant.

A ship on its voyage home was caught in a terrific storm, and it was feared she might founder.

One of the passengers who was returning to his native land with a fortune, was full of terror, and, kneeling before a statue of St. Christopher, kept loudly calling upon the saint in prayer, promising, if he would only interfere, and bring him safe to land, a wax taper the size of his statue in Paris.

"Look out what you promise," said a bystander; "although you sell off all your property, you can't pay for it."

"Hold your tongue, you fool," said the other; then lowering his voice, lest the saint should hear, said: "Do you suppose I mean what I say? If once I get to land, I won't give him a tallow candle."

Thus his vow was insincere and untruthful, made with no intention of being kept.

What about You? We are prepared to condemn severely such meanness and deceit. We cannot find words to express adequately one's abhorrence of such conduct. But what about you? Have you any unpaid vows? Not Deceit, but Forgetfulness. We can hardly think we all could answer "No." We do not think any of us are guilty of such deceit. When we made our vows we meant to keep them. But, alas, we so easily forget. You remember what vows you made to the Lord in that time of severe trial and sickness. Is it true that the debt is not yet paid, though years have passed away? If so, thank God you are still here in the body, and we trust you will say with David: "I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all His people."

Millennial Psalm.

1. This is one of the Millennial Psalms, and is worthy of notice. It is prophetic as well as commemorative.

2. He calls upon all to praise God.

3. He then foretells that they shall do so.

4. And having stirred up all people, and all God's people in particular, he stirs up himself. A Clue.

1. Psalms 66:2 gives us a clue to a great difficulty.

2. How is it that, after Christ's glorious Millennial reign, there can possibly be found men so evil as to combine in one last terrible revolt?

3. Here you have the clue-it is, as A.V. margin, only "a feigned obedience" rendered by many in the Millennium.

4. "Mighty power" alone changes not the enemy, and only causes him to yield feigned obedience.

5. It is only the greatness of His love that can change enemies into friends, and prompt unfeigned obedience.

Commemorative.

1. From Psalms 66:1-7 all people are invited to praise Him.

2. But from Psalms 66:8 there is a difference-for here God's people are invited so do so-"O bless our God" (Psalms 66:8).

3. The Psalmist remembers some national and personal deliverance.

4. It was David's own experience; and he failed not to keep his promise.

5. And may you and I emulate him in that virtue.

6. In dealing with this subject will you please first notice.

I. When the Vow was Made.

1. The vow was made when "I was in trouble."

2. This was no ordinary trouble. R.V. renders it as "distress."

3. There had been a grievous trouble-something that had greatly distressed him.

4. Whatever we have to say about the wisdom of making vows, we naturally incline to make them when in distress.

5. Making vows was a general habit in the Old Testament.

6. And in the New Testament, too, for did not Paul go to Jerusalem under a vow.

Why?

1. I fear the motives which prompts the making of vows are not always commendable.

2. Too often a vow is made as a bribe to purchase His interference and assistance.

3. Instead of as a thank-offering.

4. Oh, friends, let us take care of our motives!

II. Why Our Vows Should be Kept.

1. Self-respect. a. My first reason why we should keep our vows is self-respect. b. This is, of course, the lowest ground to take, but it is good to begin low. c. As persons of honour, we should scorn to make a solemn promise when in dire need, and then when the danger has passed forget all about it. d. Take a lesson from Carthage-the great Carthaginian, General Hamilcar, had a little son named Hannibal. When the boy was nine years old he begged very hard that his father should take him to battle with him. Hamilcar consented, but before they went, he made Hannibal place his hand on the altar of his idol god, and swear that he would make perpetual war with the Romans. Hannibal kept his word. He spent 36 years fighting them, and at the end of a life of 70 years he had not forgotten his vow.

2. Respect for God. a. This should be our second reason. b. We would not think so lightly of our vows if we really understood the view God takes of such. c. Do you know that God thought so seriously of vows that He devoted a whole chapter, and that the last one in the book of Leviticus, to that question. d. Jacob made a vow, the morning following the first night he spent as a fugitive from home. Twenty-one years afterward He appeared unto him, saying, "I am the God of Bethel, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto Me" (Genesis 31:13). e. For 21 years God had treasured that vow. f. And all this so impressed the Jews that they considered a vow as a very sacred thing.

3. Fear of God. a. This is our third reason. b. Look at the view the Psalmist gives of God (Psalms 66:5, Psalms 66:3, Psalms 66:5 of Psalm 66). c. He did not think God was a being to be played with. d. He did not dream that he could treat God lightly. e. Do you wonder that the son of one who held such majestic views of God should write: "Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay" (Ecclesiastes 5:4-5).

II. How we May Keep our Vows. What is Easy. The giving of gifts, i.e., money, etc. is quite easy. But usually our vows are concerning betterment of life. And that is difficult.

Dr. Johnson in his "Prayers and Meditations" wrote: "I have now spent 55 years in resolving, having from the earliest time almost that I can remember, been forming schemes of a better life. I have done nothing. The need of doing therefore is pressing, since the time of doing is short. O God, grant me to resolve aright, and to keep my resolutions, for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen."

Conclusion-A Warning.

Hardest Ice. In conclusion, let us remind you of a fact in natural science which conveys a very solemn lesson: The hardest ice is that which freezes after a thaw. The Thaw.

1. You know something of a thaw in your experience.

2. Your indifference to God and Divine things melted away when you were in trouble, when you were face to face with death, or disaster, or some terrible catastrophe.

3. And you would then give yourself to Him and your service.

4. Take care of freezing!

Most Difficult. The most difficult people to deal with are those who once laboured under deep spiritual concern, but have quenched all tender and yearning feelings for God.

What is Expected.

1. Remember Murray McCheyne's saying that "spared fig trees should bear much fruit."

2. Let your prayer be:

"Saviour, Thy dying love, Thou gavest me, Nor should I ought withhold, my Lord, from Thee; In love my soul would bow, my heart fulfil its vow; Some offering bring Thee now, something for Thee."

3. And you remember the Divine order, as pointed out by St. Paul in 2 Corinthians 8:5.

4. The Macedonian Christians gave liberally, but said he, they "first gave their own selves to the Lord."

5. This was what the Psalmist did, and so must we.

ROPES AND SACKCLOTH;

or, how to meet God.

1 Kings 20:32.

King Edward III, in 1327, besieged Calais, and when it was in extremity agreed to spare the place on condition that six of its principal citizens came out, clothed in sackcloth and halters round their necks. They were spared death only through the intercession of his wife, Queen Adelaide. We wonder if Edward III got his idea from the Bible? For there is a similar scene in 1 Kings 20. During the life of the Prophet Elijah, 5 years after Carmel, Benhadad, King of Syria, assisted by 32 Kings, came against Israel. Ahab was frightened, and agreed to pay an indemnity to save himself and people. But Benhadad went too far, and God delivered him into the hand of Ahab, a great slaughter following. Now without an army, in a strange land, he was in a dreadful position. Then his advisers spake.

"We have heard that the Kings of Israel are merciful Kings," said they, and they decided to throw themselves on his mercy. Clothing themselves with sackcloth, and with ropes around their necks, a deputation thus waited upon the King, and succeeded in securing life and liberty. On the lonely Isle of Patmos, which is only 15 miles in circumference, lived a hermit. Asked why he was living in such seclusion, he replied: "Some day I have to meet God. I am preparing for that day." His desire for readiness is commendable, but not the mode of preparation. The best preparation to meet God up in the Better Land is to meet Him down here. "There will I meet with you," said God to Moses, referring to the Ark with its blood-sprinkled Mercy Seat. God has His meeting-place, and that is the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. Reading this story, note:

I. Their Peril. They were enemies, and had taken up arms against Israel. We are rebels to God both by birth and choice. "He that is not with Me, is against Me," is the Word of the Lord.

II. Their Hope. They heard of the mercy of Israel, whom they had come up to fight. Is not our God merciful? Mercy is one of His moral attributes. We have a merciful God.

III. Their Action.

1. Clothed themselves with sackcloth-emblem of sorrow-our grief on account of our sins.

2. Put ropes around their necks-their confession by deed that they were worthy of death.

3. Their confession by word of mouth, and plea for mercy.

IV. Their Salvation.

1. Pardon. "Come up into the chariot."

2. Friendship. Treated as friends and not as enemies.

3. Restoration. Restored him back to his house and friends and to his former possessions. We gain in Christ more than we lost in Adam.

4. Covenant. See Hebrews 8:10-13. THE NEED OF THOUGHT.

Isaiah 1:3.

Thoughtfulness.

1. How true are the words of Hood, the poet: "But evil is wrought by want of thought as well as want of heart."

2. Parents know how true this is. Much of the pain and sorrow they suffer through the actions of their children is not for want of heart, so much as want of thought.

3. "So-and-so is most inconsiderate," we often say. It is sheer thoughtlessness which is the cause of much of life's heartaches and pains.

4. Note God's plaintive lament in Isaiah 1:3. Even the ox and ass were more considerate than Israel. God had fed and cared for Israel, yet they did not love and care for Him, and all this was the result of thoughtlessness. Even the very animals are more grateful to us for what we give than we are to God for what He gives.

5. Oh, we sometimes say, "Oh, if people would only think!" Note God's appeal for thought in connection with the forgiveness of sins in Isaiah 1:18.

6. This is not a thinking age.

7. But what must I consider? Five things.

I. "When I consider Thy Heavens" (Psalms 8:3).

1. The study of the Heavens was the favourite occupation of the Eastern shepherds.

2. It was in the East the science of Astronomy had its origin.

3. Do you ever consider the Heavens? Let us look up a little oftener.

4. David, the writer of this Psalm, had been a shepherd, and often as he kept his father's sheep he considered the Heavens. What was the result of his meditation? a. Their greatness makes man look so small and mean. And yet nowhere is God stated to love the stars, but man. Man is of more value than many stars or suns. b. The calmness of their revolutions shame the fussiness and passion of men. It is Longfellow who speaks of a star as:

"So still and saintlike,

No fret and worry, and anger and wrath." c. Their order shames our disorder. They obey the command of God. Here there is nought but strife, discord, disobedience. Thus I get little encouragement from that study.

II. "Consider the Lilies of the Field" (Matthew 6:28).

1. An old man called flowers "God's smiles." How often He smiles then! The stars are the flowers of the skies, and flowers are the stars of the earth.

2. As I consider the lilies, I notice their purity and beauty, but that only condemns my impurity and ugliness.

III. "Consider the Ravens." God feedeth them (Luke 12:24).

1. Remember they are unclean. Surely God will do naught for them! Oh, wonder of wonders, He cares for ravens!

2. A PLACE WAS FOUND FOR THE RAVENS, EVEN IN THE

Ark, and God used them as "His servants to feed Elijah. I am like a raven-unclean-but God has a thought for me, and has made provision for the supplying of my complex needs.

IV. "For Consider Him" (Hebrews 12:3).

1. What a subject for study! You can never exhaust this subject.

2. His greatness, calmness, obedience, purity, beauty, entrance me. The beauty and order and greatness of the stars and hills fade into insignificance.

3. But as I consider His death, I find it is life to me.

V. Let us consider one Another to Provoke (Hebrews 10:24).

1. Oh, yes, we are worth considering. There is something to admire.

2. But why? To provoke one another-to arouse one another to love and good works.

"BUT THOU."

Psalms 3:3.

"But Thou."

1. Ah, that makes all the difference!

2. It reminds one of a gloomy day-leaden sky, nothing but a dreary drab.

3. All of a sudden there is a rift in the dull, heavy clouds, a patch of blue sky is seen and the sun streams through.

4. What a sullen sky spread itself over the Psalmist. All was darkness.

5. "But Thou." Ah, that made all the difference. It was that fact that altered the whole situation.

6. Oh, let us never forget that, whoever we lose, and whoever leaves us, we still have God.

7. We do not wonder that this Psalm was used by the French Protestants during persecution times as a signal for the stationing of sentinels to keep watch against sudden attack.

8. It not only acted as a signal, but a wholesome reminder of their Divine Protector and Protection.

Results of Remembrance of the Lord.

1. Earnest and successful prayer (Psalms 3:4).

2. Restfulness (Psalms 3:5).

3. Hopefulness (Psalms 3:6) and courage.

4. Importunity. THE VALUE OF AWE.

Psalms 4:4.

Strange.

1. What a strange exhortation to come immediately after the exulting claim to be the Lord's own.

2. "Awe!" Not fear or reverence. Awe is a holy dread, a reverential fear.

3. But there is a most fruitful connection between the two. The World and Awe.

1. Psalms 4:2, lying and falsehood, are two fruits of a lack of awe.

2. What strikes one more than anything else when looking at the mass of men and women of to-day is the utter absence of awe. a. There is no awe of life. Life is not treated with solemnity and reverence. There is levity and frivolity. b. There is no awe of death. Jesus came to take away the fear, but not awe of death, e.g., How lightly people take their own lives. c. There is no awe of God. If John 3:16 takes away the awful fear, it ought to make all the inhabitants of the earth stand in awe of Him. We should not be afraid of God; we should be in awe of Him. The Church and Awe.

1. But we must not dream that awe is lost only in the thought and life of the worldling.

2. There is an absence of awe even amongst Christians.

3. Why, it is never or seldom spoken of in our pulpits!

4. What a loss that means.

One has said that the world that has banished awe has banished wholesome laughter. The ages that have known most of religious awe are the ages from which have come the most lyrical notes of Christian joy. The older ages lived and breathed and rejoiced in God amidst their dark theologies. Bernard had stern stupendous ideas of the Deity, and yet it was he who sang, "Jesus, the very thought of Thee." Samuel Rutherford was clasped in all the rigours of a Calvinism which touches the very springs of awe in the human breast, and yet from him came the love letters of Christianity.

Note the connection of Verses 3 and 4.

1. Though I am His possession, I must not take liberties with Him; I must be respectful and reverential.

2. And it means, too, that such a fact of God setting sinners apart for Himself is awe-inspiring.

Why this Strange Union of Awe and Sin?

1. Awe is not everything.

2. The Hindus treat cruelly the cattle they worship.

3. And there is One who can keep us from sin.

ONLY GOOD, THE LIGHT OF HIS COUNTENANCE.

Psalms 4:6.

The clamour of many is after the supreme good. Here we have the many asking an important question. It is the voice of the worldling. Many replies have been given and tried, but ail to no purpose. What about the Lord's own dear children? They, too, sometimes ask the same question, only in the very next breath they own up to the real source of all good: "Lift Thou up upon us a banner as the light of Thy countenance" (Edersheim). What is the meaning of this? It means that the Psalmist was not so much seeking for good as the Good One; not good in the abstract, but good in the Person; and this is only another way of saying, as he does elsewhere: "I have no good beyond Thee" (Psalms 16:2., R.V.). That is to say, our Heaven is the consciousness of His smile.

"The light of His countenance," meaning the Lord's smile and benediction. The Lord taught Israel it was the best thing Aaron and the priests could ask for Israel (Numbers 6:26). This means:

I. Life. For "In the light of the King's countenance is life" (Proverbs 16:15).

II. Joy. For "Thou hast made me exceeding glad with Thy countenance" (Psalms 21:6). Quoted "Full of joy" in Acts 2:28.

III. Good. All good. What a word is Good! All that that word stands for, and more, we have in Christ.

OVERTAKEN BY BLESSINGS.

Deuteronomy 28:2.

What a great difference there is between blessings following and overtaking us! It is one thing to follow a person, but quite another to catch up with them. "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me." Yes, that is good, but will they overtake me? The Psalmist knew what it was to be overtaken with blessings, for he could say: "Blessed be the Lord who daily loadeth us with blessings." The chariot of God's gracious benevolence had daily caught up with him, discharging its blessings.

If His blessings are to overtake us, studying this verse and context, we note that certain conditions must be kept.

I. Redeemed Ones only are overtaken with blessings. Israel were in that happy position and condition, being the redeemed of the Lord. If we have not yet come under the shadow of the Cross of Christ, and under the safety of the Sprinkling of Blood, the Avenger of Blood is after us; we are bidden to flee to our Refuge "lest the avenger of blood overtake the slayer" (Deuteronomy 19:6). Remember that later on in this chapter we read of curses following and overtaking the sinner. Dread, dread business!

II. Learners. Only those who hearken diligently to the Lord and His message are overtaken with blessings. Hearken to the Voice of the Lord as we have it in the Word of God, for the Holy Spirit will make the Written Word a living Voice in our hearts.

III. Obedient Ones. The overtaken ones must be "observers of the law of God." You know what an observer is? Take a walk in an Art Gallery, and watch the art expert gazing at the works of art, and you will learn what observing is. Watch a mother looking at her firstborn sleeping in his cradle, and you learn what, observation really is.

IV. Serving Ones. Only they who "do" are overtaken by blessings. It is not sufficient to become acquainted with His will; we must- "Trust and obey, for there's no other way To be happy in Jesus, than to trust and obey." In another place the Psalmist could say, "My soul followeth hard after Thee." Is that your attitude? Then you will catch up with Him, for He will suddenly reveal Himself to you. THE VALUE OF SOLILOQUY.

Psalms 4:4.

Most Unusual.

1. This is a most unusual exhortation.

2. It is advice to practice the art of soliloquy.

3. Generally the Bible urges us to commune with the Lord.

4. One reason why we do not talk to ourselves much is because we do not live lonely lives. To the Worldling.

1. Perhaps it was addressed to the worldling 2. The sinner must commune with his own heart before he can hope to commune with the Lord. To Christian.

1. It is a similar exhortation to that in 2 Corinthians 13:5.

2. Here we who profess to be Christians are exhorted to examine, criticise ourselves, and not another. To Workers. Cecil, in his "Advice to Ministers," said to a young minister: "A man who talks to himself will find out what suits the heart of man." To Those who have a Grievance.

1. Strange alternative rendering in margin of R.V., viz., "Be ye angry, and sin not."

2. It is so rendered in the Septuagint, and quoted as such in Ephesians 4:26.

3. There is a sinless anger, because it is an anger against nothing but what is sin.

4. It is an anger created by the Holy Ghost.

5. An anger that is not hasty.

6. An anger that is not a mere emotion, but a conviction.

7. An anger that can stand being slept upon.

8. Really it is a word against rashness.

DESIRING AND SEEKING.

Psalms 27:4

Introduction.

1. Luther remarked that the Bible has hands to grip, eyes to see, feet to run.

2. Not so fanciful as some suppose.

3. The Bible not only was, but is, inspired.

4. Many a text starts forth and grips us.

I. Longing. The greatness of our desires is one proof of our greatness.

1. The animals are creatures of but few desires.

2. The desires the Psalmist refers to were concerning the Lord.

II. Seeking. It is not sufficient to desire without seeking. "That will I seek after."

III. Expecting. Too often we seek for things and do not expect them. R .V., "One thing have I asked of the Lord."

IV. Remembering. One reason why we do not look out for answers is because we ask for so many things that we forget what we have asked. He could say, "One thing have I desired of the Lord."

V. Right Desire. What one thing did he desire? To abide in the house of the Lord constantly. Do we love the sanctuary as much as that?

VI. Reason. Why he wished to abide constantly in God's House.

1. To behold the beauty of the Lord.

2. To commune with the Lord.

3. To inquire of the Lord.

"Inquire"-ask Him to explain the difficult things of His Word and Providence.

Conclusion.

1. We can abide in His Presence, without abiding constantly in any earthly house or building.

2. We can behold the beauty of the Lord. "Unto you that believe He is precious."

3. We can commune and inquire of the Lord. A DIVINE BED-MAKER.

Psalms 41:3.

A poor young Christian girl, an invalid through the drunken habits of father, mother, and brother, was very much neglected. Sometimes her bed was not made for six weeks. One day her brother came home almost sober, when she prevailed upon him to make her bed. This he did so unskilfully that she was placed at great discomfort. She sorrowfully picked up her "Daily Light," and was much comforted by reading, "Thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." She thus was assured that the Lord knew all about her, and she was rested. The wonder and beauty of the Bible is that it conveys to us, in simple vet suitable language, its wonderfully deep teaching. This figure of speech conveys several suggestive lessons.

I. What a mercy that we have a bed to make! Let us not forget this as one of our mercies for which to thank God. "He had not where to lay His head."

II He is with us, else how could He make our bed? Satan is a master of strategy, and knows when and how to attack us. When we are weak and ill, he simply swoops down upon us, and one of his master strikes is to try and persuade us that the Lord has forgotten and forsaken us. But how can He? He has promised never to leave us. And He always keeps His word. How could He make our bed unless He is with us?

III. He is with us for a purpose. Not merely to while away the time, but to do something very definite for us. His visits to this earth were always for very specific reasons and missions. He came not merely to sympathise, but to relieve us.

IV. He is with us to do for us what we cannot do for ourselves. How weak and helpless are we when ill, and how unable to make our bed. How weak and helpless we are by nature, and how utterly unable to save ourselves. But He is our Saviour, and will accomplish for us what we cannot do; and how tenderly, graciously, and skilfully He will make our bed.

V. He will do for us what we do not deserve. Sometimes good turns are done to and for us because we have rendered good service to our kind friend. But what have we done for Him? We are, by nature, His enemies by wicked works.

VI. He will make us comfortable and happy, for that surely is the thought conveyed by this statement concerning His bed-making. He will give us rest from an accusing conscience through the Precious Blood and from corroding care. Dr. Payson when racked with pain, exclaimed, "I have great pain; yet I have great peace." There are seven blessings in this Psalm for those who trust in the Lord: 1st, Deliverance in trouble (Psalms 41:5); 2nd, Preservation; 3rd, Length of days; 4th, Deliverance for body; 5th, Prosperity; 6th, Strength when most needed; 7th, Bed, comfort in time of sickness. THE SECRET OF LIFE AND BEAUTY.

Numbers 17:8.

This Scripture is one of the Old Testament portions for Church services. It is a strange chapter, yet yields helpful lessons. It points out the secret of spring in our souls. Whilst Israel were in the wilderness, owing to jealousy, Korah, Dathan, and Abiram raised insurrection. In spite of awful judgment it was not quelled. God resorted to a method that proved successful, the placing and testing of rods.

Lesson: When in trouble, you do as Moses did. Leave the difficulty in His hand, and He will settle the matter. The rods were, of course, the Eastern walking sticks. What a miracle! you say. Yes, but such a miracle takes place in every Christian soul. See God's will for Aaron's rod. But it has no life.

I. Lifeless. My soul is like that rod: dead and lifeless owing to severance from God by the knife of sin.

1. Though not at all objectionable.

2. Though stripped of all unpleasant evidences of death.

3. Though had been used to do great things.

II. Living. My soul can become like Aaron's, rod, provided I place myself where God can work.

The place of life-giving was the place where there was evidence of life given, i.e., before the Ark, and on its lid, known as Mercy Seat, blood was sprinkled.

Oh, get down before the Cross of Jesus! Don't speculate as to how the Spirit of God will work, but lay yourself down at His feet. And just place yourself as you are, as Moses placed the rods. With this difference, all, not one in twelve, who put themselves down at His feet will have life given to them. Almond tree flowers in January and bears fruit in April. This did all in one night.

III. Fruitbearing. My soul can become as this rod, not only having life, but also beauty and fruit.

All true Christians have life. All have not beauty of character and fruitfulness of service. "Glorious in holiness." The beauty of holiness."

IV. Honoured. Solemn fact-only the rod that had brought forth buds, blossom and fruit, was honoured by having a permanent place before His presence.

Fruit decides character, and character decides destiny.

"THY WORDS WERE FOUND."

Jeremiah 15:16.

Observe that in this verse we have both "words" and "Word." In words most certainly we have the written Word, which we now know as the Bible; but surely in Word we have the Living Word, the Lord Jesus. The Living Word, the Lord Jesus, is found in the Written Word, the Bible. Note what we find in this verse:

I. Inspiration-"Thy Words."

II. Searching-"Found."

III. Satisfaction-"Eat them."

IV. Rejoicing-"The Joy."

V. Privilege-"I am called."

VI. Separation-"I sat not" (Jeremiah 15:17).

VII. Testimony-"I sat alone" (Jeremiah 15:17).

LED BY THE LORD.

Psalms 5:8.

Here we have the Psalmist's prayer for guidance. This is a familiar expression in the Psalms. As a man of affairs, he was only too conscious of the fact that it is not in man to direct successfully his own steps. Pondering on this request for guidance, four questions suggest themselves.

I. Why?

1. Because of the Enemy. Like the Psalmist, we are surrounded by the enemies of the King of kings. Of those there are: a. "Those which observe me" (A.V., margin), a very large class indeed. Then there are: b. "Them that lie in wait for me," as is suggested by the margin of the R.V.

2. Because of my Ignorance and Helplessness. We are just as weak and helpless as a child; and just as silly as sheep.

3. Because of His Reputation. "For Thy Name's sake lead me and guide me" (Psalms 31:3).

II. How?

1. He leads us Himself, and does not leave us merely to angels.

2. He does it by His Word and His Spirit: "O send out Thy light and Thy truth, let them lead me" (Psalms 43:3).

III. Where?

1. "Lead me to the Rock that is higher than I" (Psalms 61:2). We must first be led to Himself, who is the Rock here referred to.

2. "He leadeth me beside the still Waters," that is, the waters of quietness (Psalm 23). He gives quietness and rest.

3. "So He led them through the depths" (Psalms 106:9).

4. "To Him which led His people through the wilderness," thanks must be given (Psalms 136:16).

5. In the paths of righteousness (Psa. 23).

IV. When?

1. In day time and night. "In the day time also He led them with a cloud, and all the night with a light of fire" (Psalms 78:14).

2. Wherever I go on sea or land. "If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me" (Psalms 139:8-9).

"HE LEADETH ME."

Psalms 23:2.

Introduction.

Doing Without.

The three words of our text were brought to mind by a little scene witnessed. A little child was trying to walk, the mother was tenderly watching, and held out her hand, but the child wanted to walk alone, and waved her aside. Said the mother: "She thinks she can do without me."

Independence is good in some things. It was right and proper that the wee girlie should try to walk alone. But independence in spiritual things is disastrous. He Himself says: "Without Me ye can do nothing." What disasters often fall upon Alpine climbers who attempt to scale the heights without a guide, and without safe company. God has a large family, yet none able to walk alone.

Value of a Guide. To have a guide means not only to make sure of life, but to make the best of life. We see more of London in a week than many do in a month if we have with us a friend thoroughly acquainted with it.

"He"-"Me."

1. What a blessed companionship!

2. He, the Good Shepherd, not only gave His life for the sheep, but He gives His life to His sheep, and lives His life for His sheep.

3. "He leadeth me." Have you discovered your need of a Guide as well as Saviour? But Where? Where does He lead?

I. He Leads to Repentance. "The goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance" (Romans 2:4).

II. He Leads to Life. "Narrow is the way that leadeth to life" (Matthew 7:14).

III. He Leadeth to Transfiguration (Mark 9:2).

1. "After six days Jesus taketh with Him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themselves: and He was transfigured before them."

2. Jesus was transfigured.

3. And they were never the same afterwards.

4. If He is made real to us, and we behold His beauty, we are spoiled for the world.

IV. He Leads to Hidden Truths and Pleasant Surprises (Isaiah 42:16). Three thoughts here.

1. He will guide through difficult paths. He will 2. Guide to fresh discovery of truths. And He will 3. Guide to pleasant surprises.

SEVEN CLASSES IN THE DISCIPLES' PRAYER.

Matthew 6:9-15.

I. As Children, when we say, "Our Father."

II. As Worshippers, when we say, "Hallowed be Thy Name."

III. As Subjects, when we say, "Thy kingdom come."

IV. As Servants, when we say, "Thy will be done."

V. As Suppliants, when we say, "Give us this day," etc.

VI. As Confessors, when we say, "Forgive us," etc.

VII. As Dependents, when we say, "Deliver us," etc.

Or, as some one has put it:

I. Our Position, a son adopted, "Our Father."

II. Our Fitness, a worshipper sanctified, "Hallowed."

III. Our Allegiance, a citizen, "Thy kingdom."

IV. Our Usefulness, a servant employed, "Thy will be done."

V. Our Provision, a beggar fed, "Give us this day."

VI. Our Pardon, a sinner absolved, "Forgive us our debts."

VII. Our Safety, a pilgrim guided, "Lead us not into temptation."

VIII. Our Victory, a soldier succoured, "Deliver us from all evil."

"THEY LEFT HIM AND WENT THEIR WAY"

Mark 12:12.

"If the cap fits put it on," we say. Yes, we generally do, but the question is, how do we put it on? The Scribes and Pharisees felt our Lord's message was for them; they put the cap on, and sought to slay our Lord. But they were unable to lay hold on Him, and then we read, "They left Him and went their way." Mark, "their way," not the Lord's way. There is much in the Word of God about ways. There are but two ways-we are either on one or the other.

I. Own Way (Isaiah 53:6).

1. It is a Broad Way (Matthew 7:13). In the cities the broad road is generally the best. Not so in the things of the soul. This appears to be the best, but it leads to ruin.

2. It is a Hard Way (Proverbs 13:15). "The way of transgressers is hard." No doubt easy for a time, but "hard" further on.

3. It is a Deceptive Way (Proverbs 16:25). Paul says in Romans 3:16 : "Destruction and misery are in their ways." Yes, in theirs, but not in God's way.

II. God's Way. "Expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly" (Acts 18:26), was the mission of Aquila and Priscilla, so far as Apollos was concerned.

1. It is the Way of Salvation (Acts 16:17).

2. It is the Way of Righteousness (Matthew 21:32). "He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness" (Psa. 23).

3. It is the Way of Peace (Luke 1:79). "My foot hath held his steps."

Application.

Can you say with Job, "His way have I kept and not declined" (Job 23:11)? If not, will you say Isaiah 2:3 : "Come. . . and He will teach us of His ways." To walk in "His way" we must "Come to Him." The reason they "went their ways" was because they left Him. Cling to Him at all costs.

CLEANNESS.

Job 17:9.

A very remarkable thing took place in a home some time ago. The youngest child, a boy of ten years, suddenly became solicitous about the cleanness of his hands. Each time he entered the house, he made a bee-line for the tap. The family noticed that he was not anxious about the cleanness of his neck and face, but only his hands, for the "tide-mark" on his neck remained. His elder brother inquired of him the reason for this unusual behaviour, to which he replied: "I want to be strong." "But what has the tap and the washing of your hands to do with strength?" he further inquired. "Well, it's in the Bible," said the boy, and then he quoted the above verse. He had to be told that there was much else beside hands and bodies that required cleansing. That the Bible speaks of:

I. A Clean Conscience. "Purge your conscience" (Hebrews 9:14).

II. A Clean Heart. "Create in me a clean heart, O God" (Psalms 51:10).

III. A Clean Mouth. For when God saves a person He captures the tongue, cleansing the mouth from obscenity and blasphemy, from filthy speaking, and improper jesting. Study the following Scriptures: Ephesians 5:4; James 5:12. A question is: "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?" (Job 14:4). No one, but the Lord Jesus. He can.

STANDING IN THE WAY OF SINNERS.

Psalms 1:1.

We clearly see the reason why we should not walk in the counsel of the ungodly by a study of the context. But we must go further. Here we are told not to stand in the way of sinners.

I. Standing in the Way with Sinners. Some do this to get them to Christ, and that is right. But the idea here is that of making acquaintances and friends and confidents of the ungodly. Walking out with them. This we must not do. Instead, make friends with God's children.

II. Standing in the Sinner's Way and Not God's Way. This is a further thought. We should not travel in the way of the ungodly. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but---." That is not the way we must go.

III. Standing in the Way of Sinners Coming to Christ. Hindering sinners coming to Christ. What a tragedy! How can we be hindrances? We can do so by being very bad samples. Bad samples do not commend the goods. No commercial traveller would ever be guilty of such conduct. Don't be thankful for new light and not walk in it. What a hindrance is an inconsistent life.

SITTING IN THE SEAT OF THE SCORNFUL

Psalms 1:1.

This is the last step in wickedness.

Sin is Progressive. I begin by walking in the counsel of the ungodly. Then I am found in the way of sinners. At last I am sitting in seat of scornful. The Three Degrees of Sinfulness.

1. Simply ungodly-not godlike-sin by not doing.

2. Then sinners-those who step over-sin by action.

3. Then scornful-the contemplation-sin by ridiculing. The Last State is Worst. That one who turns sacred things into ridicule has got as low as he can possibly get. He is a murderer. George M'Donald says: "Contempt is murder committed by the intellect, as hatred is murder committed by the heart." The Seat of the Joker in Holy Things is as bad as the seat of the scornful. Never use the Word of God irreverently.

See the Connection of Scornful with the delight in the Word of God. Note Jeremiah 15:17. Who was this one who sat not in the assembly of mockers? One who finds God's Word the joy and rejoicing of his heart.

Questions.

1. Do you delight in the Word of God?

2. Do you meditate upon it day and night?

3. Is it the joy and rejoicing of your heart? A TONIC FOR THE FEARFUL.

Psalms 2:4.

I. Rightly considered, these verses form a tonic for the fearful.

II. How concerned we get when Divine Truth is attacked.

1. See how the Lord takes it, also Psalms 37:13 and Psalms 59:8.

2. Laughs at these efforts, as father laughs at the efforts of his little son to get something out of a closed hand.

3. The inspired interpretation of this is Acts 4:25-28, which asserts its fulfilment in the crucifixion.

4. It will be true of the efforts during the dark days to come prior to the ushering in of the Millennium.

III. How fearful we become when we hear of wars and rumours of wars. But listen to Luke 21:28. Don't hang your head down, but do as the Lord bids.

LIFE AS A STORY.

Psalms 90:9.

This is the oldest Psalm in the Bible, and was composed by Moses during the forty years' wandering in the wilderness. There is much that we could with profit dwell upon, but at the moment fix your attention upon Psalms 90:9, as above. Life is likened to a tale that is told, not read. Those were the days when reading matter was not as common or plentiful as to-day. Consequently there were quite a number of men who were professional storytellers. These were always welcomed in military camps and in towns and villages. The metaphor is a simple yet suggestive one.

I. There are long tales and short ones, so there are long lives and there are very short ones. Of course we cannot always measure life by years, as we can measure a story by pages or inches. It is what we put into life that counts. We must look upon life as a measure to be filled and not as a goblet to be drained. It is what we put into our days and into our years that will decide the value of the life lived.

II. There are dull tales, and there are very interesting ones, so there are lives that are very hum-drum, very sober and unattractive; whereas there are lives full of change and very exciting. Of course tastes differ, and what seems drab and uninteresting to some is considered as quite opposite by others.

III. There are bad tales and there are good ones, so there are lives that are really bad, exerting a baneful influence, whereas there are lives that are boons and blessings to all. Only one life to live, and how most of us long to be as useful and helpful as possible.

IV. There are tales that have a glorious mission, whereas there are others that are constantly producing nothing but evil; so there are lives just like that. We can think of books that have produced great and beneficial results, such as "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which contributed very largely to opening the eyes of the world to the awfulness of slavery, etc., etc.

V. How can my life be as a good and beneficial tale? There are three conditions.

1. Must have the Right Author. It takes a genius to produce a really great tale, one that will live on and on for generations. Only the Lord Jesus Christ can produce a life that is as a good, useful, and helpful tale. We must be His workmanship. We cannot do this ourselves. We must resign ourselves to His gracious and marvellous creative skill.

2. Must have the Right Hero. The quality of the book can be decided, and indeed hangs upon the quality of its hero. If Christ is the pivot and centre of our lives then all is well.

3. Must have the Right Object. A book without an object is likely to be a weak and watery one, a very flat and dull one. What is the object of your life? Are you doing everything for the glory of God? Remember the famous snippet from a great Catechism: "Man's chief end is to glorify God and to enjoy Him for ever." What a great object is this! What kind of a tale is your life telling? THE THREE B's.

I. Bag. For my sins (Job 14:17). When reading this verse there came into mind a practice at sea-side towns of putting dogs and cats that have been condemned, into a bag, with weights, tied, and then cast into the river or sea. This the Lord does, in figure, with sins.

II. Book. For My Name (Psalms 139:16; Php_4:3). What a great privilege to have our names written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

III. Bottle. For our Tears (Psalms 56:8). It was an Egyptian custom at funerals, for mourners to have handed to them a sponge or cloth to wipe their tears, which were wrung out into a tear bottle, and this was placed in the tomb. God takes notice of all our tears.

He knows. He loves. He cares Nothing this truth can dim.

ONE THING.

I. One Thing Lacking: The inclusiveness of the Lord's claims (Mark 10:21).

II. One Thing Needful. The blessedness of giving the Lord our trust, love and attention (Luke 10:42).

III. One Thing Done. The value of definiteness and concentration upon the things of God (Php_3:13).

BENJAMIN: AN OLD TESTAMENT PICTURE OF SALVATION.

Genesis 43 and 44.

1. Object of his father's special love. God loves us.

2. Bore unconsciously on his journey the evidence of his guilt. Our fallen nature, which we bear, is evidence of our fallen and guilty condition (Genesis 44:2).

3. The evidence of his guilt not placed there by himself. We inherit ours.

4. Separated temporarily from his father, but in danger of that separation becoming permanent. That is our dreadful condition.

5. A Surety provided before the need arose (Genesis 43:9). So with us.

6. That surety was bone of his bone, and flesh of his flesh. A picture of the reality and oneness of the Lord Jesus Christ with us in our humanity.

7. Was delivered through the intercession of that surety (Genesis 44:16-34).

8. The delivered one cleaves to the deliverer, for the tribe of Benjamin ever clave to Judah. A picture of the eternal gratitude of the delivered to their Deliverer.

Note. "Ye shall not see my face except," etc. (Genesis 43:3). We cannot see the face of God and live, if out of Christ. God out of Christ is unintelligible, and a fear and dread. God out of Christ is a consuming fire.

TWO ESTIMATES OF THE ONE LIFE.

Genesis 47:9; Genesis 48:15.

These two estimates differ greatly. The first is doleful. There is a spirit of melancholy about it. It is a complaint. How illogical! If the days were evil, was it not a good thing they were but few? The secret is just this, in the former there is nothing about God. It is all Jacob. In the latter we notice a great deal more about God than about Jacob.

I. All Jacob (Genesis 47:9). God left out.

1. Doleful.

2. Complaining.

3. Unreasonable.

4. Illogical.

II. All God (Genesis 48:15). "The God who pastured me. ... the Angel which hath redeemed me" (R.V.).

1. Triumphant.

2. Grateful.

3. Sensible.

4. Logical. THE PLAN OF SALVATION, SHOWING THE TRINITY OF DIVINE LOVE IN ACTION.

THREE TREES.

I. The Tree of Knowledge. Reminding us of man's sin and ruin (Genesis 2:17).

II. The Tree of Calvary. Telling us of man's redemption (Acts 10:39; Acts 5:30; 1 Peter 2:24).

III. The Tree of Life. Speaking to us of man's full regeneration (Genesis 2:9; Revelation 2:7; Revelation 22:2).

FOUR ACTIONS AND POSITIONS CONNECTED WITH TREES.

I. Adam Behind the Tree. Ruin. (Genesis 3:8).

II. Jesus on a Tree. Substitution (Acts 10:39).

III. Nathaniel Under a Tree. Discovery (John 1:48).

IV. Zacchaeus up a Tree. Appropriation (Luke 19:4).

WALKING.

I. Before God: Divine Inspection (Genesis 17:1).

II. With God: Divine Companionship (Genesis 5:22).

III. After God: Divine Leadership (Deuteronomy 13:4).

IV. In God: Divine Indwelling (Colossians 2:6). And the last includes all the others. THE MAGNET. The labour-saving devices in works and workshops are simply amazing. What specially took my fancy when visiting Iron and Steel Works at my native town after years of absence was the Magnetic Crane. It was just then engaged in unloading and removing a truck-load of scrap. Formerly this all had to be done by hand, a slow and laborious job. Now it was done quickly and ex-peditiously by this Magnetic Crane. Lowering an arm like a big stump, or as another has likened it, as resembling an elephant's foot, the current was switched on, when the metal at once clung to it. Drawing it up, the crane removed itself to the desired place, whereupon the current was switched off, when down fell the metal scraps. It was done so quickly, and in such a wholesale fashion that one simply marvelled. Our magnet is the Lord: "Unto Him shall the gathering of the people be" (Genesis 49:10). A study of the word "draw" in the Word enables us to see the varied aspects of His attractiveness, and the various methods and results He has in drawing us.

I. By Teaching (John 12:32). "No man can come to Me except the Father. . . draw him." But do not pause; go on reading. Never separate John 12:44 and John 12:45. The significance of John 12:45 is that it shows how the Father is seeking to draw men to His Son, viz., by the teaching of the prophetical books and other books of the Bible, and by the ministry of the Word to-day.

II. By Sacrifice (John 12:32). Observe that the drawing follows the lifting up. The great attractiveness in the New Testament story is the story of the sacrificial death of the Lord Jesus Christ. The great magnet is not only the Cross, nor the Gospel story, but the Lord Jesus Christ Himself on and through the Cross and in the Gospel story.

1. Suffering always appeals to our hearts.

2. Suffering for the sake of others particularly moves us.

3. Personal testimony of the effect of the story of the Cross upon us always moves us.

III. By His Beauty (Son_1:4). The Bride is taken up with the beauty of the Bridegroom. And she finds in it a great source of attraction. Observe the change from the singular to the plural. "Draw me... we will run after Thee." That means that when He draws me to Himself, others benefit, others are influenced for good through me.

IV. By His Kind and Loving Providences (Jeremiah 31:3).

V. By and Through His Own Dear Children and Disciples. One of the interesting incidents of days long since past, was to persuade some workman in connection with the electric generating plant at the Iron Works to take an ordinary pocket knife and have it magnetised, so that it became, at anyrate for a time, a magnet. Just ordinary bits of metal, but what a change! And how this has come to ones mind as we have thought of methods the Lord has in drawing men and women to Himself. He can so fill us with Himself that we, though humble folk, both on account of His life in us, and the wonderful story of His grace we have to tell, become magnets for Him. Oh, Christian workers, ever lift Christ up! Speak of His death, and not merely of His life. You demagnetise Christianity, as all history shows, if you strike out the atoning death on the Cross.

VI. By a Shout (1 Thessalonians 4:16). This is quite future. Dr. Pettingill in the American Sunday School Times, recently described an experience with a magnetic crane which greatly interested me, as I had also seen the crane. "Turn on your current, and move slowly, keeping near the ground" were the orders given to the crane driver. When this was done, I saw bits of scrap which had been lying about the ground, leap up to the magnets, cleaving to them. And more than that, I actually saw the ground itself moving, and out of the very dust came the scrap that had been mingled with it and buried beneath its surface. Out came the pieces, flying straight toward the magnet, and sticking to it together with the other pieces from the ground." Thank God, the time is coming when all His own that are in the graves, and those then alive on the earth, will together be caught up by and to the Lord. Even the buried saints will come out of their graves.

Only iron and steel scraps rose to the magnets from that Rolling Mill yard. Only those metals were caught up that partook of the same nature as the magnet. Precisely so in that Great Day coming. Only those who have become partakers of His own Divine nature through regeneration, will be caught up. The rest must wait until the Great White Throne has been set. But blessed and holy are they who shall take part in this first and glorious resurrection.

SOAP AND SODA.

Jeremiah 2:22.

Fancy soap and soda in the Bible! Why not? These are everyday essentials for bodily health and comfort. But what about the soul? Have we performed our full duty to God and society when we have made our bodies presentable? Verily no. There are urgent spiritual necessities. (Nitre is soda.) This verse in Jeremiah points out the inadequacy of mere reformation of life and manners. What about the record against us up on High? "Thine iniquity is marked before Me," saith the Lord. Only the precious Blood of Christ can avail for that dire need. THE OBEDIENCE OF CHRIST.

Romans 5:19.

Napoleon's Kindness. During one of the wars of Napoleon Bonaparte, after a day of fierce fighting, as night drew on, sentinels were chosen to be placed at different points of the camp to guard against surprise. They were charged, on pain of death, to keep awake and do their duty. About midnight the Emperor arose, and walked around, to find one of the sentinels asleep, his gun lying beside him. Worn out by the terrible struggle of the previous day, on being left alone, he had fallen asleep. What must be done? The sentinel's duty must be done or he must die. Silently the Emperor picked up the gun, and, putting it to his shoulder, acted as sentinel till dawn of day. When the soldier awoke, he was filled with alarm. But Napoleon simply handed him back his gun, bidding him be more careful in future.

You are prepared to applaud this humane act. We wish to draw attention to Another who has done much more for us. Our text refers to Him-the Lord Jesus.

I. Man's Commission. As each soul is marched into the arena of life, God gives a commission (see Deuteronomy 10:12; Micah 6:8). Is there a single soul who can say they have executed that commission?

II. Man's Disobedience. "I wish I could mind my God as my little dog minds me," said a little boy. That statement revealed man's depravity.

Everything obeys the Lord.

1. Orbs of Light (Joshua 10:12-14). Sun stood still.

2. Mighty Ocean (Matthew 8:27). "Even the winds and seas obey Him."

3. Evil Spirits (Mark 1:27). "With authority com-mandeth He even the unclean spirits."

4. Birds of Air (1 Kings 17:4). "I have commanded the ravens to feed thee." Did we say "Everything?" Ah, there is one exception-man. What will be the end of the disobedient ones? Joshua 5:6 tells us, Israel "were consumed because they obeyed not the voice of the Lord."

III. He Took our Place. The Lord Jesus

1. Not only lived a perfectly obedient life, filling up the full measure of righteousness, 2. But atoned for our disobedience.

3. Not only did what Napoleon did, but more, for He suffered for our disobedience.

4. By Napoleon's obedience this man's life was saved.

5. By Jesus' obedience (obedient unto death, even death on Cross) we are saved.

IV. You are now commanded to obey the Gospel, And if you will do this, and come to Jesus, He will give you the Holy Spirit, who will enable you to live the Holy life. THE FIVE PRECIOUS THINGS OF THE BIBLE.

1. His Word and Thoughts, Psalms 139:17 2. His Redemption, Psalms 49:8 3. The Life of the Believer, Psalms 72:14 4. The Lips of the Well-informed, Proverbs 20:15 5. The Death of His People, Psalms 116:15 IN HIS PRESENCE Here and now is- 1. Sadness (His presence is a trouble when everything is not right), Nehemiah 2:1 2. Joy, Psalms 16:11 3. Power for Service for God and our fellows, Nehemiah 2:6 WHAT CONSTITUTES TRUE GREATNESS.

"He shall be great in the sight of the Lord" (Luke 1:15).

Introduction.

Heaven's Standard.

1. "In the sight of the Lord," not in the sight of men.

2. There is the world's estimate of greatness, and there is God's estimate.

3. The one greatly differs from the other.

4. The former is false and fanciful, the latter true and eternal.

5. John's greatness was according to the standard of Heaven. In the Lord's estimation he was a great man.

Useful not Great.

1. Some are born great, others have greatness thrust upon them.

2. Most, if not all of us, have no aspiration for earthly greatness.

3. We have not the slightest expectation of ever becoming great in a worldly sense.

4. But that is not the reason why we desire it not.

5. We sympathise much with the poet who wrote:

"Pay not thy praise to lofty things alone. The plains are everlasting as the hills."

6. The plains are as necessary as the hills.

7. What should we do if all the globe was but a collection of hills and mountains?

8. We have no ambition for earthly greatness.

9. For one thing, greatness fills the pillow with thorns.

10. We desire rather to be useful than great.

Useful Because Great.

1. And we can be useful without earthly greatness.

2. But that is not so with respect to spiritual greatness. Note little word "and", Romans 5:17.

3. Goodness and highest usefulness is conditioned on being "great in the sight of the Lord."

4. John was good and useful because he was great in the Lord's sight.

Four results of greatness: (1) Parents rejoice; (2) Fellows benefit; (3) Fulness of blessing; (4) Usefulness in service. A Longing.

1. Do you not long that your parents might thank God you were ever given to them?

2. And that others of your fellows should thank God you were ever born?

3. Surely we all long for that privilege!

4. Well, all this is the outcome of becoming great in His sight.

5. Note that little word "for" and previous verse.

How to Get Power of Spirit.

1. Further, how we long to be filled with the Spirit.

2. How we long to have power in service.

3. How we long to be the instrument of the conversion of many.

4. Here you see all this is fruit of being great in His sight.

5. Do you not think there is some connection between a. Being great in the sight of the Lord, b. Being filled with the Holy Spirit, c. And turning many to righteousness?

Prophecy that Came to Pass.

1. This was the prophecy of the angel who announced His birth.

2. Did the prophecy come to full fruition?

3. How many lives of promise become tragic failures?

4. Yes, listen to the words of Jesus. Looking back on the career of this man, the Lord Jesus endorsed the prophecy, declaring that it had become a fact. "Among those that are born of women there is none greater."

Elements of true Greatness.

1. If we want to know the elements of true greatness, the greatness God recognises, we do well if we turn to the life of this man.

2. Lives of great men like John remind us, we (or rather God) may make our lives sublime.

3. What was there about John worthy of such noble comment?

4. We have seven facts to bring to your notice.

5. And we make bold to declare that all the principles of John's life, character, and service might become ours.

I. He was a Man of Noble Birth (Luke 1:5). Descendant of Aaron.

1. He was a descendant of Aaron, belonging to the priestly family.

2. What a very great honour this was I 3. He was a noble man of noble birth.

4. Well begun is half done.

Discouraged.

1. Ah, at that word you discourage me.

2. I am but of humble and lowly origin.

3. I am but one of the common folk.

4. No need now to proceed any further. But listen!

Great Soul.

1. It was said of one that, he was "a man of mean estate" yet "his soul was great."

2. So you can have a great soul.

More Noble Birth.

1. But you can be of far nobler birth than John.

2. You can have the very life of the Creator in your soul.

3. The life of the King of kings within you.

4. "Partakers of Divine nature." Can you have anything greater than that?

Greater than He.

