Description

Leonard Ravenhill emphasizes that the moral decay and spiritual stagnation in America are not caused by the strength of humanism, but rather by the weakness of evangelism. He argues that the true enemy of revival in America is the lack of genuine revivalists, despite the presence of numerous evangelists. Ravenhill calls for a return to authentic revival that transcends mere evangelistic efforts, highlighting the need for deep spiritual awakening.

Transcript

The moral desolation in America and the spiritual stagnation is not, N-O-T, is not due to the strength of humanism but to the weakness of evangelism. I believe the number one enemy to revival in America today is evangelism. In America today we have at least 500 evangelists.

We do not have one revivalist.
