

May 21. 1678. the Sea of Eternal Nature.

by Jane Lead

The sermon emphasizes the importance of maintaining a pure and holy heart in order to experience God's presence and nature.

Scripture: Psalm 51:10, Matthew 5:8, 1 Corinthians 13:12, James 4:8

Topics: "Spiritual Purity", "Gods Nature"

Description

Jane Lead preaches about the importance of maintaining purity and avoiding worldly distractions while waiting for God's guidance. She emphasizes the need to keep the mind and soul refined to allow God's presence to be revealed within us, like a floating sea for light and discovery. By drawing near to God with a pure mind, we can experience a deeper connection and understanding of His nature, allowing us to know Him as we are known.

Transcript

As I was waiting, I met with this Word from my Lord and God, Who ceaseth not to give Counsel unto us, to avoid the Snares, that every way do lie, while we are waiting in this Corrupt Air. The Word thus spake. O great Soul, and Mind, beware of Worldly soil: keep the inward part all refined; that God may open there his great Name, and be uppermost in his own Nature, as a floating Sea, for Light and Discovery. In which ye may know, as yea are known: for which draw nigh to That, which is ready to meet you in the Mind of Purity.
