

Knowing Our Position, Satan is Under Our Feet

by Zac Poonen

This sermon discusses the diminishing oppression of Satan in the lives of believers as they grow in their understanding of their authority in Christ. It emphasizes the importance of recognizing that through Christ, believers have power over the enemy and can overcome fear and spiritual attacks. The speaker contrasts their early experiences of spiritual oppression with their current confidence in Christ's victory, highlighting the transformation that occurs when believers fully grasp their position in Christ.

Scripture: Luke 10:19, Ephesians 6:12, 1 John 4:4, James 4:7, 2 Timothy 1:7

Topics: "Authority in Christ", "Overcoming Spiritual Oppression"

Transcript

I believe as we keep on pursuing this life, more and more we find we're not oppressed so much by the devil. I remember in the early days of my Christian life, even while serving the Lord, oppression of Satan was there. But it's less and less and less and less, because I know my position.

This place is under my feet. Scary dreams. I don't believe Jesus had scary dreams.

In the beginning, we do.