1. If you think we are romancing, listen to the Saviour (Luke 7:28).

2. The greatness referred to here is not that of character, but that of position.

3. The contrast is drawn between being within and being without the kingdom.

4. John the Baptist only stood upon the threshold, we go right in.

5. "He that is least within the Kingdom is greater than the greatest without."

You Can Become a Relative.

1. John was a relative to Jesus.

2. You, too, can become related to Him.

II. He was an Unworldly Man (Luke 1:80). "A man clothed in soft raiment?" No. This is seen in different ways:

a. His love of solitude. b. His plain dress. c. His plain food.

Different Type.

1. Of course we know our type of holiness is different to that of John.

2. Concerning the dark middle ages, an historian writes: "In those days John the Baptist's life seems to have been the ideal of holiness far more than that of the Son of Man; to renounce the common food and the common joys of humanity was deemed far nobler than to turn earth's daily bread to Divine uses."

3. Yet according to his light, he was right.

4. He was a man who lived above the world.

III. He was a Man who had Control over his Appetites.

IV. He was a Man Filled with the Holy Spirit.

V. He was a Man with a Mission.

Born for a Purpose.

1. He was born in order to do a specific work.

2. He did not go aimlessly through life.

3. So with us.

4. Every man's life is a plan of God.

Answered. He answered the purpose of his existence in

1. Introducing Jesus, and acting as 2. Fore-runner of Jesus. So we:

1. Can we not make it easy for some to come to Jesus.

2. Can we not introduce others to Jesus?

VI. He was a Man Obedient to the Call. Not Only Knew.

1. He would be told by his parents the circumstances surrounding his birth.

2. And he obeyed the call.

Abraham.

1. The call came to Abraham and the Lord said that if he would leave his home and obey the call, "I will bless thee and make thy name great."

2. Obedience, then blessing, then greatness. "Whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the Kingdom of Heaven" (Matthew 5:19) Mark, do and teach-obedience before teaching.

VII. He was a Man of Unwavering Firmness and Courage. Not "a reed shaken with the wind."

Courage.

1. In rebuking sin, even that of King Herod.

2. He laid down his life.

Elizabeth Fry.

1. Elizabeth Fry, as a girl (born in 1780), "was of pleasing person, gentle in look and manner, loving, obedient, and possessed of an exquisite voice.

2. Yet she was timid and obstinate.

3. Yet it is said of her that "her natural timidity in after years, under Divine Grace, was transformed into a chastened courage, and her childish obstinacy, became a finely-tempered decision of character." All the result of the Holy Spirit's presence in her life.

VIII. He was a Man on Fire for God. IN HIS PRESENCE.

1. Salvation, Psalms 42:5, marg.

2. Rest, Exodus 33:14 3. Joy, Psalms 16:11 4. Safety, Psalms 31:20 5. Highest Communion, Psalms 140:13; Son_2:11

WHAT THE LORD DOES FOR US.

Psalm 34.

1. Redeems, Psalms 34:22

2. Saves, Psalms 34:18

3. Hears, Psalms 34:4

4. Delivers, Psalms 34:4

5. Preserves, Psalms 34:7

6. Deeply Interested In Us, Psalms 34:15

7. Is Near, Psalms 34:18 IN THE LORD THERE IS DELIVERANCE

FROM

1. Fear, Psalms 34:4

2. Danger, Psalms 34:7

3. Trouble, Psalms 34:7

4. Afflictions, Psalms 34:19

5. Death, 2 Corinthians 1:10

6. World, Galatians 1:4

7. Darkness, Colossians 1:13

8. Wrath, 1 Thessalonians 1:10 OUR INHERENT GREATNESS.

"He hath made everything beautiful in His time, also He hath set the world (eternity) in their heart, so that no man can find out the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end" (Ecclesiastes 3:11).

Introduction.

Puzzling.

1. What a puzzling and bewildering sentence is, "He hath set the world in their heart."

2. It has been a trouble to many thoughtful Christians.

3. How is it possible to believe that God is responsible for the love of the world within our hearts?

4. The fact is that the word translated "world," does not mean this material world, but duration; not place, but time.

5. R.V. margin clears away the difficulty, where it a. Refers not to space, b. But to duration of time.

Difficulty.

1. It is not only a difficult phrase, but difficult to understand what precise meaning is to be attached to these words, and connection with context.

2. Ecclesiastes is the autobiography of a backslider, and therefore we need not wonder at its haziness. Get away from God and you will soon get hazy views, soon be in a fog, in a spiritual fog of your own creating, and floundering about. Not Transient.

1. He has been speaking of the change and decay he saw in all around.

2. He was gloomily meditating on the transitory character of all earthly things.

3. But it was then he declared that man is not a transient creature, for he has eternity in his heart, i.e., is eternal, and is conscious of the fact.

4. He is an immortal being, or better, an endless being.

Inherent Greatness.

1. We were reminded of these verses when reading Carlyle on "Greatness:" "Man's unhappiness, as I construe, comes of his greatness: it is because there is an Infinite in him, which, with all his cunning, he cannot quite bury under the Finite" (Sartor Resartus).

2. That is to say, man is naturally great-there is eternity within him.

3. In a former study we were thinking of greatness in His sight (Luke 1:15).

4. That was a greatness made possible through Redemption.

5. We are now thinking of our inherent greatness.

6. This side is often neglected.

7. We generally leave it to the Materialists and Rationalists to declare.

8. But we must rescue it from such sordid surroundings and place it in its rightful evangelical setting. The Beautiful World. The sense of beauty is one of the things that allies us to God. God must be glad when one loves His world so much.

Three Thoughts Suggested by Text.

1. The world in the heart-a sad and woeful fact.

2. Eternity in the heart-a glorious and blessed fact.

3. The Eternal One in the heart-a marvellous possibility for all.

Another Way of Putting It. But in order to bring out the fact of man's greatness, let me put it another way.

I. Man's Greatness Proved beyond Doubt by the Fact that, though the World is in his Heart, he is not Satisfied. A Sad Fact.

1. The world is in our hearts by nature, by our natural birth; not only are we in the world, but the world is in us.

2. Of that we are only too conscious; even Christians sometimes discover this to be so.

3. We are so occupied with the world that many have no time for Divine things.

4. We are so taken up with thoughts and cares of worldly things, and so exercised concerning them, that many have little heart for eternal things.

Blackwood.

1. Sir Arthur Blackwood discovered this.

2. During the Crimea War he became serious and decided for God.

3. But on his return home he found it very difficult to keep on in the good way in the whirl of social life.

4. Under date April and May, in 1856, he writes: "Troublous times-undecided-world in my heart-God in my conscience."

5. Take those four sharp, finely cut sentences-what a portrait of many a one. a. Troublous times. First experience of one who faces the current. b. Undecided. Halting between two opinions. c. World in my heart. Ah, that's the tragic fact; the magnet is there! d. God in my conscience. A troubled conscience. Who Put it There?

1. Not God.

2. "An enemy hath done this."

Result.

1. Does the world in the heart satisfy it? No!

2. "Man's unhappiness comes of his greatness."

3. Great though the world is, man is too great for it to satisfy him.

4. He has a hunger for eternal things.

5. Only eternal things can satisfy him.

6. The worldling tries to satisfy the craving of his being for eternal things by the material, yet is like the prodigal at the swine trough.

Solomon.

1. Solomon is an illustration.

2. Getting away from God, he sought satisfaction in wisdom, learning, letters, science, wealth, etc.

3. But "vanity of vanities, all is vanity," was his verdict.

II. Man's Greatness is Proved beyond Question in that Though in the World, he has Deeply Rooted in him the Thought and Fact of Eternity.

Revised Version.

1. That is the teaching of the rendering of the R.V.

2. It suggests four thoughts: (1) Consciousness; (2) Fact; (3) Longing; and (3) Dread of Eternity.

Everlasting Problem.

1. "If a man die shall he live again," is the question in Job.

2. This is the everlasting problem.

3. "He thinks he was not made to die." Ah, how sure!

Solution.

1. Revelation and reason give incontestible proofs of immortality.

2. But there is another-intuition.

3. God not only has made man immortal, but: He has put the consciousness of immortality within our hearts.

4. He made us eternal, and put within us the consciousness of that fact.

Only Beings.

1. "We are the only beings on earth who can speak the Word or think the thought of eternity." Ponder on that phrase.

2. God has put the consciousness of eternity in our hearts.

3. And now the Gospel has cleared away all mists. "Life and immortality has been brought to light through the Gospel."

Burns.

1. James Drummond Burns was in poor health for 20 years.

2. His last words were: "I have been dying for 20 years; now I am going to live."

Shell from the Sea-shore.

1. Man, so small, so tiny, that from a hill-top he appears but as a speck in the valley below, yet within him the roar of the infinite sea of eternity is for ever sound ing.

2. Just as a man will pick up a shell from the sea-shore and carry it 3000 miles inland, and listening, he hears the beating music of the waves that made it so.

3. O man, no matter how far thou hast wandered from God, in thy heart is the passion of Deity, the sounding of the billows of eternity!

4. The whirl and noise of day may silence that music, but in the silence of the night there comes back the call of the infinite. It is a call that surges through him.

III. Man's Greatness Proved by the Fact that though in the World, he has a Heart that the Eternal One Claims and can Fill. Has Man the Capacity?

1. Has he the capacity of becoming the Sanctuary of the Lord?

2. Those who know anything about the Bible know such is its teaching.

3. And those who know anything of the human heart know this is so.

How to get rid of World. The only way of getting rid of the world in the heart is by letting the heart's rightful Guest in.

How to get Peace.

1. If God is in your conscience-troubling you. The precious Blood of Christ and 2. God in the heart will bring peace.

Too Big for World. We are too big for the world. The world cannot fill our hearts and lives. A MISSIONARY'S EQUIPMENT.

2 Kings 4:10.

This woman, great in soul, and probably in wealth, suggested to her husband sacrificing the most cherished part of the Eastern home for the comfort of the prophet Elisha. Her husband seconded the handsome proposition, and it was carried into effect. It is interesting to note the articles of furniture she considered necessary for the prophet's comfort. In what they remind us of we have the essentials for home and foreign missionary work. Unless we possess what these articles stand for, we cannot be useful workers for the Lord.

I. Bed. Which speaks to us of rest. This is the first necessity. In fact, if we do not enjoy rest from the burden of guilt and an uneasy conscience, we cannot be workers. Only Christ can give rest. Does He not say, "Come unto Me... and I will give you rest?"

II. Table. Which speaks to us of communion. Communion with Christ should follow receiving from Him rest. Pray note, not the table first, and then rest. No; that would never do. And yet there are many who teach that this is the proper order. Such say, "Unless we partake of the Sacrament we cannot be saved." Neither the Lord Jesus nor any of the apostles taught this! We refuse to re-arrange these articles to please anyone. God's order must be observed. At the same time, may we not urge upon those who have rest, the necessity of the table of the Lord! It is our duty and privilege to go to the Lord's Table to remember the Lord's death till He come.

Then again, now that rest is your enjoyment, do not forget that He desires you to have communion and blessed fellowship with Him day by day; that is, the table to follow the bed. Do not come short of His purposes, nor be satisfied with anything less than His best.

III. Stool. This comes third, and speaks to us of discipleship. How important it is that we should frequently sit at His feet to be taught of Him. What about the daily devotional study of the Scriptures? Then what about the daily closer study of some portion of the Holy Book? Ah, the discipleship position is important. This will fit us for the fourth.

IV. Candlestick. This speaks to us of witness-bearing, shining for Jesus in the dark and gloomy places, where our light is most needed.

KISSING.

"Kiss the Son" (Psalms 2:12).

Introduction. Kissing in Oriental countries has a much greater significance than in the West. On that account, reference to that act in the Bible deserve a closer study than is usually given. The Power of a Kiss. A woman prisoner was being taken from one prison to another loaded with chains, because she was so rebellious that nothing seemingly could be done with her. The matron of the prison she had been sent to refused to receive the new charge unless the chains were removed. This was done, whereupon the matron kissed the female prisoner, who broke completely down at this unexpected and undeserved welcome, and led to her complete transformation, so much so, that later she became a successful Christian worker. The Divine goodness is designed to lead us to repentance. The Cost of a Kiss. When the Princess Alice died, it fell to the lot of Gladstone to move in the House of Commons a vote of sympathy. In doing so, he told how she came to her end. Her little child was ill with diphtheria. The doctor told her that, on no account must she kiss the child. In a paroxysm of pain, she picked her little one up in her arms. She became conscious, and said, "Mamma, kiss me!" What could a mother do in the face of such an appeal from a loved suffering one? She knew what it might mean, but could not do otherwise, and gave the loving kiss. Does not this remind us of Christ's great act of love. He thought not of the cost. He knew that, coming into contact with a sin-diseased world meant death. And He died, and in dying for us took away our sin. But that great act of His love was not in vain, for us, as was Princess Alice's loving act. It has meant for millions, as it has meant for many a believer to-day, health and salvation.

I. The Kiss of Subjection (Psalms 2:12). This is one of the many Messianic Psalms, and is full of Christ. Here is inspired good advice: "Kiss the Son." It is the kiss of subjection that is meant here, the kind of kiss given by a subject to a prince, or by a captive to his captor, and what a sinner should give to the Saviour. It signifies the surrender of the will, a vital condition of salvation, and indeed of every spiritual blessing. Did we say, inspired good advice? Rather, an inspired command. It is imperative. And why? "Lest He be angry." Yes, that is true, for there is not only the love of the Lamb, and the Blood of the Lamb, but also the wrath of the Lamb. Our God and Saviour knows what wrath is, because He is Love. Kiss the Son lest ye perish!

II. The Kiss of Pardon (Luke 15:20). This follows the kiss of subjection, and indeed is the beginning of all good. It could be rendered, "He kissed him again and again." What a surprising gift was this! Note:

1. It followed the return, which was the sign and proof of real genuine repentance.

2. It was given before the prodigal could say a word. Though he had prepared a speech, not a syllable was uttered until the Father kissed the returned prodigal. Wondrous grace!

3. It was bestowed on the prodigal whilst yet in his rags and dirt. Therefore entirely unmerited. He was not asked first to make himself presentable ere the kiss could be given.

4. It was followed by the bestowal of other gifts, and never stands alone. This, the first blessing, is always followed by other mercies and blessings.

III. The Kiss of Affection and Communion. (Son_1:2). Only returned ones, who are pardoned and clothed and restored to friendship, can be expected to love. And they alone can be admitted into friendship and fellowship with God and His Christ. THE SATISFIED LIFE.

"Full of years" (Genesis 25:8).

This is a choice and suggestive phrase. It is not synoni-mous for longevity. Abraham lived to be 175; Isaiah, 180; Job, 140; David, 70; Jehoida, 130 (2 Chronicles 24:15); yet same expression is used for all. Read "satisfied" for "full"-really its meaning-and you have the true meaning of the term. And he acted like a satisfied man. No desperate clinging to life, no unwillingness to go. He was like one who, having had enough at the table, blesses the Giver of the feast, pushes back his chair, gets up, and goes away without a struggle, or with out the least resistance-satisfied!

What had he got? He went out of Mesopotamia expecting a country and a nation. But he dies with no possession save a grave, and with no further sight of posterity than his son Isaac, and his two grandsons, who were fifteen years old when he died. Then why was Abraham satisfied and not sickened with life? He lived the following life- a life:

1. Filled with God (Psalms 105:40; Psalms 107:9).

2. He lived in enjoyment of the unmerited favour of God. "Satisfied with favour" (Deuteronomy 33:23). His faith was counted for righteousness.

3. He daily received the mercies of God (Psalms 90:14).

4. He lived a life of trust in God. Is noted for his faith.

5. He lived a life of communion with God, in spite of many hindrances.

6. He lived a life of busy service for God.

7. And he lived in the full certainty of going to God. Ponder over the phrase, "Gathered to his people."

WE MUST DELIGHT OURSELVES 1. In God Himself, Psalms 37:4 2. In His Word, Psalms 1:2; Psalms 119:24 3. In His Service, Psalms 40:8 4. In Prayer, Isaiah 58:2 Then what a joy to learn that God will delight in us (Psalms 37:23; Proverbs 11:20; Proverbs 12:22).

WALKING OUT WITH HIM.

"Can two walk together except they be agreed?"

Amos 3:3.

Introduction. Have you ever grasped the significance of this statement? In one part of the North of England, it is customary when announcing the courtship of a couple to say: "So-and-so are walking out together." That is the very phrase used here, as descriptive of a wonderful possibility for man. It is a sublime conception of the Christian life. To be a Christian means more than to accept a Creed, or even to accept a living Christ, it means to walk out with God day by day and all our days. Walkout with Him! Oh, the sublimity of this figure of speech. But there are essentials. Prior to walking out with Him we must agree regarding certain facts. There must be four prior agreements.

I. Agreement as to Place. That is the place of meeting. He has made an appointment for sinners, and that is that they should meet Him in grace at the Cross of our Lord Jesus. That is the place of meeting. Will you keep the appointment? If not, another appointment will be made-at the Great White Throne, in Judgment.

II. Agreement as to Goal. Agreeing that the glory of God be the aim, and motive of life; and by-and-by, Heaven.

III. Agreement as to Pace. Keeping step with the Master, neither lagging behind nor going on ahead. Walking at the same pace. Ask Him to take your hand, and then you will walk together.

IV. Agreement as to Cost. A walk with God is costly. It means many a persecution, many a sorrow, many a tear, but very much joy, and His smile. Is such a life possible? Enoch lived that life, without the wonderful helps that are ours in Christ Jesus, and for three hundred years, too, till God took him.

"Do the converts stand?" inquired someone of Gipsy Smith. At once he replied, "No, they don't stand-they walk! They keep going!" For they walk with Him.

BROUGHT 1. Low, Psalms 116:6

2. Up, Psalms 40:2

3. Out, Psalms 107:14

4. Into, Psalms 18:19

5. On, 2 Corinthians 1:16 SLITHERING THROUGH LIFE.

"Then Jacob lift up his feet" (Genesis 29:1, margin).

"Slithering" is quite a North Country word. You see a person going along dragging his feet-that is slithering. Some do this out of sheer habit-certainly a very bad habit. Such soon wear their boots out, and other people's patience too. Some drag their feet because of sad and sorrowful spirits. Much had just happened to Jacob to make his feet heavy as lead. He had deceived his father, robbed his twin brother, and had been compelled to flee for his life. All this is recorded in Gen. 28. It is a sad chapter. Was Jacob to go "slithering" through life? No. God took measures to save him from that dread disaster.

Jacob "went out" (Genesis 28:10) of the home and encampment. No doubt he would go out alone, unattended, so as not to arouse his brother's suspicions. After travelling about forty miles of mountainous country, he reached a rocky valley, with stones piled up like a huge stone staircase. As he lay down and slept, it seemed as if the stones of the valley were being builded together, by unseen hands, into a stair, till it reached the deep blue-spangled sky. He saw the angels of God ascending and descending, and there by his side (see R.V.) the Lord. Jacob had been so full of his own activities, plannings, and schem-ings, that the only time God could get his attention was when he was asleep. What did this vision do for Jacob?

I. It Banished Mere Earthliness. "Top. . . reached to Heaven."

Worm.

1. It is not likely that Jacob would be cherishing any lofty thoughts for he was a fugitive.

2. He had been grovelling like a worm on earth with but few thoughts beyond; this vision lifts his eyes from the low level.

3. There had been little traffic between his soul and heaven; the vision shows him a path from his very side right into its depths. He calls it "gate of Heaven." The gate is the busiest place of a city, not only the entrance but the gathering place.

4. "Fear not thou worm Jacob." Too often he was like the worm grovelling in the earth when he ought to have been like the butterfly, flitting through sunlit gardens.

Staircase.

1. What that ladder was to Jacob, Jesus is to us.

2. Indeed in John 1:51 He declares it was a type of Himself.

3. Jesus is: a. Our connecting link with Heaven. b. All blessings come to us along that way. c. Every child of man has the ladder right at his feet.

II. It Banished Loneliness. "Angels of God ascending and descending."

1. He thought himself alone, but the vision peoples the wilderness.

2. Note, "ascending and descending," not descending and ascending,. teaching earth was their home.

3. Solitary, far away from his beloved mother, he found himself cared for by angels.

III. It Banished Spiritual Forlornness. He thought he was forlorn, but, lo, he found he was not alone. Don't stop at angels!

1. He saw "angels." Yes, but he saw Someone else- Lord.

2. Oh, never allow angels to shut out the Lord! Where was the Lord?

1. Not "above it," as A.V., but "beside him" (R.V., marg.) 2. Perhaps he thought he had left God in father's encampment.

3. Or that God had forsaken him because of his sin.

4. Oh, the blessed thought of the nearness of the Lord!

5. How God comforts the lonely and forsaken.

6. He is by your side, oh sad and lonely one!

IV. It Banished Helplessness.

1. He had felt himself defenceless in that wild and dangerous region.

2. The vision musters armies for his safety.

3. Yea, better still, the God of armies (Genesis 29:15).

V. It Banished Aimlessness.

1. God took him into partnership with Himself (Genesis 29:13-15).

2. He would realise that he was partner with God in the fulfilment of the Divine purpose.

3. He now had an object in life.

VI. It Banished Ignorance (Genesis 29:17).

1. It revealed to him his sin.

2. It is an eloquent testimony of man's consciousness of sin, that whenever a present God becomes a reality to a worldly man he trembles.

VII. It Banished Homelessness (Genesis 29:17).

1. He was driven away from his father's house, but he got to know of God's house.

2. Jacob loved home more than Esau. He was a lover of home.

3. This vision taught him that earth, "which we are too apt to make a workshop or a mere garden of pleasure, is a Bethel-a house of God."

4. Note:

a. Luz. Separation from the world. b. Bethel. Adoption into God's house, God's family, House of God. c. Peniel. Fellowship and knowledge of God. Face of God.

5. Oh, the horrid bargaining Jacob indulged it. We won't end there.

VIII. It Banished Sluggishness (chap. Genesis 29:1).

1. Margin, "Lift up his feet."

2. Not drag his feet.

3. How our feet drag when our hearts are sad and heavy.

4. Blessed by contact, abiding contact with God, he resumed his way with a light heart and elastic step.

5. There is a spirit of cheerfulness about it.

6. So may we go through life.

7. And those who, by Divine grace refuse to slither through life become the means of blessings to others.

Studies For Believers

Studies for Believers

CROSS-BEARING.

"If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow Me" (Luke 9:23).

Introduction.

Startling.

1. It is difficult for us to imagine what such a statement meant for the disciples and how startled they must have been.

2. To them the Cross was a hateful, accursed thing.

3. Our Lord first mentioned the necessity of bearing the Cross when He commissioned them (Matthew 10:38). Now He speaks most emphatically.

Cross Deified.

1. One reason why it is difficult for us to imagine what their feelings were when they first heard of the Cross is that now we view it differently.

2. The Cross is now a symbol of all that is holy and precious.

3. Alas, by many it is deified and worshipped.

4. This was never God's intention. When Change Occurred.

1. It was not until the commencement of the fourth century when Rome, the mistress of the world, adopted the Cross to supplement the Eagle as a military ensign, that this change took place.

2. Constantine sought to honour the Cross, to which he ascribed the success of his arms, and the attainment of his ambition, by putting a spear in that form into the hand of the statue erected for him at Rome.

3. A most baneful sign indeed.

4. The spear and the Cross had met before under totally different circumstances.

5. But now a worldly policy had practically made the Cross of Christ of none effect by taking it under patronage in a most public manner.

Early Christians.

1. It is significant that the Cross was never used by the primitive Christians of the first century. Indeed, it was not until the fourth century that they began to do so.

2. To them it was simply a symbol of torture and shame. Who Invented It?

1. No one can tell us who invented the Cross.

2. It is believed the Romans introduced it from India for the punishment of criminals and slaves, and others whom the executioner must disgrace as well as kill.

What it Meant to Bear the Cross.

1. To bear the Cross meant to bear disgrace.

2. To bear the Cross meant to bear the instrument of suffering and death. Our Lord's Words.

1. Our Lord declared that none can follow Him unless:

1st. Deny self.

2nd. Take up Cross.

3rd. And that every day.

2. Indeed, in Matthew 10:38 He declares we are not worthy of Him if we do not.

3. And in Luke 14:27 declares otherwise we cannot be His disciples. Not as a Punishment for Sin.

1. It must be understood that we are to bear the Cross not as a punishment for our sins, nor to put away sin.

2. His Cross does that.

3. We come to Him, and get deliverance from one burden only to receive another.

Two Crosses.

1. No one can be a follower of our Lord without bearing two crosses.

2. One is a cross laid upon us, the other is a cross we take up.

3. The first is an inward cross, the second an outward.

I. The Inward Cross, the Holy Spirit and Divine Nature.

Compelled.

1. Let us again remind you of our Lord's word "cannot."

2. There was one who was compelled to bear Christ's Cross-Simon (Matthew 27:32).

3. No choice was left to him in the matter.

4. The difference is, that Cross was laid upon him by the Roman Government; ours by God Himself.

Two Crucifixions.

1. Think you that Christ had two Crucifixions?

2. His Divine nature was the constant Cross of His human nature.

What Makes a Christian?

1. Is it not the anointing? The word Christ means the anointed one, and you are not a Christian until you receive the anointing.

2. What is the anointing but the coming in of the Divine nature.

Real Cross.

1. The Crusaders used to carry a painted cross on their shoulder.

2. Our inward cross is no painted one.

3. And we carry it, not on our shoulder, but in the heart.

How Coliseum was Saved?

1. It is said that when the Roman Coliseum began to fall into decay, the people used to take the stones of which it was composed to build their own houses. To such an extent was this practice carried, that many feared this noble relic of the Imperial City would soon disappear.

2. To prevent so great a loss, antiquarians consulted together, and talked, and talked, but all to no purpose.

3. At last the Pope devised a simple plan. He had a huge cross made and planted in the centre, whereby declaring the building hallowed.

4. And it thus became sacrilege to remove the stones.

How God Saved Humanity.

The world was in an awful condition as Romans, chapter 1, shows. But the planting of the Cross of Christ brought fresh life-brought regeneration and renewal. How are We Saved Morally?

1. Men's souls, like the Coliseum, are fallen to ruins.

2. How is the work of the spoiler to be stopped?

3. The planting of the Cross, the infusion of a new life and a new nature.

How can we Mortify?

1. The Cross is the emblem of that which is painful and mortifying to the flesh.

2. We are exhorted to mortify ourselves-but how?

3. The only way is by the true inward cross.

II. The Outward Cross. Suffering and Disgrace.

1. Most of the references to the Cross in the Gospels imply suffering for Christ's sake.

2. "If any man desire to come after me," said the Lord Jesus, he must be prepared to suffer pain, disgrace, and persecution for My sake."

Easy to See.

1. You will readily see why this must be so, when you remember whose territory we are marching through.

2. "We're marching through Immanuel's ground," we sing. But are we?

3. As a matter of fact we are marching through the enemy's territory. Not Sullenly Endure.

1. But please observe that little word "take."

2. If we are followers of Christ we cannot get away from these outward crosses.

3. But how shall we act? a. We may put up with it as that which is inevitable. b. We may sullenly endure it.

4. But there is no joy in such an attitude.

5. Our Lord wants us to consent to it, to carry it willingly, to take it up as an act of willing submission.

6. To shoulder the Cross bravely is the noblest way of all.

7. And the path of blessing.

What Rutherford Found in the Cross. We have in one of our favourite authors-Samuel Rutherford-an illustration of this. He had to suffer grievously for conscience sake. But he shouldered his cross heroically- and see:

1. He found it Light. "However it be, the din, and noise, and gloom of Christ's Cross are weightier than itself."

2. He Found it a Joyful Thing. a. "Seven crosses-seven joys." b. "If it were come to exchanging crosses I would not exchange my cross with any." c. "Some have written to me that I am possibly too joyful of the cross, but my joy overleapeth the cross, it is bounded and terminates upon Christ. I can report nothing but good both of Him and it, lest others should faint."

3. He Found it Light and Helpful. a. "The Cross of Christ is the sweetest burden ever I bear. It is such a burden as wings are to a bird, or sails to a ship, to carry me forward to my harbour." b. Not a hindrance, but a help-lifting him up to God like the wings of a bird, and helped him on, like the sails of a ship.

4. He Found Christ and His Cross Inseparable. a. "Christ and His Cross are sweet company, and a blessed couple. He and His Cross are two good guests and worth the lodging." b. "No cross, no crown"-we rightly say. c. Let us also add "No Christ, no Cross."

5. Application. a. Will you not invite this Guest? b. Will you not say with Rutherford: "Welcome, welcome, sweet, sweet and glorious Cross of Christ; welcome, sweet Jesus with Thy light Cross."

TRUE SELF-DENIAL.

"Then Peter took Him. . . saying, Pity Thyself, Lord." "Then said Jesus, ... If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself" (Matthew 16:22, Matthew 16:24). ("Let him cross himself out," Burroughs.) Introduction. Pity thyself-Deny thyself.

Difference.

1. What a vast difference between these two statements!

2. Yet all are either doing the one or the other-either pitying and sparing, or denying and ignoring self.

Marvel.

1. Men often wonder why there are, comparatively speaking, so few disciples of Christ.

2. We ought, instead, to marvel there are so many.

3. For look at the conditions of discipleship-they are not easy.

4. For no teacher or leader had ever proposed such conditions.

5. In profane history we read of many noble acts of self-denial, but no lives of habitual self-denial.

6. Yet that is what our Lord claims of all His followers- it has got to be done every day. St. Luke adds that to his account in Luke 9:23.

7. No holiday but our habitual habit and practice.

First Time.

1. This is the first time our Lord referred to the denial of self as a condition of discipleship.

2. Cross-bearing and self-denial up to now had not been the badge of discipleship.

Result.

1. Until our Lord made this declaration He had many followers.

2. Up to this time our Lord had proclaimed the Gospel of the Kingdom.

3. But He had been rejected.

4. Now He hints at a new order of things: the calling out.

5. For the first time He spoke of the Church.

6. Now it is not the Kingdom, but the Church.

7. And from that time His followers dwindled.

Evidence of Humanity.

1. Do you not detect an evidence of His humanity-in the question He asked His disciples? (1 Chronicles 4:13 and 1 Chronicles 4:15).

2. He was curious to hear from His disciples (of course what He already knew) of the world's estimation of Him.

3. How differently they viewed Him: John, the ascetic; Elijah, the ardent, enthusiastic, and fierce; Jeremiah, the prophet of the tender heart and tears. They saw all three in Him.

4. Then He inquired: "What am I to you?" He desired to know their own views of Him.

Opinions.

1. But there is in these questions something else besides an evidence of humanity.

2. Is there not manifested here His deep concern respecting the opinions of His disciples?

3. Say some: "It matters not what our opinions are- it's conduct that counts."

4. This is utterly wrong-creed influences conduct.

5. The inquisitors had hearts of flesh, but creeds of iron.

What if He had Pitied Himself?

1. "From that time" He spoke of Cross and self-denial.

2. This was too much for loving and impulsive Peter.

3. If He had pitied Himself we would verily have been in a pitiful condition.

What if You Do? And if we pity and spare ourselves we shall at last be found in a pitiful condition in spite of that atoning death of Christ. Who Suggests?

1. Note, the suggestion to pity self is from Satan.

2. To deny self, from God.

I. The Nature of Self-Denial.

General Idea.

1. The general idea is that which is exhibited in weeks of self-denial-denying to ourselves certain things- food or pleasure-pleasant to the natural man.

2. We would that there were more of this.

3. But true self-denial is something much more.

4. Possible for self to be very prominent in self-denial.

5. And so-called self-denial to be really self-glorification.

"Himself."

1. Note these words were addressed to men who had already made great sacrifices in order to follow Jesus.

2. But He asked of them an even greater sacrifice- themselves.

3. Observe, deny, not to himself, but himself.

4. To ourselves is but one aspect of self-denial.

II. The Necessity of Self-Denial. "But," you may inquire, "why should I deny myself?"

1. There is No Salvation Without Self-Denial. a. Do not imagine it is a thing of little consequence or merely the high attainment of some few of the saints. b. It is a thing all must have that will be saved. c. As Baxter, the Puritan, says: "It is a plain contradiction to be saved without self-denial. For as it is self that we must be saved from, so to stick to self is to be lost and miserable, and therefore not to be saved." d. Self is the root, tree, and branches of all the evils of our fallen nature. e. Every son and daughter of Adam are in the service of self, and what an awful and disastrous service it is. f. What hurried Eve headlong upon the forbidden fruit, but that wretched thing herself? What drew that one to kill his brother Abel, but that untamed self? What drove the old world on to corrupt their ways? Who but themselves, their sinful selves. g. Listen to Rutherford: "Every man blameth the Devil for his sins, but the great devil, the house-devil of every man, that house-devil that eateth and lieth in every man's bosom, is that idol that killeth all, himself. Oh! blessed are they who can deny themselves, and put Christ in the room of themselves! h. Remember this: "Till a man deny himself, he denieth God" (B.). i.. "Deny self or you will deny Christ" (B.), for self is both an Atheist and an idolater, self is an Antichrist, and glories in self-exaltation." j. The initial act of self-denial that leads to our salvation, must become the habit of our lives.

2. There can be No Successful Service for God Without Self-denial. a. A man and a boy went fishing. The boy caught plenty, but the man had not a single bite. b. The man inquired; when the boy replied, "Ah! thee mun lie thee daan, mon!" c. He was tall, and stood up, and the sun cast his shadow upon the water, frightening the fish. d. It is the shadow of self that mars our work.

III. The Example Our Lord Gave to Self-Denial.

1. Look at the Life of Our Lord-Ponder over these sayings. a. "I can of mine own self do nothing" (John 5:30). b. "I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent Me" (John 5:30). c. "I do nothing of Myself, but as My Father hath taught Me, I speak these things" (John 8:28). d. "The words that I speak unto you, I speak not of Myself, but the Father that dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works" (John 14:10). e. "For their sakes I sanctify Myself" (John 17:19).

2. Learn. a. He came to this earth by the Father's wish. b. Not a word did He speak by His own power. c. Not an act did He do of Himself. d. He was moved and controlled by God.

3. If Jesus thought it Necessary to Deny a Holy Self, what shall We say about our Sinful Self?

IV. The Path to a Life of Self -Denial. But how can I possibly live such a life? By walking close to Him.

1. A little boy was walking by the side of a missionary on the way to a meeting. The little fellow amused himself by the shadows they cast upon the path as they walked. After trying in vain to keep the shadow of himself from appearing outside that of his friend, he gave up the attempt, and said, "Please take my hand." In a little while he cried, "Oh, look, you can't find me now; you can't find one bit of my shadow now. I'm lost in you."

2. Exactly.

3. If you try by yourself to deny self, you will fail.

4. It is only companionship with Him that makes such possible.

5. It is only as we walk with our hands gripped in His.

6. Is not this sentence significant: "And Peter followed afar off." If following afar off led Peter to the denial of his Master, surely following very closely will lead to a daily denial of self.

Conclusion.

1. To pity self is to destroy yourself.

2. You cannot "come after" unless you come to Him. THE LORDSHIP OF THE SPIRIT.

"Where the Spirit is lord, there is liberty" (2 Corinthians 3:17). (Rotherham).

Introduction. The Apostle is contrasting the glory of the Old Covenant with that of the New, the Ministration of Death (1 Chronicles 4:7), and the Ministration of the Spirit (1 Chronicles 4:8), the Ministry of Condemnation (1 Chronicles 4:9), and the Ministration of Righteousness (1 Chronicles 4:9). The veil, originally on the face of Moses, is here spoken of as on the hearts of the people (1 Chronicles 4:15). Now we have to admit that there is not always liberty where the Spirit of the Lord is, so it is with relief, we note Rotherham's very fine rendering.

I. The Presence of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is first without us, striving with us for God, seeking to convict us of sin. He then loves to draw us to the Saviour. The moment we come to the Blood of Sprinkling, the moment we come to the Fountain of Blood opened for us, that moment the Holy Spirit regenerates us, imparting to us the very life of God.

Yet the Holy Spirit may be dwelling within us as a grieved Spirit-grieved because of our disobedience and carnality-grieved, yet not departed.

II. The Lordship of the Holy Spirit. A woman-a godly Christian woman-lost her husband just when her two boys required the firm hand of a father. She had to take in lodgers to make a living. One of her lodgers, a fine Christian man, after staying there for about a year, married the widow. The guest became lord and master. It was most interesting to watch the change for the better in that household. It made all the difference in the world when the guest became master. The Lord Jesus and the Holy Spirit at your conversion, dear reader, entered your heart and life as Guest. Have you made them Lord yet? Unless we recognise the Lordship of the Holy Spirit, and make Him Lord of our lives, we can never have lordship over ourselves, can never have the mastery over the world, the flesh, and the devil. Instead, our experience will be a very up and down one. Unless the Spirit is lord within us, we are unmastered, and our being is not in harmony. Pray observe, the Holy Spirit can be less than lord to us!

III. The Liberty Through the Lordship. In history we read of a Roman Emperor taken out of prison, yet with chains on hands and feet, placed on the Imperial Throne in order that state business might be transacted. How like many a Christian man and woman-truly the Lord's, yet in bondage to sin and the world. Verily he is not free who drags his chain. "Oh, Lord, make us grammatical Christians," earnestly prayed a man in a prayer meeting. Of course he really meant "genuine," only he had got a bit mixed in his English. A woman there took the petition up, and prayed, "O Lord, Thou hast blest us in the past tense; Thou are blessing us in the present tense; and oh, Lord, Thou wilt go on blessing even in the future tense!" One present at once thought of 2 Corinthians 1:10, where we have the three tenses connected with deliverance. Praise God, He can do all three!

IV. The Growth Through that Lordship. 2 Corinthians 3:17 could read: "Now the Spirit is Lord, and where the Spirit is Lord there is liberty." And the next verse: "But we all with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from a Spirit that is Lord." This is a suggestive rendering. It clearly proclaims that, after we have made Him Lord, there is rapid development in our Christian lives, with a marked growth in the Divine likeness. Our gracious British King honours a public benefactor with a peerage, a lordship. The Holy Spirit has bestowed and conveyed to you great benefits, make Him Lord! Then greater blessings will follow.

V. Three Statements About the Spirit. In Ephesians 1:13-14, we have three statements concerning the Holy Spirit.

1. He is Called the Spirit of Promise (1 Chronicles 4:13). He is called by this name either because He was the promised Spirit, or He is the Spirit whose coming to us promises so much, is full of promise, and those promises are never broken or frustrated, only save through our own folly. To see some of the glorious possibilities, note the full significance of the other two names.

2. He is Likened to a Seal. The Holy Spirit Himself is the Seal. And the fact that we are sealed: a. Is a proof of our value, for only valuables are sealed. b. Proof of our acceptance in the Beloved (proof that Mordecai had gained the King's favour was in possessing his seal, the seal of the kingdom-study Esther). c. Proof that we are owned by the Lord. For He would not seal anything or anyone not belonging to Himself. d. Pledge of safety. Pilate sealed the tomb of Jesus to make it safe. e. Pledge of freshness. We seal jars when filled with Jam to preserve. f. God's method of conveying the Divine likeness. The seal makes the impression.

3. He is the Earnest (1 Chronicles 4:14). When we come to Christ, we become joint heirs with Him, and the Holy Spirit is the earnest and pledge of our ultimate possession to the full of that blessed inheritance.

HOLY FURY.

"And the Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly" (1 Samuel 11:6).

What a strange effect of the Holy Spirit of God! We all know well that the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, and other most admirable and desirable virtues-but Anger? Well, that is a surprise! The biographer of Savonarola, the great Italian patriot, commenting on his writings of the year 1492, remarks, "They are filled with manifestations of religious zeal to which the term Holy Fury may well be applied." What a striking phrase-Holy Fury! The Reformer was furious in his denunciation of wrong and his agitation after national righteousness, and this holy zeal found expression in Holy Fury.

There is one command in Holy Writ that has troubled many, viz.: "Be ye angry and sin not." What does this mean? Human and sinful anger laments injury to self, whereas Holy anger laments the injury done to God. The way to be angry and sin not is to be angry at nothing but sin. When God's holy fire shall fall upon me, then I shall know what it is to be angry and sin not. The tidings that came to Saul was indeed sad. Read the context. God had not forsaken His people. He had one He could use, so He filled Saul with the Holy Spirit, and the result was righteous anger and Holy Fury. But note the preparatory work. It is very clear by chapter 9 of 1 Sam that Saul's first interview with the prophet Samuel was at a great sacrifice. The step to that Sacrifice was a step to the Throne. We, too, must meet the Lord at the Cross, discovering there God's view of ourselves, and His great purposes for us in the future. A question is asked in Psalm 90: "Who knoweth the power of Thine anger?" What a question. Only the Lord Jesus got to know the power of God's anger, and then at the Cross, particularly during the three hours' darkness.

"The Lord, in the day

Of His anger did lay

Your sins on the Lamb,

And He bore them away." The next step in the preparation of Saul was when he was "turned into another man" (1 Samuel 10:6-11), and that by the action and operation of the Holy Spirit. Does this not stand for what we know as Regeneration, the New Birth? And it all comes to this: Before the Spirit of God can fill me with holy anger and fury, He must be allowed to lead me to the Cross to see my sin dealt with, to save me from my sin, change me into another man by His wonderful regenerating grace, and then fill me with His Holy Spirit. THE NEED OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

"But the Spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon, and he blew a trumpet" (Judges 6:34). The Holy Spirit required for the right performance of common duties. Did Gideon really need the special enduement of the Holy Spirit in order that he might blow a trumpet? "At Christmas," you say, "I only know too well that my children can blow trumpets quite easily without any special assistance!"

Ah, you miss a great lesson by reasoning of that sort. The great truth here is that we require the aid of God's Holy Spirit for the right performance of our ordinary everyday duties, as well as for the extraordinary things of life. Nothing counts in Heaven save that which is done by His grace and power. Really, what He desires is that we should do the ordinary things in life in an extraordinarily effective and efficient a manner. Even to quote a very familiar text, in the proper and effective way, we need the Holy Spirit (see 2 Chronicles 15:1-2). The late Dr. A. B. Simpson, in one of his addresses passed on a thought all Christian workers would do well to heed. It is as follows:

One Touch of God. At one time a group of men were attempting to raise an obelisk in Egypt to its base, and the work was under the supervision of a very exact and careful engineer.

They had raised the great mass of granite to within few inches of the level of the base and then were unable to lift it further. They could not get it up to the level of the pedestal by their utmost efforts. But there was a secret in Nature that they did not know. There was a sailor there who knew all about it. He shouted, "Wet the ropes!" As they did so, the ropes began to groan, and strain, and shrink, and the great mass rose, and rose, till it came to the level of the base, and they could push it over and establish it firmly on its pedestal.

It was a little secret, but it was an effectual one. The men had pulled at the cordage and strained away at it, but the obelisk was in mid-air, and there it hung until the cry came to wet the ropes.

Dear friends, the instant we let the Holy Ghost saturate the soul, the Lord Jesus Christ brings into it all His infinite forces of love and power. One touch of God will do all that our tugging and struggling could not do.

"O, YE OF LITTLE FAITH."

There are four occurrences of this word:

1. When our Lord rebuked Care, Matthew 6:30

2. When our Lord rebuked Fear, Matthew 8:26

3. When bur Lord rebuked Doubt, Matthew 14:31

4. When our Lord rebuked Faulty Reasoning, Matthew 16:7-8

FIRST THINGS.

1. Seek, Matthew 6:33

2. Give, 2 Corinthians 8:5

3. Reconciled, Matthew 5:24

4. Cast Out, Matthew 7:5

5. Learn, 1 Timothy 5:4

6. Say, Luke 10:5

7. Count, Luke 14:28 FIRE, AN EMBLEM OF THE SPIRIT.

"He shall baptise you with the Holy Ghost and with fire"

(Matthew 3:11).

Introduction.

Holy Fire.

1. Or "with Holy Fire," as Dr. B. says it can be rendered.

2. Not, as some have thought, Holy Spirit and Tribulation.

3. But the fiery influence and power of the Holy Spirit.

Wanted.

1. A Chinese convert was asked what China needed. "What China needs are men with hot hearts, to tell the love of Jesus."

2. That is the great need of the world.

3. Whitsuntide shows us how that need and lack can be met.

4. It is being immersed in this Holy Fire; it is by knowing experimentally the fiery and glowing character of the Spirit's operations.

5. What China needs, Lancashire and all Christian countries require.

Contrast.

1. In this verse we see John's lofty conception of the work of Jesus.

Water and fire-our two great cleansing ministrants. Which is the more searching?

2. As is the difference between the two elements, so was the difference between his ministry and that of the Lord.

3. "The one effecting an outward cleansing, the other being an inward," penetrating and purifying power, "searching men through and through."

4. The one cold and negative, the other glowing and positive.

5. John recognised that the religious movement under his ministry was not sufficient for the human need. It was not equal to the deep corruption within men. It was a mere cleansing by water whereas what was required was a cleansing by fire.

Emblem of Deity.

1. Fire, all the world over, has been considered an emblem of Deity. In some cases it has been worshipped.

2. And in the Bible it is a much used symbol. a. Lamps of fire passing between the dismembered sacrifice and Abraham. (Here fire represented God.) b. The fire which enveloped the bush that Moses saw, and the pillar of fire at night, and fire on Mount Sinai. c. New Testament says: "Our God is a consuming fire."

3. And how diverse in the Bible are His operations. Sometimes the fire of God's Spirit is a wrathful energy, working pain and death to the transgressor. At others a merciful omnipotence, bringing light and warmth and joy and peace.

Trinity, Dove. "For the first time the Trinity, foreshadowed in many ways in the Old Testament is fully manifested." "Spirit descends. Father's Voice," and presence of Jesus.

1. How opposite to the other emblems.

2. Spirit fell upon our Lord as a Dove, on disciples as fire.

3. In Christ there was nothing to consume; in the disciples there was much to destroy.

4. Before we can know the Holy Spirit in His Dovelike, gentle office, we must know Him as the Fiery Destroyer, as a Consuming Fire. The Powerful and Searching Ministries of Fire.

1. What this emblem of the Holy Spirit can teach is simple and easy to discover and grasp.

2. We have eight of its ministries in mind-others may suggest themselves to you.

I. Fire Awakens. Fire of London. Strange find after Great Fire of London.

1. It is said that the heat of the Great Fire of London in 1666 so penetrated and warmed the soil that unknown flowers sprang from long and deeply buried seeds.

2. There the seeds lay asleep and forgotten in their tombs.

3. But the fire awakened them-called them forth.

Seed of the Word.

1. Is that not taking place in the spiritual world everyday.

2. The seeds of the Kingdom have been lodged in heart and mind from infancy, buried and forgotten.

3. But the fiery energy of the Holy Spirit calls them forth-and they spring up and bear fruit.

4. Oh, that God might do that now! Rabbi Duncan.

"One day as I sat down to study, and took my pen in my hand, I suddenly became the passive recipient of all the truths which I had heard and been taught in my childhood. I sat there unmoved for hours, and they came and preached themselves to me." So testified Rabbi Duncan.

II. Fire Reveals. 1 Corinthians 3:13.

1. This is the statement in this Scripture: "It shall be revealed by fire."

2. Fire shines as well as searches-it reveals as well as tests.

It Tests and Reveals my Godless Morality.

1. When the fire of God begins to shine upon us we find out the true nature of our godless morality.

2. And this is one of the most difficult matters.

3. Only when we see ourselves in His light do we get a right view of sin and unworthiness.

III. Fire Consumes. Isaiah 40:7.

1. There is a strange and unusual phrase in Isaiah 40:7. "The grass withereth and the flower fadeth because the Spirit of God bloweth upon it."

2. We would have written the contrary.

3. Here the Spirit is spoken of as a Destroyer!

4. Probably Isaiah had primarily the scorching east wind in mind-for there is but one Hebrew word for wind, breath, or spirit.

5. Even then we have a helpful lesson-he counts the withering, scorching wind as from the Lord.

6. But you will see he has men and women in mind.

Recreation Ground.

1. One Spring we saw men burning rank grass.

2. In September of same year the site of the charred mass was covered with beautiful fresh grass.

3. Before there can be fresh useful grass there must be a destruction of the old.

4. Death is the prelude to life.

5. The old growths, the product of your old life, must go in order that you might be clothed with the garments of beauty.

6. And under the breath of God's Spirit that beauty which is the product of the old nature will wither in order that you may be clothed with His beauty.

IV. Fire Purifies. How appropriate is Malachi 3:2-3.

Purify.

1. Only by fire can we separate the dross from the precious metal.

2. And fire, better than anything can destroy the impurities which are the germs of disease.

3. It is said that the Great Plague of London lingered and kept bursting out until the City was thoroughly purified by the Great Fire of London.

4. For the fire destroyed the germs of disease. My Need.

1. Purity.

2. Sweetness.

V. Fire Softens.

1. Stone and iron become soft under its fierce rays.

2. What need of tender hearts and bowed necks.

3. His Holy Fire can melt my hard heart, making it soft to take His impress.

VI.-Fire Transforms.

1. Here is a piece of hard, cold, rusty iron.

2. Put into the fire it loseth its rust and becomes white and glowing.

3. Fire lays hold upon cold dead matter, making it sparkle and blaze and turning it into the likeness of its own leaping brightness.

VII. Fire Enflames.

1. It transforms the hard cold iron into a glowing mass.

2. And Holy Spirit comes to kindle in men's souls a blaze of enthusiasm, of Divine love, melting all the icy hardness of the heart.

3. He gives ardent desires, warm and glowing hearts.

VIII. Fire Protects. Travellers in wild regions protect themselves at night by fires. Surrounded by fires they are safe and secure. Three Fires.

1. Observe a triple reference to fire.

2. But these three fires have not the same effect.

3. The first and last destroys, the second cleanses.

4. The first and last are in the form of serious warnings and threatenings, this is a gracious promise.

Remember.

1. There is a fire of anger as well as of love; the fire of the lightning which burns and consumes, as well as the fire of sunshine and of the cheery hearth.

