

Ravenhill Humor - Who's the Author

by Leonard Ravenhill

The sermon emphasizes the importance of education and self-improvement, highlighting the need for parents to take an active role in their children's education.

Duration: 0:56

Scripture: Genesis 2:18, Deuteronomy 6:7, Psalm 127:3, Proverbs 1:8, Proverbs 22:6, Matthew 19:6, Ephesians 6:4

Topics: "Ravenhill Humor"

Description

In the sermon, the speaker mentions the famous story of Rip Van Winkle, which is well-known around the world, including in Russia. However, the speaker asks the audience if they know who wrote the story, and reveals that it was written by Washington Irving. The speaker then expresses surprise at someone named Mike not knowing the author, suggesting that he needs to go to school instead of going to Australia. The speaker also mentions homeschooling and new students, implying that there is a connection between education and knowledge of literature.

Transcript

Do you know the most famous story from America around the world, even in Russia? It's the story of Rip Van Winkle. Do you know who wrote it? Mike, do you know who wrote it? A brilliant American answer, he says the author. I wouldn't have known.

Mike, you don't need to go to Australia, you need to go to school. Isn't that disgusting? Where's his wife? You do homeschooling, you've got new students.
