

Preaching Prohibition

by Billy Sunday

Prohibition is essential to maintaining a civilized society based on moral principles and faith in God.

Duration: 2:05

Scripture: Exodus 20:13, Exodus 20:15-17, Matthew 6:33, Romans 13:1, 1 Timothy 2:1-2

Topics: "Moral Integrity", "Godly Governance"

Description

In this sermon, the speaker discusses the importance of truth and the consequences of lying. They emphasize that the United States seems to have lost sight of this, with corruption and dishonesty prevalent. The speaker also mentions the Ten Commandments and how people often break them, leading to the deterioration of society. They urge listeners to uphold the truth and live according to God's commandments. The sermon concludes with a call to be proud of one's faith and to strive for a government that upholds democratic values.

Transcript

When you compare prohibition at its worst, which is to me at its best, prohibition's a million times better. And the limbs you would fly to by recuse against each other are a thousand times worse than the limbs you'd fly from by leaving it, my friend, as it is. I may be crushed by it, but bound to it, I never will.

Oh, history tells us that in free countries there's a lot to live in. America may need help. It should ask my kindest votes would be not that I ever last in this area, but that I never deserve it.

There's no neutral ground in this fact. It's worth of a life and life to be here. I absolutely refuse to vote for any man, for mayor, for governor, for representative, for senator, or for president, who is hostile to and will not openly support the 18th Amendment or any other amendment to my Constitution.

As I said to you the other day, prohibition interferes with my personal liberty. First of all, everywhere in the statute book interferes with the liberty of the person who wants to vote. It doesn't interfere with my liberty because I say so.

The shepherd cares the people of Europe the way he looks over the people with which he is mindful. And then the rule of complaint against the shepherd should interfere with his personal liberty. As I said to you, all prohibition lets bootleggers and rum runners and moonshiners.

First of all, we've had bootleggers and moonshiners for nearly a hundred and fifty-five years as far as the stripes have roved over America. We've had bootleggers, we have them now. Dr. Thurow wrote to a doctor and said, Dear doctor, I had a wart on my face and it only took time and a half.

After taking 12 bottles of neuromedicine, my face is gone, but the wart is there yet. And the blues are gone, the blues are gone, the blues are gone, but the bootlegger and the moonshiner, my friend, he's clearly left on his face. And I said to you, well, they don't keep them, they repudiate them.

All rights and repudiation, they get 10 commandments. They don't keep the 10 commandments. They lie, they steal, they commit adultery, they murder, and yet you know without the 10 commandments that he knows civilization.

You know that society is civilization, left on morals, morals left on religion, religion left on faith in God and in Jesus Christ.