2. Will you be baptised in the fire or consumed by it?

John.

1. What must I do to be baptised with the Holy Ghost?

2. First and foremost I must come to the Blood.

3. Note order in John 1:1 st, Christ as Lamb of God bearing away sin. 2nd, as Baptiser with the Holy Spirit. 3rd, Behold Lamb-just the Lord as Example.

4. Be first taken up with the work of Christ for you then the work of Christ in you. THE SPIRIT AS STANDARD BEARER.

"When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against Him" (Isaiah 59:19).

Introduction.

Standard Bearer.

1. The Standard Bearer was an important officer in olden times.

2. He not only bore the military insignia under which the army fought, but he always began the battle by striking the first blow, e.g., when Romans invaded Britain.

3. He was thus in the forefront of the battle, and bore the brunt of the fighting.

4. In the severe conflict, in the long campaign the Christian is engaged in, he has a standard-bearer, the Holy Spirit.

5. Thus the Spirit is the Standard-Bearer for and on behalf of the Lord's people.

6. To lift the standard- a. Means the declaration of war. b. Also organisation for war-gathering of foes. c. The actual conflict.

Reasons for Not Becoming a Christian. Not Refrain from Doing.

1. The advice our Lord gives in Luke 14 has been misunderstood by many.

2. He did not mean that, before you commence to build or go to war, you must first sit down to count the cost and refrain from doing so if you think you cannot succeed.

3. He meant that, by sitting down and carefully thinking over the matter, be able thus to make full and complete preparation so as to carry on the work successfully.

Why Some Refrain from Doing So.

1. There are many who, after calm reflection, fear to decide, for, say they, I fear to step over the line because Satan and temptation will come in like a flood sweeping me off my feet, bringing to me dismay, disaster and dishonour.

2. My friend, you have done well, not to underestimate the power of the enemy, for at times he does come in as a deluge, but Another will meet him for you.

3. Oh, timid soul, look up! Remember there are always two coming-ins.

Examples.

1. Do you think God will allow the enemy to triumph? Never.

2. The enemy's coming in is always met by the coming in of the Spirit of God.

3. And we have abundant proofs of this in Bible and history. In the Beginning.

1. It was so in the beginning.

2. In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.

3. But according to Isaiah 45:18, He did not create it without form and void, as we have it in Genesis 1:2.

4. It was the coming in of the enemy as a flood that brought about chaos.

5. Was the enemy to have all his own way?

6. The Spirit of God lifted up a standard against him: "The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." In the Days of His Flesh.

1. Was it not so in the days of His flesh? Before the Lord's temptation there was His baptism.

2. Was not that awful tragedy on the Cross an evidence that the enemy had come in as a deluge?

3. But what about the Spirit of the Lord?

4. Pentecost followed Calvary. In History.

1. It has often been so in history.

2. Often and often the enemy has come in as a flood, and everything seemed to be at his mercy. But the Spirit has come in, and all was changed.

3. Take the time of the French Revolution as an example.

4. Christianity was dethroned, and Atheism ruled supreme, and the streets of Paris ran with blood.

5. But do you know things were ripe for similar events in this country-yet the Spirit of God through the revival under Wesley stemmed the horrid torrent.

6. Are we not ripe for a similar effusion of grace? (Note the awful coming in of evil in our own day and generation). In this Chapter.

1. So in this chapter.

2. It opens with an appalling description of Israel's moral condition. (Read Matthew 3:3-4, Matthew 3:7 and Matthew 3:8.) 3. Then in Genesis 1:9-15 we have a heart moving confession.

4. And then, as there was no intercessor (Matthew 3:16), God Himself interposed, and the Spirit of the Lord sweeps in.

5. This is a prophecy, and shall take place in Israel's history.

Difficult Verse.

1. This verse has evidently been a difficult one to translate.

2. An alternative rendering in R.V.: "For He shall come as a rushing stream which the breath of the Lord driveth."

3. Showing not only His agility, but also force, the power of His coming.

4. Put him to flight-showing the success of His coming. a. To masticate, break up food, is necessary to digestion.

5. We love to take a text and break it up.

I. The Enemy is a Person and not an Influence, and his identity is clear.

1. "The Lord shall lift up a standard against him," note.

2. This statement needs emphasising these days.

3. The master stroke of the enemy is his persuasion of men that he does not exist.

4. No one can hold this belief who clings to the inspiration of the Bible.

5. He is a person to be reckoned with. a. It was he who inspired Hannibal, Alexander, Napoleon, to execute their campaigns. b. He is at the bottom of all sin and intrigue.

II. His Coming Implies a Former Ejection.

He Must be Out.

1. His coming in implies that he must have been out.

2. Is this so with you?

3. This is a word of comfort addressed to those out of whom he has been cast out. The Enemy's Home.

1. What a telling description our Lord gives in Matthew 12:43, of the unclean spirit's resting place: "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none."

2. No real rest for the enemy out of our corrupt heart. How has the Enemy to be Put Out?

1. Only the Spirit of the Lord can, as margin has it, "put him to flight."

2. And to secure the incoming of the Holy Spirit there must be a coming to the Precious Blood.

III. The Casting Out of the Enemy is Followed by a Twofold Peace.

1. Have you noticed the twofold peace in John 20:19-22?

2. Twice over our Lord said: "Peace be unto you."

3. The first is the peace which rests on the blood; the second is the peace which depends upon the Spirit.

4. "He showed him His hands and His side," as much as to say, "It is a peace which rests on sacrifice accepted."

5. But when I receive that peace I am yet conscious of war within. An inward disturbance.

6. That war will only end by the incoming of the Spirit.

IV. The Condition of His Coming-Come to the Blood.

1. So it is in this chapter.

2. Before we read of the Spirit, we hear of the Intercessor and the Redeemer.

3. We must know the efficacy of the Blood before we can know the power of His anointing.

4. There must be repentance and a turning to the Blood: "Repentant tears are the waters upon which the Spirit of God moves."

V. When Once Ejected, the Holy Spirit will Keep him Out. The Ejection of the Enemy.

1. It is one thing to get the enemy out, another thing to keep him out.

2. That was a sad case our Lord referred to in Matthew 12. Then he saith: "I will return unto my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept and garnished."

3. There was no Spirit to withstand him.

4. The soul garrisoned by the Spirit of God is impregnable.

VI. When the Enemy Swoops Down upon us we shall Not Succumb-for the Holy Spirit will Put him to Flight.

How to Keep the Enemy Out.

1. Some temptations come to us as a wee purling stream.

2. Others gather force and come in as a pent up flood.

"Tempted and tried! oh, the terrible tide

May be raging and deep, may be wrathful and wide!

Yet its fury in vain, for the Lord shall restrain,

And for ever and ever Jehovah shall reign.

"Tempted and tried! There is One at thy side,

And never in vain shall His children confide;

He shall save and defend, for He loves to the end-

Adorable Master and glorious Friend."

CHRIST, THE HEALER OF THE BROKEN HEARTED.

Psalms 147:3-4; Isaiah 61:1; Luke 4:18.

Introduction. A Common Malady.

1. A broken heart is a very common thing at the present day.

2. Perhaps commoner now than it ever has been in the world's history.

3. Heart-break is not a rare and tragic episode in human experience.

4. Note, there is a difference between being broken-down and broken-hearted.

Broken-Down, not Broken-Hearted.

1. "Broken-down" people are not always brokenhearted folk.

2. We have known some who were broken in health, broken in wealth, even broken in love, yet not brokenhearted.

3. No; when we speak of people broken-hearted we mean more than broken-down.

Ruptured Heart.

1. We have heard of people who have died of ruptured heart.

2. Through brooding over sorrow.

I'm Heart-broken.

1. Meaning a great and overwhelming grief.

2. Something more than a pin-prick.

Hopeless.

1. So far as this world is concerned, such are hopeless.

2. Science has to a great extent conquered physical pain.

3. But science has done nothing to diminish mental pain.

4. Christian Science-which is no science at all-seeks to cure by leading people to ignore-funny sort of cure, isn't it?

Various Causes for Heart-Break.

1. Broken by Grief. a. That is suggested by Psalms 147:3 (for "wounds," margin has "griefs"). b. Grief through bereavement. c. Grief through loss and sorrow.

2. Broken-Hearted by Failure.

3. Broken by Sin. "The sacrifices of God are a broken and a contrite heart." "He will have a whole heart or none, yet He won't despise a broken one." a. Their Own Sin.

(1) There is little of this, alas, to-day.

(2) Why should there not be? We have sinned as great as our fathers. b. The Sins of Others.

I. The Lord's Commission (Isaiah 61:1). He is the Great Heart Specialist from the Court of Heaven.

1. The great and crying need has been met, thank God. "Sent."

2. A skilful physician or surgeon sometimes is sent to a Crowned Head suffering, in response to a pressing need.

3. He was sent: a. Not because we asked Him to come. b. Nor because we desired Him to come. c. Not to the great ones only, but to all.

4. He is a Heart Specialist, from the Court of Heaven, sent by the Father Himself. "He hath sent me."

Five Symbols (Luke 4:18) of sin's handiwork.

1. Poor-sin impoverishes.

2. Captives-sin imprisons and captivates.

3. Blind-sin blinds.

4. Bruised-sin bruises.

5. Broken-hearted-the result of the discovery of all the former.

II. The Lord's Qualifications. His Greatness.

1. The Lord Knows, the Mystery of the Stars (Psalms 147:3-4).

a. What a strange combination. b. The Psalmist speaks of star-counting and heart-healing in the same breath. c. What a grand breathless thought of God!

(1) "He telleth the number of the stars."

(2) The mystery of the stars is known by Him. d. Why speak thus of God?

(1) Only the infinite can heal the soul.

(2) God could not minister to broken hearts if the stars were too much for Him.

(3) "The mystery of the stars, and the mystery of human pain are parts of one great mystery that is no mystery to God."

(4) The God Who alone can heal is the God Who counts the stars.

(5) No thought of God narrower and lower than that can ever truly comfort us.

2. He has Received the Heavenly Enduement. He has received the Spirit in fulness.

3. He has Suffered with the Same Malady.

a. Jesus died of a broken heart, and not as the result of the physical tortures of the Cross. b. We could not insist upon medical men suffering from certain maladies before they attempt to cure them. Yet Jesus has suffered from a broken heart. c. A broken-hearted man needs a broken-hearted Saviour.

4. He Made the Heart.

a. He who made the heart alone can heal it. b. He is the only real heart doctor.

III. The Lord's Success.

He First Binds.

a. Giving instant relief. b. Giving instant rest. So Binds that it "Heals."

a. It is not a partial or temporary healing. b. It goes to the very core.

How Does He Heal?

a. Ah, you must leave that to Him. b. Come to Him.

Application.

1. To find healing for such sorrow as this men must find God.

2. When our Lord read Isaiah 61:1-2 in the Nazareth Synagogue He added: "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears."

3. Has it been fulfilled in your experience? It may be. THE SERAPH'S WINGS.

Isaiah 6:2.

Introduction.

1. This is the only mention in Scripture of the Seraphim.

2. Are they identical with the Cherubim? Note, Cherubim are always spoken of as before the Throne, whereas the Seraphim above.

3. These are celestial beings named but unexplained.

4. Word "seraphim" means "burning ones."

5. Burning ones: a. Nearest the Throne. b. Flashing with splendour. c. Full of swift energy, as a flame of fire. d. Glowing with fervid love. e. Blazing with enthusiasm.

6. There is no ice in His presence.

7. The nearer we get to Him the more we shall glow and burn.

8. Cold religion is a contradiction in terms, though it is a reality in professors.

I. The Wings of Reverence. "With twain he covered his face." As a man brought suddenly into the sunlight, out of a darkened chamber, by an instinctive action shades his eyes with his hands.

1. The incapacity of the highest creature, with the purest vision, to gaze undazzled into the shining light of God.

2. Though with far feebler sight and more sinful, we may behold His glory veiled in Christ.

3. Absolute need of the lowliest reverence in our worship of God.

4. In many congregations it is apparent to all that there is a carelessness and shallowness, and a want of a realisation of the majesty of the Father. This should not be.

5. If a seraph hides his face, surely it becomes us to do likewise, crying "Holy."

II. The Wings of Humility. "With twain he covered his feet."

1. An instinctive lowly sense of unworthiness, caused him to fold wings over his feet.

2. The nearer we get to God the more we shall be aware of our limitation and unworthiness.

3. Once get that sight, and away goes my self-conceit, and all my fancied superiority above others.

III. The Wings for Service. "With twain he did fly."

1. That is the emblem of joyous, buoyant, unhindered motion. Alas, how slow-footed we are!

2. Whoever, beholding God, has found need to hide his face from the light, and to veil his feet from the All-seeing Eye, will also feel impulses to go forth in His service.

3. The act of service here was the purging of a sinner from his uncleanness.

4. Cherubim have to do with brazen altar, Seraphim with the laver.

5. Those make the best workers who are reverent and humble, and who see the King of Glory. THE VISION.

Isaiah 6.

I. The Vision of the Lord.

1. He was worshipping in the Temple when he saw the Lord.

2. Whether he saw this outwardly or inwardly we know not.

3. Great leaders go; but God remains. The Throne of Judah had been emptied but he saw the Throne that is ever filled.

II. The Vision of Perfect Service. Only reference to seraphim in the Bible. He saw two of the Lord's servants.

1. Position. Near the Throne. Oh! to be near!- "above it. "

2. Posture. a. Covered faces-reverence. b. Covered feet-self-hiding.

(1) Forgetful of past service rendered.

(2) Not taken up with past service.

(3) Hidden service. c. Flying.

(1) Alacrity. Rendering swift, unquestioning obedience.

(2) But not before adoration. d. Fellowship with one another. "One cried unto another. "

(1) Not dumb to each other.

(2) Spoken to each other of the Lord.

(3) Spoke of the holiness of the Lord. The Prophet's Confession.

1. He discovered his own impurity by gazing on purity.

2. The revelation given to him was of uncleanness and unfitness in speech and word.

3. He had been busy pronouncing six woes on others, he reserved the seventh for himself.

4. What he confesses is not what he had done, but what he was: First, "I am": we are concerned about what we have done at conversion; Second, at what we are-sanctification. The Prophet's Cleansing

1. God uses three main agents in cleansing men from their defilements-Blood, fire and water, i.e., Calvary, Pentecost, and the daily action of God's Word upon the conscience.

2. The prophet was cleansed by fire and blood-"Live coal" (burning wood) from off the altar of sacrifice.

Note the Points-Seven C's.

1. Contemplation. "I saw."

2. Conviction. "I am unclean."

3. Confession. "Woe is me," etc.

4. Cleansing. "Thy sin purged."

5. Call. "Whom shall I send? "

6. Consecration. " Here am I."

7. Commission. "And He said Go." THE MINISTRY OF THE CLOUD.

"It shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud" (Genesis 9:14).

Introduction. There were three Covenant signs.

1. The Rainbow. Sign of God's promise to preserve the earth from another flood.

2. Circumcision. Sign that the circumcised was in the covenant of blessing.

3. The Sealing by the Holy Spirit. A sign of the Justification and Regeneration of the believer. The rainbow was God's first covenant sign. He did not want His people to live in fear and dread. The appearance of the rainbow, which seemingly united Heaven and earth, proclaimed the friendliness of God.

I. Clouds Come Over Us.

1. How familiar we are with the clouds in the sky.

2. Clouds come not only over the sky of nature, but the sky of our lives.

3. Often there is for us the clouds of adversity, of sorrow, sickness, and bereavement.

4. We sometimes say, "So-and-so is under a cloud," and we know what is meant.

5. But if clouds come over us, let us not forget it is

II. Only by God's Permission.

1. "I bring a cloud." Clouds do not please themselves, but obey wonderful laws, and the Lawgiver.

2. God knows all about our clouds.

3. We read, the disciples on the mount of Transfiguration "feared as they entered into the cloud."

4. We ought not to fear, for- a. He has brought the cloud. b. The clouds obey Him, and, further, III. God is in the Cloud.

1. Said He to Moses: "I come unto thee in a thick cloud."

2. Thus the clouds are the dwelling-place of God.

3. Often God answers our prayers to be drawn nearer to Him by sending a cloud.

4. We get to know each other better in the mist, before the mists are rolled away.

5. The clouds shut us in to God.

6. Remember IV. His Presence is in the Cloud.

1. Therefore brightening and glorifying it.

2. We read in Exodus 16:10 : "The glory of the Lord appeared in the cloud."

V. There is no Cloud Without a Bow of Promise.

"The bow shall be seen in the cloud."

VI. Dark Clouds Mean Bright Blessing.

1. This is so in nature: dark clouds mean showers of fertilising rain.

2. It is equally so in grace.

3. Thus the clouds are more than shutters; they are also springs of blessing.

Application.

1. A woman prayed for more patience.

2. God answered the prayer by sending tribulation.

3. Tribulation worketh patience.

"Ye fearful saints fresh courage take.

The clouds ye so much dread

Are big with mercies, and will break

In blessing on your head." THE METHOD OF THE DIVINE PLOUGHMAN.

"The plowers plowed upon my back" (Psalms 129:3).

"Doth the plowman plow continually to sow? Doth he continually open and break the clods of his ground?" (Isaiah 28:24, R.V.).

I. The Ploughing.

1. How often we are able to repeat the words of the Psalm.

2. They are particularly applicable to our Lord.

3. And Israel as a nation, too, can take up the words.

4. Yes, we, too, know something of the work of the Divine Ploughman. The plough of God's providence has often cut deep, turning over our plans, and purposes, breaking up the even tenor of our life.

5. And making the once clear plain a sea of choppy ridges.

II. Why the Ploughing?

1. The joy of harvest is the outcome of the painful operation of ploughing.

2. We would never know ourselves unless the plough had not turned over revealing the hidden depths of our being.

III. How Long?

1. Not continually.

2. If God ploughs, He ploughs to sow.

3. He does not use the plough for fun.

4. He does not exercise Almightiness to crush feebleness.

IV. Great Comfort.

1. To Israel. The plough has been at work nearly two millenniums, but it will cease and blessing follow.

2. To Sinners. a. Plough of God's Spirit at work, but will be followed by b. Conversion and regeneration. c. The plough is working, let Him lead you to the Saviour.

3. To Saint. a. Plough of God's providence works in our lives. b. The calm will follow the storm; day follows night; harvest follows Spring. c. There will be the joy of a great harvest by and by. OUR HAIRS NUMBERED.

"But the very hairs of your head are all numbered"

(Matthew 10:30).

Observe, "numbered," not simply counted. Dr. Pierson has pointed out that "every hair has its own number, and if one had disappeared that number has gone out of the list. What marvellous thought it is!" Note the statement just before this: "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father." This means more than that God knows: it means that He is with the fallen bird. This is wonderfully comforting, especially when we remember that we are of more value to Him than many sparrows.

THREE HARVESTS.

1. Past, Jeremiah 8:20

2. Present, Matthew 9:37

3. Future, Matthew 13:39

COME.

1. And Rest, Matthew 11:28

2. And See, John 1:39

3. And Drink, John 7:37

4. And Dine, John 21:12

5. And Follow Me, Mark 10:21

6. And Rest Awhile, Mark 6:31

7. And Inherit, Matthew 25:34 WEEPING, YET SOWING.

"They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" (Psalms 126:5-6).

What a splendid verse is this! It has been an inspiration for the Christian worker ever since it was penned by good King Hezekiah nearly two and a half millenniums ago. It may be called an inspired proverb. It has found its way into general literature, and is frequently quoted for different purposes. It really is prophecy, fulfilled many times in Israel's history, with a fuller and grander fulfilment yet ahead. But right on the surface it presents a problem. For whoever has heard of a weeping sower, of a farmer or gardener weeping as they sowed! Usually this process is undertaken in a spirit of great cheerfulness and abounding hope. They surely never "sow in tears" though they "reap in joy." What a problem this presents.

Yet the clue is very simple. Study the whole Psalm and readily the problem will be solved. It is a Psalm of Captivity, or rather, a Psalm of the return from captivity. "When the Lord turned again the Captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream." The news of imminent emancipation seemed too good to be true. Yet the promise materialised. "Then was our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing." Even the heathen exclaimed, "The Lord hath done great things for them," so overwhelmingly patent was their deliverance of the Lord's own doing. When the happy and fortunate freed-men heard this they with one consent exclaimed, "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad."

Gladly, joyfully, triumphantly, they returned to their own beloved land. But the sight of ruined cities towns, villages, and vineyards unsealed the fountain of tears and the mourning choked the new-found joy. But here is the point: Did they abandon themselves to their sorrows? Did they nurse their grief with folded arms? By no means. Though with tears, they commenced their labours to remedy the sad state of affairs. They ploughed, and harrowed, and sowed, though with tears. Though they went forth weeping, yet they carried with them their seed baskets, bearing precious seed. Consequently, by and by, they came again "with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." The application is not difficult to see. Many a business man to-day is face to face with ruin. A good business, the result of years of labour, has ceased to exist. What then? Must the unfortunate one abandon himself to despair? No; though with tears, the old tasks must be taken up. The day following the disastrous Chicago fire, this notice was found on the blackened ruins of a once flourishing shop: "Everything lost, except wife, children, and hope I Business resumed as usual to-morrow morning!" Capital!

Leaders of Christian enterprises sometimes, through no fault of their own, find the work of years undone. What then? Hope must not be abandoned, but the seed basket taken hold of, and the old familiar tasks taken up in the certainty of an abounding harvest. Is there not a message here for defeated and dispirited believers who are grieving over their backslidden state, and over the waste and ruin in their lives and experiences. If confession of sin is made, there will not only be forgiveness, but in Jesus Christ there is full and complete deliverance, and the restoration of the years that the locusts have eaten. Such may, yea must, take up again the old and blessed familiar tasks in the Lord's service, assured that "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy."

There are seven facts concerning the Christian worker to be noted in pondering on this Scripture.

I. His Activity. "He that goeth." God has a work for all to do. Happy are we if the tasks occupying our time and thought are Divinely appointed.

II. His Unselfishness. "He that goeth forth." Will-ing to leave comfortable arm chairs and warm firesides at the call of duty, remembering that there can be no gains without pains.

III. His Sincerity. "He that goeth forth weeping." That is to say, attending to the allotted tasks in no mere dry and perfunctory manner. Doing our work in no empty professional manner, but with real heart and feeling. Suffering is the price of all real progress.

IV. His Resources. "Bearing precious seed." The seed is the Word of God. His precious truth has to be sown in faithfulness and confidence. What a glorious seed-basket have we in the Word of God.

V. His Assurance. "Shall doubtless." Turn that word round-less doubt, without any doubt. We can go forth in absolute hope of a glorious harvest.

VI. His Gladness. "Come again with rejoicing," The joy of harvest is a real very joy indeed.

VII. His Reward. "Bringing his sheaves with him." Coming before the great Reward Seat not alone, not empty handed. What a reward for sacrificial service.

LO!

ONE OF THE MONOSYLLABLES OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

The Lo! of-

1. Spiritual Surrender,|Mark 10:28|

2. Consecration,|Isaiah 6:7|

3. Christ's Continual Presence,|Matthew 28:20|

4. Doing the Will of God,|Hebrews 10:7|

5. Real Worship,|Revelation 5:6; Revelation 14:1| THE FLOWING OIL.

2 Kings 4:1-7

Introduction.

Trivial.

1. "A simple, trivial, incident, not worthy of incorporation in a Divine Book," say some.

2. "Simple," we admit; "trivial" we deny. It is as full of lessons as an egg is full of meat. The Story.

1. "A certain woman." Rabbis say she was wife of Obadiah.

2. She had lost her husband. Sad, sad loss!

3. He had left her with a load of debt. Not the first or the last of such instances. How careful husbands should be!

4. The creditor, according to Mosaic Law, had the right, which he was about to put into practice, of taking the children to be bondmen. (See Exodus 21:1-11; Lev. 25.) 5. "Pot of oil." Had she kept this for her burial?

I. Literal Application to Those in Money Difficulties.

Widows.

1. This is one amongst many instances in the Bible of God's care for widows.

2. Jeremiah 49:11 has been a comfort to many: "Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive, and let thy widows trust in Me." This is a glorious promise.

Literal.

1. We have so spiritualised this that we have lost sight of the fact that it was a literal money difficulty.

2. How this debt had been incurred we know not. Rabbis say Obadiah incurred it in feeding the 100 prophets.

3. "He feared the Lord," therefore it was not incurred by ill-living. A Natural Instinct.

1. The afflicted, by natural instinct, look to religious people to help them in their hour of trial.

2. They even come to penniless people like Elisha and missionaries.

3. Unlike many such suppliants, she was a good woman.

How Solved.

1. By the "Shut Door."

2. By the woman's "Shut Door," and not merely Elisha's.

3. Many ask our prayers, but do not pray for themselves.

Easier.

I. Some say it is easier to pray about the soul than the purse.

Debt Paid First. Note: First pay debt then keep rest for yourself.

II. Spiritual Application is to Spiritual Insolvency.

1. What about the empty vessels of our neighbours? Empty hearts, minds, lives.

2. You are to fill them. How?

3. You must have your own vessels filled first, then your neighbours.

4. How filled. "Shut Door." The value and importance of prayer for others and for ourselves.

1. Her Condition of Need. Spiritual Insolvency.

(1) There is such a thing as spiritual as well as financial insolvency. (In Church: dearth of great men. In individual life: carnal living.) (2) There are spiritual obligations: a. To God. He expects holiness. b. To man. They expect more of us,, (3) There is such a thing as spiritual bankruptcy. A bankrupt is one unable to meet his obligations.

(4) She herself was not the cause of her unfortunate position. It was due to another. So is this with you and me. Our state of insolvency is inherited.

(5) Others were dependent upon her. a. No one liveth unto himself. b. Others suffer for our lack of grace.

2. Her Assets.

a. She had Good Family Connections.

(1) Some are proud of noble ancestry. They boast of possessing "Blue Blood."

(2) "Have you any lords in your family?" asked a schoolboy of another. "Well," said the little fellow, "I have heard my mother say as how the Lord Jesus is our Elder Brother."

(3) By nature we have a sad family connection-with Adam in his fall.

(4) By grace we have a glorious family connection- with and in Christ.

(5) Can you declare your pedigree? Have you the assurance of salvation? b. She was Thoroughly Dissatisfied. c. She had a Good Friend to Consult. Yet that was not sufficient. d. She Already Possessed a Little Oil.

(1) Oil, emblem of Holy Spirit.

(2) Only applied after the Blood.

(3) Unless we have the Spirit we are none of His.

(4) But has the Holy Spirit got possession of us?

3. Her Deliverance.

a. Was by the Way of the Cross. In two cases. First: Cross of Christ. Second: Her own cross.

(1) She had to be quite willing to become to her neighbours a laughing stock.

(2) This was not the world's way of wiping away debt.

(3) Remember He is still without the camp!

(4) She came to an end of herself. b. Was by the Multiplication of Oil (1) That was how her insolvency disappeared.

(2) But when did the oil multiply? c. Was by the Shut Door.

(1) Not by the reading and study of good books.

(2) Not by attending good meetings.

(3) But by getting alone with God.

(4) By spreading before Him our own empty vessels of desire and expectancy. (We can do this each day.) (5) And the neighbours empty vessels, too! The Shut Door. Can we undervalue the Shut Door? Yes. It is of vital importance in life and service.

1. It meant Salvation for Noah and his family (Genesis 7:16). First Shut Door in the Bible; and God shut that door.

2. It meant Sanctification in figure for the widow in 2 Kings 4:4.

3. It meant Satisfaction for Thomas and rest of disciples (John 20:19-20). No other Evangelist mentions that Shut Door.

4. It meant Success for Elisha (2 Kings 4:33). Gehazi did not shut his door. THE IRON THAT SWAM.

2 Kings 6:1-7.

Introduction. The Incident.

1. Some of the most wonderful stories are recorded in the life of the prophet Elisha. Possibly none more wonderful than this of the "Lost Axe Head." A school of prophets flourished under the fostering care of the prophet, who lived with and at the school.

2. The prophetic college became too small. Need of larger premises.

3. The prophet's permission for extension was first sought, then his presence solicited.

4. They decided to do the alterations themselves.

5. On reaching the Jordan banks they commenced operations.

6. Whilst engaged in this healthful exercise, one of the young prophets, possibly wielding his axe with more force than judgment, caused the iron head to fly off and disappear under the water.

Some Smile.

1. Some worldly wise folk smile unbelievingly when they read or hear read this incident.

2. It is valuable.

I. A Lesson on the Divine Care.

1. This spiritual application is thus put by John Newton: Not one concern of ours is small.

If we belong to Him;

To teach us this, the Lord of all.

Once made the iron to swim.

2. This may seem a triviality to the worldly folk.

3. But He takes a real, living, practical interest in everything in our lives.

4. It was bad enough to lose an axe head; but worse, seeing it was borrowed.

5. He is interested in your axes and knives, and pots and pans and brushes.

II. A Lesson in Spiritual Effectiveness.

1. It points out for the Christian believer's edification, the danger of losing spiritual effectiveness.

2. The man did not lose the whole of his axe, but the effective part of it, without which he was useless in the work.

3. The axe head was lost. a. At a time of growth and expansion. b. In the midst of service.

4. He did not lose: a. The axe handle, nor b. His knowledge of how trees should be cut.

5. How he recovered his loss. a. He confessed his loss. b. He returned to the place where he lost it.

Satan does not mind if we deepen our knowledge and keep sound our doctrine, but he wishes to rob us of the keen edge of spirituality that is effective.

6. One great secret of retaining our spiritual effectiveness is abiding in Him, as in our next point.

III. A Lesson on the Importance of Union.

1. In this story the truths set forth in John 15 may be found.

2. Two kingdoms here. Iron, belonging to mineral; wood, to vegetable.

3. When separated-useless.

4. Nothing must be allowed to come in between the Lord and ourselves.

5. If left to ourselves we shall "sink" and be useless.

6. There is always the downward pull in the world, and always something in our old nature to answer to that pull.

7. How to maintain our abiding. a. Union maintained. b. Meditation of the Word. c. Cleansing by Word.

IV. A Lesson on the Salving of a Sinner. The Sinner.

1. The axe head may be taken to represent the sinner.

2. He had lost what was really not his own. We belong to God.

3. Its nature was to sink deeper. So poor sinner is only capable, apart from the power of God, of getting further away. The Place.

1. The place where it fell, Jordan, the sinner's position before God, viz., in the death of trespasses and sins.

2. Jordan stands for death.

How to be Saved.

1. Can the axe head raise itself? No; help must come outside itself.

2. God has cut down a branch (Isaiah 11:1), and cast it into the pit of death.

3. When cast into the waters it disappears.

4. But only for a moment, to re-appear in resurrection.

Comes to Us.

1. The stock came to where the axe head lay.

2. So the Lord Jesus comes to where we are. The Result.

1. Recovered.

2. Raised.

3. Not "the iron did float"-a dead corpse can do this.

4. The iron did swim-does what is contrary to nature. This meant progress.

5. Union with the living Christ means: a. Life. b. Energy. c. Progress. d. Restoration.

6. Restoration to proper and original owner-God.

How to be Raised.

1. Tell the Lord.

2. Consult the servant of the Lord. THE LORD WRESTLING WITH JACOB.

Genesis 32:24-32.

This Contest I. A Literal Fact. Not a dream or vision.

II. Its Purpose. To bring him to the end of self.

III. It Took Place. When he was alone with God.

IV. It Concluded. When resisting Jacob became clinging Jacob.

V. Its Fruit. Shrivelling of self-life and enriched character.

Low Shelves. The late Dr. F. B. Meyer once wrote: "I used to think that God's best gifts were on tall shelves, and I must grow tall in order to reach them. Now I have learned that they are on low shelves, and that we must get down in the very dust to take them." The Lord had bestowed many gifts and blessings on Jacob, tall though he was in his own estimation, but ere he could have the best of all he had to bend very low.

Jacob's Prayer. He schemed and plotted first (Genesis 32:3-8), then prayed. He reminded God he was on this journey by His command (Genesis 32:9); confessed his unworthiness (Genesis 32:10); remembered God's bountiful kindness to him (Genesis 32:10); frankly disclosed his fears (Genesis 32:11); reminded Him of His promise (Genesis 32:12). "The best we can say to God in prayer is what He has said to us." The Fruit.

1. A Life-long Limp. "The limp of Jacob was indeed a life-long disability, but it was also the patent of his nobility."

2. The Shrivelling of the Sinew was symbolical of the shrivelling of the "I," the self-life.

3. The New Name. He was knighted on the field, on the scene of his defeat.

4. Power with God and Man.

5. Sunrise. It is sunrise with the soul which has definite experience with God. THE APPLE OF HIS EYE.

Zechariah 2:8.

At first sight it is not easy to say whether "His Eye" means God's eye, or the eye of the one who seeks to injure God's servant. The latter is certainly true. He that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of his own eye, i.e., will do himself irreparable damage, or injure himself in the most sensitive part. The enemies of God's people sooner or later find this out by bitter experience. But we may take it that God is here calling His people the apple of His eye, and this figure of speech is most suggestive, teaching us several things.

I. The Delight we are to Him. We are the Apple of His Eye.

II. The Blessed Unity Between the Lord and His Own. He calls you His eye. It is the most prominent part of our appearance. What a close and blessed unity this suggests. Nearer we cannot get, for how near the eye is to the individual!

III. The Loving Care He Exercises over His Own (Deuteronomy 32:10; Psalms 17:8). "He kept him (Israel) as the apple of His eye." Thus declared Moses concerning God's care over His people. You thought you were friendless and helpless, but you have a wonderful Defender, and He exercises a wonderful care over you. See how swiftly and automatically we defend our eyes. Let David's prayer be yours: "Keep me as the apple of the eye" (Psalms 17:8).

IV. Learn the Special Mission He has for His Own. In the Hebrew the pupil of the eye is called the gate of the eye, because through it enters the light. How appropriate is this. His people is the pupil, the gate through which the light comes to lighten those in darkness. THE LORD THINKETH UPON US.

"But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me"

Psalms 40:17

I. A Confession. It is a confession of poverty. That may be true in a literal sense-poor as far as this world's goods are concerned. But it certainly is true in a spiritual sense. A confession many do not care to make. It is so natural for us to hide the fact of our poverty, whether temporal or spiritual. Some do not make it for they do not know of it. We refer specially to spiritual poverty (Revelation 3:17).

Don't be afraid. He knows. Don't be afraid to tell Him. Whether you do or no, He knows all about it.

II. An Encouragement.

Comforting. How comforting it is for a poor person to hear that some wealthy relative is thinking of him. Alas! they often just think, and nothing more!

Certain. One thing is certain, if God thinks of us, all is well. "What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us that we perish not."

How do we Know He Thinks of Us? Because of what He says in His Word. "For I know the thoughts that I think towards you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace and not of evil" (Jeremiah 29:11). Because of what He is constantly doing.

III. The Nature and Character of God's Thinking. Not about, but upon us. There is a sense of awayness, of distance, in His thinking about us. When the children are at school, mother thinks about them; but when they are seated at the table she thinks upon them. It might be rendered, "is thoughtful over me." There is a sense of nearness and affection in the expression-"Upon." God's thinking is done whilst bending over us in love.

"Jesus now is bending o'er thee,

Jesus lowly meek and mild." THE MYSTERIOUS YOUNG MAN

Mark 14:51.

Who was he? The more we ponder on this incident the more we are led to believe it was Mark himself, the writer of this Gospel, and for the following reasons:

1. This way of referring to himself is quite in keeping with the usual manner of personal references in the Gospels. This was how John spoke of himself in his Gospel.

2. The very triviality of the incident seems to point to Mark as the young man concerned. This incident has little or no bearing on the story. Yet it was not trivial to Mark.

3. The minuteness of the reference inevitably suggests that the Evangelist is giving a bit of his own history.

4. "Having a linen cloth"-having a sindon, a fine and very costly cloth, so called because it was woven at Scinde, India. It was a kind of linen cloth greatly valued, but exceedingly costly, and only the very wealthy could afford it. Now we do know that Mark and his mother were wealthy.

5. In all probability this young man had been a silent, hidden observer of our Lord's agony and prayer in Gethsemane, and that is one reason why, though the three selected disciples were asleep, we have so full an account of what really happened. A STRANGE NESTING PLACE.

"Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, and the swallow a nest. . . even Thine altars, O Lord of Hosts" (Psalms 84:3).

Introduction. A Strange Nesting Place. A strange nesting place was chosen by a pair of Birmingham thrushes, under a railway car that four times a day does the journey between Sutton and Birmingham. But here is a stranger-the Temple altar.

Context. The Psalmist is not hinting that the altars of the Lord had been so neglected and disused that birds had nested there. Unable to attend the services of the sanctuary, his heart yearned for that privilege (Mark 14:2), and he envied the birds that nested there. The Altar. The lessons are simple and important. The altar speaks of bloodshedding, of sacrifice, and loudly speaks of Cross. The Cross, God's Best Altar.

I. The Weakest can Find Sanctuary in the Altar, Place of Safety. The weak sparrow and swallow found sanctuary in God's house. But the place of blood-shedding was the place of safety. The Cross is your only sanctuary, your only City of Refuge.

II. The Weakest find the Place of Death the Place of Life. The place of blood-shedding was not only the place of safety, but the place of life. When I cling to the Cross I find- 1. Pardon.

2. Life for a look.

III. The Most Timid find the Place of Sacrifice a Place of Quietness. In this distracting world it is possible to be quiet and do our work.

"Peace, perfect peace, in this dark world of Sin,

The blood of Jesus whispers peace within."

IV. Place of Sacrifice the Starting Point of all True Service. Here the altar was a place for busy service.

SEVEN ASPECTS OF SALVATION.

1. Horn of Salvation-the Power of Salvation, Luke 1:69

2. Rock of Salvation-the Stability of our Salvation, Psalms 95:1

3. Tower of Salvation-the Security of our Salvation, 2 Samuel 22:51

4. Helmet of Salvation-Preservation of our Salvation, 1 Thessalonians 5:8

5. Cup of Salvation-the Joy of our Salvation, Psalms 116:13

6. Wells of Salvation-the Refreshment in our Salvation, Isaiah 12:3 THE FIVE RECORDED OCCURRENCES OF OUR LORD PRAYING.

1. At His Baptism, Luke 3:21

2. On the Mount of Transfiguration, Luke 9:28

3. When Choosing His Disciples, Luke 6:12

4. When the Jews Sought to Kill Him, John 12:27

5. In Gethsemane, Luke 22:42 AMEN.

"My heart wishes it to be exactly so"

(Chinese Version).

"Amen" Study No. I.

Introduction.

1. No word used more in devotion than this.

2. And we might add, none more lightly used.

3. We use it as a fitting finish to our prayers, though its full significance is not so well known.

4. It is a word capable of many renderings, its precise meaning to be decided by context.

I. It is Used as a Note of Affirmation. In the Douay Version of Scriptures our Lord's "Verily, Verily" is rendered "Amen! Amen."

II. It is Used as Meaning "True, Faithful, Certain, Steadfast." In Revelation 3:14, Christ is called "The Amen." Oh, how true is He! How faithless we are!

III. In 2 Corinthians 1:20, All the Promises of God are said to be "Amen in Christ," that is, they are certain and firm to those in Christ.

IV. There is a fourth use and meaning of the word "Amen," the one we often make of it. The use our Lord taught us to make of it: "So be it," or, "So let it be."

V. A friend stated that his sister says it ought to be pronounced "A-men!!!" meaning "It shall be!" Sometimes we feel we are storming Heaven and can then lay full claim.

VI. But the Chinese Characters used for Amen, mean, "My heart wishes it to be exactly so."

a. Is this not a charming definition. b. Another way of saying: "Lord, this is not the mere expression of my lips, but the language of my heart." A VERY DESIRABLE "AMEN."

Oh, to leave this world thus with a benediction.

Luke 24:50-53.

"Amen" Study No. 2.

I. Joy and Praise.

1. No real Christian can but long- a. For more joy (Luke 24:52), b. And for more of the spirit of praise.

2. To our sorrow we have to confess we lack often these essentials.

3. Now and again we are in this frame of mind.

4. But these were so "continually."

5. Said John Livingstone (1603-1672): "The capital crime of the Lord's people is barrenness in praises."

6. Rutherford said: "How joyful is my heart that ye write ye are desirous to join with me in praising, for it is charity to help a debtor to pay his debts."

II. Praising and Blessing.

1. Not interchangeable terms.

2. To praise is to magnify His mercy; to bless is to speak good of His Name.

III. Continually. Some seem to think that this meant "attendance only at stated hours of prayer."

IV. What will Lead Us to this Frame of Mind and Soul?

1. Be blessed by Him (we must be blessed before we can bless).

2. Worship Him.

3. Abide in Him (He is our Temple).

4. Then you will praise Him more.

"AMEN" TO JOHN'S STRANGE COMMAND.

1 John 5:21

"Amen" Study No. 3.

I. What is an Idol?

1. This "Amen" must be considered as not merely a fitting conclusion to the Epistle, but as a heartfelt desire concerning this last command.

2. We might be inclined to think this has no application to us.

3. There is much idolatry to-day even in England. a. Of course there is to-day Image worship. We would do as John Knox did, when lying in irons in the French Galley. He was asked to worship an image of the Virgin Mary, but he flung it overboard, declaring it was "but a pented brod"-a painted board. b. There can be idolatrous systems of worship. The following of any man-made religion is idolatry. "All worshipping, honouring, or service of God invented by the brain of man in the religion of God, without His own express command, is idolatry," said John Knox in later life. c. Dr. Torrey said: "That which a man thinks most of- that is his god. It may be money, position, or pleasure."

II. Who are the "Little Children?"

1. 1 John 2:12-13 and 1 John 2:14 decides.

2. Observe three stages of growth: a. Spiritual babyhood, or infancy. b. Spiritual youth. c. Spiritual maturity.

3. Little children are in particular need of a word about forgiveness (1 John 2:12), victory over sin (1 John 2:1), power of overcoming (1 John 4:4), etc.

III. "Keep yourselves." Let God have His rightful place in your hearts and life.

"AMEN" TO THE CURSES.

Deuteronomy 27:15.

"Amen" Study No. 4.

Introduction. This is the most difficult "Amen" of the Bible. It is easy to say "Amen" to the blessings. It is quite natural for the heart to wish for them. But the curses? Ah, that is difficult. These are instructions concerning a strange ceremony to take place on entrance into Canaan.

Why should it be difficult to say "Amen?" It is comparatively easy to say, "It shall be," one of the definitions of "Amen." For whether we say "Amen" or no, it is bound to take place. But to say, "My heart wishes it to be exactly so"-well, that is the difficulty. And yet that is the position the Lord desires us all to reach. Our hearts should only wish to be and to hear and do what is His wish and will for us.

I. Is it His Will for Us to Tread some Lonely and Tortuous Way? Pray for grace to say "Amen."

II. Is it His Arrangement for you to Bear Many Burdens of Responsibility? Pray for grace to say "Amen."

III. One Thing that will Help us to say "Amen" to the Curses: The presence of the Altar. The altar had to be fixed on the side curses were announced.

IV. If a Curse Rests on Every One that Continued Not in the Book of the Law to Do Them, yet "He was made a curse for us."

"AMEN" TO THE LORD'S COMING.

"Surely I come quickly. Amen" (Revelation 22:20).

"Amen" Study No. 5.

1. Can we all say this to this Divine intimation?

2. I fear there are many professing Christians who could not.

3. When our friends tell us they intend to call upon us some day we ask them to send us a card so that we might get ready for them.

4. How we wish the Lord would do the same.

5. But He does not. Why? He desires us to be always ready.

6. Note the present tense: "I come." He desires us to live in the expectancy of His Coming.

7. Our Lord's Coming is mentioned 318 times in the 260 chapters of the New Testament, and it occupies 1 in every 25 verses from Matthew to Revelation.

8. Much, from time to time, has been said about the Eastward position. The Christian position is the upward position, the upward gaze.

HOW TO SAY "AMEN."

Revelation 19:4.

"Amen" Study No. 6.

1. We had for our meditation in Study No. 4 one of the most difficult "Amen's" in the Bible.

2. We think we have got on very far in the Spiritual life when we can say "Amen " to all God's dealings with us.

3. But there is something else required. How do we say "Amen?"

4. So many say "Amen" to God's providences in such a way as though they were martyrs in having to submit to them.

5. Notice in Revelation 19:4 what the "Amen" is followed by.

6. If it takes a lot of grace to say "Amen," what grace is required to say also "Alleluia!" A lady went to China to undertake missionary work. With a deep love for the Chinese people, she tackled the language. After some months she was asked to remain in the Training Home. Surprised, and for the moment disappointed, yet she said Amen, but some time passed before she could add Hallelujah.

7. Revelation 19:4 tells us one secret of being able to add, "Praise the Lord!"

8. When we remember that, notwithstanding all the darkness, and all the unintelligible things, yet God is on the throne, it is then we can say "Alleluia," as well as "Amen."

9. And when He is on the throne of our spirits, crowned Lord of all, then we can say: "My heart would have it so-praise the Lord." THE APOSTOLIC BLESSING.

2 Corinthians 13:14.

"Amen" Study No. 7.

Introduction.

1. This verse is most familiar to us, as it is used universally in the dismissal of congregations.

2. We have all repeated "Amen" after the preacher, and it is good to so respond.

3. But what an "Amen" this is.

4. This "Amen" practically amounts to two things:

I. Our Acceptance of the Trinity.

1. If Jesus is not God the Son, and if the Holy Spirit is not a Personality, it were blasphemous to associate the names thus.

2. It does not mean that we understand the Trinity.

3. But we can accept that Doctrine.

4. It was Henry Ward Beecher who said it was easier for him to believe in the Trinity than the Unity of God.

5. Science has something to say in favour, for in nature the highest organisms are the most complex.

6. Philosophy teaches that love demands love; that Eternal Fatherhood implies Eternal Sonship.

II. Our Wish for Blessings to be Bestowed by the Trinity. What a splendid wish and prayer this is for a congregation about to leave, or for that matter, for all our friends.

1. The Grace of the Lord Jesus Christ. "Be with you." a. Note, not Jesus, but Lord Jesus. How reverently that peerless Name is uttered. b. Not only the blessings that come to us through Jesus. c. Or the blessings that are bestowed by Him. d. But there is a further meaning-the refinement and gracefulness of the Lord Jesus. e. Jesus Christ was always graceful in His deportment and manners.

2. The Love of God. . . "Be with you." a. A constant realisation of the love of God. b. His own love constantly dwelling within us.

3. The Communion of the Holy Ghost. . . "Be with you." a. God has only one Vicar on earth-the Holy Spirit. b. He is here now right by our side. c. We can have partnership, oneness, with Him in all His wishes and desires.

Note the ascending scale.

First: Grace.

Second: Love.

Third: Fellowship. When I get grace I am made to know of the fact that He loves me, and, most marvellous of all, we then can have communion.

TASTING.

Psalms 34:8.

1. This means that Christianity is something to sample as well as something to believe.

2. Conversion is spoken of in 1 Peter 2:3 as "tasting."

3. Strange, yet true, that those who know nothing experimentally about religion have most to say about it and against it.

4. Why the Psalmist longed for others to "taste." Because his God was a God who- a. Answered prayer (Psalms 34:4). b. Delivered from fears (Psalms 34:4). c. Lightened hearts of those who look to Him (Psalms 34:5). d. Saved people out of their troubles (Psalms 34:6).

5. What is necessary in order to "taste?" a. Call upon Him. b. Come to Him. c. Take from Him gifts offered.

PRAYER. A MATTER OF THE HEART.

"Therefore hath Thy servant found it in his heart to pray this prayer unto Thee" (2 Samuel 7:27).

Prayer Study No. I.

A Find. Note that expression. David had made a find, a great find, an important one. And the find was in his own heart. And the find was a desire for prayer-a heart desire-a love for prayer. Have you a love, a heart affection for prayer?

Highest Form. This is the highest form of prayer. Prayer first begins as a matter of necessity. But it soon ought, and should, become a matter of the heart.

Madam Guyon has defined prayer as "nothing else but the application of the heart to God." In other words, the heart talking to God, and communing with Him.

Independent. "The prayer of the heart," wrote Madame Guyon, "cannot be interrupted by the occupations of the mind." Nothing can interrupt the prayer of the heart but unruly affections.

Essentials. In order to find prayer in the heart, the following are essentials:

1. A Heart Right with God. If the heart is not right with God, communion with God is impossible. An impenitent sinner finds no such thing in his heart. He has no intelligent wish to enjoy God's friendship. The whole atmosphere of prayer is foreign to him.

2. A Heart Filled with Him. That is a heart in which He is quite at Home, and which He has filled with Himself.

3. A Heart Set on God's Word. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly." This is a trustingly beautiful prayer by David. Read it carefully and prayerfully. When examined, you will find that David is only talking over and repeating and thanking God for His own Word. This is one secret of blessing and successful prayer seasons and times.

PRAYER: A MATTER OF THE INTELLECT.

"Ye said also, Behold what a weariness is it!"

Malachi 1:13

Prayer Study No. 2.

A Sad Mark of Spiritual Degeneration is Here. The sacred offices of the sanctuary had become a weariness. Sad, oh, so sad, when prayer becomes a weariness! Yet is there a Christian who has not found it so at times?

Indolence. It suggests that there can be weariness and indolence in prayer. Coleridge thought the act of praying to be, in its most perfect form, the very highest energy.

Dead Prayers. We offer many dead prayers through mental indolence. We do not shake ourselves up to think and act.

Matter of Intellect. We noticed in our last study that true prayer is a matter of the heart. It is also a matter of the intellect. We may pray with the intellect without praying with the heart; but I question whether we can pray with the heart without praying with the intellect. We have to serve God as well as love Him, with the mind, as well as heart.

Let your Prayers be:

Affectionate-with real heart in them.

Intelligent-with real thought in them.

Energetic-with real energy in them.

