Description

Thomas Brooks emphasizes the significance of hiding God's word in our hearts as a protective measure against evil lusts. He illustrates how David treasures the law of God, using it as both a safeguard against sin and a defense against Satan's temptations. By keeping the law close, believers can navigate life's challenges and remain steadfast in their faith. This internalization of scripture serves as the best armor, ensuring that one does not transgress against God's commands.

Transcript

"Your word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against You." Psalm 119:11

David hides the word in his heart as a treasure--that he might not lose it; and as a rule--that he might not transgress against it. The law of God kept close in the heart is the best armor against evil lusts. David locks up the law of God in his heart, as in a chest or cabinet--to secure him against Satan's ambushes and assaults on the one hand, and to preserve him from sin on the other hand.
