

The Greatest Call Is The Call To Intimacy With God

by Gary Wilkerson

This sermon emphasizes the importance of seeking intimacy with God in times of crisis and battles, rather than turning to worry, anger, despair, or fear. The message encourages turning to God, seeking His face as the ultimate desire, like David did, and making it a passion to seek God's glory and beauty above all else. It highlights that seeking God's face often leads to experiencing the power of God's hand in our lives.

Scripture: Psalm 27:8, Psalm 105:4, 2 Chronicles 7:14, Psalm 34:5, 1 Chronicles 16:11

Topics: "Intimacy with God", "Seeking God's Glory"

Transcript

Greatest call is a call to intimacy, a call to come to me. We can learn much from this for often in crisis and in the battles, we turn to worry. We turn to anger.

We turn to despair, despair. We turn to fear. We turn to our own power to try to overcome it.

And God is saying in the midst of these things, what I want you to do is turn to me, seek my face. And I love David's heart. He says, Oh, this is the one thing.

Thank you for saying that. Cause that's the one thing I most truly desire your face. Oh Lord, do I seek.

I want to encourage you, no matter what you're going through, let this be your one thing, passion to seek the face of the Lord, not just his hand, ranging things, fixing things, changing things, protecting things, no, his face, your glory, your beauty. That's what I want to do is. And I have found in my life, those who seek the face of the Lord oftentimes get the most power of God's hand.
