

The Glory of God

by Mary Wilder Tileston

The sermon emphasizes the glory of God, His goodness and love, and the fullness of joy that comes from beholding Him in all.

Scripture: Psalm 33:5, Psalm 65:8, Psalm 145:9, Matthew 5:6, 1 Timothy 6:17

Topics: "Gods Righteousness", "Divine Providence"

Description

Mary Wilder Tileston preaches about finding joy and delight in God's righteousness, justice, and lovingkindness that fills the earth. She emphasizes the beauty of God's works and the triumph of the soul in His righteous ways. The sermon highlights the fullness of joy in beholding God in all things, knowing that He leads everything towards Himself with love and wisdom. It also points out that God richly provides all things for us to enjoy, with Himself being the ultimate gift to be cherished and enjoyed naturally, not out of duty.

Transcript

Thou makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to rejoice. Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness.

--PSALMS 65:8,11

He loveth righteousness and justice: the earth is full of the lovingkindness of the Lord.

--PSALMS 33:5 (R. V.)

I SING because Thy works are fair,

Thy glory makes me glad,

The garments bright of praise I wear,

For Thou art brightly clad.

Full triumph doth my soul possess,

Because Thy ways are right;

The glory of Thy righteousness

Maketh my dear delight.

--THOMAS H. GILL

THE fulness of joy is to behold God in all; for by the same blessed might, wisdom, and love, that He made all things, to the same end our good Lord leadeth it continually, and there to Himself shall bring it, and, when it is time, we shall see it.

--MOTHER JULIANA

God gives us richly all things to enjoy, while He Himself is His own best gift, and to be enjoyed not in a way of duty, but in the simple, natural realizing aright of what we possess in Him.
