It highlights the importance of unity, fellowship, and doing God's work together as a church body.

Transcript

This church is built on God's Word. God built it. And the early church, I don't know if you know this, but wasn't built from a man on a pulpit preaching.

The early church actually got together and they came together around communion. Every week they came and they remembered what Jesus has done. They would read the Psalms.

Somebody would give a word from God's Word. They would be encouraged. It was a fellowship.

That's how the church grew. Now, there's nothing wrong with a pastor preaching. That has developed over the years.

That's biblical. But many churches weren't this large. They were smaller home gatherings.

And so we have to remember what the church is. It's not coming to listen to a person and then going home. The church is actually to come together and fellowship and be united and then go back out and do God's work.
