

O Blessed Hurricane!

by C.H. Spurgeon

C.H. Spurgeon's sermon highlights the necessity of trusting God during trials, portraying them as blessings that draw believers closer to Him.

Scripture: Psalm 46:1, Psalm 55:22, Proverbs 3:5-6, Isaiah 41:10, Isaiah 51:5, Matthew 11:28-30, Romans 8:28, 2 Corinthians 12:9, Philippians 4:6-7, 1 Peter 5:7

Topics: "Trust in God", "Finding Refuge in Trials"

Description

C.H. Spurgeon emphasizes the necessity of trusting in God during times of severe trials, where earthly support fails and believers are compelled to rely solely on divine providence. He describes the storms of life as blessings that lead the soul to find refuge in God, highlighting that such hardships can ultimately strengthen faith and deepen the relationship with the Father. Spurgeon encourages those who feel burdened and helpless to embrace these challenges as opportunities to experience God's loving embrace.

Transcript

"On My arm, they shall trust." Isaiah 51:5

In seasons of severe trial, the Christian has nothing on earth that he can trust to, and is therefore compelled to cast himself on his God alone. When his vessel is quickly sinking, and no human deliverance can avail--he must simply and entirely trust himself to the providence and care of God.

Happy storm--that wrecks a man on such a rock as this!

O blessed hurricane--that drives the soul to God and God alone!

When a man is so burdened with troubles, so poor, so friendless, so helpless that he has nowhere else to turn--he flies into his Father's arms, and is blessedly clasped therein! Oh, tempest-tossed believer--it is a happy trouble which drives you to your Father!
