

Whose Hands Did The Nails Go Through

by John Piper

This sermon emphasizes the profound concept of substitutionary atonement, highlighting how Christ took on the punishment meant for us, bearing the nails and the wrath of God on our behalf. It addresses the importance of not dismissing this foundational doctrine in Christianity, especially in the face of modern ideas that downplay the need for penal substitution.

Scripture: Colossians 2:14, Isaiah 53:5, Romans 5:8, 1 Peter 2:24

Topics: "Substitutionary Atonement", "The Wrath of God"

Description

This sermon emphasizes the profound concept of substitutionary atonement, highlighting how Christ took on the punishment meant for us, bearing the nails and the wrath of God on our behalf. It addresses the importance of not dismissing this foundational doctrine in Christianity, especially in the face of modern ideas that downplay the need for penal substitution.

Transcript

Whose hands did the nails go through? Not yours, Christ's. Whose warrant brought the nail into his hand? Not his, he had no sin, yours. That's called substitution.

And if you ever hear anybody mocking the doctrine of substitutionary atonement, don't walk away in tears or show them the scriptures. But don't be sucked into these modern ideas that there is no wrath, God doesn't have wrath, and therefore there's no need for any penal punishment substitution. All that is old-fashioned stuff.

It's not. It's Colossians 2.14. Clear as day.
