

That Dead Man or Dead Woman

by Thomas Brooks

The sermon emphasizes the importance of viewing death as a transition to eternal life for believers, and eternal torment for the wicked.

Scripture: Numbers 23:10, Psalm 116:15, Proverbs 14:32, John 11:25-26, Romans 14:8, 2 Corinthians 5:1, Philippians 1:21, 1 Thessalonians 4:14, Hebrews 12:1-2, Revelation 14:13

Topics: "Hope in Christ", "Death of the Righteous"

Description

Thomas Brooks emphasizes the contrasting fates of the wicked and the righteous in his sermon 'That Dead Man or Dead Woman.' He laments the fate of the wicked, who face torment and despair, while celebrating the joyous welcome that awaits departed believers in heaven. Brooks encourages the congregation to aspire to die the death of the righteous, highlighting the preciousness of a saint's death in God's eyes.

Transcript

("A Believer's Last Day, His Best Day")

"When calamity comes, the wicked are brought down, but even in death the righteous have a refuge!" Prov. 14:32

We should lament over that dead man or dead woman . . .

whom hell harbors,

whom the devil devours,

whom divine justice torments!

But let rejoice over those departed believers whom

Christ embosoms, and whom all the court of heaven comes forth to welcome!

"Let me die the death of the righteous, and may my end be like theirs!" Numbers 23:10

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints!" Psalm 116:15
