

The Pattern Of Revival Is The Word of God (Clip)

by Keith Daniel

This sermon emphasizes the rediscovery and restoration of the unadulterated Word of God, drawing parallels to the Old Testament account of finding the Word buried in rubble. It challenges the audience to consider what they are passing on to the next generation for revival, highlighting the importance of bringing back the Word of God in its pure form, even if it goes against the norms of society or religious institutions.

Duration: 0:51

Scripture: 2 Kings 22:8, Nehemiah 8:1, Hebrews 4:12, Isaiah 40:8, Matthew 24:35

Topics: "Rediscovery of God's Word", "Passing on Faith to Future Generations"

Description

This sermon emphasizes the rediscovery and restoration of the unadulterated Word of God, drawing parallels to the Old Testament account of finding the Word buried in rubble. It challenges the audience to consider what they are passing on to the next generation for revival, highlighting the importance of bringing back the Word of God in its pure form, even if it goes against the norms of society or religious institutions.

Transcript

In the Old Testament, it staggered me when they found the Word of God buried in the rubble, and the king ordered a pulpit to be built, and the Word to be brought in the groanings from the kingdom, under the Word of God, to see how far we've strayed. And you ask, what do we hold out as a baton to the next generation for revival? Well, the only thing I ever felt compelled, that I could possibly have any influence, would be to bring back the Word of God, unadulteratedly, without even explaining, just as it stands, where I know most pulpits would throw you out, even if you were Jesus Christ himself.
