

The Secret Working of God

by A.W. Tozer

The secret working of God in our lives is a mysterious and unpredictable reality that requires sensitivity and a willingness to respond to His call.

Scripture: John 6:44, Romans 8:16, Ephesians 2:8

Topics: "Conversion", "Divine Calling"

Description

A.W. Tozer emphasizes the secret and mysterious workings of God in the human heart, recounting his own experience of conversion despite being raised in an environment devoid of faith. He reflects on the inexplicable nature of his desire for God at a young age, attributing it to the divine influence of the Holy Spirit. Tozer encourages listeners to recognize and respond to the Spirit's call, affirming that genuine conversion is a profound and undeniable experience. He urges those who feel the tug of God on their hearts to embrace it and follow the light of Christ.

Transcript

I do believe in the secret and mysterious working of God in the human breast. I must believe it after finding the forgiving and converting grace of God in the Savior, Jesus Christ. My father and mother held high human standards, but completely without any thought of God. My parents appeared to be without any spark of desire after God; attitudes that were cold, earthy, profane. Can you tell me why, then, at the age of 17, as a boy surrounded by unbelief-100 percent-I could find my way to my mother's attic, kneel on my knees, and give my heart and life in committal to Jesus Christ? I cannot tell you why.

I can only say that I know there is such a thing as the secret workings of God within the human being who has a sensitivity to hear the call of God.

In my own case, I do have the testimony that my conversion to Jesus Christ was as real as any man's conversion has ever been! My fellow man, if the Spirit of God is still tugging at your heart, thank God-and follow the light!