1. Old Dr. Chalmers spoke of Dr. Doddridge's prayers as having an "intensely business-like" spirit.

2. An old American preacher, in denouncing indolent prayers, said: "Can we expect that our sins can be washed by a lazy prayer." Think on this.

3. Of course it is the Blood of God's Son that cleanseth from sin, yet prayer for that mercy usually precedes the blessing.

4. The Lord save us from lazy prayers! THE MIGHTY INFLUENCE OF PRAYER.

"The heartfelt supplication of a righteous man exerts a mighty influence" (James 5:16).

Prayer Study No. 3.

F. Rays. We have been startled lately at the discovery by an Italian of what are now known as "F. Rays." These Rays will blow up a ship with its own dynamite at a distance of 20 miles. It is an invisible yet mighty force. A Mightier Power. But we know of a mightier power. Invisible, too, viz., that of prayer, as James here declares.

James. The tradition concerning James is that his knees were worn hard as a camel's, through his constant habit of prayer. This gives force to his statement concerning prayer, for he lived the prayer life. He practised what he preached, and he preached what he practised. James insisted on the extreme value and power of prayer (see text). Is this True? The great majority of us have little faith in prayer. Christians often have little faith in prayer as a power in real life. Or though we may say differently with our lips, by our lives we show little faith in prayer.

Heathen Shame Us. Heathen habits of devotion shame us. Heathen prayer, whatever else it is or it is not, is a real belief in the heathen mind. When Ethelred, the Saxon King of Northumberland, invaded Wales, and was about to give battle to the Britons, he observed near the enemy a host of unarmed men. He inquired who they were, and what they were doing. He was told that they were monks of Bangor praying for the success of their countrymen. "Then," said the heathen prince, "they have begun the fight against us; attack them right away."

Mighty. Remember prayer is a mighty weapon. Use it.

Key. Prayer is a golden key, which, kept bright by constant use, will unlock the treasures of earth and heaven. THE VALUE OF SILENCE.

"Be silent unto God, and let Him mould thee" (Luther's Translation, Psalms 37:7).

Prayer Study No. 4.

Seeming Injustice.

1. It appears that the Psalmist often noticed the seeming injustice of God's dealings with men as witnessed in the frequent prosperity of the wicked, and the frequent adversity of the righteous. What then?

2. Why, do not fret, and don't be envious, but- a. Trust in the Lord. b. Delight thyself in the Lord. c. Commit thy way unto the Lord. d. Rest in the Lord.

Luther's Rendering. Luther gave a suggestive rendering and translation of this verse. The margin of our A.V. says, "Be silent to the Lord."

Value of Silence. We are slow at learning the value of silence. It seems one of the most difficult to learn these bustling 20th century days. And that is the reason so many break down in body, and also why there is so little worship. In Nature. We have an example of the value of silence in the natural world. The silent seasons of life are not inoperative. The winter is the mother of spring; the night is the fountain of physical forces of the day. So in Grace. The greatest things in our spiritual lives come out of our waiting hours, when all activity is suspended, and the soul learns "to be silent unto God" while He shapes and moulds us for future activities and fruitful years.

Silence-what in? Silence sometimes of our own clamorous needs and petitions. Silence of our own mental doubts and difficulties. Silence of our own plannings and scheming.

Why-what for? To hear His voice. To learn His will. To have His mind-his thoughts imparted to us. To have our characters moulded.

QUIETNESS BEFORE GOD.

Psalms 37:7, R.V.

Prayer Study No. 5.

Cecil. We were much impressed by a remark of Cecil recorded in his Memoirs: "Quietness before God is one of the most difficult of all Christian graces." This is a remark by one who was wise and understanding in the things of God and in the ways of men.

Recognised. David seems to recognise it as such. See, it is the fifth grace mentioned here:

1. "Fret not" (Psalms 37:1).

2. "Trust" (Psalms 37:3).

3. "Delight" (Psalms 37:4).

4. "Commit" (Roll thy way upon the Lord, R.V.). (5).

5. "Rest" (be silent to the Lord, R.V.) (7).

How necessary it is to enjoy God and hear His voice.

Higher Degree. Madame Guyon calls a state of quietness before God as one of the higher degrees of prayer. A Help to This. Madam Guyon says: "It is also necessary that you should go to God, not so much to obtain something from Him as to please Him, and to do His will; for a servant who only serves his master in proportion to the recompense he receives, is unworthy of any remuneration."

THREE STEPS IN THE PRAYER LIFE.

Psalms 5:1-7.

Prayer Study No. 6.

I. The Prayer's Request (Psalms 5:1).

1. He hears every word we speak in even ordinary everyday conversation.

2. How often we grieve Him!

3. He hears also our thoughts! Oh, how that startles and humbles us!

4. But the Psalmist has particularly prayer in His mind.

5. He hears our prayers when offered audibly or inaudibly.

II. The Prayer's Determination as self-preservation (Psalms 5:2 and Psalms 5:3).

1. Come what may, "Unto Thee will I pray."

2. And one thing that makes him most determined to pray is the fact of the holiness of God (Psalms 5:4).

3. By prayer I receive strength to avoid and gain victory over evil and temptation.

4. And thus live and dwell in His Presence.

5. He determined to pray specially in the morning for "well begun is half done." And after prayer, continue all day to "look up!"

III. The Prayer Attitude (Psalms 5:7).

1. He would not approach God on the ground of His own goodness, but rely on His mercy (Note, "multitude of Thy mercy").

2. And he would approach God in reverence. "And in Thy fear. THE IMPORTANCE OF WORKERS, OR THOSE IN TROUBLE GETTING ALONE WITH THE LORD.

Mark 6:31.

Prayer Study No. 7.

Introduction.

1. How familiar are the words of our text.

2. We remember them in times of sickness, when we note with thankfulness that it is "Come," not "Go," suggesting He is there to greet us.

3. But there are two classes suggested by the events of the context.

4. And we particularly remember our text in relation to waiting on God.

I. There is Sorrow, Because of Bereavement or Other Losses.

1. By St. Matthew 14 we learn that these words were said immediately after our Lord heard of John the Baptist's martyrdom.

2. He wanted to get away from the bustling crowd.

3. There is nothing like solitude with God for healing our soul trouble.

4. Strange, often we feel least inclined for Him at such tiroes.

II. Christian Workers, After Public Service, Require Loneliness.

1. The Apostle had returned after a successful missionary and evangelistic campaign.

2. They were jubilant.

3. He calmed them by taking them aside.

4. We will soon get flat if we do not have our times of solitude.

5. And we will soon begin to think unduly of ourselves if we do not seek for solitude.

III. Even as Christians we Need Such Solitude to Regain Lost Brilliancy.

1. An archduchess possessed some of the most magnificent pearls in existence.

2. Having been left unworn for a long time, the gems lost their colour and became, as the authorities declared, sick.

3. Experts declared that the only way to restore their original brilliancy was to submit them to a prolonged immersion in the depths of the sea.

4. At the foot of a cliff, under the windows of a Castle, at a depth of 80 feet below the surface of the Adriatic's clear waters, in a cage fixed by divers, they lay for years.

5. We lose colour and become sick through wear and tear, and lack of solitude with Him. OUR CHIEF WORK.

"On that day did David make it the chief work to give thanks unto the Lord"

1 Chronicles 16:7, R.V.

Prayer Study No. 8.

This Psalm is a compilation from three others. Verses 8 to 22 consists of first 15 verses of Psalms 105:23-33, quotations from Psalm 116; 1 Chronicles 16:34to36 from Psalm 106.

David drew attention-

1. To Works of God (1 Chronicles 16:8, etc.).

2. To Majesty of God (1 Chronicles 16:23, etc.).

3. To Mercy of God (1 Chronicles 16:34). This latter is sweetest note of all. The chief work not to pray, but to praise. In everything give thanks. When He took the cup He gave thanks. AT JESUS' FEET.

1. For Redemption, Luke 7:38

2. For Adoration on account of mercies received, Luke 8:35

3. For Instruction, Luke 10:39

4. For Consolation, John 11:32

5. For Intercession on behalf of others, Mark 7:25

6. For Worship, Matthew 28:9 THE "MUSTS" OF THE SCRIPTURES.

1. The Must concerning the sinner and the putting away of sin (Ezra 10:12 and Acts 9:6).

2. The Must concerning Regeneration and all (John 3:7; Acts 16:30-31).

3. The Must concerning Propitiation for sin (John 3:7; and Acts 4:12).

4. The Must concerning Worship (John 4:24).

5. The Must concerning Faith (Hebrews 11:6).

6. The Must concerning Receiving and Confessing Christ (Luke 19:5).

PROPHECIES RELATING TO CHRIST. The author has several times used this Bible Study with Agnostics, and with others who doubted the full Inspiration of the Bible, and never without, by the blessing of God, making a tremendous impression, and with remarkable effect. Usually after pointing out these Scriptures existed hundreds of years before Bethlehem and Birth of Christ, he asked: "How can you account for these exact predictions?"

I. His Birth.

1. Mode, Genesis 3:15 2. Nation, Genesis 12:3 3. Tribe, Genesis 49:10 4. Family, Isaiah 11:10 5. Mother, Isaiah 7:14 6. Place, Micah 5:2 7. Forerunner, Isaiah 40:3 II. His Life and Death.

1. Poverty and Suffering, Psalms 22:6-16 2. Worshipped by Gentiles, Isaiah 60:6 3. How He Entered Jerusalem, Zechariah 9:9.

4. For the Sake of Others, Daniel 9:26 5. Object of Conspiracy, Psalms 2:1-3 6. Followers Dispersed, Zechariah 13:7-9 7. Ill-treated, Isaiah 50:6 8. Pierced, Zechariah 12:10; Zechariah 13:6 9. Vinegar to Drink, Psalms 69:21 10. Spat upon, Isaiah 50:6 11. Cut off Without Trial, Isaiah 53:8; Daniel 9:26 12. Garments Distributed, Psalms 22:18 13. No Bones Broken, Psalms 34:20 14. Rise Again, Psalms 16:10, applied in Acts 2:27-31.

III. His Second Advent.

1. Return to Gather, Deuteronomy 30:3 2. Rejected-Reigning, Psalms 2:1-12; Psalms 50:30; Psalms 95:10-11 3. Waiting, Psalms 110:1 4. Endless Government, Isaiah 9:7 5. Good Government, Jeremiah 23:5 6. A Priest-King, Zechariah 6:13 7. Everlasting, Daniel 7:13-14

Scripture Couplets

Scripture Couplets SALVATION BEFORE HELP.

"Lord, save me" (Matthew 14:30). "Lord, help me" (Matthew 15:25).

Two important, earnest, and impressive prayers. But please observe their order in the sacred narrative. Peter's cry, "Lord, save me," comes before the Syro-Phoenician's plea, "Lord, help me." Before the request for his assistance comes the call for his salvation. This is highly significant, and conveys a much needed and vitally important lesson.

"But I do ask God to help me," is often the reply of men and women when dealt with about their souls. There is hardly a Christian worker but has heard this statement many a time. And one cannot but feel that self-righteousness prompts that reply. No doubt it is true, for instinctively the most careless and depraved cry out for the help of the Almighty in times of distress and disaster. But it is not according to the Divine order. I must cry, "Lord, save me," before I cry, "Lord, help me." Before I have any right to ask for His assistance I must ask for His salvation. In fact, I have no claim on His willingness to help unless I have received His grace and mercy. This order is recognised in other portions of the Holy Book. For instance, the Gibeonites in a time of sore and desperate need sent an urgent message to Joshua, saying, "Save us and help us." (Joshua 10:6); and the saint in the grand old 46th Psalm boldly exclaims: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Note the order-"save" then "help"; a "refuge," then a "present help"-yea, "a very present help."

It is all very well to say: "I do ask God to help me," but is that prayer answered? Ah, that is another thing. The heart-moving plea of the woman of Canaan in Matthew 15 was unheeded by the Saviour; yea, though the disciples begged Him to grant it in order to get rid of her (for undoubtedly that is the full significance of their conduct as indicated in Matthew 15:23). And it was all because she had not recognised and observed the Divine order. She had, as a matter of fact, taken up an entirely false position, making a claim on Jesus as the "Son of David," a title she as a Gentile had no right to plead. It was only when she had taken her rightful place at His feet that her request for His help was granted. Oh, the blessedness of lying low at His feet in penitence and confession! Then, having become my Divine refuge from sin, He becomes my daily helper and strengthener. Having cried, Lord, save me," I have a humble right to cry daily, "Lord, help me."

I. "Lord, save me"-It was the Prayer of Sinking Peter for Himself, after attempting to do as Jesus did. Impetuous Peter asked the Lord for His invitation, and the Son of God could not do otherwise than invite him. And for a moment or two all seemed well. Peter, too, began to do the impossible, as all who trust the Saviour accomplish; but taking his eyes off the Master, he began to sink, and cried, "Lord, save me." This was a perfect prayer. It was short, direct, definite, earnest, and received an immediate reply. It does not take the Lord long to save us. Let the cry of penitence rise from a broken and a contrite heart and immediately He saves. Oh, sinking, soul, why do you not cry out to Him?

II. "Lord, help me." It was the Prayer of One for Another, the clamorous cry of a mother for her child, the expression of a desperate need that would not take "No" for an answer, the request of one prepared to take any lowly position provided she could secure the boon she coveted. And that prayer, too, was ultimately granted. What else could the Lord do? The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. What a rebuke this mother's desperate plea is to many of our prayers for others! We will stir ourselves up, and lay hold on God, and then He will not deny the help we crave. THE FACE OF THE LORD.

"Hide us from the face of Him that sitteth on the Throne" (Revelation 6:16).

"My heart said unto Thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek" (Psalms 27:8).

What a startling contrast have we here in these two Scriptures! The first depicts a scene of unparalleled horror. There is nothing more awful in Holy Writ or in any other literature. Men and women crying out in terror for nature to hide them "from the face of Him that sitteth on the Throne," and crying in vain. But the second introduces us to a scene of peace and bliss. The blackness and the darkness have given way to the light of a bright summer morn. Instead of the anguishing cry of fear and dread, there is the wooing and soothing notes of worship. The same face to one company an unspeakable horror, but to the other an exquisite delight; the one fleeing from that holy countenance, the other seeking the same with wholehearted and earnest endeavour. What a startling contrast! How is it?

"No man can see Me (My face) and live" (Exodus 33:20). Such was the Lord's word to Moses. This certainly does not mean that He desires to hide himself from us. Away with such a thought. Why, He bids us seek His face! It simply means that the face of Jehovah, as involving the full blaze of His manifested glory, no mortal could bear, as the sight would overpower and shatter his frame. We have known instances of the sudden and unexpected sight of the long-lost face of son or daughter to so fill with joy the invalid parent that the transport shattered the feeble frame, and death intervened. For this reason in cases of this nature we speak of the wisdom of "breaking the news." Such a preparatory work is needed concerning the sight of the Lord's face. This is forcibly illustrated in the two Scriptures before us. The fact that "they shall see His face" (Revelation 22:4), by and by, is counted by believers as an inexpressibly privilege, because they are passing through the preparatory stages down here; whereas the mass of the mere worldlings are terrified at the prospect of beholding Him, because they are consciously unfit and unprepared. The best preparation for beholding His face by and by is to gaze into it here and now. How is this possible? The first and most important preparatory step is the one Moses took, viz., the step to the Cleft Rock (Exodus 33:22). There is another Rock, riven by a more awful storm, a Rock cleft by a thunderbolt of Divine justice- it is the Rock of Ages, that Rock which is Christ.

HOW TO SECURE SPIRITUAL IMMOBILITY "I shall not be greatly moved." "I shall not be moved" (Psalms 62:2, Psalms 62:6).

Referring to the physical sufferings of one of his missionary brethren, Dan. Crawford suggestively writes that the burden "may have only looked to outsiders like a tombstone hung round his neck, whereas in reality it was only a weight necessary to keep down the diver while he was collecting pearls." This is a telling simile. Verily afflictions are weights. Yet they are not sent to crush us, but only to enable us to gather the precious pearls of Divine truth, and to add to our rich stores of Christian experience. This was pre-eminently true of David the Psalmist. He was a man of affliction. Often the waves and billows went over him. But what precious lessons he learned and has passed on to us in his writings. This is seen in the Psalm from which we have taken our two Scriptures. When David wrote it he was evidently in great difficulties. He was surrounded by enemies, conspirators, and false friends. The Psalm is in four divisions. He first speaks to his enemies (1 to 4), then to himself (5 to 7), to his friends (8 to 11), and finally to the Lord (12). As he contemplates his foes he did not feel very sure of himself, and so he exclaimed, "I shall not be greatly moved." He was afraid he would be disturbed, and overcome just a little. But presently all such gloomy forebodings vanish. He became radiantly optimistic and gloriously dogmatic, and exultingly shouted, "I shall not be moved."

Both these verses are alike, but for one word. But that one word makes all the difference in the world. Why the change? What had brought it about? Was it because in the first he was addressing his enemies, and consequently must be cautious in his statements, whilst in the second he was addressing himself, and was trying to brace himself up? No, not exactly. The agreeable change was the result of giving his fears an airing. There is nothing like it. The microbe of unbelief cannot stand the clear light of day. Fears flourish in the dark. Drag them out into the light of His presence; tell Him all about them: tell some trusted Christian soul, too, and, lo, they vanish away. Then, after mournfully exclaiming, "I shall not be greatly moved," i.e., "I am bound to be moved a little," he began to think of the Lord, and that sure ground of confidence. Ah, He makes all the difference. Have you any fears? What a plague they are! But do not hide them any longer in your bosom. Just tell Him all; think a little more of Him, and, lo, they will disappear. And then, like David, you will boldly exclaim "I shall not be moved." But moved by what, by whom? It is left indefinite for a purpose. You can just put in your own trouble and difficulty. But let us notice four powers that seek to move us.

I. Satan Seeks to Move Us (2 Samuel 24:1). There is no doubt as to the identity of the person referred to as "he." 1 Chronicles 21:1 shows it was Satan. David was instigated by Satan to do this thing. And, alas, the enemy's tactics succeeded only too well. He was greatly moved, and terrible were the results. The devil is constantly seeking to move us to do wrong, endeavouring to lead us to either go before or follow a long way behind, and even forsake our Master, and is perpetually plotting our overthrow. And how skilful he is. What chance have we against this old campaigner? Here is our safety: "For the king trusteth in the Lord, and through the mercy of the most High he shall not be moved."

II. Sin Seeks to Move Us. In Acts 7:9 we are informed that the reason the patriarchs sold their brother Joseph was that they were "moved with envy." Sin, in all its varied forms, seek to move us to do wrong. And, mark you, it is not only a temptation from without, but, more trying and dangerous still, it is one from within. Sin is a mighty enemy entrenched within us. But, thank God, if the Christian has an indwelling enemy he has an indwelling Friend. "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved." The secret of overcoming and of spiritual immobility is the presence of the Indwelling One.

III. Afflictions Seek to Move Us. The reason why Paul sent Timothy to visit the Thessalonians was lest any one of them "Should be moved by... afflictions" (1 Thessalonians 3:3). They were evidently having a very rough time, and there was the great danger of becoming unsettled by these surging sorrows. But the antidote is this: "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee: He shall never suffer the righteous to be moved." Those who cast their burdens upon the Lord, and perpetually confide in Him, will find themselves immovable.

IV. Friends Sometimes Seek to Move Us. Paul, believing himself to be in the will of God, was on his way to Jerusalem, but friends tried to dissuade him, yet he declared, "But none of these things move me" (Acts 20:24). The only security from even well-intentioned but mistaken friends is this: "I have set the Lord always before me: because He is at my right hand I shall not be moved." It was this that helped Athanasius. He stood alone as the champion for the true and proper Deity of our Lord. "Do you know," said one to him, "that all the world is against you?" "Then," replied the brave defender, "I am against all the world."

TWO COVERINGS FOR SIN.

"He that covereth his sins shall not prosper" (Proverbs 28:13) "Love covereth a multitude of sins" (1 Peter 4:8. R.V.). In an interview with a famous Gospel preacher the reviewer said: "His first words to me were, 'Things are very different now from what they were 25 or 30 years ago. It was easy to work for God then, compared with what it is now. There was then a sense of sin, but where there is no sense of sin you have no fulcrum for your lever." Alas, how true are these words in our own time But if the sense of sin has been lost, the fact of sin remains. In the two verses before us two coverings for sin are given. In the one, covering of sins is denounced; in the other, commended. By bringing these texts together we note the contrast. There is a covering of sin allowable, if only the sin be another's and not our own. But we reverse the order, hiding our own, and uncovering the sins of others.

I. The Covering of Sins Commended. There is a covering of sins which is not only allowable, but commended, the sin which is not my own but that of another. Human nature persists in reversing the order. Yea, alas, alas, so many make traffic with the sins of another! This does not mean that we view sin differently in others than in ourselves. Sin is ever the same hideous monster wherever it be. I must never condone or excuse sin in either myself or in another. This just means that I must never make merchandise of the sins, faults, or failings of another fellow-mortal. It means that I will uncover the sins of others only to the Lord when alone with Him. It was said of one after she had gone, that "she was never known to speak ill of an absent friend." Could that be said of me, and of you?

Why should I cover the sins of others? 1st: On the common ground of the Golden Rule, doing to others as we would be done by. Sins have a strange way of coming home to roost. 2nd: But the Christian has a higher and a nobler reason for covering the sins of others-to cover sin is God-like. What He has done for me for Christ's sake, I must do to others for His dear sake. Observe, there is no limit to this operation. "A multitude of sins."

II. The Covering of Sin Denounced. If love leads me to cover my neighbour's sin, pride prompts me to cover my own. For the sinner naturally wishes to be thought better than he really is. To uncover my sins does not mean (1) that I have to parade them before the public gaze. God forbid that we should ever gloat over our past, or refer to it in a spirit of bravado! Nor does it mean (2) that I have to uncover my sins to man, if the sin has just been between God and my soul. "I said I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord," was the Psalmist's declaration (Psa. 32). The Divine Covering. If I uncover my sin to the Lord, He will, by His Precious Blood, blot it out, and that is "better than covering. In the Old Testament sins could only be covered; in the New Testament sins are put away, blotted out.

REST GIVEN AND FOUND.

"Come. . . and I will give you rest." "Take. . . and ye shall find rest" (Matthew 11:28-30).

It is safe to say that this is the best known and most beloved of all the sayings of our Lord Jesus. No human being can possibly estimate the multitudes who have been led into the Kingdom of His grace by the means of those precious words. Yet whilst so well known, few have noticed that there are two distinct Rests referred to. Those who can read the Greek declare there are two distinct words rendered in our English Bibles by the one word "rest." The first is a verb, the second a noun. The first signifies a temporary rest, one with the view of going on in the journey; the second stands for a more durable and lasting one. The first is a rest to the conscience; the second a rest to the soul. The first is a gift; the second a discovery. This is recognised in the Book of Common Prayer, where in the Communion Service we have, "Come unto Me, all ye that travail and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you," i.e., a refreshing with a view to going on to a more permanent blessing. Oh, what a pity that so many seem to be content with the first, instead of pressing on to possess the second. In other words, mistaking the starting point for the goal.

I. The Rest that is Given. "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy ladem, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28).

Come! is one of the sweetest words in the Bible. The first come in the Bible (Genesis 7:1), is one of salvation, and so is the last one (Revelation 22:17). The blessing to be had for the coming is a precious one indeed, one of universal need. All do not hanker after pleasure, or crave intellectual treats, yet all are in need of rest.

He gives rest to the guilty conscience by His precious Blood.

II. The Rest that is Found. "Take My yoke upon you. . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls." (Matthew 11:30).

Whatever this means it is for those who have received the first, the temporary rest with a view to going on to the permanent one. This second word signifies a deep, abiding, permanent repose that is undisturbed in the turmoils of life. Israel had temporary rests all the way to Egypt, but they did not receive the permanent one until they reached the Land of Promise. This rest is only found by wearing Christ's yoke. The yoke in the Old Testament was a symbol of slavery. We read of the "yoke of the King of Babylon." Passing under the yoke meant good-bye to personal liberty. Christ demands an absolute submission, a full and complete surrender. And the first act of that submission we call consecration. THE PURPOSE AND RESULT OF THE COMING OF CHRIST.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace" (Luke 2:14). "I came not to send peace but a sword" (Matthew 10:34).

How glaringly contradictory do these statements seem to be! The first agrees with all our ideas of the purpose of His coming, and harmonises admirably with many other Scriptures; whilst the second is exactly the opposite. Some might be inclined to ask: Which is correct? Which have I to accept? Which have we to accept? Why, both, for the two are correct, though they do seem to differ entirely. This view may seem illogical, but life proves many a proposition true that logic would readily demonstrate as false. The first tells of His purpose in coming; the second the actual result of that coming. This phraseology is peculiar to the Bible where, sometimes, a person is declared to do only that which he permits. This does not mean that our Lord's purposes have been finally thwarted, that He came to bestow peace, but lo! His purposes are not, and will not be realised. What He has set out to do will assuredly be accomplished sooner or later. But is there not another view of this matter-in order to establish peace, or in establishing peace, the sword of the Spirit is required? There are two pictures of our Lord Jesus in the Bible. The most familiar one is that of the Lord bearing the Olive Branch. He came to make peace by the Blood of His Cross, and to preach peace. But there is another picture, and one not so well known, that of the Lord with a drawn sword in His hand. Joshua saw the Lord, "over against him with His sword drawn in His hand" (Joshua 5:13). Christ as the Man of War. In Revelation 1:16, John saw the Lord, when "out of His mouth went a sharp two-edged sword," teaching the mighty power of His Word. The Saviour we have to deal with is tender and compassionate. Yet One who can slay by a word.

I. Before Christ can establish His Peace in my heart He has to unsheath His Sword-In other words, before I can know Him as Peace Bringer, I must know Him as Peace Breaker. The unsaved soul is, by nature, wrapped up in a deep, deep peace, the peace of spiritual slumber and of death. A peace that is the herald of the awful storm of Judgment. A sleep from which there is no awakening if left to ourselves. He comes to disturb that false and awful peace.

Arctic explorers speak of the soul-subduing silences of the Arctic region. A strange peace reigns supreme. No life, nothing but a dreary chilling desolation. Everything is wrapped in the cold embrace of winter. Before the beautiful and refreshing peace of Spring time can visit that region there must be a great disturbance. The sun shines with its gladdening rays of warmth, the great ice field melts, and the result-an awful tearing and grinding, shrieking and rending, with explosions as of dynamite. So when the Sun of Righteousness shines upon souls wrapped up in the cold embrace of spiritual death, there is a disturbance, a breaking up of the stillness of spiritual death. To change the metaphor, the Sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God begins its cutting and thrusting. But after conviction comes conversion, after repentance comes peace through the Blood of His Cross.

II. The establishment of His Peace in the individual soul often means the unsheathing of the sword of persecution at home, in workshop, or elsewhere. Of the truth of this every Christian can fully vouch. Here is a worldly home, wrapped in carnal peace. One member of the family is converted. At once family peace departs, and persecution enters. The fact of the presence of Christ in that one life becomes a disturbance, making all uncomfortable. We have sometimes wondered why a veil was drawn over our Lord's life at Nazareth. Perhaps it is a mercy that it was so. Was our Lord here speaking from personal experience? Was there strife and contention because of the presence of that Pure One? There are several significant facts in the New Testament. His kinsmen thought Him mad (Mark 3:21). Even His mother and brethren shared the same view. And in John 7:5 we are informed His brethren did not believe Him. But thank God, He gives peace to the persecuted ones.

III. It is also true to say that every saved soul is sent forth with a sword to make war upon the hosts of sin. Christ not only puts peace in my heart, but a sword in my hand. The note of warfare rings right through the New Testament Epistles. There are hosts of sin and wickedness to be attacked, and the Word of God is the weapon He puts into our hands. There is a call for volunteers. Who will step out on the Lord's side!

IV. Peace of God-A Peace within. This peace baffles all description. It surpasses all thought. It is that holy calm which rests in God alone, and which He is willing to communicate to us. There are three steps to its enjoyment.

1. It becomes mine when I realise my standing in Christ, when I discovered I have peace with God on the ground of the shed blood of Christ.

2. It deepens and increases as I grow in grace. It is the fruit of the Spirit (Galatians 5:22), comes to us by the aid of the Holy Spirit (Romans 14:17), and is the result of a deepened knowledge of God (2 Peter 1:2), and of increased spirituality (Romans 8:6).

3. It follows the cultivation of the prayer-habit, as Php_4:7 clearly shows. THE DIVINE ALCHEMIST.

"Instead of which (shields of gold) King Rehoboam made shields of brass" (2 Chronicles 12:9-10). "For brass I will bring gold" (Isaiah 60:17).

The old alchemists spent their lives in seeking to discover a substance which would change the baser metals into those of value. But all their efforts only met with failure. What would they have given to be able to transform brass into gold! There is a heavenly Alchemist who can do this. What a contrast there, is between these two Scriptures! In the one brass is substituted for gold, and in the other gold for brass. The contrast is so great because one is the act of man, whilst the other is the act of God. Man, if left to himself, always substitutes the lower for the higher. Yet side by side with this degeneration we see the Divine Alchemist at work in regenerating, transforming and transfiguring.

Five years had passed since Solomon's death, and they had been sad years of retrogression. During these decadent years the great split in the nation-the revolt of the nine and a half tribes-had taken place. Then, worse than all this, Judah "forsook the law of the Lord." In this time of sin and schism their old enemy, the King of Egypt, found an easy entrance into the land. Though the king and people humbled themselves and sought the Lord, God permitted Shishak to spoil Jerusalem, to appropriate the treasures of the Temple and of the king's house, wealth beyond the dreams of avarice. Note the irony of the situation-Israel, when led by God out of Egypt, spoiled the Egyptians. Now the Egyptians, six hundred years afterwards, spoiled them, getting their own back with usury. Among the booty were three hundred solid gold shields, worth £7500 each, used on special state occasions. Oh, how short lived is the glory which depends on the faithfulness of man! The Temple built by Solomon is robbed in the days of his son; and instead of the shields of gold which Shishak looted, Rehoboam made shields of brass. Yet, thank God, the Divine Alchemist is at work for His people. He is coming back again. And when He comes, He will bring back glory to Israel. Then, literally, as well as spiritually, for brass He will bring gold. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." But there is a message in all this for the backslider. When Rehoboam lost the pure gold what did he do? By all means he must keep up appearances. If he cannot afford golden shields, he must have something which resembles that precious metal-brass. And to avoid too close scrutiny by the people, he had them doubly guarded. Is there a single Christian who has not at one time or another substituted brass for gold? Through unfaithfulness and sin we lose the pure gold of heart purity and communion with the Lord, of spiritual hunger and thirst after Divine things. And for all this gold, brass is substituted. All the outward acts of devotion and piety are kept up, and we look just the same as ever in the eyes of men. Scientists tell us of ice, and stone, and bronze ages. In religious experience we have these different periods. The ice stage is our state by nature the golden age is our state by grace. But, alas, there is sometimes the bronze age of mere externalism, when, though we have lost our first love, we keep up our round of Christian duties and perform all the outward acts of piety. "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity (love), I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." Brass instead of gold. The appearance without the reality. "I bless His name, that I wax not pale, neither have I lost the colour of gold," wrote Samuel Rutherford, during a time of great testing. Can you say this? If not, pray put yourself into the hands of the Divine Alchemist, who can give gold for brass. Then you will be able to joyfully testify: "He restoreth my soul." Are you burdened by a sense of unworthiness? Then listen once again to Rutherford: "Often He makes gold of dross." Splendid! What cannot the Divine Alchemist do with us, if we will but surrender ourselves to Him?

WHITE, THEN WHITER THAN SNOW.

"Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow" (Isaiah 1:18). "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow" (Psalms 51:7).

"White as snow," "Whiter than snow." These are not synonymous terms. They differ in many respects. One was the Word of the Lord, whilst the other was the cry of a king. Three hundred years separate the two utterances. Both Scriptures point to clear and distinct truths. The first is the Lord's promise, the second a penitent's plea; the former describes the work of God when He forgives sin, the latter is a deep inward work of grace done afterward; the one is a righteousness imputed, the other a righteousness imparted. And, mark you, this order is always observed-I must be made white as snow, then whiter than snow.

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord." This is a command none can afford to treat lightly, for it is a word of authority, being a "thus saith the Lord." What is behind a command is of extreme importance. If I say, "Move on," to loiterers in the street, they can afford to treat it lightly; if a policeman says the same, they will either have to "move on" or "move in." The law of the land is behind the man in blue. This is a word with all heaven behind it. Then notice, it is an appeal to reason: "Let us reason together." God appeals to mind as well as heart, to reason as well as to affections. And pray notice, it is a word, an importunate and imperative word, for the immediate present: "Come now"-not to-morrow, or the day after. This is a word for the double-dyed sinner. Those who understand well the original language say that the word translated "scarlet" here really means the double-dyed, or twice-dipped. The scarlet colour in ancient times was the result of two dippings. What a word of hope is this then, for the vilest! None need despair, for Christ has died. Yet even the respectable sinners are included here, for, after all, are we not all double-dyed sinners, having been dipped in the vile pool of original corruption, and in the bath of actual transgression? Verily, we are sinners twice over, by choice as well as by birth.

"Scarlet." This word teaches the permanency of sin, for it is a fast colour. It has been said that there is no power in chemistry that can take the scarlet colour out without destroying the fabric. But what is impossible in chemistry is possible in grace. The red blood of the Son of God obliterates our scarlet sins, and the white robe of the spotless righteousness of God is thrown over the penitent one. Praise God for that word of hope: "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." May it be so, dear reader, in your experience.

It is reported that away in the far North, on the brow of a hill covered with snow, illuminated by the light of the Polar star, a member of one of the Arctic Expeditions lies buried. A large stone covers the dead, and, on a copper tablet at the head of the grave, our text is inscribed: "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." There, amidst the eternal snows, man's passionate longing for purity finds a voice. But, whiter than snow-surely David made a mistake. Can anything become whiter than snow? Ah, even the snowflake is not pure. It seems that nothing can touch this sin-cursed earth without becoming contaminated. Elements of earthliness are wrapped up in the bosom of every snowflake that falls upon the earth. It has been calculated that a slight fall of snow carries to the surface of the county of London alone 343 tons of solids. Even on the high pinnacle of the Alps it is not pure. Professor Tyndale took a sample of snow from the top of a high mountain, and found bits of steel filings and coal dust. Therefore you see this is the cry of the Psalmist for a deep purity, for a deeper and richer experience. It is the request of one who has known the joy of being made white as snow. Such a longing is the proof that the first has taken place. In fact, this is the very purpose God has in view in covering us with the white robe. He counts us white in order to make us what He counts us to be. Indeed, in nature this is so. Snow first hides all the vileness and blackness, and then whilst doing so has a bleaching effect. How white the paving stones and flags seem after snow has rested some time upon them. Will you not apprehend that for which also He apprehended you? Make David's prayer yours. Thank God, He can answer it.

BEND OR BREAK-WHICH?

"The voice of the Lord breaketh the cedars" (Psalms 29:5.) "A bruised reed shall He not break" (Isaiah 42:3).

"Bend us, O Lord!" was the prayer of Evan Roberts, frequently offered during the great Welsh Revival, when facing congregations gathered together in the chapels and churches of Wales. God graciously answered that prayer hundreds of times, for we know His mighty Presence was manifested, and multitudes were bent before the heavenly breeze. It would be well if that prayer were offered more frequently by us, for without that holy, awful Presence meetings are powerless and fruitless. It is His presence that produces conviction of sin. May God grant us more and more in our gatherings an overwhelming sense of His presence! But even in that sanctuary where the heavenly gales are blowing, there are some who refuse to bend. And what then? They who refuse to bend in grace will be broken in judgment. Frequently we have heard the phrase: "If he won't bend, then he must be broken," by which is meant that if the gentler methods do not accomplish the desired purpose, harsher measures must be adopted. This is the teaching of our two texts. Those who bend like the bruised reeds will not be broken; those who refuse to bend, like the cedars, must be broken. Better, infinitely better, be a reed, shaken, bent, by the wind of God, than the proud cedar tree, erect and defiant, to be hurled down, without any possibility of recovery, by the fiery indignation of God.

I. He Breaks Not the Bruised Reed. How comforting this has been to countless thousands. The R.V. margin gives "dimly burning wick!" This is the condition of many. Instead of burning brightly, they are only smouldering and smudging, and in consequence more of a nuisance than a help. Such deserve to be extinguished. But our Blessed Lord does not possess an extinguisher. If He so bears with us, should we not bear with one another? This is not only a word for the sickly Christian, but in the figure of the bruised reed we have a comforting word for the convicted sinner. For wounds and bruises are to be found in the service of sin. What bruises that traveller from Jerusalem to Jericho received when he fell among thieves. Remember, they who break the law of God are bruised in the act. But the fact is, we are all weak as bruised reeds. How frail is the bruised reed! Alas, the unsaved so often think themselves as strong as cedars when in reality they are as weak as bruised reeds. "When we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly." And why not break the reed? Because the bruised reed bends submissively to Him in lowly penitence. He was broken in its stead.

Though He breaks not the bruised reed-

II. He Breaks the Cedars. In the 29th Psalm we have a vivid description of a thunderstorm. The pealing of heaven's artillery has often roused poetical imagination. The inspired poet here sees in thunder an emblem of the voice of God. The cedars of Lebanon have ever been famous. Wood for the Temple was procured from thence. One who has visited the forest of Lebanon writes: "As we stand beneath the giant arms of those old patriarchs of a hundred generations, there comes a solemn hush upon the soul as if by enchantment. The girth of the largest is more than 41 feet, the height of the highest may be 100. Some of them are supposed to be quite 3500 years old. Thus, at this rate of increase, they must have been growing ever since the flood. But they are not all erect. Some are struck down by lightning, broken by enormous loads of snow, or torn to fragments by tempest."

Note that word "Yea!" Even such mighty cedars as these of Lebanon find no escape. And why? They do not bend. There they stand, gripping the earth firmly, lifting their proud heads haughtily to the skies as if defying the living God. For this the cedar trees are not to blame. Not so men and women. Do you think it is a light thing to live a life of defiance to God? Listen to this parable. The reed advised the cedar to bow to the coming storm; but the cedar haughtily scorned the advice; so the mighty wind flouted it, broke it, blasted it, tore it up by the roots, and tossed it aside in its anger, whilst it passed over the weak bending reed unharmingly. Remember there is the world of difference between being humbled and humiliated. They who humble themselves shall be exalted; but they who refuse to humble themselves shall most certainly be humiliated. "He that being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." THE TWO IMPORTANT LOOKS.

"Look unto Me, and be ye saved" (Isaiah 45:22). "Look to yourselves, that we lose not" (2 John 1:8). A lady journalist in America consulted an oculist with regard to a trouble in her eyes. After a careful examination the specialist said: "Your eyes are tired; you must rest them. Have you any wide views from your house?" "Oh, yes," she replied. "From the front porch I can see the noble peaks of the Blue Ridge, and from the rear windows I can look out upon the glorious Allegheny Foot Hills." "Very well," said he, "that is just what you need. When your eyes feel tired, look steadily at your mountains for ten minutes-twenty minutes would be better; the far away look will rest them." Just so. And there is a deep spiritual lesson here. For this is a world with weary, tired eyes. Oh, how weary is the world! But there is a cure. There is a glorious far away look that rests and refreshes, a look nor merely to the hills, but away and beyond to the God of the hills. "Shall I lift up mine eyes to the hills? Whence should my help come? My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth" (see margin of Psalms 121:1-2). This is the look that brings rest and refreshment to mind and heart when burdened by work or distracted with care. And this faraway look also brings comfort to sad and sorrowful souls. But the pity is that so few have learned its value and tasted of its joys. Friend, try the far-away look!

"Look unto Me, and be ye saved." This is a message direct from the Lord Himself. And important are its issues. Salvation is dependent upon it. The look that saves is a look backward-a look to the Cross. Such a look brings rest to the weary soul and to the troubled conscience. There is life for such a look. The look that saves is also a look upward. Note the Psalmist's determination in Psalms 5:3. Look and live was the first message we needed; live looking is the second. "Looking unto Jesus." The look that saves is also a look into. Scholars tell us that in the Greek the word translated "unto" means not only "at," but "into." Thus the verse could read, "looking into Jesus." Not only looking at His works, His miracles, His beautiful life, but looking right into Him and reading His heart. The look that saves is also a look forward. "Unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Thus is readily seen how important is looking to the Lord. According to a famous preacher, in Isaiah 45:22, we have the greatest possible blessing-"salvation"-offered to the largest possible number-"all the ends of the earth"-on the simplest possible terms- "Look unto me"-on the highest possible security-"for I am God." But there are some who object to the simplicity of these conditions. "How paltry and mean to make my salvation and happiness dependent upon a look," they say. But really, looking is not the vain and useless thing that it might appear to be. As has well been said: "Almost all knowledge comes from looking. We look at the physical world, and are taught what nature has to teach us. We look at books, and we learn what printing has to teach us. We look at men-their faces, their acts, their characters- and we discover what mankind has to teach us. Not to look is to shut ourselves off from almost all sources of information. Our eyes are more than organs of discernment; they are channels of reception. Our visions become our possessions."

How blessedly simple is all this. Why, looking is the simplest thing in the world, something even weak invalids and weak wailing bairns can do! How good of our God to make salvation dependent upon something we all can do. But possibly there may be some who are saying: "I cannot really do even this, for mine iniquities have taken hold of me, so that I am not able to look up" (Psalms 40:12). The publican was like this, yet he cried to the Lord for His forgiveness, and he went down to his house justified.

"Look unto Me," "Look to yourselves." What is the meaning of these two apparently contradictory Scriptures? Just this: whilst the first is necessary for our salvation, the second is essential for the reception of a full reward, and is only another way of saying, "Beware of pickpockets." It is a solemn fact that many of God's dear children will not receive a reward. Saved souls, but lost lives. This is the teaching of 1 Corinthians 3:14, 1 Corinthians 3:15. Beware! Look to yourself. Don't let the enemy rob you of the fruits of your walk and service. A careful examination of 2 John 1:8 shows that what was in the mind of John was loss through the reception of false teaching. How applicable this is to our own times, for error is to be met with on every hand. Be on your guard! But don't forget that for every look to yourself let there be ten looks to thy Lord. "Ten to one," let that be your motto. THE SECRET OF A GREAT CHANGE.

"Ephraim is joined to idols; let him alone" (Hosea 4:17), "Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have heard Him, and observed Him" (Hosea 14:8).

What a startling change we have here! The first speaks of a nation hugging its idols in spite of prophetic warnings concerning the dire consequences of such conduct, whilst the second Scripture depicts a nation-the same stubborn and wilful people of Israel-throwing away these very selfsame idols. Naturally we are interested in tracing the reason for swift and sudden decisions, especially if they are those of a strong-willed and stubborn folk, and we are not left in ignorance of the secret. We might remark that the discovery of the secret of such a change is not merely interesting, it is a vital matter, affecting our own moral and spiritual condition, for herein is disclosed God's way of weaning us from the world, and from vice and sin and self.

First, we are introduced to a nation wedded to its idols. Those were sad, sad days in the history of God's chosen people. Prophet after prophet had been sent with messages of love to a backsliding people, but all to no purpose, for they persisted in their evil courses. And now comes the Divine verdict: "Ephraim is joined to idols, let him alone." To be left alone was just what they desired, yet no worse thing could possibly have happened to them. Sometimes when men and women of the world are pressed by earnest Christians to become concerned about their souls, and so seek the Lord in repentance and faith, they exclaim: "Why do you trouble me? Leave me alone." We are told that travellers in Arctic regions are sometimes so overcome with the cold that, sinking down exhausted upon the snow, they beg of their companions as a special favour, to be left to rest and sleep for a wee while. But that request is never granted. How false and cruel would be these fellow travellers if they did not shake the drowsy one, compiling him to keep on the move, for to be left alone means death. "Let us alone" (Luke 4:34), was the sinner's ignorant cry of the Saviour. Nay, more than that, it was a cry inspired by the evil one. May God never grant that request of any reader of this page!

"Hugging idols-I make no pretence to godliness, but I am not doing that," is that what you say? Pray remember this, that what a man thinks most of-money, position, pleasure, appetite, applause-that is his god. Frankly now, answer this question: "What comes first in your life? Who, what, is your first thought in the morning, and your last thought at night?" Can you say:

"I think of my blessed Redeemer, I think of Him all the day long." Not one unsaved soul can answer in the affirmative. And, please remember, whatever comes first in your life is your god. Hugging sins and pleasures. Is that true of you? Perhaps, alas! some would sorrowfully confess that it is not so much they hugging their sins as their sins hugging them in a dreadful embrace. Oh! He loves you too much to leave you alone just yet. If in Hosea 4:17 He says "Let him alone," in Hosea 11:8, He exclaims, "How shall I give you up, Ephraim?" The sequel is seen in our second Scripture, where we have a nation throwing away its idols. But how was, or rather, how will this be brought about? This stupendous change is the result of the expulsive power of a new affection, brought about by personal contact with the Lord, by hearing Him and observing Him. This is a prophecy that will be fulfilled by and by in the history of the Jews. But it may be fulfilled in every experience here and now. Wedded to idols and idols wedded to you, yet there is deliverance through Him. To know Him is life eternal, with all its accompanying blessing. "I have heard Him"-why, faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God. "I have observed Him"-that is how affection springs.

It is reported that a great sculptor spent eight years in producing the face of the Lord Jesus, and at last wrought one in which the emotions of love and sorrow were so perfectly blended that beholders wept as they looked upon it. Subsequently being solicited to employ his great talent on a statue of Venus, he replied: "After gazing so long into the face of Christ, think you I can now turn my attention to a heathen goddess?" And he spurned the offer. Here is the secret of weanedness from idols:

"I have heard the voice of Jesus,

Tell me not of aught beside;

I have seen the face of Jesus,

All my soul is satisfied."

YE ARE COMPLETE, THEREFORE BECOME SO.

"Ye are complete in Him" (Colossians 2:10). "Labouring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand. . . complete" (Colossians 4:12).

Anyone could be excused if, after reading these two texts, they exclaimed: "Really now, which of these have I to believe? " Here in the first, the great Apostle assures the Colossian Christians that they are complete in Christ, and yet by the second text I see that their dear friend Epaphras, was agonising in prayer for them, in order that they might become complete. Now, which is right?" "Which have you to believe?" Why, both, to be sure, for they are equally correct. The one refers to our standing, whilst the other refers to our state. In other words, Paul says:" You are complete, therefore you must become so. Of course, it goes without saying that this is not in accordance with the usual method of human reasoning; but then we must ever remind ourselves that God's thoughts are often different to ours. Who would dream of exhorting Christians to seek maturity, to become complete because they were complete? Reason says: "Become complete in order to be complete." God says: "Ye are complete, therefore strive to become so." Reason says: "I must become a saint by doing saintly things." God says: "You are a saint, therefore become one." (Note "To be" in Romans 1:7, are in italics, showing that they are not in the original; therefore it reads, "Called saints." See also 1 Corinthians 1:2.) Well might it be said that man is constantly making a goal of what God views as a starting-point. Such a blunder competitors in earthly races would never dream of making. But let us illustrate our first Scripture. There are two shops in the same line of business in the same busy thoroughfare. Though both are owned by industrious tradesmen, having equal chances of success, how differently they have fared! One is well stocked with goods, which are shown to the best advantage by a shop-front and fittings of the latest and most expensive pattern; whilst the other is but a poor affair, with a scanty stock and a wretched old-fashioned shop-front. It is surely evident that whilst one finds business a pleasure and a delight, to the other it is but a dreary and a doleful task. Let us go to the less fortunate tradesman and solicit an explanation. "Ah!" says he, "that is easily given. The other man over the way began where I can only hope to end. His father is wealthy and gave him a splendid capital to begin his business career; such a sum of money I can only hope to have at the end of years and years of strenuous toil."

There are many in the great business of Christian living who can only hope to end where so many others begin. They begin to read the Bible and pray, try to live good lives, knock off this evil habit and that sin, and attend the services of the sanctuary, hoping at the end to gain God's favour and everlasting bliss. But their life is a miserable struggle, and all their efforts are doomed to utter failure. The true believer begins where these vainly hope to end. He begins with a splendid capital. He commences his career by being counted righteous before God, by possessing, through Christ, the favour and wealth of God. "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." Brother, you, too, can begin the business of Christian living by a glorious capital. "Of His fulness have we all received" can become your testimony.

"Ye are complete in Him." How emphatic this is. "Ye are," not "Ye shall be." And how inclusive, too- "Ye." The weakest saint is included in that "Ye." Observe, "in Him," not "in myself." Thus it is not a matter of attainment, but of faith. What comfort there is in beginning housekeeping with a house completely furnished; not to do so often means years of scraping and weary struggle. But there is this difference: a completely furnished house depends upon £ s. d., whereas a completely furnished soul is dependent upon faith. How glorious this is!

"That ye may stand complete." We usually confine our prayers to the unsaved; not so the early Christians. They prayed earnestly that the Lord's people might live holily and unblameably, for they recognised that the greatest hindrance to the evangelisation of the world is the worldly lives of Christians. Our second text preaches that, although counted complete, I am experimentally incomplete. But the Lord desires that I should make true in myself what is already true for me in Christ, or as it has been put, to turn a fact of doctrine into a fact of experience and attainment. (Note Leviticus 14:7, Leviticus 14:8. Though pronounced clean, the leper had a work to accomplish in order to be clean.) Then pray remember that the Lord counts the trusting soul complete in order to make it so. Oh! He desires to make me what He has already counted me to be! And He will place no obstacle in his way. THE ARM OF THE LORD IS TOWARD, OR UNDER YOU-WHICH?

"He saith, all day long I have stretched forth My hands" (Romans 10:21). "Underneath are the everlasting arms" (Deuteronomy 33:27).

