Description

A.W. Tozer emphasizes that faith grows through active use, inspired by George Mueller's belief that even small faith can lead to miraculous outcomes when exercised through prayer. He encourages believers to start trusting God with small requests, which can build their faith over time. Tozer points out that everyone possesses some level of faith, and the key difference lies in the willingness to act on it. He reminds us that God desires to be invited into our lives through persistent prayer, especially in challenging times. Ultimately, Tozer calls for a commitment to prayer, urging that it is essential for both personal growth and the world's healing.

Transcript

It was a saying of George Mueller that faith grows with use. If we would have great faith we must begin to use the little faith we already have. Put it to work by reverent and faithful praying, and it will grow and become stronger day by day. Dare today to trust God for something small and ordinary and next week or next year you may be able to trust Him for answers bordering on the miraculous. Everyone has some faith, said Mueller; the difference among us is one of degree only, and the man of small faith may be simply the one who has not dared to exercise the little faith he has. According to the Bible, we have because we ask, or we have not because we ask not. It does not take much wisdom to discover our next move.

Is it not to pray, and pray again and again till the answer comes?

God waits to be invited to display His power in behalf of His people. The world situation is such that nothing less than God can straighten it out. Let us not fail the world and disappoint God by failing to pray.
