Description

K.P. Yohannan emphasizes that true humility cannot be manufactured by human effort; it must come from a deep understanding and relationship with Christ. He asserts that Christ is the answer to our struggles with humility, and that by humbling ourselves before Him, we allow Him to work within us. This transformation leads to genuine humility that reflects in our relationships and daily interactions. Each moment we choose to respond to His promptings is an opportunity to embody the humility of Christ. Yohannan encourages a commitment to practice humility as outlined in James 4:10, promising that it will enhance our love and compassion for others.

Transcript

We cannot manufacture humility. The moment someone tries to be humble, we notice it like a bad taste in our mouth. The outside actions may look right, but their spirit doesn't match. Humility manifests itself from the reality and understanding we have within us. Natural man with all his knowledge and determination cannot simply be humble.

Christ is our answer. He must be our focus. It is Him working within us and us responding to Him by which we will truly become humble. When we humble ourselves before Him and desire His work in this area, He has the open door to work with us. And He will.

Then in our relationships with others and our daily events of life, we will have many chances to humble ourselves in response to His promptings. Each of these moments is an opportunity for us to be conformed into the humility of Christ and have that mark of humility on our lives.

James 4:10 exhorts us: "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord." For our transformation into Christlikeness, this is where it starts. Will you make a commitment today to practice this Scripture? You will find that your love and compassion for others will grow tremendously, and you will experience the joy of being a servant like Jesus.

Don't wait.
