

Sermon Quote on Playing Our Way to Hell

by A.W. Tozer

Failing to come into right relation to Jesus Christ leads to moral suicide and eternal damnation.

Duration: 0:50

Scripture: Matthew 7:21

Topics: "Salvation Assurance", "Eternal Condemnation"

Description

This sermon emphasizes the critical importance of not taking salvation for granted, highlighting the certainty of being lost if one does not establish a right relationship with Jesus Christ. It warns against moral suicide and the dangers of being misled by superficial influences, stressing the need for sincere commitment to Christ to avoid playing one's way into hell.

Transcript

Now, don't take it for granted. Remember, you're not gambling. You're guaranteeing that you'll be lost.

To fail to come into right relation to Jesus Christ is to commit moral suicide. Young people particularly, in this terrible hour of putrefaction and corruption, in this frightful hour of shallowness and superficiality, when our youth are being led astray by people who ought to know better, and they're romping and kicking up their heels and playing their way into the kingdom, and playing their way off to heaven, only to find they've played their way to hell.
