Description

F.B. Meyer emphasizes the importance of obedience to God's direct commands, warning against being swayed by the opinions of others, even those who may seem to speak for God. He reflects on the story of the unknown prophet who faced severe consequences for disobedience after being tempted by a different suggestion. Meyer urges believers to seek God's guidance directly and to remain steadfast in their convictions, avoiding distractions that cater to personal comfort. The sermon serves as a reminder to prioritize divine instruction over human counsel, especially when it conflicts with God's will. Ultimately, true guidance comes from the Holy Spirit, and believers must act on what God reveals to them.

Forasmuch as thou hast been disobedient, . . .

but camest back. 1 Kings xiii. 21, 22 (R.V.).

WE are inclined at first sight to pity this unknown prophet, and to justify his return; but as we look closer into the story, we not only discover the reason for the severe penalty that overtook him, but we are warned lest we make a similar mistake. When we have received a direct command fresh from the lips of Christ, we must act on it, and not be turned aside by a different suggestion, made to us through the lips of professing Christians. God does not vacillate or alter in the thing which proceeds from his mouth. When we know we are in the line of his purpose, we must not allow ourselves to be diverted by any appeal or threat, from whomsoever it may emanate. Deal with God at first‑hand.

The rule for determining the true worth of the advice which our friends proffer us, is to ask, first, whether it conflicts with our own deep‑seated conviction of God's will; and, secondly, whether it tends to the ease and satisfaction of the flesh, as the old prophet's suggestion certainly did. Beware of any one who allures you with the bread and water that are to break your fast. That bait is likely enough to disturb the balance of your judgment. When a voice says spare thyself, be on the alert; it savours the things that be of man, not of those that be of God.

Learn to deal with God at first‑hand. Do not run hither and thither to human teachers, or to the Church. Be still before God, and what He says in the depths of thy soul, do. His Holy Spirit shall guide you into all truth; and when once his way has been revealed to thee, go straight on, listening to no other voice, however much it professes Divine inspiration.
