

His Angelic Robes

by Thomas Brooks

The devil uses his agents to appear as angels of light, deceiving people and leading them away from God.

Scripture: Matthew 23:15, 2 Corinthians 11:14, Galatians 1:6

Topics: "Deception", "Spiritual Warfare"

Description

Thomas Brooks emphasizes the danger of hidden enemies, particularly those who disguise themselves as agents of light while actually serving the devil. He warns that many individuals, appearing righteous, are in fact leading souls away from salvation and towards destruction. Brooks calls for vigilance against these deceptive influences that can lead to spiritual ruin, urging believers to seek God's grace to protect them from such dangers.

Transcript

A hidden enemy is far worse than an open enemy.

The devil has put his angelic robes upon many of his chief agents, that they may the more easily and the more effectually deceive and delude the souls of men.

Ah! what multitudes are there, that to some bleary eyes appear as angels of light, and yet in their principles and practices are but servants to the prince of darkness, laboring with all their might to make proselytes for hell, Matt. 23:15, and to draw men to those wild notions, opinions, and conceits which will leave them short of heaven, yes, bring them down to the hottest, darkest, and lowest place in hell, if God does not prevent it by a miracle of grace.