"The eternal God is thy refuge." The word translated "refuge" is a very strong one, and is not often met with in the Bible. It means infinitely more than a temporary place of safety, a mere shelter. It is, as the R.V. points out, a dwelling place, a habitation, a. home. You are caught in a sudden storm whilst in a public park, and with all speed you make for the shelter provided by the authorities-it is a refuge, and very acceptable-but it is not home. You are attempting to cross one of the main thoroughfares in a busy city, and finding yourself in danger fly to the refuge in the centre of the road. That little oasis in the midst of surging traffic is very welcome- but it is not home. Now, God in Christ is all this to the trusting soul-and very much more-for He is a home. After all, what is it that makes home? Is it not the loving arms of father and mother? Do you feel quite at home with God? If you feel uneasy at the thought of God's presence, if there is a lack of homeliness in God for you, let Him throw His arms around and underneath you, and He will chase every fear away.

What a contrast is this expression to that quoted by Paul in Romans 10:21 : "All day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people." Certainly if the everlasting arms are not beneath you, they must be stretched forth in earnest pleading. The luxury of resting in the everlasting arms is known only by those who have responded to His loving invitation. But note, "all day long." What an example of patience and intense earnestness! God is depicted as stretching forth His hand for an entire day. How trying is the holding forth of the hands only for a little while. Here He waits long and patiently. How much longer will you keep Him in that uncomfortable attitude? The arm of God is a symbol of power, therefore there is a thought of might in this figure. But there is also a thought of affection and love in the metaphor. Isaiah in his prophecy has much to say about the arm of the Lord, but Moses is concerned about the arms-not might only, but also love. The Bride in Solomon's Song could say: "His left arm is under my head, His right hand doth embrace me." Thank God! Though the Almighty's right hand is stretched out to defend us from all perils and dangers, His left hand binds us to His great heart of love. But there is another important thought. He holds out His arms not only to rescue us from danger, but to satisfy His great heart of love. Men and women hunger for the love of little children, and never seem so happy as when they are folding the little ones to their bosoms. It is thus the hunger of their hearts is met. And is this not so with our God? Oh, if not for your own sake, yet for God's sake come to Him. And He will rest in His love.

BEHIND THY BACK.

"Thou hast cast Me behind Thy back" (1 Kings 14:9).

"Thou hast cast all my sins behind Thy back"

(Isaiah 38:17).

What an amazing contrast! In the first God is speaking to a King, in the second a king is speaking to God. In the former a sinner is seen casting God behind his back, whilst in the latter God is seen casting, not the sinner, but the sinner's sin behind His back. Again we remark, what an amazing contrast! How magnanimous of the Lord to deal so mercifully with the repentant soul! But then, it is just like Him.

Some Scripture texts need a great deal of explanation, but these two are as clear as noonday, and require no interpretation. Yet, though they may be read clearly afar off, we may see additional beauty in them by closer inspection. Note first:

I. The Sinner Casting God Behind his Back. Our first Scripture formed part of a message addressed by God to Jeroboam, first king of the ten tribes. There are reasons for believing that, before his elevation to the throne, he was a humble follower of Jehovah, for when his eldest son was born he gave him the name of Abijah, which means, "Jehovah is my father," or "Jehovah is my desire." However, no sooner did he become king than he made the blunder of his life-erected golden calves for his subjects to worship. Merely worldly policy dictated such a step. He took counsel with himself and not with the Lord (see 1 Kings 12:26). Now his sin seems more heinous when we note that he knew that it was for this very sin God had permitted the revolt (see 1 Kings 11:33). Warnings were sent to him, but to no purpose, and now God permits his eldest son to be smitten with an incurable malady. Anxious about his beloved son, the king bethought himself of the despised and neglected prophet of God; but, not willing to face him himself, like a coward, sent his wife, bidding her to disguise herself, and take only the present of an almost destitute person. But her efforts to disguise herself were all to no purpose, and the Lord gave the prophet this stern message to send to the king by his wife.

Now could there be a more serious and damning charge? To cast behind the back is an act expressive of utter disregard and contempt. It signifies that God had been treated as of no value, and of no consequence, as worthless and useless. But let us come a little closer. Cannot God lay such a charge at the door of every one of us? Truthfully can He say to thee, dear reader, "Thou hast cast Me behind thy back." Do you deny it? Well, now, can you say, "I have set the Lord always before me?" That is to say, you have always made Him your model and ideal, have ever kept Him in mind, recognising His presence with you?

If you cannot-and who dare say that he has---if He is not before you He must be behind you! And what about God's law? In the prayer of penitence offered in Nehemiah 9:26, Israel confessed that their fathers had "cast Thy law behind their backs." Have you always loved and kept His laws? The fact is, we were born with our backs to God. And whilst some deliberately and wilfully cast Him behind their backs, the vast majority do it unthinkingly and carelessly, yet nevertheless it is done just as certainly. What a relief it is to turn to our second Scripture.

II. God Casting the Sinner's Sin Behind His Back. This is part of good King Hezekiah's outburst of praise to God on his recovery from a most serious illness. He remembered, and placed on record, that, though in common with his fellows, he had cast God behind his back, yet, on confessing his sin, and seeking mercy, God had cast his sin behind His back. And there are thousands to-day who can, and do, give the same glad and joyous testimony. This is not according to our deserts. If we received our due, He would treat us as we have treated Him. And does He act thus because He thinks lightly of sin? For answer to that question go to Calvary. Jesus, our Lord, suffered in our stead. It is because God cast His beloved Son behind His back that He can now cast the repentant sinner's sin behind His back.

"My sin is ever before me," moaned another king in heartbroken sorrow. Ah! that is it; when the sinner sets his sins before his own face and confesses them to the Lord, then it is that the merciful Lord sets them behind His back. Alleluia!

SPIRITUAL UNCONSCIOUSNESS.

"And he wist not that the Lord was departed from him" (Judges 16:20). "Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone " (Exodus 34:29).

It seems almost sacrilege to place Samson and Moses side by side, seeing the former was the slave of passion, whereas the latter was the slave of God, yet we do so for a specific purpose, viz., to place the two in contrast, and that we might emulate Moses.

There is nothing new or strange in unconscious acts. There are many things in life which we do quite unconsciously, through sheer force of habit. For instance, the accomplished pianist or organist does not think about the notes he has to strike. It is easy to see what a merciful provision this is which saves our feeble consciousness from being burdened with the heavy daily load. Had we to think how we were to manage every step we take, how we were to masticate our food, how to act or speak, or any other action which we now automatically perform, the mind would be crowded to distraction with these competing elements, reason would snap under the intolerable strain, and the world would be turned into a raving Bedlam.

It is when the unconsciousness has to do with the spiritual realm we need to be on our guard.

There are two kinds of unconsciousness. Samson was unconscious of spiritual loss, whereas Moses was unconscious of spiritual gain. The first was tragic; the second was blessed; the first was fatal to service; the latter was one important bit of service, and increased his usefulness.

I. Unconscious Spiritual Decline. One cannot help pitying Samson, fool though he was. "He wist not that the Lord was departed from him," but he ought to have known that his evil living would lead to this loss. Reading the life of Samson, we have the same feeling of grief as when reading the life of Burns, the Scottish poet-it is the what might have been which oppresses us. There were great possibilities for Samson, yet they were never fully realised. It is a very solemn and awful thing to hinder God's purposes for us.

God did not forsake him immediately. He bore long with him-at least a score of years did He suffer him, giving deliverance upon deliverance. The phrase "departed from him" had only reference to service, not to salvation. Though he had played fast and loose with sin, he was still in the Heavenly family. "Departed" meant powerlessness in service for God.

It is an awful thing to know that the Lord may depart from us, so far as power in service is concerned, and yet we be unconscious of it. It means that we can get so hardened by the deceitfulness of sin that we are not as sensitive as formerly.

II. Unconscious Spiritual Gain. For forty days and forty nights Moses had been alone with God. Beholding the glory of the Lord, he had been changed into the same image. And if we were more often alone with the Lord our countenances too would be oftener radiant.

Unconsciousness is the invariable sign of true holiness. ON OR UNDER-WHICH?

"I bare you on eagles' wings" (Exodus 19:4). Gathered you under My wings (Matthew 23:37). What a contrast have we here. We certainly have in the first a noble and majestic figure of speech. All the might of God bearing Israel up. What a wonderful relationship is here shown between God and His redeemed people. That was what God was to His people in grace under the Old. Covenant. But which is the safer of the two-"on" or "under"? In the New Testament, under the New Covenant, God hides us under His wings. Even the Psalmist knew of this, as we see in Psalm 91: "He shall cover thee with His feathers, and under His wings shalt thou trust." No position so near to the heart of God, and no position so warm and comfortable, as well as safe.

DRAWN OR DRIVEN-WHICH?

"Draw me, we will run after Thee" (Son_1:4).

"So He drove out the man" (Genesis 3:24). One is always interested in the utterances of Spirit-filled and much-used men of God. Early in the Welsh Revival, Evan Roberts said: "There is no driving in anything which pertains to God; it is Satan that drives; God persuades, draws." And then, lifting up his voice, cried: "Draw us. Lord; draw us by thy Holy Spirit."

Meditating much on this statement, and searching the Word, we find that God does both, as above Scriptures show. But with this difference-references to His drawing are usually in connection with salvation, whereas His driving is usually in connection with judgment. So there is placed before us the choice: Whether we shall be amongst the drawn ones or the driven! God loves to draw, but hates to drive. Blessed are they who are drawn; woe to those who are driven.

I. The Sinner Drawn.

1. A Personal Plea. a. It is a personal plea-"Draw me." b. This is the language of an awakened soul, conscious of being away from God.

2. A Confession of Weakness. This is the language of conscious weakness Away from God, and unable to run in the way of His commandments. If He will only draw, then "we will run."

3. Language of Helplessness. This is the language of one who longs to follow the Lord Jesus, but is conscious of the alluring and awful fascination of sin.

4. Confession Prompted by a Sense of Unworthiness. The language of one who feels he deserves to be driven rather than drawn.

5. Request Granted "The King hath brought me." God loves to draw. This is seen in nature. The tides are caused by the drawing power of the moon. Evaporation, and in consequence the fertilizing showers, is the result of the drawing power of the sun. The growth and position of plants, trees, and flowers, depend upon the alluring and attracting power of the sun. But what about the world of men and women? Ah, no one offers this prayer in vain.

6. How Does He Draw. a. The Ancients declared that the god Jupiter had a chain of gold which he could at any time let down from Heaven, and by it draw the earth and all its inhabitants to himself. Only a fable, yet there is a suggestion in it. It is true that our God, the only true God, has a golden chain, which in the "fulness of time" He let down from Heaven to earth to draw His erring creatures to Himself- and the Golden Chain is the Lord Jesus Christ, for is it not written: "Unto Him shall the gathering of the people be," and did He not Himself say: "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me?" (John 12:32). God draws through the Atoning Death of His Beloved Son. b. He draws also by His sympathy and love. As we read the sacred records we discover His loving sympathy with all.

7. The Result. In our text there are three blessed results of His drawing. a. Run after the Lord. Only the drawn ones can follow after the Lord in the way of loving obedience. Observe, run, not crawl. And note the power of influence-"We," not merely the suppliant; so others are influenced.

There is said to be a hill in Ayrshire up which cyclists are able to free-wheel, but have to pedal hard to get down. There is a vein of metallic ore in the hill which sets up a magnetic current up the hill. We do know that the Christian runs up the Hill Difficulty because drawn by the Lord. b. Communion. "The King hath brought me up unto His chambers." c. Joy and Delight. "We will be glad and rejoice in Thee."

II. The Sinner Driven.

1. After the Sad Fall, sinful man driven out of the garden (Genesis 3:24), yet not driven out in judgment until the promise was given of a Saviour, and provision made for a covering.

2. After his Atrocious Deed, "Cain said unto the Lord, My punishment is greater than I can bear, behold Thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth, and from Thy face shall I be hid" (Genesis 4:13-14).

These are awful words.

Warning. If not drawn to God by the Lord Jesus Christ and His Atoning Death, we shall, by and by, be driven to the Great White Throne. THE TWOFOLD PEACE.

"Peace with God " (Romans 5:1). "Peace of God" (Php_4:7).

Introduction. When the great Atlantic Cable was laid, the first message flashed across it was one by Queen Victoria to the President of America: "Peace on earth, good-will toward men." This is the first great need of mankind. The time is coming when peace will be universal on the earth. In the meantime peace can become the individual possession of each one. Indeed, this is really essential to universal peace.

What a vast difference there is in the two texts at the head of this meditation. "With God" and "of God" refer to a twofold peace vital to human happiness. We may have the first without the second, though we can never have the second without the first. The first peace is dependent on faith; the second is dependent on prayer. The first is a peace outside of me; the second is a peace within me. If the first describes a state between God and myself, the second describes a condition within my being.

"Peace with God"-A Peace Outside of Myself. Peace is difficult to define. It may be understood as harmony, unity, concord. Romans 5:1, implies a previous state of enmity, of warfare between.

"We have peace," not we make peace. "Peace with God" can never be ours without personal surrender to God on our part, yet it is the fruit of the personal surrender of the sinner's Saviour, and not of the sinner. Formerly sinners were asked if they had made their peace with God. Though the questioner meant well, it was wrong. A better phrase is: Have you found peace. In Ephesians 2, three facts concerning peace are given.

1. He Made Peace (2 Timothy 4:15). How did He make it? Not by declaring it-that He did later. He made it by shedding His Blood (see Colossians 1:20). "Peace with honour," Lord Beaconsfield's familiar phrase, describes the peace Christ made. All the attributes of God go to making up the Atonement, Thus this peace honours the Law of God. Every attribute of God is in perfect accord. By His death He satisfied all His righteous requirements and liberated His mercy and love.

2. He Preached Peace (2 Timothy 4:17). When did our Lord first proclaim peace? We have no record that He ever preached peace before His atoning death. The first time He preached peace is recorded in John 20:19-31. If an ambassador were to go to a rebellious people carrying tidings of peace, after proclaiming it he would produce his authority. Jesus stands in the midst saying, "Peace," and when He had said so, He showed them His hands and His side-His authority, for His hands and side bore the marks of His passion.

3. He is Our Peace (2 Timothy 4:14). The peace which Christ preached has its security in the person of Christ! He is the security and guarantee of peace with God.

SIX BRIEF WATCHWORDS.

1 Timothy 6:11-19.

I. "Flee" (1 Timothy 6:11). An honourable Flight.

II. "Follow" (1 Timothy 6:11). A Glorious Pursuit.

III. "Fight" (1 Timothy 6:12). A Perpetual Conflict.

IV. "Lay Hold" (1 Timothy 6:12 and 1 Timothy 6:19). A Treasure to Grasp.

V. "Keep" (1 Timothy 6:13-16; 1 Timothy 6:20). A Treasure to Guard.

VI. "Charge" (1 Timothy 6:17-19). A Warning to Give.

Ten "Fear Nots" Of The Bible

Some "Fear Nots" of the Bible A PROMISE FOR THE FUTURE.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 1

"For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee. Fear not: I will help thee" (Isaiah 41:13). A tender-hearted surgeon was walking through the large ward of a big hospital when he saw a little one, with bandaged eyes, in distress and waving her hand about. He went up to her and grasped that outstretched hand. Instantly there was a change-the little one was comforted and became restful and contented. And that child, may be, is a picture of some reader of this chapter-in a spiritual darkness that may be felt, with a sense of loneliness and desolation, and yearning, oh, so much, for the touch of a vanished hand, and full of fear and dread concerning the future. Just hold out your hand to the dear Lord, and he will welcome and grasp it, "saying unto thee. Fear not, I will help thee."

"Noa then, lad, tha mun howd on!" In a small village near Manchester, where I was conducting some evangelistic services, a quarryman lay dying. He was an Atheist. A farmer, the head of the local body of Free-thinkers, hearing of his friend's serious condition, and fearful lest at the approach of death he would send for the minister and turn religious, had hastened to his side and urged him to die game. But the dying man replied, "It's a' reet axin me to howd on, but, mon, aw've nowt ta howd on tee!" Once again Atheism was weighed in the balances of human need and experience and found wanting. When you come to the death valley will you have "nowt ta howd on tee?" Would you not rather be amongst the redeemed ones who, having washed their robes and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb, have something solid and enduring to hold on to? Yes, better still, have Someone holding on to them, for it is written: "I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee." An engine-driver of the old L.B. & S.C.R. lay in the Mildmay Hospital at Bethnal Green, London, awaiting an operation for appendicitis. Though a Christian man, as he thought of the ordeal awaiting him, he naturally shrank in fear and was troubled in soul. This, of course, we can quite understand. He was made ready for the operation, and, as he was about to be carried into the operating theatre, the nurse, observing his timidity and fear, said, "When you are put on the operating table, look at the wall and you will find there a message from God for you." He did so, and he found painted on the wall, "I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee." "Praise God," said he to me afterwards, "that was just the word I wanted, and I was rested and comforted." The "Fear Nots" of the Bible are many and varied, and form a wonderful study.

Observe, before He speaks He grasps. He first grasps that outstretched hand, and then speaks the assuring word. He does not only sit upon His throne in the heavens dictating and forwarding messages of comfort to our souls, but He comes at the call of dire need right to us and grants direct and personal contact. "No distant God have we, Who loves afar to be! Made flesh for me, He cannot rest until He rests in me." And what does His grasp mean? Seven mercies and blessings:

1. Salvation. "He sent from above, He took me, He drew me out of many waters" (Psalms 18:16). What a graphic picture we have here of man's utter helplessness. Sinking amidst the swirling waters, battered and bruised by the buffeting waves, with no firm standing ground, is there no help? Yes, if there comes that Petrine cry, "Lord, save me!" The help comes from without and from above. He sent from above, He took me, He drew me out." "And immediately Jesus stretched forth His hand and caught him," and he was saved from death.

2. Security. "They shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of My hand." (John 10:28). What a glorious security is ours when He grasps the hand.

3. Friendship. As a pledge of love, the hand is held in a vice-like grip: "I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand." Becoming my Saviour, I am in a position to learn and know Him as Friend.

4. Confidence. The little one is full of fear and trembling, and you say, "Give me your hand," and that means good-bye to fear. So is it between the Lord and the soul. An abiding confidence is ours as a result of His hold of our hands.

5. Assistance. The hand is offered to assist: "I will help thee."

6. Strength. "The arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob" (Genesis 49:24). With His firm grasp there comes the impartation of strength Divine.

7. Submission. This is to be willing to be put anywhere, and to be used anyhow. That is not so difficult as it sounds. What matters where we go and what we have to do if only His hand leadeth!

PROMISED HELP.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 2.

"Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; He will come and save you" (Isaiah 35:4). Surely this is one of the strangest "Fear nots" of the Bible! We have to strengthen the weak hands, confirm the feeble knees, and establish the faint-hearted by the declaration of His sure and imminent coming to wreak vengeance! And this thought is by no means confined to the Old Testament Scriptures, for it is to be found in the New Testament: "And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

I. For the Oppressed. It is a message to the downtrodden and oppressed, to those writhing under cruel wrong, smarting from oppression, indignant through some gross injustice. Brooding over the wrongs they suffer people are tempted to take vengeance into their own hands, and, moved by hasty and unrighteous impulses, make mistakes over which they will long mourn. "Avenge not thyself," is the Divine command. "Vengeance is Mine: I will repay, saith the Lord." Justice will be meted out some day to those oppressors by the God of Righteousness, hence be patient, and fret not thyself because of evildoers. Let not the wrongs you have suffered sour you. There comes to mind a tragic instance and illustration of this. A young woman who should have benefited largely under her father's will, was cruelly defrauded of most of her money by a solicitor who had to do with the estate, and from a position of affluence she sank into a state of extreme poverty. She so brooded over the cruel wrong she had suffered, that her whole life was ruined thereby. She cherished hard thoughts of God, questioning His justice, cultivated a spirit of suspicion toward all mankind, and allowed herself to be so overwhelmed by bitterness that she became a bugbear to all her fellows, and this was so pronounced as old age crept on, that she was avoided by all. Remember, persecuted, defrauded, or oppressed one, that the eyes of God are upon you; He knows all. He will now bind up your broken heart, soothe your bruised and troubled spirit, granting ample compensations even in this life, and will most certainly, sooner or later, mete out justice to the oppressors, eye for eye, tooth for a tooth.

II. For the Sympathetic. This is also a message to those who, though not smarting under wrong done to themselves, yet are appalled at the sight of cruel oppression and wrong inflicted on others. There are many tenderly sympathetic souls who suffer more from the wrongs inflicted on others than if they personally were the aggrieved ones. Noting how these oppressors seem to flourish, and how slow the wheels of God grind, they are liable to become "hasty of heart" (A.V. margin for "fearful"), rush to rash conclusions, even going to the length of denying either the existence or the power of God. A sympathetic naturalist so brooded over the present conditions of the world-the work of nature, red in tooth and claw, and the world of men at strife and enmity one with another-that he was so moved with indignation as to exclaim that, if he had been the Creator of the world, the patent facts would break his heart. He spoke truer than he thought, for the Creator of the world died of a broken heart on account of the sin of the world. No, no, we must not lose heart or patience. God still observes, and will most certainly rectify wrong, and mete out punishment to the oppressors sooner or later. Therefore "Be strong, fear not; behold your God will come with vengeance."

III. For the Jew. This is a message particularly for the Jew. Many members of this people of the "wandering foot" have so brooded over the wrongs Israel has suffered now for two millenniums, that they have thrown overboard their faith, and have become rank atheists. Certainly no nation has suffered such cruel oppression and wrong. But if we read prophecy aright, Israel has yet a far more awful ordeal to pass through, "the time of Jacob's trouble." But the Lord is neither forgetful nor unobservant of His people. He is quietly noting everything. Even now, blessed are those who bless Israel, and cursed are they who curse. But "behold your God will come." And His coming will mean salvation for Israel, vengeance on the enemies of Israel, and recompense for the friends of Israel.

DIVINE ASSURANCE.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 3.

"Fear not, I have called thee by thy name" (Isaiah 43:1). In a great prison an amazing scene took place. By the intervention and intercession of a man of influence, a free pardon was secured for a noted criminal who had spent a long time in that gaol. The Governor of the prison intimated to the prisoners assembled that he held in his hand a free pardon for one of them, and after a few remarks, called out the name of the fortunate individual. But the man moved not; he could not believe the pardon was for him, but for another who may be bearing the same name; and it was only with the utmost difficulty that he could be persuaded that it was really for him. Those who witnessed the occurrence said it was an unforgettable and amazing scene.

True is it that the Lord is Redeemer. But is it for me? Can I have a share in that redemption? It may be for others; but, oh, has it anything to do with me? Surely this message settles that difficulty: "Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art Mine." He called me! And He came to assure me that it is a call for and to me. He calls me by my name. The more one ponders over this "Fear not," the more pregnant it seems with meaning:

1. He Lives. "I have called thee." It surely declares that He lives. He died. That death was redemption's price. But death did not permanently hush that voice. He still speaks; therefore, He still lives.

2. He is Near Me. "To-day, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your heart." It surely declares that He is near. He calls-not shrieks or shouts. "He shall not strive (lit., squabble) nor cry (scream)" (Matthew 12:19). He is quite near, and therefore gently and lovingly calls.

3. He Remembers Me. It surely declares that I am not forgotten: "I have called thee." "How long wilt Thou forget me, O Lord," cried the Psalmist. Ah, He never forgets. And I'm not lost in the crowd either. He knows my name.

4. He Longs for Me. It surely declares that He asks for my friendship. To call me by my name speaks volumes. We never call strangers or casual acquaintances by their names; that is the sole prerogative of friendship. Being my Saviour, He desires to become my friend and adviser. Connect 1 Timothy 6:1 with 1 Timothy 6:7 : "I have called thee by thy name," "Even every one that is called by My name." He calls me by my name in order that He might put His Name upon me. A middle-aged woman was so wrought on by the Spirit of God at a Lancashire cottage meeting I once conducted, that she interrupted the service by kneeling down, and crying for mercy. She sought the Lord earnestly and perseveringly. But was redemption for her? That was the trouble. It seemed too good to be true. And so she spent several days strangely incredulous. Calling one day, she inquired if there was such a text in the Bible as "Fear not, for I have redeemed thee," as it had flashed into her mind that morning whilst she had been troubling over the matter of her soul's salvation, and she could not remember having seen it before. I was glad to point her to Isaiah 43:1, assuring her it was without doubt the Lord's own message to meet her present need. This she recognised, and immediately began to bless and praise the Lord, and lived in full assurance of faith the rest of her days. THE LAME PRINCE.

Bible "Fear Nots, No. 4.

"And David said unto him, Fear not, for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake" (2 Samuel 9:7).

How welcome this royal "Fear not" must have been to the trembling and fearful prince, Mephibosheth! How unexpected it was! What a surprise it was to him, being altogether different to what he really expected. The King's "Fear not" would fall on his ears as a peal of silvery bells. But who was this Prince Mephibosheth? He was Jonathan's son, the last survivor of the royal house of Saul. When news of the death of King Saul and his sons on the fatal battlefield of Gilboa reached the royal palace, the nurse, snatching up in her arms this infant son of Jonathan, fled with him to Lo-debar. In the hurry she let him fall, when his feet were permanently injured. Sixteen years had passed when, upon David inquiring, "Is there any that is left of the house of Saul that I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake?" and hearing of the survival of this lame prince, sent and had him brought into his royal presence. Tremblingly must Mephibosheth have made that journey; and, at last, ushered into the king's presence, must have expected his death. When lo! nothing but grace was meted out to him.

It is a lovely picture of salvation. Convicted of sin, and aware of your lost and ruined condition, do you feel you dare not entertain any hope of securing His grace and favour? Then listen and take to heart this story.

I. He was the King's Enemy, owing to his relation to Saul, though, thank God, the king was not an enemy of the poor trembling prince. We are by nature at enmity with God, though God is not at enmity with us, and is ever beseeching us to be reconciled to Him.

II. He was Lame Through a Fall. And so is it with us. What moral and spiritual weakness and sickness and infirmities are ours by the Fall.

III. He was in a Far Country, away from the king. Far, far away from Jerusalem, the place of blessing, of peace and worship, at Lo-debar, "the place of no bread." We, too, are by nature in the far country, away, far away, from God.

IV. He was Sought Out by the King. No, it was not a matter of Mephibosheth seeking the king, but the king seeking him. Wherein do you think our Christian faith differs from all other faiths that have ever been or are? In this, and this alone, all other faiths represent man, in the first instance, seeking God (which is not true, for man, left to himself, does not want God), but the Christian faith represents God as seeking man, which alone is true to fact. Man is indifferent to God; but God is not indifferent to him.

V. He was Received In his Deformity, just as he was, without any attempt to improve himself. Ah, that we must remember:

"Just as I am without one plea,

But that Thy blood was shed for me,

And that Thou bid'st mo come to Thee:

O Lamb of God, I come."

VI. He was Received for Another's Sake, for the sake of Jonathan. And we are received for Another's sake, for the sake of the Lord Jesus Christ. "Accepted in the Beloved."

VII. He Learned to Estimate Himself Aright, but only after he came to David When Mephi-bosheth said, "What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such a dead dog as I am?" he may have simply indulged in an Eastern's habit of self-deprecia-tion in the presence of his superior. Yet it may have been a genuine and sincere expression of his deepest feelings. But, pray note, he only expressed this view after he came to David. It is only after we come to the Lord Jesus that we take low and truer views of ourselves, and get to see sin in the light of Heaven.

VIII. He Got in David More than he had Lost. What he had lost he regained, plus David's friendship and fellowship. We gain more in Christ than we lost in Adam.

IX. He Dwelt with the King in the royal palace, and upon royal fare: "For he did eat continually at the king's table." Oh, what blessed news! And we, too, may leave the pit and the dunghill and dwell in the holiest of all by the Blood of Jesus.

Poor conscience-stricken sinner, fearful of just and deserved judgment, listen to our blessed Lord's "Fear not, for I will surely show thee kindness for Jesus' sake." Dare, therefore, to entertain hope of finding mercy, and cling to the Rock of Ages.

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE FEARFUL.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 5

"But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, Fear not, for I have redeemed thee" (Isaiah 43:1). Strange fears possess the souls of many Even some great ones of the earth have not been free from them. Dr. Johnson, with all his philosophy, was very careful not to enter a room with his left foot foremost. If by any chance he did so, he would immediately step back and re-enter with his right foot foremost. He was terribly afraid of death, too, and would not suffer it to be mentioned in his presence. Julius Caesar, to whom the shouts of thousands of the enemy were but sweet music, was mortally afraid of the sound of thunder, and always wanted to get underground to escape the dreadful noise. Marshal Saxe, who loved to look upon the ranks of opposing armies, fled and screamed in terror at the sight of a cat. Peter the Great could scarcely be persuaded to cross a bridge, and whenever he placed his foot on one he would cry out with fear. The number thirteen is considered, by some an unlucky number, and the breaking of crockery, but particularly glassware, is a harbinger of misfortune. Some fishermen on their way to their boats return home and will not sail that day should they meet either a woman or a cat. These are superstitious fears, with no foundation in fact, and sensible folk, but especially Christian people, ought to get rid of them. The Lord says to such: "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, Fear not." Suffer not such fears any longer to enthral you.

Other fears possess the mind at times. Strange fears of impending disaster, or coming sorrow, of threatening calamity; fears sometimes that remain inarticulate, but which weigh like a load of lead upon the spirit. These sometimes spring from an overwrought nervous system, from a deranged physical constitution, from a diseased or weakened body. One evangelist, well known to the writer, had periodical fits of depression and despair, when strange fears took a grip of him, and when he thought the Lord was angry and displeased and had turned His face from him. But his friends knew very well that he was then troubled with his liver, and when he had emerged from a bad bilious attack, all was well-the Lord's smile had again been gained, and the Lord again presented Himself. But, as a matter of fact, the Lord had been with him all the time; only his deranged physical system had called up phantoms of fear and despair. The Lord loves to speak to such, saying, "Fear not." And He will come and quieten and soothe the nerves and give rest and quietness. A friend who occasionally suffers from a restless and fearful spirit, gained great comfort and help from the words: "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures," and trusted the Lord to exercise the sweet compulsions of His grace, making aim restful and quiet. "He maketh me." But there is another fear, that is the common possession of man, a fear that springs from superstition or a fear of God and of the future. We are going to say that this fear is natural to man, but we would check ourselves and say that it is unnatural-this fear was born when sin came into the world, and death by sin "I was afraid. . and I hid myself," confessed the first man Adam, to a Holy God, after he had sinned Ah, this fear is not groundless, but rests upon a fact; for as sinners we have every reason for fear. But to be redeemed means three things in the Sacred Records. In Exodus 13 13 it means:

I. Deliverance from Death. This is a solemn thought indeed. But the Divine One exclaims: "Fear not, oh sinner, for I have paid the price of thy redemption from certain and awful eternal death." He tasted death that we might drink the cup of salvation. In Exodus 6:6 redemption is spoken of in relation to

II. Deliverance from Bondage, the awful Egyptian bondage. Israel were not only to be saved from death by the destroying angel because of the sprinkling of blood on the lintels and doorposts, but taken right out of galling bondage. Many, alas, who know something of the value of the sprinkled Blood, are yet in bondage to the world. But He assures such, "Fear not, oh sin-bound believer, I will snap thy chains, and lead you into the glorious liberty of the sons of God." In the Book of Ruth redemption is spoken of as

III. Deliverance from Penury. Ruth by marriage was related to Boaz, and he had to do the kinsman's part, and that meant buying back the inheritance and marrying the widow. Redemption meant for Ruth and Naomi good-bye to poverty. And our Heavenly Kinsman says, "Fear not, oh bankrupt soul, I have redeemed thee; I will unite Myself with thee, and thou shalt share My wealth. IN TIMES OF DARKNESS.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 6.

"The Lord hath said that He would dwell in the thick darkness" (2 Chronicles 6:1). "Lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him (Abraham), and He (the Lord) said unto Abraham." (Genesis 15:12, Genesis 15:15). "Fear thou not, for I am with thee" (Isaiah 41:10).

Walking through the conservatory of a friend one day, my attention was drawn to a small plant completely covered by a flower-pot. "Do you know why I have put this slip in darkness?" he inquired. "It is because I want it to strike a deeper root." Evidently darkness was necessary, however unpleasant, for the striking of a deeper root.

How puzzled young Christians are with experiences they never anticipated. When they first sought the Lord, and received from Him pardon, justification and life, what joy fell to their lot. "O happy day, when Jesus washed my sins away," they sang and shouted exultingly. Their sun shone with great intensity, and the Lord was near. But sometimes the joy departs, their sun goes down, the face of the Lord is hidden, and darkness is their lot. Why the darkness? Sometimes sin is the cause-and quick confession will restore the gladness; sometimes a week and ailing body is the cause of such soul-travail-when rest, suitable food, or medical attention will cause the sunshine to break forth once again; often, yes, very often, none of these reasons explain, but this-the darkness was thought necessary by the Divine Husbandman for the young convert to strike a deeper root, and get a firmer hold of God. But whatever the cause, we beseech of you to cling to the fact that "the Lord hath said that He would dwell in the thick darkness." He is with you in the darkness saying, "Fear not, for I am with thee." A lady was endeavouring to assist a young Christian in a similar experience many years ago, when they met Sir Arthur Blackwood, who gave a message that was just the Lord's own word. "I remember meeting him (Sir Arthur Blackwood) one day, when C.T., who was with me, and was then a young Christian, was in low spirits, from which I could not raise her. As we went round the railings of the Parish Church we suddenly came face to face with him; and seeing our downcast faces, he said to us, 'Who is among you that feareth the Lord that obeyeth the voice of His servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? Let him trust in the Name of the Lord, and stay upon his God.'" (Isaiah 50:10). It was just the word for them.

How bewildered newly consecrated souls are with experiences they never anticipated! After they had fully surrendered to their beloved Lord and Master, and laid themselves upon the altar of sacrifice, they expected, and indeed received through the incoming of the Holy Spirit, a changed heart, and consequent deliverance from all the power of the enemy, they were conscious of a profound inward peace, and a very lively sense of the presence of the Father. Joy was full, communion deepened and uninterrupted, and a new delight experienced in prayer and the study of the Sacred Scriptures. So far, everything had happened just as they were led to expect. But by and by a change took place-all deep emotional experiences ceased, and, while still conscious of an inward calm,, the soul seems shrouded in darkness.

Some of the darkness of the dreary past can well be understood. Then it was either the outcome of repeated failures in the daily walk and conversation, and the consequent upbraidings of a self-condemn ing heart, or it may have been caused by a tired and jaded body. But not so in this case. Now, unconscious of anything done to grieve their Lord, in the passession of a conscience void of offence toward God and man, and a body in good health, the cry is raised in agonising tones: "Why this darkness?" May not the solution to this difficult problem be found in the story recorded above? May not His purpose in the darkness be the striking of a deeper root, a firmer hold of Himself, a deeper and grander knowledge of the Divine? Verily this is so. The darkness sometimes is but the Father's loving method of weaning His child away from everything else, to find in Him his or her all. He sees the subtle temptation to be taken up with mere emotional experiences, and not with the Lord Himself; to rest in the blessings of the deeper life, and not alone in the Blesser. And, as He can never be satisfied until our whole undivided attention has been gained, He has by darkness shut us in unto Himself, until we are able to say:

"Once it was a blessing, now it is the Lord; Once it was the feelings, now it is His Word; Once His gifts I wanted, now the Giver own; Once I sought for healing, now Himself alone." But what must we do when passing through such dark experiences? What can we do but sink into the arms of Infinite love? Pray remember, He has not forsaken thee, for "the Lord hath said that He would dwell in the thick darkness." Oh, never, when in the darkness, harbour a doubt of the Divine presence! This was the most fruitful source of Israel's murmurings, for it is written: "They tempted the Lord saying, Is the Lord amongst us or not?" (Exodus 17:7). The Husbandman is never so near the vine as when he is pruning it. A short while ago a journey was made by rail. In the same compartment were other two passengers, a mother and her little girl. The wee one was very busily engaged with some toys upon the seat. By and by a long dark tunnel was entered, and one wondered that no cry of fear had escaped from the lips of the frightened child. Emerging into the light of day, the mystery was solved: the child had forsaken her toys and was clinging with her little arms around her mother's neck. Canst thou not do likewise? Rejoice in that He has counted thee worthy of dwelling with Him in the darkness, thank Him that though "a horror of great darkness" has fallen upon you, He speaks a comforting word, and in so doing thou shalt have "songs in the night." THE PROMISED PRESENCE

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 7.

"My Spirit remaineth among you: fear ye not" (Haggai 2:5).

The two strong foes of Christian service are depression and discouragement. These two enemies have ever worked sad havoc, but never more so than at the present moment. We are entering upon the spiritual harvest-time of the Christian year. Whilst the Christian worker must sow beside all waters, labouring and reaping in season and out of season, the season of greatest opportunity is now on us. And never was there greater need for Christian witness than at the present. But when the Christian warrior should be buckling on his armour for the fray, and when the sower and reaper should be girding up their loins preparatory to labouring in God's great field, depression and discouragement are paralysing the Lord's servants, or causing the hands to hang down, and the knees to be enfeebled. Of course there are sufficient causes for depression and discouragement to-day. As we look around us and note worldliness and vice at full flood, and the deadness and fruitfulness of much Christian ministry, with the apathy and indifference concerning the perishing multitude on the part of many of the Lord's people, and the steady decline in Church membership and Sunday School attendance, we feel our hearts and spirits drooping, are tempted to hang our harps on the willows, and thrust our sword into its scabbard. It was so in the days of Haggai. By Divine intervention and the clemency of Cyrus, King of Persia, a remnant of Israel had returned from the Babylonian captivity, and with zeal had commenced the work of national restoration. But political intrigues had stopped the rebuilding of the Temple, and the enthusiasm of the first return had died away in the face of the prolonged difficulties. The two brave leaders, Zerubbabel and Joshua, still survived, and kept alive their own zeal; but the mass of the people, dismayed by past events, were now more concerned about their comforts than about the restoration of the House of the Lord. Depression and discouragement had paralysed all godly effort, and the work of the Lord had ceased. The Lord's people were in great need of a tonic, and the Lord sent His prophet Haggai to administer it, which he did most effectively. "Fear ye not," was one of his messages. When such a word fell upon their ears they might have replied: "Fear ye not! Why, look at our feebleness, our defencelessness, our adversaries, and our sad condition; we cannot but fear if we open our eyes!" But there are two antidotes in (1) the Lord's promise, and (2) the Lord's presence. His gracious promise-"According to the Word that I convenanted with you"-is indeed a grand encouragement, and His presence-"My Spirit remaineth among you"-is indeed the great source of cheer and strength.

Observe the duty of strength "be strong," twice repeated. But how can the feeble be strong? Note the fountain of strength-the Lord's presence and Spirit. The purpose of strength certainly is work: "Be strong. . . and work."

Christian worker, despondent because of the present serious decline in Assemblies and diminution in Christian service, remember the Lord's own word, "My Spirit remaineth among you, fear ye not." He is with you as your ally, partner and, enduement. Remember that following Paul's sad prophecy concerning the "perilous times" and dark days in 2 Timothy 3, comes his urgent appeal to redouble Christian service: "Preach the Word, be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine... Do the work of an evangelist" (2 Timothy 4:2, 2 Timothy 4:5).

It seems fully clear by Acts 18:5, and a study of 2 Corinthians 1:8; 2 Corinthians 2:1,2 Corinthians 2:4, 2 Corinthians 2:13; 2 Corinthians 4:8-9; 2 Corinthians 6:10; 2 Corinthians 7:5-6, that Paul was at that moment suffering depression.

"Grief beset the spirit of Paul," is the Arabic version of Acts 18:5. Reasons for discouragement and depression can easily be seen. He was alone in a strange city, and solitude was a hard trial to so sensitive a nature; he had no money, and had to engage himself to a tent manufacturer; he was not well, was overworked and persecuted, and failure seemed to dog his steps. Yet he did not allow this mood to silence his voice in Christian testimony, or paralyse Christian effort, for "he testified" boldly for his Master.

Fellow-pilgrim, are you mourning over some besetting sin, and smarting under a sense of failure and shortcoming, and feel it is no use trying to live the Christian life any longer? Just take heed to His own Word to you: "My Spirit remaineth among you, fear ye not." And in that indwelling Spirit you have all you need for victory over sin and holy living. Just let Him have His own way with you, and all will be well. He will then tread down the enemies within and lead you to victory.

Unsaved one, if His Spirit no longer remains with you, then you would have every cause for fear. But He is with you. The very existence of good desire within you, and regret over the unsatisfactory past are so many proofs that the Spirit of God is striving with you. Let the Holy Spirit lead you to Christ, and to the precious Blood, then He will become in you the source of purity and power. WHEN DANGERS ASSAIL.

Bible "Fear Nots" No. 8.

"Fear not: for they that be with us are more than they that be with them" (2 Kings 6:16). This is a "Fear not" for those overawed at the magnitude of the forces arrayed against them. It was truly an appalling sight that Elisha's man-servant saw. Dothan, their residence just then, lay on an isolated hill in a wide plain. Rising up early one morning to perform his accustomed tasks ere his master arose, he saw a great host of the enemy surrounding the town, and they were utterly undefended and apparently at the mercy of the besiegers. No; we are not at all surprised at the man's alarm and dismay. It verily was a fearsome sight. The King of Syria was at war with Israel. His method of warfare was not by a regular continued invasion, but by dashes across the border on undefended places. But he found himself forestalled at every point. Whatever place they decided to attack they found their plans were known, and the carefully planned surprises were defeated. No wonder he suspected treachery, and, calling his servants together, challenged them on the matter. Their prompt answer implied that Elisha's intervention was well known by them. They declared that Jehovah revealed those carefully made plans of theirs to Elisha, who instructed the King of Israel. Therefore the Syrian king determined to send an expedition for the capture of Elisha, never dreaming that this servant of the Lord, who knew all his former schemes, might know of this one too.

No; we are not at all surprised at the servant's fear. And there is no wonder that we, too, are appalled as we remember the forces arrayed against us. Worse foes ring us round than those whose armour glittered in the morning sunshine at Dothan. A recently retired business man, in a letter, said: "These are terrible times we are living in, and it seems as if Satan is allowed to put forth tremendous powers in these last dark days." How true are these words. All the Satanic forces seem to have united in one desperate onslaught upon the forces of righteousness and truth, and against the Lord's own people. Of the reality of those mighty enemies and of their bitter and fierce attacks, the Lord's people are not ignorant. Are we not as helpless to cope with them as this servant was? Then why should not we fear? Ah, this incident teaches us that we are not alone and deserted even when we seem most to be. And that, like Elisha, it is our duty, not so much to pray that the Lord and His host might be with us, as to recognise their presence. Elisha did not pray that the Heavenly guards might come, for they were there already. The manifestation was the miracle. God's messengers are ever near us. Let us remember this, and thus, ever recognising their presence, and, above all, the presence of the mighty Lord, be delivered from all fear. For "greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world." "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them." WHEN TEMPTED TO FEEL LONELY.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 9.

"Fear thou not, for I am with thee" (Isaiah 41:10). The children had been some time in bed. All was quiet in the home, with the mother alone in the kitchen sewing. Suddenly a wee voice was heard at the top of the stairs: "Are you there, mamma?" One of the little ones could not sleep, and, troubled at the quietness below, feared they were alone. On being assured that mother was indeed present, the timid little one went off again to bed and was soon fast asleep.

You doubt the existence of God. Is there any wonder, when you have never taken the trouble to go to the stairs and inquire, "Are you there?" You have read, and meditated, and considered with others on this matter, airing your rusty old views, but you have never seriously inquired directly of Him. Shame on you! If you will but seek Him He will assuredly manifest Himself to you. Or may be you are a true Christian. For long He has been a blessed reality. But there has not been much traffic between Heaven and your soul of late, and He seems to have withdrawn His presence, and there is a strange and ominous silence. "Are you there, Lord?" Is that your heart-broken inquiry? Here is His answer: "Fear thou not: for I am with thee: be not dismayed, for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee: yea I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of My righteousness." Oh the blessedness of that gracious presence! This is one of the most familiar of texts; this is one of the most familiar of truths. But do we live up to it. Ah, that is quite another matter. If I am truly born of His Spirit, and a member of the family of faith, having my sins pardoned, and justified by faith, am a partaker of the Divine nature, then He is with me. This is a fact, whether I have the enjoyment of that presence or no. We must depend less on moods and more on facts. Moods are transient whilst facts remain. And the enjoyment of the fact depends very largely on its clear and persistent recognition. You feel the Lord has forsaken you, and you are greatly troubled. But what saith the Lord? Listen, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee;" "Fear not, for I am with thee." It is wonderful to think that He is within call. It is glorious to think that I can go to the foot or head of the stairs, and in response to my inquiry, "Are you there. Lord," hear His voice saying, "Fear thou not." But this message for the lonely one means infinitely more than that he is within call; its full significance is that He is by my side. And He is with me to "strengthen," to impart strength, to "help"-to do practical service, to "uphold," to accompany and support us daily in the heavenly pilgrimage. This was the Lord's most repeated message to His people. For it was not only what they needed most, but also what they needed to be reminded most of. This was His message to a backslidden people. Israel had been carried away captive. The Lord had been compelled to so chastise them. But if He had felt it necessary to send them into captivity, He had gone with them into the foreign land, and was sharing their hardships and heartbreaks. And all the while they were unaware of that gracious presence. Having forsaken Him, they thought they were forsaken of Him. But they were mistaken. He was sharing the strokes He had been compelled to lay so heavily upon them. He had gone with them into captivity, and was near enough to not only hear, but help. This was His message to faint-hearted and fearful Israel at Kadesh Barnea (Numbers 14:9). And the recognition of this was the secret of their own unfaltering confidence. They passed the message on, but it was unheeded, hence the judgment of the forty years' wanderings in the desert. This was His message to a Christian worker about to undertake serious responsibilities (Deuteronomy 31:8). What a stupendous task awaited Joshua! Not merely was the task huge owing to the fact that he had to lead three millions of people, but because he had to succeed one so great as Moses. But the Lord's presence was His sufficiency. This was His message to a peace-maker, who felt his loneliness in the midst of enemies (Genesis 26:24). What a splendid peace-maker Isaac was, to be sure, but what need there was just then of a cheery word from his Lord.

Yes; His presence with us is a fact. Do we live up to that fact? If we did, for one thing there would be freedom from anxiety. How often we quote Php_4:5-7 : "Be careful for nothing," or, as R.V., "In nothing be anxious." This freedom from carking care seems impossible. But read on: "The Lord is at hand," i.e., "The Lord is close by you," a reference not only to His imminent advent, but to His present nearness. A sea captain, who had just arrived from a voyage, said: "We had a terrible storm coming up channel. I was on the bridge continually; but when the pilot came on board I went straight to bed, and in two minutes I was sound asleep." Precisely. The presence of the pilot made all the difference in the world. But, if believers, our Heavenly Pilot is already on board. Shall we not recognise that gracious presence and find relief from overwhelming care?

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR INTERCESSORS.

Bible "Fear Nots," No. 10.

"Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand and to humble thyself before thy God thy words were heard: and I am come for thy word's sake" (Daniel 10:12, R.V.).

There is much that is strange and mysterious about this incident in the life of Daniel that great statesman, saint, and prophet. He was now an old man of eighty-nine. Seventy-three years had passed since his deportation from his beloved land of Judah. Two years had gone since the imperial monarch, Cyrus, had permitted the faithful remnant of Israel to return to Jerusalem. For some reason or other Daniel began a season of special prayer. What particular petition he offered we know not. Maybe he was praying for the remnant on receiving a report concerning the difficulties they were meeting in the rebuilding of Jerusalem, and the restoration of their national life, and probably he desired to know what would befall his people in the future (see Daniel 10:14). He had been engaged in earnest and persevering prayer for three weeks before an answer came. Though no doubt puzzled and bewildered at this long delay, the aged prophet continued his supplications. Then a vision was granted. "A Man" appeared. Comparing Daniel's description of the appearance of this august Person with that given by John in Revelation 1, we are bound to conclude that it was the Lord. Daniel's servants that were with him "Saw not the vision, but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves," leaving their master alone. The effect upon God's aged servant was overwhelming. "And I Daniel alone saw the vision. . . and there remained no strength in me: for my comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength." But in his fear and distress the Lord spake this most comforting and cheering "Fear not," which is bound to be an inspiration to all the Lord's praying people.

I. Prayer is Heard at Once in Heaven, though the sensible answer may seem to be delayed. That is, of course, prayer offered from a humble and trustful heart. How significant is the phrase, "Set thine heart," not only to "understand," but also to "chasten," i.e., humble, "thyself before thy God." Our S.O.S. signals are always noted, and an account of the same kept before the Lord. Never for one moment allow the enemy to persuade you that your cry has gone unheeded. No; a thousand times, no. "For from the first day. . . thy words were heard."

II. Delays in Answering Prayer are Not Always Due to God. Some delays are due either to un-preparedness or unfitness on the part of the suppliant or the petition. But not all delays. Delays do not always mean denials. The Lord in the vision explained to the aged intercessor how it happened that he had received no visible answer to a prayer that had been offered with success three weeks previously. And the explanation was that there had been a conflict between the powers of light and darkness, betwixt the invisible powers which rule and influence nations and peoples. Strangely fascinating is this subject, yet how little we know or can know of it. The veil hiding the invisible is here slightly withdrawn, revealing titanic opposition to the performance of the commands of the Lord. As to the ultimate success of the powers of light there can be no doubt, for Satanic powers are not omnipotent; but the delays through opposition are trying and testing times to the eager and anxious souls. In Daniel's experience a suitable explanation was given him for the delay, but the Lord is not able to explain to all of His servants. And what then? Well, surely we can trust even when we cannot trace. And we can persevere in our entreaties until our prayers are answered. Daniel persevered in prayer three weeks; let us persevere for three, thirty, or three hundred weeks. Pray through. Never give up, however sorely tried you may be with Heaven's silence. Prayer conflict is an experience not to be trusted to all the Lord's people, but only to the ripened and mature saint. Jacob's determined reply to the Lord, "I will not let thee go except Thou bless me," is to be commended. Many a lost battle would have been won if perseverance had been practised a little longer on the part of the combatants.

