

January 11. 1678.

by Jane Lead

Believers can experience spiritual growth through the Father's fullness, which is communicated by the Comforter, and should be patient and urgent in seeking this growth.

Scripture: John 14:26, John 16:15, Romans 8:25, 2 Corinthians 3:18, Hebrews 6:10

Topics: "Holy Trinity", "Spiritual Growth"

Description

Jane Lead preaches about the divine connection between the Father, the Son, and the Comforter, emphasizing that all the Father has belongs to Jesus, and the Comforter continues to reveal these blessings to believers. She encourages the congregation to seek a deep spirituality where the glory of God transforms what is considered lowly. Believers are urged to maintain hope and patience, trusting that the Lord will remember those who persistently seek His fullness.

Transcript

Then again this Word was ministered to me from that Scripture, all that the Father hath is mine. Therefore the Comforter henceforth is to communicate of the same good things, that do run parallel in that line of Life from the Father unto me. So answerably all of that fullness, infused by degrees unto a high Spirituality, that so Glory may swallow up what is contemptible. For which hope, and be patient, for the Lord will not be unmindful of those, who are daily urgent here for it.
