

Let Christ Be Hanged!

by Thomas Brooks

The sermon warns against the dangers of being bewitched by the world and prioritizing its desires over God's will.

Scripture: Matthew 27:21

Topics: "Worldly Temptation", "Betrayal of Christ"

Description

Thomas Brooks warns against the dangers of being captivated by worldly desires, leading individuals to prefer Barabbas over Jesus. He illustrates how people, influenced by the world, may betray and condemn Christ, echoing the cries of those who demanded His crucifixion. Brooks emphasizes the grave consequences of such choices, likening those who reject Christ for worldly gain to 'incarnate devils.' The sermon serves as a stark reminder of the spiritual peril of prioritizing earthly pleasures over divine truth.

Transcript

Men bewitched with the world will prefer a Barabbas before a Jesus. They will with Judas betray Christ, and with Pilate condemn Christ, and with the Scribes and Pharisees they will cry out, "Crucify him! crucify him! Away with this Jesus!
Away with this Jesus! Let Barabbas live--but let Jesus die!
Let Barabbas be saved--but let Christ be hanged!"
Ah, what incarnate devils will such men prove, who are bewitched with this world!
