

For the Care of the Monastery's Property

by St. Benedict of Nursia

---

The sermon emphasizes the importance of responsible property care and accountability within the monastery, with the Abbess playing a key role in appointing and overseeing sisters.

Scripture: Proverbs 27:23, 1 Corinthians 4:2, Colossians 3:23

Topics: "Stewardship", "Accountability"

Description

St. Benedict of Nursia emphasizes the importance of caring for the monastery's property by appointing trustworthy sisters to oversee tools, clothing, and other articles. The Abbess is instructed to keep a list of these items to ensure accountability as sisters rotate in their responsibilities. Those who show negligence in handling the monastery's possessions are to be corrected and disciplined according to the Rule.

Transcript

For the care of the monastery's property in tools, clothing and other articles let the Abbess appoint sisters on whose manner of life and character she can rely; and let her, as she shall judge to be expedient, consign the various articles to them, to be looked after and to be collected again. The Abbess shall keep a list of these articles, so that as the sisters succeed one another in their assignments she may know what she gives and what she receives back. If anyone treats the monastery's property in a slovenly or careless way, let her be corrected. If she fails to amend, let her undergo the discipline of the Rule.
