Description

This sermon emphasizes the theme of God's love as seen throughout the Bible, particularly highlighted in the writings of John and Peter. It underscores the importance of reciprocating God's love by loving one another, as a response to the immense love God has shown us by sacrificing His Son for our sins.

Transcript

And he continues it through all his epistles. John takes up the trumpet. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another.

And Peter echoes it. And John, in the Revelation, finishes with it. Unto him who loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood.

The love of God. The love of God.
