Description

George Fox emphasizes the importance of the Light of Christ as a guiding force for believers, urging them to heed this divine illumination to recognize their sins and the transient nature of worldly desires. He encourages individuals to rely on the Light for personal revelation and understanding, rather than on human teachings, leading to a deeper relationship with God. By embracing this Light, believers can witness the New Covenant and experience true rest and salvation. Fox warns against the distractions of vain thoughts and idolatry, reminding that true life comes from hearing the voice of Jesus.

Transcript

FRIENDS, All to the Light, which Jesus Christ hath enlightened you withal, take heed, that with the Light of Christ, the Saviour of your Souls ye may all come to see and enjoy Rest; and the New Covenant ye may all witness, where ye need no Man to teach you, saying, Know the Lord.

And this Light shows you Sin, and the Evil of the World, and the Lust of it, and the vain Fashions of it, that pass away, and the Unrighteousness, and the Ungodliness of it; for they are . . . contrary to the Light and to be condemned with the Light.

Therefore to the Light I direct you, that with it ye may see your selves; then in it stand, that with it ye may see Jesus, from whence it comes: And not to join with your vain Thoughts, nor that which doth consult, and set, and frame Ways; there is the Idol-maker and the Image-maker, and the Founder of the Images, whom ye will see with the Light, if ye to it take heed. And so . . . ye will come to hear the Voice of the Son of God; and who hears his Voice, shall live.
