Description

George Müller shares the story of his move to Bristol, emphasizing the importance of recognizing God's call in our lives. After marrying Mary Groves, Müller felt a divine prompting to leave his comfortable life in Teignmouth, despite his happiness there. The invitation from his friend Henry Craik confirmed to him that this transition was part of God's plan. This move marked the beginning of a new chapter in Müller's life, where he would fulfill God's purpose for him in Bristol.

Transcript

In 1830 George Müller married Mary Groves who became a true companion and support for the changing years which lay ahead. After two years he knew that his time in Teignmouth was coming to an end and although he was settled and very happy, he sensed that a move was imminent.

Henry Craik had already moved to Bristol and when he wrote to his best friend inviting him to make the same move, George Müller knew this call was from God. So in 1832 George and Mary Müller left the Devon town of Teignmouth for Bristol where God had a plan prepared for His now faithful servant.
