

(Sermon Quote) Godly Teaching Is Needed for Lost Mankind

by John Piper

This sermon emphasizes the importance of teaching and sharing the Gospel with others, drawing inspiration from Acts chapter 5 where the apostles were accused of filling Jerusalem with their teaching. The message highlights the need for intentional instruction and strategies to help others understand and believe in the Gospel, rather than assuming they will naturally become Christians. It underscores the significance of consistently sharing the whole counsel of God and sound doctrine to effectively impart the message of salvation.

Scripture: Acts 5:28, Acts 20:27, 2 Timothy 1:13, Acts 19:9, Matthew 28:19

Topics: "Evangelism", "Teaching the Gospel"

Transcript

You just think of that other text in Acts chapter 5, which is where they're accusing the apostles, you have filled Jerusalem with your what? Tell me. Is this a PCA? Teaching. You have filled Jerusalem with your teaching.

Americans don't have a clue what we want them to believe. You can't just, here's a thought, become a Christian. We must teach.

We must find strategies to do this kind of thing. So my argument here, my argument is that that language of whole counsel, sound words, pattern of teaching, reasoning daily for two years is a strong argument for the propositional nature of what he spent three years imparting, which absolved his hands from their souls.