88. "Excepts" Of The Bible

"Excepts" of the Bible

CONCERNING YOUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Bible "Excepts," No. 1.

"For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom" (Matthew 5:20). In other words, except you are better men and women than those whom you consider to be the very cream of your society, you will not enter the Kingdom. Then what kind of men were these referred to by our Lord? The general idea is that they were hypocrites; but this is a mistake. Without doubt there were some who merited that designation; yet not all. "Pharisee" meant one "separated," and described those who had severed themselves from all wrong and questionable things. They were great religious teachers and leaders of that day, and therefore they must be taken as types of the highest conformity with the Law which the Old Testament affords. Luke 18:11-12 gives us a good description of them. By this we learn that they were punctual in attendance at Divine worship, believed in and practised public and private prayer, were temperate in eating and drinking, were generous and benevolent, supported the house of prayer, and read and studied the Sacred Scriptures. What more could be desired of them? And yet our Blessed Lord declares that there is no hope for us unless we are better than they!

"No, I cannot say that I am a Christian; but I am doing my best." Are you? Do you pray three times a day, read and study the Word of God, frequent as often as possible the meeting place, and support well its honoured institutions? "No!" Then cease talking about "doing your best." But granted that you are. Here was a large class of individuals who really were doing their best, and yet our Lord said that that was not sufficient. If you reflect for a little upon this, you will be compelled to exclaim: "This is staggering." Surely this word of the Lord's ought to bring despair to the hearts of all who are honestly doing their best. Why, He states in another place (Isaiah 64:6) that, in His pure eyes, even our best is as filthy rags! Then if that is His estimation of man's best, what must His opinion be of man's worst?

Verily, our Lord's words would be terrible if they stood alone, but, thank God, they do not. Just before He made this astounding statement, He declared that He had not come to destroy the law, but to fulfil it. That is to say, He has perfectly fulfilled all God's righteous claims. Thank God for that! If my best is not sufficient, God's best is more than enough; if my righteousness will not pass muster, there is another righteousness that will see me through There is an excellent righteousness-the righteousness of the Lord's own providing-which becomes ours through faith.

Let us trace the great contrast between man's righteousness and God's righteousness.

I. The Former is Prospective, whilst the Latter is Possessive. "The righteous man under the law became righteous by doing righteously; under grace he does righteously because he has been made righteous." What an amazing difference! The one hopes to gain God's favour by becoming righteous through desperate struggles, whilst the other begins working after gaining God's favour in Christ. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. Far, far better, to enter into present possession of God's righteousness than vainly strive to work out one of your own.

II. One is Only External, whilst the Other is Both. This is described for us in Matthew 23:28. Man's righteousness is confined entirely to the life that is seen by man, but the righteousness of God is both concerned with the external and the internal, because it is both imputed and imparted.

III. Whilst the Former is Ceremonial, the Latter is Spiritual. The Scribes and Pharisees had made the observance of ceremonies the be-all, and end-all, of religion. Now ceremonies are all right in their place, yet vital godliness is not a series of ceremonies, but a deep inward spiritual reality.

IV. One is One-Sided, whilst the Other is Full-Orbed. Righteousness is not only a state of being right with man, the fulfilling of every relation in which we stand to others, but also a state of being right with God, the fulfilling of every relation in which we stand to God-not only a character man approves of, but a character God approves of, too. This the Pharisees lost sight of, for they narrowed their conception of righteousness to man, and left God out of the reckoning, and this was fatal.

V. One was, and is, an "It," whilst the Other is "He." Ah, this is the crux of the whole matter: "The Lord our righteousness" (Jeremiah 23:6). It is what the Lord is for me, and within me. This is a Living Righteousness. And what the Lord is in Himself, He proposes to make us, if we will but trust and rest in Him. When He becomes my righteousness (which far, far exceeds the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees), this will see me through. Blessed be His Name for ever and ever!

NECESSITY OF REPENTANCE.

Bible "Excepts," No. 2.

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13:3, Luke 13:5).

In Scotland there is a ruined tower known as the Tower of Repentance. A sceptic passed by it one day, and seeing a shepherd-boy reading his Bible, scoffingly asked: "Can you tell me the way to Heaven?" Instantly the lad replied, "By way of yonder Tower!" It was the right answer. The boy had certainly read the Book of books to profit. Repentance was our Lord's first message on commencing His short earthly ministry, and it is His first word to all sinners. What He asks first of us is not our appreciation, but our repentance.

"Do you mean to tell me that there is no chance of me getting to Heaven unless I weep and wail; this is quite ridiculous."

We quite agree with you.

"How can you? You have just said that my repentance is essential, and is not repentance being sorry, mourning, and weeping?" By no means. Our definitions are often woefully astray. To repent is to be sorry for our sins, is often said. It is nothing of the kind. It is quite distinct from it: "Ye sorrowed to repentance" (2 Corinthians 7:9). Here sorrow is spoken of as something quite apart from repentance, though leading up to it. Mere sorrow is not repentance. If so, then what about Esau? "He found no place for repentance, though he sought it (the blessing) carefully with tears." Judas, the betrayer of our Lord, was filled with sorrow and remorse on accomplishing his dastardly work, yet he went out and hanged himself. Don't forget the lesson of Acts 2.

Under the mighty preaching of Peter at Pentecost, the people were pricked to the heart, and cried, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" There was most certainly real and genuine sorrow, yet the preacher replied, "Repent." There can be sorrow without repentance, yet no repentance without genuine and heartfelt sorrow. The events which gave rise to this pronouncement are unrecorded. Who these Galileans were is uncertain. They were fiery and turbulent people, often in rebellion. Probably many of them came to observe one of the feasts at Jerusalem, and Pilate, who had long desired to arrest some of them, surprised them whilst they were offering sacrifices, and slew them. The Tower in Siloam incident is unknown. It is evident that the people foolishly sat in judgment upon these unfortunate individuals who had so suddenly lost their lives, assuming that they must have been wicked to have merited such fate, and self-righteously imagined that they were much better because they had not so suffered. This statement of our Lord's proved to be prophecy, and was, literally fulfilled thirty-five years afterwards in the siege of Jerusalem, when over one million perished. Multitudes of the priests, who were going on with the sacrifices, were slain, and their blood mingled with the blood of their victims; and multitudes were buried under the ruins of walls, houses, and temple. But this word is for all, dear reader. "Except ye repent, ye shall. . . perish."

Awful word, dreadful in its significance! It is unfathomable. Twice over our blessed Lord repeated this "Except," and the repetition is impressive, emphasising its importance.

Repentance simply means "a change of mind." This was the first great truth that Luther discovered, and from which the Reformation came. It means a change of mind leading to a change of heart and purpose. First, a change of mind about myself, about my spiritual state, and the right object in life. I discover that instead of being all right I am all wrong. This will most assuredly lead to great sorrow; and if my eyes do not weep, my heart will. Second, there will be a radical change of mind about sin. Sin, that seemed so light a matter before, is seen as a hateful thing, something to be detested and dreaded. Then there will be a change of mind about God. I shall see God as an outraged Being: a Divine One of infinite love and compassion.

It is, of course, a change of mind leading to a change of conduct. Some years ago we were much impressed with the statement of a cultured Jew, who said that "the chief difference between Jewish ethical books and Christian devotional writings is that in the former repentance does not mean weep but return." Of course, he was labouring under the erroneous definition so many give of repentance. Return to God; that is the fruit of repentance. There is often a return, but not to God: "They return, but not to the Most High" (Hosea 7:16). This may be a return to some duties or spiritual exercises; but these, instead of a return to God will be of no avail. And what is the producing cause of repentance? The goodness of God as manifested in the Cross (Romans 2:4). This is well illustrated in the account of Dr. Pentecost's conversion. Impressed by some revival services, he tried, but in vain, to produce what he imagined to be repentance. In a despairing mood he went again to church, but at the close of the sermon he was so devoid of feeling as not to recollect the subject. But as he stepped into the aisle, the dying love of Jesus was made real to him. In a moment he saw that Jesus died for him. Justification by faith, which at that time he had never heard stated, was as clear as it had been ever since. Darkness was gone, and all deadness of heart. He was not thinking of himself, but of the work of redemption wrought out by the Redeemer, fie knew that he was saved, not through his efforts, or resolves, not even on account of faith, but because Jesus had put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. Said he to himself: "If God is satisfied with what Christ has done for me, I ought to be, and I am." With a glad, peaceful heart he went forward; and so may we.

COMING TO CHRIST.

Bible "Excepts," No. 3.

"No man can come to Me, except the Father... draw him" (John 6:44).

If that is so, why urge me to come to Jesus if I do not feel the drawing power of the Father? Why bother me about coming at all if all who are drawn do come? You see, I will come if I am drawn, for I won't be able to do anything else. And why should I be condemned for not coming if I am not drawn? Where does moral responsibility come in? And where would the justice of God come in if He punishes me for not doing what I could not possibly do?

These are by no means imaginary difficulties, put up simply for the sake of demolishing them: for ages souls have encountered and wrestled with these fears and doubts and difficulties, and many a sore combat have they had with these giants of imagination and reason.

We have often remarked that many spiritual spectres exist solely through lack of Bible knowledge, and through careless reading of the Holy Book. Here we have a striking proof of this failing. To all who are the victims of the doubts and views we have just expressed above, we would say, "Read on!" The text printed at the head of this paper was not the whole of our Lord's utterance at that time. Read John 6:45 : "It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God." In other words, God draws men through teaching! That at once simplifies matters. There is no mystery about that. God is seeking to draw men by the teaching of His Son, and of His gracious Spirit, through the sacred Scriptures, and the ministry of His redeemed ones. Thus it resolves itself into whether men will listen or not. In our Lord's discourse He had spoken of bread from Heaven which Jehovah would give, and they then asked for that wondrous Bread of which He spoke. He offered Himself as that Bread. But this offended them. How could He be that Bread from Heaven, seeing they knew (or imagined they did) all there was to know about Him! Our Lord's reply was not a defence of Himself, but a revelation of the reason of their blindness. In John 6:44 He declares man's utter helplessness; He then produced a prophecy from Isaiah, remarking that God was now teaching men, and seeking through that teaching to draw them. But that teaching of God was not done personally by Him, but through His Son who had seen the Father. The Jews were not to expect the Father would teach them personally, for none had seen the Father but His beloved Son; they must expect to be taught by His Word, and by His Spirit, and by His ministers.

"Draw," it is a beautiful term, denoting the secret work of Divine love upon hearts and minds of men. God loves to draw. And His method of drawing men by teaching is.

I. In Harmony with His Movements in Nature. The tides are caused by the drawing power of the moon; evaporation, and in consequence the fertilising shower, is the result of the drawing power of the sun; the growth and position of plants and trees and flowers depend upon the alluring and attracting power of the same sun; all nature proclaims that God loves to draw. As in nature, so in grace. Of course His method of drawing in grace differs from His method of drawing in nature. And that leads to our next thought, viz., that God's method of drawing men by teaching

II. Honours and Ennobles Man. If He draws by teaching, then it proves that man is not a block of wood or stone. A block of wood or stone cannot take in knowledge. But man is a rational creature, possessing amazing mental and moral powers and reasoning capabilities. This the Lord recognises in this method of drawing, and thus He honours and ennobles man. You have lost the key of a box or drawer-if you think little of the box or drawer you will prise it open; but if you value it you will not damage it by using force, but try the gentle art of persuasion or send for a locksmith. God will not force, but draw; not compel, but persuade; all out of respect to man.

Then again, this method of drawing men

III. Honours and Uplifts His Word. Archbishop Leighton said: "The outward means of drawing is by the Word; it is the sound of that harp that brings the stones of this spiritual building together." Building by music and melody? Yes; the music and melody of the Word. The Scriptures thus become the instrument and agent of the drawing of the Lord. What an honour is thus conferred upon the Word! This method of drawing men also

IV. Honours and Exalts the Son. The Ancients declared that their god Jupiter had a chain of gold which he could at any time let down from Heaven, and by it draw the earth and all its inhabitants to himself. Only a fable, yet it is true that our God, the only wise and true God, has a Golden Chain, the Lord Jesus Christ, which, in the fulness of time. He let down from Heaven to earth to draw His erring creatures to Himself, Did He not say of Himself: "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me." The lifting and drawing power of the Word of God is the story of the Cross it declares and proclaims. It is that, and only that, that wins men and women. This method of drawing men also

V. Honours and Glorifies God. We have said that the Lord draws by the Word, but it was He who caused all Holy Scripture to be written; we have also stated that He draws by His Son-but He gave His Son; we say that He appeals to intellect-but He gave man his reasoning faculties. There is only one conclusion possible, that God's method of drawing men and women through teaching honours and glorifies Himself.

All these facts impose a serious responsibility upon man. Bishop Hooper wrote: "God draweth with His Word, and the Holy Ghost, but man's duty is to hear and learn; that is to say, to receive the grace offered." "If a man cannot come without being drawn, and the drawing consists in being taught of God, we come to the root of the difficulty, when we raise the question: Why cannot men be taught of God? Why do they not receive His instruction? Plainly not for want of mental capacity. 'Ye will not come to Me that ye might have life,' tells the simple and the whole truth in the case. Learning comes before coming: but you have learned of Him-will you not come? Remember it is written: "Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out."

CONVERSION.

Bible "Excepts," No. 4.

"Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven" (Matthew 18:3).

After a long and dreary voyage, a ship, battered and torn by many a storm, was nearing home. Suddenly the captain discovered by the chart that the steersman was heading the vessel straight for some hidden rocks. What do you think he did? Set the men to the pumps, scrub the decks, tend the sails, or paint the woodwork? Verily no. Of course, these things are good and necessary enough in their place, but if the ship is to be saved the course must be changed, the helm must be altered.

We are all on the ocean of life, sailing one way or the other. If unconverted, then the frail barque of life is heading for destruction. This fact can be discovered by consulting the chart-the Book of Books, the Bible. If the course is wrong, what must be done? Try self-improvement, casting evil habits overboard, and cultivate the good? All this is right and proper in its place, but, if the soul is to be saved from shipwreck, the course must be altered-you must turn! That is precisely what the above text declares. Remember this, that if you do not turn, you will never reach the happy goal. Conversion is thus an absolute necessity.

"But I have tried to turn, and though succeeding for a while, I find I'm soon back again in the old way." That may be so; but it proves that you have not yet learned the all-important secret. If the helm will swing back into its original position, then there must be two at the wheel. That has to be done in many a storm at sea. One at the wheel cannot keep the vessel heading in the right direction. Ah, that is why so many fail in the spiritual voyage of life-they have never felt the need of the pierced Hand. And have never invited the Pilot to come on board! The fact is, a mere turning is not sufficient. There is what is called "Turning over a new leaf," but that is not conversion. The word "Convert" is a Latin word in English dress-"vert," to turn, "con," together; that is to say, a turning, not alone and unaided, but in company with another. Acts 3:26 illustrates beautifully this point. "God, having raised up His Son Jesus, sent Him to bless you in turning away every one of you from his iniquities." There is the truth of conversion-He will do the turning with your consent; He will put His hand on the helm of your life, and not only turn you into the right course, but keep you there, and that is the blessing needed. Like the prodigal, you are in a far country; unlike him, you are not left to find your way back to the Father alone, for the Lord Jesus is there, anxious to accompany you back. "Wilt thou go with this Man?" That is the all-important question. Look again at the text at the head of this page: "Except ye be converted." That signifies the work of another. And that Another is none other than the Lord. Henry Martyn declared that the conversion of a Hindu is a greater miracle than the raising of the dead. But then every conversion is a miracle, and a miracle the Lord alone can accomplish. Thus is clearly shown the true nature of conversion.

If converted, then the fact will be shown in many ways. A Chinese farmer, who spoke of his faith in Christ, was asked to give some real concrete proof of that conversion. After a moment's reflection, he said: "I believe I have a little proof. When I used to clear the stones off my fields, because it was more convenient, I just tossed them over into my neighbour's fields; but I don't do that now. I carry them and throw them into a gully or some other place, where they will not harm anybody." That was indeed a most convincing proof of conversion, and it would be well if more could give a similar testimony. Be that as it may, there will always be some convincing proof of the reality of conversion in all genuine believers. But pray notice that something else besides conversion is needed: "And become as little children." Our Lord not only speaks of the necessity of conversion, but also of childlikeness. May we not take this childlike spirit as one fruit of conversion? This was our Lord's reply concerning greatness in the Kingdom. There was nothing wrong in the mere asking of this question or the desire to get on; the error lay in the spirit which actuated the query. Our Lord's answer must have appeared to the questioners as a dash of cold water. Before you become concerned as to the greatness in the Kingdom, make sure first that you have entered into that Kingdom.

How strange our Lord's reply seems: to become great you must become little-in fact, you become great by becoming little. This must have startled His disciples. This was certainly the very first time that a teacher had ever dared to lift up such an ideal. But it is true. The motto of the kingdom of this world is to be found in Genesis 3:5; the motto of the Kingdom of Heaven is our text. To see them in their true light just put them together: "Ye shall be as gods." "Become as little children." Satan declared that the path to happiness and blessedness is by becoming great; the Lord said that the path not only to blessedness and happiness, but also to true greatness, is by becoming little. Which is true? You have only to look at the exponents of these two views to find in their lives and destiny the truth or falseness of their claims. The Lord was, and is, the greatest Preacher and pattern of humility, and Satan was, and is, the greatest preacher and pattern of pride. "The one great ambition of Satan was to become a god, and he became a devil; one of the supreme acts of the Son of God was to become a child, 'Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name.' So in our case. Seeking to become gods, men became devils; seeking to become as little children, they become Divine, the partakers of Divine nature." In cases of serious illness, how glad are we when the doctor can say, "He has got the change for the better." As the Great Physician considers your case, dear reader, can He say that you have had the change for the better? Have you been converted yet? If not, just put yourself into His hands, and He will pull you through.

SEEING AND BELIEVING.

Bible "Excepts," No. 5.

"Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe" (John 4:48). This does seem a strange way of treating a wealthy man who had travelled twenty-five miles to seek healing for his son! Fancy, hastening all that distance in an effort to secure the aid of the Healer, and then to meet with such a rebuff!

It was a nobleman that was in distress-the rich have afflictions as well as the poor; it was a boy who was sick unto death-illness is no respecter of persons, coming to young and old alike; it was a father in dead earnest about bringing the Saviour and his son into touch with one another. Oh, that all parents were as anxious and determined to do the same.

Yes, we must admit that there does seem a certain amount of severity in our Lord's reply. But there was a needs-be for such conduct. What was wrong with the nobleman? Some think the gentle Saviour was severe because He came to the Lord not for the Lord's sake, but for his son's sake, driven there by the strong constraint of an outward need, rather than drawn by the desire of the soul. No doubt there is a little truth in this explanation, yet it does not fully meet the difficulty. The satisfying answer is our Lord's anxiety to purify and strengthen faith. The rich man possessed faith in the Lord Jesus, but only a faith in His presence, and not in His Word; it was a faith which rested only on the miraculous. The Lord was seeking to show His pupil that His word was as effectual as His presence, and to lead him into the deep meaning of the Old Testament utterance, "He sent His Word and healed them." Thus our Lord's conduct was designed, not to extinguish that little spark of faith, but to blow it into a fierce flame; and the method adopted had the desired result.

"If God wants me to believe, why does He not put a sign in the sky?" That is how some speak and think. Our Lord's treatment of this nobleman is the answer. True faith is a matter of the heart, and not merely of the head; and real faith is called into being not by any miraculous sign but by the Word of the Lord. Besides, as a very eminent writer so forcibly points out: "If belief was to depend upon a visible sign in the sky, a standing miracle would have to be worked in each generation to give that generation a fair chance with the others-a supposition which is contrary to all of God's ways of working. It is, further, extremely doubtful whether such a sign would accomplish its object. 'If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead.' We can imagine without much effort, the brilliant article in the next magazine, which would prove that it was a comet; and even if the explanation did not satisfy the intellect, such a mere 'nine days' wonder' would have no effect upon the heart."

How precious then is faith in the estimation of the Lord, and what pains He takes to produce, purify, and strengthen it. That may be one explanation of many of His strange dealings with the sons of men. His great longing is to lead us deeper into the life of faith.

"But what is faith?" Strange that, though folk exercise faith every day of their lives, yet they are frequently making this inquiry. The first occurrence of the word "Believe" is in Genesis 15:6. Abraham "Believed in the Lord; and He counted it to him for righteousness." According to a competent authority, the word "believed" literally means "to steady oneself by leaning on something or someone." This gives a vivid illustration of what faith really is-"as a man lays his trembling hand on a staff, so we lay our weak and changeable selves on God's strength."

Pray notice (1) that true faith has God for its origin and object. "Abraham believed God." In John 6 the Lord calls it a "work of God," hinting at a deep thought that it is God who gives the true inclination of mind to trust. Then (2) notice that faith is an act and not a mere sentiment. It is not something that comes to a man apart from himself, and outside of himself, without reference to him. There is a very close connection between faith and the will. In the strictest sense of the word faith is the exercise of our most inmost nature-it is an effort of the will.

Three stages may be discerned in faith, for faith is a progressive act or series of acts. The first stage is a belief in Him, a mere acceptance of His revelation. But there is no saving element in it. It is possible for a person to have this kind of faith and yet be lost True faith is something more than this. It is imperative that the next stage be reached, viz., a belief on Him. This is where the saving element comes in. If I am weary and tired and believe that the chair is able to bear my weight, merely believing that will not rest me, I must believe on it, let it take my weight. And what then? There is a third stage, believing into the Lord. I may believe on a chair or staff, and be rested, but the chair and staff and I remain separated and distinct. Not so with Christ and the soul. Believing on Him will lead to believing into Him, becoming one with Him, united to him by ties of life and love. What a blessed union is this! Words cannot describe it fully. Let us pray:

"My faith looks up to Thee,

Thou Lamb of Calvary,

Saviour Divine."

EATING HIS FLESH.

Bible "Excepts," No. 6.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6:53).

"This marking is terribly one-sided-why, the most important text of all is not marked; may I mark it?" By special request, one day I called to see a blacksmith who had just returned from the London Brompton Hospital for Diseases of the Chest. I was delighted to find him deeply concerned about spiritual things, and anxiously inquiring his way to Zion, with his face thitherward. What had awakened him was a printed text of Scripture attached to a bouquet of flowers a Christian lady visitor had given him: "By grace are we saved. . . not of works." I found him ripe for the Lord, and soon had the joy of leading him to the Saviour. What a change could be at once noticed in him-he was rejoicing in a present and eternal salvation. Seeing that he had not a light and handy New Testament, and as all spiritual babes must have food I gave him a marked copy of the Book of books. A day or so after, I again called on him-but what a change! I had left him bright and rejoicing, but now he was sad and bewildered. On asking the reason for this change, he replied:

"Just after you left the other day, Sister--- (referring to a High Church worker) called. I told her you had just been and showed her my new treasure. Upon examining it, she exclaimed: This marking is terribly one-sided. Why, the most important text of all is not marked; may I mark it?' Of course I assented, and taking out her fountain pen she deeply underlined, 'Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you.' She then explained it to mean that unless I partook of the blessed sacrament I would not be saved. Now, which of you is correct?" No wonder the poor fellow was puzzled, and in doubt and distress. But I was soon able to satisfy him, and never again did he doubt his safe and secure standing in Christ through faith. On this lady's finding, we are meditating on "the most important text of all." As is well known, this sacramental view of the Lord's, Supper" is held tenaciously by adherents of both the Romish and High Church. According to their belief, everything depends upon the eating and drinking of the sacred elements. Suppose they are correct, see in what a most serious position they place themselves. If their view is the correct one, and this is to be understood literally, then all the Roman Catholic laity, and some High Church members, too, are lost, for only the priests drink the wine! This is a startling and sobering thought, but it is one all who view this Scripture statement sacramentally should seriously consider. Besides, how could our Lord mean the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, seeing it was not instituted till quite a year after this! No; this passage does not refer to the Lord's Supper at all.

What scattered the doubts and difficulties in the mind and heart of the blacksmith referred to, was a quotation from that devout and loyal churchman, Bishop Ryle; and it may not be out of place to give it here. He says: "Few passages have been so painfully wrested and perverted as this. The eating and drinking referred to here do not mean any literal eating and drinking. Above all, the words were not spoken with any reference to the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. It means that reception of Christ's sacrifice which takes place when a man believes on Christ crucified for salvation. It is an inward and spiritual act of the heart. . . whenever a man, feeling his own guilt and sinfulness, lays hold of Christ, and trusts in the atonement made for him by Christ's death, at once he eats the flesh of the Son of Man and drinks His blood. Faith in Christ's atonement is a thing of absolute necessity to salvation." A very poor and illiterate woman lay dying. She was so ill and weak that the doctor forbade visitors. But a ritualistic curate managed to make his way into the sick room. "You are very ill, Mrs.---, would you like to partake of the holy sacrament? You see you cannot be saved unless you do, for the words of our Lord in St. John 6:53 are sufficiently clear on that point. Besides, it will help you to die happy." The poor soul was almost too ill to speak or listen, but as she had given herself to the Lord a good while before this at a Mission Hall with which I was connected, she knew better. "I hope you will excuse me, sir. I am a very ignorant woman, and cannot tell where it is, but somewhere in the Bible it says, 'Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved,' and 'He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life,' and that's enough for me." Armed by the Word of God, she was more than a match for the astute' theologian, and he left her as a bad case. Oh, the importance of clinging to the Word of God in all its simplicity!

DRINKING HIS BLOOD.

Bible "Excepts" No. 7.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6:53).

These words formed part of our Lord's great discourse, following the miracle of feeding a multitude with but five barley loaves and two small fishes. There was a pause in our Lord's teaching, and the Jews, mystified with our Lord's remarks, took advantage of this pause to dispute among themselves. In answer to a fresh question, our Lord introduced a new statement, which we have in the Scripture at the head of this study. The figure is made repulsive on purpose, in order to provoke thought. It is sometimes difficult to make people think. But attention is at once arrested by some unusual remark. So in this case. The thought of drinking blood was more repulsive to the Jew than to us. He had a religious horror of touching or tasting anything in which blood was; in fact, they were forbidden to touch blood, much less drink it. This statement proved too much for many of His disciples (John 6:66) and they left Him. They made the blunder so many are making to-day, in taking what He said literally. What He meant was a spiritual eating and drinking. This they ought to have clearly seen. The fact that He said they had no life in them unless they did eat and drink should have shown them this. They had natural animal life, but no spiritual. Ralph Erskine once said: "Christ is the food of my life; I would die if He did not feed me with His flesh and blood." He well understood the meaning of our Master's words. Let us carefully trace the meaning and force of our Lord's strange statement.

I. Spiritual Life begins by Drinking in the Meaning of the Blood-Shedding. That was the comment of a Scotch minister on John 6:53, over one hundred years ago, and is suggestive. Drink, drink, drink again and again of the great ocean of truth connected with the Lord's atoning sacrifice. To hear some people talk one would think there was but a trickling stream of truth they had long ago exhausted. Ah, no; the ocean of blood-shedding truth is vast and deep, and we can never say the last word on that subject. If we keep on drinking in the meaning of the blood-shedding, we must also keep on eating-appropriating-the meaning of the broken body. Yes; oh, so true! Spiritual life does commence in the soul of man as soon he begins, by faith, to drink in the meaning of the blood-shedding.

II. Spiritual Life can only Come to Men through the Atoning Death. The figure used by our Lord is suggestive of a way into life only through death and sacrifice. His flesh and blood could only be available by death. Only by His vicarious sacrifice alone can eternal life be obtained. Bread can only become bread by crushing and the furnace, so that when our Lord likened Himself to bread He was in effect emphasising the necessity of His atoning death.

III. Spiritual Life can only be Received by a Definite Appropriation of Faith. This is implied in the figure of speech used, in the, reference to eating and drinking. These acts are definite and clear; and, moreover, they are simple. We do not wait until we understand all the mysteries of digestion before we satisfy the craving appetite; nor should we postpone acceptance of Christ until we are able to fathom the mysteries of redemption. No, no, even a child of tender years is able to eat and drink. Oh, how important is this thought! So many are postponing decision until they axe able to understand Divine things clearer. They fail to note that the mere natural man cannot understand the things of God, for they are only to be spiritual discerned. We beseech thee, friend, lay hold of Christ-stretch forth the hand of faith and take Him-eat and drink of Him, and all will be well.

IV. Spiritual Life can only be Sustained by Dwelling in His Presence. Drummond well says. "A person who abides in the presence of Jesus Christ in some mysterious way appropriates, unconsciously and unavoidably, the life and character of Jesus Christ, so that he is built up like Him." This is a fine thought.

Here is a true story I have read somewhere. A soldier was given up to die. On his parents being notified, his old father hastened from a long distance to his bedside in the hospital, carrying with him a bundle-handkerchief with something wrapped in it. The poor soldier lay half conscious, and nothing that father or attendants said could rouse him, until the father exclaimed: "Here is a loaf of your mother's bread which I have brought you." "Bread from home," said the dying man. "Bread from home! Give me some;" and from that hour he began to improve, to the surprise of all. Oh, dying soul, we have to offer you bread from home, bread from Heaven-Won't you say, "Give me some?" If you do, and you thus eat His flesh and drink His blood, life, Eternal Life, will be yours. THE NEW BIRTH.

Bible "Excepts," No. 8.

"Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3, John 3:5).

If one "except" and one "verily" be impressive, what shall we say of two "excepts" and four "verilys"? Thus our attention is drawn to something of tremendous importance. And truly this has to do with vital realities. In the third chapter of Genesis we read how man lost life; in the third chapter of John we discover how man can get it back again.

There is no narrative in the New Testament better known than, this, and yet none so misunderstood. Of course the doctrine it proclaims is misunderstood-indeed, unless one has experienced in their own lives the sublime truth it enunciates it cannot possibly be understood. But even the plain facts of the story are misunderstood. Poor Nicodemus could bring most of us up for libel. True, he came to Jesus by night, yet that does not make him a coward. Surely caution is not cowardice. Perhaps he came at night because he knew it was the only time he was sure to find Jesus at leisure for a quiet hour's talk. All who brand him a coward should remember that it was Passover time, and the bright Passover moon would be shining, making the streets almost as light as they would have been by day. The reply of our Lord to the greeting of Nicodemus is most significant, and ought to have our closest attention. The repetition of the words, "Verily, verily," amongst Jewish writers was considered of equal import with the most solemn oath. Here are some great lessons from our Lord's reply to Nicodemus.

I. It is not Mere Direction but Disposition, not Teaching but Life, that man Needs. "We know that Thou art a Teacher come from God." Nicodemus thought that all that Israel and the world required to elevate them was a teacher, and teaching, but our Lord's reply shattered that idea. The deepest need of man is not to know, but to be helped to do. It has been well said that the worst man knows more than the best man practises. It is life man needs, and this is his first need.

II. Until Man has this Position through the Gift of Life, he cannot Understand, much less Follow the Directions. Regeneration is essential to a true understanding of the things of God. Except a man be born again he cannot see."

III. Regeneration is a Universal Need. "Except a man," not a Jew or a Gentile. All need this stupendous change. And please note the nature of the change. In the Reptile House at the Zoo we notice the snakes at certain times of the year cast off their skin. Yet notwithstanding this change, they remain snakes. Men may change the form and habit of their lives without having a change within, and be a sinner still. Our Lord-insisted upon a radical change from within.

IV. Baptism with Water alone is Not Sufficient to Bring About this Great Change. "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit." The former was the only new birth the Rabbi knew anything of. Those converted to the Jewish faith were baptised, and were known as those who had been born again. Cranmer, in 1553, significantly wrote: "All that be washed with water, be not washed with the Holy Spirit." You have been baptised with water; have you been born of the Spirit?

V. The New Birth takes Place at the Cross. There are two "musts" in this chapter, both imperative. In John 3:7 we have the "must" for the sinner, and in John 3:14 the "must" for the Saviour. There is indeed a very close connection between Regeneration and the Atonement. The Cross of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is the true birthplace of the soul. As is well known, the greatest obstacle to the progress of the Gospel in India is the caste system. Individuals cannot marry, eat, or work only within their own caste. The Brahman is the highest caste. As a rule, there is no way of entering this caste. The Rajahs of Travancore belong to one of the lower castes, but that he might be admitted to the sacred caste, a most extraordinary ceremony has been invented. The cow throughout India is a sacred animal. To be born of a cow in a future state is considered a high honour and privilege. A golden cow, made of gold according to the weight of the Rajah is made; in it is put the five products of that animal (milk, curd, butter, urine, dung), and in this mixture His Highness bathes, remaining for the prescribed period, and when the ceremony has been performed the prince is regarded as being born again. One ceremony cost £25,000. What a vain attempt to invent a royal road to regeneration. Ah, there is only one way, and that is God's way. And that way is pointed out so clearly in John 1:11-12 : "As many as received Him, to them gave He the power to become the sons of God." Thus regeneration follows, and is the result of a definite acceptance of the Lord Jesus as Saviour and Lord. Will not you receive Him here and now!

FRUITFULNESS.

Bible "Excepts." No. 9.

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit" (John 12:24). All nature each Autumn sounds a loud Amen to the declaration of the sweet singer of Israel-"Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness." The fields, orchards, and gardens are laden with fruit. The Lord's crown of goodness then lies gloriously heavy on the brow of nature. The fruit, and much fruit, gladden both the heart of God and man. But in the rejoicing of the "harvest home" let us not forget the important "except" of fruitfulness. One of the most familiar facts in nature is that, in plants and seeds, life comes by death. The principal event which renders the seed corn valuable to man is its death. There could not possibly have been fields laden with golden grain had there not previously taken place in secret a great surrender, and a dying to self. This is a great principal in the moral as well as in the natural realm.

"And there were certain Greeks among them." I wonder if they had been amongst those who had welcomed Jesus as King of Jerusalem? If so, they were not satisfied by admiring the Lord Jesus, but longed to come into a more personal knowledge of Him. Would that all the Lord's admirers would do likewise! There are so many who imagine that the good opinions they entertain of the King of Glory will prove a sufficient passport to eternal bliss. What a vain hope is this! No, No, nothing can take the place of personal faith and vital contact with the Lord Himself. Let all mere admirers pray, "We would see Jesus."

Why these Greeks should seek Philip's mediation we know not. We do notice that Philip's name is more purely Greek than any of the other disciples. Does not this indicate that probably he had Greek relatives and connections? "Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus." How blessed it is when Christian brethren unite in bringing others to the Lord Jesus.

Undoubtedly the Lord had Himself in mind when He gave expression to this great fact of nature. Their request was as a narrow window through which Jesus' yearning spirit saw a great expanse, nothing less than the coming to Him of myriads of Gentiles, the "much" fruit of which He speaks. But before that could take place death on the Cross must be His.

There are several words in this verse pregnant with meaning. "It abideth alone." Here we have one reason why the Lord came down to be a man and die-He could not bear to be alone in the glory, alone with the Father and the holy angels. Without the sons of men, He felt He would be alone. And He desired us to share His glory. Oh, verily this is the language of love!

"Except a corn of wheat fall." Ah, that is a familiar word, is it not? Man has fallen, and to lift him up the Corn of Wheat, the Lord Himself, must fall, die and fall into the ground.

"And die." Man died at Eden. The Son of Man must die to give man life. Here is the great fundamental principle of the Gospel. Christ's death was and is the source of spiritual life of the world. He fell to the ground in His incarnation, and seemed buried alive in the world, so much was His glory veiled. He died; this immortal Seed submitted to the laws of mortality. And He lay in the grave like the seed under the clods. But He arose; and from His Cross and Passion sprang up a mighty harvest of benefit to mankind. The first fruits were seen at His resurrection. "Christ died alone; He arose again with many," so wrote the venerable Bede. But there is an important lesson here for all who have received life through that atoning death. What was true in respect to the Saviour is equally true respecting His own dear children. If we are to be fruitful in life and service we, too, must die to self as well as to sin. One has very forcibly pointed out that the key to the application of the words of the Saviour is the Greek present. "For five centuries the Greeks had marched at the head of humanity. The whole world gathered round the torch of Greek genius. Yet they failed to regenerate society. Why? Their master words were self-culture and self-enjoyment. This was, according to the Greeks, the chief good of human life, the supreme aim. The gods of Olympus were represented as beings who lived only to enjoy themselves. When they came to earth they came only for the sake of pleasant adventure, or selfish amusement, caring nothing for the sorrows and sins of humanity. And the character of the gods was reflected in the worshippers. But Christ calls upon them to substitute self-oblation for self-culture, self-sacrifice, for self-gratification. In other words, He asks them to reverse the whole bent of their thought and conduct." How startled they must have been when they heard this great principle enunciated. They were well aware of its force in nature, but they never dreamt it ought to be applied to their own lives. We now know differently. But do we act up to our knowledge? Remember, if we live for self we live in vain.

SUFFERING.

Bible "Excepts." No. 10.

"And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom He hath chosen, He hath shortened the days" (Mark 13:20). That is to say, however dark the days might be, and however heavy the weight of sorrow pressing upon us and the bitterness of the cup of suffering we are drinking, things not only might be, but would be, worse, were it not for the controlling hand of an almighty and loving Heavenly Father. God's people are always the special object of His care. "But for the elect's sake"-"but for the sake of God's own people those days will be cut short" (Weymouth Version). Ah, yes! there is always an "except" in suffering. There is a Hand on the affairs of this world, controlling the events of life, working, scheming, and planning on behalf of His people. The Lord's own are never left to the mercy of the enemy of souls, or to circumstances. The days of darkness and of sorrow have been shortened for our sakes. This will be actually the experience of all who will be called to pass through the awful Tribulation days; it is the present-day experience of all the Lord's own, for it is through much tribulation we enter the kingdom. Let us illustrate this from real life.

Bending over the suffering man of God, just then in the grip of a paroxysm of pain, the doctor, though inured to the sight of suffering, was strangely moved, and exclaimed, "Surely Hell cannot be worse than what you are suffering!" "There is no wrath in this," was the calm reply of the suffering one. Splendid! Not only did the sick one recognise that, through Christ, he had been saved from the wrath to come, but he was assured that for some all-wise purpose the Lord had permitted the affliction. He kissed the Hand that was smiting him. He did not rack his soul by questions of, "What have I done that I should suffer like this?" and the like. He rested on the fact that there was love and not wrath in his cup of suffering. Here was the "except." A worker had just lost his only daughter, a sweet, winsome maid of seventeen summers, the very light of his eyes. Only a wee while before the mother, too, had passed away to the Home beyond. Desiring to speak a word of comfort, a fellow-worker remarked to the bereaved one: "My brother, you have indeed been called to pass under a heavy cloud, and to drink a bitter cup of suffering." "Thank you for your sympathy," was the reply; "there is suffering-true; but, thank God, there is no cloud." Praise the Lord! This is what grace does. There was an "except" in that sorrow: suffering, but no cloud. There was a blessed consciousness of the Master's presence in the valley of suffering, so much so that he could say:

"Days of darkness still come o'er me;-

Sorrow's paths I often tread;

But the Saviour still is with me.

By His hand I'm safely led." The street in which the house stood was temporarily softened to secure quiet, and the sick room was darkened. Bending over the patient, the visitor asked: "What do you do when the paroxysm is coming on?" The reply was: "I abandon myself to pain and-to Christ."

Why that suffering was allowed was a mystery. But there was an "Except" in it, for it is written: "In all their afflictions He was afflicted, and the angel of His Presence saved them;" and again, "I, the Lord thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee."

It was indeed a bewildering case. After a lifetime of holy and devoted service for God and the people, to be cut down by cancer! and the hearts of many were filled with strange questionings. But not so the sufferer-she was calm and quiet in soul and buoyant in spirit, and to visit her was a real means of grace. Someone had sent her a leaflet, and she handed it to me, assuring me it was indeed her own experience. It was called "Pillows of Comfort," and was as follows: "An aged sufferer dying from cancer, had been made more comfortable by three pillows being placed under his head. A friend, calling and inquiring, 'How are you to-day?' he replied, 'Very comfortable indeed. See! I lie on three pillows. They remind me of three pillows on which my soul is resting.' Putting his hand on the undermost one, he said, 'This is the pillow of God's Infinite Wisdom; the second is the pillow of God's Infinite Power; and the third and top one is the pillow of God's Infinite Love.'" What a glorious "Except" this was in the valley of sorrow and suffering.

He was an out-and-out Christian, and an enthusiastic worker, delighting in deeds of love and mercy, but consumption had laid him low. There he lay upon his bed, weak in body, and though generally bright and cheerful to-day he had a drooping and disconsolate spirit. "You see, it's just like this," said he, "here I am, though quite a young man, yet, so far as service for God is concerned, just a useless log. It does seem hard that I should be denied the privilege of serving God, and doing something for the One Who has done, and is doing, so much for me." And this was spoken in such a mournful tone. "But, my friend, you, and all who make similar laments, are making a great mistake," I replied. "True, you are shut in by your illness, but, thank God, not shut out from service. The fact is, we must reconsider and reconstruct our conceptions of what constitutes true service. Have you not heard Milton's famous lines concerning service, 'Those also serve who only stand and wait.' How true this is! A servant serves her mistress just as much when silently standing in her presence awaiting her pleasure as when bustling about the house. She also serves though she only stands and waits. The time has been when you were able to hurry here and there in happy service for your King; but now He is bidding you to quieter service. Have you not heard of the talent of silence? In past days you exercised other talents; now He is calling you to trade with this. It is now your inexpressible privilege to wait upon your God in a happy, listening silence. Then another branch of service is open to you. In Luke 2:37, we read of one who, though of a great age, and consequently unable to buzz about in "busy service, yet 'served God with fastings and prayers night and day.' Perhaps you never thought that praying for others was real and valued service, yet such is indeed the case." Ah! this sad soul found there was an "Except" in his cup of suffering, and, though he had to spend his days lying on his back, discovered that he, too, could render important service.

DEPENDENCE.

Bible "Excepts," No. 11.

"Thou couldest have no power at all... except it were given thee from above" (John 19:11). A retired merchant, who formerly lived in Southport, hit upon an ingenious plan of keeping himself humble and ever in remembrance of his indebtedness to, and dependence upon God. Amongst the many elaborately furnished rooms in his costly mansion was one furnished in simple style-sanded floor, old fashioned hearth-rug, settle, fender, and chairs-just a copy of the humble cottage home he first had when he began married life as a labourer. In this room he frequently sat just to remind himself of his once lowly position, and to keep himself humble and lowly before the Lord, Who had so wondrously blessed his commercial labours with such conspicuous success.

We all need to be kept lowly respecting our mental, physical, and spiritual attainments. It is good for the Lord's people to frequently sit before Him, and recall to mind their once loathsome and degraded condition, giving all glory to the One Who alone has made them different to others. It would be well if we, as a nation, would sit in reflective mood; and, remembering our once uncivilised and degraded condition, and how, through the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and all its attendant blessings, we have so been lifted up that now we form an empire on which the sun never sets, and have also become one of the dominant nations of the world and then give all the glory to Him. The study of national history is one method of cultivating the humble and lowly spirit. Think for a moment of the prevalent popular watchword in connection with the late lamentable war, viz., that all we required for the successful prosecution of the war were men, money, and munitions. As we saw this placard everywhere, we asked ourselves the question, "What about God? Is He not needed?" Oh, in our eagerness after the material forces required by our beloved King and country for the successful completion of the war, we were in grave danger of forgetting the one real essential-God, GOD.

Pilate boastfully spoke to our Lord of his power and might, when the Master broke silence by a sudden flash of bold rebuke to remind the proud and arrogant Roman governor, and all his tribe in all lands and all ages, of man's utter dependence upon God. "Thou couldest have no power at all against Me except it were given thee from above." And it seems as if this bold reminder that all power is derived from God, and that its exercise should be guarded and guided by His will and used for His purpose, sobered and somewhat subdued the haughty Roman. Ah, it does not do to forget this "Except" of dependence upon the Lord! Are you, in the enjoyment of physical power, revelling in bodily health and vigour? Pray remember it was God Who gave you your being and Who sustains you in health daily. The very breath you breathe is a gift from Him. One gentle snap of the silver cord by that Divine Hand and you cease to live. Pray forget not that thou couldest have no bodily strength and vigour at all except it were given thee from above.

Perhaps you possess great mental powers, and have, or are, acquiring vast stores of knowledge hidden to others. Problems that baffle those of lesser mental calibre form no difficulty to you. Whence has come these great receptive powers? Here is the Divine declaration to you through His Word: Thou couldest have no mental power except it were given thee from above. Surely you will bow before Him in humble acknowledgment of this fact?

Maybe you hold some position of trust and responsibility, having others under you; you may be either a manager, magistrate, or ruler of some sort, or an employer of labour. Pray, what think you, is the meaning of this Scripture: "Promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south." Then where does it come from? "From above." Thou couldest have no governmental power except it were given thee from above. It was the Lord Who raised you to your present position. This is applicable to the Lord's people. Perhaps you are a Christian and rejoice in the fact that you are not living in the shallows as so many are, but that you are living the deeper life, and possess a knowledge of the Word and of Divine things hidden to many. Give Him the glory. To sum up: Success, promotion, knowledge, authority, growth of influence, are all gifts which God keeps entirely in His own keeping. Have you recognised that "every good gift, and every perfect gift is from above?"

DELIVERANCE.

Bible "Excepts," No. 12.

"How can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house" (Matthew 12:29). As my Aunt Matilda Jane said when the doctor told her she had a nasal catarrh: "It is a common cold in the head, and I haven't sent for you to christen it, but to cure it." In the moral and spiritual world there is far too much christening and too little curing. Of course the christening is all right and good in its place. A satisfactory christening is really the first step to curing. A doctor cannot prescribe for a patient until he has made a right diagnosis. But it is quite one thing to christen, and another thing to cure, as thousands sorrowfully know. In dealing with the sins and ills of mankind, our adorable Lord makes at the same time a perfect diagnosis, and proposes to make a perfect cure. In this "Except" we have a clear illustration of this. The trouble with the unregenerate is that the mighty evil one is strongly entrenched in the citadel of the natural heart, and the only hope is in the coming of a stronger than he to put him to flight. That One has come, and is ready to deliver all who come to Him in repentance and faith. This "Except" is really a simple little parable. Here is a house or palace tenanted by a strong man armed; before possession can be secured, and his goods cleared out, the strong man must first be overcome and expelled. A poor man, blind and dumb, was brought to the Lord Jesus. He was in this deplorable state through demon possession. The Lord cast the evil one out and the dumb spake. Our Lord's enemies had to admit that a miracle had indeed taken place, but they tried to explain it away by an absurd and preposterous statement. In reply, our Lord pointed out the folly of division (Matthew 12:25), how unlikely that Satan would blunder thus (Matthew 12:26), and that, instead of co-operating with sinners, he was arrayed against them (Matthew 12:29). Our Lord's heart overflows in pity for these reckless slanderers who made so hideous a charge, and He warns them that they are coming near the edge of a precipice-that their blindness is hurrying them towards a sin which hath never forgiveness (Matthew 12:31). In this declaration our Lord throws a dim light into the dark world of supernatural evil, and by thus lifting the curtain a little we see the dark beings at work. The strong man is Satan; the stronger than he the Lord Himself; the house, both this world and also the unregenerate heart.

I. The World is the Strong Man's House. We usually say that Satan resides in Hell; by Ephesians 6:11-12, we see that the earth and the air form his present abode. Satan got possession of this world at Adam's fall. In Adam's fall Satan gained the crown God had placed on Adam's brow. And our Lord did not deny the usurper's claim to have the right to give all the kingdoms of the world (see Luke 4:5-8). How can he be ejected? Our "Except" is the answer. Satan suffered an awful defeat at the Cross (John 12:31). The sentence upon the enemy has been pronounced and made known, and by and by, when the Lord Jesus comes again, will be executed. The final victory is certain. The Stronger is coming again, and will bind and expel him (see Rev. 20). May that day be hastened!

II. The Human Heart is the Strong Man's House. In our "Except" we have a solemn view of the condition of unredeemed man. The sinful soul is a palace, though in ruins (Luke 11:21). Mankind through sin has become the very home and dwelling place of Satan. Why, the presence of his goods proclaim the fact of his presence. Have you ever pondered over 1 John 5:17, R.V.: "The whole world lieth in the evil one." The word "in" is the same word used elsewhere of Christians when they are said to be "In Christ." Just as the Christian is united to Christ, so the natural man is united and possessed by Satan. Then note the word "lieth." It could be rendered "lieth asleep." It is a condition of unconsciousness. The saved ones are in the Lord's everlasting arms, whilst the great mass of unsaved humanity is in the arms of Satan, lulled to a false sense of security. Is not Ephesians 2:1-2 very impressive: "The spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience?" "Thus Satan imparts his wisdom and strength to the unbelieving in the same manner as the power of God is imparted to the believer by the Holy Spirit. This impartation of energising power from Satan is not toward a limited few who might be said, because of some strange conduct, to be possessed of a demon; but is the common condition of all who are yet unsaved."

DELIVERED IN THREE TENSES. In a prayer meeting one with fervour prayed: "Lord, make us grammatical Christians!" when he really meant "genuine." No sooner was this petition presented than another prayed: "O God, Thou hast blessed us in the past tense; Thou art doing us good in the present tense, and in the future tense Thou wilt save us to the end." All who really trust the Lord Jesus become "grammatical" Christians by being saved in three tenses.

I. Threefold Deliverance in Relation to sin.

1. Our Past. Deliverance from guilt of sin, through Christ's atoning death.

2. Our Present. Deliverance from power of sin, through His intercessory life in the Glory.

3. Our Future. Deliverance from the presence of sin, when He comes for us.

II. Threefold Deliverance in Relation to Trouble.

As Paul, so are we, often in trouble of various kinds. Yet He delivers in all three tenses. The Great Salvation.

