

The Danger of Modifying the Good News

by A.W. Tozer

A.W. Tozer warns against compromising the gospel to attract larger numbers, emphasizing the need to uphold God's honor and truth.

Scripture: Isaiah 6:3, Romans 3:23, Galatians 1:6

Topics: "Holiness Of God", "Integrity of the Gospel"

Description

A.W. Tozer emphasizes the critical importance of upholding the honor of God over merely increasing the number of converts. He warns against the temptation to modify the Good News for the sake of attracting larger crowds, arguing that such compromises dishonor God and harm souls. Tozer insists that the message of the gospel must include the acknowledgment of human sinfulness and God's holiness, as failing to do so leads to a weakened faith and spiritual desolation. He calls for a steadfast commitment to the unaltered truth of Christ, urging believers to resist the pressures of a fast-paced, numbers-driven society.

Transcript

Our constant effort should be to reach as many persons as possible with the Christian message, and for that reason numbers are critically important. But our first responsibility is not to make converts but to uphold the honor of God in a world given over to the glory of fallen man. No matter how many persons we touch with the gospel we have failed unless, along with the message of invitation, we have boldly declared the exceeding sinfulness of man and the transcendent holiness of the Most High God. They who degrade or compromise the truth in order to reach larger numbers, dishonor God and deeply injure the souls of men.

The temptation to modify the teachings of Christ with the hope that larger numbers may "accept" Him is cruelly strong in this day of speed, size, noise and crowds.

But if we know what is good for us, we'll resist it with every power at our command. To yield can only result in a weak and ineffective Christianity in this generation, and death and desolation in the next.
