

Bound to the Living Word

by David Wilkerson

David Wilkerson emphasizes the majesty and authority of God's Living Word as the foundation for understanding His rule over creation and His relationship with humanity.

Scripture: Psalm 66:7, Psalm 93:1

Topics: "God's Sovereignty", "The Authority of Scripture"

Description

David Wilkerson emphasizes the majesty and power of God as the ruler of all creation, whose laws govern the universe and the affairs of humanity. He highlights that God's testimonies and decrees are irrevocable and reliable, as echoed in the scriptures. The sermon reflects on the eternal and unchangeable nature of God's Living Word, which serves as the foundation for His just rulings. Wilkerson reassures that while God is a righteous King, He is also a compassionate Father who cares for His children. Ultimately, the Bible is presented as the constitution of God's kingdom, revealing His character and the laws by which He governs.

Transcript

The Lord rules over all of creation with majesty and power. His laws govern the whole universe--all of nature, every nation and all the affairs of men. He rules over the seas, the planets, the heavenly bodies and all their movements. The Bible tells us: "He ruleth by his power for ever; his eyes behold the nations" (Psalm 66:7). "The Lord reigns, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength... Thy throne is established of old: thou art from everlasting.... Thy testimonies are very sure" (93:1-2, 5).

These Psalms were written by David, who is testifying, in essence: "Lord, your testimonies--your laws, decrees and words--are irrevocable. They are utterly reliable." The author of Hebrews echoes this, declaring that God's Living Word is eternal and unchangeable: "the same yesterday, and today, and forever" (Hebrews 13:8).

Think about it: There are laws operating in the universe that govern how things work, without exception. Consider the laws that rule the movements of the sun, moon, stars and earth. These heavenly bodies were all put into place when God spoke a word, and since that time they have been ruled by laws that God also spoke into being.

We're told throughout the New Testament that this great God is our Father and that he takes pity on his children. Hebrews tells us the Lord is touched with the feelings of our infirmities, and that he hears our every cry and bottles every tear. Yet we're also told that he is the righteous King who judges by his law. And his Word is his constitution, containing all of his legal decrees, by which he rules justly. Everything in existence is judged by his immutable Word.

Simply put, we can hold the Bible in our hands and know, "This book tells me who God is. It describes his attributes, nature, promises and judgments. It is his rule of law, from his own mouth, by which he rules and reigns. And it is a Word to which he has bound himself."

Every earthly judge is bound to determine the case before him according to the established law. God rules and judges everything before him according to the eternal law--that is, his own established Word. When the Lord makes a ruling, he speaks by his living Word, a Word to which he has bound himself.
