

Merrily on in the Way to Hell

by Thomas Brooks

The sermon warns of the reality of hell and the foolishness of delighting in evil, urging listeners to take heed of the consequences of their actions.

Scripture: Matthew 25:46, Luke 16:23, Revelation 20:10

Topics: "Eternal Punishment", "The Reality of Hell"

Description

Thomas Brooks emphasizes the reality of hell as a place of eternal punishment for the wicked, contrasting it with the joy of heaven. He questions how individuals can continue to indulge in sin and evil when they should be aware of the impending torment that awaits them. Brooks urges listeners to reflect on their actions and beliefs, suggesting that a true understanding of hell would lead to a more serious approach to life and righteousness. The sermon serves as a stark reminder of the consequences of unrighteousness and the importance of seeking a life aligned with God's will.

Transcript

"Then they will go away to eternal punishment, but the righteous to eternal life." Matthew 25:46

Certainly there is a hell, a place of torment provided and prepared for all wicked and ungodly people.

Ah, how many are there that rejoice to do evil, and delight in their abominations, and take pleasure in unrighteousness! But could men do thus, dared men do thus--did they really believe that hell was prepared and fitted for them, and that the fiery lake was but a little before them?

Heaven is a place where all is joyful--and hell is a place where all is doleful. In heaven there is nothing but happiness--and in hell there is nothing but heaviness, nothing but endless, easeless, and remediless torments. Did men really believe this, how could they go so merrily on in the way to hell?
