

A Contrite Spirit

by David Wilkerson

God looks favorably upon those with a contrite spirit, a broken and repentant heart that He can work on and revive.

Scripture: 1 Samuel 16:7, Psalm 34:18, Psalm 51:17, Proverbs 3:34, Isaiah 57:15, Isaiah 66:2, Matthew 5:3, Luke 18:13, 2 Corinthians 7:10, James 4:10

Topics: "Humility", "Contrition"

Description

David Wilkerson explores the theme of a contrite spirit, emphasizing that God favors those who are humble and broken-hearted, like Jacob, despite his flaws as a deceiver. He contrasts Jacob's genuine reverence for God's Word with Esau's hard-heartedness and superficial repentance. Wilkerson highlights that God looks beyond outward appearances and seeks a heart willing to change and be revived. The sermon underscores the importance of recognizing our need for God and the transformative power of a repentant spirit. Ultimately, it calls believers to cultivate a heart that trembles at God's Word and seeks His guidance.

Transcript

Why did God look so favorably upon Jacob, a deceiver? We read in Isaiah: "I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones" (Isaiah 57:15).

This passage describes a man who, like Jacob, is dejected, on the run, and God is reviving him, blessing him, honoring him. Isaiah adds: "But to this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word" (Isaiah 66:2).

We know that humans consider the outward appearance, but God always looks at the heart. We can see only Jacob's covetousness, greed and manipulation. But God saw beyond his flesh and into something within his heart -- a contrite, broken spirit. God knew that something in Jacob's heart was willing to be changed.

That is exactly what God is looking for in us. He looks for a broken, repentant heart He can work on. He cannot do anything with an Esau type, who takes the things of God for granted and weeps phony tears of repentance. Esau was sensual and his heart was hard. He was like many Christians today, floating through life with no purpose, wanting only to enjoy sensual pleasures along the way.

Jacob revered God's Word. How do I know this? Think about it: Jacob must have heard his father, Isaac, repeatedly tell the story of how God had made a covenant with Jacob's grandfather, Abraham. He heard of the time Isaac was laid upon the altar to be slain, but when Abraham lifted the knife, God stopped him and showed him a lamb to be used for the sacrifice. Finally, Jacob also heard of the holy seed that was to come from the patriarchal lineage.

In addition to all this, Jacob's mother probably reminded him of the dream God had given her -- that Jacob would be the holy seed. Jacob must have thrilled at the thought that one day he would be the head of the clan, carrying the torch of the lineage through which the Messiah would come!

Source: <https://sermonindex.net/speakers/david-wilkerson/a-contrite-spirit/>

Grow in Your Walk with Christ

Listen and read messages that will stir your heart for Christ and point you to deeper repentance and devotion.

- 50,000+ Sermons from speakers past and present
- 3,900+ Classic Christian Books freely readable online
- 1,200+ Bible Translations and Commentaries
- Over 450k forum posts — Join our vibrant online Christian forum

www.sermonindex.net