Description

A.B. Simpson emphasizes the promise of sanctification through Jesus, who is our source of obedience, rest, and strength. He reassures believers that with Jesus, no external forces, including temptations and life's challenges, can prevail against them. The presence of Christ deepens their reliance on Him, transforming trials into opportunities for spiritual growth. Simpson encourages listeners to embrace their identity in Christ, reminding them that God is for them, and thus, nothing can stand against them. The sermon culminates in a call to respond to Jesus' invitation to a deeper relationship.

Transcript

Are you missing what belongs to you? Jesus has promised to sanctify you. He has promised sanctification for you by coming to you Himself and being made of God to you sanctification. Jesus is our sanctification. Having Him, we have obedience, rest, patience and everything we need. He is alive forevermore. If you have Jesus nothing can be against you. Your temptations will not be against you. Your bad temper will not be against you. Your hard life, your circumstances-even the devil himself will not be against you. Every time he comes to attack you, he will only root you deeper in Christ. You will become a coward at the thought of being alone; you will be thrown on Jesus every time a trouble confronts you.

From now on, all things will work together for good to your spiritual welfare.

Since God is for you nothing can be against you. My heavenly Bridegroom sought me and called me one glad day. "Arise, my love, my fair one, arise and come away," I listened to His pleading, gave Him all my heart, And we are one forever and nevermore shall part.
