

God Must Chasten Me For My Sins Like A Loving Father

by David Wilkerson

This sermon emphasizes the interconnectedness of believers in the body of Christ, highlighting the shared responsibility to care for one another and minister to each other. It underscores the importance of recognizing that our actions impact the entire body and that Christ is inseparable from His body. The speaker stresses the need for personal accountability and the understanding that God will discipline out of love to prevent believers from being consumed by sin.

Scripture: 1 Corinthians 12:25, Ephesians 4:15, Colossians 3:16, Hebrews 12:6

Topics: "Interconnectedness in Christ", "Accountability in the Body of Believers"

Transcript

When one hurts, we all hurt. All the members should have the same care concerning one another. And remember, this is not about me.

It's about the body of Christ. He's the head, and we are the members of his body, and we all hurt together. We all minister to one another.

You cannot take Christ from his body. You cannot have Christ without his body. Seeing Christ in his fullness with the body changes the way I look at sin.

If I believe what I preach, I've got to be that God's going to chasten me if I continue in my sin. If I indulge in adulterous flirtation or pornography or any kind of lust, I know he's got to deal with me because he doesn't want to lose me. He's got to judge me and correct me and chasten me as a loving father, lest I be given over to my sin.