SAVED WITH DIFFICULTY.

"And if the righteous scarcely (with difficulty) be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear" (1 Peter 4:18).

It has been thought that, as Peter wrote his first epistle ten years before the destruction of Jerusalem, the above was a prophecy. We do know that when Cestus Gallus came against that city, many of the Lord's people were shut in it; when strangely he raised the siege for a little while, the Christians immediately departed to Pella, in the dominion of King Agrippa, an ally of Rome, and there they were in safety. They had barely time to leave the city when the Roman army returned under the command of Titus, and never left the place till they had destroyed the temple, razed the city to the ground, and slew upwards of a million of its wretched inhabitants. This may be so, yet we are quite sure that the verse has a much deeper application than the one just referred to. It has a reference to the subject of salvation, and points out that we are saved with difficulty.

"Scarcely" does not mean that there is the least degree of uncertainty about our salvation. The believer's salvation is assured in Christ; he is in present enjoyment of salvation, and is as sure of reaching the home beyond as if he was already there. Neither does it mean that though our ultimate salvation is assured, we shall just to say get there, as a shipwrecked mariner scarcely gains the shore on a plank. No doubt that will be the character of the home-going of many, but it is not God's ideal for us. Read 2 Peter 1:11. He desires that we should have an abundant entrance-to go sweeping through the gate, not crawling through. As one has well said, if there are any back seats in Heaven, they were all taken up long, long ago. The word "scarcely" really means "with difficulty." That is the rendering in the Scofield Bible. "If a good man is only saved with difficulty" (20th Cent.). "And if it is difficult even for a righteous man to be saved" (Weymouth version). The word "scarcely" is used in Acts 14:18 and Acts 27:7 in the sense of something only done with difficulty. And there are three difficulties we may mention.

I. Attributes. God had a difficulty about our salvation with Himself, on account of His attributes. In the Lord's parable of the wicked husbandmen there is a single sentence pregnant with meaning: "What shall I do?" Here God is portrayed as in a dilemma. We often speak of the simple plan of salvation, and thank God, it is simple and plain. But there is a danger of thinking slightingly of it on that account, a danger of forgetting in the thought of the simplicity the difficulty of salvation. Simple things often cost a great deal. It takes a genius to produce a simple commodity that becomes a boon and blessing to mankind. The simple plan of salvation was only wrought out after much trouble. The difficulty lay within Himself. He had no difficulty in loving us, neither had He any difficulty in inducing Himself to lay bare His arm on our behalf. The trouble lay with His attributes, particularly those of Mercy and Truth. Mercy clamoured for man's salvation, whilst Truth and Justice demanded man's condemnation. In Psalms 85:10 we are told of the meeting of Mercy and Truth: "Mercy and Truth are met together, righteousness and peace have kissed each other." This is a prophecy that was fulfilled at the Cross. In the parable we have already referred to, that of the Wicked Husbandmen, the problem was solved by the sending of the Son. Oh, the wisdom of God! Well might Paul in Ephesians 1:7-8, magnify the prudence of the Lord in the evolving of the scheme of redemption. So wise and prudent has He been in solving this great difficulty that Heaven marvels and Hell quakes. Even the Devil cannot find a flaw in the Divine programme of redemption. Every Divine attribute is now at work for man's salvation.

II. Stubbornness. God solved the great difficulty concerning His attributes, only to be confronted by another, the difficulty with the unrighteous owing to their stubbornness. He desires the salvation of man, but man, left to himself, desires it not, though in desperate need of it. And pray remember our Lord's delicacy. He never forced Himself upon any man. "About the fourth watch of the night He cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, and would have passed by them" (Mark 6:48). "And they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went, and He made as though He would have gone further" (Luke 24:28). Yes, He would not force Himself upon them, but waited their invitation. But the difficulty with man's stubbornness He has solved in the case of multitudes to-day, thank God. By His Holy Spirit and by His mighty Word, and by His servants, He lays siege to the city of Mansoul. Have you surrendered yet to His love?

III. Waywardness. God has also a difficulty with the righteous, owing to their waywardness. If the stubbornness of the unrighteous presents a formidable difficulty to the Lord, what shall we say of the difficulty owing to the waywardness of the Lord's own saved people? Lot vexed his righteous soul through living in Sodom, but was also a sore trial to his Lord, and only with difficulty could be rescued from the doomed city. And what a trouble the Lord had with wayward Peter: and what a lot of trouble He has with all of us, too. The statement in the Scripture at the head of this article settles, once for all, the question of salvation beyond this life. If God finds the salvation of the individual so difficult a matter now, with the Holy Spirit's co-operation, and the aid of the Holy Book and good men, what hope can there be of salvation in Hell, where there are none of these aids?

SAVED THROUGH FAITH.

"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). "Because thou hast seen Me thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (John 20:29).

How often the words of Mrs. Luke's children's hymn, "I think when I read that sweet story of old," are on our minds and hearts, Especially have we lingered on the sentence:

"I wish that His hands had been placed on my head.

That His arms had been thrown around me;

And that I might have seen His kind look when He said,

'Let the little ones come unto me.'"

Under the influence of the thought that the contemporaries of the Man, Jesus Christ, were more fortunate in seeing and hearing Him than we of the present day, with a sigh of regret, feeling that though the highest blessedness cannot be ours, the second-best may be, we say:

"Yet still to His footstool in prayer I may go.

And ask for a share in His love." But are we right? Listen to the Lord's own declaration: "Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." This surely demolishes the common and prevailing notion. Christ counted all those then living who had not seen Him and yet had believed as more blessed than the others who believed because they had seen. Thomas saw and was blessed, for every one who believes is blessed. Yet this was not the supreme blessedness. The highest blessedness of all is reserved for those who cannot see Him with the eyes of flesh. And for reasons we shall presently notice.

Before considering the nature of the blessedness, shall we not put in a good word for Thomas, for surely he has been hardly dealt with. His name is now synonymous for doubt and for unbelief. Pray, remember, that when he said, "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into His side, I will not believe," he was only asking for the same evidence the others had received. They had seen the Lord and the tragic marks of His passion, and believed, and he desired the same evidence. Instead of scolding him, we ought to pity him. By absenting himself from the gathering of disciples, he missed the sight of the Lord: and, unable to accept their testimony, for eight days he was sad and sorrowful whilst the others were rejoicing. Sometimes we wonder what had kept him away from that gathering. Being of a pessimistic turn of mind, perhaps he was away nursing his grief and disappointment over the capture and death of the Lord. What a mistake is this! Yet how many absent themselves from the meeting for prayer or worship for the very same reason. It is well to notice that he did not get relief from his crushing sorrow until he gathered together with his fellow-believers. Irregular attenders at the house of prayer-listen! Christ did not appear to Thomas until he was in the company of his fellow-disciples! We must attend the place of assembly even when we feel least inclined to do; and most certainly we shall not return to our homes empty, for the Lord will meet with us and speak the comforting and delivering word.

This incident is of great dispensational interest. For Israel, as a nation, stands now precisely where Thomas stood. Though many Gentiles and individual Jews have believed and are believing in Him Whom they have not seen; yet Israel, as a nation, Thomas-like, will only believe when they see. This is the teaching of Zechariah 12:10-14 and Revelation 1:7. But theirs will not be the highest blessedness. That is ours. Those who see not, yet believe, are most blessed, because 1. Their faith is the real and genuine article. A faith which exists by seeing is not of the most robust nature.

2. It is a faith which honours Christ, because it is satisfied with the evidence of His resurrection and being which He counts as quite sufficient.

3. It is a faith which honours the Word. We sometimes say that the world hangs upon nothing. True. And yet it is better to say that the world hangs upon the "Word of God, for "He upholdeth all things by the Word of His power" (Hebrews 1:3).

4. It is a faith which leads to sight, to spiritual vision. Thomas considered sight as an aid to faith; he was mistaken, for faith is an aid to sight. Some speak of "a blind faith," but this is wrong, for real genuine faith has eyes to see, hands to grapple with, and feet to run by. How suggestive are the words of the Psalmist: "I had fainted unless I had believed to see." Seeing is not believing. The believer sees more on his knees than the non-believer of keenest intellect can discern by standing on tiptoe.

5. It is by faith which leads to the blessed state of justification and salvation.

SAVED BY GAZING.

"And it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live" (Numbers 21:8).

Life for a look. True; but what kind of a look? Remember, sight is a gift, but seeing is an art. There is a great difference between a glance and a gaze. Your attention is drawn to something in which you have no interest; you look and turning away, immediately forget what you have seen. That was a mere glance. You are walking in a picture gallery. A friend draws your attention to some notable work of art. You glance at it, then taking a seat, gaze upon it, and your gaze discovers what is entirely hidden to a mere glance. The bitten Israelite received life not for a glance, but for a gaze. According to Dr. Young, the word in the original translated "beheld" in 1 Peter 4:9, is very strong and definite, and could be rendered "when he beheld attentively." No; the Lord has promised life not merely for, but in a look. This Dr. Watts recognised. When did he say the Cross became wondrous to him, and for which he counted gains of losses? When he had surveyed it.

"When I survey the wondrous Cross

On which the Prince of Glory died."

You know what it is to survey. You have seen men with measuring lines and rods, and delicate instruments on tripods, measuring and surveying every inch of the ground, and noting every hill and dale. Have you ever surveyed the Cross? You have, of course, given it a passing thought; but have you ever, after reading the account of our Lord's passion recorded by the four evangelists, closed the book, and shutting your eyes, given one hour to gazing at it with the eyes of the mind? If so then let me tell you what first happens-you will be bitten, for

I.There is a Bite for a Gaze, the bite of an awakened conscience. In the case of the Israelites, only bitten ones looked; in our case, we are bitten by looking, bitten by an awakened conscience, by the Word of God, and by the Spirit of God. It is at the Cross all true penitence begins. It is when we see the goodness of God as revealed in the Cross, that we are led to genuine repentance. It is strange but true, that we need, for our soul's awakening, to see our sins, not in ourselves, but in another. Let us illustrate. Here is a young man, who has never realised his sins though he has often suffered from them, and has often been reprimanded by his parents. But one day, whilst sitting at the fireside, he notices a look in his mother's face, sees the lines of care about the mouth and brow, and the truth flashes upon him: That is what my sin has done; she is suffering because of my sin. And his heart is broken. Have you ever asked why He went to the Cross? Not for His own sin; not because He could not avoid that bitter experience. Gazing at that marred visage, has not the truth flashed into your mind: "That is what my sin has done." It is as we gaze at the Cross that a sword pierces our very soul, and we know for the first time what is true penitence.

II. There is also a Death for a Gaze. We sometimes say, "He died that we might live." Quite correct. Yet it is equally true to say that He died that we might die. It is finely expressed in that verse:

"Once I was dead in sin, and hope within me died; But now I'm dead to sin, with Jesus crucified."

Cowper wrote a haunting sentence: "The Cross once seen is death to every vice." The young fellow referred to who saw what his sin was doing in his loved mother would surely have done with sin. Repentance is not mere sorrow for sin, but being sorry enough to quit it. It is at the Cross we loathe our sins and turn from them to God.

III. There is Life for a Gaze. "And it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live." It did come to pass in the experience of multitudes that day; and it still comes to pass in the experience of all who similarly look to the Cross to-day, for our Lord claims this as a picture of the salvation we find in Him. Looking is the simplest thing in the world. Almost all knowledge comes through looking. We look at the physical world, and are taught what nature has to teach; we look at books, and learn what printing has to teach us; we look at the Cross, and by gazing upon it there is life, life eternal. Therefore we are bidden to do what all can easily do.

"There is life for a look at the Crucified One,

There is life at this moment for thee;

Then look, sinner, look unto Him and be saved,

Unto Him who was nailed to the tree.

Look! Look! Look and live!

There is life for a look at the Crucified One,

There is life at this moment for thee."

SAVED AND JUSTIFIED.

"Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness" (Romans 4:3). "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31).

A large tenement house was on fire some years ago. It was thought that all had been saved, when, to the horror of the rescuers and spectators, two children appeared at the topmost window. The staircase was a roaring furnace, and all means of egress was thus cut off. What could be done? Quickly strong men got hold of a stout blanket, and holding it taut to break their fall, shouted to the children to jump. But all that the bairns did was to look out with frightened eyes. Meanwhile the fire was hissing and roaring, and leaping from floor to floor, until it seemed to clasp the entire fabric in its fiery embrace. "Jump! Jump!! Jump!!!" yelled the people until they were hoarse, but all to no purpose. Just then a man came round the corner. In a moment he took in the whole situation. Stepping quickly forward he cried, "Jump!" and the children instantly obeyed, and they were saved. Going up to him, the would-be rescuers asked how it was that the children had jumped directly he gave the command, whilst all their entreaties were useless. "I'm their father," he said.

What was it that saved the children? Blankets? Hardly. Obedience? Not altogether. It was faith in their father that led them to trust his word. It was through faith they were saved. Believing in their father they were enabled to believe on him. The faith that saves is the faith that believes on and not merely in: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." In the Gospel specially written in order that men might believe, viz., John, in the R.V. in every instance but one (John 14:1) the confidence we are exhorted to place in Him is faith on Him. Many say they believe in the Lord Jesus, but they have never yet believed on Him. This is the one vital step.

How subtle is the enemy. In the biography of Dr. Andrew Bonar, is this confession: "I resolved to enter upon the study of Divinity. My chief motive was the indistinct hope and belief that thereby I should be more likely to find salvation." He soon found out his mistake and saw that faith was necessary. He was then tempted to trust his own faith. "He showed me I was resting my hope upon my belief, not upon the Object of that belief, and not drawing joy from that Object."

"That whosoever believeth, may in Him have eternal life" (John 3:16, R V.). I have sometimes been inclined to think that faith is greater than love. Love is sometimes given to the unworthy, but that is never true of trust. As soon as trust finds that it has been misplaced it dies. The prodigal son or daughter is loved by the suffering parents though they may not be able to trust them. But 1 Corinthians 13:13 is decisive. Yet faith has the precedence. An Irish class leader, in the middle of last century, called three times on a poor woman, and on his third visit she said: "Oh, sir, I do not love God." "What have you to do with loving God," he replied. "He requires it not in your present state, but to fear Him. How can you love until you apprehend His love to you? This you cannot do until you believe. It is folly to think of loving God before you obtain pardon and get the virtue of the covenant blood to wash away sin." She said: "Sir, I never understood it before." Like many others, she thought it was necessary to love God before she could trust Him; whereas faith must precede love to God. Have you ever noticed the value of the conjunction "and" in relation to faith. The first blessed result of faith is shuddering. "The devils also believe and (literally) shudder" (James 2:19). Salvation begins with a shudder. When the sinner trembles at the thought of personal sin and uncleanness, and the goodness and holiness of outraged Deity, there is great hope. The Second blessed result of faith is justification. Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness" (Romans 4:3). The third blessed result of faith is salvation. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Many have a difficulty about faith. So had Frank Crossley, that great engineer and philanthropist, of Manchester. A great sorrow led him to pray, and, says his biographer, "through the praying there came believing." And soon he was rejoicing in the Saviour.

SAVED BY HOPE.

"For we are saved by hope" (Romans 8:24).

Is this correct? I thought we were saved by faith! To say the least, one cannot help being startled when first this statement is read and noticed. What a man Paul was for gripping the attention of his hearers and readers! There is nothing commonplace in his writings. And it is good thus to have our attention arrested, and our thoughts gripped. Remember, this is the statement of one to whom the doctrine of Justification by Faith was no mere doctrine, but a blessed personal experience. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," was his word to the Philippian jailer. Salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus was so preached by the apostle that none have ever excelled him. Not only is this a statement by one loyal to the Doctrine of Justification by Faith, but it is a message to those already in a justified state, as its position in the Epistle indicates. Thus are we introduced by St. Paul to the sweet and loving ministry of hope. Hope is the great lever that lifts the world. Rob a person of hope, and at once you paralyse the mainspring of action. Let us definitely hope. Hope has to do with the unseen future. It is a God-given assurance concerning the future. "Faith appropriates, but hope anticipates; faith looks backward and upward; hope looks onward. Faith accepts, but hope expects." Hope has been called "the balm and lifeblood of the soul," so vital is it. The various renderings give three tenses. "For we are saved by hope" (A.V.). "For by hope we were saved" (R.V.). "It is in hope that we have been saved" (Wey.). "For our salvation lies in hope" (C. & H). "In this hope we were saved" (20th Cent.). Thus we have the three tenses, past, present, and future. All are right, though what harmonises with the context is the ministry of hope concerning the future.

I. What Hope has Done in the Past. "For by hope were we saved." Hope has a very great deal to do in our salvation. The apostle does not say "we hope we are saved," but "we are saved by hope," which is an altogether different thing. There is no such vagueness concerning the salvation Paul referred to-he speaks of a salvation already received and enjoyed. "Saved" is a medical phrase; to save means to make or to keep sound. The first condition of recovery is hope in its possibility. Despair often renders the skill of the best physician unavailing. Faith has no chance of doing us any good if hope has not visited us beforehand. Like the man who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, the sinner lies battered and bruised by the highway of life, despairing of ever being healed and saved. But hope comes as a ministering angel whispering words of encouragement, pointing out the glorious possibilities. Then, when the angel of hope has kindled hope in the breast, faith comes along and easily leads the once hopeless one to the Saviour. Most sinners come to Christ supported on one side by faith and on the other by hope. Praise God, "None need perish. All may live, for Christ has died."

Now note, what hope has to say about the future: "For our salvation lies in hope." Hope, having led the sinner to Christ, does not leave him, but speaks constantly of a glorious future, declaring that though our salvation has not yet been fully realised here, it will be in the great time to come. In God's great scheme of redemption there is not only a new heart for us (which all His people have now), but a new body. We possess much, but there is more to follow both here and in the great future. It is always "more to follow."

II. What Hope Does in the Present. "For we are saved by hope," i.e., Kept saved by hope. To be saved means not only to be made, but to be kept, sound. "For we are saved by hope," that is to say, kept, preserved, sustained in our trials by hope. Richard Baxter, the Puritan preacher and writer, suffered all his life with a weak and ailing body. Often he was tempted to wish he had never been born. What kept him from it? Listen to his testimony: "What should support and comfort me under my bodily languishings and pains, my weary hours, and daily experience of the vanity and vexation of all things under the sun, had I not a prospect of the comfortable end of all? I, that have lived in the midst of great and precious mercies, have all my life had something to do to overcome the temptations of wishing that I had never been born; and had never overcome it, but by the belief of a blessed life, hereafter." Richard Baxter was saved by hope. So will it be with the Lord's people. They have to meet many storms and suffer many hardships, but are cheered at the bright prospect ahead:

"Hope, like the gleaming taper's light.

Adorns and cheers our way;

And still as darker grows the night,

Emits a brighter ray."

SAVED BY REGENERATION.

"According to His mercy He saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost" (Titus 3:5).

It was indeed a pitiful case. There the young woman lay in the great hospital apparently dead to all around her. She had a loving husband and comfortable home, but her life and strength seemed ebbing away. At last the doctor decided that the only remedy left was transfusion of blood. But who would submit to this weakening operation? Her husband, a strong, healthy man, out of love to his wife, willingly offered himself. Warm, rich, vigorous blood was taken from him and infused into the almost lifeless form of the patient, and she recovered- saved by transfusion of life.

Something like that was in the mind of the writer of Titus 3:5. By nature ours is a pitiful case. Unlike the poor woman referred to, we have not even a spark of spiritual life in us; we are dead through trespasses and sins. Not only are we "without strength," but we are also exposed to the righteous wrath of an outraged God. We have seen how to be saved from the sword of Divine Justice. It is the Blood of Christ that maketh atonement for the soul. Saved by His out-poured life, we need to be saved by His in-poured life. "Men's lives have been prolonged by the transfusion of blood from vigorous frames. The value of the blood of Jesus Christ thus passes into our veins. The Church chose for one of its ancient emblems of the Saviour the pelican, which fed its young, according to the fable, with blood from its own breast. So Christ vitalises us. He in us is our life." For recovery of the soul He not only has poured out His life for us, but in regeneration, He pours His life into us, making us partakers of the Divine nature. We, too, require to be saved by transfusion of life. We have faint illustrations of this in nature. As by infusion of new life by the grafting process, the crab-apple tree is saved from its bitterness and use-lessness, and the common dog-rose made a thing of beauty, so the soul and life is by the life of God made sweet and beautiful and useful.

Pray observe that this is not "the regeneration of washing," but "the washing of regeneration." The words in each sentence are the same, but in different order, and order here is a vital matter. By way of emphasis, let us repeat that sentence; not "the regeneration of washing," a fiction man is so prone to idolise, but the "washing of regeneration," i.e., the cleansing which we get when we are regenerated, or born again, the cleansing that the new life gives, a life which is given on the ground of the shed Blood. All the baptisms of water in the world cannot cleanse the soul; it is the washing of the Spirit which alone is effectual.

It is important to notice that there must be the application of the precious Blood of Christ before we can receive the life of God. In the Tabernacle and Temple this truth was zealously guarded. Before the great Laver was reached the brazen altar of sacrifice must first be approached. There is no doubt whatever that the Altar was the first thing encountered. In Leviticus 4:7, it is called "the altar at the door."

Why are the instructions respecting the Laver not given after the altar in Exod. 27, but reserved until chapter Exodus 30:18? To guard the great doctrine of Atonement. Atonement must come before cleansing; the cleansing of the blood before the cleansing of regeneration.

He saves not only by regeneration, but also by renewal. What is meant by renewal? In the words of T. Binney: "By regeneration we understand the commencement of the life of God in the soul of man, the beginning of that which had not an existence before; by renewal the in-vigoration of that which has been begun; the sustenation of a life already possessed."

Nature in Spring undergoes a mighty renewal. The long, cold, trying winter has gone, and at the call of spring the naked trees put on their garb of glory and beauty, and life in its freshness and attractiveness is peeping through the scarred surface of the ground. Nature is having its periodical renewal. And does not the Christian soul need renewal? Verily, that need is great. Let us seek for an outpouring of His grace, and then we shall be able from experience to say and sing:

"There is Springtime in my soul to-day.

For when the Lord is near.

The dove of peace sings in my heart.

The flowers of grace appear."

SAVING BY LOSING.

"For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life, for My sake, shall find it" (Matthew 16:25). In other words, if we are" to save either soul or life we must lose them. What, save my life by losing it! This does, indeed sound strange! Who would have thought this? Every one of the evangelists record this utterance, and this is both a proof of its importance and of the effect it had upon them. Verily, God's way of salvation is altogether different to man's. Here a great principle is enunciated: What I keep I lose; what I lose I retain.

"But how can this be?" you exclaim. We would like to associate John 12:24 with this Scripture: "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." Here is a farmer who has a good store of precious grain. He desires to save it, but in order to save it he must lose it. What the farmer sows he keeps; what he keeps in his barn deteriorates by keeping, or is eaten by vermin. If a corn of wheat be not cast into the ground it will for a time abide alone, and then presently cease to exist. The only way of saving the corn of wheat is by losing it. As in the vegetable world, so in the moral and spiritual world. In Luke 17:33 our Lord applies this principle to the subject of our salvation, and in Matthew 10:39 to the subject of Christian service.

I. To Save my Soul I Must Lose It. No one seems to know where the word "soul" came from. Some think it to be an Icelandic word for the sea, meaning that, like the sea, it is mighty, mysterious, unfathomable, and perhaps, billowy. Others say it is from the verb "to see," suggesting that it is the part of our being that thinks, reasons, loves. The soul is that immortal and eternal part of my being; it is "my think;" it is myself. In the old days of the pirates, when pursued by those sea-pests, to save gold, silver, and valuables, the captain and passengers threw them overboard, where they would be able to find them again; they lost them in order to save them. In times of danger, precious treasures are deposited in banks, and diamonds in transit are put into the captain's care for safety; lost, in order to be saved. Friend, have you yet discovered that you possess a Jewel of immense value? That jewel is your soul. Many treat their souls as the people of the transvaal formerly treated diamonds, when, not knowing their value, they gave them to their children to play with, and even built them into the mud walls of their farmsteads. The soul is a precious jewel, indeed, and for safety must be lost in God. As the farmer, in order to save his corn, commits it to the keeping of God by placing it in the earth, so we, in order to save our souls, must in the words of Peter, "Commit the keeping of their souls to Him as unto a faithful Creator." Of course we commit our souls to God, not to be lost in Him in the sense that the Buddhists and Pantheists believe, viz., to be entirely absorbed in Deity, for we ever retain our personality and identity.

Many things lost are never found; not so with our souls. But they are not found as they were lost. The lost seed is found in a glorious harvest. This is also true in respect to our bodies. If the Lord tarries, we may have to lose them in the grave, but on the Resurrection morn we shall have a glorious find (see 1 Corinthians 15:42-44). But quite as great a change now takes place in the soul hidden in God. Pearls, when they have lost their lustre, regain their brilliancy by being buried in the sea. When we are hidden in God, the lustre of whiteness and purity is regained by His grace.

II. To Save my Life I Must Lose It. There is the dread possibility of a saved soul and a lost life. That was the case with the dying thief-his soul was saved, but his life had been wasted in the service of sin, and was therefore irretrievably lost. What a grand thing it is for young lives to surrender to the Lord Jesus, and to be lived in His blessed service for His glory! Yet many who turn to the Lord in their youth lose their lives because that, though their souls are saved, their lives have not been fully yielded up to God. Do you know the difference between a piece of coal and a costly diamond? The latter receives the light and then gives it forth, whereas the former takes in and absorbs all the light, and gives none. Our Lord said that John was a "burning and a shining light." We cannot shine without burning, that is, without losing. Samson's wife, in order to save herself and family from burning, betrayed her husband, but the very evil she wished to avoid overtook her. And so, in His application of this principle to service, the Lord, in effect says: "If to follow Me seems to you, as it is, very dangerous, and you decide in order to save your life, not to deny self and take up the Cross and follow Me, the very evil you wish to avoid will overtake you."

SAVED BY HIS LIFE.

"For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by His life" (Romans 5:10).

What, saved by His life? I thought we were saved by His death! This is indeed a startling statement. Saved by His life-which life? The life He lived before the Cross, the life poured out on the Cross, or the life He is now living since the Cross? The answer to these questions gives the message of this study.

If you will carefully scrutinise the text and context you will see that this is a message to reconciled ones, to those who have already been saved by His death. Let this be very clearly understood: the apostle is not referring to the life our Lord Jesus lived before the Cross. That is how some view this text. Many teach that in studying the life of Christ, and seeking to imitate and copy it, we shall be saved. It sounds rather philosophical and attractive to the generality of men, but it will not work in actual experience. As a matter of fact, contemplation of that life, instead of saving, only condemns. All honest endeavourers have to confess:

"Dear Master, in Whose life I see, All that I would, but fail to be."

Contemplation of His life always leads to shame, and is powerless to help. It is also quite clear that the apostle is not referring here to either salvation through the poured-out life, or the poured-in life, though these are glorious truths. This is a message to those who have already been saved by His death, and by infusion of His life.

Rightly understood, this is a sample of Paul's close, clear, and keen reasoning. Look at the Lord Jesus on the Cross, so weak and frail; see what a mighty work He did for us in that weakness. But He lives. If He accomplished so much for us in that weakness, what can He not do for us in His untiring energy and unlimited and Almighty strength! You see the apostle is drawing attention to the work the Lord Jesus is now doing for us in the Glory. We do not think as much as we ought of the life He is now living for us. He died to save us; He lives to keep us saved. Let us illustrate this in various ways:

I. As a Patient is Saved by the Life of his Doctor. On the death of a friend or relative, have you never heard the remark that, humanly speaking, if only the old family doctor had been alive, the deceased would have been saved from physical dissolution. And there is a great deal of truth in the assertion. Here is the doctor who has known us all our lives, has attended and pulled us through serious illness, and therefore understands our physical frame as no one else can.

What a desperate state we were in when we first called the Great Physician in! We proved indeed that His touch has still its ancient power, for He healed us of our spiritual disorders. But remember that He still lives to keep us well. Verily His own are saved by His ceaseless skill and care.

II. As a Child is Saved by the Life of the Mother. Humanly speaking, many a motherless child dies prematurely through lack of a mother's loving care. The only sister of a young man known to the writer passed away at the age of sixteen. The mother died eleven years before. She had been grossly overworked and neglected, and he constantly affirms that had his beloved only sister known a mother's care she would have been alive to-day. Praise God, He Who saved us when we first trusted Him ever lives to keep us saved. We are ever the objects of His tender regard.

Constantly He is mothering those who trust Him.

III. As an Absent Official is Saved by the Life of a Friend at Court. In Eastern countries enemies plot the disgrace and ruin of an absent official, and happy is he who has a friend at court to defend his interests. Satan is well called the accuser of the brethren, and Job 1:6 hints at the possibility of his admission to the court of Heaven. The adversary could do us immense injury there, but for the fact that we have a Friend at Court.

"There for me the Saviour stands. Shows His wounds, and spreads His hands."

He ever liveth to make intercession for us, and we are saved by His life of intercession from dismissal and disgrace. Ah, thank God, we have indeed a Friend at Court!

IV. As an Army is Saved by the Life of its Commander. History records many a battle lost, and many an army defeated and annihilated, when the General fell mortally wounded. But no shaft of death can ever harm our ever-living Commander. He has passed through the gates of death to immortality; and, as earthly Generals usually select a hill from which to watch the tactics of the enemy, and send reinforcements to any section over-pressed and in danger, so our General is now seated on Mount Zion with His eye upon us, to succour us in times of danger and pressing need. Saved by His ceaseless vigilance.

"Hold the Fort, for I am coming,

Jesus signals still;

Wave the answer back to Heaven,

By Thy grace we will." A man in delirium complained he was deserted, unloved, and uncared for, and all the while his loving wife and the skilful nurse were anticipating every wish, and crying because of his ravings! "But," you say, "the poor fellow was in delirium, and not responsible for his ravings." Yet there are thousands of poor sinners guilty of the same folly. "No one cares for me," they moan, when the Lord died for them, and is now seeking to save, Yea, worse still, sometimes the Lord's own people in despondent moods take up the same complaint when all the time, he knows, and loves, and cares, and is living His ascended and glorified life specially on their behalf. NOT SAVED.

"The harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and we are not saved" (Jeremiah 8:20). A Devonshire farmer, reporting to the writer the condition of the crops in his part of the country, said: "Round my way the grass is saved, and the oats and wheat are saved." We thought the expression suggestive.

Surely no one from Devonshire can wonder what it means to be saved! For the crops to be saved means that they have been severed from the earth and carried to a place of safety for future use; not to be saved means to be left rooted in the ground, left out at the mercy of wind and weather, to die, and to rot. To be saved by the Lord means that you have been separated from the world, having ceased to draw nourishment from that quarter, and are housed in God's precious barn-Christ-for safety and for service. "The harvest is passed, the summer is ended," and then we hold our harvest thanksgiving services throughout the country because "the crops have been safely garnered and are saved," and we do well in thus acknowledging the goodness of the Lord in this time of the nation's need; but is it possible that any reader, whilst thanking God for the saving of the harvest, has to confess, "Yet I am not saved!" More concerned about the salvation of the crops than the salvation of an immortal soul! Alas, alas, that is only too true in many cases! When shall we place first things first?

Jerusalem was besieged. The inhabitants, pressed beyond measure, had waited deliverance, but in vain. They expected the Egyptians to come to their relief, and that in the dry summer season when travelling was easy; but the golden opportunity has passed, and immediate destruction now stared them in the face. "The harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and we are not saved," was therefore the wail of these disappointed inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they merited such disappointment, for they had no right to seek the help of Egypt; and they had done so in spite of all the prophet Jeremiah's warning. But this will also be the experience of all who do not look to the right place for salvation, for none but the Lord Jesus can do helpless sinners good. Where are you looking for salvation? It is sad to see the lock on some people's faces when you ask them that personal and important question, "Are you saved?" There is often not a look of concern, but of contempt, which is often accompanied by a sneer and mocking laughter. There may be sometimes a look of pity; but it is a pity that you should demean yourself by troubling over such matters. Two evangelists had conducted a successful mission in a country town, and many had received Jesus Christ, and were rejoicing in their new found rest and peace. Two companions out for a walk encountered some converts, and one said sneeringly: "These people say they are saved!" "Oh, indeed," said the, other, "I wonder if they got a special revelation?"

More truth is said in jest than some imagine. They had received a special revelation of themselves and the Cross, and also had the threefold witness of the Word, the Spirit, and their changed lives. Ah, that word "saved," once the subject of jest, is now sweet and precious to many of us.

It is sad to think that many a harvest time has come with its golden opportunities, but in many cases the confession yet is, "Not saved." Special evangelistic missions have been held, bringing golden opportunities for deliverance, the harvest time of opportunity had come, a time of ingathering had arrived, yet it passed, and finds you still as you were. Less than twenty years ago a farmer herded a handful of sheep on the golden soil of the Colorado district in the loneliness of a mountain wilderness, and the whole district might have been his almost for the asking. But there he lolled and dreamed away his days, neglectful of the riches over which he trod. Others came to find there one of the richest goldfields known to man, for the gold seems inexhaustable. It is reported that the farmer still lives. He lost his opportunity. "What a foolish man!" you say. Yet there are many greater. Within your reach now is Christ and His unsearchable riches, aye yet you go on in your spiritually impoverished and destitute condition! But one more golden opportunity has come. If we accept Christ now we will be able to say: "The harvest is passed, the summer is ended, the crops are saved; and I, too, am saved, thank God!"

Chapter 91

Some Old Parables

Some Old Parables. THE PEARL OF ALL PARABLES.

Part I. Luke 15.

In this series of re-studies of the parables of our Lord, first place must be given to what has been called "The Pearl of all Parables," found in Luke 15. At first we hesitated to use this title, for, as all parables are equally inspired of God, each separate parable is a pearl. There is a danger in attempting to exalt one portion of Holy Scripture above another. Even the portions of Holy Writ that have not made any special appeal to us individually, are as precious as those that have spoken loudly. The whole of the Divine Library is one big priceless pearl. Yet it hath pleased the Lord to use Luke 15 in Gospel ministry more than other portions, save perhaps John 3:16. Where is the evangelist who has not found this earthly story with a heavenly meaning of tremendous service in winning the lost. The stammering beginner in Christian service finds it to be the simplest of all subjects to take; the well-seasoned Gospel warrior finds it to be the most profound of all narratives; for in it there is a simplicity of application that appeals to the babe in Christ; and yet, at the same time, there is a whole world of truth that provides thought for the philosopher. A few general observations are necessary before placing our microscope upon it.

Please observe, in Luke 15, we have but one parable in three sections: "And He spake this parable unto them" (Luke 15:3). Pray note, our Lord called it a parable, not parables. This is important. Even if there were no doctrinal significance, it is wise to follow closely the exact words of Scripture. But there is an important truth at stake. It is one parable in three sections, each portraying the work of one of the Three Persons in the Blessed Trinity. In the story of the Lost Sheep we have a picture of the work of God the Son; in the story of the Lost Coin we have a picture of the work of God the Holy Spirit; and in the story of the Lost Son we have a picture of the work of God the Father.

"Very well," you say, "but should not God the Father come first? Should we not re-arrange the sections, putting the lost son first, the lost sheep second, and the lost coin last?" The way you have presented the question appeals to us, for God the Father should always come first, as is so in the great Apostles' Creed. Yet we must not tamper with the order in which our Divine Lord Jesus related the incidents, even if we do not appreciate the significance. As a matter of fact, there is a deep and vital truth in the order. For in actual experience the sinner's first concern should be the work of the Son, our Divine Saviour; then the Person and glorious offices and ministries of the Holy Spirit; and, finally, the revelation of the Father. Why, our Saviour Himself declared that He was, and is, the way to the Father, and that "no man cometh unto the Father but by Me." This threefold parable has been much misunderstood. Our Lord's object in relating it was not to show who is, or is not, a child of God, but how willing God is to receive all who come to Him; not to show the basis of true forgiveness, but the readiness of God to pardon and receive the most unworthy if truly penitent. To say that this parable declares that every human being is a child of God, and that He is ready to forgive without any atonement, is to put into the chapter what the Lord never intended, and to be guilty of the sin of both adding to, and subtracting from, the Word of the Lord. To read into this parable what our Lord never intended is simply shocking, and imperils the souls of men. The immediate object of the parable was to justify Christ's conduct in associating with outcasts. "Then drew near all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him" (Luke 15:1). These Jewish pariahs recognised in the new Teacher a new Friend; they detected in His discourses a new note of sympathy and interest. There was freshness and power in His utterances. Instinctively they were attracted. "And the Pharisees and Scribes murmured, saying: This Man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them" (Luke 15:2). Wondrous statement! He not only received them, but He ate with them. That is to say, He not only desires to save me from my sins, but to save me to His friendship. To receive me and speak the word of forgiveness is amazing grace; but that is but the beginning of the disposal of the riches of His grace; for He desires my friendship and fellowship. To eat bread with anyone means a very great deal in Eastern lands. It is a pledge of friendship; a covenant sign full of significance.

Now in these three sections our Lord pointed out to His objectors how they ought to have acted as the shepherd sought the strayed and lost one, as the woman sought and rejoiced in the recovery of the lost coin, as the father welcomed and received the prodigal; so ought they to have rejoiced over the return of the publicans and sinners. But instead, they had acted as the elder brother; our Lord Jesus was holding up a mirror so that they might behold themselves. By the way, here is the rightful point to stress most in this threefold parable. The interest in the parable has mainly centred upon the lost sheep and the lost son, whereas it is clear our Lord meant us to place the emphasis upon the elder brother. But this point must be left for a future study. A wee girl had parents who never frequented public worship, but insisted upon her attendance, and, moreover, bringing home the preacher's text. One morning she rushed home exclaiming: "Oh, mama, my name is in the Bible!" "But that cannot be," expostulated her parents. "But it is! Why, the preacher announced it. 'This Man receiveth sinners, and Edith with them.'" Only a faulty pronunciation? Ah, more. Can you put your name there? "This Man receiveth sinners, and --- with them." THE PEARL OF PARABLES.

Part II.

Only One Lost. Luke 15.

"What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness?" (Luke 15:4), so begins our Lord's matchless story of the lost sheep, the first portion of the Pearl of all Parables. But why make all that fuss about one, seeing he had ninety-nine left? If he only possessed two sheep, and had lost one, we could have excused his concern and trouble over the lost. But to lose one out of an hundred seems an insignificant loss. Yes, that is how we sometimes reason, but it is false. The immediate occasion of this Parable was to vindicate our Lord's conduct in associating with outcasts! The Scribes and Pharisees were the unfriendly critics, and the parable was spoken "unto them." He reminded them how the shepherds invariably acted, and that is precisely what I am doing, He said, in receiving, pardoning, and restoring the wanderers. In likening wayward men and women to sheep, our Lord was using a suggestive and tender figure. For no sheep goes intentionally astray. It just wanders thoughtlessly on and on. In the story of the Prodigal Son, we have the aspect of willfulness. Whilst there are some who deliberately go astray, the major portion just ramble on. Absorption in the quest for food is one of the causes. With head down, and seldom a look up, the creature wanders on and on, far, far away from the safety of the fold. Absorbed in the quest after pleasure or gold, the majority of mankind just wander through life, hopelessly lost.

We must return to the question: "Why make all that fuss about one? There were ninety-nine left!" Behind such a question is a devastating thought. We hear of some parents who have lost a little child, one of a large family, and we remark: "Ah, well, they have quite a number of children left, and the loss cannot be as great as if they had only one." In other words, the greater the family, the less the value of the individual. Is that so? If it is, then the thought saddens and disturbs, for I shall begin to think that, because the human family is so great, one can easily be missed; that I am like a needle in a haystack. But that is a false philosophy. The size of God's family does not effect the preciousness of the individual. That is so in daily life. However large the family, father and mother love and care for each one just as if they were their all. What a comforting thought this is. Though God has millions of human beings under His providential care, He cares for each individual as if that individual was the only one in the world. God's love is not only general, but particular, not only does He love and care for a world, but it is possible for each one to be able to say: "Who loved me, and gave Himself for me." Ah, the shepherd missed the one, and went after it. And this leads to another thought: What is the distinguishing peculiarity of our Christian faith? Not the Incarnation, for other religions have taught that their gods became manifest in the flesh, though there is actually a world of difference between what they term incarnation and that of our Gospel. Not sacrifice, for other religions have their sacrifices. Not worship or Sacred Literature, for worship is common to all religions, and other faiths have their sacred books.

Here is one of the great outstanding peculiarities of our Christian faith-it is the only religion among men that has ever represented God as seeking man. Other faiths represent man as seeking God, which is not true. It is tragic yet true, that "There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God" (Romans 3:11). Man apart from grace, does not desire God, so that, when we find within us longings for God, it is a proof that the Spirit of God is at work. In the parable, it was not the sheep that sought the shepherd, but the shepherd who went after the sheep.

How utterly helpless is the wandering sheep. For the sheep differs from all animals in this respect, that when once it has wandered from the flock, it can never find its way back. And our Lord likens man to a sheep. What a suggestive simile. Man, apart from Divine aid, can never find his way back to God. Ah, but the Good Shepherd went after the solitary lost one "until He find it." Oh, what patience and perseverance! "And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing"-what wondrous truth we have here. The shoulder is the strongest part of man, teaching that all the strength of Omnipotence is exerted on behalf of every found one, and that until "He cometh home," until He bears us safe over to the other shore, to the Land of never-ending spring and gladness. THE PEARL OF PARABLES.

Part III.

Lost in the House. The piece of silver was lost in the house. "Well," say you, "there is nothing remarkable about that, for it is no unusual happening for things to be lost in the home." Quite so; yet when you recognise what the House signifies, you will be startled: in the Church, in the Assembly, and yet lost! That is one startling part of the second portion of the Pearl of Parables (Luke 15:8-10). This charming threefold parable was our Lord's apology for loving and receiving the sinful and erring ones. The duty and joy of seeking and finding, He proves three times over to be universal. Now it was most unusual for our Lord to multiply references at one time. This He did, not only to convey the thought that such joy was universal, but for another purpose which we must specify.

One of the most striking features of our Lord's teaching and work on earth was His vindication before men of the worth of man. In those days the value of a man as man had sunk very low. Human life was of so little value that it was thought fitting for men to die by the score in the Coliseum at Rome and elsewhere, simply to amuse a holiday crowd. Those were the days when slavery in its worst form flourished. How cheap was human life? This parable three times over declares the value of one soul, and wherever the Bible is loved and taught, and wherever the God of the Bible is trusted and loved, human life begins to rise in value.

Now it was not merely the Pagan and the Heathen who undervalued human life. The Scribes and Pharisees of Israel esteemed a Publican and others of the despised classes, as of less value than one sheep. Consequently the first portion of this parable would have no weight with them. Quite true, they would remark, that a shepherd would be justified in going after one wandering member of his flock, but that does not justify your association with publicans and sinners, for we esteem one sheep as worth far more than one publican or sinner. Very well, our Lord said in effect, but surely you will admit that a small silver coin worth 7½d. is fitting to represent the value of one publican? "What woman, having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it? And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost." But what a fuss to make over a lost sixpence! Fancy, being so concerned over its loss that a spring cleaning was set in operation in order to its recovery, and when eventually found, calling her friends and neighbours to celebrate its recovery! Is there a woman to-day who would make such a turmoil over a lost coin?

Yes; if that lost piece of silver was to her as to the woman in the parable. In those days at marriage, instead of a gold ring as to-day, the bridegroom presented the bride with a necklace of ten silver coins. To lose even one of those pieces was considered as equal to, or suggestive of, unfaithfulness. Then no wonder the poor woman in the parable became troubled when she discovered her loss, and no wonder her neighbours shared her concern, and no wonder that great exertions were made to discover the lost piece. Now, the lost coin represents the lost sinner.

I. Lost through Severance. In some way or other, it became disconnected and lost. The union existing between God and man ceased when sin came into the world. Sin cut man from God.

II. Lost, though Still Bearing the King's Image. The King's image and superscription makes the coin of value. Man is precious because he bears the image of his Maker. He bears and possesses the spiritual attributes of thought and will and moral consciousness, by which he resembles God. The image is worn, marred, and almost obliterated by the Fall, yet still there. Though lost, man still bears the image of God.

III. Lost, though in the Home. The sheep was lost through straying away from the fold; the coin was lost in the fold. That is the one startling feature of this second portion of the Pearl of all Parables. It points out the dread possibility of being a member of a Christian Church, or attending the meeting place, and yet being lost. Lost, yet in the House!

IV. Lost, yet of Real Value to the Former Owner. The great mother-heart of God yearns and longs after His lost ones. And the Holy Spirit is busy seeking the lost, through the candle of God's Word, and by the ministry of up-setting and disturbing Providences.

V. Lost, yet Can be Found in the House. All the holy ministries of the House of Prayer are bent to achieve this purpose. THE PEARL OF PARABLES.

Part IV.

The Lost Son.

We must ever remember in the reading of the Sacred Book that it has an Eastern background. For example, if in our country a younger son came to his father with the request that he should now receive "the portion of goods that falleth to him" under the terms of his Will, strong words would be spoken and harsh measures taken. In our day division of the paternal estate only takes place on the death of the testator. But in the East, the younger son's request would be considered as quite a proper thing. "A certain man had two sons: and the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living. And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country" (Luke 15:11-13). Nothing wrong in leaving home! Seldom does a youth leave home simply because he has tired of it; still more rarely because he wishes to lead a life of mere self-indulgence. More frequently it is an honourable purpose. Some leave home for school or college; others to learn a trade in another town, or for marriage. But this young man left home with a wrong motive; he wished to get away from all its wholesome restraints and holy examples. His leaving home was:

I. The Fruit of his Wish to be his Own Master. He wanted to be:

"Lord of himself-that heritage of woe."

II. It was Prompted by an Erroneous Conception of Life. He imagined true life to consist in a round of pleasure-seeking, in throwing away of life.

III. It was Prompted by Youthful Rashness and Inexperience. Experience is a hard master, and his fees are heavy.

IV. It Led to the "Far Country" and to Beggary. "But," you say, "I am not guilty of prodigality or profligacy; I am not eaten up with vice. I am not bankrupt in money or character; I am not a 'waster.' This can have no application to me!" Not so fast, dear friend, have you ever pondered on Augustine's definition of the Far Country? "The far country is forgetfulness of God." This is startling! We may be decent, yet there is a forgetfulness which is the certain proof of spiritual estrangement. Forgetfulness of God is a common malady and a proof we are far from God. "I remembered God and was troubled," was the confession of the Psalmist. But "he came to himself." What a strange journey! It means, surely, that he had been away from himself; in other words, beside himself-mad. "At last he came to his senses" (20th Century New Testament). In his years of riot he was not himself. It was not the prodigal who was the real man: the real man was the penitent. His coming to himself was followed by coming to his father.

"But while he was holding afar off, his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and running fell upon his neck, and tenderly kissed him" is Rotherham's rendering of Luke 15:20. He started back home quickly, and allowed no grass to grow under his feet until he drew near the old home, when he hesitated, and came to a standstill-"holding afar off." Why? He had squandered his father's gift, had disgraced himself, and was clothed in rags. Then there was the harsh elder brother. But let us ever remember that whilst we have sinned in departing from God, we sin more by remaining away from Him. The great sin is departure from the living, loving, merciful God, and this never ceases until we return.

What were the father's gifts to the returned prodigal? Remember He is not satisfied by merely pardoning. God's giving begins and always follows His forgiving. The first gift was the kiss of reconciliation; literally, "He kissed him again and again." Kissing in the East is a pledge of reconciliation and peace. The father gave the kiss before the prodigal uttered a word. Of course his very return was a confession. The father gave the kiss to the prodigal just as he was, in all his rags and filth. He did not postpone the kiss until he had made himself more presentable; no, just as he was he was welcomed. But that was not the end, but the beginning of the gift. The second gift was the best robe. That glorious New Testament expression: "Grace reigning through righteousness" is exemplified here. To forgive him in his rags was grace. But the father could not in righteousness have the prodigal at his table in his rags; he must be clad and decked in a manner suited to that blessed position. The prodigal was quite prepared to be merely "a hired servant," so unworthy did he feel. But the two following gifts, the ring and the shoes, proved conclusively that he was to be treated as a son. No servant wore a ring, or entered the presence of master or mistress clad in shoes. The slave went unshod and without a ring. Captives had their shoes taken from them (Isaiah 20:2). When captives were restored to freedom their shoes were restored (2 Chronicles 28:15).

There is further significance in these two last gifts. The ring surely speaks to us of assurance and delegated authority (Genesis 41:42; 1 Kings 21:8; Esther 8:10, Daniel 6:17; James 2:2), and the shoes of equipment for the walk of life. Truly the forgiven one must walk as becometh the children of God.

Observe, these gifts were all bestowed at the same time, and when a prodigal returns to God now, he receives as much the first day as ever afterwards. His "afterwards" will be spent in more and more discovering the wealth already bestowed, and living in accordance with that wealth. THE PEARL OF PARABLES.

Part V.

