

The Church Must Wake Up to Her Duty.

by Andrew Murray

The church must wake up to its duty to bring true revival and conquer the world for God.

Scripture: Matthew 28:19

Topics: "Revival", "Church's Duty"

Description

Andrew Murray emphasizes the urgent need for the church to awaken to its duty in reviving true spiritual life and fulfilling its mission to reclaim the world for God. He highlights the dire consequences of the church's failure to engage in this vital work, noting that the salvation of millions and the glory of God depend on the church's active participation. Murray calls for a deep realization of the power of the flesh and the world, urging believers to move beyond a selfish and worldly religion to embrace their calling.

If there is to be a true revival it must be the revival of a deep, a true spiritual life. From this point of view let us study the missionary revival we wish to pray for.

Think of its infinite importance. Look at God's world fallen away from him, under the power of the evil one, who is now the god of this world. The church has been taken by Christ into partnership in his great work of conquering the world for God. She has failed terribly in her duty.

All the pleadings of God's servants during the last hundred years -- how little results they have brought. And is not this the one thing under the sun that is of more consequence than any other?

In the history of states and individuals there are thousands of things of exceeding interest and importance. But does this not exceed and overpower all -- that God shall have the world back again -- that a perishing world shall know the salvation of God?

Again I say, the glory of God and the salvation of millions depends on this, that the church wakes up to her duty.

Think of its urgent need. Nothing less will avail. We need to realize the power of the flesh and the world, as seen in a selfish and worldly religion.