The Elder Brother. Who is the Elder Brother? This was a question raised at a Ministers' Fraternal. Like many questions-not so easily settled. Mark you, the question is "Who is?" not "Who was?" There is no doubt whatever regarding what was in our Lord's mind. Luke 15:2-3 is quite sufficient: "And the Pharisees and Scribes murmured. . . and He spake this parable unto them." Our Lord had the Pharisees and Scribes in mind when He related this pearl of all parables. No; the question is not "who was" intended, but "who is." We have come to the conclusion that in this story we believers have a warning signal. There is a dread possibility of believers becoming like the Elder Brother. He represents the carnal Christian. With most, the interest in the parable is mainly centred in the Prodigal. When you think of Luke 15, what first comes to your mind? I think most would say,

"The story of the Prodigal Son." We are sure that our Lord meant the emphasis to be placed upon the elder son. In the first two portions of the parable our Lord showed the Scribes and Pharisees how they ought to have acted; in the elder brother he holds the mirror up to them in order that they might see themselves, for as he acted so had they. To-day, the elder brother stands before us as a representative of carnal believers. Who is the Elder Brother? The self-righteous sinner? No. He was a son: "Son, thou art ever with me." "I know him, I met him yesterday," declared an old minister at the Ministers' Fraternal, and on his ministerial brethren earnestly urging him to disclose his identity, exclaimed, "I myself," and he then explained that on the previous day, hearing that a very ill-conditioned person had received a gracious visitation of God's goodness, he had felt not a little envy and irritation. Dear fellow-believer, how do you feel when you hear of other brethren, not so well-educated as you, yet their ministry seems more acceptable and much more fruitful than yours? How do you feel, dear fellow-believer, when you learn of another sister's husband making a bigger success in life than yours? What is your feeling, fellow-Christian, when you hear of some notorious Prodigal Son coming to God? Let us answer these questions as in the searching light of God's presence. The elder brother's spirit is very manifest. "Who is the elder brother?" The carnally-minded believer, not living up to his privileges, and who has lost his first love and his passion for souls. Observe, the elder brother in the story was a member of the family and a servant of his father; and yet what saddens one is his utter joylessness, and he seems scandalised at the gladness shown by others over the returning prodigal. And note the price he had to pay. Such people are shunned. Observe how long the younger brother had returned before the elder brother came in from the field. How long does the killing, dressing, and cooking of a calf take? A few hours must have passed, and yet not a single servant thought it worth their while to go out and inform the elder brother of the return of the wandering one.

I. What are the Symptoms of the Disease and Malady of Carnality?

1. A Lost Sense of Indebtedness. "Neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment." Is it possible for a boy to grow up into manhood, without ever being guilty of a single act of disobedience to his father? Never. He forgot he was a pardoned rebel. He had lost all consciousness of transgression. He was sedate and prudent, very correct and proper, yet self-centred and self-satisfied. He had lost the enjoyment of the Divine forgiveness, and had become a stranger to its thrilling joy. What a sad condition he was in! This exactly is the condition of some believers now in our day.

2. A False Complacency. The elder brother seemingly lived a straight life, but was self-centred. There was a silly, smug satisfaction with himself, in which no one else shared. This is a feature only too common in our day.

3. The Foolish Forgetfulness of his Possessions. "Thou never gavest me a kid that I might make merry with my friends." Had he any friends? Such gloomy, morose individuals are shunned. "Thou never gavest me a kid." Why, he had two-thirds of his father's kids, and two-thirds of all his father's property. Pray remember that when the younger brother asked for his portion of goods we read, "And he divided unto them his living," that means that whilst the younger brother got one-third of his father's possessions the elder received two-thirds. How easily carnal believers forget the infinite resources of God's grace, and in consequence live poverty-stricken lives.

4. The Loss of Sympathy for the Fallen. Losing a sense of indebtedness he had no patience with the fallen, and therefore no sympathy. Observe how coarse he had become. In the Divine record of the younger brother's waywardness we read, "And there wasted his substance with riotous living;" but the elder son must be coarse and cruel, and declared to his father, "This thy son-which hath devoured thy living with harlots." Oh, the coarse ness! Why are many believers out of sympathy with special evangelistic missions, and out of place in the warm atmosphere of a Revival? They are carnal.

5. The Lack and Loss of Filial Love. In this elder brother of the parable the dreadful feature of his character is the apparent lack of affection on his part towards his aged parent. He therefore failed to understand his father. He was a loveless creature. Self-excommunicated; self-punished.

6. A Stranger to the Joy of Loving Service. Have you ever noticed the word he used for service? Said he to his father, "Lo, these many years do I slave for thee," as it could be rendered. In Weymouth it reads, "I have been slaving for you." He served most diligently, but only as a slave. His obedience and service all along had been servile, prompted by fear and dread. It was neither filial love nor filial service; it was all irksome, tiresome duty. What a picture of heaps of carnal believers.

II. And What is the Cure? How did the father in the parable seek to overwhelm and win back his stern, hard, elder son?

1. He Reminds him of his Sonship. "Son." Oh, what a world of meaning the father put into that one word! May believers never lose the sense of wonderment in their sonship in Christ, and never forget that they are members of the family of Faith. Don't forget the very high honour He has conferred upon you. Oh, carnal believers, grubbing in the dust of the world, hear the Heavenly Father's reminder-"Son!"

2. He Reminds him of his Personal Love. "Son, thou." He loves all; He loves the world; but He particularly loves you. His love is individual in character.

3. He Reminds him of the Abiding Presence. "Son, thou are ever with me."

4. He Reminds him of the Blessed Enrichment. "And all that I have is thine."

5. He Reminds him of the Existing Relationship, for in answer to the elder brother's, "This thy son," the father replies, "Thy brother."

III. And What shall be my Reply? Should it not be, "Father, Thou art ever with me and all that I have is Thine, for ever and for ever."

WHAT ABOUT THE FUTURE?

Questions concerning the future are of perennial interest. It is a favourite newspaper stunt in the quiet season, when on account of the lack of tragic happenings, circulation of newspapers seem to be declining. When a correspondence on such a question as at the head of this page is raised, at once letters pour in and the circulation increases. There is no question more popular and more appealing to even "the man in the street."

Some imagine that the Bible has little or nothing to say about the future. What a sad mistake. Why go to so-called Spiritualism for knowledge on these matters? Let us turn to the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, found in Luke 16:19-31. But is this a parable? Our Lord begins: "There was a certain rich man." Is He not giving history? It seems like it. But though the story may be true, yet it has a lesson for us to-day. Let us note that our Lord does not rebuke possession of wealth, but its heartless, selfish use. Dore, the great artist, most assuredly made a mistake when in seeking to depict this scene he placed a whip in the hands of the rich man. No, there is no hint of cruelty in the story on the part of the rich man towards Lazarus, but of callous indifference. He did not treat the poor man inhumanly, he simply ignored him. In fact the dogs were more sympathetic than he. The story is soon told. "There was a certain rich man." There is no doubt whatever about his wealth, for he was able to clothe himself with the most costly of garments. "He fared sumptuously every day." "And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus." That name is significant. It is a contraction of "Eliezer," which signifies the help or assistance of God, and declares that this poor man had faith in God. He was not only poor but diseased. "And It came to pass that the beggar died." He died first. No wonder, when we remember his privations and disease. Then the rich man died. There is no account of any burial for the poor man, for probably he was just cast out on the city rubbish heap, but the rich man "was buried." No doubt a very elegant funeral. And that is the end of things? No, that was only the beginning.

It is very striking that although our Lord Jesus knew all about the unseen as no one else did, yet He was silent save for two or three references. In this parable He is most definite. Let us approach the parable with questions and seek for an answer from the narrative.

I. Is there Another Life? Do we survive after death? Man revolts at the idea of being dead and done with. He knows there is another life; the knowledge of that being part and parcel of his make-up. What does this story contribute towards this question? Both the dead bodies were left on this earth, but they themselves, the real individuals, were found in another life. They survived after death. They were living, throbbing personalities.

II. What Happens at Death? The godly are carried by the angels into the presence of Christ. The angels are most solicitous for our welfare during life, as Hebrews 1:14 declares, but they take special care of us at the hour of death, ushering us into the Divine Presence.

III. Are we Conscious in the Other Life? In this story they were very conscious. Neither of them were asleep; the rich man painfully conscious of his sufferings, and the poor blissfully conscious of his enjoyment. All the Scriptures have to say about sleep only has application to the body, and not to the soul. The Holy Book declares here consciousness to all, and that immediately following death.

IV. Is there any Difference in the Abodes of the Departed? Most certainly! This story teaches that there are two places; a place where the dead out of Christ go, and a place where the dead in Christ are found. Abraham's bosom was a Jewish phrase for Paradise. Now we know that Paradise is in the third Heaven, and not as in this story, in the heart of the earth. Study Matthew 12:40; 2 Corinthians 12:2-4. Without a doubt the transference of Paradise from the heart of the earth to the immediate presence of God took place at our Lord's resurrection, as is shown in Ephesians 4:8-10.

V. Will we Know One Another in the Other Life? A clergyman's wife asked her husband this question, to which he at once replied: "Why, dear, we know one another down here, and do you for one moment imagine that we shall be bigger fools up there than we are here?" The rich man knew Lazarus. The three disciples on the Mount of Transfiguration recognised Moses and Elijah as the companions of our Lord in that wondrous scene, though Moses had been dead hundreds of years, and hundreds of years had passed since Elijah's translation. Most certainly we shall know one another in the other life. Though the rich man had left his body down on this earth he had eyes with which to see, and a mouth with which to speak.

VI. Any Hope of a Second Chance? There are many who teach that a second chance of salvation will be given after death. What do we learn from this story? That the rich man in Hell did not desire salvation for himself, nor ask for a single spiritual mercy, yet he did desire spiritual mercies for his relatives. There seemed to be no desire whatever in him for any spiritual grace: "As the tree falls, so shall it lie."

VII. Can the Dead Communicate with Us? How can they? Pray read that graphic sentence: "And beside all this between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot: neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence." That states no hope of a second chance and no thought of the dead communicating with us. What takes place in Spiritist Seances is not the communication of departed ones with their friends, still in the flesh, but demons who impersonate the departed and deceive mankind.

VIII. Would an angel or a resurrected person sent back to this earth lead to the conversion of others? The idea that the answer should be in the affirmative is very common, but our Lord put into the mouth of Abraham a very definite word on this matter: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." How the Word of God is honoured here! Oh, the importance of hearkening to the Word of God. How the Bible is exalted in this parable.

IX. In conclusion, will you please notice that the rich man:

1. Awakened to eternal verities, but too late!

2. He saw his own danger, but too late!

3. He prayed, but too late!

4. He became concerned about the salvation of his relatives, but too late!

PRUDENCE.

Luke 16:1-9.

The problem parable is that found in Luke 16:1-9. It is the most difficult of all the Lord's parables. Few can agree regarding its interpretation. It seems to commend a piece of deliberate roguery as a pattern for Christian people to copy. Hundreds of explanations have been offered, few of which give complete satisfaction. Many have given up in despair all hope of solving the problem, declaring a solution to be impossible. Is there a single thoughtful Christian man or woman who has not sought to puzzle out some sort of solution to this problem? What is the parable? An unnamed rich man had a steward. Eastern stewards have almost unlimited power, because full authority is delegated to them. This master received such convincing proof of his steward's faithlessness that he determined on his dismissal, without the formality of a trial, and intimated this to him. By silence the steward admitted his guilt. This dismissal greatly agitated the steward, and he debated with himself as to "What shall I do?" Apparently his defalcations had not benefited him one bit; by it he had not a nest egg, nor had he feathered his own nest, having probably dissipated it in riotous living. "I cannot dig," he sadly reflected, either having developed his brain at the expense of his muscles, or his intemperance had weakened his body. "To beg, I am ashamed"-but not ashamed to defraud. False shame leads him to prefer fraud to poverty. Now at last his mind was made up. Calling his master's debtors together, in order to curry their favour, bade them reduce their debts by half in one case, one-fifth in another, and so on. "And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."

Now it is in this commendation that the problem is created. Surely our blessed Lord does not desire us to act unjustly and dishonestly to those without and within? Never! Who commended the unjust steward? That is no unimportant question. It was the steward's master, not the Lord Jesus. You will observe the word lord in Luke 16:8 is spelt with a small l. When the rich man heard of his servant's cuteness and cleverness it amused him greatly, and he admired the prudence and cleverness of the rogue. We admit that our Lord related the parable in such a way as to show there is something in the story He commends for our imitation. Yet we must press the point that the one who commends is the earthly master, not the heavenly.

I. Was he deducting over-charges when the steward bade his master's debtors to reduce the accounts owing? That is how many Eastern people view it. It is wise to remember that it is an Eastern story. In that fact may lie an easy solution. The fifty measures of oil, and the eighty measures of wheat to which the steward reduced the amounts formed the actual debts, the rest being simply over-charges with which the steward himself had cruelly and fraudulently burdened them. In that case the expedient to which he resorted in the emergency was not an act of trickery and dishonesty, but the first signs of real repentance, and an act of justice.

If this is the correct view, it is no wonder that he was commended by his master, for by robbing by over-charges his master's debtors, he had impoverished them, and so had indirectly injured his master by rendering them less able to pay their debts.

II. Was he deducting his commission in order to get back their favour? We know that in the East large commissions for sales is the order of the day. Stewards, cooks, or servants in responsible positions are thus bribed by tradesmen to take to them the orders of their master or mistress. This is an explanation worth pondering over.

III. Have we not here a Parable of Prudence? After all we have said, let us look again at the story for another explanation. What is praised is not the dishonesty, but the realisation of the facts of the case, and the immediate action taken. The world can teach believers many lessons. Our Lord Jesus points to the wisdom of this knave as an example we should copy, only we should apply it to a higher purpose. Observe in this steward certain characteristics worth emulating. He certainly was a-

1. Man of Resource. If not a man of muscle, he was a man of brains, and he used them. He was in a dilemma, but he quickly reasoned the thing out. There is a place for resourcefulness in the service of the Lord. Observe, he was-

2. A Man of Promptitude. He not only made up his mind quickly, but he acted promptly. There are many who purpose altering their methods, or of adopting some new stratagem in the Lord's service, but they procrastinate until the golden opportunity has gone for ever. Now he was-

3. A Man of Audacity. There was something like genius in the cool daring of this steward. Instantly he called his master's debtors before him, and in each others presence openly reduced their debts. It was not done in a private room, each apart from the other, but openly. Is there not room for a little more cheek and audacity in the Lord's service? We are so shy and proper and reticent. Oh, for more holy boldness in His blessed service!

There remains the application found in Luke 16:9-13. Luke 16:9 has puzzled many. The Weymouth version has been a help to many. "But I charge you, so to use the wealth which is ever tempting to dishonesty as to win friends who, when it fails, shall welcome you to the tents that never perish." That is, those who have wealth are urged to use it aright so as not to rouse the envy, or embitter the less favoured, and if that wealth should take to itself wings, and fly away, as has happened so often the last few years, they will not be left friendless. How often those who have made a parade of their wealth when the evil day comes, find themselves without a friend.

Bengel has drawn attention to the fact that Luke 16 follows Luke 15. That obvious fact has not been noted as it should. Luke 15 tells of the returned, welcomed, and feasted prodigal. But life cannot be spent in music and feasting. We (the pardoned and justified) are stewards to whom our Master has entrusted the talents of time, money, gifts, and a glorious Gospel message. Are we being faithful to the trust He has committed to us? We shall have to give an account sooner or later of our stewardship. God grant that we may merit His "Well done, good and faithful servant." A SELF-CONFESSED MATERIALIST.

Luke 12:13-21.

One of the greatest thinkers, of a past generation has remarked that "A single thought of thankfulness to Heaven is the most perfect prayer." Whilst there are few of us who would go quite so far as that, yet there is a great deal in the statement. Ingratitude is most assuredly a crime. Old Testament legislation is proof of the high value the Lord placed on thanksgiving. In the parable of the Rich Farmer found in Luke 12:13-21, we have an illustration of this. In your study of this narrative what do you most miss? A single expression of indebtedness to the Most High!

"I think," said an old gentleman toward the close of his busy and successful career, "there are three questions that will be put to us in the Day of Judgment: 'Did you make all you could? How did you make it? What use did you make of it?'" The rich man in the parable could easily answer the first two. He was a success, a very great success, and had most certainly made all he could. And he assuredly had made his money honestly. There is not a single hint to the contrary. He was not a bad, vicious man; there was no glaring vice or evil in him. But the third question unmasked him. Here he had failed. For he had lived utterly for himself, and the riches God had given him he proposed to continue to lavish upon his own miserable self. By the way, have you ever observed here an unmannerly interruption? Take up the Scripture. Our Lord had been discoursing on deep and solemn truths. A re-reading of Luke 12 will be sufficient to show its profundity. And all the while, this man was so absorbed in his own little petty concerns that he never heard a word, and at a pause in the conversation blurted out his concern. Of course he did right in referring this injustice-imaginary or real- to the Lord, but he was wrong in allowing the thought of the injustice to deafen him to religious instruction.

It is almost unbelievable, and yet it is a fact, that a man sat for years under the silver-toned preacher, Charles Haddon Spurgeon, listening to those mighty Gospel discourses, and yet on his death-bed discovered that he had never accepted the message for himself. It is very urgent that all our hearing should be mixed with faith as is urged in Hebrews.

Going back to the self-confessed materialistic farmer, what was wrong with him? And why do we all unite in condemning him in spite of his honesty, industry, and prosperity?

I. He was taken up with the gifts but forgot the Giver. Look carefully at the Scripture record again, and you will be struck by the absence of any reference to God. There was a selfish and arrogant sense of possession by right, and not by grace. This is particularly inexcusable in farming, for no occupation is so dependent upon the faithfulness of the Creator, yet he made not a single expression of gratitude to God, and there is no hint at all of any consultation with the Most High as to what he should do. But what about the writer and the reader? What an amazing number of gifts we have received from God-health; loving partners in life; children; homes; friends; success; are we absorbed with these to the exclusion of our great Heavenly Benefactor? Alas! alas! in so many cases it is so.

II. He failed to distinguish between the soul and the body. As proof, observe that he put the wrong address on the envelope, for he said: "Soul-thou hast much goods laid up for many years"-soul; goods-you cannot benefit nor satisfy the soul with material things. "Soul," why, he meant his body. The soul is myself, and my body is only the material part of my nature. What a blunder! And yet it is a common one. Alas, that it should be so.

III. In thinking and planning for this life he forgot the next. "Laid up for many years," and the verdict fell, "this night." In thinking of time, he forgot Eternity. In thinking of the future he failed to remember his mortality.

IV. In thinking of himself he forgot his neighbour. Observe the personal pronoun: "My! My!! My!!!" but never once "my neighbour." If his barns were bursting, there were many other barns empty. Yes, there were other barns waiting, without pulling down his own-the bosoms of the needy, the houses of the widows, the mouths of orphans and of infants. There were empty purses of less fortunate fellow-mortals.

It is very striking to see that he was condemned not for what he had done, but for what he thought of doing. Observe, "He thought within himself." Thus "we are here admitted into the inner council chamber of a worldling." What should he have said? If he had been a wise man he would have exclaimed: "Soul, thou hast been long neglected! The time has come when thou and I must attend to the needs that make for thy peace." But he did not. Instead, as one has remarked, he went to learn in Eternity what he had not learned in time, that he was a self-made pauper. But, thank God, we are still spared. We may learn in time so as to benefit throughout Eternity.

RENT DEFAULTERS.

Luke 20:9-18.

Before the Great War we frequently heard of "moonlight flitters"-families so deeply in debt, and so hopeless so far as payment of debts was concerned, that some night they removed their goods, quietly and secretively, to another town or entirely strange neighbourhood, beginning life afresh. So scarce have houses been since the war, that insolvent householders have had to resort to other stratagems. In Luke 20:9-18, we have rent defaulters, who resorted to murder as a way out of debt. The householder in the parable was more than owner of this vineyard, for he had planted it, and thus stood in a close and personal association to it. In the East there is no property so valuable, nor which yields returns so large, as vineyards. This man planted the vineyard, protected it by a wall, ornamented it by a tower, then let it out to husbandmen on the understanding that part of its proceeds would be handed over as rent. For three years the fruit was, according to ancient custom, ungathered; in the fourth year it was all holy unto the Lord; in the fifth year the tenants and owners could eat and begin to benefit by its growth (Leviticus 19:23-25).

During that long period the husbandmen contrived to forget that they were tenants and not owners. And when the owner sent his servants for his just due, ill-treated them, driving them empty away. The patience of the owner is wonderful-a representation of the wonderful and infinite patience and longsuffering of God. At last we have his dilemma, enshrined in those four simple words, "What shall I do?" But even his beloved son was rejected, and his murder decided upon. The history of Israel is summed up in this dark picture. The One who planted the vineyard was God; the vineyard, the land of Israel; the husbandmen, Israel, particularly the leaders of the nations; the servants, the prophets; the son, the Lord Jesus Christ. But there is an application of this parable to you and me. What we have belongs to God-our very life, possessions, time, friends, all. There is no time when God does not demand of us His rightful dues. He sends us His servants-more, His Son, the Lord Jesus, and the Holy Spirit. Have we sent them empty away? Be warned, there is a limit to His patience, when judgment will fall. THE PARABLE OF UNLIKENESS.

Luke 18:1-8.

How will the parable known as that of the unmerciful judge in Luke 18:1-8, look re-christened? Suppose we call it the parable of unlikeness! At any rate that brings out the principal lesson it conveys.

We are informed as to why our Lord related it. There are lots of things we ought to do, and here is one: "Men ought always to pray and not to faint." The judge in this parable was a reckless and desperate character. For he had no respect for God or the opinions of his fellows. This combination is rare. Even the worst have usually some regard for the opinions of their fellow-mortals. Not so this official. A widow is in the case. The exceeding desolation of widowhood in the East has often been noticed. Yet the Bible has a tender regard for them. God has been pleased to reveal Himself as "Father to the fatherless, and Judge of the widows," and Jeremiah 49:11 has been a comfort to many a dying husband and father. Being weak, she could not compel the judge to do her justice; and being poor, with no bribe to offer which should induce him to brave, for her sake, the resentment of formidable adversaries-what a helpless condition was she in to be sure. The self-pleasing indolence of the judge, and the helpless yet desperate condition of the suppliant-what a contrast! Is that Judge a picture of our God? Is that why our Lord related it? Never. There is only one answer to that question, an emphatic "No!" Blessings are not to be dragged out of Him. He is not unwilling to come to our aid. We have not to "Wear me out" (as R.V.) before gaining our requests. The strength of the parable lies in the unlikeness of this judge to the Judge of all the earth. There may be, and indeed are, times in the experience of the very best of us, when God seems to be deaf to the earnest pleadings of His people. Certainly the Lord's people usually expect a speedier deliverance than the Master vouchsafes to give. Yet we can trust. The great point in the parable is this: If a bad man will yield to the mere force of the importunity which he hates, how much more certainly will a righteous God be prevailed on by the faithful and believing prayers which He loves.

Yes, verily, this is the Parable of Unlikeness!

TRUE NEIGHBOURLINESS.

Luke 10:25-37.

"I would dedicate the nation to the policy of the Good Samaritan," was a statement of President Roosevelt, of the U.S.A., in his inaugural address, so much had the parable of the Good Samaritan (in Luke 10:25-37) impressed him. Regarding a good man of God, his biographer remarked concerning his philanthropies, "He never stopped to ask, Who is my neighbour." Precisely; real love to God and man never does. Unmeasured service to all, the outcome of true love, is the order of the day to a real man or woman of God in following the example of the Good Samaritan, our Lord Jesus Christ. And by the way, note how wonderfully, by this glowing parable, our Lord has rescued from reproach the word, Samaritan. It was the name given in derision to the mixed folk who colonised Samaria after the deportation of the nine and a half tribes to Babylon, and was never repeated by a Jew but in scorn and hatred. To be called a Samaritan was considered a great insult. But our Saviour, by this charming parable, has rescued that word from the pillory.

Another good service has our Lord accomplished by this famous story. The good people of that day had divorced worship from practical service. By this parable our blessed Master united again in holy wedlock, these two branches of Christian conduct, so that we now never conceive them as apart, but the one united with the other. Who is my neighbour? The rabbis of that day taught that Jews were to "love thy neighbour-in the Law," three words that meant all the difference in the world. By this matchless parable the Lord Jesus taught that every needy one whom we can help, is my neighbour; that neighbourly responsibility has nothing to do with race, church, creed, and social status; that neighbourhood is not a matter of geography, for we can live in close proximity to other folk without being neighbourly. Truly, sorrow, need, sympathy, and help, are of no nationality. This parable forbids all limitations to mercy.

I. The Case.

1. "He went down." This is geographically correct, for Jericho is six hundred feet below the Mediterranean.

2. He was stripped before being wounded. This would never happen in our country. The one attacked would be felled, then robbed. But there is no mistake here. The bandits did not want the garments damaged, as they formed an important part of the spoil. How true to Eastern life. This road was so dangerous that it came to be called "The Red Road"

3. The Silent eloquence of the battered and bleeding body.

4. The Priest would be on his way back from exercising his priestly office in the Temple at Jerusalem. Twelve thousand priests resided at Jericho. Why did he pass by? Was he so eager to reach his home after his absence? Was he unwilling to be ceremonially defiled, as he may have been? Or was he looking after the safety of No. 1, deciding that the robbers, who had maltreated so seriously this poor fellow, would be lurking behind some of the local rocks, ready to pounce upon any one dismounting to render first aid?

5. The Levite. This is the only mention of the Levites in the Gospels. He did go up to the poor fellow, looked, and then passed by, thus he was guilty of aggravated cruelty.

6. "By Chance." The only time in the Gospels that our Lord used the word, indeed the only occurrence in the New Testament of the word. Our Lord seems to use it with a touch of irony. Really, it was a loving ordering of God. There is no chance in the Christian vocabulary.

7. The Samaritan. The genius of true love is shown in his acts. He ignored the possible lurking robbers; he was swift, cool, deft in his actions; he was ready to spend and be spent; he cheerfully sacrificed the use of his beast; the care for the patient at the end of the journey is touching, and we all admire his prudence in not leaving a great sum of money in the host's hand, and his wise hint that he would await his account on his way back. What a combination of compassion blended with shrewdness.

II. The Application. Ah, there is no problem in the story. Even a child can understand it. The poor man is-well, you and me; and the Good Samaritan is none other than the Lord Jesus. Man has gone down, left the City of Peace for the City of the Curse, turned his back on the Temple and on God, and stripped of holiness and goodness, left lifeless. The Law, symbolised by the priest, cannot help; and ceremony, in the person of the Levite, is of no avail. But our Good Samaritan has come to the rescue. "What daring intelligence would ever have suggested that the Lord Jesus Christ should, find 'His neighbour' in a fallen world? Who would ever have thought that God would have chosen us to be His 'neighbour?' That He should come where we are, that He should bend over us with a heart glowing with love, and pour into our wounds the sweet solace of His own anointing oil, or breathe into our lifeless being the supernatural energy of His own eternal life. Not less than this, Divine love has actually effected." THE CROSS AND THE INDIVIDUAL.

What fierce attacks have been made for centuries upon that great fundamental fact of our Christian faith, the substitutionary aspect of the death of Christ. The enemies of our faith know full well, that with the fall, or even the obscuring of that aspect of His atoning death, our Christianity will collapse. But, thank God, the Cross it standeth fast, Alleluia! Yet we cannot hide the fact that the silence of our college professors, and our present-day preachers, is giving us very great concern. When, think you, did you last hear a discourse in your Assembly Chapel, or Church, on the atoning death of our Saviour? But further, you who minister the Word, what is the date of your last discourse on the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ? The replies in many cases will be disconcerting. Verily, the fall of the Cross will mean the fall of England, or of any other professedly Christian country. The same is true of each individual. We, too, shall either stand or fall according to our relation to the Cross. Yea, we are already either still unsaved fallen creatures, if we have not yet realised and received Christ and His atoning death. This is clearly seen in the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, found in Luke 18:9-14; the difference in these two men is in their relations to the Cross, or rather to the truth that the Cross stands for. In the first, whilst there is much to admire, we note the utter absence of all consciousness of sin, and of feeling the need of the Atonement, and he was and remained an unsaved person. In the other, there was a plea for mercy through the atonement-God's way of salvation. This is clearly seen by consulting the Revised Version where, instead of merely, "God be merciful to me a sinner," we find, "God be propitiated to me, the sinner," or as a reliable Greek authority has pointed out, it could be very literally rendered, "God show mercy through sacrifice to me, the sinner." This we shall develop.

Please observe that this is not a parable about prayer, but about justification. The parable of prayer is in the first few verses of this chapter. To whom was this parable addressed?

(1) Those who" trust in themselves"-not the Lord.

(2) To those who despise others, not because of a hatred of sin, but because of an imagined moral superiority over others. The late Mark Guy Pearse told of visiting a home, where the father and husband, a man of culture and education, sat drunk and acting like a fool. As he was leaving the house, the wife with tears exclaimed, "Oh, pray to God for me, that I may be kept from despising him!" It was not this kind of despising, our Lord had in mind; it was what spiritual pride prompts one to think, and act, and say.

Prayer reveals character. True character always comes out in this way. Let us see how the characters of these two men were revealed by their prayers.

I. The Pharisee.

1. He was a good man. He could say that he was "not as other men." Somehow the very name of Pharisee is suggestive to us of hypocrisy, but that is a mistake. A hypocrite is an actor-one who pretends to be something he isn't, and knows it. A good many profess to be what they are not, and they are quite unaware of the fact that they are not what they profess to be. Such are self-deceived, but certainly are not hypocrites. So with the Pharisee. This Pharisee really thought he was a good man, and he was, according to mere earthly standards.

2. He Was an honest man. He was "not an extortioner." That he could truthfully say. Now the Publicans (the name in the Bible for the tax-collectors) were notorious for this. The late Professor Henry Drum-mond considered that "dishonesty is as great a sin as drunkenness," but this Pharisee was an honest man.

3. He was a just man. He could say he was "not unjust," that is to say, he was fair in his dealings with his fellows. The Golden Rule he admired and practised. He did unto others as he wished to be done to.

4. He was a virtuous man. He could say that he was not "an adulterer," for he had full control over his passions, and not only respected but obeyed the law.

5. He was a temperate man, because he could say that he "fasted twice in the week." Moses only appointed one fast in the year, in connection with the great day of Atonement, but this man improved upon the Mosaic instructions, and had such wonderful control over his own healthy legitimate appetites that he was able to fast twice in every week!

6. He was a benevolent man. "I give tithes of all that I possess." Now Moses only enjoined the tithing of the fruits of the earth and the increase of the cattle, and therefore the Israelites was not commanded to tithe all; but you will observe that the Pharisee could say truthfully that he gave tithes of all that he possessed.

7. He was a grateful man. "I thank Thee," and he had much to be thankful for. By careful training, and by the wholesome restraint of the law and society, he had been saved from much outward sin. There are thousands of young people associated with our assemblies, mission halls, churches, and chapels, who have similarly been preserved from outward sinful excesses, who have never done as much as the Pharisee, for they have never yet thanked God for this wholesome and blessed restraint.

Having said all this, the reader might express astonishment and say, "Surely the Pharisee was a model citizen, and what more could be expected of him?" Ah, there was an utter absence of any consciousness of sin or of personal unworthiness. His prayer was weighted with pride, and did not rise any higher than himself. You will observe that whilst he was grateful, he presented no request for grace, and he received none. This unfortunate state of mind and soul was undoubtedly brought about by a wrong idea of sin, and a wrong idea of religion. He evidently knew sin simply as transgression, whereas that is only one aspect of it, for it is written, not only that "sin is the transgression of the Law," but also that "All unrighteousness is sin." Then his idea of religion was a mere round of duties to be observed and practised. Take care there is no latent Pharisee in any of us.

II. The Publican. Seven is the perfect number, and it is to be observed that in our Authorised Version his prayer consists of only seven words; yet the Authorised Version rather clouds and hides several important truths. The late Bishop Daniel Wilson of Calcutta directed in his will that on a tablet to his memory in the Cathedral, should be engraved these words in Greek as so much more emphatic than the English. The Revised Version marginal rendering is to be commended, "God be propitiated to me, the sinner." What do we learn from this prayer?

1. He accounted himself unworthy of approach to God. "He stood afar off"-in the Court of the Gentiles. Though a Jew, he dare not venture any further than the Court of the Gentiles. He was "conscious that his sins had distanced him from God. But, blessed be the Lord, though the Publican stood afar from God in conscious unworthiness, God did not stand afar from him. He is nigh unto all that are of a broken and contrite spirit

2. He confessed himself to be the worst of sinners. Not "a sinner" as in the Authorised Version, but "the sinner," as in the Revised Version. He recognised the heinousness of sin, and his cry was that of a soul terrified by the horror of sin, and a sense of punishment.

3. He acknowledged the only channel of mercy to be the atonement of God. Without doubt he had brought his sin offering, and after it had been killed, was being offered up on the altar, and he prayed in effect that God would show mercy through that substitute already being offered, to him a sacrifice that prefigured the great one our Lord was to offer. Might we suggest to all respectable sinners that both these prayers be united. Gratefully thanking Him for all the restraints with which

He has surrounded you, and for so mercifully preserving you from sowing the wild oats, then cry for His pardoning and justifying mercy through the atoning death of Jesus Christ. "God be propitiated, through sacrifice, to me, the sinner."

RECEIVING!

One has splendidly pointed out that:

1. To Look is receiving with the eyes.

2. To Hear is receiving with the ears.

3. To Take is receiving with the hands.

4. To Taste is receiving with the mouth.

5. To Come is receiving with the feet.

6. To Trust is receiving with the heart.

7. To Choose is receiving with the will.

Fruitfulness

FRUITFULNESS.

I. Before Fruit there must be Life. "Severed from Me," says Christ, "ye can do nothing" (John 15:5). He is the Living One, and is come that we might have life. We never look for fruit from a dead tree. A soul dead in sin (Ephesians 2:1) can never bring forth the fruits of righteousness. There must first be a planting into Christ (Romans 4:5). "He that hath the Son hath life" (1 John 5:12).

II. There must be Entire Surrender to the New Conditions. If the roots of the tree do not strike out into the new soil in which it has been transplanted it will not prosper. In Php_3:9-10 Paul speaks of being found in Him, the source of life, then he says: "That I may know Him"-a growing acquaintance with Him. The branch must be entirely passive to the power of the vine. Yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead (Romans 6:13). The fruit of the self-life is corrupt. Crucify the flesh with its lusts; grow in the knowledge of God. This whole-hearted surrender to the grace and power of the Spirit of God opens the way into the heart and life so that God can enter in and work mightily (Ephesians 3:16-17).

III. Fulness must come before Fruitfulness. The branch will not bear fruit until it has been filled to overflowing with the sustaining sap. The cup will not run over until it has been filled. If rivers of water are to flow out of us the unfailing spring must rise up and fill all within (John 7:38-39). A dissatisfied heart will bear but a poor, dissatisfying testimony for Christ. If the roots of our being are spread out by the river, by the way of the Holy Spirit, then we shall not cease from yielding fruit (Jeremiah 17:8).

IV. The Character of the Fruit.

1. It will be new fruit (Ezekiel 47:12). It does not belong to the unregenerate man. It is not the fruit of the flesh; not the outcome of an energetic self-life. The corrupt tree has been made good by being created anew by the Spirit of God. It is fruit unto holiness (John 1:13).

2. It will be fruit according to the nature of the tree. You cannot gather figs from thorns, or grapes from thistles. The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, etc. (Galatians 5:22), not the fruit of the Christian. The fruit of the Spirit, you observe, is just the likeness of Christ. Ye are partakers of the divine nature. As fruit is the result of the living, moving sap within, so the image and characteristics of Christ are wrought in the believer by the living, moving Spirit within. From Me is thy fruit found. It is the work of God, and the evidence of a soul being fully possessed by Him. Where there is the fulness of the indwelling Spirit there must be the manifestation of the Christ-likeness. Death is the way to life and fruitfulness. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit" (John 12:24).

Chapter 94

A Bible Christian

A BIBLE CHRISTIAN. A sect called "Bible Christians" had their origin in England in the year 1815. They took this name because they professed to stick fast to the Bible. Every Christian is a "Bible Christian," holding fast to Christ and His Word of truth. Every other Christian is a sham. A "Bible Christian" is a Christian after the order of the Bible. He is-

1. One who Trusts in Christ (Ephesians 1:12). One who has been convicted by the Spirit, made to feel his need of Christ, and who has, by a deliberate act of His own will, transferred all his confidence to Him. He has a settled faith in Him as the almighty and infallible Son of God.

2. One who has Life through Christ (John 6:37). He was alienated from the life of God, but now he is by faith engrafted into it. Through receiving Him who is the "Living Bread" life has been imparted, a new creature formed-born of God-partaker of the divine nature. This is life eternal.

3. One who has Love to Christ (1 John 4:19). Love is the first evidence of a regenerated heart. When the love of God is shed abroad in the heart it will rise up in all its strength and fulness to Him from whence it came. It is a love that now believes and rejoices with joy unspeakable (1 Peter 1:8).

4. One who has Fellowship with Christ (1 John 1:3). This fellowship is sweet because there is intense love on both sides. "Lord, to whom can we go?" (John 6:68). There is none on earth the new-born soul desires besides Him. "If Thy presence go not with us, carry us not hence" (Exodus 33:15). "Abide in Me" (John 15:4).

5. One who Works for Christ (2 Corinthians 6:1). "Whose I am, and whom I serve" (Acts 27:23). Belonging to Him and living for Him it is his privilege not only to work for Christ but to work with Him. This is the more excellent way: God working in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure. Delivered to serve.

6. One whose Resources are in Christ (Colossians 2:9-10). All the fulness of the Godhead is in Him, and ye are in Him. Abiding in Christ he receives, as a branch in the vine, all the fulness of Him who is his life, his strength, his power, his all. The unsearchable riches of Christ! What are they? All is yours, for ye are Christ's.

7. One who will be Rewarded by Christ (2 Corinthians 5:10). Every Christian will be saved, but every Christian will not be rewarded. Rewards are only given for works done in His Name and for His glory (1 Corinthians 3:13-15). Salvation is a gift. Rewards must be earned. Christ Himself will fix the value of every deed done (Matthew 25:19-25).

8. One who will Spend Eternity with Christ (John 17:24). This great privilege is promised in John 14:3, prayed for in John 17:24, and realised in Revelation 5:9. A little girl said she lived where mamma lives. Our fitness to be with Him will be our likeness to Him (1 John 3:2). For ever with the Lord.

Chapter 95

Visited And Redeemed

VISITED AND REDEEMED.

Luke 1:46. A PROPHETIC SONG.

I. The Visitor. The Lord God. (1) The need of a Visitor. -Man's lost and helpless condition. (2) The Promise. -"I will surely visit you" (Exodus 3:16). (3) The Wonder. -"What is man that Thou visitest him. ?" (Psalms 8:4). (4) The manner. -"God was in Christ reconciling the world" (2 Corinthians 5:19).

II. The Visited. His People. (1) They knew Him not (John 1:11). (2) They knew not their time of visitation (Luke 19:44). (3) They rejected Him (John 19:14).

III. The Purpose. To Redeem. (1) Who? Thy Maker is thy Redeemer (Isaiah 54:5). (2) How? By giving Himself a ransom (Matthew 20:28). (3) What from? (Titus 2:14). (4) What to? To God, to holiness, and to service (Luke 1:74-75).

Chapter 96

Visited And Redeemed

EZEKIEL'S CALL AND COMMISSION.

There are four distinct positions in which we find Ezekiel that seem to characterise the state and privilege of the Christian in a very striking way.

I. We see Him as an Exile. "I was among the captives" (chap. Matthew 1:1). He had his place among those who were helplessly shut out. This is a humbling position, but we must take our place among sinners and rebels if we would see the salvation of God. No good can come by denying that we are captives. It is no use boasting of liberty when we know that our lives are enslaved by lust and sin, by the pleasures and fashions of the world. While among the captives he said, "The heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God" (chap. Matthew 1:1). The heavens will always open and visions of God be given to those who acknowledge their true state before God and look up. The sum of the likeness was "the likeness of a man" (Matthew 25:5). All satisfying vision is in the revelation of Him who is the Man Christ Jesus. In Him we get a vision of God. He is the image of the invisible God. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John 14:9). What a vision this is! It is the opening up before our eyes of the love, mercy, power, and glory that dwell in the great and gracious heart of God. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matthew 5:8).

II. We see Him as an Ambassador. Having seen God, he is now to be prepared as a messenger for God. We testify what we have seen.

1. He is Called. "Stand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee" (chap. Matthew 2:1). He is now face to face with God, and must have to do with His Word. God speaks to us before we are sent to speak for Him.

2. He is Helped. "The Spirit entered into me when He spake unto me" (Matthew 25:2). The Spirit always enters when God speaks. His Word is with power. The result of both is a setting up. We are never properly set up till we have heard the Word of God in the power of the Holy Ghost. After this we are in the right attitude to hear (Matthew 25:2).

3. He is Commissioned. "And He said, Son of man, I will send thee" (Matthew 25:3-4). The commission comes after being taught of God by the entering of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Ghost-the great Teacher come from God- 'rested upon the early disciples before they became witnesses for Him. The secret of authority and power for service lie in these words, "I send thee."

4. He is Filled with His Message. "Son of man, eat this roll, and fill thy bowels with this roll that I give thee" (chap. Matthew 3:1-3). Even the Word of God will not have much power at our lips if we have not eaten it for ourselves The truth as it is in Jesus must be in us as the strength and satisfaction of our own hearts if it is to influence others.

5. He is Encouraged. "Son of man, be not afraid of them, neither of their words" (chap. Matthew 2:6). It is so needful that the servant of God should find all his succour in Himself, because the words and faces of those to whom He is sent are often very stout. He is to "speak My words, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear" (Matthew 25:7).

6. He is Led and Empowered. "The Spirit lifted me up, and I went in bitterness, but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me" (chap. Matthew 3:12-14). Filled with the Word of God, and led by the Spirit of God in bitterness and sorrow. How Christlike is this experience before us here. Ezekiel was obedient to the guiding Spirit, and the hand of almighty power was upon Him. The willing servant will have his reward (1 Corinthians 9:16).

III. We see Him as a Watchman. In chapter Matthew 3:17 we hear God saying to him, "Son of man, I have made thee a watchman." To be a watchman for God we must have the eye-opening, soul-transforming vision of God (Acts 9:1-15). We must be lifted high up by the Holy Spirit, far above all principalities and powers. Those in the valley cannot see afar off. We need to be raised and seated with Christ in the heavenlies before we can see men and things as they really are in the sight of God. The work of the watchman is-

1. A Work of Warning. "To warn the wicked of his wicked way" (Matthew 25:18), and also to warn the backsliding righteous man (Matthew 25:20). Sinners are to be warned to flee from the wrath to come, and Christians to beware of becoming a stumbling-block by an un-Christlike life. It also is-

2. A Work of Great Responsibility. "His blood will I require at thy hand" (Matthew 25:20). Are our hands and garments clean?

IV. We see Him as a Sign. "I have set thee for a sign" (chap. Matthew 12:1-7). In these verses the words "in their sight" occur seven times. Ezekiel was to live before the people as a sign for God. Ye are epistles of Christ, known and read of all men. Every Christian is to be a sign to the world of the grace and power of God. The life is the light. A sign is a silent testimony. It may be the look of love, or the sigh of sympathy. A tear has often melted the hardened heart. God commanded the prophet, saying, "Sigh, therefore, thou son of man; sigh before their eyes" (chap. Matthew 21:6). It is easier to be a watchman than a sign; easier telling men what they ought to do than sighing over their sins and wickedness. Paul was a true sign when he wrote, "I tell you, even weeping" (Php_3:18). The men who sigh and cry are marked men (chap. Matthew 9:4). "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted" (Matthew 5:4). May God by His Holy Spirit lift us up into the compassion and tenderness of Him who wept over Jerusalem!

The Image Of God

THE IMAGE OF GOD.

It is interesting to notice how the image of God is connected with four prominent men in the Scriptures. Observe-

I. The Image of God Created in the First Man. "The first man Adam was made a living soul" (1 Corinthians 15:45). "God created man in His own image" (Genesis 1:26). He did not rest satisfied until His own likeness was manifested. This was the great end of creation, to reproduce the image of Him who created. The first man was to save all who believe (1 Timothy 4:10); He came like God-

1. In being a Spirit. His life was a separate thing from the mere animal creation. God created the beasts, but He did not breathe into them the breath of His own life, as He did to man. Adam only was capable of knowing God.

2. In being Immortal. The deeper and more real life of Adam was independent of outward and material things. In receiving the breath of God he was a partaker of the divine.

3. In being Holy. He was, as yet, an utter stranger to anything unlike or displeasing to God.

4. In being Satisfied. Between the Holy Creator and the new created likeness there was perfect harmony and mutual delight. God saw Himself in man, and man saw himself in God. In each other's image there was complete satisfaction.

5. In having Dominion. Adam was the crown' of creation, exalted high over all, ruling in the power and authority of the Almighty Maker of all.

II. The Image of God Destroyed in the Old Man. In Ephesians 4:22 we are told, "Put off the old man, which is corrupt." Compare the first new man Adam with this old man. What a change! Where is the holiness, the happiness, and the harmony? Sin has poisoned and polluted all. Nothing left but an immortal spirit at war with God. This old man is so utterly ruined that there is no hope for him. We are to put him off with his deeds (Colossians 3:9). Where are we to put him? The only place fit for him is the cross. "Your old man is crucified with Him" (Romans 6:6). The absence of the image of God means corruption and death.

III. The Image of God Manifested in the Second Man.

"The Second Man is the Lord from Heaven" (1 Corinthians 15:47). As if all who came between were unworthy of the Name. In Jesus Christ the image of God reappears in perfect beauty. He is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of His Person (Hebrews 1:3). He is the image of the invisible God (Colossians 1:15). Man lost the holy likeness; God alone could restore it. When we see Jesus we see the Father, and see what man should have been and what man should be, walking in holiness and in humble, joyful, unbroken fellowship with God. Christ came to seek and to save that which was lost. By His death, resurrection, and holy Spirit He renews, restores, and rejoices.

IV. The Image of God restored in the New Man.

"And have put on the New Man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created him" (Colossians 3:10) We put on the Lord Jesus Christ (Romans 13:14), and are created in Christ Jesus (Ephesians 2:10). "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature" (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Take note that this restoration work can only be done by the God whose image is to be created, and that it is a creation rather than a reformation. Those who go about to establish their own righteousness will never establish themselves in the likeness of God. This is not a matter of so many deeds or actions, but a renewing of the spirit of the mind by the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit, "Ye must be born again" (John 3:7). Let your prayer be, "Create in me a clean heart, 0 God, and renew a right spirit within me"(Psalms 51:10).

Chapter 98

The Church

THE CHURCH.

There are two great wonders in the world-the Jew and the Church. The first is a witness to the Christ rejected; the second to the Christ risen.

I. Its Marvellous Character.

1. It is a Distinct Body. There is the Jew, the Gentile, and the Church of God (1 Corinthians 10:32). The Church is neither Jew nor Gentile, although both may be in it. The Jew looks for a coming Messiah; the Church for a Bridegroom. The Gentile cares for none of these things.

2. It is His Own Making. "Upon this Rock I will build My Church" (Matthew 16:18). He Himself, as the Christ, the Son of the Living God, is the foundation laid in Zion-a stone tried, precious, and sure (Isaiah 28:16). He also does the building by His Holy Spirit, planting believing souls into Himself, as living stones into the living foundation. It is God that worketh in you.

3. It is Called out for His Own Name. "God did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for His Name" (Acts 15:14). The Church of God, like His people of old, have been formed for Himself to show forth His praise (Isaiah 43:21). This work of out calling has been committed to the Holy Ghost, is going on just now, and will continue until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. Make your calling sure.

4. It is Filled with His Fulness (Ephesians 1:22-23). Each individual member of His body is brought into contact with the power and wisdom of the Great Head. Grow up into Him in all things (Ephesians 4:15). All fulness dwells in Him. Abide in Him. The world cannot see the invisible head, but it does look upon His visible body. How needful that it should be true to Him!

II. Its Present Privileges.

1. It Occupies till He Comes (Luke 19:12-15). It has been left in the place of service, entrusted with gifts, to be used during the Lord's absence, and to be accounted for when He comes. Its true position is "In Christ's stead" (2 Corinthians 5:20), occupying Christ's place till He come. Is the mind and purpose of our absent Lord being fulfilled in us now? Are we occupying for Him, or for ourselves?

2. It Suffers for Him. Suffering is part of the heritage of the Christian. "Even hereunto were ye called" (1 Peter 2:20-21). If any man will live godly he must suffer. The members of the body are so closely connected with the rejected head that they must suffer. Blessed fellowship. "If ye be reproached for the Name of Christ, happy are ye, for the Spirit of Glory and of God resteth upon you. Therefore glorify God on this behalf" (1 Peter 4:14-16).

3. It is a Co-Worker with Him (2 Corinthians 6:1). "Labourers together with God" (1 Corinthians 3:9). Surely the members of the body ought to labour together with the head. What if they should not? If the service of the hand or foot is not controlled by and in harmony with the will of the head, what is it worth? As Eve was to be an helpmeet to Adam, so the Church is to be to Christ. His will is to be done in us and through us. The head has no other means of working but by the use of the members of the body.

III. Its Future Prospects.

1. It Looks for Him. He has said, "I will come again." "This same Jesus shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go" (Acts 1:11). They wait for His Son from Heaven (1 Thessalonians 1:10). The Bride longs for the Bridegroom. Love yearns for fellowship.

2. It Expects to be Caught up by Him. The Lord Himself shall descend, and we shall be caught up together to meet the Lord (1 Thessalonians 4:16). In olden times powerful men would steal away their brides. It will be a rapturous experience to be caught up in the arms of our Beloved and borne to the home of eternal rest.

3. It Expects to be Made like Him. "We look for the Saviour, who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body" (Php_3:20-21). We are to be like Him now in the inward spirit, fashioned by the Holy Spirit. Like Him then in outward form, when the sons of God are manifested (1 John 3:1-3).

4. It Expects to be Married to Him. "The marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready" (Revelation 19:7). Just now the Church, like Rebekah, is on her way through the desert to meet and marry the Father's beloved Son, into whose hands all things have been committed (Gen. 24).

5. It Expects to Reign with Him. "They shall reign with Him" (Revelation 20:6). "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world" (1 Corinthians 6:2). "Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth" (Revelation 5:10). What a high calling this is! He that hath this hope in him purifieth Himself, as He is pure, a hope that maketh not ashamed.
